The sale, conducted by the Order of the Grail, is the major ring sale of the year.

The money collected as a service charge on the ring sales will go to a fund for the Bernard-Grail Scholarship and for student loans.

Ivey To Chair Panel

William L. Ivey, associate director of Memorial Hospital has been named chairman of a national committee to study the structure and organization of the American Heart Association.

The appointment to this long-range planning committee was made by Dr. Helen B. Tausing, president of the national Heart group.

Ivey, who is chairman of the American Heart Association committee on Affiliate Relations and Services, is immediate past board chairman of the North Carolina Heart Association and a member of several national Heart Association committees.

Magazine Taps 3

"Mademoiselle" magazine has named North Carolina coeds Ann G. Jamieson, Ellen L. Lentz, and Zacki Murphy to its college board.

The board members will report regularly to the magazine on events and campus trends at North Carolina.

Flutist To Play Here

John Meacham, flutist on the music faculty of UNC-G, will appear in recital in Hill Hall on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Meacham will be assisted by five fellow faculty members.

His appearance is sponsored by the Tuesday Evening Series and G.M. The public is invited.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Speak While You Can

This is the text of the statement read by the editor of The Daily Tar Heel at yesterday's press conference:

We feel that the basic question of whether or not Aptheker should be allowed to speak has been confused and couded by the association of the invitation with a group identified, justifiably or not, as leftist radicals.

Because of the controversial nature of SDS we feel the trustees have been placed in the position of judging both the group and the man invited.

We have extended the invitation to Aptheker to remove this complicating factor from the decision facing the executive committee of the board of trustees because we wish the decision to be made solely on the grounds of academic freedom, not emotional opposition to the inviting organization. The Daily Tar Heel and Student Government do not represent any elements deserving of this emotional opposition.

The alternative now before the trustees is not one of "giving in to the demands of a small, unrepresentative student group," but of accepting a request made by the direct representatives of the 12,400 students on this campus.

We are united in our opposition to Dr. Aptheker's views and actions, but we are also united in our belief that he has the right to speak.

We firmly believe that the overwhelming majority of UNC students share these opinions and we urge each of them to make their views known to the members of the executive committee of the board of trustees, who must make the decision. We encourage every student who believes strongly enough in the preservation of individual rights to do something about it by contacting these trustees by mail or telephone.

Their names and addresses are:
G. N. Noble, Trenton
Thomas B. Upchurch Jr., Raeford
Wade Barber, P. O. Box 126, Pittsboro
Victor S. Bryant, 111 Concoran St., Durham
Reid A. Maynard, Burlington
J. Shelton Wicker, Sanford
Mrs. John G. Burgwyn, Jackson
George Watts Hill, Raleigh Road, Chapel Hill
Rudolph I. Mintz, P. O. Box 784, Wilmington
Mrs. Albert H. Lathrop, 4 Woodlink Road, Asheville
W. Frank Taylor, Borden Building, Goldsboro
John W. Umstead Jr., 619 E. Franklin St., Chapel Hill

Junket To Jordan

Richmond Times-Dispatch

President Johnson's brother-in-law has embarked on a junket to Jordan as a $75-a-day government "consultant" in order to "promote native handicrafts' and to "do his bit to help his brother-in-law with the balance-of-payments problem."

Antonio J. Taylor is the First Lady's brother. For 35 years he has operated an arts and crafts shop in Santa Fe, N. Mex. And, according to a spokesman for the Agency for International Development—which hands out American foreign aid and has engaged Taylor for the assignment to Jordan—he has "terrific know-how."

We don't doubt that at all. According to AID, he did a good job on a similar junket to Latin America last year. On both assignments, Taylor's job has been to help foreign craftsmen and shopkeepers perk up their sales to tourists and their exports to Europe and the U. S.

It is certain that the "$75 per day plus expenses" will provide the President's brother-in-law with a nice trip abroad.

It is probable that helping Latin Americans and Jordanians to sell their wares at home or abroad is worthwhile.

But it is doubtful whether the sale of these handicrafts will have any measurable impact on the balance of payments problem.

And if it has any impact at all, it would have to be negative—unless Taylor fails the assignment completely or does exactly the opposite of what he is supposed to do. For if he is successful in promoting foreign sales to American tourists and foreign exports to the U. S., to be paid for in dollars going from the U.S., one would have to conclude that he will nt be doing "his bit to help his brother-in-law with the balance-of-payments problem." If anything, he will be doing his bit to aggravate it.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Do You Ever Feel Like You've Lost Your Identity?"

Mike Jennings

French Show Petulance

Wednesday the French threw an unidentified object into the UN Security Council room. The delegates scattered in confusion. They still don't know just what the object is, but they're making some educated guesses.

The Council had just voted nine to two to accept the United States' proposal that the Council debate the Viet Nam problem. Four members, the French delegate among them, abstained.

Then, suddenly, there it was — lobbed into the Council room like a grenade. On its surface, it was a sharp statement from the French Government declaring that the United Nations was "not qualified to intervene" in the Viet Nam issue because South Viet Nam, North Viet Nam and Communist China were not represented in the United Nations.

But the Security Council members have been in the statesmanship business long enough to know that official declarations are seldom what they seem — especially when, as in this case, they allege a stickling concern for the rights of other nations under international law.

The statement, which is believed to have been edited by President de Gaulle, may actually be anything within the range from bluff to big business. But twt considerations make it more likely that the statement falls somewhere along the bluff end of the spectrum. If the French issued the statement under no other motivations than those present in these considerations, they were not even bluffing in a statesmanly manner. They were just being petulant.

The first — and less likely—co sideration is the possibility of continued French bitterness over the 1954 Geneva Agreements. The French were then surrounded in Dien Bien Phu by both communist and non - communist Vietnamese troops in an odd, three - sided war. Each of the three parties to the fighting went to the conference table in Geneva in hopes of salvaging a good deal for their efforts. The communists got Viet Nam north of the 17th parallel, the non - communists got South Viet Nam and the French got out.

It seems incredible that the French Government should now, 12 years later, try to cripple the United States' chances of getting out of a similar struggle with more success. But the possibility gains credence from the French endorsement of a new Geneva Conference. In view of the rooking the French got at the 1954 conference, it seems unlikely that they are offering this alternate proposal in hopes of securing a fair shake for all parties concerned.

The second consideration is more timely and more probable. Some foreign observers feel that the statement may represent an attempt to improve French relations with the North African countries, where feeling in favor of the North Vietnamese runs high. The already poor relations between France and these nations were worsened by the recent kidnapping in Paris of Mehdi Ben Barka, a Moroccan nationalist leader.

In either case, the French motives do not seem to be backed with such strong conviction that the Gaullist government would risk using its Secutiry Council veto—and incurring the wrath of the free world—should the majority of the Council favor passing on to the rest of the UN the question of a United Nations—mediated settlement of the Viet Nam conflict.

The Security Council delegates will do well to be wary of the unidentified object the French have thrown into their deliberations. But the object looks less dangerous than annoying — less like a grenade thrown in resistance than a teething ring thrown in petulance.

David Rothman

Johnson Can't Handle Luci

WASHINGTON — Drew Pearson said in his column recently that there are only two areas in which President Johnson has not been successful: (1) ending the Vietnamese troubles and (2) convincing Luci she shouldn't become a teen - age bride.

Pearson says Luci, like her father, is "a compelling, persuasive salesman." He even insists that she — not LBJ — got boy friend Pat Nugent transferred to an air base near the White House.)

If this be the case, I suggest that Luci join the Administration's "peace offensive"; after all, Ho Chi Minh will be a push - over job, now that she has managed to persuade The Great Persuader.

Should Luci go to Hanoi to conduct peace talks, I predict, the war will be over in a few days.

Nevertheless, the President will first have to exercise all of his famed persuasive powers on his daughter. Indeed, there remains the question of whether he can convince her to undertake this important mission. But in the end, I believe, Johnson will succeed—after something like the following conversation takes place between Luci and him:

"Please Luci, you've go to do your part to contribute to the Great Society's foreign policy. Dean Rusk can't get Ho Chi Minh to the conference table. Harriman has failed. Goldberg has failed. George Ball has failed. Now, I realize our peace feelers would be successful if only I could take time out from turning all the lights off at the White House to go to Viet Nam; but I'm afraid my domestic economy program takes priority. Come — let us reason together."

"Daddy, you know I'd like to ask not what my country can do for me but what I can do for my country. Yet I don't want to get so busy I don't have time for my school work. You yourself got pretty mad on hearing I'm flunking two subjects."

"Sure I got mad, and I meant it all the way. But your grades show you're incompetent enough to influence this country's Viet Nam policy."

"But what about Pat Nugent?"

"The military people let you have him transferred to Washington to be near you at the White House, and I'm sure they'd be just as willing to see him escort you to Hanoi — only I understand that U. S. airmen haven't been receiving cordial wel comes when they drop in to visit our Nor Vietnamese friends. However, you could always send him over to the Marines. w could assign him to the unit in Viet Nam fighting farthest North, closest to Hano

"You needn't arrange things. I operated behind your back to get Nugent tra ferred to Washington in the first place there's no reason why I can't have I transferred again."

'Then you'll go to Asia to negotiate the peace?"

"But only if you let me take along my Sting Ray."

"Drew Pearson is absolutely right LBJ said as he sagged his head. "'Luci, like the war in Viet Nam, lies beyond the considerable power of the President of the United States.'"

Letter To The Editor

Editor, the Daily Tar Heel:

In reference to the letter to the Editor of Feb. 3, titled "Penalty Too Harsh," the Women's Honor Council would like to clarify the true and actual facts of the case referred to: 1) The offense for which the defendant was originally given an indefin it probation and 36-day campusment was not a minor offense at all; the offense was a major women's rule violation, namely spending the night out of her residence without permission.

2) The second violation was not simply being 15 minutes late; instead the defendant was tried for lying in that she falsified a campusment sign - in sheet. Had the defendant herself felt that the penalty was too "harsh," she was fully informed of her right to appeal and could have done so. She did not.

As a matter of clarification, the Council would have it known that at the end of the first hearing, the defendant requested suspension at that time.

The Women's Council regrets the fact that such misinformation and misunderstandings have occurred.

Sincerely yours,
Leith Merrow
Chairman, Women's Honor Council

The Collegiate World

Cornell Reforms Grading

By RICHARD B. HOFFMAN
Cornell Daily Sun

By approving S-U (Satisfactory-Unsatisfactory) grading for Arts and Sciences students in any one elective outside the major, the University faculty took its first truly significant step toward academic reform since last spring's storm shook campus complacency. That it has taken this long merely to begin educational improvement is disappointing, but the faculty's acceptance of an experimental, imaginative proposal deserves notice.

In case we hasten to proclaim Cornell the university of innovation, let us remember that the S-U concept is not a Big Red "first." Perhaps the fact that Princeton has already passed such a plan was the deciding consideration when the Cornell faculty debated the S - U system, which then could no longer be labelled radical or unprecedented. Its approval, however, may signal the end of the patching-up-old-institutions method of smoothing student discontent and the beginning of a new period of creativity.

Even if the S-U idea is neither all - inclusive in scope nor breathtaking in conception, it is a first step and as such, holds out a good deal of hope for the future. It means the University is beginning to stop asking the question "What will the graduate schools say?" whenever organizational changes are proposed. This time Princeton broke the ice, next time we may show the way.

It means the faculty has moved beyond quick salves for student such as changing from number to letter grading. If anyone thought the crash switch to A's and B's would improve the situation, they appear waiting discouragement come semester grades. Already chatter is filled with 3.2's and 2.7's as students struggle to reduce pluses and minuses to hard figures before interviewers work the computations for them.

The S-U scheme's approval means that the faculty is beginning to break out from under a morass of reports and red tape. Considering the length of time it takes to complete a good report and the number of committees through which proposals for implementation must pass, the plan's passage is momentous.

More than the replacement of the freshman English program by humanities sections, which may not prove any better than the overly vilified English classes, the S-U grading plan is a break with the past. Professors have been lavishing unusual praise on the special sections being planned for the six - year Ph.D. program. But unlike this program, the advantages of which hopefully will be applied to standard classes, the S-U system is a large scale change potentially affecting all arts school students.

This new option is all the more praiseworthy because it will encourage students to elect courses they might pass over otherwise for fear of winding up with a low grade. The inclusion of an S or U on a transcript may even frustrate the average - makers among the graduate schools, who may be forced to pay increased attention to particular courses instead of the often meaningless average.

With its passage of the S-U legislation, the faculty has displayed its willingness to accept the new and possibly even conceive it in the future. Implementation of changes recommended by the Kahn - Bowers committee and others remains. Unlike the University faculty, the new University Commission on Undergraduate Education has not yet revealed any of its conclusions regarding academic reform. It is to be hoped that this group, especially because of its compact nature, will be able to speed improvement, if it is not to be yet another whistlestop on the red tape line or another graveyard, admittedly an impressive one, for experimental proposals.

Confidence

By HENRY BELK
In The Greensboro Daily News

Twice this month we have visited the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. On one trip we spent an evening with students in the School of Journalism who were joined at the UNC Press Club regular meeting by a group from other classes who came because of interest.

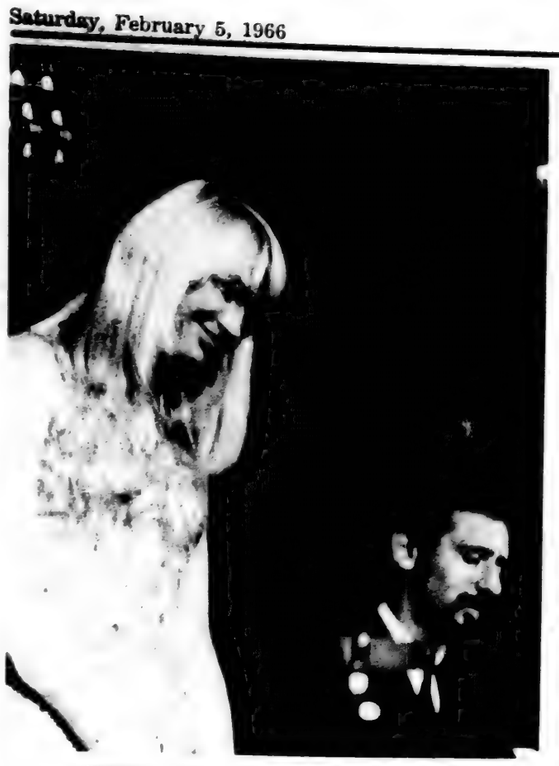
In the second place we were attending sessions of the Mid-Winter Institute of the N. C. Press Association. We met a number of students and observed the carriage and demeanor of the young people as they went to and from class

We had this definite opinion. Students of the Universsity at Chapel Hil are a serious throng of young people They mean business in their getting of knowledge.

The young men and the young women with whom we talked are much better informed than we were at their age They read more papers, do more studying, and they have the advantage of information from radio and television that my generation did not have.

We saw no horseplay, no boisterous conduct, and no carousing.

I made no survey, did no questioning but I did watch for conduct upon which I could base an opinion. Today's university students are much more at grips with themselves, their studies and the world than my generation was.



PETER, PAUL, AND MARY IN CONCERT

Peter, Paul, And Mary Coming To Raleigh Friday

The outstanding folk trio of Peter, Paul, and Mary will appear in concern in Raleigh at Reynolds Coliseum on Feb. 11.

Peter, Paul, and Mary, whose recordings have a world market, have only cut six albums, but four of these, "Peter, Paul, and Mary," "Moving," "In the Wind," and "Peter, Paul, And Mary in Concert," have earned gold records for the trio.

They have also had great success with singles such as "If I Had a Hammer," "Lemon Tree," "Puff, the Magic Dragon," and many others.

The popular folk trio has also drawn much attention from the press.

Radio Program Will Tell About Student Life At UNC

The State Affairs Committee's radio program will go on the air on 19 stations across North Carolina, beginning Feb. 7, informing the state about student life at UNC.

Bob Powell, chairman of the Student Government committee, said Thursday that the programs will have a newsmagazine approach and contain features and news of current events. The weekly programs are produced solely by UNC students and financed by Student Government funds.

The purpose of the radio program, Powell said, is "to communicate to the state some of the things going on here that aren't reported normally. The committee is set up to try to present a good image of students here to the people of North Carolina.

"In the past the committee has programmed student speakers for civic clubs across the state, but, though successful, theis type of approach reaches only a limited number of people."

The programs will cover everything from personalities to Student Government activities, athletes, and campus entertainers, he added. Topics for future programs include the freshman honors program, the residence college system, the honor system, and the course evaluation booklet.

The first program will include a message from Student Body President Paul Dickson on the activities of Student Government; an interview with football star Danny Talbott, representing the athlete on campus; an interview with David Kiel and Mary King, initiators of a petition expressing the appreciation of over 5,000 UNC students for soldiers' efforts in Viet Nam; and an interview with comedian Woody Allen, which was taped during his Germans visit here last year.

The programs run 15 minutes long and contain usually four to six topics, as on fast-moving news programs. Sample tapes have been sent to each station, along with personal letters to program sonal letters to program chairman Dr. Wesley Wallace, chairman of the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures.

Powell noted that Wallace has aided the committee greatly, and that paid graduate students in the department will take full responsibility fo producing the programs.

Conservatives Plan Rebuttal To Aptheker

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

The president of the Carolina Conservative Club said his group is planning a public rebuttal to Herbert Aptheker should the Communist speak here.

"We can't really say what form the rebuttal will take," Clark said, "but it will probably be announced within the next two weeks if action is necessary."

He said he "personally (is) not opposed to Aptheker's speaking here.

"Aptheker is a thoroughly useless individual who shouldn't be able to convince anybody."

Dave Sentelle, president of the UNC Young Americans for Freedom, said his group has not taken an official position concerning Aptheker's coming to UNC.

Sentelle said, "I myself don't believe his appearance would do any good or harm."

He said he doubts Students for a Democratic Society will increase its membership if Aptheker is not allowed to speak.

Paul King, the YAF's secretary - treasurer, said he is personally in favor of letting Aptheker speak.

Television Today

WRAL (Ch. 5)

6:30 The Lone Ranger
7:00 BAIL OUT AT 43,000 Jomn Payne
CREATURE FROM THE HAUNTED SEA Anthony Carbone
9:30 Milton the Monster(C)
10:00 Porky Pig Show (C)
10:30 The Beatles (C)
11:00 Casper Cartoon Show(C)
11:30 Magilla Gorilla (C)
12:00 Wide World of Sports
1:30 American Bandstand
2:30 Teenage Frolics
3:00 Bugs Bunny Show (C)
3:30 Pro Bowlers Tour
5:00 Championship Wrestling
6:00 Grand Ole Opry
6:30 Wilburn Brothers
7:00 Porter Wagoner
7:30 Let's Go to the Races (C)
8:00 Donna Reed
8:30 Lawrence Welk (C)
9:30 Hollywood Palace (C)
10:30 Ozzie and Harriet (C)
11:00 ABC News
11:15 Dateline
11:25 Movie of the Week: STRANGERS WHEN WE MEET: Kirk Douglas

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

THE DONNA REED SHOW — 8:00 p.m. — After a few lessons from a local restaurateur, Donna practices her French while buying a Paris gown she thinks is on sale.

HOLLYWOOD PALACE — 9:30 p.m. — Vince Edwards is host, joined by talented Liza Minelli, Joan Rivers, and trained elephants Bertha and Tina.

OZZIE AND HARRIET — 10:30 p.m. — Rick and Wally order made - to - measure suits for themselves and their fraternity brothers, but Wally gets the measurements mixed up with marketing reports.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:30 Space Soldiers
7:30 Secret Squirrel (c)
8:00 Captain Kangaroo
9:00 Heckle & Jeckle (c)
9:30 Atom Ant (c)
10:00 Mighty Mouse Playhouse (c)
10:30 Underdog (c)
11:00 Tom and Jerry (c)
11:30 Quick Draw McGraw
12:00 Sky King
12:30 Adventures of Lassie
1:00 Wild Kingdom
1:30 Sportsview
1:45 Vic Bubas
2:00 ACC Basketball Carolina vs. Maryland
4:00 CBS Golf
5:00 Shell's World of Golf (c)
6:00 Flipper (c)
6:30 Walt Disney (c)
8:30 The Man from UNCLE (c)
9:30 Branded (c)
10:00 Gunsmoke
11:00 Three Star Final
11:15 Country Style

MAJOR LAWRENCE D. GARRISON

Cadets Are Writing Letter To ExCO In Viet Nam

By MARTIN EATON
DTH Staff Writer

The cadets of Arnold Air Society have come up with a new variation on the "message to Viet Nam" theme.

They're writing their former Commandant, Major Lawrence Garrison—all of them — on a single sheet of paper.

All the cadets who knew Major Garrison during his three-year tenure as Commandant, from 1962 until last year, are being encouraged to add a paragraph or two to the message, which now has the signatures of 20 or 30 cadets and a length of 10 feet.

If all this year's senior, junior, and sophomore cadets join the project, the finished product should be 50 feet long.

The message is being sponsored by Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight. According to Capt: Richard Bucher, advisor of the two organizations, this project is the first of its kind at North Carolina.

Maj. Garrison is stationed in Viet Nam — exact location unknown — with the Twentieth Squadron.

He is flying the RF-101, a twin - engine reconnaissance plane, in support of American military operations.

The former Commandant of Cadets was born in Altadena, Calif., and majored in business administration at Pasadena Junior College and the University of Indiana.

His Air Force service, which began in 1950, has included duty in Japan and France.

Major Garrison's decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster.

If the cadets keep signing as expected, Maj. Garrison's letter should be on its way to Viet Nam by Feb. 11. All 50 feet of it.

Graduate Awards Given Next Month

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Three fellowships from the John Motley Morehead Foundation worth $4,000 per year and 95 new National Defense Education Act fellowships will be awarded to UNC graduate students March 21.

The Morehead Fellowships are the largest awarded to graduate students here. This is the first time the awards will have been given.

The fellowship is to finance the student through a program of study leading to the doctorate degree, according to Morehead Foundation officials. The tenure of the fellowship is good for four years of study.

The Morehead Fellowship was made available through the John Motley Morehead Foundation. Students are nominated for the fellowship by the appointments committee of the graduate school and are selected by the Morehead Foundation selection committee.

In being considered for a fellowship, a student's "scholastic ability and attainment, motivation toward a particular field of study and promise of distinction in that field, moral force of character, evidence of manhood, truthfulness, courage, devotion to duty and to country" are considered.

NDEA fellowships have been awarded to graduate students here since 1958 in several departments. The fellowships will be awarded to graduate students in 31 University departments this year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bulloch, executive secretary of the graduate school, said the NDEA fellowships are awarded for three years and are valued at $2,000 for the first year, $2,200 the second, and $2,400 the third year.

She pointed out that a student cannot have more than one semester of graduate school in his particular field of study in order to be eligible for one of the NDEA Fellowships. However, she added that a student who has completed more than a year of graduate study can be eligible for a two-year grant.

Six week grants are also available through NDEA for summer study. Those are valued at $400.

Seminar On Latin America Open Today At Peabody

"Dynamics of Development in Latin America" is the theme for a Latin American seminar at Peabody Hall, today.

The week - end seminar for college students in Piedmont North Carolina will provide a forum for discussion of factors affecting political, social, and economic developments in Latin America.

Heberto Sein, Quaker International Affairs Representative in Mexico City for the American Friends Service Committee, will speak at the 10 a.m. opening session, today.

His subject will be, "Needed: A New Latin America. How Can It be Created?" Herberto Sein is advisor to the Latin American Programs of the AFSC and twice has served on the Quaker U. N. Program team in New York.

This afternoon a 1:30 panel of Latin American and U. S. students will be followed by five major discussion groups.

Harold A. Bierck, professor of Latin American history at UNC, will be resource leader for a group considering "The Role of Political and Economic Ideology in Latin America."

Inter - American Relationships will be the topic of a discussion on trade, aid, sanctions and intervention. M. Margaret Ball, dean of women and professor of Latin American studies at Duke University and John D. Martz, professor of political science at UNC will be resoucre leacership for the group.

Mrs. Elisha Chanlett, member of the State Department Latin America staff and of the North Carolina College Sociology Department will participate as a specialist in a discussion of "U. S. Perception of Latin America — Latin America Perception of U. S."

A discussion of Strategies of Social and Economic Change will consider grass roots community development and government programs for change.

Dorothy Kiester, Consultant in Social Work, Institute of Government, Robert Daland, professor of political science, and Ralph Gakenheimer, professor of city and regional planning, all of UNC will provide leadership for the group.

The Role of Latin American Students will be the subject of the final discussion, with Almonte Howell, professor of English and adviser fo foreign students, UNC. A Latin America supper for participants and informal discussion conclude the day's schedule.

On Sunday the morning session will be a continuation of the discussion groups. The afternoon session will include reports on the discussion and a concluding panel.

Herberto Sein graduated from the University of California, Berkley in 1922. His major fiel of study was literature and language. He did graduate work at Columbia and at the Sorbonne in Paris.

After several years of teaching in Mexico he joined the staff of the International Labor Office in Geneva, Switzerland as an interpreter. He has served as an interpreter at the United Nations Conference for Organization in San Francisco and at the United Nations General Assembly in 1946.

He also served as interpreter when President Lopez Mateos of Mexico visited President Eisenhower and again when Nehru visited in Mexico.

Americans And War

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religion Editor

"The American Conscience About War" will be the subject of a panel discussion at the Wesley Foundation building at 214 Pittsboro Street on Sunday, at 4 p.m.

Participating in the discussion will be John Lasley, Raymond Dawson, Robert Pitts, Paul Dickson, and Erick van Loon.

Lasley is a Chapel Hill attorney, another of "The War System and You," and a consultant to the World Rule of Law Center at Duke University.

Dawson is Associate Professor of Political Science at UNC, co-editor of a foreign policy reader, and a specialist in defense and civil-military history.

Of the three students on the panel, three distinct political philosophies are represented. Robert Pitts is a senior premedical student and speaks in the conservative - objectivist vocabulary.

Paul Dickson, student body president, is considered a political moderate.

Eric van Loon, is the more liberal student spokesman. He is UNC student representative to NSA, and a member of the debating team here.

The discussion will not necessarily be directed toward Viet Nam but will attempt to view war generally.

Because of the vital nature of the subject and its immediacy, the University community is invited to attend and enter into the dialogue.

This is the first of such Symposiums to be sponsored jointly by the Wesley Foundation and The Episcopal Student Congregation.

Gallery Has Cox Exhibit

Joseph H. Cox, professor in the School of Design at North Carolina State University will have a one man exhibition of paintings and drawings at the Art Gallery of Chapel Hill, opening Feb. 7.

The exhibit will run through March 2 at the gallery at 113 W. Franklin St.

Cox has an impressive record of exhibitions beginning with the World's Fair Exhibition at San Francisco in 1939. He has exhibited widely in regional shows winning such awards as Painting of the Year, 1955 Norfolk Museum Purchase Award, Southeastern Annual Exhibition, first prize, Mint Museum Purchase Award and N. C. State Museum's purchase award in 1961.

The University's Department of Public Health awarded Cox their purchase prize in 1964 and have selected him to be the jury for this year's show, which is held at the Department of Public Health here

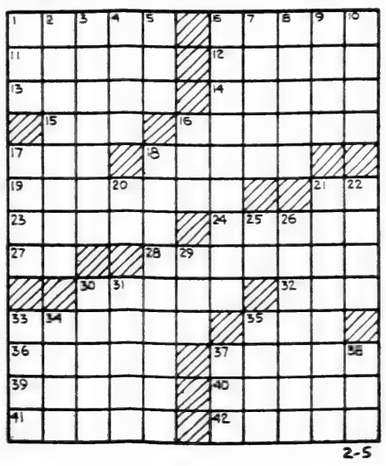
In addition to painting, Cox has executed numerous murals. His three dimensional constructions of enamelled steel were commissioned for UNC-Greensboro. A mural of stained glass, aluminum and cast stone was done for the Branch Banking Co. in Raleigh.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Mellow
6. Sting
11. Receiver
12. One type of closet
13. Eyed
14. Fragrant plant
15. Armorial bearings: abbr.
16. Having a handle
17. Cry
18. Russian workers' group
19. European country
21. Augusta is its capital: abbr.
23. Fallen House
24. Bury
27. French article
28. Yearbooks
30. Melodies
32. Spawn of fish
33. Defame
35. Unhappy
36. Of a bee
37. Bearded, as rye
39. Aunt: Fr.
40. Animal of the Everglades, for short
41. Trample
42. Weakness

DOWN
1. Trouble
2. Kennel
3. Allow free rein
4. Sly look
5. Boy's nickname
6. Common weeds
7. Cleanse of soap
8. Pert. to skull protuberance
9. Girdle
10. Leg joint
16. Biblical lion
17. Pull
18. Indicted
20. Note: music
21. Kind of accordion
22. Scottish-Gaelic
25. Greek letter
26. Mediterranean gulf
29. Masefield heroine
30. Girl's name
31. Spanish lariat
33. Marshal Dillon
34. Armadillo
35. Hit
37. Moslem title
38. Jejune

Yesterday's Answer



2-5

When you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz™

NoDoz Keep Alert Tablets fight off the hazy, lazy feelings of mental sluggishness. NoDoz helps restore your natural mental vitality...helps quicken physical reactions. You become more naturally alert to people and conditions around you. Yet NoDoz is as safe as coffee. Anytime ...when you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.

SAFE AS COFFEE

Do not bribe girls with candy

Unless of course it's a box of Hollingsworth's candies. Any other gift would be an insult to her ego . . . and to yours.

Hollingsworth's UNUSUAL CANDIES

Make your appearance in

FARAH® SLACKS

and let the chicks fall where they may!

She's head over wheels for the man in trim, smartly-styled Farah Slacks.

SLACKS, JEANS and WALK SHORTS with FaraPress®

NEVER NEED IRONING

FARAH MANUFACTURING CO., INC. • EL PASO, TEXAS

Japanese Crash Worst In History

TOKYO (AP) — A Boeing 727 jet airliner carrying 133 Japanese plunged into Tokyo Bay Thursday night in a pillar of fire. An airline spokesman said hours later the wreckage showed no sign of survivors, making it the worst disaster involving a single plane.

Flying in perfect weather, the plane was minutes away from Tokyo Airport when its pilot radioed he would land visually without instruments. Then the airliner vanished from radar screens.

Villagers along the shore and the pilot of another plane said they saw flames stab the darkness of the bay at about 7 p.m., the moment the All-Nippon Airways liner was due land.

Then fishermen and Japanese defense force boats began picking up bodies from the murky waters of the bay. They had picked up about a score when an airline spoksman announced the fuselage had been found with scores of bodies inside. He said this led to belief that all aboard were dead.

Grappling hooks from a coast guard boat brought up the wreckage.

The plan carried 126 passengers and a crew of seven. Most passengers were returning from the annual winter carnival at Chitose, 600 miles north of Tokyo and point of origin for the flight.

Aviation's worst previous crash involved a Boeing 707. An Air France liner crashed June 3, 1962, in Paris killing 130. Before that the worst had been another Tokyo crash in 1953 of an Air Force C124 Globemaster that killed 129 U. S. servicemen.

The worst disaster was the death of 134 persons in the collision of two airliners over New York City Dec. 16, 1960.

The All-Nippon Airway disaster was the fourth involving a Boeing 727 in the past six months. The other three, all in the United States, took 140 lives.

President Kaheita Okazaki, president of All-Nippon, said the lines other five Boeing 727s would continue to fly unless the Japanese Civil Aviation Board grounds them.

In the early morning hours, red-eyed, he met with reporters and said: "I'm still praying that there will be some survivors. I'm still hoping that there will be at least one or even two survivors. Then all will not have been lost."

In Washington, the U. S. Civil Aeronautics Board offered the Japanese government technical assistance in looking into the crash.

For more than five hours the plane was reported missing. Then an airline spokesman announced that bodies and debris had been spotted about 8 miles southeast of Tokyo Airport, which sits on the edge of the bay south of the capital.

Marines Seek Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — Battalions of U. S. Marines struck south along a 20-mile stretch of Highway 1 Thursday toward an allied anvil in the Bong Son sector, hoping to smash two Red regiments that have eluded combat patrols.

The anvil was formed by thousands of U. S. Air Cavalrymen, Vietnamese and Korean troops whose Operation Masher, which slashed Communist ranks on coastal plains 300 miles northeast of Saigon, was renamed overnight after dwindling to a mopping up phase.

"All the objectives of the operation were reached, so the name has been changed to White Wing," a U. S. Army spokesan said.

American officials declined to say exactly what new role awaited this task force. But its columns were facing north and it was from the north that the Marines — elements in a leatherneck drive called Operation Double Eagle — are making their way.

The 18th regiment of North Viet Nam's regulars and the Viet Cong's hard core 2nd regiment were the quarry. Totaling perhaps 2,400 men, both have been reported operating in the adjoining provinces of Quang Ngai, where the Marines landed Jan. 28.

WANT ADS

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY: Fully furnished house on Airport Rd. to share with female. Separate bedroom. Contact Sloan Kinnebrew, 942-4401 after 6 p.m.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air-conditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. $80 per mo. Also: New 2 bedroom 20'x50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

APARTMENT TO SHARE: Roommate preferably male, wanted for new 4 room Carrboro apartment. $45 plus utilities. Geoffrey Stein, 223 Hillcrest Ave. 929-6072.

FOR SALE: 1964 VW — Excellent condition. Call 544-1651 Durham.

CAROLINA

LAST TIMES TODAY

Junior Year in New York

Three undergraduate colleges offer students from all parts of the country an opportunity to broaden their educational experience by spending their

Junior Year in New York

New York University is an integral part of the exciting metropolitan community of New York City—the business, cultural, artistic, and financial center of the nation. The city's extraordinary resources greatly enrich both the academic program and the experience of living at New York University with the most cosmopolitan student body in the world.

This program is open to students recommended by the deans of the colleges to which they will return for their degrees. Courses may be taken in the School of Commerce

School of Education
Washington Square College of Arts and Science

Write for brochure to Director, Junior Year in New York

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
New York, N.Y. 10003

North Carolina News Roundup

U. S. Still Ahead In Space

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — The director of the Morehead Planetarium at Chapel Hill said Friday the United States still has the edge over the Russians in space technology.

Dr. A. F. Jenzano, who has helped train American astronauts, said the Russian soft landing on the moon is only a partial victory.

"Over the whole thing," he added, "looms the fact that we are much advanced in technology. The Russian cosmonauts are only passengers. Our astronauts are true pilots with maneuverable capsules."

The United States, he said, is ahead in rendezvous, the Russians in soft landings, "and both are vital to a manned trip to the moon.

"If you put the accomplishments of each country together," Jenzano continued, "I think America's bundle is considerably bigger than the Russians'. We have made phenomenal gains in the space race. Not long ago we were five years behind the Russians."

A difference in philosophy could make a difference in the space race, Jenzano said. The Russians, he explained, probably are willing to take larger risks. "They might assume from our endurance flights that two weeks in space can be perfectly safe. We would make a test of our own."

Redistricting Attacked

GREENSBORO (AP) — A three-judge federal court was urged Friday to strike down North Carolina's new congressional districting plan because "it is a child of the old plan which was declared invalid."

A group of lawyers, headed by Renn Drum of Winston-Salem, attacked the congressional plan largely because it protected incumbents, but found little fault with legislative reapportionment.

The fact that Drum did not challenge the House and Senate plans doesn't mean the federal panel will not knock them down.

"A plan that intends to protect incumbents is irrational," said Louis Rabil of Raleigh.

"The new plan brought forward is a remnant of the old plan which was declared invalid. The new plan is a child of the old plan."

"There is no doubt," he added, "that the defendants could have come up with a better plan."

Assistant State Attorney General James Bullock, defending the realignment plans, said, "Each member of the General Assembly should be commended. This duty has been discharged with dispatch and without a filibuster."

The court ordered reapportionment of the General Assembly and redistricting of the congressional lines in a suit filed by Drum Sept. 10.

Federal Judge J. Spencer Bell said, 'I don't know how long it will take" to rule on the constitutionality of the realignment plans drafted by a special session of the legislature in early Janurary. The ruling may come next week.

Drum asked the court to "give us relief now rather than wait for the next legislature."

Congressman On Viet Nam

GOLDSBORO (AP) — An Illinois congressman said Friday night U. S. commanders in Viet Nam must be given authority to use whatever weapons — even nuclear ones — are best suited to military objectives.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., made the assertion in a Lincoln birthday speech prepared for delivery at a dinner in Goldsboro sponsored by the Wayne County Republican organization.

ary authority they need — to close the North Viet Nam ports,

"Our field commanders must be given the full discretion and to select from our vast arsenal the weaposn — even nuclear ones — that are best suited to military objectives," he said.

"If we take this correct posture," he added, "we may yet convince the Communists they can't win."

Findley told the dinner guests "Foreign policy bungling by President Johnson and his advisors has weakened the U. S. position in Viet Nam, and consequently has made victory more difficutl and distant, and the war more hazardous for our combat troops."

He said that instead of keeping the enemy guessing about what weapons will be used, United Nations Ambassador Arthur Goldberg had said publicly that the use of atomic weapons has not been contemplated and is not conceivable in Viet Nam.

"The American People are disappointed and distressed because our major allies are not sharing the military burdens we have assumed in Southeast Asia," Findley said. ". . . We should face the simple fact that cooperative action cannot be expected unless there is cooperative policy-making.

THERE ARE STILL PLENTY OF USED BOOKS LEFT AT

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily
Except Sunday — 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.

British Call Luna I Shots 'Sensational'

MOSCOW AP) — For the first time in history a manmade object photographed the moon Thursday from the lunar surface itself and sent them back to earth.

Scientists at Jodrell Bank Observatory in England, which picked up signals from the Soviet Union's Luna 9, called the pictures "sensational," showing even individual rocks on the moon's suface.

But here, only Soviet officials got immediate looks at the pictures. The Soviet people have to wait until officials study the pictures and decide what to release to their own people and the outside world.

Luna 9 made history's first soft landing on the moon last night after a 3 1-2 - day flight and transmitted data back to earth four times, the Soviet news agency Tass said. The land itself and the data being sent back to earth are considered vital in the effort to land a man on the moon.

Tass reported Luna 9 began "scanning the lunar landscape and transmitted to the earth's surface" at 4:50 p.m. Moscow time (8:50 a.m. EST) Thursday.

But there was no indication here when the pictures would be released, how they were taken, how many were taken, what they showed or any fundamental information on Luna 9 itself, such as its weight.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, which normally appears in the evening, delayed Friday publication until Saturday morning.

The delay touched off speculation that the first pictures from Luna 9 might appear then in Izvestia and in Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper.

Soviet news media hammered home today the success of Luna 9. They praised the landing instead of describing it. Scientists were quoted at length as saying the soft landing was an important step bringing this country closer to a manned landing on the moon.

But the Russians made no attempt to boast that they had taken a lead over the United States in the space race. They quoted foreign news dispatches to this effect but did not make the claim themselves.

Luna 9 was at least the fifth Soviet attempt to make a soft landing on the moon. Three earlier tries crashed. One missed the moon.

The first United States attempt at a soft landing is not expected before May and several tries are believed necessary before succeeding, partly because the Russians released little data on the reasons for their earlier failures.

Several Soviet scientists pointed out that Luna 9 proved the moon has a surface solid enough to support a landing. They said Luna 9 had disproved the theory that the whole lunar surface was a dust mass that would swallow up a satellite attempting to land there.

Lynd Flies To London

NEW HAVEN, Conn. AP)— Yale Prof. Staughton Lynd, whose passport is being revoked by the State Department, flew to London Friday for an appearance on BBC television his wife said.

Lynd, who with Herbert Aptheker and another American, made an unauthorized trip to North Viet Nam in December, failed to appear at a rally on the Yale campus Friday afternoon.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR FEBRUARY

MERCURY Too near sun for observation
VENUS Rising shortly before sun in Capricornus
MARS Visible in SW briefly after sunset
JUPITER Visible in SW until after midnight
SATURN Low in SW at sunset
MOON Full, 5th; Last ¼, 12th; New, 20th; First ¼, 28th

AT THE MOREHEAD PLANETARIUM
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Throughout February

ZODIAC

Skyway of Celestial Activity

Daily at 8:30 P.M.
Saturdays at 11, 1, 3, 4 and 8:30
Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30

Write for School Program Schedule

The Morehead Planetarium gratefully acknowledges the generous cooperation of this newspaper in presenting this program listing.

Senate Committee Wants McNamara

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee hammered at U. S. Viet Nam policy today and edged toward a confrontation with the administration by seeking to question Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in public.

But McNamara has declined the invitation issued to him and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to appear before the Committee at an open session, Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., announced.

This set off some fireworks at the hearing where Foreign Aid Administrator David E. Bell was grilled for hours on U. S. Asian policy — its aims, its costs in lives and dollars and whether it may explode into world War III.

Fulbright, who says he is trying to dispel public confusion and apprehension about the Southeast Asian crisis, said McNamara and Wheeler "feel that it is not in the public interest to appear in a public session" because of security matters.

He said McNamara had offered to appear in executive session.

"Let's have it out with the Secretary of Defense," demanded Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., one of Capitol Hill's most persistent critics of American involvement in Viet Nam.

"The Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense need to be brought before this committee to be examined on their record," said Morese.

Morse indicated he would boycott any closed sessions and charged "The people of the Pentagon and the state department have already led the people down the road toward government by secrecy."

McNamara told newsmen:

"I do not believe I can discuss military objectives in open session.

"I did not refuse. I explained the problem to the chairman and he understood. I am perfectly willing to testify at a closed session."

McNamara testified at a closed session of the House Armed Services Committee on the administration's request for $12.8 million supplemental funds to finance the war in Viet Nam this year.

He said the renewed bombing of North Vietnamese supply lines, now in its fifth day, has already caused the Viet Cong to turn to night time delivery of supplies and that this is hindering them greatly.

When newsmen asked Fulbright whether the Senate committee might insist that McNamara appar at an open session, the chairman said "there is a possibility."

But he expressed belief the committee would be able "to work out something civilized . . . there's no war going on with the White House," he said.

The committee has become a center of criticism of U. S policy in southeast Asia.

U. S. Embassy Is Mobbed

MADRID (AP) — Several hundred Spanish demonstrators chanted "Yankees no" and tried to move on the U. S. Embassy Friday night. Lines of police held them back.

Their appearance, an aftermath of the Jan. 17 crash of a U. S. bomber carrying nuclear weapons on Spain's southeast coast, resulted from appeals by various groups ranging from the underground Communist party to liberal student organizations.

The Demonstrators attempted to penetrate Police cordons in small groups, joining up across the street from the Embassy. Security police quickly routed them into side streets, where they shouted "Yankees no" and "assassins."

Westmoreland Being Ousted?

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — U. S. Army Gen. William C. Westmoreland will be replaced soon as United States Commander in South Viet Nam, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported Friday.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara issued a flat denial of the report.

"There is no substance to it whatsoever," the McNamara statement said.

At the White House, Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers was asked about the Westmoreland report, and replied:

"I haven't seen that and I don't believe it's true."

The newspaper in a dispatch from Edward W. O'rien in Washington, said Westmoreland's successor has been selected and "if present plans are carried out, will be announced shortly."

O'Brien, chief of the Globe-Democrat's Washington bureau, wrote that Westmoreland "has fallen into political disfavor with top civilian officials in the administration because of recent disclosures in Saigon of the large Communist military build-up during the 37-day bombing suspension ordered by President Johnson."

The newspaper also said Westmoreland is blamed for information from the field about restraints and handicaps on American fighting men. It said this information is causing "serious problems" for defense secretary Robert S. McNamara.

The newspaper said the replacement of Westmoreland, who was named Deputy Commander Jan. 24, 1964, and Commander Aug. 1, 1964, will be attributed to the expiration of a normal two-year tour of duty.

U. S. Will Send Wheat To Crisis-Ridden India

WASHINGTON AP) —President Johnson told a news conference Friday that two million tons of wheat and one million tons of maize will be shipped to India as soon as possible.

Johnson's announcement followed a conference with Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman on the Indian food crisis and other agricultural problems.

Freeman said afterward that a task force of experts which recently returned from India estimated that India could handle and distribute about one million tons of grain a month.

On this basis, today's allocation could be shipped and distributed in something like three months.

Johnson stressed that he acted in the face of what he described as "a very serious situation" in India.

Johnson said he plans to see India's new prime minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, in Washington at her convenience to discuss that country's additional needs for grain to tide it over during the present crisis.

In reply to a question, the President said the grain shipments he authorized did not amount to resumption of economic aid to India. He said he did not want to preclude the possibility of economic aid allotments in advance of Mrs. Gandhi's visit, but that no such action was now seen. Economic aid was halted during the India-Pakistan crisis last year.

The allotment today brought to 6.5 million tons the amount of grain authorized for shipment to India during the present fiscal year, which began last July 1.

"We have adequate supplies," Johnson replied when asked how the grain shipments to India would affect domestic supplies.

Freeman said earlier that this country will have "comfortable reserves under any circumstances that I can see at this time."

Has the Volkswagen fad died out?

Yes.

But it was an unnerving experience while it lasted.

Because after we introduced our completely sensible car, people ran out and got it for completely frivolous reasons.

The first people bought VWs just so they could be the first people to have one.

And a lady in Illinois had one because it looked cute beside her "real" car.

However, the faddists soon found out that the bug wasn't an expensive ($XXXX) toy, but a cheap ($XXXX) car.

As a fad, the car was a flop.

(When you drive the latest fad to a party, and find 2 more fads there ahead of you, it catches you off your avant-garde.)

But as a car, the VW was impressive.

If you had to go someplace, it took you. Even when some cars wouldn't. And when you got there, you could park it. In places where other cars couldn't.

Once people took the bug's good points for granted, it became the best-selling car model in history.

And that's when the VW fad ended.

ALSO A GOOD SELECTION OF USED VW'S

Triangle Volkswagen, Inc.

3828 Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd. Phone Durham 489-2371
"Chapel Hill-Durham Area's Only Authorized VW Dealer"

Jim Coghill

Assistant DTH Sports Editor

The boys looked great. The crowd was enthusiastic. And who can beat 64 percent from the floor?

These combinations enabled a determined Tar Heel team to topple a bunch of baffled Baptists Thursday evening 115-87.

Coach Dean Smith said he had been worried about the exam layoff, but from the game's results all doubt should now be removed.

"Our press was effective," Coach Smith said, "and we moved well on offense except for the first few minutes of the second half."

The team passed very unselfishly all evening as was demonstrated when Miller passed to Lewis for a sure snow bird which the former could have made without any trouble. Aside from this unselfishness, team work prevailed and a tremendous effort came from the bench as Coach Smith poured in the subs.

"We must continue to improve our play, but we can't improve on team effort," Smith said.

The Carolina coach again gave considerable credit to the exuberant, capacity-packed crowd and the inspiration during the entire game that prevailed from their presence.

In summing up the individual play, it should be noted that Lewis played a heck of a game scoring 37 points, many of which were made by squirming inside for those every-which-away shots.

Miller and Bennett showed their stuff defensively as they blocked shots and rebounded with poise and determination.

"Miller spearheaded the team's defense," Smith said, "and Yokley did a fine job on Leonard."

Mirken and Moe added even more life to a vivacious and rambunctious Tar Heel team which thrilled the crowd immensely and Gauntlett assisted well throughout the game.

Carolina takes on another ACC team this afternoon as it travels to College Park to tangle with the Terrapins of Maryland.

Coach Smith commented after the Wake game that Maryland was the only game scheduled now, noting that this game would really determine if his team has got something.

Let's hope this second semester surge continues throughout February and into March for the ACC Tournament in Raleigh since we are now on the down hill path and must really prove ourselves at this point.

Hey team, if Maryland's going to be your testing ground, why not break that hard shell and make turtle soup of the Terrapins? We just love ACC wins.

UNC Meets Terps On T.V.

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina's Tar Heels, who ended their 19-day exam break Thursday night with a 115-87 demolishing job on Wake Forest, carry their explosive offense to College Park, Md., this afternoon to battle the Maryland Terps.

The game will be televised beginning at 2 p.m. as the ACC game of the week.

The Tar Heels, who find themselves in a third-place tie with N. C. State in the conjested ACC race, will be seeking their second victory over the Terps this season.

In the first encounter played before a packed Carmichael audience, Coach Dean Smith's cagers topped the Terps 67-52 in an error-filled contest.

Maryland, who retained all five starters from last year's club which posted an 18-8 record, has been the mystery team of the ACC this season. The Terps of Coach Bud Millikan find themselves in sixth place in the conference—topping only Virginia and Wake Forest.

Included in those 18 Maryland victories last season were two triumphs over the Tar Heels. The Terps defeated UNC 76-68 at College Park then repeated the feat in Chapel Hill 91-80.

So far this season, the Terps have been unable to regain their last season form—winning only eight of their first 16 games including three of eight ACC contests.

But the Terps are not without their bright spots. Gary Ward and Jay McMillen, believes Coach Millikan, are two of the finest performers in the ACC.

Both made the all-Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament second team last season while McMillen made the all-ACC second team for the regular season.

Other Maryland starters include center Joe Harrington, a 6-5 junior from Phippsburg, Maine. Harrington, the Terps third leading scorer last season, has held on to that spot this year.

At one guard position is 6-4 senior Neil Brayton while 6-0 Gary Williams mans the other backcourt spot.

Leading the Tar Heel attack will be the first and third leading scorer in the ACC—Bobby Lewis and Larry Miller.

Lewis put on his finest offensive display in nine games Thursday night against Wake Forest. The Washington, D. C., junior poured in 37 points — 20 of which came in the first half — to lead Carolina over an out-classed Deacon five.

Next in line against the Deacons was sophomore Larry Miller with 26 points.

But Lewis and Miller did not create all the offensive noise. Mark Mirken, who replaced starting center Bob Bennett in the first half, managed to score 14 points and pull down some important rebounds.

Tom Gauntlett aided the Tar Heel attack with 13 points.

"We didn't catch Wake Forest on one of their better nights," said Coach Smith after the game. "But the fact remains — we looked pretty good, especially after a long lay-off.

"Only one thing diappointed me about this game. We didn't handle the press as well as we should have. This is something we must work on — for we can't afford to have too many turnovers."

"I Changed The Ending, Too."

Zeta Psi Thumps KA In Basketball Wars

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Zeta Psi II flexed their scoring muscles and trampled KA Gold II in intramural basketball on Wednesday, 86-34. Luns Long was the big gun for the Zeta Psis, pumping in 40 points. Gordon Smith had 18.

The TEP Tops made a joke out of Beta Blue I, 76-13. Five Tops hit in double figures, with Nate Leder and Ralph Grosswold having 15 points. Jay Schwartz had 13, Frank Goldberg 10 and Warren Bloom 10.

Twenty points by J. Titchener led the Phi Gam Fijis to an easy 65-27 win over the Beta Boppers. R. Sparrow had 16 points and J. Huges chipped in with 11 for the winning Fijis.

Other scores: SAE Blue I 62, KA Red II 19; Chi Phi Red 26, TEP Flops 21; DU Blue II 41, Lambda Chi Clowns 27; PiKA Plummers 54, Phi Gam White Owls 27.

DU Blue I 54, Phi Delt Red 21; ATO I 68, Beta Bounders 40; Chi Psi Red 51, KA Red I 35; Delta Sig Blue 39, Phi Kap Sig Bounders 25.

* * *

Going into the present season, UNC occupies second place among ACC basketball teams in all-time won-lost percentage. The Tar Heels have a 197-84 mark against all opposition for a percentage of 70.1, and within the league the slate is 117-48 for 71.0. Duke leads both departments with a 236-87 overall record for 73.1, and 122-42 for 74.4 in the ACC.

* * *

Len Rosenbluth, the high-scoring forward who led UNC to the National Championship with a 32-0 record in 1957, is the only player to have scored over 700 points in a single season for UNC. He hit 895 points that year.

Grapplers Meet Mounties In 'Break-Even' Contest

By DICK BIRCHER
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's wrestlers will be struggling to keep their record above the .500 level when they meet West Virginia at 3:30 this afternoon in Carmichael Auditorium.

The grapplers started well this year, winning four of their first five matches. They have lost two in a row, however, to State and Appalachian, and need a win this afternoon to keep a winning record. To get it, they will have to wrestle better than they have their last two times out.

"West Virginia is the defending Southern Conference champion and they are always tough," Coach Sam Barnes says, "but we are encouraged in that Washington and Lee beat them and we beat Washington and Lee."

"Of course, comparative scores mean very little," he added. "We're going to have to do some heads-up wrestling to win this one."

Three of the reasons for West Virginia's success are Tom Check, Bill Miacci, and Mike George. Check is a letterman and will wrestle at either 123 or 130 pounds. Miacci, also a letterman, will go at either 130 or 137. The big man on the West Virginia team is Mike George, a heavyweight, who is the brother of Bill George, the great Chicago Bear linebacker and ex-Wake Forest star.

Coach Barnes will call on Al Franusiszin, Jim Goodwin, and Charlie Davis to contain the Mountaineer trio. Franusiszin and Goodwin, both junior lettermen, will be matched against Check and Miacci respectively. Davis will oppose George in the heavyweight division.

"The rest of West Virginia's squadmen are newcomers, so we don't know what to expect," remarks Barnes.

"This match should be some indication of what we can expect from our boys in the remainder of the season. I am not real happy with our record to date (4-3), but I think if we can win this one, we can hope for better things to come."

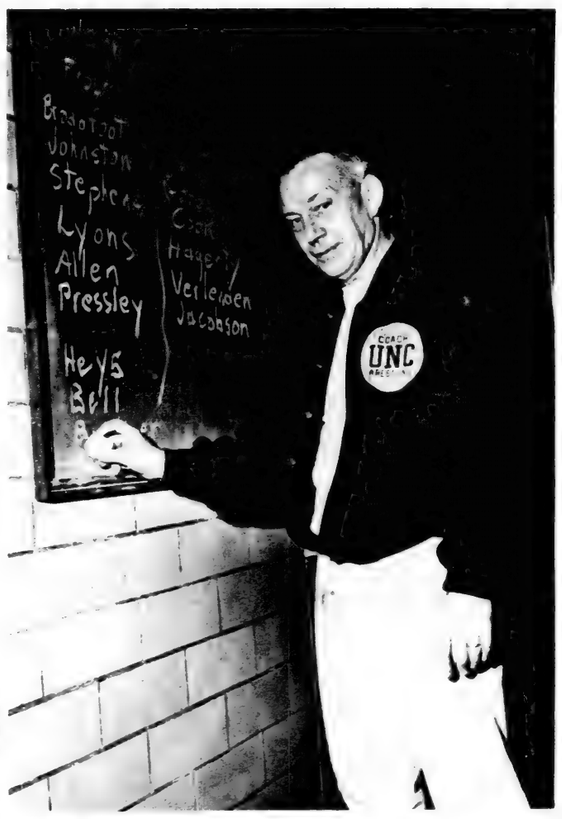
Coach Barnes will change his lineup considerably for today's match. "Lane Verlenden is out, so we're moving four boys down a weight class," he says. "This may turn out to give us a stronger lineup. If it does, we'll be very pleasantly surprised."

Fred Priester, UNC's 177-pounder, remains undefeated thus far with a 6-0 mark.

UNC's freshmen, who own a 4-1 record, will meet Pembroke's varsity at 2 p.m. Pembroke recently defeated William and Mary.

* * *

Duke is the only team in the nation to have finished the last five seasons ranked in AP's Top Ten. They were tenth with a 22-6 record in 1961, tenth in '62 with 20-5, second in '63 with 27-3, third in '64 with 26-5, and tenth in '65 with 20-5. Vic Bubas' club is also the only one in the nation to have recorded 20 or more wins in each of the past five seasons.



CHALK TALK — is in order for the UNC wrestling team as Coach Sam Barnes prepares his crew for this afternoon's meeting with West Virginia.

Coach Hilton's Track Team Faces Strong Competition

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

Coach Hilton's young track team faces the strongest competition of its early indoor season tonight at Lexington, Va. in the VMI Relays. Carolina will be up against such formidable oppoentnts as Navy Georgetown, Tennessee, and Maryland.

The team has been plagued with a lack of depth, but Coach Hilton feels that he has "some top-flight boys who should give a good performance in this tough meet."

Carolina's main strength will be in the sprint medley and the distance medley. In the sprint medley Jon Levin, who has run a 6.3 in the sixty this year, and Richie Ambrose who has concentrated on the hurdles, will run the opening 220 yards. Ed Daw, who is undefeated in the 600, will run the third leg quarter mile, and Sophomore sensation Mike Williams will anchor the relay in the half-mile. Williams has run a 1:56.7 this season and will probably improve this time with strong competition.

The distance medley relay is comprised of three sophs and one junior. This youthful group will be lead-off by Ed Daw in the quarter mile. Tom Carpenter will run the half, Bill Bassett the three-quarters and Mike Williams will come back in the mile to anchor this foursome.

Coach Hilton has Co-Captain Jim Meade entered in his specialty the two mile. Meade's best time is 9:21, and he will be a strong contender to take this race. Gary Iverson is Carolina's sole entry in the broad jump. He has been improving every meet and should give a good account of himself at VMI. Other individual performers are Tioden Bridges and Jim Hutchins in the high jump, Lector Hyder in the pole vault, and Felix Alley and Ron Short in the shot.

The freshmen are entered in two relays and the mile. Truett Goodwin of Durham and Joe Lasich are Carolina's hopes in the freshmen division of the mile run.

Carolina has always done a respectable job in this meet, and the team is physically ready. No matter what the outcome, the experience of high pressure competition should give the thinclads valuable experience for the fast approaching ACC Indoor Championships later this year in Woollen Gym.

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Lacrosse Begins

Varsity lacrosse gets under way Monday afternoon at four o'clock.

Coach Conrie Steele would like to see all interested performers in room 304 Woollen Gym.

Frosh Dolphins Entertain State

North Carolina's undefeated freshman swim team hits arch-rival N. C. State this afternoon at 2 in Bowman Gray Pool.

The frosh, who have breezed through five straight opponents, will be seeking their sixth win of the year. Previous victories have come over South Carolina, East Carolina, Navy and Army.

Fauntleroy

Well fans, all your exams are over and the long three month vacation before finals is just getting under way. I know the last few weeks have been tough on you. You munched on pencils, plowed through page after page of incomplete class notes, and poured No-Doz and dex down your gullets. Well I really hope you tore 'em up.

It's been some time since I've plunked myself down at this typewriter. You see ball fans, I've been suffering through exams right along with you.

I'm the first to admit that I've got it made. This column alone rains green paper into my trust fund. But I'm a great believer in the concept of the Renaissance Man.

I'm an expert on sports — all sports. I could go on the $64,000 Question anytime and answer a routine question like who was the only catcher in Major League history to blow his lunch all over home plate during a Kate Smith rendition of the National Anthem without a seconds hesitation.

But, like all great men, I'm not statisfied. There are other subjects to conquer and to master. I've been doing all right too. I earned my MA in Animal Husbandry about a year ago. But last fall I made a drastic error. I exceeded my bounds and took an introductory course in Georgraphy.

A snap, you're thinking. Well, I did too. I figured it'd be names and places. Stuff like cities, states, and even a few mountain s thrown in.

I strutted into the first class with the confidence of a Mohammed Clay. Then teach, a lean sadistic character who was always making jokes and sipping coffee, clued me in.

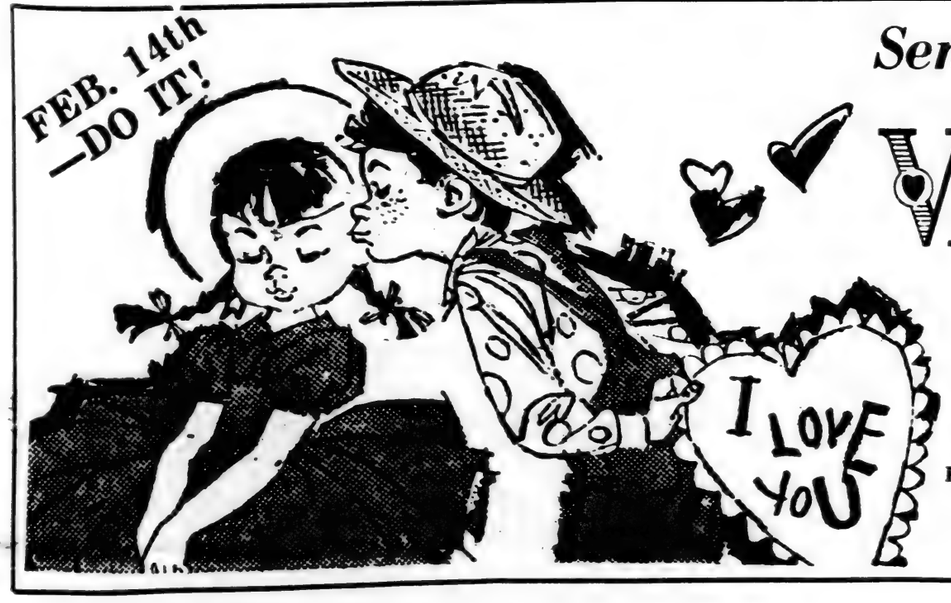
"Cats," he said, "If you expected this course to be a gut along the lines of Organic Chemistry and Nuclear Physics you just bombed out. Some of you will flunk this course. In fact a whole lot more than some."

Well, I've got to admit that he was a good teacher. He gave me rair warning and he spoke the truth. But I've got to come clean fans (Oh the pain and horror of it all) my final grade was lodged deep down in the fourties. A fox, a flag, what ever you want to call it I got it.

Maybe the great Faunts isn't quite so infallible after all.

So here I am back tapping at my ol' column. I look forward to the second act of the basketball season. Anything can happena nd anyone can win. There ain't no mountains and rivers in this business. So brace yourselves for all straight A picks.

N. C. STATE over CLEMSON
SOUTH CAROLINA over WAKE FOREST
WEST VIRGINIA over DUKE (Monday)



Send Your Love

VALENTINE CARDS

Also RUSSELL STOVER CANDIES for Valentine Giving

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Romance or whimsy . . . whatever you want in a Valentine card, you'll find it in our selection

CUTE — SOPHISTICATED — SENTIMENTAL

What's Happening At Carolina

A Latin American Student-Faculty conference will be held this weekend in 104 Peabody Hall. The introductory address will be given at 10 a.m. Saturday. Discussion groups will be held at 1:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 9:00 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m. All interested should register on Saturday from 9:00 to 10:00 a.m. in the Y Building.

D.A.R.E. project—those students who might be interested in working once a week in experimental educational community project at Northside School in Chapel Hill, please meet at 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 9, in Roland Parker I, GM. Both men and women are needed. If you are unable to attend, please phone Daryl Farrington Walker after 5:00 p.m. at 942-4997 by next Sunday, Feb 13.

There will be a most important Budget Committee meeting Tuesday night in RP III. Tom White and Dick Sayre ask that all members plan to attend.

Saturday's Free Flick will be "Bridge On the River Kwai." The shows will be at 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall. The movie, starring William Holden, Alec Guninnes, Jack Hawkins, and Sessue Hayakawa, is a gripping and highly entertaining film about a Japanese prison camp.

SUNDAY

The S. P. Advisory Board will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room.

The Hillel Foundation will hold Sabbath Evening Services at 7 p.m.

Students are cordially invited to attend a reception in honor of the new Associate Minister at the University Baptist Church, Reverend Charles Midkiff and his wife Lelia, 6:15-7:30 p.m. at the University Baptist Church.

HELP. Yes, help is the theme of this Sunday's Supper Social at the Hillel House. Dinner, dancing, and music will be on the agenda. Please call for reservations between 3 and 5 p.m. on Sunday.

On Sunday morning at 11 a.m. in the chapel of the Wesley Foundation 214 Pittsboro St., there will be a service of worship for the University Community. Robert L. Johnson will deliver the sermon., "The Church and the New Technology.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. Sunday Afternoon Symposium will feature Two Interpretations of the Place of War in the Conscience of Americans. John Wayne Lasley, Chapel Hill attorney and Raymond H. Dawson, Associate Professor of Political Science at UNC, will be responded to by students, Robert Pitts, Paul Dickson, and Eric Van Loon.

Lost: One pair of men's glasses, brown frames, on walk from Ehringhaus to Ram's Head. Contact Bill Brunk, 614 Ehringhaus.

Lost: Silver I.D. Bracelet. If found, please contact Charles Worthington, 239 Ehringhaus.

Found: Set of VW keys found in Phillips Hall. Claim in 278 Phillips.

LITTLE BOXES THAT used to be filled with ticky-tacky are strewn outside the door of that capitalistic den of iniquity, the Book Ex. Just think of all the money shelled out for the unmentionables which filled these boxes.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

—Aptheker—

(Continued from Page 1)

wise, if the committee turns Aptheker down. The student body president said that from all indications the committee would not allow Aptheker to speak.

Dickson also outlined procedures he proposes regarding visiting speakers. He said the proposals would allow the chancellors ample opportunity to see that a controversial speaker was properly controlled when he spoke on campus.

Earlier yesterday the chaplains and religious workers of the University issued a statement they sent to Gov. Dan Moore and the board of trustees.

It read: "Members of a community of learning must be free to consider all points of view critically and without arbitrary interference. Otherwise, the university fails the state and suffers grievous internal damage.

"It then ceases to be a free marketplace of ideas. Therefore the political views of Dr. Aptheker notwithstanding, and without endorsement of his views, the community must be free to hear him and engage him in critical dialogue. To refuse is to refuse to be a university."

Thursday North Carolina faculty members voted at a special meeting to request permission for the Faculty Advisory Committee to speak before the trustees executive committee in Raleigh.

The executive committee adjourned last Friday without reaching a decision on the proposed speech by Aptheker, 50, director of the American Institute for Marxist Studies in New York City.

A spokesman for the Faculty Advisory Committee, advisors to the chancellor, said they wish to present to the Raleigh meeting "what they consider to be the consensus among the faculty, as well as what they wish to present as individuals, for the well-being of the University."

The committee will support presentations made by William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, and Chancellor Paul F. Sharp, the spokesman said.

Sharp's statement says the University is prepared to permit Aptheker to appear under the amended Speaker Ban Law and in accordance with a proposed trustee regulation governing controversial speakers.

Under such a plan, a senior faculty member would preside and there would be opportunity views to be expressed on the subject matter of the discussion. There also would be a provision for questions from the audience.

Gov. Moore has denounced the invitation to the Communist theoretician as a deliberate attempt to create friction.

Jim McCorkel, president of SDS, said Wednesday that he was shocked and dismayed by Moore's opposition to Aptheker.

McCorkel, at a meeting in which he announced that he planned to resign Monday so he will have more time for study, said, "I consider it an attack on the University and I think Moore displayed a tremendous amount of ignorance."

A poll Thursday showed that 80.9 per cent of the 231 students polled are in favor of allowing Aptheker to speak.

Wednesday the State Department announced it was revoking Aptheker's passport because of his "fact-finding mission to North Viet Nam last December to see how a peace settlement might be achieved."

The department bans travel by American citizens to North Viet Nam and some other communist areas except where special permission is granted.

Editorial Board

Dr. Ralph W. Stacy, a bioengineer and biomathematician in the Department of Surgery of the North Carolina School of Medicine, has been named to the editorial board of a new professional journal, "Computers and Biomedical Research."

Nursing Instructors

Thirty-two instructors from schools of nursing in North Carolina will attend the second year session of a course in "Improving the Nursing Care of the Aging and the Aged"

President Wants More Fiscal Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson wants Congress to press ahead and provide money — maybe more money — for the new housing and urban development programs the lawmakers approved last session.

His budget for fiscal 1967 indicates that the coming year will not be one of new departures but rather one of picking up speed toward a target already set.

Johnson cited five programs authorized last year that he now wants funded or funded in a bigger way. These are scattered - site public housing, planned water and sewer systems, city beautification, public facilities in poor neighborhoods and rent supplements.

Spending Plans

Here are Johnson's spending plans for the five extra-special programs he wants to move full steam ahead on in the coming year:

— Scattered - site public housing. Johnson wants local housing authorities to buy or lease 17,000 units of existing housing and put poor families recent approach to public housing and costs less than new construction. The federal government helps subsidize the rents.

This year, the government expects to pay for 6,000 units of scattered - site public housing. While the budget contains no breakdown between existing housing and new construction, the total outlay on public housing is set at $627 million in the new year compared to $572 million in the old.

— Rent supplements: Congress passed this program last year but then balked at forking up any money. Under this program, the government would beef up the rents of poor families, paying the difference between 25 per cent of their income and the rent.

Now Johnson wants Congress to put up $35 million, which would permit the government to contract for 58,000 units. In a supplemental request for the current year, he's asking $30 million for 50,000 units.

Since the money would only be spent when the housing is built and the tenants move in, actual outlays during the coming year would be only $3 million.

Other Programs

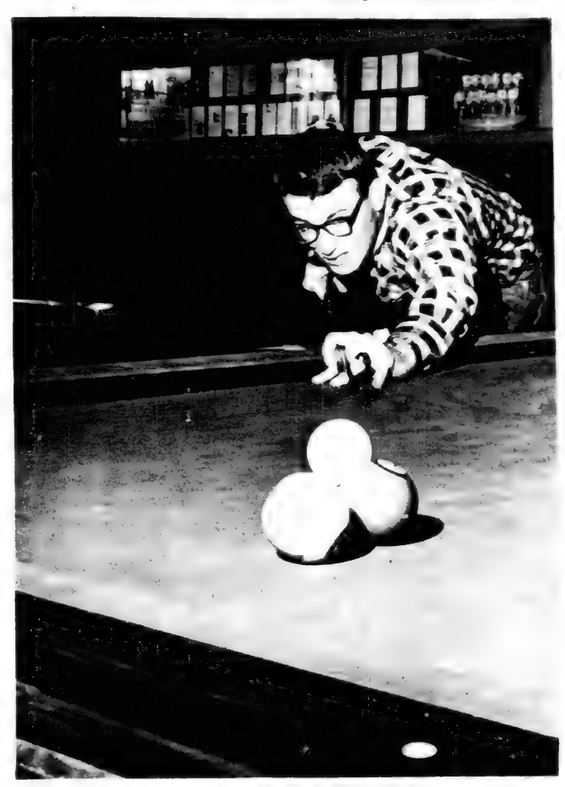
— Water and sewer systems: Under this program, the government pays half the cost of basic water and sewer systems to help growing communities meet their needs in a well-though-out way. The facilities have to be part of an overall plan for the area.

Some 230 of these projects would get under way in the new year compared to only 10 this year. But the government's actual outlay would rise only $2 million to a total of $22 million.

— Beauty: The President is asking for $30 million to help cities buy open space, establish parks in built-up areas and take other steps to beautify themselves. That would be an increase of $17 million over this year.

— Poor neighborhoods: To help in the war on poverty, the government is building health, recreation and social facilities in poor neighborhoods. The budget calls for 170 projects in the new year, more than twice as many as now.

Spending would rise from $1.2 million to $12.5 million.



THREE BALL IN the corner pocket, nine ball in the side off two bumpers. Quite a combination, but from the way the cue is lined up, it looks like a scratch is imminent. If all this lingo is Greek to you, just ask J. C. Holding, pictured above, a frequenter of the GM pool hall. GM needs your money. Come and shoot pool so you can amaze your parents.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Coast Guard Closes Station

WASHINGTON AP — The Coast Guard said Friday its station at Argentia, New Foundland, is to be closed Aug. 1, and its personnel moved to the Elizabeth City, N. C., Coast Guard station.

North Carolina's senators, advised of the action, said 41 enlisted men and nine officers will be transferred to Elizabeth City. The duty of the group will continue to be search and rescue and the spotting of icebergs.

Vice Chairman

SDS Challenges Speaker Policy

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Dr. Herbert Aptheker was invited to speak on campus to test the speaker policy of the University board of trustees, according to a spokesman of the Students for Democratic Society.

"We wanted to find out if we were free to invite and hear someone we thought had something to say," Gary Waller, SDS vice chairman, told residents of Craige Residence Hall Thursday night.

"We are defending our rights to hear and speak," he said.

Steve Richardson, a member of SDS said, "It was the desire of SDS to have him to come here, speak and then leave without any controversy." He said the people who don't want Aptheker to speak here have raised the controversy.

Richardson said the question of "educational purpose" has been raised about Aptheker's appearance here. "But Jayne Mansfield came and nobody asked if she was coming for an educational purpose," he said.

Paul Russell, another SDS member, said the organization is trying to enlist support from the students in this matter to help the University maintain the power to choose speakers.

He said other invitations have been issued to other speakers, some Communist and some non-Communist.

The spokesmen pointed out that several speakers were invited at the same time to save time in securing one.

"There were many we wanted to invite," Waller said. "We were trying to present opinions not expressed on campus."

Th spokesman said that if Aptheker is not allowed to speak here, the SDS would not invite any more communists. "It wouldn't be any use to," he said. He also said that there is a "possibility" the SDS may sponsor him in an off-campus speech.

Waller said the SDS invited liberal speakers because they are less expensive than the more consrvative ones. "We're not Communists," he told the group.

Waller also noted that Aptheker was invited before he went to North Viet Nam last month.

A petition was to have been started in Craige Residence Hall for students to express their views on Aptheker speaking here.

The petition is to be presented to Student Body President Paul Dickson before he goes to the University board of trustees meeting Monday.

The SDS will hold another open meting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Murphy Hall to discuss the situation further.

Student Legislators Hold Mock General Assembly

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

Should abortion be made a felony? Should there be an investigation of Klan infiltration of the State Government?

Why not have inspection and grading of public rest - room facilities in North Carolina? Why not have a Unicameral Legislature in North Carolina?

These are some of the questions representatives to State Student Legislature will be debating in Raleigh, Feb. 17-19 in a mock General Assembly meeting in the Old Assembly Building.

Colleges from all over North Carolina will be represented. Each participating college drafts a bill which will be introduced during the Legislative Session and voted on by the House and the Senate.

At Thursday's meeting of UNC's representatives to the Legislature, 14 bills received thus far from other colleges were assigned to study groups for research purposes.

The results of each group's research will be helpful in inforcng the group as a whole of the nature of the bills.

These include bills concerning abortion, Klan activities, public rest - rooms, and the establishment of a Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Cathy Cauble, Jeff Adams, Jim Brame, and David Kiel comprise the Executive Committee which is co-ordinating the work of UNC's State Student Legislature representatives.

Medical School Backs President

President Johnson's prescription this week for a worldwide fight against hunger, disease and ignorance contains a large dose of encouragement for the UNC School of Public Health.

Dr. W. Fred Mayes, dean of the Southeast's only full-fledged school of public health here, interprets the President's special message to Congress—recommending $524 million for a single international health and education package — as "a real step forward."

For one thing, Dean Mayes views the upsurge of interest and activity in global health as "a mechanism for a broader exchange of people, experience and ideas."

President Johnson called for a reverse twist on the Peace Corps idea. He wants to bring 5,000 foreigners to the U. S. not only to learn but to teach.

"New fdeas"

He presented as a "New idea" a program under which more American health and education experts would go abroad to help train foreigners in their specialties and to bring students, educators and health experts to the U. S. from other countries.

These ideas already are in practice at the UNC School of Public Health.

About one of every 10 of the 240 foreign students on the campus here are engaged in public health studies.

The school has helped train Peace Corpsmen.

Three years ago, it originated an international program in sanitary engineering design to bring foreign engieers to this country for advanced training.

The school now has five faculty members living overseas — "teaching and learning new health techniques and practices."

Environmental scientists and engineers from UNC are working with universities in Peru and Guatemala.

An epidemiologist is heading a Peace Corps program in tuberculosis control in Africa.

A former dean of public health here and a biostatistician are based in India working, respectively, with the Ministry of Health on rural health and family planning and with the Registry of Statistics on a health census system.

"The value to us of the experiences of these faculty members is that they bring back with them many new ideas and methods applicable here at home," says Dean Mayes.

Other Benefits

Another benefit from international affiliations is for students of public health.

"Affiliations abroad give us an opportunity for locations in other parts of the world for Dean Mayes points out. "They can study in different settings many of the things of particular interst and benefit to the U. S. and to North Carolina."

The UNC School of Public Health has partnerships in South America under which faculty members are being exchanged.

A potential for a similar arrangement exists in India, and explorations are underway in Thailand.

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
135 E. Franklin Ph. 942-1331
Home of The Old Well Charm

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
A BRAND NEWD VERSION OF THIS FAMOUS FAIRY TALE!

Produced by PAUL MART · Directed by LOEL MINARDI

The Hub's SHOE SALE
1/2 PRICE
A large selection of the most wanted style of shoes now at ½ price closing the Hub's Final Winter Clearance Sale. Many other fantastic buys also too good to miss.
The HUB of Chapel Hill

Big boom in country music
The Grand Ole Opry's going full blast, Tootsie's Orchid Lounge in Nashville is packed, and country boys in rhinestone suits are walking around town with $250,000 in their pockets. Country music's hit it big.
The Saturday Evening Post tells how it happened. Read why the new "uptown" sound has caught on . . . about the A&R men who really call the shots . . . about the performers such as Roger Miller, Buck Owens, Johnny Cash, Ernest Tubb — and the greatest of them all, the legendary Hank Williams.
Also in the Post, an outspoken and simple solution to draft-card burning. It could be acceptable to both militarists and conscientious objectors. Read the Feb. 12 issue of . . .
THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
POST
ON SALE NOW

MEN'S AND LADIES'
Knee Length
RUBBER PARKAS
WAIST AND KNEE LENGTH

• Roomy Hood with Adjustable Draw-String
• Heavy, Durable Rubber Coating Through-Out
• Full 100% Water-Proof Protection
• Quality at a Reasonable Price — 4.75
MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Upstairs Over Sutton's Drugs

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Dying Village

A four-part series on Victory Village, written by staffer Bob Harris, starts Tuesday in the Daily Tar Heel. Look for it.

The Daily Tar Heel

"The South's Largest College Newspaper"

Volume 74, Number 87 — CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1966 — Founded February 23, 1893

Job Opening

The Daily Tar Heel needs a night editor. The salary is 17.10 per week. Any interested person see Managing Editor Pat Stith at the DTH office

SDS Radical: 'Going To Roots'

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

It's called the Students for Democratic Society, or SDS.

That is the name of the organization that, by its invitation of Dr. Herbert Aptheker to speak on the campus, has caused another state-wide stir concerning "intellectual freedom," "constitutional rights" and "free speech."

SDS, a recognized campus organization, is small as far as membership goes. It's made up of about 25 or 30 members.

"We're not sure just how many members we have," says Gary Waller, SDS vice chairman. "We don't keep any records of membership. We're probably the least beaucratic organization on campus."

GARY WALLER, vice-chairman of SDS, is one of four scheduled speakers for a mass student meeting in Memorial Hall Monday. Waller is considered the most likely candidate for the position of president of SDS, which will become vacant tomorrow. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

The UNC-SDS chapter was formed last spring, according to Waller, "when several students wanted an organization which would express our vews.

"We wanted something that would represent the liberal thought on campus. I saw something about SDS in a magazine and liked it and told the others about it. We had a couple of meetings and that's how we got started," Waller said.

Norman Gustaveson, the director of the campus YMCA, was also consulted about forming the SDS chapter, Waller added. Gustaveson was one of the first advisors for the group. Dr. William Wynn and Dr. Joseph Straley are the other advisors.

"The advisors take a very active part in the organization," Waller said. "They attend our meetings and give opinions on what we should do. We consult them frequently and use them more than other groups use their advisors on campus."

The SDS is made up of both undergraduate and graduate students and by in-state and out-of-state students.

Until now it has been headed by Jim McCorkel. He resigned as chairman Wednesday, however, in the heat of the controversy over Aptheker's invitation to speak here. A new chairman is to be chosen today, McCorkel said he resigned in order to devote more time to the disertation for his doctorate.

The group is committed to a "participatory democracy" according to Waller, and that is what he calls its philosophy.

"People should take part in the decisions that affect their day to day lives," he said.

"Our purpose is to promote debate," Waller said, "not to promote our philosophy. We just make it available."

The vice chairman said the members range from "moderate liberals to radicals.' However, he said "radical" was used in the sense of "going to the roots of issues."

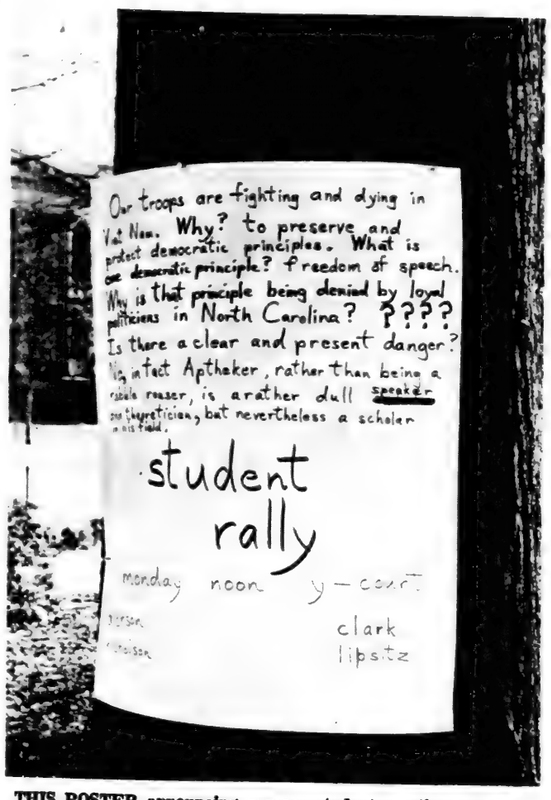
"There are no ideological meanings to SDS," Waller added. "We would probably be on the 'left' of most issues but there is no committment to Maxism."

The UNC-SDS chapter is associated with the national SDS organization, Waller said, but is not associated with any other groups on campus.

"We share some members with the Student Peace Union," he said, "but we are not associated with them."

SDS is totally operated by students, Waller said. Dues for the organization are $3 for the first year and $1 for each year after that. Waller said other finances are gained through the sale of pamphlets, buttons and through private contributions.

Dickson Calls Mass Meeting On Aptheker



THIS POSTER announcing a mass student meeting on Monday appeared on a tree in Polk Place yesterday. The poster maker erred, however, since the meeting will be held in Memorial Hall. The poster is only one of many indications showing the rising interest in the Aptheker issue.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Executive Board Decides Monday

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

A building tide of support for Communist Herbert Aptheker's acceptance as a speaker here grew yesterday as Sudent Body President Paul Dickson called for a mass student meeting at noon Monday in Memorial Hall.

Dr. William Fleming of the political science department said late yesterday that younger faculty members, 40 and under, were going to present a statement to the board of trustees and the Governor Monday.

The executive committee of the University board of trustees will meet in Raleigh to decide the Aptheker case.

Fleming said he didn't know how many faculty members would be able to get away for the meeting, but most of them are in favor of the move.

"These are associate and full professors," Fleming said, "who are deeply concerned about the future of the University.

"They are afraid that if the committee decides against Aptheker that this University will have no future — and they in turn will have no future at this University," Fleming said.

In his statement Saturday Dickson said the purpose of the student meting is to draft two telegrams to be sent to Gov. Dan K. Moore and the executive committee.

"I will explain the various factors involved in our current action and I will seek approval of my action from the student body," Dickson said.

Also expected to speak at the meeting are Wilson Clark of the Carolina Conservative Club, Dr. Lewis Lipsitz of the Political Science Department, Dr. Joseph W. Straley of the Physics Department and SDS faculty advisor, and Gary Waller vice chairman of SDS.

Dickson sasked that no students or faculty members attend the meeting in Raleigh unless they have permission to speak.

"The presence of a large number of students and faculty could give the appearance to the trustees that Dr. Aptheker's appearance would create serious disturbance on the campus which would introduce an unnecessary factor into their considerations," Dickson said.

Friday, three students, Dandra Burden, Nancy Barret and Charles Evans, organized and began circulating a petition around campus supporting Aptheker's right to speak, but disagreeing with what he represents.

"It is my hope that every student will sign the petition by 1 p.m. Monday so that I can take them with me to the meeting," Dickson said.

The petitions will be circulated in Y-Court, Lenoir Hall and the Pine Room Monday morning. Copies will also be passed around at the student meeting at noon.

Raleigh Man On Red Ban

There has been no word from Raleigh since the exploding reactions of students, faculty and others in the University community concerning Gov. Dan K. Moore's denounciation of an invitation to Communist Herbert Aptheker to speak on campus March 9.

Gary Waller, vice chairman of SDS, said yesterday that if Aptheker was denied his right to speak, the organization may invite him to speak off campus or initiate legal action.

President Paul Dickson has also hinted at a possible test case of North Carolina's controversial speaker ban law.

Dr. Lewis Lipsitz of the Political Science Department and a strong backer of Aptheker's right to speak said yesterday that a constitutional issue is likely to be involved if Aptheker is refused by the trustees.

Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society and scheduled to speak here Feb. 13, told the DTH yesterday that he refused to comment on whether Aptheker should be permitted to speak.

Aptheker, 50, is a leading Communist theoretician and director of the American Institute for Marxist Studies in New York City.

He recently returned from a "fact-finding mission to North Viet Nam." The State Department revoked his passport last week for the illegal trip.

A poll Thursday showed that 80.9 per cent of 231 students polled are in favor of allowing Aptheker to speak.

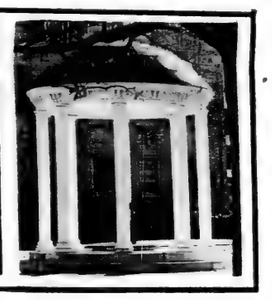
—ED FREAKLEY

Sunday Cinema

"Knife In The Water" will be shown tonight at 7 and 9:30 in Carroll Hall. It is a Polish film with English subtitles directed by Roman Polanski, who also did "Repulsion."

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Marching Mavericks

The Mavericks of Craige Resident Hall have done, and are doing more than any other group to improve and build the image of this University.

This weekend they have been hiking 140-miles on behalf of the Heart Fund.

The group will march into Chapel Hill sometime betwen 4 and 4:30 this afternoon to assist in the ground breaking ceremony for the Hinton James Resident Hall at 4:30. We urge everyone to turn out and welcome the Mavericks home.

Thoughtful is a good word for Mavericks — unselfish is a better one.

Two Stands Not In Conflict

It is true that we want a Communist to be permitted to speak on campus. Freedom of speech is important to us and it belongs to us, not the State Government or the board of trustees — it belongs to each individual.

At any rate, we back the war effort in Viet Nam. And we are backing the boys over there.

Congressman On Viet Nam

Time for some more of that popular game called Trivia. It seems to be catching on around here so we offer you a few more questions.

1. What is the name of the son on the television program "Father Knows Best?"
2. What is the name of the editor Clark Kent works for and what is the name of his paper?
3. What was the first movie Liz Taylor (Burton) starred in?
4. What day is "Anything Can Happen Day?"
5. Who was Artie Katz?
6. Who did Charlie Chaplin borrow his first pair of baggy pants from?
7. What is Lady Bird Johnson's real first name?
8. What is the name of Sgt. Preston's dog?
9. Who is known for the saying: "There are ducks on the pond, part'na?"
10. What was the name of the old woman who sold apples in "Pocket Full of Miracles?"

ANSWERS:

1. Bud Anderson; 2. Perry White and The Daily Planet; 3. "National Velvet"; 4. Wednesday on the "Mickey Mouse Club" show; 5. Star Carolina basketball reserve during the 63-64 season; 6. Fatty Arbuckle; 7. Claudia; 8. King; 9. Dizzy Dean; 10. Apple Annie.

DTH Increases News Coverage

Readers of The Daily Tar Heel have most likely noticed the changes which have taken place since two more pages were added this semester.

Page one will remain the campus news page, page four will contain world and state news from the two wire machines in the offices of the DTH.

The sports page has been moved inside to page five. More space has been provided for intramural coverage and commentary.

The DTH is open to comment, suggestions and criticism about any phase of the new layout.

Page three will be devoted to feature stories, letters, TV listings and columnists, all of which are welcomed and invited.

Page six will carry the Campus news and other announcements. Any campus organization may make announcements through the Campus Calendar.

New stories about coming events concerning a greater number of people may be submitted to the News Editor for use in the news briefs section of page one.

Students are welcome to submit columns to the DTH, and arrangements may be made with the Associate Editor by anyone wishing to write weekly columns.

Hikers To Arrive Today; Building Ceremonies Set

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The last members of Maverick House taking part in the Hinton James Hike for Hearts will arrive in Chapel Hill this afternoon.

They will be carrying a torch, symbol of the Heart Fund, which has been relayed the past two days and nights during the Mavericks' 140-mile hike to Chapel Hill.

The first hikers left Burgaw on Friday afternoon at 2:30 to begin re-enactment of the two-week walk Hinton James made to Chapel Hill in 1795. James became the first student at UNC.

The hikers went west on 53 from Burgaw to 421, then north on 421 to Clinton. They were met in Clinton at 8 a.m. Saturday by the Sampson County Heart Association.

Henry Skinner, Maverick House originator of the Hike for Hearts, was one of the first walkers to complete his part of the relay hike.

Skinner said: "Hiking is good for the heart but bad for the feet."

The hikers continued relaying the torch through Dunn to Apex. The Wake County heart officials were to meet them at 8 a.m. this morning in Apex.

After leaving Apex the hikers will continue on 55 until they reach 54 near Durham.

The last torch carriers will follow 54 into Chapel Hill. They will be joined by other students, faculty, administration and guests for the ground breaking ceremony for Hinton James Residence Hall this afternoon at 4:30.

President Friday, State Chairman of the 1966 Heart Fund Drive, and Chancellor Sharp will represent the University.

The N. C. Heart Association will be represented by Board Chairman Hargrove Bowles, President Daniel T. Young and the 1966 Heart Research Queen Jeane Rhodes.

Mrs. Everett (Ann James) Durham, great granddaughter of Hinton James will also be present.

The ceremony will be held on the new Hinton James Residence Hall site on Manning Road across from Chase Cafeteria

Undergraduate Library Larger Than Expected

A $657,000 federal grant will make it possible for the new North Carolina undergraduate library to be expanded before it is even built.

Plans for the library had called for a $1,315,000 structure of approximately 60,000 square feet. With the new grant a $1,972,000 building of close to 80,000 square feet will be constructed. The federal money was awarded under the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963.

Expected date of completion of the library, which will be named for former chancellor Robert B. House, is mid-1968.

To be located beside the present L. R. Wilson Library, it will be a three-level contemporary style and will be air-conditioned and carpeted throughout.

An attempt to provide as many individual comfortable seats as possible is being made and 2,000 seats will be available, as contrasted with the undergraduate section of the present library which only has seats for 200. Space will also be arranged to house 75,000 volumes.

Panel To Discuss War, Conscience

The Wesley Foundation will hold a panel discussion on "The Place of War in the American Conscience" this afternoon at 4 at 214 Pittsboro St.

John Wayne Lasley and Raymond H. Dawson will present their views and Paul Dickson, Bob Pitts and Eric van Loon will provide response to what they say.

Fellini Film Monday

The Italian Cultural Society will present Federico Fellini's film "I Vitelloni" tomorrow at 8 p.m. in rm. 2, Carroll Hall.

A contribution of 25 cents from non-members would be appreciated though not required.

APO Book Sale

All students who participated in the APO used book sale are requested to stop by the APO office in the basement of Smith Dormitory on Tuesday through Friday from 3-5 p.m. in order to pick up their money or their books.

After Friday APO can't be responsible for books or money.

Firms To Interview

Six companies will be on campus to recruit Monday.

They are Coca-Cola, Ferris State College, General Foods, Communicable Disease Center, U. S. Public Health Service, and DCSLOG Data Processing Center.

On Monday Radio Corporaon of America, Texaco, Scott Paper, Thalhimer Bros. Hallmark Cards, and Arizona State College will have representatives on campus.

Anyone wishing an interview should come by the Placement Service, 204 Gardner, and make an appointment.

SP To Hear Dickson

Student Body President Paul Dickson will address the Student Party Tuesday night in Howell Hall at 8:30.

He will discuss the Aptheker issue and the role of Student Government and the DTH in issuing an invitation to Aptheker to speak on campus.

After President Dickson's address, questions will be received from the floor, followed by the election of legislative vacancies in MD IX, Avery Parker, and Teague; MD I, outside the corporate limits of Chapel Hill and Carrboro; and MD XII, Morrison.

All faculty members, students, and townspeople are invited to this meeting. Anyone interested in the legislative vacancies should also attend.

Parking Ticket Policy

Any student who feels he has received a parking ticket or notice unjustly has 48 hrs. to appeal it under the new policy adopted by Dean of Men William Long.

A student who receives a ticket should appeal his case to the campus security chief, Arthur Beaumont, on the second floor of Y-Building.

Students who receive parking notices must talk to Alonzo Squires, traffic counselor if they want to appeal them.

Students with three or more parking tickets face a loss of motor vehicle privileges.

Poet Plans Reading

The North Carolina Poetry Circuit has selected award-winning poet James Dickey to read before ten state campuses in the spring. Dickey is tentatively scheduled to appear at North Carolina in April at the time of the Carolina Symposium.

Dickey, an Atlanta native, was educated at Clemson and Vanderbilt and has taught at Rice Institute and the University of Florida. He worked six years as an ad-man for agencies in New York and Atlanta then stopped in order to work abroad on a Guggenheim Fellowship grant in 1961-'62.

Nominated for the National Book Award in Poetry, he has published four collections of poems—Into the Stone, Helmets, Drowning with Others and this year's Buckdancer's Choice.

Poets appearing on the North Caorlina Poetry Circuit in the past include Donald Hall, founder-editor of the Paris Review; Alan Dugan, 1962 Pulitzer Prise winner in poetry.

Same Fiance, Girls Discover

LEXINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Harold Peoples had been courting two girls at the same time and promised to marry both, they said.

One girl lived in Lexington and the other in Thomasville and woe was last Christmas Day when the found out about each other.

There wasn't any hair-pulling. Instead they turned on Peoples—or rather his car.

"Totally demolished," Peoples told the judge.

With rocks they broke the windows, headlights and windshield. With razor blades they ripped up the seat covers and upholstering.

After separate trials on charges of malicious damage to personal property this past week, both Maybell Williams, 21, of Thomasville, and Nellie Holt of Lexington were given suspended sentences and ordered to pay for repairs to the car.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Don't Lose Your Cool

No doubt about it. The University is embroiled in a full-blown controversy.

Tempers are prone to blaze and rationality tends to evaporate under such strained conditions. Rumors are flitting about campus—rumors of demonstrations . . . strikes . . . marches . . . lawsuits.

Such rumors are received with joy around the state by those who harp about the lack of student responsibility. They say such threats prove students are too immature and reckless to be allowed to hear a Communist.

They are right if the threats are real.

Such talk right now is the result of sheer emotionalism — our own version of the same kind of emotionalism which is leading the oppostion to Herbert Aptheker's appearance here.

We have no hope nor reason to expect consideration if we approach the problem with a "we'll-show-em" attitude. These threats, either real or potential, constitute such an attitude.

It is a poorly conceived idea for a horde of students and faculty members to descend on the trustees' meeting in Raleigh Monday. We have taken our stand in support of the freedom of the University and the trustees are aware of that stand. Flocking to the meeting, or carrying out any other threats, will neither win friends nor influence people.

Such actions are an indication of panic. If we panic now, we do not have a chance.

Ban Perversion, Lust

The time for action is long overdue. How much longer can we afford to let our complacency endanger the healthfulness of the psychological environment of our children? When will we rid ourselves of this insidious threat to moral decency?

"Little Red Riding Hood" must be banned.

For years we have allowed our youngsters to be subjected to this gruesome tale of lust, perversion and violence without so much as the bat of an eye. In fact, many children become acquainted with the story at bedtime when their parents tell it to them for fun.

Worse yet, some of our school teachers confess to repeating the tale in public school classrooms. Is it any wonder then, that the courts have ruled that the classroom is an unfit place for prayer?

Maybe you're among that vast majority of naive adults who has always taken the story for granted, as just another fanciful children's legend. That's just why it's so dangerous, though — it seems so innocent.

Stop a minute and really think about the implications of the story. What's wrong with Little Red Riding Hood? Why does she continue to place herself in danger by making these frequent trips to Grandma's house? It's obvious that she is severely maladjusted and has a strong death-wish personality. At the least, she is a born trouble maker.

The wolf is definitely a sexual pervert. If he weren't a transvestite, why would he want to dress up in Grandma's clothes? Furthermore, he tries to lure the little girl to his bed to "gobble her up" — transparent symbolism for sexual assault.

Disrespect for elders is taught — poor old Grandma is manhandled and shoved in a closet like a sack of laundry. But the woodsman tops it all when he enters and "saves" the "helpless" girl by whacking the wolf with his ax. Such undiluted bloody gore is shocking, even to mature adult minds. Think what it must do to those youngsters. Some of them may suffer personality damage from which they will never recover. Look what happened to Lizzie Borden, or her parents, anyway.

Hanover County, Virginia, has set a recent notable ban example by outlawing To Kill a Mockingbird. If Chapel Hill is to retain its reputation for progressiveness it can hesitate no longer in the face of such competition from our northern neighbors.

The only way to build strong character in our children is to protect them from ideas which might damage their development. We must rid our homes and classrooms of this filth.

"Little Red Riding Hood" has to go.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

The Student Speaks

Academic Freedom At Stake

By JOHN E. DIETZ

James McCorkel, former president of the UNC-SDS spoke to a group from our dormitory Thursday night, and I think that it was clear to all who listened that the position of the SDS on the Aptheker controversy has been misrepresented — partially by them, and partially by a public too ready to condemn anything which smacks of radicalism. This, then, is an attempt at clarification.

Last spring the local SDS had thought of the idea of testing the Speaker Ban Law which was then on the books. To do so they had asked Dr. Apetheker if he would be willing to speak here, in direct violation of the law, to test its constitutionality. He agreed.

The SDS was then prevailed upon by the Student Government and the Administration of the University to wait: if there was one chance in 100 that this could be settled out of court, that chance was worth waiting for. Wait they did, and the Britt Commission presented its plan for an amended law which was satisfactory, as it read, to the Administration and to the University.

The SDS at that time published a statement criticizing the Britt Commission's report because they feared that anything short of repeal would not guarantee the speaking autonomy which they sought. The SDS statement was thought so needlessly fearful that of all the state news media which received a copy, only the Orange County News thought it worthy of mention at all.

The SDS interpreted the amended law to be an open door to bring any speaker to the campus that they wished. After once again obtaining a note of willingness on the part of Aptheker, the SDS consulted Chancellor Sharp, and was given a go-ahead. At that time, Mr. McCorkel thought that there would certainly be controversy over the speaker — perhaps someone apart from the University would yell; there would maybe be some vehement editorials written, again pointing to the so-called "Communist infiltration" on our campus—but there was never any thought about the fact that he would be challenged by the Governor.

After all, had not the State Legislature voluntarily, and at the advice of its own commission, amended the speaker ban law to give back to the University the freedom to choose its speakers?

Controversy for the sake of controversy? Hardly. It is rather controversy for the sake of underscoring the state of academic freedom at this University. This in itself renders the invitation, and the unexpected controversy which surrounds it, educational in value. (And makes one of Governor Moore's arguments invalid). Now we have some indication of how sincere that speaker ban amendment was.

I cannot argue the fact that the approach made by the SDS was not the most prudent one — the Governor should probably have been informed, if for no other reason than to find out how extensive the controversy would be. But the SDS is an ideologically oriented organization, and political acumen is not claimed as one of their most obvious virtues. Jim McCorkel admitted his naivete at not foreseeing the degree of the opposition. But that is past, and those arguments seem to be irrelevant.

The question now is whether or not the University will indeed have its right to ask to this campus any speaker whom it wishes. Is the amendment to the speaker ban law to be taken seriously, or is it as ineffective as the SDS feared it was when they objected to the Britt Commission's report? Jim McCorkel was not completely naive about the controversy — any precedent must initiate some controversy — but he was innocent of its extent, namely the Governor's unequivocal intervention. Despite the clouds, the key issue remains: does the law mean what it says, or was the amendment a mere sop to a threatening Southern Association of Colleges which was going to take away our accreditation.

The case is, of course, a test case; because it is testing the sincerity of an amended law — a law which promised us as students the right to learn from whomever we desired, provided that we would also listen to opposing arguments. No violation of the law has been made. Tolerance was shown on the part of the UNC-SDS throughout (although that was perhaps clouded by a lack of political savoir-faire).

Now The Daily Tar Heel and the Carolina Forum have thrown their prestige behind the attempt to bring Aptheker here. It is a test which must be passed; in the name of free speech and academic freedom.

Sincerely,

Letter

More Basketball News

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Here is a suggestion for your new, expanded paper. How about listing the ACC standings and latest scores, as well as the national AP basketball poll, issued weekly?

Jeff Kuesel
Terry Scott
301, 314 Ruffin

David Rothman

Governor Falters On Free Speech

Gov. Dan K. Moore's suggestion that Herbert Aptheker not be permitted to speak here makes one fact very evident:

Moore advocated speaker ban changes only because state-supported colleges and universities were threatened with loss of accreditation.

The Governor is not really concerned with upholding freedom of speech except when it suits his political fortunes.

He meekly pays homage to democracy in his speeches he'd better, if he wants to remain in politics). But his democracy can only be described as a "democracy of convenience."

In other words, it isn't democracy.

Aptheker, granted, is a Communist. But why should the First Amendment apply to the American Legion or Robert Welch and not to him? One of democracy's fundamental concepts is equal treatment of citizens and their ideas.

Of course, maybe Moore does intend to be democratic. Maybe he plans to advocate also banning God, Mother and the Flag from the campus. Then, he'd be perfectly consistent and nobody could claim unfair treatment.

There's another approach, too. Perhaps the Governor could still allow students to worship God, honor their mothers and fly the flag. The sole qualification might be this: Students would be permitted to perform these acts only for "legitimate educational purposes."

* * *

REPULSION — Hollywood movie producers have always delighted in telling audiences that their products will shock them. Most people, of course, don't like to be shocked, but some mysterious masochistic desire compels them to attend those repulsive movies.

Alas, it was with perfect honesty that the makers of "The Loved One" prudently promised that theirs was a movie "guaranteed to offend everyone"! "So . . . be offended and have fun," the advertisements urged. Among those having fun were the critics, who joyously filled their reviews with phrases like, "It's delightful."

Offending moviegoers in a less intellectual manner are the "art" films, whose ads admit they are "loaded with pure filth." And if you really enjoy being repulsed, you can see "Ecco," a movie featuring examples of sadism carefully collected from all over the world.

Meanwhile, television is eagerly attempting to see if it can be as repulsive as the movies, and thus far, this approach has been quite successful — even if you take into consideration the fact that Americans are so fond of repulsion (which, incidentally, happens to be the name of a recent film). Why, half of "Peyton Place's" audience probably consists of Bible Belt preachers whose video fare is usually limited to material like telecasts of Billy Graham's revival meetings. And I'm confident that the other half of the "Peyton Place" viewers is made up almost entirely of Girl Scout mothers.

Let's face it — repulsion is a time-honored tradition in cinematic and video America.

Barry Jacobs

Guaranteed Income Will Hurt Country

The ultimate in welfarism is now in sight. This week a commission appointed by President Johnson recommended that the government guarantee each family a minimum annual income. The committee, apparently with a straight face, recommended $3,000 as a suitable figure and estimated that the cost would run anywhere from $2 billion to $20 billion per year.

Although even two or three years ago, such a proposal would have been dismissed as a crackpot idea, reminiscent of Huey Long and Francis Townsend, no one should be laughing now. The men on the committee are too important and represent too broad a cross-section — from the board chairman of IBM to Walter Reuther — to be ignored. What's more, as the committee ominously stated, what seems extreme and far-out now will be commonplace in a few years.

No, instead of being ignored, this proposal should be mercilessly attacked. Every argument that can be made against it should be made. Only in this way can the program be killed or, if it must come, be put off as long as possible.

Is there any defense for a minimum guaranteed income? Of course, there is one — and only one. The picture of children going to bed hungry disturbs most Americans. Nobody likes to see poverty. But how many people are starving — literally starving to death? In order to justify anything like this proposal, the committee should produce figures to show that this is a major problem. Certainly even one such death is a tragedy, but it doesn't justify completely changing our economic system.

A guaranteed minimum cannot be adopted, in the first place, because we cannot afford it. Let's assume that the plan cost $10-$12 billion larger than it is now. Budget deficits of $15 billion would become commonplace during prosperous times.

With such deficits, the national debt would take off to the moon, propelled by an exploding inflation. The $3,000 income would quickly become inadequate. Raises to $4,000, $5,000, or $10,000 would be necessary. The cost of the subsidized incomes would zoom from $10 billion to $20 billion to 50 billion. The economy would eventually collapse under the weight of the gigantic inflation that is sure to result. We must not ignore the examples of Jim Law's Mississippi Bubble and Germany's Weimar Republic. They show what inflation can do.

There is, of course, one way besides the printing press in which the government could get the extra funds to finance this and other super-welfare programs. Taxes could be raised. But the only kind of tax boost that would serve the purpose of the minimum income is one that increases the burden on the rich, while leaving the poor alone.

The simplest way to tax the rich without affecting the poor is to raise the rates at the high end of the income tax scale. Thus the federal government would become a kind of modern Robin Hood, robbing from the rich to give to the poor. In fact, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that the rate would become 100 per cent beyond a certain level of income. If the government can set a minimum income, it can set a maximum income, too.

Should the commission's proposal by some chance be adopted, the problems involved in actually putting it into operation are staggering. The minimum standard is 3,000 per family. How big a family? What do single people get?

The plan would almost certainly have to have a sliding scale to allow for larger families. Thus a family with two children might get $3,000, while one with four children might get $3,800 or $4,000. There will thus be an incentive for poor people to have more children, and this is precisely the segment of the population which the problems of the population explosion affect most seriously.

The government would be faced with subsidizing larger families at the same time it is concerned with the problems of an expanding population. The alternatives, however, are no brighter. The income level could be fixed, regardless of the number in the family, in which case some children will be going to bed hungry again. Or the government could institute a program of enforced birth control, perhaps by enforced sterilization. This frightening alternative, howeve, would bring us one giant step closer to a "Big Brother" type of totalitarian government.

The foregoing arguments are directed at the great problems the guaranteed annual income would cause. The biggest and most compelling argument againt the proposal, however, is that it is morally wrong and dangerous. It is wrong because it places an unfair burden on the well-to-do to support the poor; it is mandatory charity. It is dangerous because it weakens the individual's incentive to get ahead on his own, and that incentive helped to build this country into the greatest in the world.

The confiscatory tax rates which this program will require (assuming the government is unwilling to accept the huge budget deficits that will otherwise result) are likely to have the effect of stunting initiative in successful people. That is, after these people have made enough to live comfortably on, they will retire, rather than give 95 or 98 or 100 per cent of their income to the government.Often these retirements will come at a relatively early age, when the men involved are still able to make significant contributions to our society.

And what of the effect this program will have on the poor, the people it is designed to help? The bad effects seem likely to outweigh the good. The outright gift of money and the knowledge that it is guaranteed is almost certain to demoralize these people. They will know that their efforts will count for little, since the end result is $3,000 anyway, no matter whether they earn $1 or $2,999.

Many of them are certain to become shiftless. Since it doesn't matter whether they earn $1 or $2,999, why try to make $2,999? Why not just sit back and wait for the government checks? In fact, the damage is worse than it appars at first. These people will lose the desire, determination, and initiative to work. They will be lost to society. Some will no doubt turn down higher paying jobs, if they are available, because they have lost the will to work.

Many of these people will come to despise the government that is supporting them. Our government has been unable to buy friends abroad, and it is not going to have any more success at home. People don't like to have to take charity, and they don't like the people who give it to them. The guaranteed income is almost guaranteed to produce a group of embittered people who feel that the world owes them a living.

Our country became great because people worked to improve themselves. Some people weren't able to make the grade, and that is truly unfortunate. Much has been done and is being done to help these people. The minimum income plan, however, will do far more harm to this country than it will do good. The poor will suffer as well as the rich. If this insidious proposal is adopted, the United States will be the loser.

Borrowed Paintings Brighten UNC Campus

By BETTY MINISH

Immediately upon entering the office, flaming colors — brilliant, almost passionate, reds, yellows, oranges — jump out at you from a large canvas on the wall.

Abstract art decorating the combination reception and secretarial room of the Arts and Sciences Department in South Building, often startles visitors.

The modern art depicts no readily perceptible figure and leaves the observer wondering just what he is looking at.

He is seeing one of the many paintings now decorating wall space in numerous University buildings through the courtesy of the Ackland Art Center's Loan Collection.

Some 103 works of art are loaned by the Ackland to help brighten the campus. Ackland is spreading art over the University instead of keeping it confined to the Museum itself.

Dr. Joseph C. Sloane, director of Ackland Art Center, credits the idea of the loan collection to displays of student art work at other universities. The idea at UNC includes the lending of student work, in addition to works given to the museum, to numerous University localities — offices, lounges, waiting rooms. Most of the paintings on exhibit are student work.

Preference for what Dr. Sloane calls "wild and woolly student work" is greater among the students themselves than among professors and administrators. Dr. Sloane expressed satisfaction with the popularity of the loan collection: "The student work here is of unusually good quality. In a day when there there is so much bad art around it's very pleasant to have some reasonably good art up."

Yet student art is sometimes baffling to the observer. Often abstract works are untitled and there is not even a slight clue as to what is supposed to be appreciated.

One student expressed his puzzlement over the modern works displayed in a study room by saying, "Sometimes I can't study because I spend so much time trying to figure out what the heck those pictures mean." The students are not the only ones uncertain about some of the abstract works. By accident, a picture in the library was hung upside down.

The modern works are liked most for their cheerful color. Some of the brightest paintings decorate Louis Round Wilson Library where, according to Librarian William Pease," There was a great reaction to the paintings when we first put them up, and now an occasional cry of 'For Heaven's Sake!' is heard." Mr. Pease added, "They add color to an otherwise drab, institutional looking place."

"Goodness knows what they are supposed to represent," says Librarian Charles Schliecker, "but they add a much needed spice of color."

Outside Mr. Schliecker's office are three examples of the second kind of art work to be found in the loan collection. The simpler and more conventional works show an ordinary farm scene and several recognizable buildings. "Art has to be recognizable for me to appreciate it," said Mr. Schliecker, pointing to a painting above his desk. "Something simple — like this horse."

The realistic pictures preferred by Mr. Schliecker and his staff are typical of those decorating other University offices. Especially interesting are several William Mead Prince drawings on the walls of the Arts and Sciences Department in South Building. Originally illustrations for stories in magazines such as the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers, about 20 paintings were left to the Museum by the late Mr. Prince who lived in Chapel Hill.

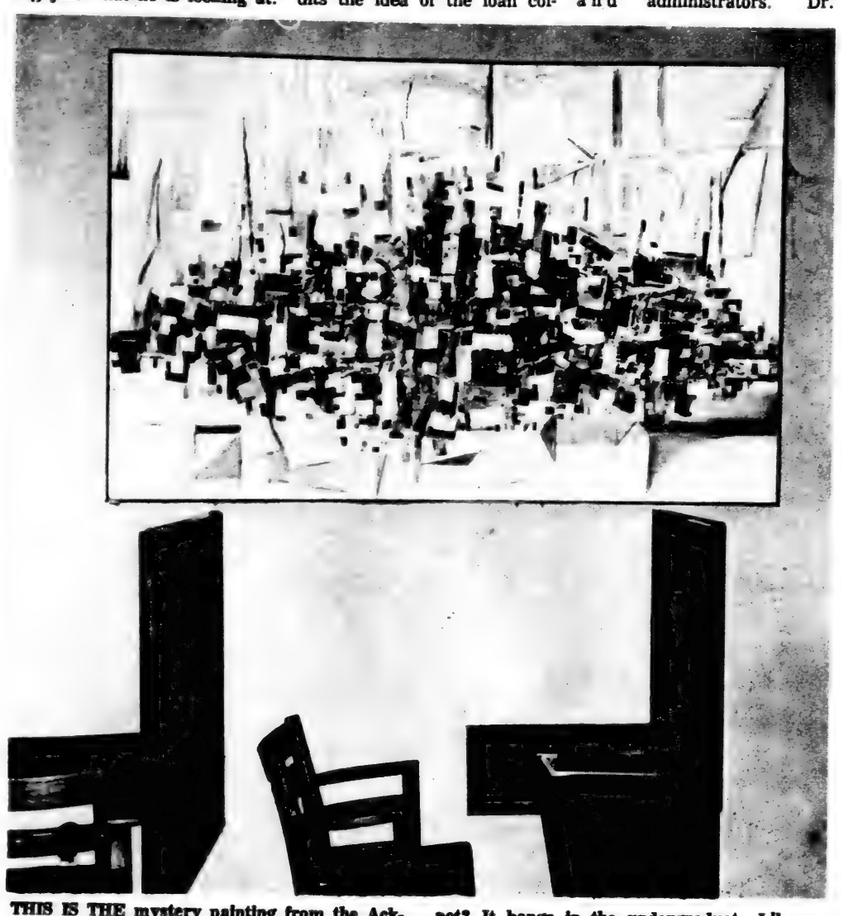
Mrs. Helen J. Wettach, a secretary in the Arts and Sciences Department who borrowed the Prince works from the loan collection said, "I'm a fan of Mr. Prince. I'm much more inclined toward his type work than modern art." The Southern flavor of Mr. Prince's work accounts for the popularity of his works among many University professors.

Headquarters for the loan collection transactions is the office of Alice Welsh, registrar of the Ackland Museum. Mrs. Welsh traces the source of the student work to the Annual Student Art Exhibition, such as the 29th Annual Exhibition this past summer. "Many different artist's works are selected by an art committee for the loan collection," she said. "The limited number of paintings in the loan collection by a single artist does not allow for many borrowers to choose the artist whose work they would like to use. Still they might ask for a Vic Huggins, a Robert Shannon, or a Majorie Schiffman."

Mrs. Welsh told an amusing story about a lucky borrower who did receive a Schiffman work shortly after the two - man thesis show last year. "As the painting was being carried to a new location the canvas was slightly damaged. Instead of calling the Ackland about what to do, the anxious borrower went straight to the artist for help. Mrs. Schiffman hurried right over, dressed as she was, looking like something out of Toulous - Lautrec. The office staff was so impressed with the attractive Mrs. Schiffman that they decided they would rather hang Mrs. Schiffman than the painting."

The work of Mrs. Schiffman and other UNC students has been snatched up, leaving the loan collection almost bare of pictures for lending. The loans are renewable each year but often "the borrower becomes so attached to the paintings it's hard to get them back," said Dr. Sloane.

"After a somewhat uncertain beginning the loan collection has rapidly achieved great success and may be extended to include rental of a prints collection." The present loans are made free of charge to authorized personnel from departments or branches of the University.



THIS IS THE mystery painting from the Ackland Loan Collection. Is it upside down or not? It hangs in the undergraduate Library. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

A CAROLINA COED is apparently undisturbed by the two pictures hanging above her on the wall of the study room in Wilson Library. The pictures are on loan from the Ackland Loan Collection. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Big Federal Grant Extends Health Study Three Years

A program of graduate study in radiological health in the Consolidated University has been extended for another three years with a $210,000 federal grant.

Funds from the Division of Radiological Health of the U. S. Public Health Service will continue to provide fellowships, teaching personnel and equipment.

The special graduate program was begun five years ago this month by combining the resources of the UNC Department of Environmental Sciences and Engineering here and N. C. State's Department of Physics.

Twenty-nine men have completed work for their master's degrees under the program—eight at N. C. State and 21 at UNC here.

Nine students, including the first woman in the program, are now working on advanced degrees. Seven are master's candidates and two are doctoral candidates.

Fourteen of 20 students awarded fellowships during the past five years were Army officers.

The graduate students have entered the field of radiological health from physics (20), biology (seven) medicine (three) veterinary medicine (three), engineering (three), pharmacy (one) and two other fields.

Only one of the 29 students completing work for degrees is no longer in radiological hygiene work. Fifteen are with the Army either under the Division of Nuclear Medical Science or the Division of Preventive Medicine.

Five are in the Division of Radiological Health, U. S. Public Health Service. Four are with state health departments. One is with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The program is directed by Prof. Emil T. Chanlett, UNC sanitary engineer, and is coordinated on the N. C. State campus by Prof. J.T. Lynn, physicist.

Stacy To Lecture Medical School

Dr. Ralph W. Stacy, professor of bioengineering and biomathematics at the North Carolina School of Medicine will speak on "Techniques for Obtaining and Handling Biological Data" in a Sigma Xi lecture Tuesday.

The public talk will be at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the school of Public Health.

It was donated by a 1904 alumnus, Sidney S. Robins. The pamphlet is entitled "Prescription of Exercise" and was given to every entering freshman.

History Professor's Book Will Appear In Paperback

"South Carolina Negroes, 1877-1900," a book written by Dr. George Brown Tindall and published by the University of South Carolina Press in 1952, will be reprinted in paperback edition by the Louisiana University Press.

Dr. Tindall, professor of history at UNC, is a research specialist in American history, with emphasis on the South since Reconstruction.

In the book's foreword, he said South Carolina is "a fertile field for the investigation of Negro history, but comparatively little attention has been devoted to that phase of the State's history in the period since Reconstruction.

"This book is an effort to fill in for one Southern state the gap in our knowledge of the history of American Negroes. Its objective is to trace the post - Reconstruction developments, in Negro life and institutions and in race relations, that are pregnant with meaning for the present day."

Photographs of Negro leaders and activities during the period illustrate the volume.

"South Carolina Negroes, 1877-1900" was awarded honorable mention in the 1952 Dunning Prize competition of the American Historical Assn.

Dr. Tindall is also author of "The Present South, 1913-1946" and has written many articles, including "The South: Into the Mainstream" which was one of the top 10 magazine articles of the month in 1961 chosen by the American Library Assn.

New Officers Are Chosen By Journalism Foundation

New officers and six new directors have been elected by Foundation of North Carolina, Ind.

Mrs. E. M. Anderson of the Skyland Post was elected vice president replacing Mrs. Elizabeth G. Swindell of the Wilson Daily Times. Re-elected were Holt McPherson of the High Point Enterprise as president, Donald J. Chipman of the Winston - Salem Journal and Sentinel as treasurer, and William C. Lassiter, general counsel fo the North Carolina Press Association, as secretary. The election was held at the Foundation's annual meeting.

New directors are: Brodie S. Griffith of the Charlotte News, W. D. Snider of the Greensboro Daily News, Julius C. Hubbard of the North Wilkesboro Journal Patriot, H. Galt Braxton of the Kinston Free Press, M. Paul Dickermann of the Wilson Daily Times and L. C. Gifford of the Hickory Daily Record.

William E. Horner of the Sanford Herald resigned and was replaced by his son, William E. Horner, Jr. the term expires January, 1967.

Directors whose terms expired are: Mrs. Anderson, John W. Harden of John W. Harden Associates, C. A. McKnight of the Charlotte Observer, McPherson, E. A. Resch of the Chatham News and Mrs. Swindell.

Foundation Treasurer, Donald J. Chipman, presented a $17,204.71 check for journalism education to the School of Journalism.

Journalism Dean Wayne A. Danielson said the money would be used primarily for graduate assistantships, the School of Journalism library and school publications.

Contributions to the Foundation last year totalled $21,830.60, a new record, Mr. Chipman said. The Foundation, organized by Tar Heel newspapermen in 1949, has assets valued at $253,922.05 as of Dec. 31.

Alliance Francaise Winner Will Be Named Feb. 19

The name of Alliance Francaise's sixth scholarship winner will be announced at the club's annual masqueade ball Reb. 19 at the Elk's Club on the Chapel Hill - Durham Boulevard.

All elementary and high school French teachers in the public schools of North Carolina are eligible to apply for the scholarship which provides for a summer's study and travel in France. Deadline for application is Feb. 10. Inquiries should be made to Mrs. Charlotte Huse, 734 Gimghoul Rd., Chapel Hill. Around 30 applications have already been received.

Valued at a minimum of $1,000, the scholarship is financed by contributions from patrons and sponsors, and proceeds from the benefit ball. Theme of this year's festivities will be "Mardi Gras a Go-Go" and decorations will suggest a dignified discotheque.

Highlights of the ball will be a Grand March with judging of costumes and awarding of prizes, and the presentation of this year's scholarship winner. Ray Olsen and his orchestra will play for the 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. event.

Alliance Francaise was organized in 1958 to promote better Franco - American cultural relations. The annual benefit ball was instituted as a major project in 1961. Membership now totals 100 and is composed of townspeople, students and faculty interested in the French culture.

UNC French Professor George Daniel is president of Alliance Francaise and is in charge of the ball. His committee is composed of Mrs. Huse, vice - president; Mrs. Walter Arndt and Prof. Indra Chakravarti, secretaries; and Mrs. Ernest Craige, treasurer.

Television Today

7:00 The Big Picture
7:30 The Christophers
7:45 Gospel Caravan
8:15 Musical Meditations
8:30 This is the Life
9:00 TV Gospel Time
9:30 Bullwinkle Show
10:00 Beany and Cecil
10:30 Peter Potamus
11:00 Light Unto My Path
11:30 Bread of Life
12:00 Discovery
12:30 Oral Roberts COMMUNISM VS. CHRISTIANTY
1:00 Church of our Fathers
1:30 The Circuit Rider
2:00 NBA Basketball
4:00 American Sportsman
5:00 Family Theater: HELLCATS OF THE NAVY: Ronald Reagan
6:30 Gidget
7:00 Voyage to the Bottom
8:00 The F.B.I.
9:00 Sunday Night Movie: 3 FACES OF EVE
11:00 ABC News
11:15 ABC Scope

WRAL (Ch. 5)

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

MAN — 4:00 p.m. — Bing Crosby fishes for marlin off the Florida coast; and Peter Fonda hunts caribou in Newfoundland.

GIDGET — 6:30 p.m. — Gidget meets boy-friend Jeff's parents for the first time, under embarrassing circumstances.

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA—7:00 p.m. — An enormous whale swallows an underwater nuclear device and heads for the nearby Presidential yacht, sending the Seaview into a desperate chase.

THE F.B.I. — 8:00 p.m. — Inspector Erskine assumes the identity of an American diplomat who has agreed to spy for the Chinese Communists, hoping to lure the chief spy to this country.

THE SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE — 9:00 p.m. — "The Three Faces of Eve" . . . Joanne Woodward stars in this true dramatic study of a psychologically disturbed woman.

WTVD Ch-11)

6:30 Journey "The Smokies"
7:00 Davey & Golaith
7:15 News of the Church
7:30 The Bob Poole Show
8:30 Gospel Singing Jubilee
9:30 Jungle Theater "The Manhunt"
11:00 Insight
11:30 Exploring
12:00 Fury
12:30 Face The Nation
1:00 Flicka
1:30 Tennessee Tuxedo
2:00 Amateur Hour
2:30 NBC Sports In Action
3:30 Bob Hope Golf
5:00 Mr. Ed
5:30 Camp Runamuck
6:00 Twentieth Century
6:30 Please Don't Eat Daisies
7:00 Lassie
7:30 My Favorite Martian
8:00 Ed Sullivan
9:00 Bonanza
10:00 Wackiest Ship
11:00 CBS Sunday News
11:15 TBA

Insurance
Estates
Annuities
"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"
William M. Buell
The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company
121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-6966 Res. 968-6822

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographing
150 E. Franklin
Over Sutton's Drugs
942-2255
Xerox

WANT ADS

AVAILABLE IMMFDIATELY: Fully furnished house on Airport Rd. to share with female. Separate bedroom. Contact Sloan Kinnebrew, 942-4401 after 6 p.m.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air-conditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. $80 per mo. Also: New 2 bedroom 20'x50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

APARTMENT TO SHARE: Roommate preferably male, wanted for new 4 room Carrboro apartment. $45 plus utilities. Geoffrey Stein, 223 Hillcrest Ave. 929-6072.

FOR SALE: 1964 VW — EXcellent condition. Call 544-1651 Durham.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR
FOR FEBRUARY

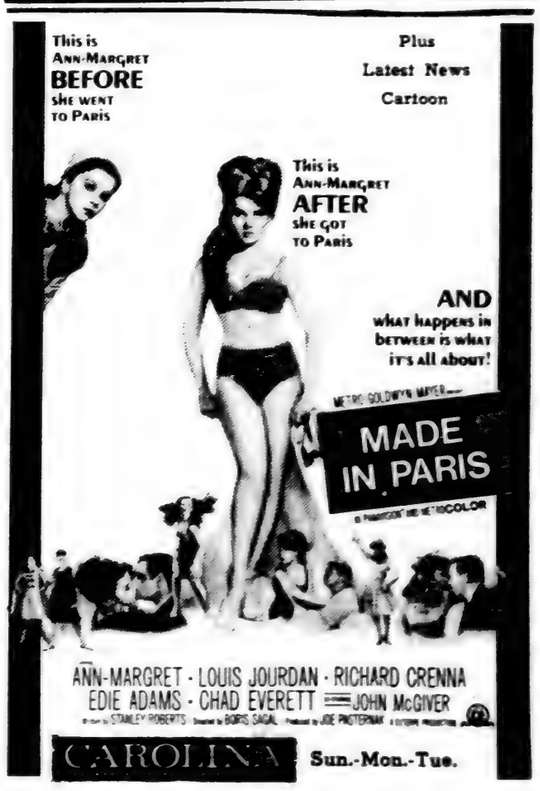
MERCURY Too near sun for observation
VENUS Rising shortly before sun in Capricornus
MARS Visible in SW briefly after sunset
JUPITER Visible in SW until after midnight
SATURN Low in SW at sunset
MOON Full, 5th; Last ¼, 12th; New, 20th; First ¼, 28th

AT THE MOREHEAD PLANETARIUM
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Throughout February
ZODIAC
Skyway of Celestial Activity

Daily at 8:30 P.M.
Saturdays at 11, 1, 3, 4 and 8:30
Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30

Write for School Program Schedule



North Carolina News Roundup

ACC Tourney Sold Out

RALEIGH (AP) — The 13th annual Atlantic Coast Conference basketball Tournament scheduled March 3-5 at N. C. State's Reynolds Coliseum is sold out.

All the seats in the 12,000-seat arena were gone before any tickets were put on public sale, said Tournament Manager Willis Casey.

The Coliseum was divided into eight sections with each ACC school getting the tickets in one section in a plan set up by the ACC basketball committee. The ACC schools were to handle their allotment of tickets through their own box offices.

In the past, tickets which were not sold by the various schools were returned to the Reynolds coliseum boxoffice for public sale. This year all the tickets were sold by the schools and none returned for public sale.

This is the first time in the history of the ACC that a sell-out has occurred without a public sale.

This is the last year the tourney will be held in Raleigh. Next year it will be played in Greensboro where the coliseum has 3,000 fewer seats.

Moore Faces Busy Week

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore will attend swearing-in ceremonies for members of the State Supreme Court Monday afternoon.

Associate Justice R. Hunt Parker will be sworn in as chief justice, succeeding E. B. Denny, who is retiring. Superior Court Judge J. Will Pless will be sworn in as an associate justice replacing Justice Parker.

The governor will attend another swearing-in ceremony Wednesday afternoon when William F. Marshall Jr. takes the oath as a member of the State Industrial Commission.

He will speak at the winter meeting of the State Board of Conservation and Development at 1 p.m. Sunday in Salisbury, to the industry appreciation dinner sponsored by the Shelby Lions Club at 7 p.m. Tuesday, and at the annual meeting of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce at 7 p.m. Friday.

On Monday, the governor will attend a meeting in his office of the Executive Committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees which will decide whether a Marxist spokesman, Herbert Aptheker, shall be allowed to speak at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

On Tuesday at 11 a.m., the governor will greet Miss Nancy Bernard of Lubbock, Tex., who is 1966 Maid of Cotton. Moore will preside over a meeting of the Council of State at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday and his weekly news conference is set for 10 a.m. Thursday.

On Saturday, the governor will present the award of the National Apple Institute to Miss Mary Cornwell of Waynesville, home economics agent. The presentation will be held at the western executive mansion in Asheville.

Goldberg On VOA

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U. N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg opposed today a coalition government for South Viet Nam that would include the Communist's National Liberation front (Viet Cong) now in rebellion against Saigon.

In a radio (Voice of America) interview recorded here, Goldberg remarked that groups in South Viet Nam include not only the front — the political agency of the Viet Cong — but also Buddhists, the Cao Dai, Montagnards and others.

Asked if the United States was urging South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky to consider coalition with these groups, he replied:

"We have not done so because there is no evidence that the people of South Viet Nam desire a coalition government betwen those who are attempting to subvert it . . . we learned from bitter experience in World War II that these so-called prearranged coalition governments do not represent the will of the people. We are not ready to repeat that episide."

Goldberg said that the Saigon government already reflects various South Vietnamese groups, but the United States is ready for the South Vietnamese people to determine by free choice what their government should be.

He said the Viet Cong represent "about one-half of one per cent of the people of South Viet Nam," and "in territory, they represent one-fifth of the population, while the government represents four-fifths."

The U. S. Ambassador said the U. N. Security Council discussion of the Viet Nam war this week showed a "broad consensus" for a new Geneva Peace Conference on Viet Nam.

The U. S. Ambassador said the U. N. Security Council discussion of the Viet Nam war this week showed a "broad consensus" for a new Geneva Peace Conference on Viet Nam.

Asked about the role of the Viet Cong at such a conference, he said the governments represented "could determine whether various persons may be heard." But he added that undoubtedly "the views of the Viet Cong could be represented" if there is a desire for peace on the part of North Viet Nam.

Belgium Faces Doctors' Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) —King Baudouin declined to accept the resignation of Premier Pierre Harmel's coalition government today and Belgium's doctors immediately announced they would go on strike at midnight tomorrow.

The doctors rejected appeals by both the King and Prime Minister for a truce and said they were maintaining their decision to strike unless the government modifies the state-operated health insurance system and increases fees paid to doctors and dentists.

Baudouin, in a stern message to the coalition government of Socialists and Social Christians, urged it to make a last effort toward finding a solution to the problem and then "to submit this without delay to parliament approval."

The King's message, read by Harmel to newsmen, added: "It is up to the parliamentary majority which once gave you its confidence to judge whether it can and must divide itself today, opening a crisis which is known in advance and which possible incidences on public order cannot be measured."

President's Hawaii Trip Steals Senate Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson's efforts to darn up the torrent of senatorial criticism of his Viet Nam policies appear likely to be only temporarily successful.

The President's flight to Hawaii to review with South Vietnamese and American officials for the time being has dimmed the bright light of publicity in which his critics were firing their salvos.

His direction to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, not to testify in public sessions has denied some Senate Foreign Relations Committee members the opportunity to air publicly their differences with these top-level strategists.

His decision to have Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former ambassador to Saigon and a Presidential adviser, accompany him to Honolulu left the free-swinging committee without an administration advocate at whom to direct cross-fire Monday.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who disagreed with Johnson's decision to resume the bombing of North Viet Nam, offered the administration a chance to state its case first—subject, of course, to critical interrogation.

When McNamara was asked to testify Monday, he begged off because of a previous House engagement. He suggested Taylor for the spot. Taylor agreed, but Johnson nullified that arrangement by including the general in the Hawaiian trip.

The State Department is reported to have suggested U. Alexis Johnson, Deputy Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs, as a Tuesday witness. But the President wanted Johnson to go along to Hawaii, too.

Practically no one concerned credits all of these Presidentia actions to happenstance. The general feeling in the Senate is that Johnson moved to lower the heat being directed at him through his associates by taking them off the firing line.

But the expected pause in criticism from those who fear the President may be taking irrevocable steps which might lead to all-out war in Asia may be relatively brief.

The foreign relations group will resume its public hearings Tuesday with retired Gen. James M. Gavin on the stand. Gavin has said the United States should stand fast in areas it now holds, enclaves in which it has an air base, a seaport and troops.

He has said the bombing of North Viet Nam "had to be resumed," but expressed hope that the United States would not be "entralled into bombing a major city."

Gavin will be followed to the stand by George Kennan, former state department expert on Communist affairs, who is critical of Johnson's course in Viet Nam.

It is unlikely the Senators can compete for public attention with the flow of Presidential news from Hawaii in the three-day period Johnson will be there. After that the committee must shut up shop because of a Lincoln Day vacation the Senate is taking.

The President will be presented then with a five-day cease-fire, even though that may be broken by some individual sniping.

But when the Senators come back for business on Feb. 15, the lid will be off for a resumption of attacks on Presidential policy.

Yale Beats Harvard Coed(!) In Challenge Jack Match

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The latest round in the battle of the sexes was fought Friday when the male managing editor of the Yale Daily News trounced his female counterpart on the Harvard Crimson in a game of jacks.

John Rothchild, outfitted in a tuxedo for the occasion, hardly worked up a sweat as he went all the way from onesies to tensies in only fire tries.

He repeated this feat using the more difficult "eggs in a basket" method while Miss Linda McVeigh was still working on her first sixies.

The match was the result of Miss McVeigh's being appointed the first female managing editor of the Harvard student newspaper.

In challenging Miss McGeigh to the traditionally female sport, Rothchild had said, "I suspect that you, like other fair sex cohorts, have become so good at being male that you could beat me easily in any sort of wrestling or drinking bout. So I challenge you at your weakest point—feminity."

The entrance of Miss McVeigh into the jacks ring was heralded by a troup of young boys distributing balloons to the approximately 20 observers.

Rothchild was seconded by his paper's executive editor, Winthrop Conrad, who presented Miss McVeigh with two sets of jacks and balls on a silver platter.

Miss McVeigh chose the set closest to her for the competition, but later claimed her ball was defective and the second jacks set was brought into play.

Midway through the contest, after Rothchild had reached tensies for the first time and was preparing for "eggs in a basket," Miss McVeigh predicted "I'm going to get wiped."

When the final whistle was blown by the referee, eight-year-old Polly Prelinger of New Haven, and Rothchild was declared the winner, the partisan audience of Yale students broke into a spirited rendition of the Yale fight song.

When asked about the results of the match, Miss McVeigh said, "I don't think the loss makes me any less feminine; it just proves that John is more feminine."

The Radcliffe junior became more kindly disposed toward her former opponent a few minutes later, however, when he demonstrated his masculinity by kissing her several times, presumably for the benefit of cameramen.

After this sportsmanlike demonstration, Rothchild issued a statement through his second which read: "I won the jacks match but my truthful admission is I lost the war."

Mississippi Governor 'Caught' In Liquor Raid

JACKSON, Miss. — (AP) — Tuxedo-clad Gov. Paul Johnson and the cream of Mississippi society watched helplessly as sweating sheriff's deputies lugged cases of illegal liquor from the Jackson country club.

Just the day before Thursday night's surprise raid, Johnson had appeared before the legislature and condemned "the open violation of our prohibition laws."

The Governor had in mind repeal of prohibition in the nation's last "dry" state.

Tom Shelton, Hinds County's chief deputy sheriff, believed the laws should be enforced as long as they were on the books.

Shelton and his ax wielding helpers converged on the country club, where the Governor and Jackson society were toasting Junior League Carnival Ball king and queen.

While startled society matrons and busines leaders watched, the deputies uncovered case after case of expensive liquors.

"Paul, can't you do something about this?" said a woman in a full length mink to the Governor.

"I made my stand, I took my chance," replied Johnson. The Governor left the scene but some patrons of the club argued with the officers.

"I knew they had been selling the stuff for some time," Shelton said later. "But I was waiting for the right time."

"I didn't know the Governor was coming until shortly after I got there. A bank president asked me if I knew the Governor was coming. I replied, 'I knew it' because I did. Right then."

Shelton, often called the "untouchable" by this capital city's club owners and bootleggers, said the raid had nothing to do with the Governor's speech urging the legislature to pass local option liquor law. As Johnson left, Shelton's deputies were carrying out the liquor in case lots through the main ballroom.

"Look, they're bringing us more," one reveler shouted as the deputies started through the large room.

Mississippi law officers in the past reportedly have supplied "society events" with leftovers from confiscated whisky.

'Great Imposter' Now In Missouri Living As Monk

WIEN, Mo. (AP) — Ferdinand Waldo Demara, widely known as "The Great Imposter," has been living in a monastery in this tiny northern Missouri Hamlet since Thanksgiving.

"I admised Father Joseph Starmann, the founder, of my background and that this would happen," Demara said of his discovery today.

He is known in the monastery as Brother Frederick. The monastery was founded in 1964 as an interfaith community known as the Brotherhood of Christian Unity.

Demara, 43, became the subject of a book and a movie called "The Great Impostor" through exploits as a trappist monk, a surgeon in the Canadian Navy during the Korean War, a warden in a Texas penitentiary, a college professor, a school master and a sheriff.

"In 1958, I suddenly realized that I had a particular talent to help people—to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ," Demara said.

Reds Delay Luna Shots In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russian people saw close-up pictures of the moon's surface for the first time last night, 24 hours after they were viewed by millions in the West. At the same time, Tass announced the Soviet Union's Luna 9 station was completing its research program on the moon.

In Britain, where four new photographs of the lunas surface were received, scientist Sir Bernard Lovell expressed doubt that this was the end for the first space station to transmit close-up pictures of the moon's surface to the earth.

"There is no reason to think that this is the end of the research with Luna 9 and it is possible there may be some other events," Lovell told newsmen at his Jodrell Bank Observatory in England. "It is inconceivable that this should be all, because this system is working superbly."

Russians saw two pictures of the lunar surface in a special Moscow television broadcast. A commentator, describing the photographs, said they were trasmitted Friday. Thus they were the same as those received in Jodrell bank and distributed around the world 24 hours before.

But Anatoly A. Blagonravov, chairman of the commission for exploration and use of outer space, said there was distortion in the British photographs. He said in an interview with Tass that they were shrunken by about 2.5 times because Jodrell Bank "did not take into consideration all factors."

Tass said he expressed surrpise that "certain motives of a sensational nature" apparently played a role.

Lovell had expressed the belief Friday that Luna 9 would transmit photographs for 14 days — until its landing area had turned away from the sun and into darkness.

The moon station's solar cells, which convert the sun's rays into energy, provide the power for Luna 9's cameras and radio transmitters.

Lovell reported that Luna 9 began transmissiong at 4:41 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time (11:41 a.m., EST) and stopped at 5:47 p.m., (12:47 p.m., EST) after sending four photographs. Then at 6:50 p.m. (1:50 p.m. EST) the station transmitted a signal not heard before but it launched Monday and made its soft landing Thursday night.

Moscow television began showing the first two moon pictures in a special program that went on the air at 10 p.m. (2 p.m., EST). No mention was made on the program of the Luna 9's research program coming to an end.

The television commentator said Luna 9 is located at the Eastern edge of the Sea of Storms near the lunar equator.

Veterans Protest Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of war veterans and reservists turned up at the White House today to turn in their discharge papers as a protest against the war, but found no one to take them.

White House officials declined to accept the bundle of papers and guards at the White House gate would not let the veterans leave them behind.

The return of the service papers was intended as the highlight of a demonstration by a group called Veterans and Reservists to End the War in Viet Nam.

About 65 men and few women, most of them from New York City, paraded in freezing weather in front of the White House for about an hour before learning they would not be able to leave their papers. They then withdrew to a park across the street for a meeting.

Afterward, the veterans returned and made another attempt to persuade White House guards to accept their discharge papers. They were turned down again.

About 200 other pickets in a separate line supported the veterans, carrying signs calling for an end to the bombing of North Viet Nam, meetings with the Viet Cong and a withdrawal of U. S. troops from South Viet Nam.

Keith Lampe, 34, of New York, one of the organizers of the veterans demonstration, said the purpose of returning the discharge papers was to say to President Johnson "we no longer want the war fought in our names." He told newsmen further attempts would be made in the future to turn the papers over to the White House.

Earthquake Strikes Greece

ATHENS (AP) — A predawn earthquake struck north central Greece Friday, killing one person, injuring 20 seriously and leaving hundreds, perhaps thousands, homeless.

The Greek government declared the area from Larisa in northern Greece south to Karpenision in a state of emergency.

Greek military rescue units raced to reach badly hit villages before nightfall over snow-covered roads were reported blocked by landslides caused by the sharp tremors that hit just after 4 a.m. more than 20 tremors had been felt up to noon, and lighter ones continued into the afternoon and night.

Supplies from the Atlantic Alliance air base in Larisa were being flown to the area.

Michael Galinos, Minister of Social Welfare, hurried to the area by helicopter to coordinate operations.

A ministry spokesman said hundreds would have to spend the night in the open unless tents could be distributed in time.

Kardhitsa police said residents of surrounding villages appeared to be stunned as they stumbled through ruins of their one-story farm dwellings. Livestock roamed unattended as villagers took refuge in schools and churches.

Luna 9 May Cause Gold Rush To Moon

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Russia's moon-landed Luna 9 spacecraft may be sitting on a gold mine.

The sharply defined surface pictures transmitted by Luna 9 show a glassy volcanic lava bed like many found in California, Lunar Geologist Harold Masursky said today.

A study of the pictures seems to prove beyond doubt that volcanoes have exploded over vast areas of the moon and may still be active in some sectors, Masursky said.

Masursky works with the astrogeology branch of the U. S. Geological Survey. His group is helping on advance planning for the American effort to land astronauts on the moon.

He said the lava flow type indicated in the pictures often is associated with veins of gold and other metals on earth.

The veins result when boiling metal is thrust into lava fissures from the earth's hot, pressurized interior.

Masursky suggested the same thing may have happened on the moon.

He said it's possible that men may be mining gold on the moon.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS
SEE US for MONEY! Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.
Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

HOW COLLEGE STUDENTS VIEW THE DRAFT
Even administrators of the draft admit its inequities and imperfections. Many question its fairness. A special section in the February ATLANTIC considers all sides: two college men view the draft in Taking a McNamara Fellowship and How to be Patriotic and Live With Yourself. A third article, Who Should Serve?, probes the dilemma and explores improvements and alternatives.
Also in this issue: In Defense of the Negro Colleges and Art and Anti-Art in Painting and Books.
Atlantic
THE DRAFT WHY PICK ME?
NOW ON SALE at your newsstand

All This Week in the Old Book Feature Case
A Scholarly Parson's Library on RELIGION
If you're interested in this field, we think there is a lot of real treasure for you here.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. State College Campus
FRI. FEB. 11
8:30 P. M.
The Years Greatest Attraction!
IN PERSON
Peter, Paul and Mary
ONE SHOW ONLY! ALL SEATS RESERVED!
Adm. $2.00, $2.50, $3.00. Adv. tickets on sale at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop and Village Pharmacy Camera Shop, Raleigh; RECORD BAR, CHAPEL HILL.

Enjoy BUFFET DINNER at the RANCH HOUSE
4 MEATS 6 VEGETABLES
6 SALADS BEVERAGE DESSERT
ALL YOU CAN EAT $2.95
— COME EARLY —

SEVEN ARTS PRODUCTIONS presents SAX ROHMER'S
THE FACE OF FU MANCHU
OBEY FU MANCHU ...OR EVERY LIVING THING WILL DIE!
TECHNICOLOR® · TECHNISCOPE® · A SEVEN ARTS PICTURES RELEASE
SUN.—MON.—TUES.
Varsity

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA
Sunday and Monday
BEEF NIGHTS
Rare Roast Beef, Thick Slice
Baked Potato with Sour Cream Dressing
Tossed Green Salad
Rolls and Butter
$1.25
Serving 5:00-7:15

Maryland Stops Tar Heels 'Cold,' 76-66

McGuire's Gamecocks Hit Carmichael Monday Night

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

Tar Heel fans of long standing will have one eye on the present and the other on the past Monday night when South Carolina coach Frank McGuire brings his Gamecocks to Carmichael Auditorium.

When Tar Heel fans think of great UNC basketball teams, the undefeated, national champion club of 1957 naturally comes to mind.

And Frank McGuire, who was head coach of the Tar Heels that season, was largely responsible for that club which posted 32 straight victories and a national championship win over the University of Kansas in the NCAA finas.

McGuire left the Tar Heel helm in 1961 after eight years as UNC head coach.

After a two-year absence from ACC basketball, McGuire returned as head coach at South Carolina last season.

This year's Gamecock five is showing that familiar McGuire touch of success. After a dismal 6-17 record last season, the Gamecocks have been in the thick of the ACC race this year. Included in their 8-5 overall record and 3-3 ACC mark is a 73-71 victory over the Duke Blue Devils — currently the nation's number one team.

McGUIRE

WALSH

Leading the Gamecock surge this season has been a nost of tall lettermen and sophomores.

The big South Carolina guns have been 6-9 Al Salvadori and 6-6 John Schroeder. But 6-8 Lyn Burkholder, 6-0 Charlie Farrell, 5-9 Jim Finnegan and 6-0 Earl Lovelace have made their contributions.

Outstanding sophomores nave been 6-4 Frank Standard, 6-1 Jack Thompson and 6-1 Skip Harlick. Other top reserves are 6-3 John Fairclough, 6-8 Skip Harlick and 6-2 Larry Womack.

But Frank McGuire will not be the only Gamecock employee familiar to Tar Heel fans.

Buck Freeman, who served with McGuire for many years at UNC, has re-joined his old boss at South Carolina.

Donnie Walsh, who was a senior guard for Coach Dean Smith in his first year as UNC head coach in 1962, is a South Carolina assistant coach. Walsh entered the UNC Law School and assisted with the freshman team before taking the South Carolina position.

"I guess you would say we will be the best-scouted club in the country when we play South Carolina here Monday Smith.

"Walsh has an intimate knowledge of our personnel from his long association," said Smith. "He also has looked at us personally about five times this season. I'm sure South Carolina has a good book on our tactics."

gesture is genuine, according been exactly idle in the scouting department. He was a personal spectator when South Carolina played Maryland and when the Gamecocks battled Wake Forest last Saturday night. He calls the South Carolina club a "dangerous one with good ball handling ability."

The Tar Heels will of course throw their one - two scoring punch of Bobby Lewis and Larry Miller against the Gamecocks. Lewis, averaging 29.3 points per game, is leading the conference in scoring. Miller, probably the outstanding sophomore in the AC, places third in the conference scoring with a 22.9 average.

Joining this fearsome duo will be Tom Gauntlett — who picked up 13 points in Thursday night's 115-87 breeze over Wake Forest. Also, 6-8 center Bob Bennett and guard John Yokley figure prominently in the Tar Heel game plan.

"Our approach to the South Carolina game is basic," said Smith. "We can't afford to make mistakes. We also must hit the boards hard."

In the rebounding department, Coach Smith plans to use junior center Mark Mirken more than usual. Mirken had his finest evening of the season against Wake Forest—hitting for 14 points and leading the club with 11 rebounds.

Good tickets are available for the game. Some 2,000 reserved seats are now on sale.

Lewis, Miller Pace ACC Scoring Chart

Player, School	G	P	Ave.
1. LEWIS, UNC	17	490	28.8
2. Long, WF	16	392	24.5
3. MILLER, UNC	17	387	22.7
4. Leonard, WF	16	359	22.4
5. Connelly, UVA	13	275	21.2
6. Marin, Duke	16	322	20.9
7. Verga, Duke	16	313	19.6
8. Helms, Clem.	16	295	18.4
9. Sutherland	15	258	17.2
10. Coker, NCS	15	252	16.8

Texaco Scholarships

Two juniors, Richard M. Forbis and Michael L. Marshall have been named recipients of Texaco Scholarships.

The scholarships are worth $675 a year and are given annually to juniors or seniors majoring in a field that could prepare them for work in the petroleum industry.

THE MAT-ING GAME — Or at least it seems that way in freshmen and varsity wrestling competition yesterday afternoon. The frosh rolled over Pembroke 22-6 while the varsity fell hard to West Virginia 26-2.

Five Minute Layoff Proves Disastrous

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

A five-minute scoreless spell by North Carolina in the latter stages of the first half provided Maryland's Terps with the margin they needed in a 76-66 victory over the Tar Heels.

The game, played before a sparse crowd in Maryland's Cole Field House, avenged an earlier 67-52 defeat by the Tar Heels.

Until that deadly cold spell, the Tar Heels had held the upper hand in the first half.

A jumper by Larry Miller with 17:35 left in the half broke a 2-1 Maryland lead and sent the Tar Heels ahead 3-2.

Although the score was tied four times, the Tar Heels did not lose that lead until the cold spell.

On three occasions, the Tar Heels enjoyed five-point advantages. A score by Bobby Lewis with 13:30 remaining gave them their first five-point advantage —14-9. Seconds later Tom Gauntlett's set shot made it 16-11. Later, Lewis made the score 18-13 in favor of the Tar Heels.

But then Maryland began their drive to the top. Jack Clark and Rick Wise connected to cut that margin to one point—18-17.

Reserve Mark Mirken connected for UNC with 8:50 remaining in the half to put the Tar Heels out front 20-17.

Then North Carolina could not buy a basket. In the next five minutes of play the Terps outscored UNC 12-0 to take a 29-20 advantage. With 3:50 remaining in the half, Bob Lewis broke the stalemate with a driving lay-up — making the score 29-22 in favor of Maryland.

But that seven point margin was as close as the Tar Heels could come in the first half. With two minutes remaining, Terp guard John Avery made the score 35-25 in favor of Maryland. Forward Gary Ward pushed the margin to twelve — 37-25 — with 1:30 remaining.

The Tar Heels did manage to cut that margin back to ten before the half ended, but the damage had been done.

A combination of factors caused that Maryland halftime advantage. One big factor was the play of Maryland guard John Avery. Avery, a 5-9 sophomore guard, pumped in 11 points in that first half and brought the ball down the court against the North Carolina press.

Another factor was the cold shooting hand of the Tar Heels. North Carolina, hitting 54 per cent of their shots all season long, could hit only 38 per cent of their attempts from the floor.

In the second half, the Tar Heels could never seriously threaten the Maryland advantage. Both teams had cold shooting hands. North Carolina could hit only one of seven attempts in those opening minutes while the Terps could hit only two of nine.

The biggest Tar Heels threat came with 5:30 remaining in the game with two Mark Mirken baskets cut the Maryland lead to seven at 62-55.

But more cold shooting and ball - handling errors nipped that surge. With 1:20 remaining, John Avery connected to push the Terps well out front 70-57. With 30 seconds left, forward Neil Brayton gave Maryland its largest lead of the day — 76-61.

Frosh Clout NCS Tankers; Win By 74-17

North Carolina's blazing hot frosh tankmen nixed a below-par performance due to sickness from leader Jim Edwards, and took all but one event in speed-boating past N. C. State's bewildered spashers 74-17 yesterday in Bowman Gray pool.

Edwards, who has battled common illness for most of the week, still managed first-place finishes in the 200-yard individual medley (1(9.5) and the 200-yard freestyle (0:4.5) to lead the scoring with 13 points and his team to its sixth straight win.

Dave Ball captured a first in the 200-yard freestyle (1:54.7) and second in the 500-yard freestyle (5:24.7) to tally 11 points, as did Randy Wade by winning the 200 butterfly and following Edwards in the 200 individual medley.

UNC's 400-yard medley relay quartet of Danneman, Behrman, Ferretti and Sanders took that opening event, (3:46.8), and the Dolphins built a 31-3 lead before State won as much as a second.

The only event which NCS garnered was the 200-yard breaststroke.

Coach Don Skakle Already Mapping UNC Tennis Plans

By BOB QUINCY

And suddenly it's spring. At least Don Skakle would have everyone think so.

Don, North Carolina's highly successful tennis coach, is already mapping plans for the coming campaign. His Tar Heel co-captains, Bronson Van Wyck and Ken Oettinger, have written letters to all varsity and freshman teams were undefeated last season," Oettinger and Van Wyck point out with pride. "Are we going to be ready to continu these streaks?"

If conditioning is the answer, the Tar Heels will go far. Skakle is as demanding as a Marine drill instructor when it comes to physical fitness.

"Preparing a boy to play demanding tennis is much different from getting him ready for say, football or basketball. He must have stamina, but he must be able to change directions quick and often without tiring," observes Skakle.

"My best conditioner is the side step," he reasons. "We do all of our drills on a 100-yard front. The player must go at full speed, left foot meeting right foot, then off again with the right foot. When we change direction at top speed—that's when the good ones shine."

Skakle says he can always spot unusual prospects from his favorite drill. They make the directional change effortlessly and without thinking. Their feet never tangle and jumble coordination.

"The good tennis player is much like a ballet dancer," says Skakle. "He makes difficult movements look easy. He shifts gears noiselessly. The split second he gains in his movements mean reaching balls that lesser coordinated players find unplayable."

Football coaches have found weight-lifting a boon to their conditioning programs. It fosters weight increase and arm-and-leg strength. Skakle has experimented with weights, but he no longer utilizes them.

"I don't find weights harmful to a tennis players," said Skakle, "but neither do I find them helpful. He watched the progress of players who had used weights for several years. We couldn't associate the use of weights with any specific improvements."

Running, push-ups, sit-ups and directional drills are the chief conditioners called upon by Skakle. Once the player is ready, constant court practice is the routine until the schedule begins.

"A tennis player only learns by playing men better than himself," opines the coach. "We work on the ladder system with any candidate free to work himself into a starting berth. However, the better tennis players usually have a background of tournament competition.

"If a player is able to compete in tournaments during the summer, he has a vast advantage over the opponent who has little tournament play. In a tournament the pressure is on. A player becomes acclimated to crowds and to unusual conditions. He learns from watching other top players. He makes the proper emotional adjustments."

Last spring Skakle's tennis team swept 20 opponents aside in recording the school's first unbeaten year since 1941.

COACH SKAKLE

Mark Mirken Has 'Finest Hour' Against Wake Forest

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

As if Wake Forest's battered and belabored Deacons didn't have enough to contend with in trying to stop the ACC's first and third highest scorers, North Carolina's "Mr. Chief" picked last Thursday night's Carmichael Auditorium fray to play the best game of his varsity career.

Mark Mirken, the 6-6 "sixth man" in pursuit of good fortunes for UNC's basketball program, entered the Wake game at his accustomed time — when center Bob Bennett hit foul trouble and needed rest — and stuck around for 21 minutes, which is his high log of playing time for the year. During that stretch, the Chief found the basket for 14 points and strong - armed a game - high total of 11 re bounds to help keep the Deacs in their place.

It was not the kind of outstanding performance that is to be expected only of All-Americans, but it was a highly gratifying sight to Coach Dean Smith, it gave Mark a lot of satisfaction — and the fans loved it.

Smith was delighted to see the strong man come through so well.

"There is no doubt but that this was Mark's best game for us," the Carolina coach commented. "He played excepwell in getting up for rebounds, and I thought his defense was fine too. He did a real good job for us when he went into the Ohio State game up in Columbus, and played well against Richmond and Florida State, but this game is tops.

"Mark is very much improved over last year, and even the earlier part of this year. He started slowly because he had to cut his weight from about 228 to 210. He was doing mostly running while the rest of the club scrimmaged during the fall. I would like to say that he made a great sacrifice in cutting his weight to what we prescribed for him, and that just shows how much he wants to play.

"He is strong and now he has become very aggressive," Smith pointed out. I think that he will continue to help us when we call on him."

Mark half - smiled and half - winced when reminded of the weight - cutting period through which he had to suffer.

"Cutting my weight was much harder than I had anticipated," he said. "I thought that if I stopped eating potatoes and dessert that that would do it. But for a long time I'd go in to eat with the guys and only eat a hamburger — no roll or anything — and drink a glass of water. I'd find myself starving later, but it was something that had to be done.

"I let my weight get way out of hand before school ended last spring. I got up to around 235 or 240. Then when practice time drew near, I was 228, and Coach Smith decided my best playing wight would be between 210 and 215. I worked toward that, and now that I'm down there it really makes a difference.

"The lost weight sure makes a difference in the way I feel out on the court. I feel that I'm considerably faster, and that helps when I have to switch off and guard a smaller, quicker man like Long or Leonard (WF's Paul and Bob). I'm by no means as fast or as quick as either of them," he smiled, "but I can stay with them better than I would have been able to before."

Mirken tallied the top point the Wake game, and smiling again, he said, "Yes, it felt pretty good to score some points."

He explained his role in that light: "When I go into a game, my job is not to go for the baskt. But I'm supposed to take the good shots, and in the Wake game I was open on the side a lot, so it was just natural to shoot."

Mirk converted five out of seven field shots which attests to his good shooting percentage.

"I have to take those five and six-foot shots, because it takes a lot of pressure off Lewis and Miller up front. If I don't take the open shots, the defense will not think I'm an offensive threat — which I'm not, really — and they will gang up on Bob and Larry.

"I feel real good now, physically," Mirken concluded, "and I just hope I can continue to contribute."

For Mark Mirken, starring roles have been about as common as an unperturbed feline in a dog kennel. But the guy they call "Mr. Chief" came on strong last Thursday, and after a long period of sacrifice, he looks like a sound bet for contribution from here on out.

MARK MIRKEN

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

'Best Ever' Frosh Take On Pembroke

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

It will be "the best freshman team ever in North Carolina" against an outfit that is "not having a real good year" when UNC's lossless frosh entertain Pembroke State's Indians Monday night in Carmichael Auditorium at 6 p.m.

At least, that's the way Pembroke State Coach Lacey Gane views the meeting between his 7-10 club and Carolina's 9-0 first year men.

Speaking from his home by telephone yesterday, Gane said that the main headache this year has been that his team has had to play strong Carolinas Conference opposition like Guilford and Catawba. "Opposition like that, for a small school like us," he said, "is not conducive to a whole lot of victories.

"This trouble has been compounded by the fact that my best players this year are mainly freshmen and sophomores, and their inexperience shows up at times.

"Then, too, this is my first year here. We use the Kentucky type of offense because we have a relatively small team, and it has taken some getting used to."

"From all the evidence that I have been able to gather," he continued, "Dean (Smith, UNC head coach) has himself the best freshman team ever in North Carolina. They are awfully big overall. I just hope we can come up there and make a good showing. I've known Dean Smith and Larry Brown for a long time, and am looking forward to the game and seeing them again."

Gane starts a five-group which measures comparatively smaller than the team he will play here Monday. And, as he said, they are young without a senior who figures prominently.

The middle man is 6-6 sophomore Joe Gallagher. The forwards are junior Mal Porter (6-5) and frosh Henry Byrd (6-5). At guard, he goes with 5-11 freshman Carl Peed and 5-10 junior Mike Heath. The sixth man is 6-4 frosh forward Wally Barrett.

In their last outing, the Tar Babies muddled through a slack performance which broke a 19-day exam layoff in registering an 80-54 win over Wake Forest.

It marked the return to action of guard Dick Grubar, who had been sidelined with a knee injury for a game-and-a-half before the long break. Dick had a pretty good overall game, although he hit below his 15-point average with 11.

Bill Bunting, whose last game before exams was his best, was also sub-par.

For SALE or RENT
at Varley's
Formal Wear
RENTALS FOR WEDDINGS
AND ALL
FORMAL OCCASIONS
Varley's Mens Shop
Since 1938 Ph. 942-3673

Fraternity and Sorority
RUSH
WHAT could be more enjoyable with a glass of ? punch than an Hors d'oeuvres table set from Hickory Farms.

JUST CHECK THESE:
- ☐ Beef Stick
- ☐ Cheese Ball
- ☐ Salami
- ☐ Cheese Sticks
- ☐ Sesami Crackers
- ☐ Smoked Cheese
- ☐ In fact 126 different varieties of cheese

You may have more rushees than you expected and a few extra loafing Brothers, but can you think of a better way to keep the "HOT LIST" around.

We at Hickory Farms wish you the "Biggest" and "Bestest" in 1966.

9:30-9 M-F 9:30-6 Sat. 1-6 on Sunday

HICKORY FARMS
Eastgate Shopping Center

It's As Easy As 1-2-3

HAL HOLBROOK is seen transforming himself with a brush into a wrinkled Mark Twain prior to a stage appearance. Holbrook will present his re-creation of the American humoris t on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall. His show, "Mark Twain Tonight" has toured 250 cities in the United States. For 22 weeks from 1959-60 the show was the top off-Broadway attraction in New York. Holbrook has visited friends of the author and persons who have heard him lecture and studied pictures of Twain in his 70's in an effort to be as accurate as possible in his presentation. The stage is set with an old fashioned lecturn and a book covered desk with a chair from the 1890's. During the evening Holbrook ranges from the humorous observations of Twain to selections from Huckleberry Finn and recollections of his life.

Hal Holbrook Presents Mark Twain Recreation

When Graham Memorial brings Hal Holbrook with his uncanny recreation of Mark Twain to the stage of Memorial Hall on Feb. 9 at 8 p.m., local audiences will be seeing what has emerged as one of the perenially popular attractions on the American concert scene.

Since his first tour in 1959, Holbrook has played 250 cities (besides Europe and the Near East) in every state of the union except Alaska and Hawaii.

In each instance critical and audience reaction has been overwhelmingly ecstatic.

For 22 weeks during the 1959-60 season Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight" was the outstanding off-Broadway hit in New York, and it might have run for a year longer had not prior committments prevented Holbrook's remaining longer in New York.

The stage is set," with a high, old-fashined lecturn, a desk with a topply mound of books and a cut-glass pitcher of water, a McKinley-era chair. Into this setting shuffles the spry, white-maned humorist in the white suit.

"Involuntary tremors ripple the stiffened fingers, the lower jaw nibbles spasmodically at wisps of tobacco-stained mustache, the shoulders twitch like marionettes in the invisible hands of time. But a pagan glint of eye suggests that this is a life less spent than well spent.

Then the voice, cracked but not ruined, speaks, and the evening begins showering comic sparks."

Holbrook has spent many years perfecting his performance as Mark Twain. He has visited friends of the author, studied photographs of Twain in his seventies, and made every effort to keep his impersonation as accurate as indefatigable research can make it.

Every word that he speaks on stage is Twain's. Every

But Coach Smith has not to the best recollection of people who knew the celebrated humorist or attended one of his lectures.

During the course of each performance, Holbrook proceeds from the humorous-profound observations that were the author's trademark to selections from "Huckleberry Finn" and reminiscences of a rich, full and zestfull life.

Internship Applications Due Feb. 15

College students interested in attending the 1966 N. C. State Government Summer Internship program have less than two weeks in which to apply for admission.

Applications must be mailed to the Institute of Government here before Feb. 15.

Gov. Dan K. Moore announced the program recently at which time he said 25 N. C. college students will be selected to participate in the 11-week summer program.

Students will attend an orientation program and then work for ten weeks in selected state departments while attending evening classes on the North Carolina State campus.

To be eligible, students must have satisfactorily completed three years of college, must be residents of North Carolina, and must be currently enrolled in a college or university either within or outside the state.

The State Internship Program will begin June 7 and continue through August 19, 1966. Students will be paid $75.00 a week while employed.

The Institute of Government will be responsible for administering the internship program. The Institue has been participating in the program since it was established in 1962.

Students will be selected for the porgram by a committee including prominent professors of political science teaching in North Carolina colleges and universities.

City Expanding At Rapid Pace

Chapel Hill is no longer the sleepy little community it was 25 years ago. It is today, in fact, one of the fastest growing cities in "Tarheelia."

The last five years have seen Chapel Hill's population increase 36 per cent, from 12,573 in 1960 to 17,128 in 1965. These figures do not include UNC's enrollment. An even greater rate of increase is expected during the next five years.

Joe Augustine, executive-director of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchant's Association and Chamber of Commerce, attributes Chapel Hill's growth to three main factors:

(1) The expanding University
(2) The Research Triangle
(3) The area's retirement attraction.

Chapel Hill's first annexation in 75 years added 1,375 persons to the population in June of 1963. The annexed areas included Lake Forest, Eastgate, and Ridgefield.

"There is really no way," Augustine says, "to accurately predict future growth pattens in the Chapel Hill area because the location of a multi-million dollar facility in the Research Triangle could alter them over night. The next 12 to 15 years should hold a far greater rate of growth than the past."

Research Lab To Open Here

A research laboratory for improving biochemical tests used to detect brain-damaging disorders in newborn babies will be in operation here early this year.

The Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has approved $96,600 for the first nine months of a proposed five - year research program to be known as "Automated Detection of Neurometabolic Disorders."

Dr. George K. Summer, pediatric biochemist, and Dr. John B. Hill, pharmacologist, both of the UNC School of Medicine, are co-directors of the project.

One of their major tasks will be to adapt existing biochemical tests for inherited metabolic disorders to automation in order that the tests can be used to screen large numbers of babies.

Dr. Summer and Dr. Hill have been successful already in adapting a method of detecting phenylketonuria (an inherited disorder which may lead to mental retardation) to automation.

Prof Must Do Research In Wire Cage Each Night

Physicist Dr. C. V. Briscoe and his graduate assistant Robert Hodder work in a cage, a six foot square copper screen cage. They work there between 12 midnight and six a.m., turning dials, taking notes, and watching a small needle zig-zag over a long roll of paper.

Dr. Briscoe is a professor here, and this cage work is part of his research for the University and the National Science Foundation. Mr. Hodder is working toward his Ph.D., and he does most of the night work.

They work in this cage during the sleeping hours because the measurements need to be extemely precise and the machines are very sensitive, registering almost any electric activity; so as much of the television, radio and flourescent bulb interference as possible must be eliminated.

The cage screening takes much of the interference, but the work is done at night to screen out more — there is much less electrical static at night than during the day.

Dr. Briscoe's research concerns superconductivity — a characteristic that some cooled metals show which allows electricity to flow through them indefinitely and without any resistance. (Minus 450 degrees Fahrenheit is what Dr. Briscoe calls 'cool.')

If an electric current is put through this special metal, that current will travel essentially forever, as long as it has a place to go — you can give it a place to go by making the metal circular so the current travels in circles.

This perpetual motion within a metal may be very useful for computers, says Dr. Briscoe; especially since it wouldn't take much energy and is very small.

Since computers work on what is known as the binary system — a number system with only two numbers—these two numbers would be represented by whether the current is flowing or not.

UNC Chemists Pass Time Playing With 'Hot' Mud

Chemists at Carolina are finding how fast radioactivity moves in mud. To do this Dr. Henry Thomas, UNC chemistry professor, and Adrien Cremers, a post - doctorate research associate, are working with a special clay gel, or as Dr. Thomas says, "a good clean mud."

Dr. Thomas is just completing research for the Atomic Energy Commission on the handling of radioactive wastes, and especially on how quickly radioactive particles will travel through the soil if they escape.

The problem is: What is the United States going to do with its 90 million gallons of high level radioactive wastes? These wastes are about as radioactive as 200 tons of radium.

Present disposal methods, filling huge concrete containers with the 'junk,' has received much intelligent criticism. This type of storage takes up too much space and the safety is somewhat dubious, Dr. Thomas says. Some other system is needed, a more out of the way system. One proposed substitue is to put the wastes far underground.

In order to put them underground, however, you have to know how the stuff is going to behave there. This is Dr. Thomas' problem.

The way these men check how fast ions move through this mud is by putting some of the mud in a tube with a radioactive tracer; then they measure how fast the radioactivity moves out into another solution which is not radioactive.

How fast does it move?

"It all depends," says Dr. Thomas, "on what is the source of the radioactivity — very, very slowly for some of the more dangerous things such as plutonium and strontium; for others, nearly as fast as the water flows through the soil."

Francis de Friess, who as radiation safety officer at UNC has to dispose of much radioactive waste, explains the practical end of the problem: "We are having a handling problem with the stuff," he says, "I bury several cubic feet a month just from research at the University, and that doubles ever year. We need new ways of getting rid of it safely."

For the University Student

Special Speed Courses in
TYPEWRITING and/or SHORTHAND

Afternoon or Evening Classes Begin
February 7, 1966

Call or Write for Information Today

Town Classes Secretarial College
159½ E. FRANKLIN STREET
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
P. O.BOX 615 TELEPHONE 942-4797

Coming Campus Events

TODAY

The Hillel Foundation will hold Sabbath Evening Services at 7 p.m.

Students are cordially invited to attend a reception in honor of the new Associate Minister at the University Baptist Church, Reverend Charles Midkiff and his wife Lelia, 6:15-7:30 p.m. at the University Baptist Church.

HELP. Yes, help is the theme of this Sunday's Supper Social at the Hillel House. Dinner, dancing, and music will be on the agenda. Please call for reservations between 3 and 5 p.m. on Sunday.

On Sunday morning at 11 a.m. in the chapel of the Wesley Foundation 214 Pittsboro St., there will be a service of worship for the University Community. Robert L. Johnson will deliver the sermon.. "The Church and the New Technology.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m. Sunday Afternoon Symposium will feature Two Interpretations of the Place of War in the Conscience of Americans. John Wayne Lasley, Chapel Hill attorney and Raymond H. Dawson, Associate Professor of Political Science at UNC, will be responded to by students, Robert Pitts, Paul Dickson, and Eric Van Loon.

The S. P. Advisory Board will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room.

There will be a most important Budget Committee meeting Tuesday night in RP III. Tom White and Dick Sayre ask that all members plan to attend.

Westminister Fellowship presents a panel on "Fraternities and Education: Partners or Competitors?" Panel members are Dr. Herbert Bodman, chairman, Faculty Committee; Robert Kepner, Assistant to Dean of Men; Wyatt McCallie, Chi Psi; and Reverend Tom Miller as moderator of the panel discussion which will be held at the Presbyterian Student Center at 6:30 p.m. Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

SPU will meet at 12 upstairs, Lenoir Hall

SDS will meet at 4 p.m. in RP I in Graham Memorial.

All members of the Murdoch Committee and all students interested in working with Mentally Retarded children at the Murdoch Center, are invited to attend a discussion and orientation meeting of the Murdoch work upstairs in the Y-Building at 7 p.m. Tuesday evening

MONDAY

WRC co-ordinating Board at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet at 4 p.m. in the Grail Room

I.S.B. meeting at 7:15 p.m. upstairs in the YMCA Bldg All members are asked to attend

The Student National Education Association will meet at 7 p.m. in room 08 Peabody The program is entitled "What Would You Do If . . . ?", and will consist of a panel discussion of professional ethics. All members are encouraged to attend.

SDS will meet at 7:30 p.m. in III Murphy. 0

APO Business Meeting in Delta Room of Chase Cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

Bright Lights, Big City

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — What do you think of when somebody says "Las Vegas?"

Bright lights and dancing girls, right? Blackjack, dice and slot machines, right? Freshets of liquor and free-flowing money, right?

That's not what the Las Vegas city fathers think of. Not out loud, anyway.

The city fathers think of Joshua trees and soft sunlight. Yep, and the water back of Hoover Dam.

Being so minded, they are having a little trouble trying to work out the design for a new city seal.

The present seal, 50 years old, features a Saguaro cactus, a Joshua tree and a Bubbling spring.

Recently some nitpicker pointed out that there isn't a natural Saguaro cactus in the entire state of Nevada. Never has been, either.

So the city fathers decided they needed a new seal. Such suggested motifs as a stripper couchant on a field of C-notes were ruled out at the outset.

The problem was turned over to a resident artists Dick Thompson. with instructions to come up with something classy in the outdoor landscape line.

Thompson's first effort combined a clutch of skyscrapers, a mountain-type locomotive, Hoover Dam and its reservoir, a Joshua tree and a Watusi dancer against a background of yellow sunlight, with the slogan "Entertainment Capital of the world."

That one drew a quick nix. Dancer and Slogan, the city commissioners decided, would have to go. "They didn't lend to the dignity of the community," a city official explained.

Also, the commissioners thought there should be an airplane in there somewhere maybe flying over the Dam, to lend a real modern touch.

Thompson reported today he was making progress on the revised version. Gone is the Watusi dancer. Gone is the slogan.

"I'm working on the plane, now," he said. "We're going with the buildings in the middle, the sun in the background and the tree on the right. It really looks pretty simple."

City manager Arthur Trelease was asked why the seal couldn't show at least a block or two of the famous Las Vegas strip of luxury hotel-casinos, where the action is.

"Why, all the big entertainment starts outside the city limits," said Trelease. "Those places are really in Clark County."

The Clark County seal is an atomic mushroom cloud.

COMMISSIONING CEREMONY — The three new Carolina graduates at left shown taking the oath of office into the U. S. Naval Research are (l to r) Thomas W. Wright, James S. Gorham, III, and Thomas M. Heritage, II. Administering the oath is Capt. Rex W. Warner, commanding officer of the NROTC unit and professor of naval science at UNC.

Pictures Of Space Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fact that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) wasn't tuned in to copy Russia's Luna 9 pictures isn't worrying American space and military experts.

For one thing, the Jodrell Bank receiver in Britain has been producing and making generally available high quality pictures picked up from the Russian vehicle's transmissions.

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF December 6th

Toom Toom

Luncheon Specialty
99c

Tuesday
Pepper Steak
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Wednesday
Baked Chicken
with Bercy Sauce
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Thursday
Braised Beef Tips
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Friday
CHOICE
Beef Parmagiana
Salad — Bread
or
Stuffed Flounder
Salad — Bread

Tuesday Night
7:00-8:30
ALL YOU CAN EAT
Spaghetti
with meat sauce
includes: one salad,
Bread, Tea or Coffee
$1.10

Thursday Night
Pizza Special
½ Price
Plain or Pepperoni
7:30-8:30

CLOSED MONDAY
104 W Franklin

Op Me Out

Imported
Pipes and Tobaccos

• Pouches • Humidors
• Accessories
VARLEY'S

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

ONLY $1.00 PLUS 35c HANDLING CHARGE

3 DAYS ONLY

GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD

Mon.-Tues.-Wed., Feb. 7, 8, 9

Hours: 10 AM—1 PM; 2 PM—5 PM Daily

• NO APPOINTMENT NEEDED • SELECTION OF SEVERAL POSES
• FULL POSE PORTRAIT • BABIES AND CHILDREN OF ALL AGES
• PORTRAIT DELIVERED AT STORE A FEW DAYS AFTER TAKEN
• SATISFACTION GUARANTEED • GROUPS $1.00 PER CHILD

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Beau Bells! Gaily scalloped bell-bottom hipsters with piping love-ties just below the knee. Brief little contrast-edged middy top, baring the midriff above scalloped contrast pipery. Fine nylon tricot, cut for carefree sleep ease, styled for charming loungery.

Colors:
Lemon Ice/Fern
Pink Bloom/Hibiscus
$8.00

KoKo's Lingerie

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill

MRC Meeting

The MRC will have a short meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday night in New East.

The Daily Tar Heel

"The South's Largest College Newspaper"

Weather

North Carolina's cold and snow is leaving, to be followed by warm, clear weather. The high today may reach 60.

Volume 74, No. 88 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

The Dying Village

'Victim Of Progress'

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer
First in a Series

Victory Village has become a victim of progress.

Another 13 units are scheduled to be closed down in June. Six more are on the tentative list.

The wooden structures, called Victory Village because they first housed GI married students, have no permanent tenure. The space they occupy has been allocated to Health Affairs.

Built in 1946 to accommodate the influx of GI's returning from WW II, these temporary buildings —home for 252 students and their families — will all eventually give way to the ever-expanding Health Affairs complex.

Victory Village has been slowly disappearing over the past few years. The first mass demolition began in 1961 when the 96 two story structures were torn down. Eight units were closed in August, 1965.

University Director of Construction and Engineering A. S. Waters says he is not sure that anyone on campus knows the exact date all the buildings will be removed.

A medical science laboratory building is presently under consideration for construction in the Victory Village area.

Whether the buildings on the tentative list will be torn down will depend on the exact amount of space needed, Waters said. "The necessary streets, walks, parking areas, design, landscaping and required clearance around the structure will determine this," he added.

More May Fall

"If additional health related facilitities are required," Waters continued, "more structures in Victory Village may have to be removed."

"As far as I know," he added, "there are no plans for building permanent married student's housing within the next two or three years."

220-242 in Victory Village provides housing for 552 families out of a married student population of about 220—242 in Victory Village and 300 in Odum Village.

UNC Business Manager James A. Branch said plans for building 300 more permanent units were included in the capital improvements request.

This will be an actual increase of only 48 units if the temporary structures are removed.

"Since UNC is the state-supported school granting Ph.D's in many fields," Branch added, "by an Act of the General Assembly and Board of Trustees, the University is required to furnish housing if it is not furnished by private enterprise.

"When we started construction on Odum Village, there was a tremendous shortage."

According to former Executive Director of the Chapel Hill - Carrboro Chamber of Commerce Joe Augustine and City Planner Lucian Faust there is still a housing problem.

"We are going to have to run to keep up," Augustine said. "Housing has been woefully inadequate for the past 20 years. Lately it has been improving slightly, but the Triangle Park growth rate keeps us from catching up on housing."

"Building 'just has' kept up with the population in recent years," he added.

Four Reasons

Augustine gave four reasons for the housing problem:

— The anticipated growth of the University and Division of Health Affairs.

— The industrial growth of Orange County.

— The retirement attraction of Chapel Hill.

— The impact of the Research Triangle.

Faust said the 1963 census revealed that the Chapel Hill - Carrboro community (including UNC) had a total of 9,603 dwelling units to support a population of 25,136.

"The population keeps pace with the housing," he added.

UNC Housing Director James E. Wadsworth said UNC Married student's housing "never has been adequate to meet the demand."

Wadsworth said it "might be possible" to move some of the temporary structures to other locations on University property.

Trustee Committee Says No To Aptheker And Wilkinson

THOUGHTFUL FACES — (l-r) Wilson Clark, president of the Carolina Conservative Club; Dr. Lewis Lipsitz of the political science Department; Gary Waller, vice-chairman of ASA; and Paul Dickson, president of the student body listen intently to Dr. Joseph Straley (not pictured) during yesterday's meeting approving the invitation of Aptheker. The empty chair in the foreground was to have been for George Nicholson, chairman of the Carolina Forum, who decided at the last minute not to participate in the discussions.

Other Invitations Suspended For Now

By ERNIE McCRARY
DTH Editor

RALEIGH — The executive Committee of the UNC board of trustees last night banned Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson from the Chapel Hill campus by a vote of 8-3.

The committee also suspended all other invitations to speakers who would have come under the old speaker ban law until the full board adopts speaker regulations.

UNC Chancellor Paul F. Sharp said, "In view of the commitments of a great university, this was an unfortunate action."

President William C. Friday refused comment.

The four-and-a-half hour meeting in Gov. Dan K. Moore's office ended when trustee secretary Arch Allen read two resolutions concerning the Aptheker controversy.

He said, "The executive committee . . . instructs the president and chancellors to deny the use of university facilities for speaking purposes of Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson."

This resolution passed by an 8-3 vote, Allen said.

The committee unanimously adopted the second resolution, which said, "The executive committee . . . suspends all invitations to speakers who are under terms of GS 116-199 (the speaker ban law) until formal action is taken by the board of trustees establishing rules and regulations governing speakers as required by law."

Trustees Victor Bryant, Wade Barber and Reid Maynard were appointed as a three-man committee to discuss further rules "in order to clarify the registration of groups" on the university campus, Allen said.

This committee will report to the full board at its Feb. 28 meeting, when all the proposed regulations will be considered.

The executive committee accepted University administration proposals concerning the regulation of invitations to speakers. No such regulations existed before.

The rules approved by the committee are:

"In order to provide the chancellors with an opportunity to exercise the responsibilities imposed upon them by trustee regulations respecting visiting speakers, the following proceedures will be observed prior to extending an invitation to any visiting speaker covered by GS 116-199 (the speaker ban law).

1. "The officers of a recognized student club or society, desiring to use University facilities for visiting speakers, will consult with the club faculty advisor concerning prospective speakers.

2. "The head of the student organization will submit to the chancellor a request for reservations of a meeting place along with the following information:

(a) Name of sponsoring organization, and topic.

(b) Name and biographical data of the proposed speaker.

(c) Request for particular date and place of meeting.

(d) Statement of faculty advisor's opinion as to the competence of the speaker to deal with his topic.

3. "Upon receipt of the above, the chancellor will refer the proposed invitation to

(Continued on Page 6)

Divergent Views At Mass Rally

By ANDY MYERS
DTH News Editor

More than 800 students and faculty members yesterday overwhelmingly approved a resolution in support of Communist Herbert Aptheker speaking on campus.

The resolution was adopted during a noon meeting of students and faculty in Memorial Hall, four and one-half hours before the executive committee of the board of trustees voted 8-3 to ban Aptheker from speaking here.

SDS made the original invitation to Aptheker, and he was scheduled to speak here in Memorial Hall March 9. Frank Wilkinson, head of the National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee, was also invited to speak.

Student Body President Paul Dickson presided over a panel of four, including Carolina Conservative Club President Wilson Clark, SDS faculty advisors Dr. Joseph Straley of the physics department and Dr. Lewis Lipsitz of the political science department and Gary Waller, vice chairman of SDS.

Dickson prefaced his remarks by saying that "quite an unnecessary controversy has been created by (Aptheker's invitation." Dickson surprised the students by calling a formal meeting of the student body to pass the resolution.

Student Body Vice President Britt Gordon opposed the resolution because he felt it was a matter for the student legislature.

Dickson said a petition would be presented to the trustees containing more than 1,100 signatures collected over the weekend from students. It affirmed the concept of free speech and welcomed Aptheker's appearance.

The telegram sent to the trustees yesterday immediately before they convened at 3:30 p.m. also affirmed the signers' belief in academic freedom and Aptheker's right to speak.

Lipsitz said the students should follow a policy of "debate" regardless of the outcome of the trustees' decision. "As a faculty member . . . I am willing to threaten resignation" if Aptheker is not allowed to speak, he said.

However, he said, "it would only feed the cause of those who resist the efforts to grant a forum to Aptheker."

Carolina Forum head George Nicholson bowed out from the panel discussion at the last moment, even after a chair was placed on the stage for him.

Waller said "The issues have become clear — is the state of North Carolina going

(Continued on Page 6)

Aptheker Did Not Think He Would Be Banned Here

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Communist Herbert Aptheker said yesterday, before the trustees' decision not to let him speak on campus, that he didn't believe he would be banned.

He said he would take legal action if not allowed to speak. "I would work together with people in North Carolina.

"I don't think I have ever been turned down by any university," he said, "except Ohio State — when the board of trustees ruled I couldn't speak on campus.

"Later, the trustees reversed their decision."

Aptheker said he would not come here to "persuade."

"My function is to participate in the educational process," he continued. "I hope I will be offering information that will be useful to any person."

He felt confident North Carolina students would give appeared here. "Occasionally," he said, "I had trouble in the past — but now, almost never.

"When I speak on campus the students are almost always polite, and their questions are interesting.

"I think," said Aptheker, "that youth today are more interested in Marxism and socialism."

Asked to comment on Gov. Dan K. Moore's Speaker Ban policy, Aptheker said: "I do not know the Governor at all. But it seems to me his actions are very ill-advised."

He said he would be willing to discuss Viet Nam if requested.

Aptheker asked why "the Governor says I cannot offer an educational experience" when some of his books are in the UNC library.

He said he has been "blacklisted" from teaching on university faculties since "the late 1930s," when somebody claimed I had been instructed by a Communist to write a Negro history.

"The person who testified this under oath," he said, "did even know my name."

He said that "the economic and intellectual and political situation" concerning Negroes in North Carolina, "is better than in many other Southern states."

Aptheker said off hand he knew of no Communist activity on the UNC campus.

Hikers End Trip; Ground Broken

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The final resident of Maverick House taking part in the Hinton James Hike for Hearts, arrived in Chapel Hill at 4 Sunday afternoon.

They handed Henry Skinner the Heart Fund torch relayed over 140 miles from Burgaw.

Skinner, a resident of Maverick House, organized the Hike for Hearts. The hike was held in connection with the two-week walk Hinton James reportedly made to Chapel Hill in 1795 to become the first student at UNC.

Skinner, carrying the torch and escorting Jeane Rhodes, Mike Mulchay and Clyde Clem, 1966 N. C. Heart Research Queen, arrived at the site of the ground breaking ceremony at 4:30 p.m.

They led a procession of the 32 Mavericks, wearing blue stetsons, who had taken part in the hike. Mark Sieber, nine-year-old son of Hal Sieber, Public Relations Director of the N. C. Heart Fund, also joined the Mavericks' march to the ceremony site.

Henry Skinner handed the torch to President William C. Friday, State Chairman of the 1966 Heart Fund Drive.

President Friday said, "On behalf of the University, I accept this torch and commend you who have taken part in the hike. I want to thank you for your continuing efforts to improve the image of the University."

Friday then introduced the Chairman of the N. C. Heart Association Hargrove Bowles who said: "It is a might fine thing you men have done. You have had a large part in reminded the people of N. C that February is Heart Month. During your 50-hour walk from Burgaw to Chapel Hill over 140 residents of N. C. died of heart disease."

President Friday then introduced N. C. Heart Association President Daniel T. Young, North Carolina Heart Mother Mrs. William Hamilton and Mrs. Lucy Hare who is Mrs. North Carolina for 1966.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp then received the torch from President Friday. Sharp said, "It is a great pleasure to be present at an activity which represents a great amount of youthful energy being used for such a worthwhile cause."

Chancellor Sharp then introduced the descendants of Hinton James who were present at the ground breaking ceremony.

Three generations of descendants were represented. by Mrs. Luther Broom, Mrs. Mat Capel and Mr. Eddie Capel.

Mrs. Hinton James, wife of the great grandson of Hinton James, was handed a silver shovel to break ground for the new residence hall. She was present with her immediate family including Mrs. Nita James, Mrs. Jim Sutherland and Mrs. Bill Adams.

Mrs. Everett (Ann James) Durham, great-great granddaughter of Hinton James, removed a shovelful of dirt from the site and said "The decendants of Hinton James are proud to have this new residence hall named for our ancestor."

Dr. Sam Hill, head of the religion department, delivered the benediction.

Maverick House held a reception in their lounge following the ceremony.

Otto Reich, President of Maverick House, welcomed everyone to the reception. He presented a plaque to Jeane Rhodes proclaiming her Maverick Sweetheart for the month of February.

UP Supports Aptheker Bill

The University Party, meeting Sunday night, passed a resolution supporting the invitation extended to Herbert ernment, the Daily Tar Heel and the Carolina Forum.

The resolution, introduced by Don Carson, was approved by a voice vote.

Six UP legislative vacancies were filled at the meeting. In two contested elections Randolph Worth defeated Mike Brown (DM IV) and Bobbi Colton defeated Celia Dudley (WD V.) Steve Salamon and Clark Crampton (MD III), Camilla Walters (WD I), and Susan Robinson (WD IV) were chosen by acclamation.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

But In This Corner It's Quiet

We don't deny that a group has a right to privacy and the right to a closed meeting.

But it seems strange to us that the Students for a Democratic Society, which professes the right of a "free and open forum," would hold an "open" meeting that was closed to newsmen.

At their Sunday evening get-together they would not allow DTH News Editor Andy Myers or reporter David Rothman to report the proceedings.

That would be all right, except for the fact that they invited Myers, who is not a member of SDS, to attend the meeting, providing he would not write about it. He chose to leave under that condition.

Rothman talked with persons going in and out of the meeting. When he tried to re-enter the meeting to see if the group had any information to release for publication—the door was slammed in his face.

The SDS members he talked to would not discuss what had been said in the meeting.

Instead Rothman heard jokes like, "The best chancellor is a dead chancellor" and, "We're bringing a whole truck-load of Communists to UNC."

A favorite quip was, "We are trying to overthrow the government."

"We're under intense emotional pressure," one SDS member said.

He said one reason the press wasn't allowed to report the meeting was, "You reporters often print our jokes as if we mean what we say."

Sorry About That Mr. White

We all make mistakes. We don't like to admit it but that's the way it goes. So with thanks we reprint the following:

"As president of the Old Well chapter of the Superman Historical Society, it behooves me to point out a flagrant error in fact in Ed Freakley's Carolina Style column of last Sunday.

"The column stated that Mr. Perry White is editor of the Metropolis Daily Planet and employer of (mild-mannered) reporter Clark Kent. The fact is that Perry White has not edited the Planet since he resigned last year to take a seat in the United States Senate. Current editor of the Planet is Mr. Van Benson (for verification of this you may consult Lois Lane magazine, number 72).

"I respectfully request that publication of this correction be forthcoming. This matter has caused Mr. White no small embarrassment among his associates in Washington."

The letter was signed: Sincerely your reader, Kerry W. Sipe, president of the Superman Historical Society, Old Well Chapter.

Free Speech Makes UNC

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

"The whole university concept will be destroyed if Dr. Aptheker is not allowed to speak here," Dr. William Fleming of the Political Science Department told residents of Morrison Residence Hall Sunday night.

"This school is better than most schools in the South, but it will be destroyed by such actions as have been taken by the trusttes in recent week," he said.

Fleming's speech was made in connection with the controversy over the invitation of Dr. Herbert Aptheker to speak on the campus.

The speaker described a university as "a band of free scholars who express different ideas in search of truth."

But he said the total environment for this search for truth will be affected if the rights of free speech are not observed.

"Here you learn how to be open-minded," he said. "The ability to say 'I've been wrong and I'm going to change' is the most important thing of a university.

"We've recently had an attack on the heart of the University. The trustees and politicians have said, 'You scholars can't decide on the truth.'

"If I were a student here, I would be enraged, as I am as a faculty member," he said. He also said he will consider resignation if Aptheker is not allowed to speak here.

Over a five or six year period the University could be destroyed he said. "We won't stay at a university, which is a university in name alone."

"There is a solidarity among the faculty," he said. "There is also a need for solidarity among students."

It is probable that Aptheker wil be invited to Duke, Fleming said.

Legislative Candidates

Prospective legislative candidates on the University Party ticket should see George Ingram this week for interviews. He will be in the UP office in Davie Hall from 3:30-4:30 p.m. daily this week.

Morehead Fellows

The first Morehead Medical Fellowships have been awarded to three North Carolina students William J. Busby, John R. Leonard, III and George M. Oliver.

The fellowship pays each recipient $2,500 a year plus tuition and fees for four years in the North Caroina School of Medicine.

DU Buys Last Property

Delta Upsilon Fraternity bought the last property available to fraternities within Chapel Hill city limits during the semester break.

DU purchased a house at 403 E. Rosemary St., next door to their present house.

The new addition expands DU's property by 50 percent. The two story structure will house 12. It will have a sitting room, study area, and large porch.

Composing Contest

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Fraternity music fraternity at North Carolina, will hold its first bienniel composition contest.

A $100 will be awarded to the winning composer and the composition will be played during the Contemporary Music Festival on Mar. 24-31.

Works for piano, a solo instrument, voice or any of those combinations may be entered. All entrees should be between four and 12 minutes in length.

The works should be mailed to Phi Mu Alpha, 201 Hill Hall.

Junior Class Supper

The junior class will hold a barbecue Sunday from 5:30-8:30 p.m. in the Tin Can.

Tickets cost $1.25 and will be sold door-to-door in the dorms, in Y-Court and in the Pine Room. Money from the dinner will go to the junior class.

Dinner music will be provided by the Seductives Combo. A dance had been planned but had to be called off because of a University policy prohibiting dances on Sundays.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

S.A.V.E. Carolina

Six seniors sat in the nearly dark pub. As college students go, they were men of success.

Four of them owned cars and the least of them had a 2.2 grade point average. All of them belonged to at least one social or honorary fraternity. As a matter of real status, each felt that he had at one time or another been persecuted by an intellectually inferior professor. None of them had ever missed a meal he didn't intend to miss, and each took one bath a day.

Obviously, they were worldly and wise. The stench of stale beer could not stifle their creative thought. They seemed worried—even frustrated—over something, despite such outward appearances of completeness.

The V-Neck Sweater set down his mug decisively.

"We've been students at this university three years and five months, and just what have we done? Nothing. We've established no traditions, have done nothing memorable that will live on after we're gone."

The Paisley Necktie agreed.

That's right. We haven't even painted up any buildings at Duke."

'I agree," said the Pipe, behind his cloud of Cherry smoke. "It's up to us right here and now to decide on a project which will have lasting and beneficial effects."

They thought and they thought. Young, fertile minds went round and round, but all the ideas were dead ends.

The Red Vest finally brought order to the chaos.

"Okay fellows, hold it. Our trouble is that we're not approaching this scientifically. We want our conbribution to be significant, so it ought to deal with the most important problem facing college students. Now, what is that problem?"

"SEX!" they all said.

"Right."

Their area of concern finally isolated, they made good progress.

As mature college men, they all realized at once what they had to do.

The Yellow Shirt spoke, but the group was of one mind.

"I see it as clearly as I see that coed sitting over there," he said, draining the fourth pitcher.

There was a hush around the table, then he spoke the words.

"We've got to stamp out virginity."

"RIGHT!!!"

Other people stared, but they didn't mind. Their goal was set and they settled down to business.

The Pasiley Necktie had some misgivings.

"You mean just the six of us?"

"Of course not, stupid. We'll have to call in a couple more guys to help us, but that's not the main worry right now."

"Whataya mean?"

"We have to have a name. I think it ought to be SOVIET—Stamp Out Virginity In Every Town."

"No, no. That's must too broad. Besides, it has definite communistic overtones."

"He's right," said the Red Vest. "I suggest SAVE —the Society to Abolish Virginity Entirely."

And thus it was decided and thus the SAVE Carolina campaign was started.

Never heard ot it?
Of course not. It was doomed from the start.

The Chancellor refused to charter the Society because it had too many faculty advisors.

The Daily Tar Heel

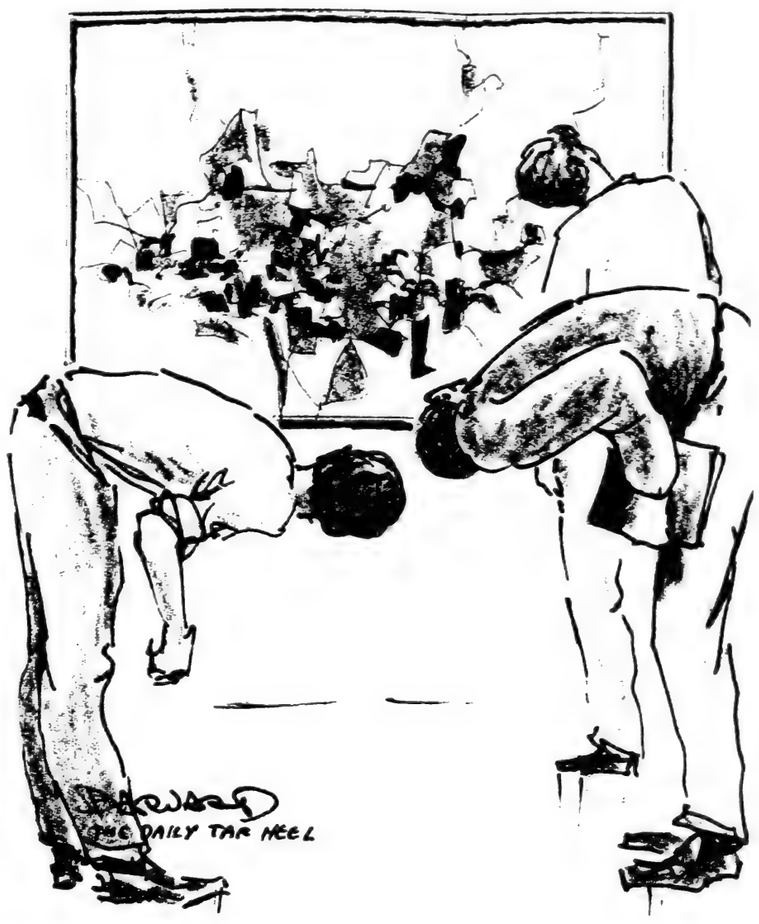
72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"I Think It's On Its Side!"



Wilson Clark

United States Shouldn't Try To Crush Rhodesia

Three decisive months have passed since Ian Douglas Smith's administration in Rhodesia declared unilateral independence from Great Britain. Immediately after the lengthy documents were proffered in Salisbury last Nov. 11, Harold Wilson's Labor Government imposed the first hard-hitting economic sanctions.

Rhodesian trade with the Commonwealth, including her stake in the Sterling bloc, was quickly, effectively severed. Nation after nation joined with the British, leaving only two allies, Portugal and South Africa.

Within hours after UDI (Unilateral Declaration of Independence), Dean Rusk released a curt statement of U. S. policy, concluding with the following: "The United States in no way recognizes the rebel regime." At the same time, the U. N. General Assembly in a near majority vote (Portugal and South Africa dissenting, France abstaining), adopted a resolution urging the British to take all necessary steps to crush Smith's government.

To understand fully the reasons for this rash of international calumny, consider these words of Prime Minister Harold Wilson: "I ended the conversation (with Ian Smith) with a heavy heart, feeling that reason had fled the scene and that emotions, unreasoning racilist emotions at that, had taken command regardless of the consequences for Rhodesia, for Africa and for the world."

Thus we see the British-drawn dichotomy of Black vs. White, accepted prima facie by our country and the United Nations.

Yet, simply a declaration of independence is not sufficient to provoke such divers attacks. What then, was Rhodesia's cardinal sin?

Rhodesia, sandwiched between South Africa and Bechuanaland on the South, and Zambia and Mozambique on the North, is a predominantly Black country. The White population is outnumbered 20 - to - one.

According to the political mathematicians of Britain and the countless Black African pseudo - countries, this constitutes grounds for Black rule, such as in Zambia, which was formerly Northern Rhodesia, a British protectorate. The fact that the entire economic development of Rhodesia, if not Africa, and even the very concept of political democracy came from the White "invaders," is not considered a germane factor in this argument.

Political democracy is practiced in Rhodesia. But with a considerably more sophisticated orientation than "raw" democracy. The weight of a man's vote is not decided by the color of his skin, but rather whether or not he is literate and economically self - sufficient.

The semi - literate native African pseudocountries, this constitutes grounds for Black rule, such as in Zambia, which was formerly Northern Rhodesia, a British protectorate. The fact that the entire economic development of Rhodesia, if not Africa, and even the very concept of political democracy came from the White "invaders," is not considered a germane factor in this argument.

Political democracy is practiced in Rhodesia. But with a considerably more sophisticated orientation than "raw" democracy. The weight of a man's vote is not decided by the color of his skin, but rather whether or not he is literate and economically self-sufficient.

The semi-literate native African politicians of countries like Zambia, Tanzania, and Kenya seem to view this selection as the highest form of discrimination, since in practice the Europeans hold the balance of power.

Leaders held in esteem by Britain's Labor Government need only be native sons, or so the criterion appears. Take Jomo Kenyatta, for example. Kenyatta, currently Prime Minister of Kenya, lead the infamous Mau - Mau terrorists in an eight-year reign of terror, thoroughly ravaging the Kenyan countryside.

Kenyatta was (or, is) not guilty of discrimination, either. He began his bloodbath by brutally murdering hundreds of Black Kikuyu tribesmen before slitting one European throat.

Now, of course, the picture has altered drastically. Whereas Kenyatta once paid his debt in a British Colonial jail, he is today the respected leader of his people. Ian Smith, once respected by the British, now is the outlaw.

So much for the British. The tragedy for the United States lies not in their warped foreign policy, but in our own. For we lend credence to this odd viewpoint by endorsing the Rhodesian sanctions ourselves.

Far from opposing us, the Rhodesians have consistently backed the United States. Not so the British. Where were our British friends when President Kennedy requested that they halt vehicle shipments to Castro's Cuba? Why, they were too busy packing off trucks and buses for the Atlantic voyage to reply to JFK's appeal!

Even better, where are our British friends now, while we are waging a life-or-death battle in the fetid swamps of Viet Nam? But, of course, they're bloody busy shipping goods to the Viet Cong!

Thus, we see the vicious circle of modern diplomacy. If it is true that history repeats itself, then it is even more true of recent hitory. On the one hand, the United States engages in brush-fire wars against the communists, but on the other, we crush our allies. Not only Rhodesia; she is only the latest victim.

What of Moise Tshombe's Black African country, Katanga, which we so effectively mutilated in the name of the United Nations, only to reconsider a few years later and put him back in power? What of Goa, where were we then, when this tiny Protuguese colony was obliterated by hordes of Gurkha troops?

Oh yes, I forgot, Portugal is a colonial power, and all first - graders in the Great Society know how bad they are.

David Rothman

Let Aptheker Debate Jones

A confrontation between Herbert Aptheker and J. Robert Jones, North Carolina Ku Klux Klan dragon?

Why not?

Jones has pleaded the Fifth Amendent, so there's no reason the klansman can't appear alongside the Communist in the name of consistency.

If the Student Government invited him to debate Aptheker March 9, it could help kill the idea that the benefits of academic freedom go solely to liberals.

Such an encounter, I suspect, would be quite lively. Aptheker is said to be an expert on the Negro's place in American life.

And Jones? Some people say he's also well versed on these matters.

Aptheker's racial "information" to an extent conflicts with Jones's, but Carolina students, I'm sure, would have little trouble seeing the truth in between.

I fervently urge this plan's adoptiong. It's the best way of guaranteeing the simultaneous presentation of "opposing viewpoints."

* *

Congressional hearings, helpful as they are at times, are said to have brought about the suicides of several witnesses, unable to live with the resultant publicity.

Sen. Bourke B. Hicklenlooper of Iowa, however, has now joined the ranks of those who complain about the harrassment people frequently undergo because the testimony is often televised.

Hicklenlooper said last week he had been subjected to "cruel and inhuman treatment" by excessively bright TV lights.

Some people, it seems, just can't stand the glare of publicity.

* * *

Kathering Westmoreland, the 17 - year old daughter of the top U. S. commander in Viet Nam, flew with President Johnson on his trip to Hawaii.

Her announced reason for going is to visit her father.

But I know better.

I'm positive the real explanation is LBJ wants to test out the suggestion in my column last week that a resolute and determined teen - age girl could end the Viet Nam fighting if only she showed up at the conference table.

* * *

Gov. Paul Johnson of Mississippi, tired of seeing his state's prohibition laws violated, has called for either (1) strict enforcement of the laws or (2) their repeal.

Until now, some Mississippians may not have been sure which approach Johnson favored, but Saturday he made it very clear.

Sheriff Tom Shelton caught Johnson and several other members of high scoiety in the act of toasting the Junior League Carnival Ball king and queen with the real stuff.

Johnson, however, may not be in the wrong after all.

According to the Associated Press, "Mississippi law officers in the reportedly have supplied 'social events' with leftovers from confiscated whisky."

* * *

My birthday is Groundhog's Day, but I've never seen my shadow on Feb. 2 since I started attending UNC. I've been too blurry - eyed after studying for exams

Letters To The Editor

Checking On Cathey

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

According to the Chapel Hill Weekly, Dean Cathey has checked out SDS in Washington with those powers in charge of checking out SDS and he has found out that we are not subversive. We are currently running a check on Dean Cathey, and when the results are known we shall make the UNC community aware.

Stephen Appell
309 Carr

Trivial Correction

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As both a devoted reader of the Tar Heel and an addict to playing Trivia (what else of value is there for the graduate student to do) I would like to call to your attention a slight inaccuracy in one of your answers to the game in Thursday's issue.

The final line of "Gone With The Wind" in both the book and film is the complete sentence, "After all, tomorrow is another day." The reader with 1037 pages behind him, and the theatre - goer after four hours of viewing many O'Harrowing episodes fully appreciates the added meaning of the full line quotation.

Fran Cernocky

Fight For Free Speech

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I am a winter visitor, a citizen of Pennsylvania, and was formerly on the faculty of the State University. All my life I seem to have held out for free discussion. There fore, perhaps I should get a word in on the big debate.

Perhaps we need to clear the air. What is the basic issue with this Gag Law and ts modification? It is an issue that challenges every one of us here, each teacher and each student.

Do you love UNC — Really love this place because you know what it means and stands for? Then do you love your country too, really love America, because you understand how its Constitution was written and some of the thinking behind it? Do you appreciate the great faith in the people and in the people's good sense in the use of our rare freedoms and our jury system?

If you do, then you must surely feel your love and your loyalty being tested at this time, as an American in Chapel Hill. Will you stand up and be counted when your great university is in danger, as it is now? For, make no mistake! Without full freedom of speech on current controversial issues a university will surely begin to go down in defeat.

Its fine history and old tradition can not save it then. And even America, as this one and that university becomes denatured, will begin to lose what since her beginning gave her a distinction, the freedom of each man to listen and to speak and to discuss and to read.

If we who love university and country lose this conflict, only the politicians will gain — those who know better but dare not speak freely for fear of losing votes in the Bible belt and the western counties. Poverty and ignorance will win, and post-Civil War deprivation and injustices, and all the hidden fears of new ways and new ideas. These all will win and we will lose, we with our apathy, our indifference, our immaturity, our over - confidence.

Playing politics with a great and venerated university is a very serious business. At the least, let the game be out in the open and for all to see, and not left to hide in the dark corridors of a committee meeting! Let the Governor himself explain his part — out on a platform where faculty and students can hear him, and even ask him for precision on matters that concern us all who work in education — like controversy and the purpose of a university, even on the nature of the precise dangers dreaded by so many good people.

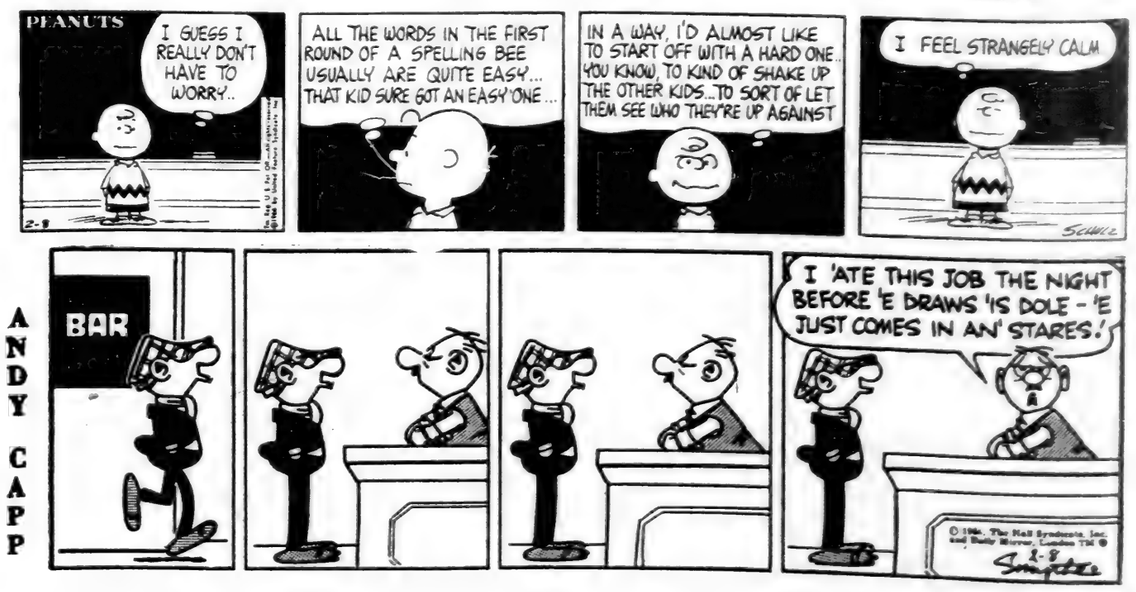
Let even the fear of losing many votes be discussed at this meeting and the anxieties of an office - holder in his precarious job. For this last means money, something a university also needs, yet not as much as it needs freedom.

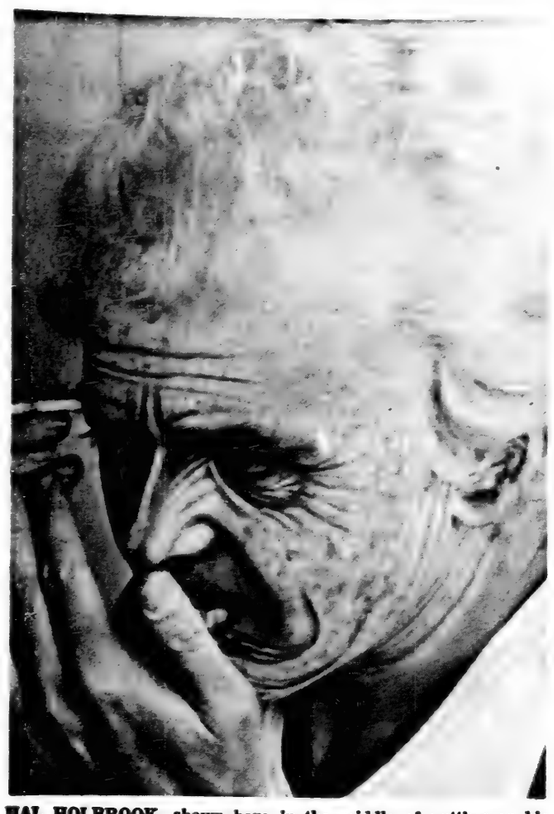
I heard Hitler speak in 1923, in the street in Munich, and the danger there was already visible in the eyes of his audience — in the naive unquestioning acceptance of that small group that stood around him. If our American strength lies truly in the manner we listen critically and weigh each word and gesture and facial expression critically, and if we really know this and believe it, then let us boldly act accordingly now, we the students, the faculty, the trustees!

Let every reader of this column ask himself these same questions, and by his answers decide to accept the challenge of Chapel Hill in 1966.

It is important for every great institution to know when to retreat and when the time has come to stand up and hold fast, and turn a deaf ear to the voice of expediency and comfort and easy accommodation.

Frank E. Walser
743 E. Franklin St.





HAL HOLBROOK, shown here in the middle of putting on his makeup, will present his "Mark Twain Tonight" tomorrow night at 8 in Memorial Hall. He has performed the famous show all over the country and was at UNC in 1962.

'Made In Paris' Enjoyable

Ann-Margret Looks Good

By BARRY JACOBS
DTH Associate Editor

Boy loses girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl.

That is the essence of the plot of "Made in Paris," now playing at the Carolina Theater.

The girl is Ann-Margret, and the picture is obviously designed to show her off to her best advantage—which is pretty good. There is hardly a scene which is not built around her. She is seldom off the screen

The boy, by the way, is Chad Everett. He's nice looking, too, so the girls in the audience shouldn't feel completely ignored.

There's not much substance to the story, but the picture is pleasant, generally amusing, and in color. It's a nice way to spend a couple of hours, if you don't want to get wrapped up in some deep, serious problem.

The heroine of th movie is Maggie Scott (Ann-Margret), a young, beautiful, up-and-coming assistant buyer for a New York fashion salon. She's originally from Illinois, though, and has apparently escaped the corruption of the big city.

Maggie is being hotly pursued by the boss's son Ted (Everett, of course) and is steadfastly saying no.

Suddenly, Maggie lands the job as buyer for the Paris fashion shows. Off she goes to the den of iniquity. Enter pursuers two and three.

No. 2 is newspaperman Herb Stone (Richard Crenna). Herb has been asked by Ted, an old friend, to keep an eye on Maggie. This isn't hard to do. In fact, he generally manages to keep both eyes on her.

There has to be a complication, of course; and the complicator is Mark Fontaine (Louis Jourdan). Mark had been mixing business with pleasure with the old buyer, and Maggie assumes—correctly, it turns out—that he intends to continue the fun with her.

Before he enters the Maggie Scott Sweepstakes, however, Mark sends a cable to her boss saying that she can't do her job. Ted seizes the opportunity of correcting the mess to fly to Paris.

From this point, the story proceeds through a procession of night clubs and apartments to its inevitable conclusion. Ted lets Maggie get away one more time, but as the movie ends, a house in the suburbs is in sight.

The story isn't the most imaginative one in the world, but the picture is bright and cheerful. It moves along easily, except for one unfortunate scene in which Ann-Margret and Jourdan sing a duet. The picture isn't a musical, and it's hard to figure out why the scene is in there.

Nobody will win an Academy Award in this picture—it isn't that type of picture—but the acting is competent. Jourdan and Crenna are professionals and perform well. Ann-Margret is back in the kind of role she does best, the "Bye Bye Birdie" type. Everett plays his rather stereotyped part well, too.

Edie Adams, as the old buyer, and John McGiver, as Maggie's boss, are good; but unfortunately their parts are rather small.

The scenery is colorful, and there are lots of fancy dresses to look at. The movie is also noteworthy in that it is set in Paris, but doesn't show the Eiffel Tower or the Arc d'Triomphe.

If you are looking for a movie with a message, this is not for you. If, on the other hand, you just want to see a pleasant movie and not have to think too hard about what you are seeing, you should enjoy "Made in Paris."

THE MAVERICK HOUSE hikers march into Chapel Hill Sunday afternoon to complete their Hike for Hearts. This group was the last relay on the 140-mile walk from Burgaw in eastern North Carolina. The hike commemorated the stroll that Hinton James, UNC's first student, took to get to Chapel Hill back in 1795. The Maverick march served both to dramatize the 1966 Heart Fund Drive and to signal the ground-breaking ceremonies for the new Hinton James Residence Hall. In the lower picture some of James' descendants await the hikers' arrival.—DTH Photos By Ernest Robl.

Panel Will Discuss Alcohol And Law

A group of professors, attorneys, a judge, a psychiatrist and a prison department official will discuss the question of whether being a drunk is a sickness or a crime in a panel meeting on "Alcoholism and the Law" at the UNC Law School Thursday.

The public is invited to the 2:15 p.m. meeting in the Law School Courtroom.

Touching off the discussion was a recent decision of the U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., which ruled that a chronic alcoholic was a sick man and not a criminal and therefore could not be imprisoned or fined for being drunk.

Reaction to the ruling has been varied, with some judges upholding it and others openly stating that they planned ot ignore it.

The decision has also increased talk about the need for rehabilitation centers.

Panelists at the meeting will include Anthony Brannon, attorney for the defendant in the case in the decision; Dan K. Edwards, Durham County Superior Court Solicitor; Dr. John Ewing, dean of the UNC Department of Psychiatry; Michael Katz, professor of criminal law at UNC; Martin Peterson, director of rehabilitation, N. C. Prison Department; and L. J. Phipps, judge in Chapel Hill Recorder's Court.

Dan Pollitt, professor of constitutional law at UNC, will serve as moderator.

Student co-ordinator for the panel is John Wrenn of Raleigh, UNC law student, who says that in addition to discussing the decision, panelists will explore related areas.

Television Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 Morning News
9:00 In-School Television
11:00 Great Decisions—1966
11:30 The Glory Trail
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-day News
3:30 Parlons Francais Teacher
4:00 Education 100
7:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Discovery
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 Nutrition
7:00 What's New
8:00 U.S.A.
8:30 French Chef
9:00 Turn of the Century
9:30 History 501B

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

8:00 U.S.A.—"Theatre: Regional Theatre—The Light of New Hope." This show visits regional theatres across the United States to investigate the new possibilities they are offering for American drama.

WRAL (Ch. 5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Unce Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: HELL SQUAD: Wally Campe
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 My Three Sons
7:30 Combat
8:30 McHale's Navy
9:00 F Troop
9:30 Rayton Place
10:00 The Fugitive
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: NOT AS A STRANGER: Robert Mitchum

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

COMBAT!—7:30 p.m.— A German officer, pretending to be an American POW, extracts valuable information from GI prisoners held by the Nazis.

McHALE'S NAVY—8:30 p.m. —Binghamton gives Navy Recreation Funds to con man Panzini to build a golf course, and he completes one hole!

F TROOP—9:00 p.m. — Andrew Duggan guests as an officer from headquarters who is determined to see F Troop wipe out the Hekawis!

PEYTON PLACE—9:30 p.m. —Elliot Carson forces Allison to face the truth about her birth and his subsequent marriage to her mother.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:00 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News
7:00 Laredo (c)
8:00 The Munsters
8:30 Red Shelton (c)
9:30 Dr. Kildare (c) Part II
10:00 Andy Williams (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

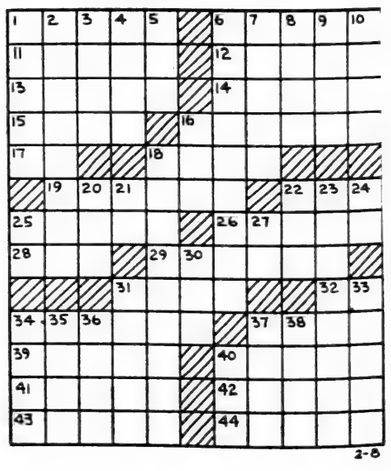
The Davie Poplar still stands. The tree was a grown tree offering substantial shade when a party seeking to establish a site for the University of North Carolina stopped there in 1793. The tree is a North Carolina shrine, named for General William Richardson Davie, called "the father of UNC."

DAILY CROSSWORD

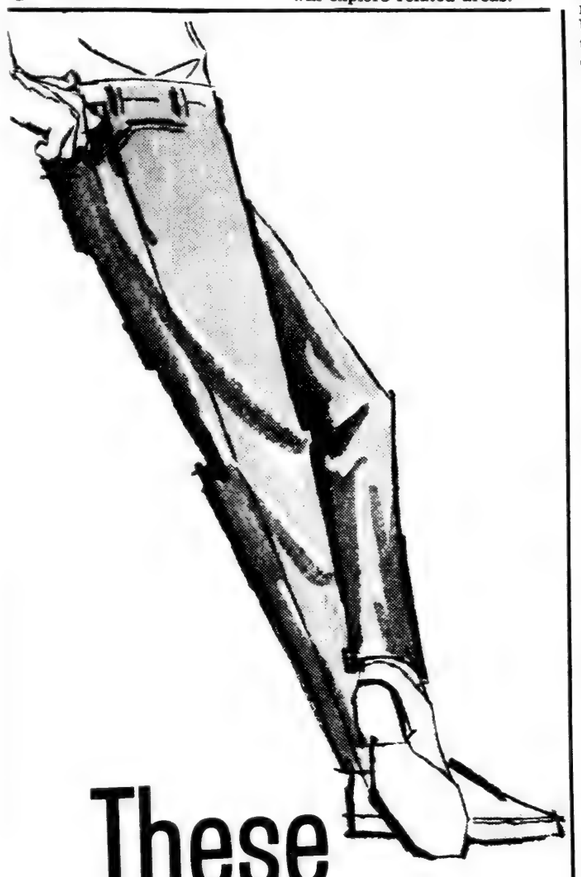
ACROSS
1. Melted together
6. Hockey arenas
11. Door or hall
12. Sheeplike
13. Before: naut.
14. Sign or symbol
15. Knocks
16. Scatters
17. Baseball player: abbr.
18. Novelist Zane ——
19. Great fear
22. Biblical ruler
25. Fasten again
26. Near East mammal
28. Mother of Irish gods
29. Like Eve's alter ego
31. Branch
32. Mr. Wynn
34. Establish again
37. Julia Ward
39. Sun-dried brick
40. Chief Germanic god
41. Inner part of Roman temple
42. Complies
43. Genuflect
44. Less good

DOWN
1. Dreads
2. Undo
3. Cease
4. Blunders
5. Stain
6. Netherlands seaport
7. One kind of tower
8. Goddess of victory: Gr.
9. Recognized
10. Fr. ecclesiastic city
16. Theater sign
18. U. S. official signet
20. Greek letter
21. Japanese distance measure
22. Wurttemberg measure
23. Channels for water
24. Indefinite article
25. Sun god
27. Verb form
30. Balmoral Castle's river
31. Valued fur
33. Thick
34. Wind-driven clouds
35. Paradise
36. Tree trunk
37. Knight of the road
38. German river
40. Success

Yesterday's Answer



2-8



These are Impalas

KORATRON

Impeccably tailored, imperially slim, with Im-Prest permanent creasing, using the famous Koratron process

FAVORITE CAMPUS CASUALS COAST TO COAST

Young Bloods model shown comes in Steel Blue, Pewter, Black and Blue/Olive; features Western style pockets, hemmed bottoms. Homespun fabric is 50% Fortrel / 50% combed cotton.

Advertised in PLAYBOY and SPORTS ILLUSTRATED

$6.98 SUGGESTED RETAIL

At leading men's stores almost everywhere

With this one exception, GT&E blankets the world of electronics.

GT&E makes no effort to compete with nature's awesome forces. But we do the next best thing. We take the reason for lightning and harness it to everyday tasks.

In that way, we've helped to make the lowly electron mighty. And our own capabilities more extensive.

In fact, we've made electronics an important force in our business. And branched into virtually all directions electronics would take us . . . communications, radio, TV, stereo phonographs, automatic supervision and control, and advanced military systems.

GT&E member companies, such as Automatic Electric, Lenkurt Electric and Sylvania, either manufacture the complete equipment or the electronic components from which they're built. And at the same time serve as major suppliers to other electronic manufacturers and the communications industry.

You might say that, because of electronics, GT&E's possibilities are endless. That's the way it looks from where we sit.

If you're interested in getting a complete picture of GT&E as it is today, ask your Placement Director for a copy of the booklet that tells the story. Or write General Telephone & Electronics, 730 Third Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10017.

GT&E

GENERAL TELEPHONE & ELECTRONICS

730 THIRD AVE., N.Y. 10017 - GT&E SUBSIDIARIES General Telephone Operating Cos. in 33 states · GT&E Laboratories · GT&E International · General Telephone Directory Co. · Automatic Electric · Lenkurt Electric · Sylvania Electric

More Credit Tightening; FHA Ups Interest Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The march toward tighter money caught up with the housing market Monday as the government raised the interest rate to 5 1-2 per cent on mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

Although the boost from 4¼ per cent was less than expected and fell short of the rate sought by some real estate men and mortgage bankers, it means that home buyers must now pay a total of 6 per cent on FHA mortgages including the 1-2 per cent charged by the government for loan insurance.

The increase is effective immediately.

The National Association of Home Builders said today's action will add $2.25 — from $89.16 to $91.41 — to the monthly payment of a 30-year, $15,000 mortgage.

Some builders and bankers doubt that the increase is large enough to attract funds to the FHA-insured mortgage market. Some real estate men and mortgage bankers had sought an increase to 5¾ per cent.

FHA rates in recent years have ranged from 4 1-2 per cent in 1950 to 5¾ per cent from Sept. 23, 1959, to Feb. 2, 1961.

The trend toward tighter money was highlighted by the Federal Reserve Board's December decision to increase the discount rate — the interest charged banks which borrow from the Federal Reserve — from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

The Chairman of the House Banking Committee and of its housing subcommittee, Reps. Wright Patman, D-Tex., and William A. Barrett, D-Pa., said the FHA action provides additional reason for forcing the Federal Reserve Board to rescind its December order.

"The Congress cannot sit idly by while the housing and other vital programs are threatened by a one-vote majority of the federal reserve board," they said in a joint statement.

They said also there is "grave danger that this rate hike will lead to even larger increases in the cost of conventional home mortgages . . . "

"Now (Federal Reserve Chairman) William McChesney Martin has succeeded in jeopardizing President Johnson's housing programs to the detriment of millions of American home owners."

As yields on alternative types of investments have risen, lenders have reduced their volume of FHA lending which now accounts for about 20 per cent of the home mortgage field.

But Philip N. Brownstein, Federal Housing Commissioner, said today's action should bring many lenders back into the FHA mortgage field and stabilize the mortgage market which he said has been in a very unsettled condition.

Brownstein said the increase should also reduce or eliminate premiums currently paid to obtain FHA financing.

"The FHA had to respond to market conditions," Brownstein said. "Otherwise prospective home-buyers would be unable to complete their plans due to lack of financing."

The new rate will not apply to FHA's multi-family and new land insurance programs or to the nearly four million outstanding loans which will continue to bear interest at the rate agreed upon when they were made.

Since the bank discount rate was raised, the treasury has offered 5 per cent interest on a major government financing, the highest since 1959.

An increase is planned in the interest rate on U. S. Savings Bonds but the treasury has not yet revealed how much this will be. By executive order it could go as high as 4¼ per cent compared with the existing rate of 3¾ per cent. Any rate above 4¼ would require Congressional action.

The Mortgage Bankers Association, which had pressed for a 5¾ per cent FHA rate, said the lesser increase probably won't do the job. "We're not overly happy about it," a spokesman said. "Maybe they have information we don't have; we'll just have to wait and see."

The National Association of Real Estate Boards also had requested at 5¾ rate. The American Bankers Association, which took no position, said the new rate would make FHA lending "a good deal more attractive to bankers."

Russia Says Luna Mission Is Complete

MOSCOW (AP) — Pioneer Luna 9, a globe-shaped instrument package resting on what looks like four flower petals, will send no more pictures from the moon, a Soviet announcement said yesterday.

After three days of history's first radio and picture reporting from the surface of the moon, Luna 9 has used almost all its electric power, the announcement said.

A surprise, extra transmission session Sunday night came because the satellite still had enough power left, the announcement said. This appeared to rule out speculation the unexpected broadcast meant Luna 9 was undertaking some spectacular new assignment.

With the unmanned satellite's batteries slowly dying on the moon, the Russians could claim these firsts:

—The first soft landing on the lunar surface, permitting a delicate package of scientific instruments to survive a touchdown on the moon intact.

—The first radio broadcast from a heavenly body to earth.

—The first pictures of the moon taken on the moon's surface and transmitted back to earth.

—The first panoramic view from a spot on the moon's surface as it might look to a man standing on the moon and turning his gaze in a complete circle.

U.S., Vietnam Start Hawaiian War Chat

HONOLULU (AP) — The heads - of - government council on the Vietnamese war opened Monday amid a tropical downpour and a new volley from a Senate foe of President Johnson's policies.

Johnson and the leaders of the Saigon regime went into secret sessions in the closely guarded headquarters of the U.S. Pacific Command.

Although the war itself was a certain topic for discussion, U.S. authorities stressed that the main objective of the talks was to mesh plans to rebuild South Viet Nam's economy in the midst of a war for survival.

But it was indicated that the Vietnamese chiefs were interested in talking about a heavier military effort against the Communist enemy in South Viet Nam and in North Viet Nam, which is supporting the Red insurgents.

As the conference was getting under way here, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., set off a new attack on Johnson's policies, taking issue with the President's hard-line airport statement Sunday which argued that the line against Communism must be drawn in Viet Nam.

In Washington, Morse fired off a statement saying that Johnson's stand makes "a mockery" of the President's appeal to the United Nations to help settle the war peacefully.

Johnson was the first to arrive at the hilltop headquarters. He was greeted by the top U. S. Commander in the Pacific, Adm. U. S. Grant Sharp, and togehter they stood under a portico as a stream of cars rolled up to unload officials and aides of both countries.

Vietnamese Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Prime

LBJ: War Talks Today

Minister Nguyen Cao Ky reached Camp Smith about 10 minutes after Johnson, and there was handshaking all around.

Johnson stood hatless and coatless, protected from the swirling rain by the portico roof.

As Johnson posed with the Vietnamese leaders for pictures, he peered down at them from his 6-foot-3 height. Like most Vietnamese, Thieu and Ky stand a little over five feet.

The conferees—28 of them—ranged around a 35-foot mahogany table in the third floor room.

The President and Thieu sat across from each other, with Johnson flanked by four cabinet officers —Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner.

Other members of the two delegations took theater-type seats behind the tables.

North Carolina News Roundup

Six Feared Drowned

ELIZABETHTOWN (AP) — Search crews using grappling hooks Monday failed to locate the bodies of six persons believed to have drowned when a cabin cruiser plunged over a Cape Fear River lock and capsized.

Jack Allen, 46, his 22-year-old wife, their three small children and Jasper Hyatt of Fayetteville were aboard when the 40-foot cruiser, "The Kork," wrecked Sunday morning.

Investigators theorized the $45,000 craft had lost power and was unable to give the two long and two short blasts of its horn, the signal asking that lock No. 3 be opened. Lock master Joseph P. Parker said he heard no signal.

Parker said he had walked from his nearby house to the lock at 11 a.m. and had seen no boat, but found the craft below the lock when he returned at 11:30 a.m.

A sheriff's deputy said "The Kork" evidently "hit the lock sideways and was forced over, landing upside down."

Water was flowing at that time about fourt feet above the the lock.

About 50 men, mostly sheriff's deputies and rescue squad members, grappled through muddy waters of the 125-yard wide stream, which is swollen by thaws of recent upstream snows. The increased depth had speeded up the current.

Sources 20 miles upstream at Fayetteville, where "The Kork" had been docked two months, said the vessel departed there Sunday morning, supposedly for Southport, at the Cape Fear River's mouth, where it was planned to follow the Intracoastal Waterway to Florida.

The Allen family have lived aboard the cruiser while Allen conducted business in and about Fayetteville for Powers Service Inc., of Chicago, a bill collection agency.

Jasper Hyatt, who was accompanying the Allens, was a Fayetteville welder and supposedly was accompanying the family on the Florida trip. Hyatt last week erected posts on "The Kork" to support a protective awning.

Cumberland County Deputy Sheriff Bill Miller said a radio on the capsized cruiser was turned on, indicating that someone was aboard and that the craft had not merely brooked its moorings at Breece's Landing at Fayetteville and drifted downstream.

Miller said searchers might find it necessary to dynamite the river to raise the bodies. He said, "The river is full of logs there and tte force of the water tosses them around like toothpicks." Timbermen use the river to float the logs down stream.

Cotton Council Meets

PINEHURST (AP) — More than 250 persons whose work is related to the textile and cotton industries will meet Tuesday for the National Cotton Council's 17th annual cotton research clinic.

Carl Cox, director of the cotton research committee in Dallas, Texas, will be the opening speaker at the clinic, which will extend through Thursday. He will discuss the effects of good weather forecasting on cotton production.

The clinic will be attended by textile scientists, educators and mill specialists who represent most of the South's cotton spindles.

The intention of the meeting is to make available to the entire industry the latest research developments in cotton processing.

House Passes GI Bill; Education, Housing Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP — The House passed today a bill to set up a permanent program of educational and housing benefits for military veterans and offer the bonus to those who served in the cold war era since Korea.

The vote was a unanimous 381 to 0, although the House had failed to act on a similar bill passed by the Senate several years ago. The fighting in Viet Nam put steam behind the drive to enact this help for men in uniform.

The Senate last year passed a somewhat costlier bill than the House but is expected to go along with the House version. And President Johnson also is expected to accept it although his administration originally asked that the program be limited to veterans who served in combat areas.

Both bills would aid veterans who served since July 31, 1955—the declared termination date for establishing eligibility under the Korean GI program.

The major difference between the two measures is that the House bill provides $10 a month less in educational payments to each veteran. And while the House bill would set the program on a permanent basis, the Senate program would expire July 1, 1967, the current termination date of the compulsory draft law.

The measure was brought to the House floor under a procedure requiring a two-thirds majority for passage. This allowed only 40 minutes for debate and prevented any amendments from being offered.

This tactic was used by sponsors of the bill to head off efforts to provide greater benefits and thus increase the cost of the program.

In the brief House debate, some members said they think the benefits provided are not liberal enough.

Rep. Paul Fino, R-N.Y., said the government owes its fighting men "much more than we are giving them here." And Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., called the amount provided "a disgrace."

The first - year cost of the House bill is estimated at $335 million, with the amount expected to level off at about $500 million a year in about five years. The administration plan for limiting the aid to combat veterans would have cost an estimated $150 million a year.

The educational benefits would be measured by the length of active duty—one month of schooling for each month of service, up to a total of 36 months. The Senate bill has the same 36-month limit but is based on 1 1-2 days of school aid for each day of service — thus 1 1-2 months for each month of service.

More than six months of duty is required under the bills, —except for a person separated with a service-connected disability—thus ruling out anyone who volunteered for six months training and then entered the reserves.

Dental Health Meet Wants Fluoridation Legislation

WASHINGT (AP) — Dr. Luther L. Terry, former Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service, Friday ranked fluoridation of water as one of the "four horsemen of health." But he cautioned against "premature efforts" to make it mandatory for the nation.

Terry, now Vice President of the University of Pennsylvania, addressed a National Dental Health Assembly jointly sponsored by the Public Health Service and the American Dental Health association.

The Association's President, Dr. Maynard K. Hine of Indianapolis, had urged that all states pass laws making fluoridation mandotry throughout the nation.

Connecticut is presently the only state requiring that all communities of 20,000 or more population use fluoridation as a claimed means of reducing tooth decay.

Terry declared that controlled fluoridation of public water supply ranks equally with the pasteurization of milk, purification of water, and immunization against disease as a system which has lengthened and improved the lives of all Americans."

But he added:

No state can reasonably expect a mandatory law until a majority of its citizens is known to prefer fluoridation. When there has been sufficient reeducation of the misinformed throughout the nation, when the cumulative benefits of this fourth great public health measure become even more dramatically evident, and when the widespread fear of fluoridation is nonexistent, universal fluoridation will be possible. Until that time, premature efforts to enforce the measure's adopting would be futil and wrong."

The National Health Federation, an antifluoridation group also meeting here, heard Dr. F. B. Exner, Seattle, Wash., physician, call for a Congressional investigation of what he termed "the federal promotion of fluoridation and of federal activities in the fields of air and water pollution."

Another doctor told this group that fluoridated water had a bearing on the death of three persons.

INTERESTED IN AN OVERSEAS CAREER?

PROFESSOR WILLIAM P. COCHRAN, JR. Career Counselor will be on the campus

FEBRUARY 16, 1966

to discuss the training offered at A.I.F.T. (an intensive nine months program of post graduate study) and the job opportunities open to graduates in the field of INTERNATIONAL TRADE and GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

Interviews may be scheduled at Placement Service

204 Gardner Hall

The American Institute For Foreign Trade

Thunderbird Campus PHOENIX, ARIZONA

An Affiliate Of The American Management Association

Reynolds Coliseum

N. C. State College Campus

Fri. Feb. 11 8:30 P.M. | The Year's Greatest Attraction

IN PERSON Peter, Paul and Mary

One Show Only—All Seats Reserved!

Adm. $2.00, $2.50, $3.00. Adv. tickets on sale at Coliseum Box Office, Thiems Record Shop and Village Pharmacy Camera Shop, Raleigh; RECORD BAR, DURHAM and CHAPEL HILL.

WANT ADS

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

Student Help Wanted
Previous sales experience preferred. Apply manager . . .
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

THE PRINT ROOM'S BUBBLING AGAIN!

Brush Stroke Prints — To bring textured reproductions of the world's greatest paintings into your living room. Priced from one dollar up to two ninety-eight.

Drawings of the Masters — Out-of-this-world fine reproductions of drawings and water-colors by the great masters. Picasso, Turner, Da Vinci, Degas, Cezanne, Modigliani—going through the rack is like visiting a great museum. Take your choice for a miserable one dollar each!

Posters — Bull-Fight posters, travel posters, posters prepared by great artists for art exhibitions—gay and colorful, and all yours for a dollar each.

Frames — Our frame racks are full again, and you'll have a wide choice of handsome, sturdy — and inexpensive frames to show off whatever you select from this art carnival.

and Oriental Prints on the Way — Sometime this week—we hope we hope—we'll have a big shipment of colorful and exotic reproductions of prints from the Orient. Keep your fingers crossed—they'll be handsome and inexpensive.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

TICKETS ON SALE NOW
4 TIMES ONLY! FEB. 9 & 10

AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE OF THE NATIONAL THEATRE OF GREAT BRITAIN

LAURENCE OLIVIER AS OTHELLO

The greatest Othello ever by the greatest actor of our time.

A B H.E PRODUCTION
ALSO STARRING MAGGIE SMITH · JOYCE REDMAN and FRANK FINLAY DIRECTED BY STUART BURGE
PRODUCED BY ANTHONY HAVELOCK-ALLAN and JOHN BRABOURNE
TECHNICOLOR® PANAVISION® FROM WARNER BROS.

Admission Afternoon 1.50 Night 2.00 Shows at 3 & 8 P.M. Varsity

LAST TIMES TODAY
THE FACE OF FU MANCHU
In Technicolor with CHRISTOPHER LEE

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 W. ROSEMARY ST. OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

DISCOVER AMERICA the carefree way...travel Trailways!

This is the year to explore an exciting nation—your own! See it all—up close from the picture window of a newly-designed Trailways bus. Perfect climate control, reclining seats and, of course, a rest room aboard. Cruise smoothly along the great new Interstate highways. New, faster schedules. New, low-cost excursion fares. Special tours. Pick your time and the places you want to see. Then take it easy . . . travel Trailways.

DISCOVER AMERICA

FROM CHAPEL HILL
NEW YORK ---------- 1-way $17.05
Thru Express—reserve the seat of your choice
MEMPHIS ---------- $22.80
Thru (no change) via Chattanooga
CINCINNATI ---------- $16.05
Only 1 change enroute

Charters/Tours/Package Express

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin St. Phone 942-3336

TRAILWAYS®
Easiest travel on earth

Second Half Surge Fells Gamecocks 104-70

Tar Babies Saved By Late Blitz As Pembroke Falls

Face-Saving Win Staged by Frosh

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

For most of the game, it was like watching an old race horse jog around the track.

That's how it was as Carolina's Tar Babies muddled through a listless three-quarters of last night's meeting with Pembroke State at Carmichael Auditorium.

But with 8:36 left to play, and the 3,500 people who had filed into the arena wondering if their frosh were going to fall apart altogether, the Babies hit their stride and blitzed the Indians 12-0 in 2:21 to turn the game into the rout it was supposed to be.

They won it 96-69.

It wasn't easy, the garnering of this tenth straight win for UNC's unbeaten freshmen. And to use an old cliche, the final score was no indication at all of the struggle.

"We were very fortunate to win, especially by the final margin," said Coach Larry Brown following the game. "They are the finest shooting team — at least for this game — that we have seen all season. They aren't as strong as we are, and got into foul trouble. We just hit a great five-minute stretch there at the end, and that was the difference."

Brown declares that his 6-3 guard, Dick Grubar, is not yet at full speed after his knee injury. Well, maybe not, but "Dix" moved through the Indians for 18 points, and he and Gerald Tuttle had one of their best defensive games. Tuttle scored just nine, but eight of these came on field goals in the first ten minutes when the team was having its troubles.

Rusty Clark and Bill Bunting paced the Tar Baby scoring with 25 and 22 points, and hustled the boards for 12 and 16 rebounds. They were given stern opposition by 6-8 Pembroke center Joe Gallagher who scored 24 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and received a loud ovation when he left the game a few minutes from the end.

Bunting — and you'll find this hard to believe — hit only seven-of-18 floor shots, while blowing several layups and follow attempts which are usually money in the bank for him. But Bill hit all eight of his free throws.

Rusty converted 10-of-16 field goal tries and was five-for-6 at the line to run up his third highest point total of the 27.

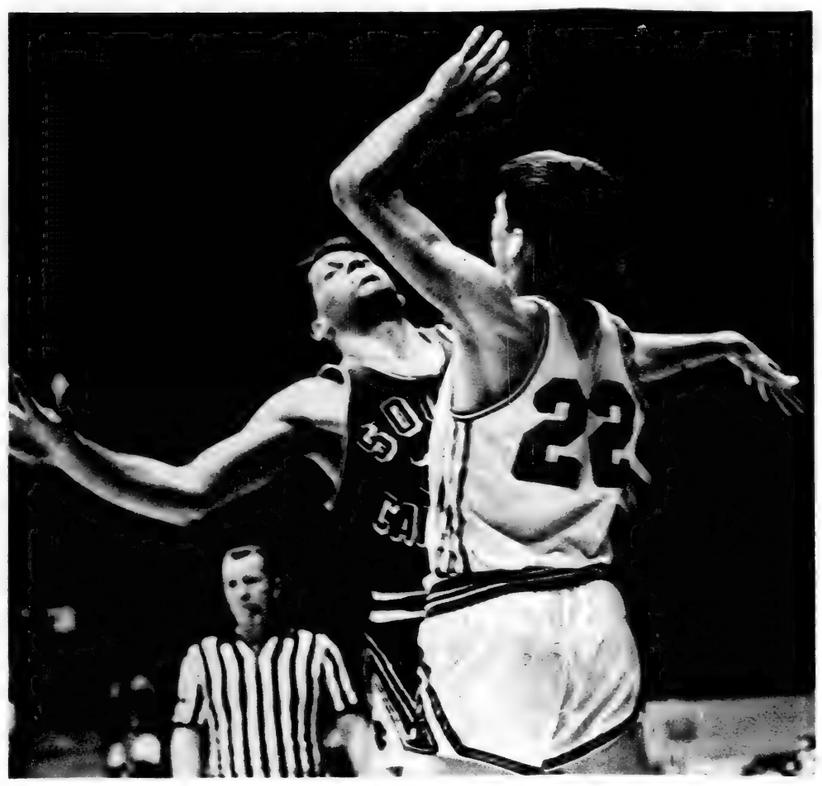
The Tar Babies led by 45-32 at the half, after a very cold opening 20 minutes. (they hit just 16-41, and finished the game under 50 per cent for the first time this year, 37-83 for 45.1.)

They were even colder when they came out to finish up. Clark got the only two baskets in the first 3:12, and by then Pembroke had pulled to 41-49. Clark hit a free toss at 11:12 for a 64-51 lead, but with 8:36 left, the Indians were close again at 67-59.

Then Jim Bostick canned a 15-foot jumper to ignite the decisive spurt. The foe didn't score again until Gallagher hit at 6:94, and the game was out of reach, 79-61.

While it was the coldest shooting night from the field for UNC, it was their top game at the free throw line as they hit 22-of-25. They outrebounded Pembroke by 53-29.

UNC Scoring:
Clark	25
Bunting	22
Grubar	18
Tuttle	9
Brown	8
Bostick	6
Dodson	4
Camnitz	2
Royall	2



HEY YOU WANNA DANCE? No Bob Lewis and the Gamecock behind him are not trying to invent a new discotheque dance: Lewis had just passed to the left and the South Carolina player guarding him was unable to stop in time. The action took place early in the first half of last night's game.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Seventy-Point Second Half Proves Too Much For USC

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina's Tar Heels overcame a slow first half and poured in 70 points in the final 20 minutes of action to down a stubborn South Carolina club 104-70 before 8,500 partisan fans in Carmichael Auditorium last night.

Ahead by only seven points at halftime — 34-27, the Tar Heels pushed their offensive in high gear to leave the faltering, punchless Gamecocks far behind.

But even that second half push did not begin immediately. Gamecock forward Frank Standard cut that halftime margin to five — 34-29 with 19:24 left.

Bobby Lewis, who finished the evening with 26 points to lead the Tar Heel scoring, then joined guard John Yokley to set the Tar Heel offensive wave in motion. Both hit their opening shots for a 38-29 UNC lead.

Standard again hit for the Gamecocks — this time a three point play — to cut the lead to 38-32. But this only temporarily detoured the Tar Heels.

With 16:24 remaining in the game, a pair of free throws by Tom Gauntlett shoved the Tar Heels out front by ten—42-32.

With 15:30 to go, Larry Miller, who finished with 23 points, put UNC 12 points ahead — 46-34.

With 13:59 remaining, a basket by Lewis and a three-point play by Miller made the margin 14 points — 52-38.

Miller struck again with 13:18 to go — making the Tar Heel margin 16 at 55-39.

The Gamecocks, who drove to the wire in the first half, could not half the Tar Heel express.

With 11:00 to go, the Tar Heel lead was 18 — 63-45. The finishing touches on the Tar Heel surge came one minute later and continued for the next five as a combination of Gamecock lapses and tenacious Tar Heel defensive efforts held South Carolina scoreless.

The score stood 68-50 with ten minutes remaining. With five minutes remaining, the score stood 80-50 in favor of the Tar Heels.

Skip Harlicka, who supplied most of the Gamecock offensive for the evening with 26 points, broke the spell with a jump shot to make the score 80-52 in favor of the Tar Heels.

The remaining minutes of action was all down hill for the Tar Heels. UNC Coach Dean Smith pulled his ace offensive weapon Bobby Lewis with 5:25 to go. Seconds later, out came Miller. All of the Tar Heel starters were out with 3:30 left on the clock.

Tar Heel reserve Jim Frye gave the crowd a thrill with 50 seconds remaining when his tap-in broke the century mark and pushed the Tar Heels out front 100-68 — their largest margin of the night.

But things were not so easy in the first half. Although the Tar Heels broke swiftly from the gate with a 7-0 lead, their point production was considerably tougher. A 20-7 lead with 12:03 was the biggest Tar Heel margin, but the Gamecocks began to make their bid.

With 6:10 remaining, the UNC lead was 10 at 29-19. That lead was six — 31-25 — with 3:30 remaining. Four points — 31-27 — was the biggest Gamecock threat.

Joining Lewis and Miller in the Tar Heel scoring parade was Bob Bennett and Tom Gauntlett — both with 15 points. No other Tar Heel performer scored in double figures although reserves Greg Campbell, Ralph Fletcher and Jim Frye scored six in the short time they saw action.

Frank Standard and Al Salvadori joined Harlicka in double figures for the Gamecocks with 11 each.

In the shooting department, the Tar Heels hit 13 of 3 1attempts from the floor for a 41 per cent accuracy in the first half. South Carolina hit 11 of 25 for 44 per cent.

Levin Leads In VMI Meet

Team scores were not kept in Saturday's VMI Relays, but Carolina would have been in the top five. They were led by Jon Levin who placed second to Tennessee's Webster in the 60 yd. dash final.

In the trials, Levin blazed down the boards in 6.2 to win his heat. However, he could not catch Webster in the field and had to settle for a second.

The shuttle relay team of Richie Ambrose, Gary Meade, Jan Hryharrow, and Adger Stokes copped another second for the Tar Heels.

The distance medley relay was an exciting race. Carolina's Mike Williams was leading with only two laps to go. The gun lap bell sounded two laps early and Williams took the lead, but could not hold it and the quartet of Tom Carpenter, Ed Daw, Bill Bassett, and Mike Williams placed third behind Maryland and William and Mary. Their time was 10:24.

Others who fared well for the trackemn were Jim Meade, who placed fifth in a strong two mile field; Gary Iverson, who leaped 22'2¼" in the broad jump to place fifth; and Tilden Bridges, who tied for second in the high jump but lost on misses.

Miller Explains Loss To Terps

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

We went to see Larry Miller when the Tar Heels returned from College Park Sunday—searching for some insight into the team's slack performance in Saturday's game with Maryland.

We talked with Larry about that game and the following is the series of questions and answers which that interview produced.

Q :IS THERE ANY WAY TO EXPLAIN THE TEAM'S PERFORMANCE IN THE MARYLAND GAME SATURDAY?

MILLER: "I think it's impossible to explain something like that although you could probably say the main thing was Maryland's defense. They played a real tight man-to-man and sagged toward the middle. So Bobby (Lewis) and I weren't able to drive too well.

"When you're hitting from outside, that usually cures everything. But we couldn't get the outside shot either and when we did, we couldn't hit it. When you can't hit from outside and can't get the layups either, then you're really in trouble.

"When it's like that, there's just nothing you can do about it but keep trying. But the harder we tried, the less we could accomplish. That's the only way to explain it."

Q: DID THE TEAM TRY TO ADJUST THE DEFENSE WHEN MARYLAND GOT SO MANY CLOSE SHOTS ABOUT MIDWAY THROUGH THE SECOND HALF?

MILLER: "We couldn't, because we were trying to catch up and had to press to try to get the ball. We had to take the chance, but we just couldn't make it work."

Q: DID MARYLAND MAKE ANY DEFENSIVE CHANGES FROM THE GAME DOWN HERE?

MILLER: "No, they played the exact same defense down here and we knew what we were in for. We thought we could break it but we just got too anxious at times and started forcing the ball and making mistakes. Their defense is tight and tough."

Q: HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT YOUR PERSONAL PERFORMANCE AT MARYLAND?

MILLER: "Sub-par. That's about all I can say."

Q :HOW DOES THE MARYLAND GAME RANK WITH THE OTHER LOSSES?

MILLER: "Well, it certainly ranks with the worst! If there is such a thing as THE worst, I guess you could say this was it. But we were in the game up until the last couple of minutes. There's something missing that we sometimes can't find.

Tar Babies Face Davidson In Johnston Gym, Tonight

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

One of the fiercest animals you can run into in the North Carolina sports world is a Davidson basketball team. Facing such a roundball aggregation is bad enough in itself, but when those guys start rolling on a winning streak, the difficulty is several times compounded.

Now, take a Davidson basketball team such as this year's frosh, put them on a six-game win skein, and give them a date in the home-court matchbox they call Johnston Gym, and if you happen to be the team that must walk into that situation, you've got a tough night on your hands.

That's the specific challenge that Carolina's Tar Babies face tonight when they hit the hardwood for a second straight night against a club which drops cage encounters about as easily as a prosecuting attoney drops murder charges.

It will be tough in the Wildkittens' lair. People say that it's like feeding your team to the Lions to take it down there. The entire student body — 1,100 — crams into the living-room sized "arena" and the only place that can beat it is another cat's hideaway south of the border called Clemson Field House.

They'll come tonight to see their freshmen win their seventh straight game and they will want it something terrible, because everybody likes to see somebody else's unbeaten team lose their first one. And they want to see their own team's streak continued.

Another thing, too. North Carolina is in the state's "next highest league" and the House of David always likes to fell the "unconquerable" giant.

So it will be tonight, and Coach Larry Brown of the frosh is worried.

"It's always tough to play Davidson," he says, "especially down there in that little gym. They really turn out to see their basketball teams, and I know they'll want us pretty bad tonight. They beat Duke (85-82) down there Saturday, you know.

"We had a real fine game against them up here (Babies won, 93-65 on Jan. 3), but I'm sure they had one of their worst. They are on a streak (six games), you know, and they'll be anxious to keep theirs going and end ours.

"We will have to do a good job on their two fine guards," Brown continued. "That will probably be the key as far as we are concerned."

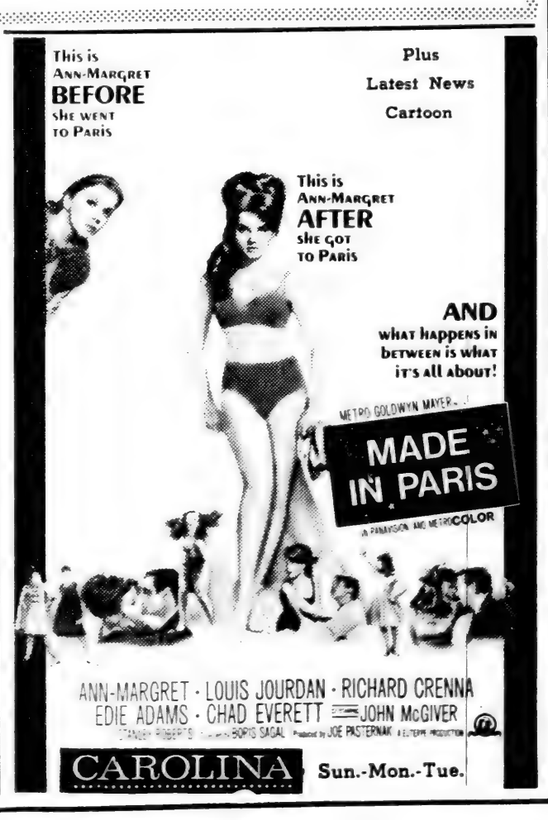
Those two guards are the Both six-footers, Wayne Huckel leads the team with an even 20-point average, while Dave Moser is at 16.2. The third man is 6-5 forward Mike O'Neill, who paced the club early in the season while averaging 23 points per game. His average now is 14.3. Six-eight center Terry Crosswhite averages 9.9.

On the home scene, guard Dick Grubar continues to be slowed by the knee injury, but he will be able to start. Joe Brown suffered a finger injury Saturday which hampered his play somewhat in weekend scrimmages. The injury is on his left hand, however—not his "shooting hand."

Despite his caution, Brown has been taught a lesson in confidence by his boys.

"If we play our usual game," he predicted, "we'll be all right. But it will be quite an experience for these boys to play their first game there. It's tough."

No 'Merryland' In Maryland



JUNIOR ACCOUNTING STUDENT
Wanted for part time work in Accounting and sales.
PHONE 929-2600
For Appointment

Fraternity and Sorority
RUSH

WHAT could be more enjoyable with a glass of ? punch than an Hors d'oeuvres table set from Hickory Farms.

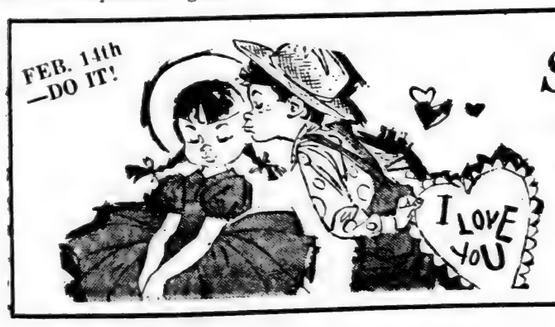
JUST CHECK THESE:
- ☐ Beef Stick
- ☐ Cheese Ball
- ☐ Salami
- ☐ Cheese Sticks
- ☐ Sesami Crackers
- ☐ Smoked Cheese
- ☐ In fact 126 different varieties of cheese

You may have more rushees than you expected and a few extra loafing Brothers, but can you think of a better way to keep the "HOT LIST" around.

We at Hickory Farms wish you the "Biggest" and "Bestest" in 1966.

9:30-9 M-F 9:30-6 Sat. 1-6 on Sunday

HICKORY FARMS
Eastgate Shopping Center



Send Your Love
VALENTINE CARDS
Romance or whimsy . . . whatever you want in a Valentine card, you'll find it in our selection
CUTE — SOPHISTICATED — SENTIMENTAL
Also RUSSELL STOVER CANDIES for Valentine Giving
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Campus Events

Rules Committee Meeting at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Ways and Means of Student Legislature will meet 2:30-4:30 p.m. in the Grail Room.

There will be a meeting of the Related Discussions Committee, chaired by Bill Taylor, of the Symposium at 4 p.m. in the Symposium Office.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, International Premedical Society will meet at 7 p.m. in Room 225 of the Medical School Building.

The Student Physical Therapy Club will meet at 6 p.m. in the Clinic Auditorium. Miss Holley will discuss Public Health implications.

Six seasoned performers from the music faculty of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro will present an evening of chamber music, being sponsored jointly by Graham Memorial and the Tuesday Evening Series. At the 8 p.m. performance in Hill Hall, flutist John Meacham will be featured.

The Budget Committee meeting has been postponed til Tuesday, Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker I. This will be a very important meeting, and all members are urged to be present.

Class Ring Sale from 9-4 p.m. in Y-Court.

There will be a meeting of the UNC Carobiners Outing Club) at 7:30 p.m. in Metchell Hall (Geology Bldg.) The agenda for the Spring Semester will be discussed. All interested non-members are invited to attend.

All returned Peace Corps Volunteers on the UNC campus are invited to attend a meeting at the home of Ken Hatcher, 205 Wilson St., 929-5395, at 9:30 p.m. to discuss with Washington staff members Peace Corps Week at UNC.

UNC Debate Team meets in Bingham Annex at 6:30. Both varsity and novice debators are expected.

The Student Party will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Student Body President Paul Dickson will speak on Student Government and the DTH's role in the Aptheker case. Legislative vacancies in Morrison; Avery Parker and Teague, and two in town men's district outside the corporate limits of Carrboro will be filled.

WRC will meet at 6:45 in the Grail Room.

Finance Committee will meet at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

—Trustees—

(Continued from Page 1)

a joint student-faculty committee on visiting speakers for advice.

4. "Upon receipt of their advice, the chancellor may consult other constituted advisors prior to making a decision."

These rules will be submitted to the full board Feb. 28 along with the rules approved Jan. 14 governing appearances of speakers.

When the speaker ban was amended the trustees directed the UNC administration to provide rules regarding "the invitations to and the appearance of visiting speakers."

These proposals submitted were the administration's fulfillment of that requirement.

Two UNC groups appeared before the executive committee. Members of the faculty advisory committee, headed by Dr. George E. Nicholson Jr., told the trustees that "faculty moral will be shattered to an extent greater than at any other time within the experience of the members of this committee" if Aptheker's invitation is canceled.

"A trustee speaker ban will be even more damaging than that promulgated by the legislature," Nicholson said.

Dr. Joseph Sloane, one of seven of the members of the faculty advisory committee who appeared at the meeting, said the group's appearance before the trustees was "short but sweet."

"We went in, read the statement, got thanked and left," Sloane said.

Student Government President Paul Dickson read a statement on behalf of the student body supporting Aptheker's right to speak on campus.

"I told the governor we would be glad to answer any questions," Dickson said after he appeared before the committee, "but he said they had decided not to ask any questions."

Jim McCorkel, resigning president of the Students for a Democratic Society, was present to read a statement and answer questions, but the executive committee asked him to have his remarks read by the secretary.

He was not allowed to appear before the committee.

A group of 11 young UNC professors, headed by Dr. Nathaniel Rodman, associate professor of pathology, received the same treatment.

The executive committee, in denying Aptheker and Wilkinson the right to appear on campus, followed the lead of Gov. Moore, who stated last week his opposition to the speakers.

—Noon Rally—

(Continued from Page 1)

to honor the integrity of The First Amendment . . . is the integrity of UNC . . . going to be honored, and are the honesty and intelligence of of the faculty and students going to be affirmed by allowing us the free and unhampered access to our rights?"

Clark, who later walked off the stage because, he said, "Dickson ran a 'kangaroo court,'" called SDS a "young radical" group and said "I am not in favor of turning the floodgates open and drowning the Republic.

Clark, head of a conservative student group, was hissed and booed during his talk. Several times he waited to continue his talk because of hecklers in the audience.

"It is one thing for socialists to invite Communists," Clark said, "for they are bedpartners; but it is quite another for the official representatives of our student body to extend this invitation."

"Let us not indiscriminately soil the banner of freedom by inviting Kosygin or Brechnev or Castro or Ho Chi Minh (the audience laughed) — these men laugh in the face of freedom — to the Communist, free speech is only one step on the road to total conquest of all freedoms.

Aptheker was contacted by the DTH yesterday and voiced a hope that the trustees would decide in his favor. During a telephone interview he said he received a letter dated Feb. 4 from Nicholson, head of the Carolina Forum.

The letter, in extending an invitation to Aptheker, neglected to mention a speech topic. "This letter does not make it clear as to the exact subject matter of my talk," Aptheker said.

He added, however, that he "would be glad" to discuss the current controversy of "free speech," and agreed with Waller's view that "The First Amendment to the Constitution should be the only speaker policy."

Told that the Memorial Hall Club head Clark denounced "these men who laugh in the face of freedom," Aptheker said:

"I am delighted the audience laughed, although it's not altogether a laughing matter. (This is) a typical response from the ultra-right," he said. "(Clark) is in deep error," though.

The Communist would not say whether younger faculty members should resign to protest the alleged "lack of academic freedom" here.

Told that both Lipsitz and Dr. William Fleming, of the political science department, have said they might resign, Aptheker said, "I am deeply touched if the men said that," however, "every man's conscience is his own guide. I would not offer advice as to what other people should do."

Wesley Foundation Discusses

Conscience, Inward Integrity

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religion Editor

What is meant by 'conscience' is synonymous with the Biblical concept of 'heart' or that function in the human which is an inward integrity derived from God.

This means that while conscience may have a cultural context it knows that ethical authority is in relation to the will of God. "In this sense, conscience is liberating." This is how Banks Godfrey, associate chaplain of the Wesley Foundation, briefly outlined the theological understanding of conscience.

Specifically, he laid out this definition of conscience for a panel discussion on the "American Conscience About War" held Sunday at the Wesley Foundation. Rev. Godfrey's intent was to open up the matter of war generally as it is seen in American life and to begin a discussion as to whether or not Americans are really aware of what their conscience is in the face of war.

History of War

Raymond Dawson, Associate Professor of Political Science at UNC, laid down what he thought to be the historical context of war in American society. From the historical context he noted a central paradox.

He said that American tradition is anti-military because of an identity of European militarism with anti-democratic thought. Yet, there war, is an early necessity to build a protective military force.

While being anti - military America was not anti-war. The two trends converged at the end of the nineteenth century. Under social Darwinism war was relegated to the past as an outmoded answer to present situations.

America viewed war as uncivilized. This brought about an absolutist view of what war was when it happened. Winning war was equated with ending war because of the belief that the uncivilized was defeated.

Chapel Hill attorney John Wayne Lasley, director of the Institute for International Studies, took a less analytic and more humanistic attitude towards war in America.

He approached the American conscience about war by way of the American attitude toward the peacemaker. That is, the usual view of the peacemaker is that they are pinkos, beatniks, un-Americans, etc.

But to Lasley this is a view that, at the center, fails to face the reality of possible world destruction. "All thinking people, deep in their conscience," said Mr. Lasley, "would object to the indescriminate use of force."

"Why do we get upset," Lasley went on, "when a boy burns a draft card and not when he burns a village." For Mr. Lasley this raised the question of morality.

He meant that we generally think of morality in terms of sexual ethics where something is either right or wrong. Calling peacemakers odd names is a childish rationalization to get out of facing our conscience about war.

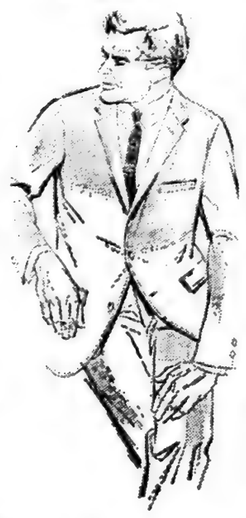
World Order

Mr. Lasley concluded that we should have learned from past wars that the world is ordered through international law, order and consensus. He was careful to say that world order was not a mere idealistic approach to peace. "Today's idealism can become tomorrow's practicality," he said. "It lies with ourselves to solve the problem of war."

Eric Van Loon, a student panel member, called Lasley's view an "absolute" moral answer. This he said especially in regard to the former's position on Vietnam. In regard to Vietnam, Paul Dickson, who has been in Vietnam, said that the people want peace no matter what government they are under. He said that war has weighted so heavily in their history that they are ready to do anything to remove it as an obstacle to their living.

Next Sunday at 4:00 the discussion will continue under the title "War in the Rise of American Civilization." This will be done by viewing murals by the Mexican artist Orozco. The murals will be discussed by Professor William Geer and Rev. Tom Davis.

SALE



We Have a Suit for Every College Man

No matter what your clothing budget is, we have a suit in excellent traditional taste to fit your pocketbook.

Our fine quality suits start with Cricketeer, now on Sale for $47.95.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Headquarters for imported DAKS
Britain's finest trousers

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The New Double Breasted Lightweight
Navy Blazer

SLACKS in PLAIDS, CORBIN TATTERSALLS and imported checks . . . with decoration of wine, navy and powder blue.

Julian's

THE HUB'S FEBRUARY FINAL FANTASTIC FREE FOR ALL SALE—

This is the one sale in Chapel Hill that you cannot afford to miss. With plenty of winter weather ahead, this winter merchandise is a steal. But be careful, we guarantee an unruly mob fighting for these buys

SUITS

A large selection of fine imported worsteds, herringbones, Glenn plaids, and solids in natural shoulder clothing that guarantees a perfect fit

Reg. 59.95 NOW 39.88
Reg. 65.00 NOW 44.88
Reg. 69.95 NOW 49.88
Reg. 75.00 NOW 54.88
Reg. 79.95 NOW 59.88

SPORTCOATS

Our ever popular complete stock of solid blazers, herringbones, and bold new plaids — drastically reduced for this sale

Reg. 29.95 NOW 15.88
Reg. 35.00 NOW 19.88
Reg. 39.95 NOW 24.88
Reg. 45.00 NOW 29.88
Reg. 49.95 NOW 34.88

TOPCOATS

Brace yourself for this cold weather. The complete stock now at fantastic prices

Reg. 49.95 NOW 34.88
Reg. 69.95 NOW 54.88
Reg. 75.00 NOW 59.88

ALL WEATHER COATS

Finest quality 65% dacron and 35% cotton, unlined or with zip-in liners—from the makers of the world's finest rainwear.

Reg. 26.95 NOW 17.88
Reg. 29.95 NOW 21.88
Reg. 37.50 NOW 27.88
Reg. 39.50 NOW 29.88
Reg. 42.50 NOW 31.88

DRESS SHIRTS

Our entire stock of famous name traditional shirts at prices slashed for this one sale.

Reg. 5.00 NOW 2.99
Reg. 5.95 NOW 3.99
Reg. 6.50 NOW 3.99
Reg. 6.95 NOW 4.99

SPORTSHIRTS

Everything is greatly reduced, including checks, plaids, stripes and madras. You'll enjoy the fine selection and low prices.

Reg. 5.95 NOW 3.99
Reg. 6.95 NOW 4.49
Reg. 7.95 NOW 4.99
Reg. 8.95 NOW 5.44
Reg. 9.95 NOW 5.99

DRESS SLACKS

Our finest traditionally styled dress slacks in worsteds, hopsacks and blends, including houndstooth and plaids.

Reg. 7.95 NOW 4.88
Reg. 8.95 NOW 5.88
Reg. 9.95 NOW 5.88
Reg. 10.95 NOW 6.88
Reg. 11.95 NOW 7.88
Reg. 12.95 NOW 8.88
Reg. 13.95 NOW 9.88
Reg. 14.95 NOW 10.88
Reg. 15.95 NOW 11.88
Reg. 16.95 NOW 12.88
Reg. 19.95 NOW 13.88
Reg. 22.95 NOW 16.88

SWEATERS

You will find the greatest selection ever to choose from in all colors in lambswool, shetlands, and alpacas

Reg. 12.95 NOW 8.88
Reg. 13.95 NOW 9.88
Reg. 14.95 NOW 10.88
Reg. 15.95 NOW 11.88
Reg. 17.95 NOW 13.88
Reg. 19.95 NOW 15.88
Reg. 21.95 NOW 17.88
Reg. 24.95 NOW 19.88
Reg. 29.95 NOW 22.88

SPECIAL GROUP
100% Cashmere V-Neck
Reg. 27.50 NOW 18.88

SOCKS

A special group of the popular "Over the Calf" socks in a wide variety of shades

Reg. 2.00 NOW 1.29

JACKETS
⅓ Off
SHOES
20% to 40% Off

Plus a wide selection of outstanding value buys that have always made The Hub the place to GO-GO to —

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

PINE ROOM
"The Popular Place To Meet, Snack, or Dine"
SNACK BAR AND CAFETERIA

Specializing In—
- Hickory Smoked Barbecue
- Raviola Nicoise
- Spaghetti Italienne
- Combination Seafood Platters
- Southern Fried Chicken
- Rare Roast Beef
- Charcoal Broiled Steak
- Broiled Lobster Tails
- Pizza
- Sandwiches of All Kinds
- Homemade Pies Baked Daily

COMPLETE CARRY-OUT FOOD SERVICE

Open: Mon.-Fri. 7:00-12:00
Sundays 4:00-12:00
Closed: Saturdays
"VISIT WITH US AFTER THE GAMES"

TUESDAY NITE SPECIAL
5 TO 10 P.M.
Some New This Week
MOUTH WATERING PIZZA

LARGE PLAIN PIZZA
and
PITCHER OF BEER or CIDER
1.50
YE OLDE TAVERN
E. Franklin St.
Professional Bldg. 942-5578

Chapel Hill's Foremost
BARBER SHOP
Specializing in:
Hair Styling, Razor Cuts,
Hair Dyeing, Hair Pieces Fitted
Now we have THREE Registered BARBERS
Eastgate Barber Shop
Eastgate Shopping Center

VALENTINE GIFTS?
Where Else But
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE SHACK
Come down while it's still here.

SEE The LETTERMEN in Person
At The RECORD BAR
Thursday, February 10

THE RECORD BAR
Across from the POST OFFICE on Henderson Street

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, No. 89 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

MRC Meeting

MRC will have a very short meeting tonight on the 4th floor of New East at 7 p.m.

Lou Bello

The Sports Department has a feature story on Lou Bello today. Look for it on page 5.

The Dying Village: Part Two

Cheap Housing Vanishes With The Village

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

"It was a pleasant and happy experience," Consolidated University President William C. Fri -day said, recalling the student days he spent living in Victory Village.

"These structures made it possible for many persons to attend school who would have had a difficult time finding housing," he continued.

Friday was not the only famous personality who lived in Victory Village. Other notables include former Chancellor William B. Aycock, Dr. George Harper and Dean of Western Carolina College Dr. W. Newton Turner.

Former UNC football star Ken Willard also resided there.

UNC Housing Director James E. Wadsworth estimates that from 35-50 faculty or former faculty members once lived in the Village.

Incoming married students will not be as fortunate.

Married students struggling for their degrees will have to move to higher rent areas not owned by the University or will have to add their names to the already swelling waiting lists for Odum Village which rents for more than twice as much as Victory Village.

Present rents in Victory Village range from $24 to $40. Those in Odum Village range from $72 to $82.

Comparable housing elsewhere rents from $85 to $125 a month.

The current housing shortage caused by a shrinking Victory Village and increased housing demands is not the first time married students were faced with such a problem, according to UNC Housing Director James E. Wadsworth.

"In fact," Wadsworth said, "UNC never recognized married students' housing problems until after WW II when an increasing number of GI's returned to school under the GI Bill."

Married students were first housed in Alexander and Whitehead Residence Halls, a couple to each room. They lived there until the Village was completed in 1946.

Some of the units were moved from Laurenberg, some from Wilmington, all were sorely needed.

"They never have been adequate to meet the demand for housing," Wadsworth said, "but they were a big help."

Now they are to be torn down. No more "cheap housing" is planned to replace them.

In fact, no University official consulted expects construction to start on married student's housing of any kind within the next three years.

Plans for construction of 300 more permanent units are included in the capital improvements request according to UNC Business Manager James A. Branch, but no one seems to know where married student housing is on the priority list.

"I don't know, but it has to be treated as a relatively high priority," said UNC Director of Planning Arthur N. Tuttle, "to replace those we are planning to tear down."

Even when new permanent housing is constructed, it will probably increase the rents on the existing units, Director of Accounting Victor Bowles said.

This rate increase will be caused by increased building costs and by the fact that both the existing units and future units are handled as one project, he said.

"We won't tear down any more units than construction of additional Health Affairs structures make necessary," Bowles added, speaking of Victory Village. "We hope to get the funds for the new recreation center for Odum Village from there."

Gross income for both Odum and Victory Villages was $380,000 last year. Total profits were $137,000 — $49,000 for Victory and $88,000 for Odum Village.

THE DYING VILLAGE buried in a blanket of snow may soon be put under for good. Reporter Bob Harris continues tomorrow with his third article in a four-part series.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

'Committee For Free Inquiry'

Students Organize On Speaker Stand

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

More than 350 students formed the Committee for Free Inquiry last night, less than 24 hours after the executive committee of the board of trustees denied Communist Herbert Aptheker the right to speak on campus.

A four-member committee was appointed to invite Governor Dan Moore, members of the board of trustees and other interested parties to appear at a mass student rally before the entire board of trustees meets Feb. 28 to finally settle the Aptheker issue.

The steering committee consists of Student Body President Paul Dickson; SDS Vice Chairman Garry Waller; Sid Waldman, an instructor in the Department of Politic al Science; and Dave Gullette, a graduate student in English and part-time instructor

Another student meeting was planned for Friday afternoon at which time the steering committee will report plans for the mass student meeting. A permanent steering committee will be elected at this time.

The hour and 45 minute meeting in Murphy Hall saw members of the left wing battle with Dickson for control of the temporary steering committee. A compromise was finally reached, at least until Friday.

Waller and others said they did not want the organization placed entirely in the hands of Student Government.

Dickson and his backers contended that Student Government was a recognized organization and would draw wider support.

Early in the meeting, Dickson broke up plans for immediate action to protest the trustee action.

Dickson pleaded with the students to "wait and see" before taking any action. He said the Aptheker case would not be finally settled until the full board of trustees met in Raleigh Feb. 28.

"It is important that we wait until we have exhausted all possibilities here on campus before we seek other action. Demonstration before Feb. 28 will only hurt our chances before the board," Dickson said.

In attempting to clarify the executive committee's action, Dickson said the committee only revoked all speaker invitations made before Feb. 28. He said that since there was no final decision on Aptheker that there were no grounds at this time for legal action.

Wilson Clark, president of the Conservative Club, who walked out of Monday's student meeting, said he would endorse the Committee for Free Inquiry if the group would distinguish clearly between the issue of free speech and controversy for controversy's sake.

The gathering was originally called by SDS to organize a protest of the trustees ban of Aptheker.

The group was made up of many members of the "left" but the moderating influence of Dickson, Gullette, Waldman and others in the audience led the group to organize for a campaign aimed at showing the great majority of the University community believes in, and demands their freedom of speech.

Why Did Trustees Ban Wilkinson?

By ERNIE McCRARY
DTH Editor

Why did the executive committee of the UNC board of trustees include Frank Wilkinson in its Monday night speaker ban decision?

Throughout the controversy Wilkinson has take a back seat to the discussion of Herbert Aptheker, an admitted Communist.

Both men had accepted invitations from the UNC chapter of Students for a Democratic Society to speak here.

Wilkinson was sentenced to a year in prison for contempt of Congress because he refused to answer questions about communist activity from the House Committee on Un-American Activities, but SDS members claimed he had never taken the Fifth Amendment — and therefore not subject to the old speaker ban law. If that were the case, the invitation to him would not be subject to review by the trustees.

A document called "Report and Testimony of Robert Carrillo Ronstadt" convinced the trustees that they did have reason to include Wilkinson in the ban ruling. The report, based on HUAC hearings in Los Angeles Apr. 25-27, 1962, says Wilkinson has invoked the Fifth Amendment and has been identified by FBI agents as a Communist.

The report says, "Wilkinson appeared before that state committee (California Senate Fact - Finding Committee on Un-American Activities) on Oct. 28, 1952, and invoked the Fifth Amendment on all questions about Communist Party membership, associations and affilitations."

When Wilkinson appeared before that state senate committee in 1952 he was employed by the Los Angeles City Housing Authority. The committee ruled that on the basis of the evidence it had acquired Wilkinson and his wife were members of the Communist Party of Los Angeles County.

Wilkinson was fired from his job with the housing authority.

Wilkinson was called before a HUAC hearing in Atlanta in 1958. He refused to answer questions and refused to invoke either the First or Fifth amendments, saying the committee should be abolished.

The HUAC report says he was cited for contempt of Congress Aug. 13, 1958, for this action. The Supreme Court upheld his Jan. 23, 1959 conviction and he went to prison on May 1, 1961. He served nine months of the one-year sentence.

Ho Asks Peace Talks

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian government is studying what to do about a two-weeks-old letter in which Ho Chi Minh is reported to have asked President Sarvapelli Radhakrishnan's good offices for peace in Viet Nam.

A spokesman for North Viet Nam's Consulate General said Tuesday such a letter was one of several the chief executive of the Hanoi regime sent to various capitals Jan. 24. The tone of these communications as broadcast by Radio Hanoi Jan. 28 was tough, with no mention of any overture for negotiations.

The spokesman quoted Ho as saying that India, as chairman of the three-nation International Control Commission, bears a special responsibility for the restoration of peace.

Other members of that agency are Canada and Poland. The Commission's watchdog powers derive from the Geneva Conferences of 1954 and 1962.

White House Spokesman Bill D. Moyers, who attended the Honolulu summit conference with President Johnson, had no comment.

Radhakrishman is in Bombay. His office here refused to discuss the issue in his absence, but it was understood the Indian government is consulting with friendly governments.

The Indian cabinet has studied the matter. So has an emergency subcommittee of the cabinet. Sources indicated that, though 20 days have elapsed, no reply has been made to Ho.

Several capitals previously reported receiving letters from Ho.

Radio Hanoi's Jan. 28 broadcast said he had sent letters to leaders of the socialist nations denouncing President Johnson's peace overtures and expressing hope of increased support and assistance for North Viet Nam.

Blood Givers Can Register

Students interested in giving blood in the UNC Blood Drive slated for next Wednesday and Thursday will be able to sign up for the specific time they want to give blood, according to Sonny Pepper, blood drive chairman.

A signup sheet will be available in Y - Court from noon until 4:30 p.m. daily, today through Friday.

Pepper said permission slips will also be available in Y-Court for students who are under 21 years of age and want to give blood.

The chairman pointed out that the permission slip must be signed by the student's parent before he can give blood.

Pepper said the early signups by students will save a lot of time for students when they go to give blood and it will also help in the pre-planning of the program.

Approximately 900 students will be needed, Pepper said, to get the 600 pint quota, because many are rejected.

Several campus organizations will assist in the two-day blood drive.

Included will be the Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, Sigma Nu Fraternity, NROTC members, Semper Fidelis and some sorority members.

The assistants will be trained on Tuesday from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Pepper said the donors will be given donor credit cards when they give blood. Refreshments will also be served.

The blood collection periods will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday and 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Journalism Week To Be Observed

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

A number of nationally known figures in the communications field will address groups on campus during the first annual Journalism Week March 12-20.

Dean Wayne A. Danielson, of the School of Journalism, said approximately 500 persons are expected to attend Journalism week.

Included among the speakers will be Charles Kuralt of CBS News; Hugh Mulligan of Associated Press; Marjor Hunter of the New York Times; Relman (Pat) Morin, Associated Press special correspondent; Benjamin McKelway, editorial chairman of the Washington Star; Don Carter, editor of National Observer; Edwin Diamon, of Newsweek; Sylvan Meyer, editor of the Gainesville (Ga.) Times; James Clendinen, president of the National Editorial Writers Association, Arville Schaleben, executive editor of the Milwaukee Journal; and Raymond L. Spangler, publisher of the Redwood City, (Calif.) Tribune and president of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity.

Meyer and Clendinen will address the editorial writers of the state on the first day of the observance. Mark Ethridge of the School of Journalism will also address the editorial writers.

Schaleben will be the principal speaker for Press Clubs Day on March 13. His topic will be "Your Future in Journalism." Tom Inman of the Raleigh News & Observer and David Gillespie of the Charlotte Observer will also address the press club delegates.

Diamond will talk to the news and feature writers in a Wednesday morning session. A panel discussion of newspaper journalism versus broadcast journalism will be conducted in the afternoon. Kuralt and Carter will be the panelists. Roy Thompson of the Winston - Salem Journal and Sentinel will be the

(Continued on Page 6)

Lynd Invited To Speak Here

Yale professor Staughton Lynd has been invited to speak on the Chapel Hill campus by the Carolina Forum.

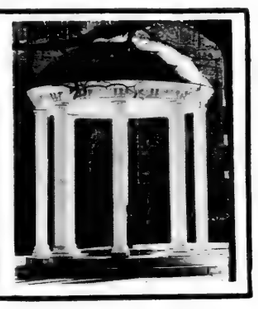
Lynd's passport was revoked recently by the State Department because he traveled to North Viet Nam with Communist Herbert Aptheker and SDS organizer Tom Hayden.

Forum head George Nicholoson refused to comment on the invitation, which was made last week by letter. There was been no reply.

If he appears, Lynd will be on a panel with a moderate conservative, and a liberal. He will speak on his trip to North Viet Nam.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Free Dancing In A Free Society

Shades of ban-dancing and the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest.

The junior class is holding a barbecue Sunday and had planned to have a dance afterwards in the Tin Can.

They checked things out, but someone in the Physical Education Department told them that University policy prohibits dancing on Sundays.

Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey said he didn't know of any such rule, so the University lawyer will have to be contacted for a ruling.

And we thought this "freedom of speech" was a serious problem.

Nyet On Nikita

Well, you can say one thing now that the executive committee of the board of trustees has turned down Communist Herbert Aptheker — at least in this respect we have something in common with Disney Land

Khrushchev couldn't visit here either.

We really don't know what all the fuss is about anyway. Everyone knows that Aptheker is like that dog we all know: All Marx and no bite.

And Yet, More Trivia

After popular request we once again try our hand at stumping you with some more Trivia.

1. What is the name of the brother and sister team in the Hardy Boys?
2. What s Scrooge McDuck's most prized possession?
3. What kind of bread does the Lone Ranger eat?
4. What is the name of Superman's father?
5. What is the name of the Lone Ranger's teenage nephew?
6. What did Mary Jane say to make herself small?
7. What was written on Tubby's playhouse?
8. Who was Pinky Lee's girlfriend?
9. What radio family kept an untidy closet?
10. What was the name of Ed Norton's wife?
11. Who said "Oh Cisco?"
12. Who said "Oh Pancho?"

ANSWERS:

1.Chet and Iola Morton; 2. His first dime; 3. Merita; 4. Jor-el; 5. Dan Reed; 6. Magic words of pool, pool, pool, pillles. Make me just as small as sniffles; 7. No girls allowed; 8. Molly Bee; 9. Fibber McGee and Molly; 10. Trixie; 11. Pancho; 12.

IFC Seeks New Officers

The IFC last night opened nominations for offices for the coming year. The nominations will remain open until Feb. 21 When new officers will be elected.

Nominations made last night included, for president, Lindsay Freeman; vice president, Mac Thompson and Bill Nucciarone; secretary, Bill Guy and Randy Meyer; rush chairman, Sterling Phillips; court members, Nelson Schwab, Trey Obenshain, Jerry Lawson, John Gernert, Tom Higgins, Steve Fox, and Jimmy Barber.

Other nominations made be made by contacting Frank Martin, IFC president; or Bernard Dotson, IFC secretary.

The group voted to change the by - laws of the organization so that the new president will be elected at the last meeting in February and will be trained in his official duties until he takes over the position in April when the other officers will be elected. The change in the by-laws is to take effect in 1967.

A proposal was made to set up a tutoring program for freshmen. Phil Kirstein, who introduced the proposal, said the program would be beneficial to all fraternity houses on campus.

Kirstein was appointed to head a committee to investigate the proposal.

It was announced that rush invitations will be distributed at Y-Court Friday and Saturday. Strict silence, in connection with rush, will be observed until noon on Feb. 18, Martin said.

THIS STRANGE-LOOKING, upside down icicle sitting in a yard in Victory Village is all that is left of an eight-foot snowman. Very slowly the snow which blanketed the campus is beginning to disappear. —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Faculty Elects Danielson

Dean Wayne Danielson of the School of Journalism was re-elected president of thNorth Carolina Faculty Club at the annual business meeting yesterday.

Dr. William Straugh was re-elected treasurer. Dr. James Prothro was chosen vice president. Elizabeth Fink is the new secretary.

Fink, Prothro, Dr. Oscar Rice, and Dr. Norman Eliason were named to the board of governors.

Graham Picks Heads

Steve Williams was elected president of Graham Residence Hall in elections Monday night. Ronnie Sprinkle was chosen vice president. They succeed Jim Sturges and Terry Peterson.

Job Interviews

Five companies will be on campus today to interview students for positions.

The five are Lockheed-Georgia; Parke - Davis; Armstrong Cork; Old Fort Finishing Plant; and Vanity Fair.

Tomorrow the First National City Bank of New York; Armstrong Cork, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, Proctor Gamble, Vanity Fair; and General Electric will have representatives on campus.

Anyone wanting an interview should come by the Placement Service at 204 Gardner and make an appointment.

Alcohol And Law

A panel discussion on "Alcoholism and the Law" will be conducted tomorrow at 2:15 p.m. in the Law School Courtroom.

Included on the panel will be Anthony Brannon, Dan Edwards, solicitor for Durham County Superior Court; Dr. John Edwards, dean of the UNC psychiatry department; Michael Katz, professor of criminal law; Martin Peterson, director of rehabilitation for the North Carolina Prison Department; and Judge L. J. Phipps, of Chapel Hill Recorder's Court.

Dan Pollitt, professor of constitutional law, will be the panel moderator.

The panel will discuss the state's duty to the alcoholic in the case Driver vs. Hinnant.

The panel will be open to the public.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Damned If It Did

The executive committee of the board of trustees was damned if it did, and damned if it didn't.

It did, and it is.

The questions asked about 47,000 times yesterday were, "What's going to happen now? What can we do?"

If anyone knows, he should step forward and ask to be made president of the University, or at least Chapel Hill chancellor.

Three groups are most directly affected and most dissatisfied with the executive committee's ruling against letting Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson speak: students, faculty and administration.

The administration clearly staked itself out in favor of the appearance of these speakers. The trustees rejected its arguments and every administrator knows he must accept that rejection or look for another job. Administrators might find some things undesirable, but the practical ones find nothing unacceptable.

The administration can do nothing except hang on for the ride and try to make the landing as soft as possible.

Faculty members could resign. A few might quit because of the current issue, but it is more likely that they will just drift away. Many professors refuse frequent offers of higher-paying jobs from other universities just because they like it here.

That includes satisfaction with the academic environment. If that satisfaction ceases to exist those offers will become more enticing and we might wake up one morning in the next few years and find the cream has been skimmed off our faculty. Recruiting of promising young professors will undoubtedly be made more difficult if UNC establishes the reputation of being a school where the intellectual climate is stifling. Such a situation will be created if the trustees hold us on our present course.

Students have the least to lose by engaging in really vocal opposition to the trustees' decision. They cannot lose the respect or confidence of the trustees and the majority of the people of the state since they apparently do not have it now.

They could strike. They could march. They could lie-in at the governor's office. They could hang effigies. They could fly flags at half mast, in mourning for the death of academic freedom. They could hold rallies day and night.

They could, but they should not. Just because people seem to think we are a bunch of empty-headed, irresponsible nincompoops, we do not have to prove it. Such antics could have no other result.

To be effective, protest must have meaning. At this point, no meaningful protest is apparent.

Perhaps a time for action will come later, but now we risk losing sight of our ultimate goal of freedom from restriction if we become entangeled in demonstrations which will resolve nothing.

One thing can settle this question, one way or the other: court action. It carries the price of distasteful publicity, but that cost is small when compared to what we might lose if academic freedom dies at this University.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Barry Jacobs

Supporters Of Free Speech Should Be Willing To Listen

The mass meeting called by Paul Dickson on the Aptheker question turned out to be a pep rally in support of Aptheker's right to speak here and the students' right to hear him. There's nothing wrong with this kind of meeting; it can demonstrate vividly the position of the campus on this issue.

Of course, a meeting called at high noon is like to attract generally people in favor of what the meeting is about. It does seem to be true, however, that a solid majority of the campus community supports Aptheker's speaking here.

The speakers, besides Dickson, were Dr. Louis Lipsitz, Dr. Joseph Straley, adviser to the Students for a Democratic Society, Gary Waller, vice president of SDS, and Wilson Clark, of the Carolina Conservative Club.

On virtually any other issue it is safe to assume that Clark and the other three would be on opposite sides. In fact, the basic animosity came out when Clark made a few remarks to Waller before the conservative representative began to speak. It soon became evident that Clark's position was basically different from the others': While agreeing that Aptheker had the right to speak at UNC, Clark vehemently proclaimed that the Communist should not have been invited.

Then as Clark continued his tirade against communism, a frightening thing happened. The audience, which had been listening to and applauding much high-blown sentiment about the sanctity of freedom of speech, absolutely refused to let Clark speak! They laughed at him, hissed him, and jeered him.

Did this action exemplify their belief in free speech? Somehow the audience didn't strike me as people who, to quote the telegram which the group voted to send to the board of trustees, would "defend to the death" Wilson Clark's right to say what he believed.

I am not trying to defend all of the statements Clark made. Certainly his speech got a bit violent. The merit of Clark's arguments, however, is quite beside the point. I don't think Paul Dickson is going to defend what Herbert Aptheker will say if he comes here.

The point is that Wilson Clark has as much right to speak on this campus as does Aptheker. The audience at Memorial Hall came to cheer the defense of freedom of speech. Yet free speech becomes a mockery if the audience can't hear the speaker above their own jeers and catcalls. People that sincerely believe in free speech should, in addition to granting a man the right to speak, grant him the right to be heard.

The performance Monday makes me wonder why these people want Aptheker to come to Chapel Hill. Will they go to hear him or to jeer him?

Dickson gave a good pragmatic reason for allowing communists to speak here or anywhere else in America: Hearing what they have to say makes it easier to defeat them. The same argument can be used for any shade of political philosophy. But in order to hear what your opponents are saying, you have to listen to them, not try to shout them down.

Apthker should be allowed to speak here. Those of us who believe in the American way of life can only profit by hearing what those who oppose that way of life have to say. But we must really hear them.

Those who went to Memorial Hall to express their support for Aptheker's appearance here and who then took part in the laughing and hissing at Clark should remember one thing. Freedom of speech can be stifled by the hostility of people who refuse to listen as easily as it can be stifled by a gag law.

The Student Speaks

Two-Year Arguments Weak

By J. PAUL JOHNSTON

In his column last Friday, Barry Jacobs set out some arguments against the proposed amendment to lengthen the terms of the members of the U. S. House of Representatives; arguments which, in the face of research findings on the composition of the House and on the electoral behavior of the public, I feel should not go uncontested. When evaluated in light of this information, I think these arguments turn out to be much less convincing than Jacobs seems to think they are.

He presents two basic arguments in the column. First, that the Framers of the U. S. Constitution specifically included the two-year term for Representatives as part of a design to make the lower chamber of Congress subject to closer popular control, and, hence, more responsible to the people. He argues that the proposed four-year term would make Representatives less subject to popular control and thus less reponsible to the people.

The second argument is that the timing of the four-year elections as concurrent with the Presidential election would emphasize the "coattails effect" and possibly create a "President's party" of four year duration in the House. The present existence of biennial, off-year elections is the feature that he claims protects against this result. Let us consider the two arguments separately.

First, although the Framers may have had such a design as Jacobs notes in mind, design and actual practice do not always turn out to be identical. In the case of the House of Representatives the opposite trend is more evident. If popular control is construed to be the exercise of the opportunity to "turn the rascals out," then the House is probably less responsive to popular concept present than is the Senate with its six-year terms.

The average tenure of members of the House is actually longer than in the Senate. An analysis shows that in most cases the same persons are elected from their districts term after term, often in elections in which the incumbent is not even contested. The existence of two-year terms has not altered this situation, it seems.

Futhermore, if there is any responsiveness to popular control, it seems more likely to be exerted more directly by the Congressmen than by the people of his district. Most voters don't even know who their Congressman is, much less what his performance has been on specific matters during his term. This situation is highlighted even more in off-year elections, as I will show presently.

Thus, the responsibility of a Congressman to his constituents is more likely to depend on his own knowledge of the demographis and socio-economic composition of his constituency and the accuracy of his perceptions of the views his constituents hold on issues.

If we consider these matters along with the average length of tenure in the House, the existence of a two-year term taken alone sems to have failed as a major means of ensuring popular control over the House at a stronger level than, say, in the Senate.

The second argument is similarly open to serious question in the face of research findings. While the feature of off-year elections may eliminate the "coattails effect, it does not necessarily mean that we get more direct popular control over members of the House. Off-year elections are generally less important in the minds of most voters. Turnout for them is lower than Presidential year elections, as also is public awareness of candidates and issues.

A study of contested districts in the off-year 1958 Congressional elections shows that only 24% of the voters had heard or read of both candidates, and that only 54 had such knowledge of either of the two major candidates. Of those who were able to comment on the candidates, only 3% mentioned legislative issues of any kind in their comments. Finally, a majority of the people interviewed were not even aware of which party had controlled Congress during the previous two years.

It is obvious that the stimuli to voting, i.e., to registering a response to the Representative's conduct in office, are noticeably fewer in number and weaker in strength in off-year elections. In such "non-salient" elections, as off-year elections are usually wont to be, it is more likely that the voter will merely vote for the candidate from the party with which he identifies.

Thus, changes in who will occupy a given seat in the House as a result of off-year elections are more likely to be a result of factors other than simply the opportunity for the public at large to exercise popular control and to make demands for responsible conduct at two year intervals rather than at four year ones.

All of the above information argues against Mr. Jacobs' criticisms of the proposed amendment. Furthermore, all of this information is available in the text used in the introductory course in political science here at UNC. It is suggested that Mr. Jacobs do some spadework in such basic sources of factual information as this text before he attempts his next column on such matters.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

Letters To The Editor

Severe Punishment

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The case of the suspension of a coed for putting down a sign-in time 15 minutes earlier than the actual time seems unduly severe, even though there was a previous offense of staying out all night.

Two worse offenses in the New Testament—Peter's denial of Christ three times to save himself and the adultery of Mary Magdalene—were not punished by expulsion, due to the repentance of the parties concerned and the mercifulness of Jesus.

Surely a warning and some additional campusment would have been sufficient deterrents.

H. L. Rudolph

'Marketplace Of Ideas'

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The rash and irrational action of Governor Moore in suggesting that Herbert Aptheker not be allowed to speak on our campus is intensely dismaying. Has the long bitter struggle to repeal the onerous gag law been for nought? Are the fetd promises of last December sheer brummagem? The recent benighted action of the "Mountain Man" would have us believe so.

Governor Moore's action recalls Napoleon's remark of the Bourbons in that he has "learned nothing and forgotten nothing." It seems that North Carolina, long regarded as the darling of the new progressive South, is becomming mired in the slime of what H. L. Mencken called its "ingrown morality."

The action of the SDS on campus was probably as Moore implied, unwise. The SDS should have waited until the festering sores of the late battle had healed before inviting such a speaker as Aptheker. But despite this premature invitation of a communist, the basic issues remain.

The whole principle of a University presupposes a marketplace of ideas where all the products and processes of man's mind are openly displayed. As consumers of ideas we students must have the freedom to examine all the merchandise, the glittering and the shoddy, the revolutionary and the archaic, the workable and the abstract. It is only through this act of choice and selection that we can form and compile a Weltanschauung, our view of reality.

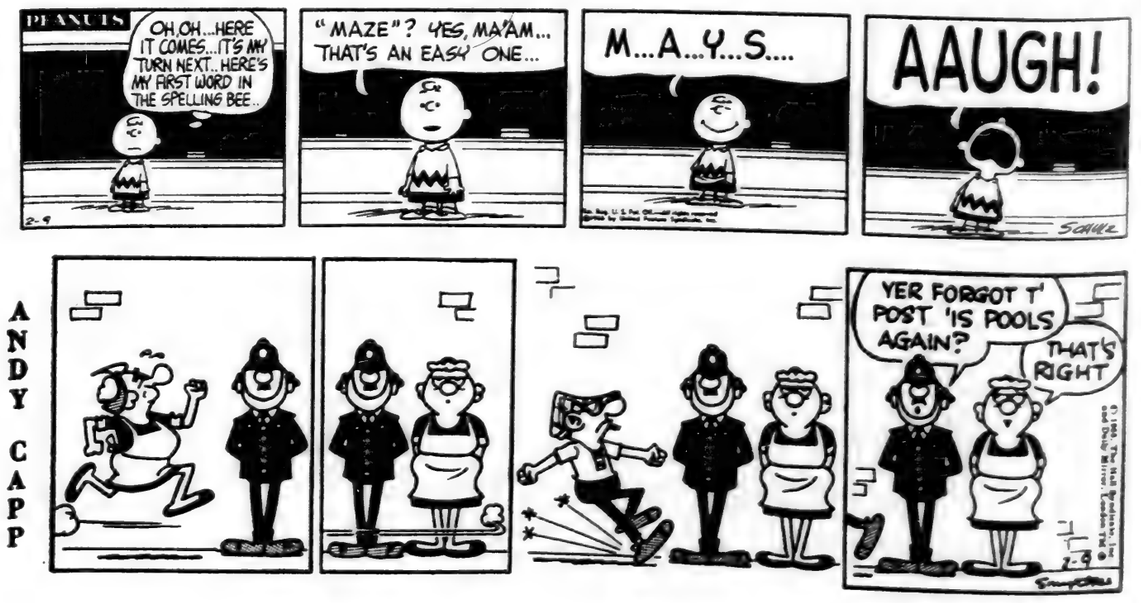
Granted, the procedure of choice and selection is not without its pitfalls. Just as buying a used car can put us in the driver's seat of a lemon or dangerous vehicle, the selection of a certain ideology can also put us into the deep end. But despite these inherent shortcomings, this method of free choice is still the best way I know to seek the truth.

Every new generation of students must seek its own approach to life. We as students are not blindly seeking knowledge of Communism or Dirigism, or Jansenism or Buddhism for the sake of creating gubernatorial floor pacing or judicial test cases. We are only seeking and asking for the right to freedom of inquiry, a right incidentally not granted by the Constitution.

Our University almost stands alone in its fight for free expression. Why must this wonderful state suffer this internecine battle of subterranean conferences and anagogic reversals in the Governor's mansion?

How like the men in Plato's cave are many of our legislators who once they were released from the shackles confining them to the darkness and taken out into the light they returned to the darkness. Let us end this virulent war and move out from darkness into the light—and stay there!

Hugh S. Owens, Jr.



Morrison Welcomes Nurses

By STEVE LACKEY
DTH Staff Writer

Morrison Residence College has been unofficially expanded to include Nurses Dorm. The new program was begun to establish a brother-sister relationship between residents of each hall.

Pat St. John, president of Nurses dorm and a member of the Interdormitory Coordinating Council, said that her dorm "has a whole new atmosphere about it," and adds that the program has "created so much dorm enthusiasm. What it was supposed to do, it's done."

Ward Mailliard, a council member from Morrison, outlined the purpose of the relationship as "keeping up a steady stream of contact between the two."

The plan was conceived about eight weeks before Christmas and ideas and activities began immediately.

Several women from Nurses Dorm visited Morrison one evening to polish shoes. The proceeds of the shine were $25 which was added to an interdormitory fund.

A group from Morrison will repay the favor on March 7 by polishing the nurses' shoes. According to St. John, the only restriction for this occasion will be that nurses must wear slacks.

During exams Morrison residents could study in the nurses' study rooms and vice versa. Free coffee and doughnuts were provided for students taking advantage of this opportunity.

The nurses provide several secretaries for the use of the Morrison Senate and committee meetings.

Perhaps the biggest project the dorms are planning now is the building of a park and picnic area between the two dorms.

The council plans to plant flowers, build rock gardens, and install a fireplace and several grills. The project should be completed by the end of February.

Residents are also planning a bridge tournament for the week of Feb. 21. The winning couple will receive trophies.

Plans range from parties Feb. 12 and Mar. 18 to the establishment of an interdorm folk singing group.

The party March 18 will feature the Tams. It will include a show and dance in Chase Cafeteria. Admission for Morrison and Nurses residents will be $3; outsiders will be admitted for $3.50.

This weekend the Weejuns will play in the Morrison social room. As usual, a Go-Go girl will perform.

The biggest weekend party will occur Apr. 16 and will encompass three days. It will be known officially as "Old Fashioned Weekend." Plans include a field day, dinner, square dance, concert and folk singers.

For Old Fashioned Week End Morrison residents will buy their lunches in an auction and receive as a bonus the nurse who prepared the meal.

Activities planned by the council are not altogether social however. The group intends to form a paint and repair committee to modernize the house of a needy family somewhere in Chapel Hill.

The Interdormitory Coordinating Council is composed of 8 students. They are Byron McCoy, Gary Boggs, John Ellis and Ward Mailliard from Morrison, and Pat St. John, Anne Smith, Nancy Hertle and Phyllis Kesler from Nurses dorm.

THIS BEAUTIFUL SPOT is the site of the planned park and picnic area for Morrison Residence College and the Nurses Dorm. The picture is taken from Morrison, and the building in the background is the Nurses Dorm. The spot should look better when the park is completed.

Bulletin

HONOLULU, (A) — President Johnson and South Viet Nam's government chiefs today ended their Mid-Pacific conference with a "declaration of Honolulu" asserting their determination to defeat the Communists in Viet Nam and to build a better life for its people.

Toronto Exchange Group Returns To UNC Campus

The 30 Carolina students representing the University in the Toronto Exchange returned to Chapel Hill on Feb. 1 after spending four days at the University of Toronto.

Dean and Mrs. William G. Long were also present on the trip, making it beneficial to the administration as well as to the student body.

Hubert Wooten, head of the Exchange program, said: "The unity of our University provided the unity for our program. We were able to emphasize informal discussions in a relaxed setting. The University of Toronto is a dissected University. Their program was unified for their well - planned and imaginative discussions."

David Broadhurst, who participated in the Toronto Exchange, said: "Our trip to Canada gave us an opportunity to view the U. S. from an outside position."

The topics of the panel discussions were the identity of Canada, practical morality as a substitute for organized religion and the conflict between the French and Canadians in Canada.

Social events on the trip included a trip to the Hart House Farm belonging to the University of Toronto, the Mapel Leaf Hockey Game, a Cole Porter Review and a dinner sponsored by the Metropolitan Government officials of Toronto.

Eric VanLoon, another participant in the Toronto Exchange said: "Our student exchange with Toronto has helped to promote understanding between two close neighbors."

Placement Service Slates Job Seminar Tomorrow

By MARTIN EATON
DTH Staff Writer

Looking for summer employment? The Placement Service is holding its annual Summer Job Seminar at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, in 105 Gardner Hall.

The seminar, according to Mrs. Henry S. Manning Jr., Placement Counseler, will be an all - student program. North Carolina students will discuss their personal summer job experiences.

Speakers and job categories will include Langley Talburt, drama; Matt Farstadt, camp; John Comfort, Experiment in International Living; Peter McBrair, sales; Mary Elizabeth Barber, resorts; and Ed MacDonald, work in Europe. A student with Peace Corps experience will describe the Peace Corps program for juniors.

A greater variety of job backgrounds will be represented this year than in past seminars.

Mrs. Manning emphasized that students should register for summer placement as soon as possible. Prospective employees have been applying since last November. There is no deadline, but applications should be in before March.

She added that many positions are still open. These will be filled through on-campus interviews and other methods later in the year. Applications will be available at the seminar.

Several summer jobs designed especially for juniors will provide an introduction to their permanent work. Such positions are open in the areas oil business, science, and math. There are also a number of government intern programs such as the one sponsored by the Peace Corps.

Very few jobs are open for freshmen and sophomores in government work because the civil service examination for summer office employees has already been given.

There are no restrictions on who may apply except for the pre - career programs which are restricted to juniors.

Companies and agencies insummer employees during February will include:

First City National Bank Feb. 10
Camp Tomahawk and Wicosuta Feb. 15
Kurt Salmon Associates, Inc. Feb. 22
Roadway Express Feb. 22
Vick Feb. 22-23
Naval Research Lab Feb. 24
Good Humor Company Feb. 24
Seaboard Citizens National Bank Feb. 24
Pilot Life Insurance Co. Feb. 28
Prudential Life Insurance Feb. 24
Dow Corning Feb. 23

The First City National Bank, Vick, Pilot Life, and Dow Corning openings are for juniors only.

DAILY CROSSWORD

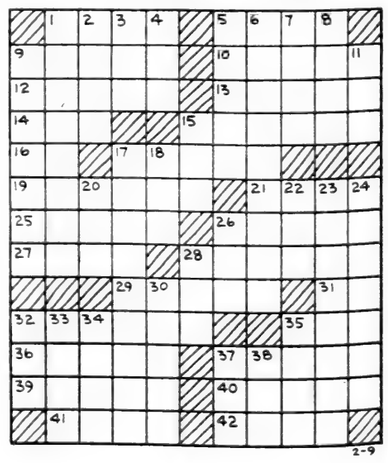
ACROSS

1. Grant
5. Run before the wind
9. Assert one's right to
10. Ward off
12. Stopovers in desert
13. Roman handles
14. Small fish
15. Capital city
16. Music note
17. Perfume with incense
19. Bear
21. Grate
25. Staggers
26. Under legal age
27. Proof-reader's mark
28. Manipulate
29. Frosting
31. Roman numeral
32. Cuts, as a roast
35. Shoshonean Indian
36. Mountain nymph
37. Island country
39. Skin disease of tropical America
40. Aside
41. Performer
42. Optimistic

DOWN

1. Mr. Goodman's instrument
2. Simple
3. Perish
4. Printers' measures
5. Short gaiters
6. Galloping
7. Bear constellation
8. Stalemate
9. Funds
11. Affirmative
15. Single unit
17. Till
18. Bitter vetch
20. "Across the sands of ——": Kingsley
22. Conjunction
23. Lonely
24. Obviate
26. Fortify
28. Possessive
30. —— Rapids
32. Policeman
33. Dry
34. Separation center
35. Java tree
37. Jolt
38. Military address: abbr.

Yesterday's Answer



2-9

Television, Radio Programs Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 Morning News
9:00 In-School Television
11:00 Parlons Francais
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Midday News
12:45 Lip Reading
1:00 French Chef
1:30 Music In The Air
2:00 Science & Nature
2:30 Great Decisions — 1966
3:00 The Big Picture
3:30 Methods For Modern Teachers
5:00 What's New
6:00 News
6:15 History 503
7:00 Viewpoint On Mental Health
7:30 What's New
8:00 Great Decisions — 1966
8:30 Exploring The Universe
9:00 Public Affairs
10:00 Jazz Casual

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

Great Decisions' — 1966 — 8:00 p.m. — "Viet Nam."

Public Affairs — 9:00 p.m. "News in Perspective" News interpretation by members of The New York Times staff.

Jazz Casual — 10:00 p.m.— "Dizzy Gillespie Quintet."

WRAL (Ch. 5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson-Farm
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare-Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: ZOMBIES OF MOIA TAU: Greg Palmer
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Death Valley Days (c)
7:30 Batman (C)
8:00 Patty Duke
8:30 Blue Light (C)
9:00 Big Valley (C)
10:00 Long Hot Summer (C)
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: LAST BLITZKEIG: Van Johnson

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

PATTY DUKE — 8:00 p.m —Patty tries to help her father by dog-sitting with his society editor's spoiled poodle, but the dog is more trouble than she expected!

BLUE LIGHT — 8:30 p.m —David March's brother is shot down over Germany and held in a POW camp which March raids

THE BIG VALLEY — 9:00 p.m. — Jarrod Barkley tries to help an ex-convict who has spent 9 years in jail for a crime he didn't commit!

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today (c)
9:00 Capt. Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News
7:00 Hazel (c)
7:30 Lost in Space
8:30 Bev Hillbillies (c)
9:00 Get Smart (c)
9:30 Dick Van Dyke
10:00 Danny Kaye (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc)

6:00-6:55 Dinner Hour Music — Mozart, Sonata K 296 for violin; Bloch, Suite for viola and Su Te Hebraique
8:00-10:00 Masterworks—Concert of 19th century Russian music: Islamey and Thmar by Balakerev; Russian and Ludmilla Overture and Kamarenskaya by Glinka; Raymond Ballet by Glazonov; Suite from The Golden Cockrell

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING
Back home she couldn't get the swing of it...but in Paris she was an OVERNIGHT SENSATION!

ANN-MARGRET · LOUIS JOURDAN
RICHARD CRENNA · EDIE ADAMS
CHAD EVERETT JOHN McGIVER

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD
Wed. - Thur. - Fri. - Sat.
FEB. 9 - 10 - 11 - 12
Hours: 10 AM - 1 PM; 2 PM - 5 PM Daily
And 6:00 - 8:00 P.M. Friday Night
● NO APPOINTMENT NEEDED ● SELECTION OF SEVERAL POSES
● FULL POSE PORTRAIT ● BABIES AND CHILDREN OF ALL AGES
● PORTRAIT DELIVERED AT STORE A FEW DAYS AFTER TAKEN
● SATISFACTION GUARANTEED ● GROUPS $1.00 PER CHILD
CHAPEL HILL, N. C

Humphrey To Make Asian Goodwill Tour

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson decided Tuesday to send Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to Saigon to follow through on the Honolulu conference's plans to shore up South Viet Nam's economy and social structure.

The announcement came as Johnson wound up his two-day Pacific conference with Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Viet Nam.

Humphrey took off at 2:45 p.m. EST Tuesday.

In a departure statement the Vice President said he had been asked by Johnson to go to Viet Nam, and went on:

"Then, together with the leaders of South Viet Nam, we shall be exerting all our energy to promote and carry forward the programs discussed in Honolulu which are deisgned to give the hard pressed people of Viet Nam the support they want and need and people with every possible advance in their livelihood, their health, the education of their children and all the other things that mean progress for all men."

Humphrey sketched his schedule of metings in Los Angeles with Johnson tonight and in Honolulu later with the officials who have been conferring with the President. 2

"We shall go directly to Saigon from Honlulu," he said.

"Later I expect to visit a number of other Far Eastern countries — to meet with their leaders and peoples — and to express our purposes and our hopes for peace and for progress in Viet Nam and all the Far East."

White House News Secretary Bill D. Moyers said Humphrey will accompany Thieu and Ky back to Saigon.

HUMPHREY ON TOUR

The Humphrey mission will be "a continuation of the effort we are making at the conference," Moyers said.

The Americans at the conference have laid emphasis on the need to build a better life for the people of South Viet Nam.

While the South Vietnamese agreed on this, the impression persisted that they were pushing for a bigger war against North Viet Nam and opposing any compromises with the Communists at a peace conference.

Moyers said Thieu and Ky extended the invitation for Humphrey to visit Saigon at a dinner conference with the President last night.

This will give Humphrey a chance to get to know the South Vietnamese leaders and be in a position t take part in any actions on the Vietnamese problm later, Moyers added.

In December, Humphrey undertook an Asian tour in connection with Johnson's peace offensive, but did not visit Saigon.

Humphrey went to New Delhi for the funeral of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri and there discussed the Vietnamese war with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. Later he visited Japan, Korea, the Philippines and Nationalist Chinese Formosa.

Johnson and his top aides had originally scheduled two meetings with the Vietnamese for today. But the afternoon session was canceled, possibly because of the Humphrey development.

At every opportunity, administration officials here have underscode the economic and social programs designed to give the Vietnamese people a greater stake in supporting the Saigon government against the Reds.

The American and Vietnamese officials were on the same wave length so far as measures for improvment of Viet Nam's economic health and the lot of its people were concerned.

They both appeared enthusiastic about land reform, rural pacification, inflation control, broadening of education, improvement of health, democratization, and similar approaches.

Louis Harris, the polling expert, has donated data in his polling practices to the Political Science Department at the University of North Carolina. The University has begun a "Harris Polling Center."

Unemployment Dips To Nine-Year Low

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz reported Tuesday the lowest jobless rate in nine year, but said it is only the years, but said it is only the Johnson's goal of full employment without inflation.

The unemployment rate dipped to 4 per cent in January, and Wirtz told Congress it can be cut below 3 1-2 per cent this year without forcing up prices.

Wirtz said the nation's record five - year economic boom has already disproved that there must be cycles of depression and prosperity.

"Now the question is . . . employment without creating wage increase pressures which will lead to inflationary spiraling," Wirtz told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

"There is already . . . considerable disproof of the theories of the inevitablility of wage and price inflation," he said.

Wirtz said the economy in 1966 can more than match the past year's record of soaking up an increase of 1.6 million in the labor force, boosting employment 2.2 million to a total of 71.2 million and slashing unemployment 700,000 to 3.3 million.

But the economy must keep expanding, with federal policies aimed at stabilizing prices while striving to provide jobs for every American willing and able to work, he said.

In dropping from 4.1 per cent in December, the jobless rate in January reached an interim goal of 4 per cent set by the White House economic advisers in 1962.

Actually, the Januray rate dipped under the 4 per cent—to 3.952 per cent — but the Bureau of Labor statistics rounded it off to the higher figure as it usually does and adjusted it for seasonal forces. Without seasonal adjustment, the rate was 4.4 per cent.

Total employment dropped 1.5 million in January but it usually falls 200,000 more than that, and the number of unemployed climbed 400,000 — about 100,000 less than expected for that month.

Wirtz said to push the jobless rate down further the government must now concentrate on special areas — the unskilled, women, youths, Negroes and the poor.

He said Johnson's "Great Society" programs were in large measure responsible for the past year's improvements in the job picture.

Wirtz noted reports of growing labor shortages but said these are mostly in skilled trades, white unemployment is worse among unskilled teenagers — with a 12 per cent rate — and nonwhites with a 7 per cent rate.

"Half of the teen - age unemployed are in scool and looking for only part-time work. Their getting it may be the difference between their being able to stay in school," Wirtz said.

"This problem is as serious in some ways as the problem of the unemployed father of seven children, but it is a different problem warranting different analysis and different remedy."

The jobless rate for aduit men was 2.6 per cent in January and 3.8 per cent for adult women.

"If the unemployment rate for women could be reduced to that for men this would be reflected in an increase of $3 billion in the gross national product," Wirtz said.

South Viet Nam Will Not Negotiate With Viet Cong

HONOLULU (AP) — Top officials of South Viet Nam made it clear Tuesday they are absolutely unwilling to negotiate with representatives of the National Liberation Front — political arm of the Viet Cong —and that they favor bombing of Haiphong and other industrial targets in North Viet Nam.

Nguyen Van Thieu, the Chief of State in Saigon, told a news conference here that it would be proper to say he would be unwilling to sit down with the National Liberation Front under any condition.

"Yes, yes, that is my point of view," he said.

Ky predicted that "by the end of 1967—the year when we will have free elections — we will eliminate the influence of the Communists in South Viet Nam."

He stopped short of predicting total military victory by that date, telling newsmen, "I can't say how long" it will take to achieve such a victory.

But he said he expected improvement over the next seven months.

Ky appeared somewhat irritated when newsmen pressed him on the negotiation question.

"Everywhere I go people ask me about peace and negotiations," Ky said. "Why don't you go and ask the aggressors when they will stop their aggression, and then we'll have peace?"

He added he was not only opposed to negotiating with the Viet Cong, but made it clear he would not have any part of a coalition government.

Ky said that he and Thieu did not specifically discuss with Johnson making Haiphong a target for U. S. bombers.

However, Ky quoted the President's remarks that "we must do everything to prevent aggression," and the obviously meant that the South Vietnamese leaders believe that hitting North Viet Nam harder falls within the meaning of those words.

It is U. S. policy to avoid hitting either Haiphong or the North Vietnamese capital, Hanoi.

Ky pronounced the military situation now as 100 per cent better than it was eight months ago, before U. S. troops entered the war in numbers.

He predicted that eventually the North Vietnamese regime will collapse.

Noting that he is from North Viet Nam himself, Ky said he understands the people up there and "I can tell you they're suffering now."

Viet Nam Note Tumbles Stock

NEW YORK (AP) —A report of a peace move by North Viet Nam sent the stock market spinning sharply lower in the heaviest trading in months Tuesday.

Defense stocks were hard hit.

The North Viet Nam Consulate General said in New Delhi, India, that President Ho Chi Minh sent a letter to Indian President Sarvapelli Radhakrishnan last month asking him to use his good offices for the restoration of peace in Viet Nam.

The market was advancing moderately before the report was carried on news wires.

It quickly turned down-steep losses erased early gains.

The New York Stock Exchange's high speed ticker tape fell 18 minutes behind in reporting floor transactions.

Air craft and airline issues, which had been leaders during the market's morning advance, were hard hit.

Losses included General Dynamics $1.87 to $56.62, United Aircraft $2.25 to $91.25, Ford Motor $1 to $56, U. S. Steel 87 cents to $52.75 and Kenncott $4.25 to $12.25.

Viet Cong Stronghold Falls To Allied Troops

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong's An Lao Valley stronghold fell quietly to the allies Tuesday. So did two Communist stores of food and other supplies built up within a long days march of Saigon. The guerrillas were campaigning elsewhere.

Thousands of U. S. Air Cavalrymen and Marines and troopers swarmed unopposed into the 15-mile-long An Lao Valley, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, in the third phase of a coastal offensive launched last month.

Villagers said the Viet Cong —who vowed to stay, as they had since the 1950s — blew up the valley's chief settlement and pulled out Sunday. Only one, a wounded youth, was left behind. Bad weather had delayed the allied strike for 48 hours.

Knifing into the enemy's logistics were these operations:

—U.S. 2st Infantry Division units, probing enemy tunnels and bunkers 35 miles northeast of Saigon, turned up 334 tons of rice, 68 tons of peanuts, 4 tons of salt, 50 pounds of explosives, 3,600 gallons of fuel and 4 trucks.

—Australians working with units of the U. S. 173rd Airborne Brigade in Operation Roundhouse, which started last Friday, uncovered almost 200 tons of rice and salt, seven trucks and a jeep in dense scrub 30 miles east of Saigon. The encampment, with parking bays camouflaged, had been evacuated hastily.

Two Red strikes Monday against units of the U. S. 101st Airborne Division's 1st Brigade backfired. Though suffering moderate casualties, the Americans said they killed at least 63 Viet Cong in the clashes in ricelands below Tuy Hoa, on the coast 240 miles northeast of Saigon.

South Vietnamese forces used planes, tanks and artillery to beat off the ambush of a 24 - vehicle convoy in the Mekong Delta 36 miles southwest of Saigon. A government spokesman said 42 guerrillas were killed. He said, however, casulaties among the 300 men in the convoy were heavy, indicating as many as 100 may have been hit.

U. S. planes hammered again at highways, barges and bridges of North Viet Nam in a campaign to stem the southward flow of munitions and other goods to the Communist forces. Air Force and Navy pilots flew 19 missions. Most centered around Vinh, 140 miles north of the border. A radar site southeast of that city was struck twice.

Key Industries Cite Manpower Shortage

NEW YORK (AP) — Severe manpower shortages are cropping up in some key areas of the economy as rising military needs in Viet Nam give new impetus to the five-year business boom.

More professional men such as engineers, scientists and mathematicians long have been needed almost everywhere.

But an Associated Press spot survey of major employment centers showed today that in some parts of the country mechanics, tool and die makers and other skilled and semiskilled workers also are in serious short supply.

The survey was completed just before the government announced today that the nation's unemployed rate dropped to 4 per cent in January — a nine-year low. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz predicted a further drop to 3.5 per cent later this year.

In a few states even unskilled labor is hard to hire.

Some industrial concerns have embarked on crash training programs. Others have begun hiring women for light factory work, part-time help, or older people.

Persons with skills in great demand are moonlighting — holding more than one job—on a big scale. Some craftsmen in their 70's are coming out of retirement to turn a fast dollar.

An increasing pinch is expected in the fields of nursing and hospital medical personnel because of the federal medicare program.

Said Arthur Rose, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington.

"The tightest labor maket areas are around the Great Lakes and the Ohio Valley — Detroit, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Chicago."

Factories making airplanes, helicopters, wheeled equipment and other supplies for the armed forces are hard-up for specialist engineers, tool and die makers, mechanics and precision machinists.

A spokesman for a Lockheed aircraft has turned out more than 1,500 structural assemblers in a special training program and is enrolling more at the rate of 90 a week. In the Los Angeles area, there is a shortage of highly specialized craftsmen only.

A spokesman for the Georgia Department of Labor said:

"We get compalints from employers over the state that they can't expand because qualified people are not available."

"What most employers are having to do is set their sights lower. Where formerly they maybe required a high school education and three years of experience, now they will accept a person with either one."

North Carolina News Roundup

Searchers Find Bodies

ELIZABETHTOWN (AP) — The body of a Fayetteville man, one of six persons aboard a cabin cruiser which capsized Sunday after plunging over a Cape Fear River lock, was recovered by searchers yesterday.

Still missing were the owner of the Vessel, his wife, and their three small children.

The Cumberland County sheriff's department reported that the body of Jasper Hyatt, 39-year-old Fayetteville welder, had been recovered from the river by men sent to aid in the search by the State Wildlife Department.

Some 50 men from Cumberland and Bladen Counties pressed the search for the five other apparent drowning victims.

Auto Inspectors Watched

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official said Tuesday his department is prepared "to prevent abuses" under the new motor vehicle inspection program which begins in North Carolina Feb. 16.

C. D. Lindsay, director of the State License and Safety Inspection Division, said "We are aware the legislature and the public will be watching the program. Our inspectors will be on the alert to prevent possible abuses such as overcharging and failure to provide adequate inspection."

Lindsay, whose department will administer the program, said 3,004 inspection stations throughout the state have been approved, including 241 in populous Mecklenburg County.

In addition, 547 "self inspection" stations have been approved for companies owning 10 or more vehicles.

Six safety features will be checked under the mechanical inspection program — headlights, horn, directional signals, brakes, windshield wipers and steering mechanism. The inspection fee is $1.50 per vehicle.

"We anticipate a big rush during the first three months," Lindsay said, "but we feel there are enough inspection stations so that motorists will not be inconvenienced by having to wait."

Those whose license numbers end in four must be inspected on or before April 30. Other inspection deadlines and numbers are as follows: Five, May 31; Six, June 30; Seven, July 31; Eight, Aug. 31; Nine, Sept. 30; Zero, Oct. 31; One, Nov. 30, and two, Dec. 31.

Lindsay said he expects more rejections on "improperly aimed headlights" than any other item.

If a car is turned down, the motorist has 90 days in which to correct the safety feature and take the vehicle back through the inspection station without extra charge. However, if he should drive the car without making the necessary repairs he would be open to arrest for having faulty equipment, Lindsay noted.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

SEE US for MONEY! Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.

Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

WANT ADS

APARTMENT TO SHARE: Roommate preferably male, wanted for new 4 room Carrboro apartment. $45 plus utilities. Geoffrey Stein, 223 Hillcrest Ave. 929-6072.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED — PERSON TO DO translations from Spanish into English. Call 929-5069 after 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

WANTED — SOMEONE TO share 2 bedroom, furnished apartment. Bill Busby, 942-2364.

FOR SALE
1961 T-BIRD HARDTOP
Air, power windows—brakes —steering. White walls, R-H.
BEFORE 6 P.M.—942-1655
AFTER 6 P.M. — 942-2937

Thanks for Shopping at The Intimate!

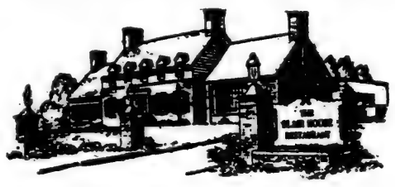
Now that the text rush is over and we've caught our breath, we'd like to express our appreciation to those of you who came to The Intimate for your books.

We hope we saved you time and money, and made the beginning crush a bit less harrying.

Again, thanks. Your patronage — and your suggestions for improved service — are most appreciated.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

LAST DAY! ANTONIONI'S
"RED DESERT"
Monica Vihi - Richard Harris
1, 3, 5, 7:01 and 9:03
RIALTO THEATRE, Durham



LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
The Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA
Wednesday Night Special
BROILED SOUTH AFRICAN LOBSTER TAILS
8 oz., Lemon Butter, Salad, French Fried Potatoes, Rolls and Butter 2.50
Serving 5:00 - 7:15

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographying
Over Sutton's Drugs
159 E. Franklin
942-3225
Xerox

WANTED: 4-5 light fingered students for undercover Peace Corps work night of Feb. 15. Incredible pay, opportunity to serve. Please call 933-1001 or contact Peace Corps Office in YMCA.

Expert Watch and Jewelry Repairing

Our watch and jewelry repair experts will restore your proud possessions to their original beauty and usefulness
T. L. Kemp Jewelry
Charm Headquarters

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

Game goes better refreshed.
And Coca-Cola gives you that big, bold taste.
Always just right,
never too sweet . . . refreshes best.
things go better with Coke
Drink Coca-Cola
Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola Company by:
Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

Jim Coghill

Assistant DTH Sports Editor

COME ALIVE! ! ! And that's exactly what happened in the second half as Carolina downed the University of South Carolina 104-70 Monday evening in Carmichael. The freshman came out on top also as they trounced Pembroke 96-69.

After a crushing blow at the hands of Maryland, Carolina redeemed itself — showing some 8,500 fans that UNC can still play ball.

"The effort was there and the defense looked good," Coach Smith said.

"Bennett played one of his better defensive games especially blocking shots," Smith continued, "and the subs did a great job."

Smith also singled out Lewis, Miller, Gauntlett and Yokley for their outstanding effort — both individually and team-wise.

The game's pace increased after the first half with the Tar Heels outshooting South Carolina 70-43. In addition, the Carolina men hit a cool 71.4 percent of their floor shots during the latter 20 minutes of play.

Just prior to the initial tap, an enthusiastic crowd rose to welcome a well known figure to the Carolia campus — Frank McGuire, coach of the 1957 UNC national champs.

Aside from the ball game, additional entertainment was offered in the form of Lou Bello, noted ACC referee. His pointed movements and jolly trot gave the crowd an extra laugh for the evening.

Needless to say, Coach Smith left Carmichael a happy man, but another person of basketball skill was just as pleased. This was freshman coach Larry Brown. Coach Brown now has 10 straight wins under his belt and with good reason — Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar, Joe Brown, Gerald Tuttle and Jim Bostick.

"I'm very thankful and it's great to see the unselfishness and respect each player has for one another," Coach Brown commented.

"The kids always give 100 percent effort game after game."

A member of the Pembroke squad, Joe Gallagher, a 6-5 center, said the Tar Babies were the best freshman team he had ever played against.

"The team's biggest asset is size," Gallagher said, "and those two little guards really make the team."

Speaking in retrospect about the Marland game, Coach Smith said, "We've learned from defeat, but we don't want to learn any more.

"We are a team who has got to hit the first shot and we didn't do this against Maryland."

Carolina now stands 11-6 overall and 5-4 in conference play.

In taking a break from ACC foes, Carolina plays New York University tonight in Yankee land and returns to Chapel Hill to entertain V.P.I. on Saturday evening. Then the last stretch of ACC competition rolls around with the Tar Heels facing conference foes right and left until tournament time.

Stacy Studs Down Everett Grossmen In Intramurals

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Clem Medley scored 29 points Monday to pace the Stacy Studs to a 72-40 romp over the Everett Grossmen in intramural basketball. Medley hit 13 points in the first half and tossed in 16 in the second half. Devan Brown collected 14 points, Jim Carpenter 13, Claude Sykes 8 and Jim Crane 8 for the Studs. Tom Fuller was the leading scorer for Everett with 14 points.

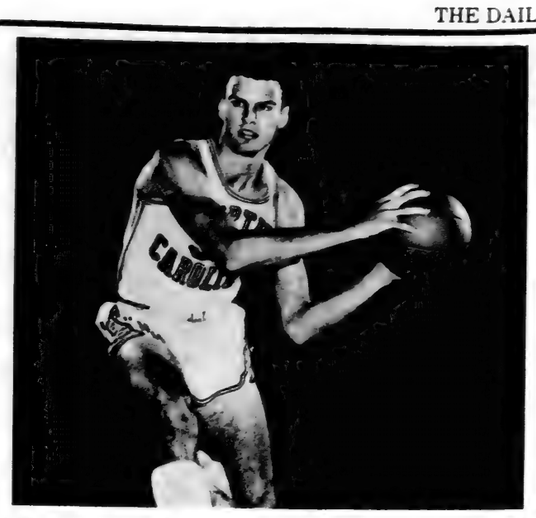
The Graham B-Balls slipped past the Everett Trojans in a low-scoring affair, 28-26. Ernest Beal led all scorers with 10 points for Graham. Steve Worthington had 8 and Buck Long 7 to help Beal. Melvin Watt had 8 for Everett, all in the first half. Everett led at the half, 16-15.

The Teague Toughs beat the Avery Wapps, 45-32, behind the 14 points of Jim Sanford and the 13 of Colby Daughtery. Ed Yarbrough added 9 more. Tim Road had 11 points in a losing effort for the Wapps.

The Morrison A Rebls ran over Morrison E Black, 62-57. Tony Beck tallied 18 points to lead the Rebels. He was supported by Jerry Hudson's 13 points, Curtis Collins' 12, Ed Lackey's 11 and Steve Whitley's 7. Dick McCorkle had 22 points and Ward Mallaird 17 for Morrison E.

Frosh Results

Carolina 80 Davidson 76



BOB BENNETT

Dolphins Host N. C. State

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The varsity swimming team takes on a strong North Carolina State squad tonight in Bowman Gray pool in Chapel Hill.

Carolina will take an 8-3 varsity record into the 8 p.m. meet with the undefeated Wolfpack. Coach Pat Earey says the task is a difficult one for his team.

"We'll do our best to push them as far as we can," he said. "They have so much versatility on their team that it's hard to match their depth."

Steve Rerych, a sprinter, butterfly man and individual medley man heads the State Swimmers. His best time in the butterfly this year is 2:00 flat, placing him among the best in the country. UNC will match Phil Riker against him in the butterfly, but there is no assurance Rerych will swim in that event.

John White and Pat Gavaghan are other excellent butterflyers on the State squad, both NCAA finalists. Gavaghan is also a strong freestyler.

John Calvert of State has turned in the third best time in the country in the individual medley this year. Calvert is a superb all-around swimmer who can enter almost any event.

Earey regards State as in the same class as the powerful Army squad. Riker is a good bet for a win in what should be the best race of the evening.

Tar Heels Battle Violets In Madison Square Tonight

North Carolina's Tar Heels visit basketball's showplace tonight as Coach Dean Smith takes his club to New York's Madison Square Garden to battle the Violets of New York University.

For a few of the Tar Heel performers, it will be homecoming

Mark Mirken, 6-6 reserve center, starred for Erasmus Hall in Brooklyn, N. Y., in his prep days. Reserve guard Donnie Moe is also from Brooklyn.

But for Bobby Lewis and Larry Miller — the fabulous L&M comination for the Tar Heels, averaging more than 50 points between them per game, it will be their first exposure to New York sports critics.

There is a common feeling among sports circles that any potential all - America must impress these New York critics. Sports publicists can plug their performers till they are blue in the face, but one slip in the big city — New York — and the cat is out of the bag.

But tonight's game will not be a Lewis and Miller exclusive. The Tar Heels will be seeking their seventh victory over the Violets coached by Lou Rossini. NYU has won nine over the Tar Heels, but North Carolina won last season's encounter 100 - 78 in Greensboro's Memorial Coliseum.

For once this season, the Tar Heels will command a height advantage. Stan McKenzie, a 6-5 forward, will be the tallest player in the NYU lineup.

McKenzie will be joined at the other forward by 6-4 Bruce Kaplan. At the center will be 6-4 Charlie Silen. Richard Dyer, 6-3, and Mal Grahm, 6-1, will be at guards.

The Violets have four performers averaging in double figures. Graham leads the point parade with a 25.9 average. Next comes McKenzie with a 22.5 average. Kaplan and Dyer, with 15 and 10.2 averages respectively, complete the picture.

All of those double-figure performers for NYU were starters last season on a ord and finished in the semi-finals of the National Invitational Tournament.

The Tar Heels and Violets have played two common foes this season. NYU defeated South Carolina 83-66 and West Virginia 104-91.

The Tar Heels defeated South Carolina Monday night 104-70 but lost to West Virginia 104-97.

Lewis and Miller have been getting ample scoring support from other Tar Heel performers.

Fauntleroy

HA. "I am the GREATEST."

Lots of you fans have been giving me grief recently. I picked Carolina as a sure thing against West Virginia and the next thing I knew you were jumping all over me. I've been publicly insulted and privately stabbed in the back.

I'll admit that I've made about five mistakes this year. But for my money a "teeny-weeny" event which took place in West Virginia last Monday night makes up for all that.

OK, ballfans. Put your tiny minds back to a statement mentioned in my last column. It read "WEST VIRGINIA OVER DUKE."

Well, no one beleived me. They laughed and talked about what a jerk I was. All the nations sports-writers ignored my prophecy. No one believed me, that is, except the fine young athletes of West Virginia.

Oh REVENGE HOW SWEET THOU ART.

The great one stood alone — ignorant of the tide of controversy. And now the great one stands alone basking in praise and glory.

But the triumph has passed. Next Saturday I shall again submit my column for publication.

Let's have the proper respect for the truths of Fauntleroy. Let's stop being grubby and ignorant readers. Put away your petty insults and mockery. Stand up and be counted.

Lou Bello—A Man For All Seasons

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Sometimes during the winter of 1941 Rocky Mount played a high school game in Durham. The game was an important one and the ref's name was "Footsie" Knight.

After the game someone walked up to Knight, the south's greatest ref, and asked him who the young kid was who worked the game with him. "That was Lou Bello," "Footsie" replied. "He's really something. Got lots of color. He'll be real good for the game of basketball."

That was twenty - five years ago. No one remembers who won the game or even the names of the players. But no one has forgotten Lou Bello.

Last Monday night Lou ran around the boards of Carmichael Auditorium. The kid has lost a lot of hair since the first big game he called. He has heavy jowels and a heavier belly. But he still works basketball games and his eyes still glow with humor and happiness.

Bello's interest in sports began in Ossening, N. Y.

"Ossening is a small town 30 miles north of New York City," Lou said. "It's famous for Sing-Sing Prison. When my father gets out I'll leave.

"I was a great high school star. I lettered in four sports. I hit 434 one year but it was a small school and only five boys went out for the basketball team."

"In 1940 I went to Duke. I wasn't good enough to play either basketball or baseball, so I turned to 'refing.' I began working junior varsity basketball games and on Saturdays I 'refed' at the YMCA. After the war, I came back to study at Duke and worked the varsity games."

Now Bello is at the top of his profession. He is one of the finest basketball refs in the nation. He has been invited to the NCAA playoffs six times.

Lou Bello is also the most popular member of a traditionally unpopular profession — because he makes people laugh.

"Humor in my job has come naturally," Lou said. "I remember watching men who never did anything but blow on their whistles, and I promised myself I'd be different. I want everyone in the place to know exactly what happens each time I call a foul. My style has been criticized. People have called me a clown and a showboat, but I've never tried to ruin a game. The game always comes first.

"When Carolina broke their game wide open Monday night, things got dull. It's only at a time like that that I try to liven things up.

"I love the crowds. Whenever they laugh I love it. But as long as they pay to see a game, they can do anything. Crowds aren't impartial. They shouldn't be. That's my job.

"This season has been kind of an anniversary for me. I've been around for 25 years. I'm really proud to have been associated with basketball that long.

"It's hard to pick out the best players I've seen—Lucas, West, Havilicek, Robertson and Rosenbluth. I've seen Bill Bradley score better than forty points. They're all wonderful.

"I 'refed' the game this season when Bob Lewis scored 49 against Florida State. Boy, that was really beautiful. Lewis and Miller have brilliant futures. Both are fine boys. They cooperate with you. That's what the good players are like. More interested in playing the game than arguing the calls."

You saw Lou Bello working on the green grass of Kenan Stadium this fall. If you didn't recognize him it's because a white cap covered his bald head. You'll see him again in the spring. He'll be wearing a blue shirt and he'll be crouching behind home plate calling balls and strikes.

Bello is the only man in the country working all three college sports. He's a man for all seasons.

"The officiating itself is very easy. It's the travelling that's tough. I chalk up two to three thousand miles a week all during the year. And I go two nights a week without any sleep because of the travelling.

"I guess that working before big crowds all over the country ahs made me pretty well known. I get a lot of fan letters. I also get the other kind from people who thought that I've called a bad game.

"I get the greatest thrill when kids ask me for autographs. I'm human and I eat it up. I'd be lying if I said that I didn't."

In twenty-five years Lou Bello has more than fulfilled "Footsie" Knight's prophesy. Every time you walk into a basketball stadium and see the famous ref you know the game, win or loose, will be well worth going to.

LOU BELLO

Fans Give McGuire Warm Welcome

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

When Frank McGuire emerged from the Carmichael Auditorium dressing room at 7:53 Monday night, people—almost a Carmichael Auditorium full of them—stood up and cheered.

Those who had watched as he coached UNC to the NCAA championship in 1957 rose from their seat and cheered. Those who remembered him well, but in name only, stood up and cheered.

Those who had just become acquainted with him through reading of his upcoming return to Chapel Hill gave him the full treatment. And those who had managed to seep through the wall of publicity without being aware of this man's connection with UNC, well, they stood up and cheered too.

They stayed up for more than two minutes, watching and yelling and clapping as McGuire proceeded down Carolina row and shook hands with his former assistant, UNC head Coach Dean Smith; a guy he recruited in the late '50's to play guard for him named Larry Brown; and John Lotz and all the other men on the Tar Heel bench and at the scorer's table.

If he hadn't straightaway taken a seat along the USC bench, they'd probably still be standing and watching and yelloing and clapping.

And that is what he will remember.

"It was really a great ovation," Frank acknowledged. "I guess a person gets one like that once in his lifetime. It was fine, real fine. The crowd sure was great."

Then Frank McGuire kicked the nostalgic bit, and talked of things more present.

"It was bad tonight," he said, "but it was worse at Wake Forest (last) Saturday. That was the first time I ever really felt at halftime that we'd lost the game (WF led, 53-24). We obviously haven't recovered from that yet! We have made more mistakes in the last three games than any team I can remember being associated with. We had 14 turnovers in the first half tonight, and (wincing) at least that many in the second half.

"Carolina must have set a record for three-point plays attempted and made. Miller must have had five or six chances."

"We were aiming for ten wins when the season started, and we got five quick ones before we lost. We have done well at home, and we have eight games (wins) now. I'm sure we'll get those ten—probably more—this year. Next year we should be ready to go.

"I held out Gary Gregor (6-6, 225) this semester because we're really not going anywhere this season and I want him to get his grades. He'll be back next year and we have two real fine boys on the freshman team.

"Mike Grosso (6-8, 240) is having a real good freshman year. He's got good speed and moves well inside. He and this Clark boy from Carolina and the Lewis boy at Duke should have some good battles for the next few years.

"We won't get beat this bad by anybody next year."

Someone asked him what he was going to do with Duke next Monday in Durham?

"What am I gonna do with Duke? What can I do?"

Someone else suggested that he might play deliberately, and he said he certainly wouldn't try to run with them.

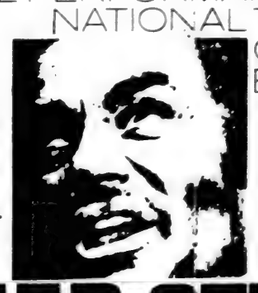
Why did he not try to slow down Carolina in that night's game?

McGuire smiled and said:

"I like Dean."

Varsity Today & Thurs. TICKETS ON SALE NOW

AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE OF THE NATIONAL THEATRE OF GREAT BRITAIN



The greatest Othello ever by the greatest actor of our time.

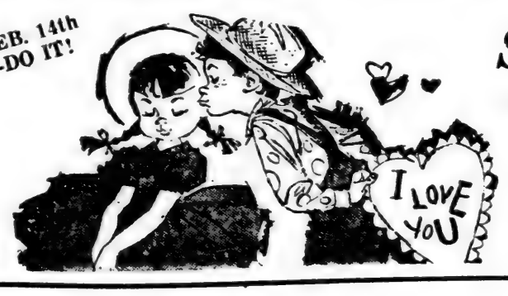
LAURENCE OLIVIER-OTHELLO

A B H E PRODUCTION
ALSO STARRING MAGGIE SMITH JOYCE REDMAN and FRANK FINLAY

PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR FROM WARNER BROS.

ADMISSION
Afternoon 1.50
Night 2.00

Shows at 3 & 8 P.M.



Send Your Love VALENTINE CARDS

Romance or whimsy . . . whatever you want in a Valentine card, you'll find it in our selection

CUTE — SOPHISTICATED — SENTIMENTAL

Also RUSSELL STOVER CANDIES for Valentine Giving

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Today's Events

TODAY

Class Ring Sale from 9-4 p.m. in Y-Court.

D.A.R.E. Project—those students who might be interested in working once a week in experimental educational community project at Northside School in Chapel Hill, please meet at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday in Roland Parker I, GM. Both men and women are needed. If you are unable to attend, please phone Daryl Farrington Walker after 5 p.m., 942-4997, by Sunday, Feb. 13.

Sophomore Class Officers and Committee Chairmen will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Interested in working as a counselor for a church camp during the summer? If so, make an appointment with the secretary at the Presbyterian Church (942-3753) for an interview with the Rev. John E. Ensign, Director of Camp Hanover, located near Richmond, Va. Mr. Ensign will be at the Presbyterian Student Center on Feb. 22.

The Amateur Radio Club meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Caldwell Annex Y.

Beginner's folk dance class meets at the Presbyterian Student Center on Wednesdays from 7-8 p.m. Admission free.

The Judicial Committee will meet at 6 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Young Republicans Club will hold a brief business session at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

Film Committee meeting in the Grail Room at 3 p.m.

Meeting of Experiment for International Living Alumni at the home of Miss Anne Queen, 121 B Mallette St. at 4 p.m.

State Affairs Commitee will meet in Woodhouse Room at 5 p.m. Atendance is mandatory.

Dr. Douglas Cutler will speak at the Physics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in Room 215, Phillips Hall. His topic will be "Study of Motion by Nuclear Magnetic Resonance." Tea and coffee will be served one half hour before the talk in the Lounge, Room 277, Phillips Hall.

All students who are interested in working with Mentally Retarded Children at the Murdoch Center are invited to meet with the members of the Murdoch Committe in front of the Y-Building at 2 p.m.

Student Committee on Honors will meet at 4 p.m., Graham Memorial.

The Planning Wives Club will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at 234 McCauley St. There will be a short business meeting for election of officers.

Folk dancing 8-11 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center.

Professor Martin M. Block of Northwestern University will speak at the joint UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium on "Hyperfragment Physics: Past and Future" at 4 p.m., Room 215 in Phillips Hall.

THURDAY

Residence College Governors will meet in the Grail Rom to discuss campus-wide tutoring service at 3 p.m.

Mandatory meeting of State Student Legislature at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker III. All reports due.

The Ski Club will meet at 8 p.m. in 111 Murphy.

It will be a Valentine A Go-Go Saturday night following the UNC-VPI basketball game. The Go-Go will be from 9-1 a.m. in Morrison Residence College, and Morrison will present its newly acquired Go-Go girl and the music of the "Weejuns." Tickets will be $1.25 per couple and will be on sale Friday and Saturday in Y-Court, Chase Cafeteria, Morrison Lobby and at the door Sat. night.

RUSSELL JOHNSON

Asian Expert Will Appear

The YMCA International Relations Committee will present Asian affairs authority Russell Johnson at their Feb. 10 meeting.

Johnson is a past Director of the American Friends Service Committee. As head of the Quaker Conference, including one in Lahore, Pakistan, one in Singapore, Malaysia, and one in Cambodia, he talked with leading thinkers and officials from most of the Southeast-Asian countries.

A graduate of Harvard Divinity School, he served in churches in Massachusetts, then as director of educational federation for six consumer cooperatives in Minnesota.

Johnson also made a special visit to Viet Nam where he talked to Buddhists, villagers and government officials.

Local CCC Claims 125 Membership

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

In May of 1964 Carolina student Warren Williams decided UNC needed a conservative voice.

He initiated the formation of the Carolina Conservative with a membership of about 40 people.

Today, the Carolina conservative Club has 125, members, mainly a mailing list type, according to club president Wilson Clark. Other officers are vice-president Fleming B. Fuller, secretary William G. Otis, and treasurer Richard Sperling.

Their sponsor is Dr. C. E. Philbrook of the Department prise economy.

The club is strictly "educational and believes in lmited government and a free enterprise economy.

As an organization, it does not take a stand on specific political issues and is more concerned with long-range planning. Planning is in the area of academics.

"We try to keep our membership informed of current ideas, and distribute supplementary materials to them. We mainly concentrate on speakers and publications," Clark said.

LOVELY PEACH PIERCE is one of many juniors selling tickets to the Junior Class Barbecue to be held this Sunday night from 5:30-8:30 in the Tin Can. Dinner music will be provided by the Seductives Combo.

Queen Elizabeth Has New Piper

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has finally succeeded, after a months-long search, in filling a palace job that carries a lot of prestige. The pay and hours are not so hot, though.

Pipe Maj. Andrew Pitkeathly, of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, has been appointed personal piper to the Queen. This means piping outside the Queen's window at 9 a.m. every morning.

Buckingham Palace began the hunt when Pipe Maj. Alexander MacDonald, who had served 20 years, was due to retire last May on reaching 65.

He agreed to carry on until October but the post has been vacant since.

Scores of pipers were auditioned but no one was found suitable or willing to take the job until Pitkeathly, 38, came along.

A rent-free flat at Windsor goes with the appointment, but when the Queen is at Buckingham Palace the piper must leave home early, rain or shine, for the 25-mile journey to London for his morning serenade. Also, he must often stay for performances at banquets.

The piper gets regular transport for his daily trips to Buckingham Palace and usually a motorcycle is provided. When the Queen goes to Balmoral in Scotland or Sandringham for holidays, her piper goes along, too.

* * *

The Atlantic Coast Conference was organized and began to function as an eight-team league in 1953. Its original membership was as it is today.

—Kuralt, Schaleben Coming—

(Continued from Page 1)

panel moderator.

Mulligan will deliver an evening address on "The American GI in Viet Nam."

Delegates from Sigma Delta Chi chapters in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and Washington, D. C. will meet here on Thursday. Spangler, national president of Sigma Delta Chi, will address the delegates. He will also present a plaque and key to Mark Ethridge, a Sigma Delta Chi Fellow.

There will be a variety of panel discussions and workshops conducted by the members of the Associated Weeklies of North Carolina to meet here on Friday of the week.

McKelway is to be the featured speaker for the group. Stuart Sechriest of the School of Journalism will conduct a photography workshop.

The North Carolina Press Women will meet here on the final day of the observance.

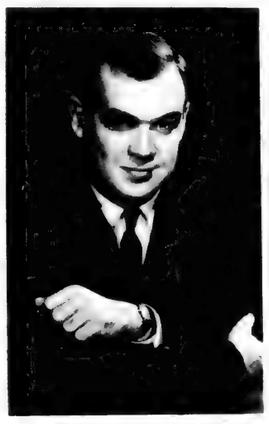
Majorie Hunter of the New York Times, J. A. C. Dunn of the Charlotte Observer, and Margaret Claiborne, formerly of the Charlotte News, and Buddy Griffin of the North Carolina Division of Conservation and Development, will address the group.

Dr. John B. Adams of the School of Journalism, and Elmer Oettinger of the Institute of Government will discuss the press and government in North Carolina.

Morin, a two - time Pulitzer Prize winner, will be the featured speaker for the group.

The NCPW will elect new board members for its organization during their meeting here.

"This is the first time that we have had all the press activities put together into one week," Danielson said. "But we feel that it will have a much greater impact this way."



CHARLES KURALT

ARVILLE SCHALEBEN

JUNIOR ACCOUNTING STUDENT

Wanted for part time work in Accounting and sales.

PHONE 929-2600
For Appointment

WHILE THEY LAST!

Ladies' Orlon Cardigan
SWEATERS

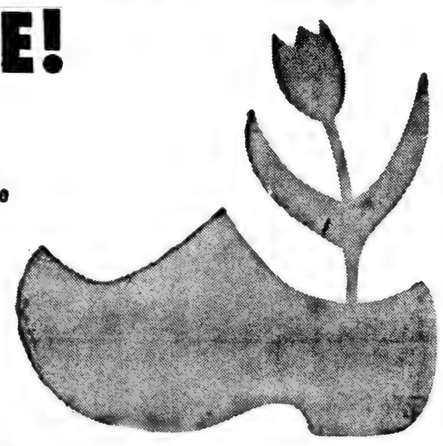
Pink, green, red, blue, navy, brown, black.

ONLY
$2.00

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM

Upstairs over Sutton's

"DUTCH AUCTION" SALE!



NOTE:
At a "Dutch Auction" Sale the prices go DOWN instead of UP! What a twist!

Thursday is the Third Day!

It's fun! . . . and here's how it works:

- ★ Prices reduced 10% EACH DAY for 10 DAYS!
- ★ First bid at today's price takes the sale item.
- ★ Advance bids accepted with a 10% deposit—full refund if you're "outbid".
- ★ All merchandise in good operating condition and clearly marked if "used".
- ★ All "Dutch Auction" sales are final.
- ★ Our usual service, demonstration, instruction included with each sale.

They'll all be 10% LESS tomorrow . . . IF we still have 'em!

OVER 600 ITEMS ON DUTCH AUCTION SALE

Wentworth & Sloan
Jewelers

167 E. Franklin Phone 942-4469

SEE The LETTERMEN in Person At The Record Bar

TOMORROW — 3:30 - 4:30

THE RECORD BAR

Across from Post Office — Chapel Hill
Downtown & Wellons Village, Durham and Jacksonville, Fla.

The HUB's Final Sale

Our ever popular complete stock of solid blazers, herringbones, and bold new plaids — drastically reduced for this sale.

Reg. 29.95—NOW 15.88
Reg. 35.00—NOW 19.88
Reg. 39.95—NOW 24.88
Reg. 45.00—NOW 29.88
Reg. 49.95—NOW 34.88

Many Other Fantastic Buys Now Await You!

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Imported shear shortcoat with notched collar, yoke and bucket pockets. Teak, Taupe, Truffle.

Julian's

JOHN MEYER® OF NORWICH

Faultless artistry, the tailoring in this John Meyer panel skirt. The easy-going A-line (for striding country lanes) falls flawlessly from a smooth, unbulky waist. The cool cotton Forget-Me-Not print comes in clear, sunlit colors. Sizes 6 to 16.
"Go with" shell blouse, tidily tucked. Sizes 6 to 16.
Solid crushed belt.

Town & Campus

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Direct Report

See Sandy Treadwell's exclusive story from Madison Square Garden on page 5 about last night's game with NYU.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

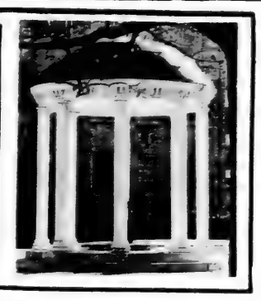
Volume 74, No. 90 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Used Books

Students are requested to pick up money from the sale of their books in APO office in Smith basement from 3-5 p.m., Tues.-Fri.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



The Line Is Drawn

The people in Raleigh and a handfull of conservatives on this campus have said that only radicals, irrational young people they call them, are carrying Aptheker's torch and that they are just trying to heat up controversy.

To some extent, at least in the beginning, they were correct. But now the issue is not Aptheker, it is not SDS—it is the right of free speech which belongs to every American, black, white, red or redneck.

People are beginning to show their colors and no longer can anyone claim that it is only the radicals.

There could have been a better time and I feel that this issue was first brought forward for the sake of controversy.

But that doesn't matter now. The line has been drawn and you are simply in favor of holding on to your right or you are willing to let some small-minded people take that right away from you.

Mark Ethridge is not a radical, though he is certainly not a conservative. He is a man for whom I hold the highest respect. He says we are being denied and he is so right.

Mark Ethridge is a native of Mississippi. He has worked in the South for 50 years. Those years have taught him a great deal and we are fortunate that he is unselfishly sharing them with us.

He said he will not leave the University over this issue. But what if he did?

Some have asked why should we blow this issue up? Look what might happen to the University, they say. The Legislature could retaliate in many ways.

To hell with the State Legislature if there is the slightest chance we would lose men like Mark Ethridge.

Friday Top President

In this week's issue of Time William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, is listed as one of the 14 top university presidents in the United States.

Time says today's university president "commands the vast expertise of his institution and knows how to organize intellect. As a fast-changing society increasingly values these qualities, the influence of the president's is soaring. They have become a kind of fifth estate, half educators and half national policymakers."

Of Friday, Time says: "An efficient organizer, he has been president of the South's best university for ten years, has pipelines to resources of all the region's leading schools.

DTH Poll Shows Students Divided

A majority of UNC students plan to join the newly-formed Committee For Free Inquiry, according to a DTH survey taken yestrday.

The Committee For Free Inquiry was formed Tuesday night by more than 350 students who opposed the decision of the executive committee of the board of trustees to speak here.

One hundred fourteen students indicated that they planned to join the movement, 71 said they didn't plan to join and 42 were undecided.

Comments include:

— Eric Van Loon; Nashville, Tenn. — "A true university can exist only if it has the right of free inquiry and can look at any idea unhindered and judge it on its merits."

— Steve Maddox, Elizabeth City — "I'm for Aptheker being allowed to speak here, but I'm against demonstrations. Right now they would hurt the University more than they would help."

— Russ Field; Wyoming, Del. — "The right to be exposed to a diversity of opinions is essential to the maintenance of academic freedom in the University community."

— Phil Adams, High Point — "The only reason I can see i, the Committee was formed is because of Aptheker. If I find out differently, I'll change my mind."

— Fred Kesler, Sanford — "Alhough I agree with what they stand for, I don't think I will join them."

— Dan Welch, Jacksonville, N. C. — "I'll join. Maybe we can make the trustees aware of the fact that we are not satisfied. I will not participate in any violence, however."

A four - member steering committee is appointed to invite the board of trustees and Governor Moore to explain the reasons for their decision to the student body here Feb. 28.

The steering committee consists of Student Body President Paul Dickson, SDS Vice Chairman Gary Waller, Political Science Instructor Sid Waldman, an English grad-student Dave Gullette.

— Bob Harris

Lynd Won't Come If Aptheker Can't

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Yale Professor Staughton Lynd has turned down the Carolina Forum's invitation to speak here "until the University makes it clear Dr. Aptheker is welcome."

Lynd, unlike Aptheker, had not been barred by the Board of Trustees from speaking on campus.

"I am turning down the invitation on constitutional grounds (free speech guarantees in the First Amendment)," he told The Daily Tar Heel by telephone when contaced at his home in New Haven, Conn.

"Just last year," he said, "the state legislature moved in the direction of rescinding control over who speaks at UNC." He referred to the Britt Amendment.

"I think," he continued, "it would be particularly inappropriate for me o acquiesce in what seems to be the revival of exclusion and thought control in North Carolina.

"I want very much to come to the UNC campus, but Aptheker must come also," he said.

Charles F. Lambeth, president of the North Carolina American Civil Librties Union, said his group hasn't yet decided whether to take legal action to enable Communist Aptheker to speak here.

"I have not had a chance to review the trustees' dcision fully," Lambeth said, "but I am very disappointed he wasn't allowed to speak."

Lambeth said the ACLU Board of Directors would meet soon to discuss the trustees' decision.

Prof. Lewis Lipsitz of the Political Science Department did not resign after the trustees' decision. He had threatened to consider this at Monday's meeting of the student body.

"We don't intend to be rats running off a sinking ship," Lipsitz said, "but we don't intend to go down with it.

Dr. Nathaniel Rodman, associate professor of pathology who headed the group of 11 young faculty members which tried to influence the trustees' Aptheker decision, said he will not resign.

"I love the University," he said, "I would rather stay here and fight than leave."

Commenting on Aptheker's expectation that he would be allowed to speak here, Rodman declared: "His prediction shows that he just doesn't comprehend the political situation in North Carolina."

Forum Member Hits Nicholson On Invitation

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Paul King, vice president of the Young Republicans here and a member of the Carolina Forum, said yesterday that he had not been consulted about the Forum's invitation of Communist Herbert Aptheker "or any other speakers."

Tex Fuller, also on the Forum, echoed King's charges. Fuller is Carolina Conservative Club vice president.

"The size of the Forum committee is too large," said Nicholson when contacted by the DTH. "I was told by the student government how many people I needed to work with.

"Then I was informed that more than 13 people were assigned to the Forum.

"All these invitations to speakers had to be sent out months in advance," Nicholson continued, "and has to be done during the summer.

"Since I had already sent out the letters, when I returned in the fall, I called a meeting where I announced speakers we definitly had committed. The list of invitations that had been sent out was passed around the table.

"I don't think that everybody at the meeting took the time to look at this list.

"King told the DTH he attended the meeting.

"King has not offered one constructive suggestion concerning speakers," Nicholson said. "He has never made any complaint of the number of meetings which have been held.

"I assume that Aptheker may be the reason.

"I think that by the administrative nature of the Forum that the Forum's past chairman, like John Ulfelder, Henry Mayer, and Joel Fleishman will admit that it's a very dictatorial job—not by choice but by administrative set-up."

Yellow Journals Flourish Here

Residence Hall newspapers, newletters, and yellow sheets flourish on the Carolina campus.

Alexander, Craige, Ehringhaus, Morrison and Scott College publish men's hall papers. Subjects covered range from the ridiculous to the sublime.

Barney Kimel, editor of the Daily Grit in Alexander, said, "Although we haven't exactly gotten too well organized, we plan to publish the Grit in its usual frequency—namely, every now and then."

Mighty Mo, heralded by Morrison publishers as "UNC's number one residence college newspaper," has been published three times. This paper includes half-tone photographs and 3 color art work.

The Scott College Journal features poetry and short stories.

Craige publishes a paper called the Tarpit. Information concerning future parties and hall functions as well as jokes and cartoons are found in this paper.

Nurses' residence hall and Spencer are the major women's halls publishing newspapers. The Spencer Spinster is due to publish its first issue in two weeks.—STEVE LACKEY

Students Write Letter To Moore

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The temporary four-man steering committee of the Committee for Free Inquiry has drawn up letters to Gov. Dan K. Moore and the executive committee of the UNC board of trustees.

They will be discussed and submitted for approval at the Friday meeting of the full group, which is open to the student body.

Neither a time or location has not been set, but the meeting will be some time early in the afternoon.

The members of the executive committee of the board of trustees will be asked to explain their decision denying Communist Herbert Aptheker the right to speak on campus.

The temporary steering committee of the Committee for Free Inquiry announced at their meeting yesterday that all students, faculty and administration are invited and urged to attend the general meeting on Friday.

The steering committe consists of Student Body President Paul Dickson; SDS Vice Chairman Gary Waller; Sid Waldman, an instructor in the Department of Political Science; and Dave Gullette, a graduate student in English and part-time instructor.

Sid Waldman said: "Governor Moore and the executive committee are being invited here to promote better communication between the Governor, trustees and members of our academic community.

"We hope response from the trustees will be positive."

The meeting tomorrow afternoon will include a discussion of what should be the position of the Committee for Free Inquiry rgarding speaker policy at UNC.

Waldman said: "We will be electing a permanent steering committee which we hope will represent all students including organizations and dormitories.

"Our purpose here is to avoid having the committee represent only a narrow segment of the campus community. We want this to be a campus-wide student effort reflecting our desire to hear whomever we choose."

Several English graduate students have called a meeting for all graduate students to discuss the action of the trustees concerning Aptheker. The meeting will be held this afternoon in 201 Bingham Hall.

Waldman said: "We hope that graduate students, undergraduates, faculty and administration will unite in an attempt to maintain the integrity of the University."

Journalist Blasts Moore, Trustees

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Mark Foster Ethridge, lecturer in journalism and well-known warhorse of the newspaper world, yesterday blasted Gov. Dan K. Moore and the executive board of the trustees for their rejection of Communist Herbert Aptheker.

In a letter to the DTH Eth-

MARK ETHRIDGE

ridge, 70, wrote that "the pressure of the Governor (who has no business in any state being on the board of a university) has said to the world that freedom of speech is no good in North Carolina."

Ethridge has more than 50 years in journalism. He has held numerous positions including assistant general manager of the Washington Post, president and publisher of the Richmond Times - Dispatch, editor and publisher of the Louisville Courier - Journal, and editor of Long Island's Newsday.

The Mississippian writes that the executive board's action says that this state is afraid of "the stale, punkish, discredited dogma that Aptheker mouths."

He asks if North Carolina is so "unsure" of its faculties and students that it must build an "intellectual Chinese wall around them?"

Ethridge said he and his wife decided to settle here permanently because he felt that Chapel Hill was the "intellectual capital of the South."

"It was quite certain before we came that the speaker ban law would be repealed or amended," Ethridge said.

He feels the action of the Governor and the executive committee left the University in a worse position than it was under the original law.

If the present action is allowed to stand, Ethridge said, the University will go down in academic standing and in the eyes of those who share his "illusion and great respect for it as a place of learning."

"It will certainly not be the University to which I thought I was coming," Ethridge said.

"There is no assurance that the full board of trustees will reverse the Governor and the executive committee, as wise as that would be. We shall have to await a better day and more enlightened men."

The Dying Village: Part Three

Evicted Students Speak

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

Who are the inhabitants of the box-like wooden structures of shrinking Victory Village?

Most of them have two things in common —they have financial difficulties and they like Victory Village life.

There are 96 undergraduates and 156 graduate students. Eighteen are foreign students and 54 are in professional schools —law, medicine, dentistry and pharmacy.

"I don't believe there is a finer group of people anywhere than those living in Victory Village," UNC Housing Director James E. Wadsworth said. "People value the friendships formed there. Without local government, they have handled their own problems."

Campus Security Chief Arthur J. Beaumont echoes this sentiment.

"Married students are more serious today," he said. "We have much less trouble with the residents of Victory Village than with the same number of students in a residence hall—or the same number of people anywhere for that matter."

Thirteen units are scheduled to be closed down in June. Six more are on the tentative list. Families whose homes are being closed are first on the priority list for comparable apartments.

Here are some reactions of the students being forced to leave. Not one of them wantd to move out of the Village.

George H. Tulloch, senior, Delmar, N. Y. —"I just moved Jan. 1 and I got a letter Jan. 15 telling me that I was going to have to move. My wife and I both work 40 hours a week and one of us could quit if we could stay here or could get a comparably priced apartment.

The University is not doing us a favor by offering those brick apartments. They are no cheaper than outside housing, and they have more restrictions."

John A. Gilreath, graduate, physics—"We couldn't find any place we like as well. We feel this area is good for our two children. It's a pity it has to be torn down. We've made it into our own home.

"My wife works now, so if we have to move out of the Village, we will probably have to borrow money to continue my education. It would cost us $100 more a month to move elsewhere."

Evan Hines, graduate, history, Norfolk, Va.—"I'm bitter about being evicted. I've already borrowed money and now I'll probably have to borrow more.

"I wonder if the University is going to do the same thing to these apartments as those closed down on Polk Street last year. They are still standing empty with students begging for housing."

James Cabe, dental—"I wouldn't expect the state or federal government to provide us housing, but so long as it is selfliquidating, why not build more pre-fabs?

"Both my wife and I are in school. I'll be here several more years. If we have

(Continued on Page 6)

GOING TO WASTE—The houses standing behind this parking lot which was cut out of Victory Village back yards, stand vacant and are due to be torn down. They could have housed married students during the past semester.—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Journalist Club To Hear Panel

A four-member panel will discuss job tips in journalism at the monthly meeting of the UNC Press Club tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Charles Hauser of the Greensboro Daily News, Frank Clingman of the Winston - Salem Journal and Sentinel, Dr. Wayne A. Danilson, dean of the journalism school, and Kenneth Byerly, journalism professor will make up the panel.

John Green, press club president, said the meeting will will be held in the lounge on the second floor of Howell Hall.

Collision Injures Soph

A 19-year-old sophomore had several bones broken yesterday afternoon when his motorcycle collided with a car in front of Morrison Resident Hall.

Thomas Carroll of Chevy Chase, Md. is listed in satisfactory condition at Memorial Hospital.

The Dean of Men's office reported that Carroll had several bones in his left leg broken.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. at Manning Road and the turn-in to the Morrison parking lot.

Tennis Court Repairs

The six asphalt tennis courts across from Cobb residence hall are undergoing repair and extension. The old courts are 110 feet long, and will be extended another 10 feet.

After the extension work the asphalt will be patched sealed and then coated with a new all-weather surface. All six courts will be lighted so that they can be used at night for functions such as dances.

The courts are now closed for repairs, but the asphalt cannot be laid until early April. The new courts are to be opened shortly after that

SP Fills Vacancies

Three legislative vacancies were filled in men's residence districts by the Student Party Tuesday night.

Elected were Bill Faison, Don Wall and Lacy Reaves

Faison was elected by acclaimation for Town's Men District, (MD I). Wall defeated Mike League for the seat in Parker-Teague-Avery (MD IX) and Reaves won out over Stu Rosen for the seat in Morrison (MD XII).

Moore Plans Visit

Gov. Dan K. Moore will address the UNC Faculty Club March 15 at a luncheon meeting of the group, Dr. Wayne Danielson, president, said yesterday.

The governor has traditionally addressed the faculty club at some time during their term of office and this will be the first time Moore has addressed the club.

Gov. Moore was invited to address the group last year but was not able to come

"We are hapy the governor was able to adjust his schedule this spring," Danielson said, "in order to speak to us. It will be one of highlights of the year for the club."

The meeting will begin at noon and Moore's address will be a 1 p.m. The governor addressed the North Carolina Press Institute here earlier this year.

CAROLINA STUDENTS examine displays of class rings now on sale in Y-Court. Today is the last day rings will be sold. Rings will be on display from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. —DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Tovarich And The Tobacco

By JAY JENKINS
In The Charlotte Observer

RALEIGH — One little rag-tag Communist, who scarcely knows where his next theoretical meal is coming from, certainly can stand the State of North Carolina on its ear.

So it's in order to conjure a tableau of the future in the Tar Heel State, one that is purely imaginary. . .

The first hint that Tovarich had been invited to speak on the university campus at Chapel Hill came when a number of legislators suddenly filled the lobby of the Capitol.

"Another one's been invited," a legislator said darkly. "A festering Red sore," said another. "A Red nest," said another.

There was much milling around. At long last, the chairman of the trustee executive committee emerged from the governor's office and said quietly, "The speech has been cancelled."

Great was the rejoicing. But over to one side, a stranger looked glum and shook his head sadly.

"Don't believe I've had the pleasure," said a legislator. "Smith, from the U. S. Department of Agriculture," said the stranger.

Then the stranger added, almost under his breath, "Tovarich was gonna talk about Russia's plans to buy surplus tobacco."

"You mean flue-cured tobacco."

"North Carolina flue-cured tobacco," said the stranger. "Moscow isn't interested in the Virginia or the Georgia leaf.

"Tovarich says they want only the Tar Heel variety. He says it's something in the soil or atmosphere, a sort of rancid flavor."

It seemed all at once that a rump session of the General Assembly had been called. All the legislators were talking simultaneously. Then the governor appeared, smiling at his office door.

"You can go home, fellows," said the governor. "We took care of that little matter." His smile changed into an expression of alarm, as the legislators rushed toward him.

Only snatches of their torrent of words were decipherable. Phrases like "free speech" and "academic freedom" were spliced into shouts about "90-cent tobacco" and "disappearing surplus."

"Wait a minute now" said the governor, examining the faces in the crowd. "Every one of you told me personally you didn't want Tovarich to speak in Chapel Hill.

"That's right," said a perspiring legislator whose car carried a dacal reading ,"Largest Tobacco Market in the World." The legislator added, "we want him to speak at East Carolina College."

There was a lot of confusion. The governor said the trustees would "lose face" if they rescinded the ban, and a legislator shouted his county would lose a lot more if the ban stood.

The governor and the legislators finally went to the Hall of the House to talk some more. Smith, the Agriculture Department man, was quizzed at length. "Yes, Tovarich is a hard-core Communist—" he began.

"Get on the tobacco angle," shouted a legislator. Smith said that yes, Tovarich was ready to pay cash, for present and future orders.

"Governor, this talk clearly would serve an 'educational purpose'." said a tobacco-county lawmaker. "This state is committed to education. Our boys and girls deserve the best. They can separate the wheat from the chaff when these Commies talk . . ."

"But, gentlemen, you passed the law giving the authority to the trustees, and they have decided that Tovarich has been invited only for the sake of controversy," said the governor.

In the end, the governor capitulated. When the special session convened, the badge of the Easterner was his fur headpiece and the "Volga Boatman,, lapel pin. A section of U.S. 74 in Pitt County already had been named "Tovarich Drive." Chowan County commissioners decreed that henceforth shad roe was "Leningrad caviar."

Tovarich's speech was sparsely attended, and picketed by non-smokers protesting the section of the "open-end speaker law" that prohibited them from asking him questions. But he bought the surplus tobacco.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Mike Jennings

UNC Lacks Trust Of State

"What's wrong with those people in Chapel Hil?

"Who do they think they are down there, anyway? Maybe we'll just show them who they are."

They did. They showed us who we are. Just like they've done so many times before, the people of this state put us in our place. They showed us we don't deserve to be trusted.

The Trustees were only reflecting this state's ancient, almost morbid distrust of its state university when they pulled the rug out from under the invitations to Wilkinson and Aptheker.

It's this distrust — this unfounded, superstitious suspicion of Chapel Hill and the University—that is the real burden of shame our school bears. The rebuttals the Legislature and the Trustee have handed us in the past have been something worse than mere injustices. Unjust statutes could at least be respected if they were accompanied by a feeling of concern throughout the state for the welfare of the University.

But the feeling has always been, "I guess that'll show those—and radicals and communists in Chapel Hill they aren't going to run this state." That's what hurts. That's what makes the statutes mockeries.

This writer will try to disprove, in a feature article in the Sunday Tar Heel, many of the charges commonly made against the University and Chapel Hill. The article will use statistics and statements gathered from law enforcement agencies and from the Institute of Government to show that Chapel Hil has as clean a record as any major city in the state on all counts —including violence, narcotics usage and communist activity.

It's too much to hope, though, that contrary evidence can kill a phantom born of an old tradition. For a long time to come people across the state will mistrust us They'll "know" all about the blood on the Old Well, the communist behind every bush, the perverts behind every bush, the marijuana in the attic and the brothel on the ground floor.

And they'll want to know, to our endless frustration, what's wrong with those idiots in Chapel Hil.

Thanks To Students

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I would like to express my appreciation to the students who so quickly and efficiently gave me first aid and other assistance on Thursday, Jan. 27. Slipping on the ice near Hill Hall about 4:45 p.m. that day really made a mess of my ankle. My stay in the hospital is not over. Due to the quick thinking and kindness of those who stopped to help, I suffered no shock and probably was spared more serious injury.

Today many people consider the college student to be thoughtless and self-centered I feel otherwise, and I have proof!

My thanks again to all who helped

Sincerely,
Jane Wright,
Visiting Assistant Professor,
School of Library Science

The Student Speaks

Trustee Action Justified

By WILLIAM OTIS

A lot of us thought that we had won the last laugh on the General Assembly with the amendment of the speaker ban last year. Once more we could pursue Truth and Wisdom unshackled by the petty and vindictive little minds in Raleigh. The threat of accreditation loss had been too much for even their provincial obstinance, and reluctantly they acceded to the requirements of "academic freedom."

"Hallelujah!" we rejoiced. "The witch is dead!"

Not quite.

In our intoxicated exhulation we overlooked a few relevant details. For one thing, the amendment did not, thank God, make the campus a streetcorner soapbox onto which any variety of cranks could trot to preach their particular Word. Instead it shifted responsibility for the regulation of speaking privileges from a fixed policy (i.e., no Communists, Fifth Amendment pleaders, etc.) to a flexible one, and from the General Assembly to the University board of trustees.

So now that latter body has chosen to exercise the responsibility and flexibility we demanded so loudly and so petulantly only a few months ago that it be given And what is our reaction? We resume our weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth because we think that the foot of academic freedom has had its delicate toes stomped on.

But I, for one, have heard enough pompous bombast about academic freedom from students here. Let's get some things straight.

First, this University has no academic freedom and never has had any The freedom of inquiry we do enjoy, which we commonly confuse with academic freedom, (and which, incidentally, is a great deal more substantial than that enjoyed by university students in the nations Herbert Aptheker most admires) is simply one of the privileges we are granted by the General Assembly.

This is a state-owned and state-supported institution, and as such enjoys only those prerogatives the state sees fit to grant it. No more.

Second, we knew that this was the case when we came here. We were not compelled to come, and we are not compelled to stay. We have chosen, consciously I assume, to exercise the privilege of attendance at a state supported university and yet continue to act as if academic freedom were our God-given right.

Third, just how much do we make of "academic freedom" when we are not squawking that we don't have any? The truth is that all the "academic freedom" 95 per cent of us ever use is just enough to look at our text books (once in a while, at least), read Monarch outlines, and scurry on occasion to the local quiz file.

We use our freedom of inquiry not to examine what are the tenets of Marxism (or utilitarianism or Zen Buddism, etc), but toward another sort of question, i.e. how are we getting to Greensboro this weekend, can we get to the ABC store before it closes, what is on the tube tonight?

The remaining five per cent who actually do take an active interest in intellectual questions beyond the immediate scope of their courses are, I feel sure, sufficiently resourceful to provid for nourishing their minds by means other than personal attendance at lectures given by persons barred from the use of campus facilities.

They could, for example, arrange for these persons to speak off campus, or could tape and re-play their speeches, or could avail themselves of texts, journals, circulars, and reprints, available in voluminous quantity both on campus and off, in which persons prohibited from appearing have expressed themselves.

It is also interesting to note that those wailing loudest about the fear-ridden closed-mindedness of the trustees (before it was the General Assembly, with the Trustees cast as the Guardians of University Freedom and Integrity, if I recall correctly), are careful to include in their current petition a statement of their "total and complete opposition to the Communist Party and all that it embodies."

Hardly a very open-minded position, is it? If their opposition is indeed total and complete, then they render the concept of "academic freedom" (which they don't have anyway) functionally useless After all, no one bothers to investigate that to which he is complete and totally opposed with the idea that his investigation should or might reduce that opposition.

Another point: disregarding all other considerations, it is argued that prohibiting Aptheker's appearance would violate his freedom of speech So we must stand up for Constitutional Rights, Democratic Principles, and the American Way (also, presumably, Justice, Mother, and the Flag), and demand that this Communist be permitted to belch his dogma at us from on campus.

This is utter nonsense. To forbid the enlistment and use of the grounds, buildings, and other facilities which are owned and maintained by the state to Communist speakers is not to deny them freedom of speech. Thus the trustees are in no way impinging upon Aptheker's constitutional guarantees; they are witholding the privilege of the use of state property. This is entirely within their authority.

One final point should be added. The student body has seemed all too willing to make obvious its general contempt for the legislature, the trustees, and the Governor. We see them as men of little vision, intelligence, or perspective. (Naturally, these qualities abound in ourselves.)

Exactly why this obnoxiously smug attitude prevails is not important here. That we exhibit it with ever increasing frequency is. Campus leaders added to the exhibition when they joined the SDS in inviting Aptheker. Hardly a prudent move, for it served not to clarify the unity of the student body behind what it incorrectly views as free speech, but instead to blur even further the hazy distinction in many people's minds between the generally moderate and responsible course of student government and the rather different course of the SDS.

Moreover, our beligerence increases: We'll show them, we will, with mass rallies, marches to Raleigh, petitions, and if need be, law suits to shake them from their provincial obstructionism.

It might be a good idea to avoid antagonizing the petty little men in Raleigh too much, though. They might decide one day that they'd had enough lip from post-teenage know-it-alls, and close this place down.

Then we would have something legitimate to complain about.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

David Rothman

He Dreamed Of Dissension

Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey said recently that Students for a Democratic Society is plagued with dissention, and judging from a discusion I dreamed I had with several SDS members, I'd find his observations entirely correct.

"Is it true your group is dissent-ridden?" I asked one member.

"We have trouble agreeing on everything," the member replied.

"In fact," he said, "We have more dissent within our ranks than any other organization on campus."

"Huh?"

"We're against the consensus."

Then I talked with another SDS man.

"Nonsense," he said. "Everyone agreed on nearly all the points brought up at our last meeting. Our six motions were almost unanimously approved. Nobody disagrees with anybody."

At this point still another SDS member interrupted the conversation to ask: "Who said that was the number of motions we pased?"

"I did."

"Oh come on now. You've probably made it up."

"I did not."

"The heck you didn't-"

"Want to fight about it?"

"Please," the second SDS member I talked to pleaded. "Stop your argument. I've just told a reporter that everybody in our group agrees on everything."

"But we don't agree," insisted th other SDSer.

"Of coure we do."

"I say we don't."

"I say we do."

"I say we don't."

"Disregard all of what we have said," I was told. "We're really not arguing. Really, my friend and I have no differences whatsoever."

"But we do have our differences," the other member stubbornly insisted. "It is these varying opinions that strengthen democracy, that make our group more effective."

"Not in my opinion.

"Furthermore," he continued, "I was teling the reporter that SDS has no differences of opinion. My opinion always coincides with your opinion. If you don't accept this viewpoint, I'll begin beating you over the head."

"You couldn't beat me up if you tried

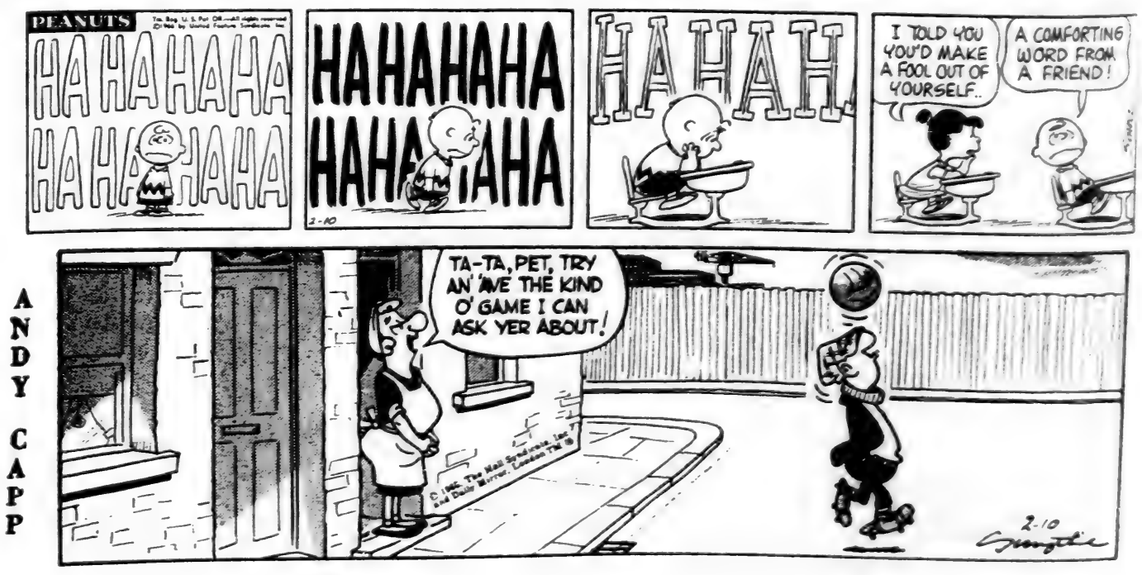
"Sure I could," retorted the SDS member who insisted he and his friend agreed on everything. "I'm heavier than you are

"No—you're not."

"Obviously, you're a liar," replied the "we agree" man.

"If you say I'm a liar, how can you agree with me?"

"Shut up!" shouted the "we agree SDSer. Then he handed me a press release saying his group is completely without internal strife.



Television, Radio Programs Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)
8:55 Morning News
9:00 In-School Television
11:00 U.S.A.
11:30 Exploring The Universe
12:00 Aspect
112:30 Mid-Day News
4:00 Education 100
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Discovery
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 You The Deaf
7:30 What's New
8:00 U.S.A.
8:30 Ericourt Forum
9:00 Performance
9:30 History 501B

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS
U.S.A. — 8:00 p.m.—"Dance: Robert Joffrey Ballet" —This show examines the unique qualities of American ballet as demonstrated by one of the newest American dance companies.

WRAL (Ch. 5)
5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: ROCK
AROUND THE WORLD: Tommy Steele
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Thurs. Night Movie: PAL JOEY: Frank Sinatra
9:00 Bewitched
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 The Baron (C)
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: BATTLE OF THE CORAL SEA: Cliff Robertson

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS
BEWITCHED — 9:00 p.m.—Darrin and Samantha try to keep the peace between Endora and Darrin's mother when they present baby Tabatha with identical toy teddy bears.
PEYTON PLACE — 9:30 — Rodney's birthday is remembered by two who might have forgotten it, and is forgotten by one who should have remembered.
THE BARON — 10:00 p.m. —An ex-prisoner of war comes face-to-face with the former commandant of his Japanese POW camp.

WTVD (Ch. 11)
6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today (c)
9:00 Capt. Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Live
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News
7:00 Daniel Boone (c)
8:00 Perry Mason
9:00 Thursday Movie
11:00 Late News
11:00 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)
6:00 Dinner Hour Music — Brahms, Sonatas for Viola, Opus 120, No. 1 and 2, Sonata for Violin, No. 2.

NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

JUNIOR ACCOUNTING STUDENT
Wanted for part time work in Accounting and sales.
PHONE 929-2600
For Appointment

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

ROOMMATES: THEIR CAUSE AND CURE

You'd think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, somebody would have found a cure for roommates by now. But no. Roommates remain as big a problem today as they were when Ethan Mather founded the first American college.

(Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Mather started his institution some 100 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Mather built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 200,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a weighing machine, and a sixteen-chair barber shop.)

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Mather's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn chiefly from the nearby countryside, was composed almost entirely of Pequot and Iroquois Indians who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braided the hair on top of their heads, and as for the hair on their faces, they had none. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring day after day at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were exploring ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half hour. I didn't even mind that he singed chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time, so I just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well, sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might actually have gotten ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades," I said.

"I will try one at once," he said. And did.

"Wowdow!" he cried. "Never have I had such a smooth, close, comfortable shave!"

"Ah, but the best is yet!" I cried. "For you will get many, many smooth, close, comfortable shaves from your Personna Blade—each one nearly as smooth, close, and comfortable as the first!"

"Wowdow!" he cried.

"Moreover," I cried, "Personna Blades come both in Double Edge style and Injector style!"

"Sort of makes a man feel humble," he said.

"Yes," I said.

We were both silent then, not trusting ourselves to speak. Silently we clasped hands, friends at last, and I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day. We exchange cards each Christmas and firecrackers each Fourth of July.

* * *

© 1966, Max Shulman

The makers of Personna® Stainless Steel Blades who sponsor this column—sometimes nervously—are also the makers of Burma Shave.® Burma Shave soaks rings around any other lather and is available in regular or menthol. Be kind to your kisser; try some soon.

Reynolds Coliseum
N. C. State College Campus
Fri. Feb. 11 8:30 P.M. | The Year's Greatest Attraction

One Show Only—All Seats Reserved!

Adm. $2.00, $2.50, $3.00. Adv. tickets on sale at Coliseum Box Office, Thiems Record Shop and Village Pharmacy Camera Shop, Raleigh; RECORD BAR, DURHAM and CHAPEL HILL.

Symposium Coming

World Of Ideas Will Open

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

Remember the date April 17. Imagine that on this day someone will approach you and present you with a five-day pass to explore the world of ideas with the help of experts, and a key to a door leading to a greater degree of understanding of your society, and perhaps yourself.

"Someone" will make such an offer—the Carolina Symposium—the combined effort of students, faculty, administration and Chapel Hill residents to bring to the campus a program of debate, discussion, and new ideas on important topics.

The wise student will not pass this off as "something else I won't have time for," or with an "I get enough 'ideas' in class" attitude. The Symposium offers a unique opportunity to listen, learn and express opinions. It is a tremendous undertaking and has much attention focused on it due to state press, radio, and television coverage of it.

Since its inception in 1927, the Symposium has been held every two years. It brings outstanding men in various fields to the campus. All symposium topics are related to one main theme and panel members are invited from the surrounding Southeastern area to serve in supplementary fashion.

During the Symposium week, unscheduled informal dormitory student - faculty discussions often occur.

The 1966 Carolina Symposium, under the leadership of George Butler, will deal with the topic, "Man, Mind, and Myth." It is concerned with the genesis and function of myth; a myth being defined as a story which "explains" some institution, natural phenonmenon or belief.

Myth? Why devote a week to the study of myths?

The importance of exploring such a topic is apparent when one realizes that the myth, according to this year's Symposium workers, because of its simplicity, justification, and wide acceptance, helps shape society's pattern of operation in many areas. The myth becomes a powerful force perpetuating the pattern it has shaped as well as the thought and values of members of society.

If society, and its members, are interested in attaining any degree of intellectual self-awareness, it, and they, must understand the structure of the mythology, and the manner in which it affects society as a whole, and its members.

The purpose of the 1966 Carolina Symposium will be to conduct the university community in such an examination. Myth will be examined primarily as it serves the individual in his society.

In recent years topics covered have been: "Dimension of Survival: American Culture in World Focus;" "Image of Man: the Individual in an Accelerating Culture." Such well known persons as the late Eleanor Roosevelt, James Reston, Richard Harkness, and Senator Gale McGee have spoken.

The 1964 topic, "Arms and the Man" was extremely successful, and its speakers included Senator J. William Fulbright, Hans Morgenthau, and David Brinkley.

Some of the speakers who have accepted for this year's Symposium thus far are Thomas Wolfe, Morris K. Udall, and Dean Alan Richardson, and Nelson Algren.

Mexican Students Visit UNC

Ten student leaders from the University of Mexico got a real taste of some of the problems of an American during a six-day stay at the University.

They were on a 30-day United States Information Agency tour and UNC was their first stop.

Henry Coe, a graduate student at UNC and one of the coordinators for the visitors, said, "while they were here we wanted to bring about a frank interchange of opinion on such current topics as voter registration, tutoring and freedom of speech."

Coe noted that many of the visitors are active in student politics and in development of the rights and privileges of their own people. Thus they became very interested in many of the current programs and problems here.

"The main theme of the conferences was that of solving one's own problems in one's own highly specific way," said Coe.

This idea was brought out by one of the visitor's comments on th current "right to speak" controvery on campus.

Jose Luis Garcia, who was presdient of the student association at his preparatory school, said of the situation, "I hope you at the University achieve the freedom of expression that you're after—through your own ways."

He indicated that the University of Mexico is completely autonomous from the state even though it is tax supported, and he felt that while they might approach such a controversy in a slightly different manner, they would still fight for this principle of free speech.

He felt that it was "very good that a large student reaction came in defense of a fundamental principle."

In a talk at a Latin-American seminar that the Mexicans attended, Heberto Sein, advisor for the American Friends Service Committee which is sponsoring the Mexicans while at UNC, pointed to the same need for respect of each country's means of expression.

Mexican democracy is different from American democracy, he said, and the type of democracy that Mexico employs, though different from that of the United States, is nevertheless what it feels is the solution for its problems.

Sein said that Mexico's type of democracy has consolidated Mexico.

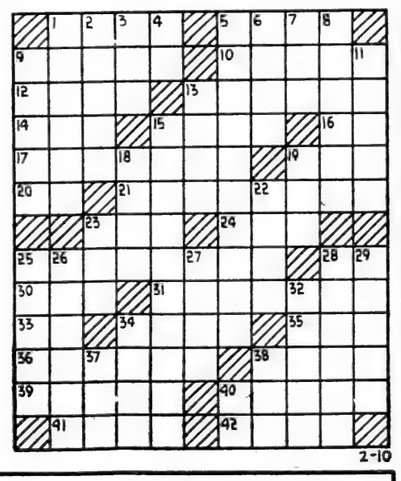
He also noted that there is much potential expression in Mexico's youth and in the newly developing middle class, and that it is inevitable that another revolution in Mexico will come to finish what the last one began.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Passable
5. Namesakes of Mrs. Cantor
9. Surgical thread
10. — reef
12. Touches lightly
13. Cook by boiling
14. Female sheep
15. Durocher's team
16. Postal abbreviation
17. Discoverer of St. Lawrence river
19. Part of "to be"
20. Blue Grass State: abbr.
21. Domestic
23. Bratts or Sparks
24. Help
25. Fractures again
28. Thus
30. Harem room
31. Fuming
33. Sloth
34. German title
35. Peruvian coin
36. Flinty
38. Bitter drug
39. Entire
40. Retains
41. Timber tree: N.Z.
42. Cereal grass

DOWN
1. Water route
2. Aquatic mammal
3. Distress call
4. Ahead
5. Party warmer-upper
6. Performs
7. Pop or op?
8. African wasteland
9. Particle
11. Even
13. Fat
15. Fairy tale girl
18. Row
19. Connective
22. Danger
23. Pro basketball group: abbr.
25. Bake
26. Newspaperman
27. Ethereal
28. Pries
29. Eyes
32. Small island
34. Warmth
37. Greek letter
38. Candlenut tree fiber
40. Boxing term

Yesterday's Answer



2-10

Varsity LAST DAY TICKETS ON SALE NOW

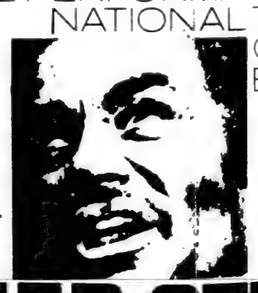
AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE OF THE NATIONAL THEATRE OF GREAT BRITAIN

The greatest Othello ever by the greatest actor of our time.



LAURENCE
OLIVIER-OTHELLO

A B H E PRODUCTION
ALSO STARRING
MAGGIE SMITH JOYCE REDMAN and FRANK FINLAY
PANAVISION® TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.

ADMISSION
Afternoon	1.50
Night	2.00

Shows at 3 & 8 P.M.

Special Late Show at 11:30 P.M. Thurs. THUNDERBALL

YOUR CHOICE SALE!

● U. S. NO. ONE REGULAR WHITE 5 Lb. Bag POTATOES
● U. S. NO. ONE RUSSET 5 Lb. Bag POTATOES
● U. S. NO. ONE RED BLISS 5 Lb. Bag POTATOES
● TASTY, LOWRY 4 Lb. Bag APPLES

12-CT. BAG JUICE FILLED, TASTY, LEMONS

3 BAGS OF YOUR CHOICE $1.00

A&P

JANE PARKER ANGEL FOOD ~Lb. 1-Oz. CAKE 39c

ANN PAGE CONDENSED TOMATO RICE SOUP 3 10¾-Oz Cans 40c

A&P BRAND YELLOW POPCORN 2 2-Lb. Bags 49c

Founder's Celebration Sale!

PRICES IN THIS AD EFF. THRU. SATURDAY FEB. 12th

MARVEL BRAND — FOUR FLAVORS ICE MILK 2½ Gal. Ctns. 75c

EXPLORE THE STORE VALUE! A&P INSTANT COFFEE 10-Oz. Jar 99c 6-Oz. Jar 69c

ALLGOOD BRAND NO. 1-SLICED BACON 1-LB. PKG. 69¢ 2-LB. PKG. $1.37

NO LIMIT ON PURCHASES!

Senate Committee OK's More $ For Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee gave unanimous approval yesterday to a $4.8 billion authorization for mounting Viet Nam war costs.

At the same time, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., Chairman, said he would vigorously oppose any effort to attach any policy provisions to the legislation when it reaches the Senate floor.

Russell said the Senate committee tightened up somewhat broad powers which Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had asked to shift millions of dollars of military money from one purpose to another.

Russell said Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana told him the Viet Nam funds authorization will become the pending business of the Senate Thursday if — as expected — the second effort to limit debate in the union shop filibuster fails.

That would permit Senate action Wednesday, Feb. 16, when Congress returns from a holiday recess for Lincoln Birthday speeches.

Russell said he expects Senate passage because this involves funds to "support our fighting men, some of whom are in Viet Nam against their wishes."

Although one Senator on the Committee sharply questioned U. S. policies in Viet Nam, Chairman Russell said all 17 were recorded for approval of the measure.

The authorization covers part of the $12.8 billion of emergency Viet Nam funds asked by the President. Both the Senate and House must approve the authorization before the actual funds are approved in a separate money bill later.

Russell said the authorization for $4,807,750,000 (B), included $3.4 billion for aircraft, helicopters, missiles and similar military hardware; $1.2 billion for construction of ports, airfields and other defense facilitis; and $152 million for research and development.

In another phase of Viet Nam action at the capitol, chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign relations Committee announced that Secretary of State Dean Rusk has agreed to appear before that group for a second round of questioning in the investigation of administration policy in Asia.

Fulbright said Rusk will appear Feb. 17 following a public examination of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor the preceding day.

Rusk underwent four hours of hot grilling two weeks ago.

After a session today to hear from George Kennan, former Ambassador to Russia and will be recessed until next Wednesday.

Fullbright said questioning of Taylor, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and later Ambassador to South Viet Nam, had been put off from Monday at the request of Republicans who want to be out of Washington for Lincoln's Birthday affairs.

Before the Armed Servics Committee Action. Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., spokesman for a group of 16 Senators who opposed resumption of bombing of North Viet Nam, predicted nearly unanimous Senate approval of the authorization bill.

Morse Blocks Committee OK Of Vaughn Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate critic of U. S.-Latin American policy held up yesterday action on the nomination of Assistant Secretary of State Jack Hood Vaughn to be director of the Peace Corps.

As Assistant Secretary for Inter - American Affairs, Vaugh was one of the top officials involved when President Johnson decided to rush troops to the bloody revolt in the Dominican Republic last year.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., told Vaughn at yesterday's hearing by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that his record "disqualifies you, and I'll vote against your nomination."

The slender 45-year-old Vaughn disputed Morse's argument that "when the chips of democracy are down we walk away."

But Morse said 'There is no question that you, Mann and Rusk have given bad advice to our President."

In addition to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Morse was referring to Assistant Secretary of State Thomas C. Mann. Mann has been a special target of critics of the Dominican Intervention who charge him with carrying out "a hard line" in Latin America.

Morse blocked a committee vote with a point of no quorum. But Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., expressed certainity that Vaughn and his successor as assistant Secretary, Lincoln Gordon, would be approved.

The U. S. intervention in the Dominican Republic has also drawn some fire from Fulbright whose speech charging the administration "overreacted" apparently led to some coolness between him and Johnson.

Vaughn had his supporters as well as detractors at yesterday's session. Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, told Vaughn, "I think you have rendered a great service to Latin America . . . I do have a feeling your record has been excellent."

Another critic of Latin American policy, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., praised Vaughn's record as a Peace Corps official and Ambassador to Panama. "But," he added, "you can't hit every ball over the fense . . . I think in your present position you have been more sinned against than sinning."

One big question, said Clark, is "when are we going to get those generals out of the Dominican Republic? . . . You're familiar with the phrase hasta manana (until tomorrow). It's taking a long time isn't it?"

"I am also familiar with the phrase "adios muchachos" (so long, boys) Vaughn replied.

He predicted the "generals" — military figures from both sides of the revolution ordered out of the country—would leave soon.

Dominican Police Fire Into Crowd

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — National police broke up a student demonstration outside the national palace with gunfire and tear gas yeserday. Two brothers and a girl were killed and unofficial estimated of the wounded ranged to 43.

The incident touched off a wave of disorders in the downtown area that quieted at noon and started up again in the afternoon. The rioters set fire to a sation wagon belonging to the U. S. representative here. The Dominican driver was reported beaten up.

One of the slain brothers was identified as Antonio Santos Mendes. The slain girl was Altagracia Amelia Richart Calventi. The National Press Office listed four other girls wounded.

Most of the estimated 600 demonstrators were high school and grammar school boys and girls. They had called the demonstration ostensibly to demand that the government restore financial assistance to the University of Santo Domingo. But the demonstration turned into an anti-U. S. protest. One large placard said, "Go Home, Yankees."

Capt. German Perez Montas, in charge of the police detail, said students provoked the shooting by throwing rocks at police. The shooting broke out as one group of youths unfurled an American flag, and began to burn it.

Montas claimed some of the students were armed and a military spokesman at the national palace said authorities had been tipped before the demonstration that some of the students were armed. One of the wounded was a police officer who was shot in the leg.

The spokesman said the Inter-American police force was alerted ahead of the demonstration but took no part in the action except to patrol streets around the palace after students dispersed.

Immediately after the shooting, youth gangs ranged the downtown street, shouting "Strike, strike," overturning garbage cans and trying to throw up street barricades. One auto, reportedly that of a diplomat, was set afire.

Humphrey Flies To Saigon With Vietnamese Officials

HONOLULU (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey left for Saigon yesterday with South Viet Nam's top leaders to spur action on programs attacking hunger, disease and ignorance in that war-torn country.

"Our mutual struggle against the terror and tyranny of the aggressor will be matched by a vigorous war against the age-old enemies of disease, hunger, and social and economic deprivation," said the Vice President in a statement before his departure.

Flying with him were Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, who concluded talks here Tuesday with President Johnson, and various U. S. officials, including Presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman.

Humphrey's plane left Honolulu International Airport at 8:11 a.m. (1:11 p.m. EST), about six hours after his arrival from Los Angeles where he met hurriedly with Johnson.

Responding to Humphrey's remarks, Thieu expressed the gratitude of his country to American families who have servicemen fighting in Viet Nam. He pledged his country's willingness "to pay the price to bring peace and democracy to Viet Nam."

Humphrey's mission will be to begin implementation of a political, social and economic program outlined Tuesday in the Declaration of Honolulu.

"We are determined to implement the aims of the declaration," said the Vice President, "and we shall take immediate and continuing action as partners with the government and the people of South Viet Nam to achieve these objectives."

Flanked by Ky and Thieu at a rostrum, Humphrey told a tiny airport crowd that Johnson was "most pleased" with the conference. He called the Declaration of Honolulu "one of the great documents of history."

At the same time, Humphrey said, the United States will continue "the special efforts" initiated by Johnson to achieve peace in Viet Nam.

North Carolina News Roundup

Lumberton Bank Robbed

LUMBERTON, N. C. AP—The First Union National Bank's North Elm drive-in branch was robbed of $11,273 yesterday morning and about an hour later a Winston-Salem man was arrested by two highway patrolmen and an FBI agent near St. Pauls.

Special Agent Robert M. Murphy of the Charlotte FBI office identified the man arrested as Jimmy Norwood Cranfill, 29, of Rt. 7, B St., Winston-Salem, an unemployed pipe fitter, who is separated from his wife, now living in Maryland with their three children.

The matter is to be presented to a federal grand jury at Raleigh Friday.

When Cranfill was arrested on Highway 95, south of nearby St. Pauls, the FBI said he had $7,754, a .32 caliber revolver and a small automatic in his possession. He offered no resistance.

The FBI said the search was continuing for the rest of the money.

State's Oldest Man Dies

BRISTOL (AP)—The nation's second oldest man, according to federal records, was buried yesterday in Bristol with only a handful of persons on hand to mourn him.

A light rain fell as Joe Simms, 118, was laid to rest. The white-haired Negro died at a Bristol nursing home this week from complications resulting from a two-week bout with pneumonia.

According to Social Security Administration records, Simms was the nation's second oldest centenarian. Records show that only Charlie Smith, 124, of Polk City, Fla., has outlived him.

Simms, a former slave, spent his entire life in Sullivan County, and had worked as a janitor for a combined 60 years at Steed College in Johnson City, Tenn., and Sullins College in Bristol. He said he was born April 1, 1847, while his parents were slaves on the farm of Isaac Devault near Bristol.

Sanford PO Under Inspection

SANFORD, N.C. AP—A team of postal investigators moved into Sanford yesterday to probe charges that a New Jersey firm was not following specifications in building a new Sanford Post Office.

The building permit was revoked by municipal officials who charged Schur-Lee Realty Corp. of Hackensack, N. J., had departed from the building specifications.

The officials alleged the company was using cinder blocks for the walls instead of concrete and had also used concrete pillars instead of steel.

The company is also involved in a controversy at Shelby, where its post office building permit was revoked.

Schur-Lee qualified Tuesday to do business in North Carolina when Secretary of State Thad Eure approved the company's application for a charter. The application had been returned because of two deficiencies.

Jones Wins Election

RALEIGH AP—Walter B. Jones of Farmville was certified yesterday as the winner of the Feb. 5 special election in North Carolina's 1st Congressional District.

Official tabulations by the State Board of Elections gave Democrat Jones 21,773 votes to 14,308 for Republic John P. East of Greenville. Six write-in votes were tallied, distributed among three other persons.

Mrs. Sara Small of Williamston received one write-in vote in Bertie County, Frederick H. LaGarde received two in Chowan County, Andrew Best received two in Pitt County and Richard Lee Humbles received one in Pitt.

After the 11 a.m. canvass was completed by the elections board, Jones' commission was prepared by Secretary of State Thad Eure for transmittal to Washington. The document was taken to Washington by Jones' son, Walter Jr., a student at North Carolina State.

Jones will be sworn-in at noon today in Washington.

State Has Shelters For 31%

RALEIGH AP—North Carolina could provide public shelters for 31.5 per cent of the state's 4,556,000 residents in event of a nuclear attack, a state Civil Defense official said yesterday. James Denning, operations officer, said most of the fallout shelters are in cities and would offer "acceptable protection" against radiation from a nuclear explosion.

"From an operational standpoint, knowing what to do in case of an attack, North Carolina is as well prepared as any state in the nation," Denning told The Associated Press.

"We're not as well off as some Northern states in the number of public shelters available because they have bigger and more buildings in metropolitan areas," he said. "But we're on a par with Southern states."

The big problem in event of a sudden enemy attack, Denning noted, would be the movement of residents to areas containing public shelters.

"That problem is prevalent in all states," he said. "All we could do would be to try to save as many lives as possible."

Denning added, "Civil defense is actually a game you play before the whistle starts. It's like a coach preparing his attack for a game. Anything can happen after the whistle blows, but you hope for the best. Let's put it this way—Civil Defense is like insurance. It's good to have but you hope you never have to use it."

Denning released figures showing there are 1,752 public shelters through the state. Of these, 1,111 are stocked with water and other provisions for use in an emergency.

Of the total shelters, Mecklenburg County as 144, Wake 146, Forsyth 136, Guilford 131, Cumberland 107 and Buncombe 104.

N. Y. Supreme Court Halts Transit Settlement Raises

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge ruled yesterday that state law requires city subway and bus workers to wait three years to collect pay raises they won after a 12-day strike last month.

Supreme Court Justice Irving H. Saypol called the settlment that ended the crippling strike "ransom extorted from eight million citizens."

He said it was clear that the state law forbidding strikes by public employes requires that reinstated strikers must be refused a pay raise for three years.

Justice Saypol said it was "craven servility" to grant pay increases to illegal strikers, and "if responsible officials cannot stand up in firm resistance, the court will."

Leaders of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union promptly issued a statement saying they would insist that the Transmit Authority and the mayor live up to the agreement.

The auothority had no immediate comment. There is no doubt Saypol's opinion will be appealed. The Supreme Court in New York is a trial court.

The 34,400 workers were granted across-the-board increases of 4 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, another 4 per cent next Jan. 1, and another 7 per cent on July 1, 1967. The total cost was estimated variously at $52 to $70 million over two years.

None of the increase has yet been paid, since the union members ratified the contract only last weekend.

President Johnson denounced the settlement as inflationary, but it was defended by Republican Mayor John V. Lindsay.

The strike, the first city-side transit shutdown in the city's history, was called a few hours after Lindsay took office on Jan. 1. Business losses were estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The Transit Authority invoked the state Condon-Wadlin Act, which forbids strikes by public employes, to obtain an injunction against the strike.

Michael J. Quill, President of the Transport Workers Union, and eight other union leaders were jailed for ignoring the injunction. Quill collapsed in jail, was hospitalized, and later died of a heart ailment.

The other union leaders were released when the strike ended, and the Transit Authority dropped court efforts to assess fines against the union, and said it would not invoke the Condon-Wadlin Act.

Ground Action Slackens In Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Marines, bombers and artillery killed 27 Viet Cong yesterday near a helicopter base of the leathernecks' Operation Double Eagle 20 miles south of Quang Ngai city. One Marine was wounded.

American air squadrons stepped up their attacks both north and south of the border as ground action generally slackened. Briefing officers claimed considerable success in the double-barreled operation and said all the scores of planes involved returned safely.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is due in today with Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky from Honolulu, where the Vietnamese leaders had a summit conference with President Johnson. Humphrey expected to make a two-day visit to Saigon as part of an Asian tour.

Bloody fighting last week in the offensive of American and Allied forces that swept North Vietnames regulars and hardcore Viet Cong regiments from the central coast was reflected in casualties announced by the U. S. military command.

A spokesman said Communist losses soared to 1,541 killed and 245 capturd, up from 408 killed and 56 captured in the previous week, and the kill ratio favored the Allied forces 5.2 to 1.

WANT ADS

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED — PERSON TO DO translations from Spanish into English. Call 929-5069 after 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

WANTED — SOMEONE TO share 2 bedroom, furnished apartment. Bill Busby, 942-2364.

SIX BIG PIECES OF A
BIG CHICKEN!
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of French Fries
TOASTED ROLLS
99¢
W. T. Grant
Thurs. 4:00-:730
All the Tea You Can Drink . . . 15c

S. HUROK presents
ARTUR Rubinstein
Tuesday, Feb. 15—8:15 P.M., Duke Indoor Stadium. Tickets $2.00, $1.50; unreserved $1.00, on sale at Page Box Office, 681-0111, Ext. 4059, or by mail, Box KM, Duke Station (enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.)

Thanks for Shopping at The Intimate!
Now that the text rush is over and we've caught our breath, we'd like to express our appreciation to those of you who came to The Intimate for your books.
We hope we saved you time and money, and made the beginning crush a bit less harrying.
Again, thanks. Your patronage — and your suggestions for improved service — are most appreciated.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

PINE ROOM
CAFETERIA
Thursday Night — Italian Night
DINNER SPECIAL
Choice of Raviola or Spaghetti with Meat Sauce,
Garlic Bread, Tossed Green Salad.
90c
Serving 5:00 - 7:15

As Up - To - Date As Today's Headlines!
A FILM EVERY AMERICAN SHOULD SEE!
"VIVID . . visually impressive." —New York Times
A SHATTERING EYE-OPENER!
Felix Greene's
CHINA!
in color
Short, "PEKING SYMPHONY"
12:49, 2:15, 3:40, 5:07, 6:33, 8, 9:27
RIALTO THEATRE, Durham

Something New at . . . LA PIZZA!!
Thursday Night ONLY
HAMBURGER STEAK
Smothered in Onions,
Baked Potato — Salad.
$1.25
Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

people on the go...
go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF
HAMBURGERS
College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.
337 W. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. - 11 P.M.
Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Gene Rector

DTH Sports Editor

Various claims and counter-claims have been kicked around concerning North Carolina's disputed loss to Virginia in Charlottesville on January 15.

The dispute came when the buzzer sounding the end of the game failed to go off—reportedly allowing a few extra seconds of play.

Virginia's Buddy Reams flipped in a shot in those final disputed seconds to hand the Cavaliers a 70-69 victory.

Of course the big controversy is—did Reams score the winning basket after the game was over?

Sports writer Bill Rollins, who covered the game for the DTH, believes that shot did come after the game should have been over.

On February 2, Bill expressed his views in a story entitled "Neat Clockwork, Man."

Well, to put matters mildly, his story had quite critical readership among members of The Cavalier Daily—the student newspaper at the University of Virginia.

Staff members Alan Friedberg and Dick Dyas expressed their opinions in a letter to the DTH yesterday. Here are their comments:

"We feel that the article in the February 2 Daily Tar Heel deserves some second thought on your part and perhaps the recognition that it was a poor performance for a newspaper of the DTH's caliber.

"We want to begin by admitting that we heard no buzzer sound, and that the winning shot for Virginia may or may not have been scored after time ran out. Whatever the case, it must be agreed that the officials had no choice other than to decide as they did. No amount of physiological and sociological study could prove conclusively that time had or had not run out. . . . Virginia-Carolina games are usually closer than the experts predict and it's a shame this one ended as it did."

The letter contains more—including a short, concise appraisal of DTH sports policy: "That article was the weakest example of newswriting and sportmanship we've seen in a long while."

This is the summary they offered: "Yes, Virginia fans were happy to have won. If you were watching the clock, you (Bill Rollins) were a minority of one. What do you want us to do, give you the game? If Virginia fans knew as certainly as you do that the shot came too late, they undoubtedly would."

* * *

On the brighter side of the mail-bag picture comes a non-prose rebuttal from Duke University.

If you will recall, we ran an original poem (by Shakefellow and Longspeare) which summarized certain of the Duke basketball players and offered a prediction of the outcome.

Of course the game is history but Blue Devil fans are a hearty lot.

Frank Manola and Cam Penfield with "deepest sympathies:

"Bobby Verga really hit
He gave the Tar Heels quite a fit
Up and down, just like a streak
He made the press look really weak.

"Poor" Jack Marin had quite a day
The Tar Heel offense didn't pay
Lewis' score was held down low
Which filled the Tar Heels full of woe.

"Bib" Mike Lewis, the mountain man,
Grabbed those rebounds with either hand
They groped for every ball in vain
With Big Mike standing in the lane.

They meet the captain of our team
Steve's play was enough to make them scream
There team was looking everywhere
But the Win they sought just wasn't there.

Bob Riedy played some real good ball
And to Carolina he looked twice as tall
They jumped and jumped to no avail
As against our team they were bound to fail.

The rematch should be lots of fun
We've got the Tar Heels on the run
And all will know at the final gun
Why our team is number one!"

DKE Nips Phi Kap Sig

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

A balanced scoring attack led the DKE White team to a narrow 40-38 win over the Phi Kap Sig Bounders in intramural basketball Tuesday. Whitaker scored 10 points, Davis 9, Dunn 6 and Schwab 6 for the DKE's. This offset a great performance by Vance of Phi Kap Sig, who popped in 26 of his team's 38 points.

Twenty points by Laten Creech paced DU Blue IV over Delta Sig Blue, 49-19.

Zeta Psi I crushed St. A. Blue, 74-25, behind the 24 points of Bill Harrison.

ATO II had an easy time with Chi Psi Green, 56-26.

The Phi Gam Whiteowls bested the Lambda Chi Clowns in a slow-down game, 24-18.

Navy I beat Med Blue I in a graduate quarterfinal, 14-6 and 15-4. Navy then beat Law I in a semifinal game, 10-2 and 15-5.

The Med Reds won the other grad semifinal, beating the Navy D.D.'s, 12-6 and 15-1.

Lacrosse Team Is Ready For Season

By JIMMY FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

The University of North Carolina Lacrosse team is only beginning its third year this spring, but Coach Connie Steele believes that this year's team will rank among the top ten in the nation.

Three years ago, when lacrosse first became a major sport here, the team won only one game. They improved their record last year to five wins and two loses and finished 19th in the nation among the colleges that recognize lacrosse as a major sport.

This year's team will be lead by All-American candidates Jeff Parker and Harvey Stanley, the teams co-captains. Parker was a third team All-American last year, and Coach Steele regards him as one of the finest players in this area.

"Stanley was one of a rash of fine goalies in the country last year," said Coach Steele. "But I believe this year he could well be the best."

Jake Hubbard and Sandy Reider are two more players Coach Steele sighted. "Both boys are real fine players, and I expect quite a bit from them on attack this year," he said.

Coach Steele said that even though several valuable players from last year's team graduated, that he still believes they will have an outstanding season because of the added depth the team now has.

"We don't have any real outstanding players up from last year's freshman team," he said, "but we do have a whole rash of real fine players from it that will add a lot of depth to the team."

This year's team will play a real tough schedule. Five of the eight teams they play this season are ranked higher than we were last year, and games promise to be with Maryland and Virginia.

Maryland was rated third in the nation last year while Virginia was sixth. Both teams beat the Tar Heels last year, but Coach Steele feels that this year's team is capable of turning the score around.

Coach Steele had the following remark to make about this year's schedule: "Every game we play this year is going to be close. We could go all the way and win or lose them all. It just depends on how the ball bounces, and how good a job we can do between now and then."

The team opens its 1966 schedule against Yale here on March 21. All home games will begin at 3 p.m. with the exception of the Dennison game which will begin at 2 o'clock.

The games will be played on Navy Field with the exception of the Virginia game and that will be played in Kenan Stadium.

1966 LACROSSE SCHEDULE

Mar. 21 — Yale — Home
Apr. 1 — Cornell — Home
Apr. 5 — Dennison — Home
Apr. 16 — Washington & Lee — Lexington, Va.
Apr. 23 — Virginia — Home
Apr. 30 — Maryland — College Park, Md.
May 7 — Washington College — Chestertown, Md.
May 9 — Towson — Towson, Md.

Students wishing to obtain the new plates should present their license renewal cards at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Violets Don't Wilt, 83-78

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

NEW YORK—New York University hit ten-of-12 free throws in the closing minutes to knock off a North Carolina rally and beat the Tar Heels 83-78 last night in Madison Square Garden.

The Violets hit a spurt in which they outscored the Southern visitors by 15-2 midway through the first half, and held up under repeated rallies to deal UNC its seventh loss in 19 games.

The New Yorkers, man-for-man, were a smaller team, but throughout the game they dominated the Tar Heels' offensive board, while moving up on theirs for several key tip-ins.

Bobby Lewis made a sensational Garden debut, leading all point-makers with 34 tallies. In fact, he was all the Tar Heels had to white home about in the early going.

Maneuvering and hitting as only he can, Lewis hit three field goals and four free throws to move his team into a 10-5 lead before the Violets could get untracked.

But when Coach Lou Rossini's boys did turn it on, they raced to a 15-2 domination which pushed the Tar Heels into a 20-12 hole, out of which they could never quite climb.

Lewis scored Carolina's first 12 points. Bob Bennett hit a couple of foul shots at 9:12 which made it 14-20, and when the Stick made a follow shot at 6:08, it was the first Tar Heel field goal not counted by Lewis.

The Tar Heels pulled to within 26-28. But here, the Violets ran off 10 straight points, and UNC trailed by 38-28 at halftime.

Larry Miller went to work at the start of the second period, as he hit three goals, Bennett got a couple, and Lewis threw in three points to pull their team to 41-44.

Carolina stayed close to NYU, a drive by Lewis cutting the deficit to 51-55 with just over ten minutes to play.

But when Lewis hit a three-point play to make it 58-61, the Violets made their move to put the Tar Heels out of it.

Dick Kaplan, who shared the NYU scoring lead with Stan MacKenzie with 21 points, scored, and Mal Graham converted a three-point play to move out to a 66-58 lead, at 6:03.

UNC called a time out with 4:53 left, NYU in a 68-62 lead and stalling, but the Violets promptly got a free throw, and then Richie Dyer stole the ball and hit a lay-up for a 71-62 New York lead.

Carolina, despite three baskets by Lewis, and a long one each by Gauntlett and Miller, couldn't catch the Yankees as they parade to the free-throw line as the result of Carolina pressing tactics, and converted 10-of-12 times to hold the lead.

UNC was down by 83-72 when Miller and Jim Smithwick (twice) hit buckets to make the final margin respectable.

Miller finished with 16, Bennett had 10, Gauntlett 8, and Yokley 4. UNC shot 45.6 per cent from the floor and hit 16-19 at the line, while NYU hit for 48.3 from the field and canned 25-30 foul shot attempts.

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Blue Devils Still Top Team In ACC

Although the Blue Devils of Duke have lost their national rating of number one team in the nation, they are still on top in the ACC.

Holding a 7-1 conference record, Duke is followed by N. C. State (5-3) with North Carolina and Clemson tagging close behind wih 5-4 records in ACC play.

In conference action tonight Duke takes on N. C. State in Raleigh and on Saturday afternoon South Carolina entertains Wake Forest rounding out ACC games for this week.

Other games tonight has Clemson at Furman; Virginia at Miami; and Wake Forest at Virginia Tech and on Saturday evening Maryland entertains West Virginia; Georgia goes to State; and Virginia Tech plays at Carolina.

The Wake Forest - South Carolina game will be televised Saturday aftrnoon starting at 2 p.m.

Team	Conf.	O-A
Duke	7-1	15-2
State	5-3	10-6
UNC	5-4	12-6
Clem.	5-4	10-7
Md.	5-5	10-8
USC	3-5	8-7
Va.	3-6	5-9
Wake	2-7	6-12

Tickets Available

A substantial number of tickets still remain for the game with V.P.I. on Saturday evening and a few tickets still can be picked up for the North-South Doublehader in Charlotte next weekend.

This announcement was made by the ticket office yesterday afternoon just before the office closed at 4:30.

Students who wish any of these tickets can pick them up between 8:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Duke Loses Rating As 'Number One'

By GENE WHISNANT
DTH Sports Writer

Tuesday was a gloomy day for our neighbor, Duke University. Not only did they lose their number one ranking which they had for eight straight weeks, but also Duke suffered its second loss of the year to West Virginia 94-90.

The Blue Devils had already lost their ranking before they took the court against an improved West Virginia team coached by Bucky Waters who was Vic Bubas's assistant last year.

Duke's idleness and Kentucky's continued winning swung the vote.

Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats captured 20 first place ballots and 314 points opposed to 12 first place ballots and 304 points for the Blue Devils in the Associated Press poll.

Kentucky is undefeated in 18 games while Duke now stands 15-2.

How will this affect Duke which leads the Atlantic Coast Conference race?

In an interview with John Wallace, sports editor of the Duke University newspaper yesterday, he said. "The team is unhappy about losing the number one ranking.

"However this should make them work harder and realize that they can still improve for the ACC tournament."

Duke has a rough road before it gets to the tournament all against conference tams.

The Blue Devils play N.C. State Thursday night in Raleigh and the game will be televised on station WTVD, Durham.

Then Duke plays Virginia and South Carolina at Durham to be followed by Maryland and Wake Forest on the road.

The last game will be against the Tar Heels at Durham, Feb. 26 which will be televised also.

How Frosh Topped 'Cats

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

The Tar Babies became familiarized with the hazards of playing a good team in a small gym with a frenzied mob of students screaming in opposition last Tuesday night. They ventured to Johnston Gym on the campus of Davidson College and very nearly had their unbeaten status wiped out.

They hung on in the face of team-wide foul difficulty, the thunderous roaring of the Wildcat frosh partisans, and some almost unbelievable outside shooting by a much-improved Davidson five to prevent the "Wildcatastrophe" from becoming a reality. And it is a credit to their first-time-tested mettle that they were able to escape with an 80-76 win.

The following is a chronological highlights recap of the struggle. Tomorrow there will be an analysis.

Joe Brown got the game's first basket on an eight-foot jumper at 18:58, but Crosswhite hit from the left corner to tie it at 2-2. After Clark's tap-in, Moser connected to put Davidson into its first lead, 5-4, at 17:09.

Tuttle scored a free throw and Grubar drove the lane for a 7-5 UNC lead, but three Davidson foul shots pushed it back on top, 8-7, at 15:33.

Bunting and Clark scored for UNC to knot it at 11-all. Then Grubar connected and fed Tuttle on a beautiful fast break for a 17-13 Tar Baby lead at 12:04. Baskets from outside by Spann and O'Neill tied it, but UNC reeled off seven straight points, four by Clark, to assume its biggest lead of the night at 24-17 with 7:48 left in the half.

Bill and Rusty did it again for UNC, but Davidson rallied to a 28-27 deficit with 3:56 left. Bostick then hit from the right corner for 30-27, but O'Neill and Moser hit 20-footers and Huckel canned a free throw for a 32-30 Wildcat leat at 2:54.

Bunting hit from the left sideline and Moser tallied again for Davidson, and then Clark picked up a three-point play for a 35-34 UNC lead at 1:29.

Dodson stole the ball and laid it in for 37-34, and after two Huckel free throws, Brown hit from the left corner for 39-36 at 0:36. Dickens scored and was fouled, but missed the free throw and a chance for a halftime tie at 0:12.

Halftime: UNC - 39, Davidson - 38.

Brown hit from the top of the foul circle and Clark got a fast-break layup in the opening minute of the second round. Then the two teams exchanged two - pointers for six or seven possessions, with Bunting getting eight points and Grubar four to hold the lead.

Then, when a Dickens hook cut it to 55-54, Brown made a free throw and took a pass from Clark for a three-pointer and a 59-54 lead at 11:26.

Brown, shouldering the load through this period, took still another pass from Clark for a layup at 7:09 which gave UNC a 66-62 advantage.

But at this point, the Wildcats scored five straight to take the lead. O'Neill hit from the right sideline, and added a free throw a minute later. Then Huckel drove the base line for a great layup and a 67-66 lead at 5:32.

Brown scored again, but Spann recaptured the Davidson lead with a 15-footer at 4:46.

Then Clark hit a streak, scoring nine of UNC's last 12 points. He hit a rebound shot at 4:25 and tossed in two charity shots for a 72-69 UNC advantage at 3:57. Brown got his last basket on a drive shot, but muffed the free throw on a three - point attempt. Then Grubar missed a layup on a break which was maneuvered in the middle of a traffic jam. Huckel's two free throws made it 74-71 at 2:01.

Rusty drove for a bucket at the end of a fast break and converted the ensuing free throw for a three - pointer which opened it up to 77-71 at 1:54.

Spann got a free throw and Huckel hit two, and then Tuttle hit one-of-two for a 78-74 UNC lead. O'Neill connected again from 'way out at 0:36, making it 78-76.

With 0:28 left, Brown was called for traveling on a drive attempt, and Davidson took over. They worked the ball for an open shot, which Crosswhite took from the right corner at 0:09.

He missed.

Rusty grabbed the rebound, was intentionally fouled as he ran upcourt, and sank the two free throws at 0:06 to ice it, 80-76.

SCORING:

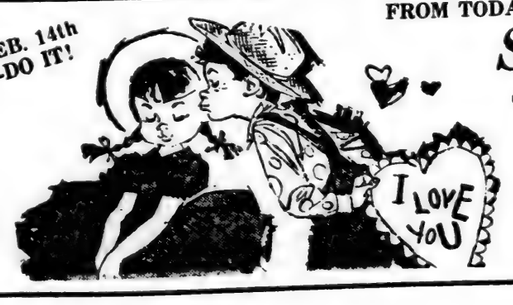
UNC — Clark 25, Bunting 17, Brown 16, Tuttle 10, Grubar 8, Bostick 2, Dodson 2, Rindfleisch.

DAVIDSON — Huckel 18, Moser 16, O'Neill 16, Spann 16, Crosswhite 4, Dickens 6.

Jack Jar Durham
Comm Rein! Commt Alle!
BIERSTUBE
AUTHENTIC GERMAN FOODS
Served Buffet Style
EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT
5:30 to 9 P.M.
CAFE BRIGHT LEAF
Don't Forget Sunday Family Buffet
11:30 A.M. to 2:30 P.M.—5:30 P.M. to 9:00 P.M.
CHILDREN ½ PRICE

CHANEL
SPRAY COLOGNE—BATH POWDER

EVERY WOMAN ALIVE
LOVES CHANEL N° 5
J. B. Robbins



FROM TODAY, ONLY 3 DAYS LEFT TO MAIL YOUR CARDS
Send Your Love
VALENTINE CARDS
Romance or whimsy . . . whatever you want in a Valentine card, you'll find it in our selection
CUTE — SOPHISTICATED — SENTIMENTAL
Also RUSSELL STOVER CANDIES for Valentine Giving
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

JEAN RHODES

Craige Will Hold Dinner, Sat. Dance

"Winter Mavericks" will be the theme of a series of meetings and parties to be held this week-end by Maverick House.

A private dinner at the Pines Restaurant is planned for Friday night. This will be followed by a stereo party in Craig's VooDoo room.

A Maverick Art Show will be held Saturday afternoon.

Miss Jeane Rhodes, 1966 N. C. Heart Research Queen, will atend a party Saurday night in the Red Garter Room. She was named Maverick's February Sweetheart at a reception Sunday.

The party will be open to the public with a $2 admission charge. The Dixie Cups will play from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Maverick President Otto Reich said the party will last until 1 a.m. so that people can attend after seeing Carolina's game with V.P.I.

GM Plans Ski Trip

The GM Social Committee is invesigating the possibility of a one day ski trip to Blowing Rock. A tentative date for the trip is Sunday, Feb. 27.

The committee is hoping to obtain reduced rates so that the cost for the entire trip will not exceed $18. Transportation will be by chartered buses which would leave at 6 a.m. and would return by midnight.

Before any further plans can be made, the committee will need a tentative list of interested students. Anyone wishing to who would like to go should sign up at the GM information desk by Tuesday.

Student insurance will cover the trip. Further announcements concerning the trip will appear in The Daily Tar Heel.

Dying Village

(Continued from Page 1)

to move I'll have to go deeper into debt. I am on a national defense loan now."

Cebrun Gaustad, graduate, Absorokee—"I have four children. If I have to move out of the Village, my fellowship won't be sufficient. I wouldn't move to one of the University's brick apartments for the same rent.

"I think the University needs more housing instead of tearing down the existing structures."

Robert Craig, graduate, political science—"I was already planning to leave in August. I hate to move for just two months.

"I have three children. I don't see how we could have made it in one of the brick apartments.

"Housing is one of the reasons I came to UNC. We feel that we were lucky to live here four years.

Richard French, graduate, political science, Lee, Mass.—"If we move out of the Village we will have to borrow another $500 a year. I probably wouldn't move to the brick apartments in Odum Village."

No r e s i d e n t interviewed wanted to move out of the Village.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill alumni g a v e more to the University last year than at any previous year. Gifts, grants and bequests from all sources topped $17,000,000 for the fiscal year ending 1965.

THE RAMSEY LEWIS TRIO is coming to Memorial Hall to perform for Carolina students who like to hear the Lewis bran of swinging jazz.

—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Trio To Perform

Tickets for the Ramsey Lewis Trio will go on sale today at 9 a.m. in G.M. The jazz threesome will be playing in Memorial Hall Saturday, Feb. 19, a 8 p.m.

With Ramsey Lewis on piano, Eldee Young on bass, and Red Holt on percussion, the Lewis trio are expected to put out a kind of "middle ground" music to appeal to any listener.

The Ramsey Lewis brand of jazz is not as traditional as that of some jazz groups or as esoteric as that of others. Instead, the trio hits somewhere in between with an easy listenable kind of music.

The combo can handle any type of tune, and the music they play is as easy f o r a jazz - oriented audience as for the musical, but not so "cool" listener.

The Ramsey Lewis trio began their rise to social prominence in Chicago.

Hair-Raising Action Taken Against Red Hair Raisers

NEW YORK (AP) — Shipments of black hair from Red China were all snarled up by the U. S. Customs Service Wednesday — while wigs flipped in the toupee and false eyelash business.

Hair pieces and phony chignons have been caught in a cold war snag.

Starting today, customs will detain human hair products entering the country from the United Kingdom, F r a n c e, Belgium, Germany and Italy.

Suspect tresses may end up in warehouses, be returned to Europe, or — a hair-raising thought — forfeited to the federal government.

It seems that the fashionable, long - lashed ladies with great manes of hair have been aiding and abetting the enemy, if ever so inadvertently.

"It has now been determined that substantial quantities of Communist Chinese hair are being used in the production of wigs and other hair products sent to the United States from the affected countires," said the Treasury Department Office of Foreign Assets Control.

And U. S. regulations forbid trade with Red China.

Imports from Hong Kong were banned last November after the Treasury Department found that of the $15 million that American firms paid to import wigs last year, $6 million went to Red China via the British Crown colony.

American women, from the shingle to the sassoon, don't grow enough hair for themselves.

"Why, American women don't produce enough (hair) in one year for one day's wig production," said Richard Hartwich of the Fifth Avenue wig firm that bears his name.

So when the wig boom hit in the early 1960s, American women combed the European market and wigmakers there turned to the Orient to fill the demand.

Hartwich estimated that 95 per cent of all machine - made wigs were made of Chinese hair, and that some Chinese hair was blended in even the handmade models labeled made in Europe.

Now it will take either a foreign assets control license or a certificate of origin to get each shipment of h a i r through customs.

Hartwich estimated it would take eight weeks to clear the red tape, leaving wig makers with short supplies and probably higher prices for spring.

VARSITY
MEN'S WEAR
Semi-Annual Florsheim
Shoe Sale
Reg. 26.95 to 24.95
Now 18.80 to 16.80

Selected styles from our regular stock of famous Florsheim Shoes, reduced for a limited time. Here's your opportunity to save on America's finest quality shoes for men. Shop now while the selection is good.

Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.
Charge Accounts Invited

What's Going On Today

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday or Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

University Party Caucus in the Grail Room at 6:45 p.m.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee and the Committee Chairmen of the Carolina Symposium at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

The Campus Chest Publicity Committee will meet at 4:30 p.m. 2nd floor, Y-Court.

Class Rings are on sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Y-Court.

The Mutton and Shoats Society will meet at the Goody Shop on Thursday at 5:30 p.m. to discuss the threat to academic f r e e d o m posed by the upheaval of Major Pleasant Henderson's outhouse.

The Raleigh - Durham - Chapel Hill chapter of American Church Union will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Duke Episcopal Center in Durham. UNC students needing transportation may contact Dick Bulla at 968-6615.

Used Book Ex-Students are requested to pick up their money on their books in APO office in South Basement from 3-5 p.m. on Tues.-Friday.

The Reverend John E. Ensign will be on campus Monday, Feb. 14, to interview students for summer employment at Camp Hanover, located 14 miles out of Richmond. Please call 942-3753 for an appointment with Mr. Ensign.

The Sophomore Planning Committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II to discuss current projects.

All Junior Class Committees will meet at 4 p.m. in Davie Hall. Please bring any money secured from advance ticket sales for the barbecue.

Carolina Christian Fellowship at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Dining Hall. Supper will be followed at 6:30 p.m. by a Bible Study.

The members of Phi Beta Kapps who were initiated on Dec. 7 may now pick up their keys and certificates in 378 Phillips Hall.

The Current Affairs Committee will meet Monday from 4-5:30, in Roland Parker I. All members plan now to be present.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Silver charm bracelet with six charms. If found, call Gloria Welch at 968-9145. Lost Friday afternoon. Reward offered.

Lost: A gold watch in Gardner Hall Fan 26 during BA exam. Reward offered. Contact Bill Rogers, 427 Avery, 968-9100.

Lost: A pair of black-rimmed glasses. The owner's name is scratched into the frame. Lost last week, probably near Grimes Dorm. Contact Michael D. Gooden, 312 Grimes, 968-9192.

Lost: A silver charm bracelet. Contact Carol Copple, 968-9002.

Lost: one "cool." It was lost in the vicinity of Raleigh early this week. Finder please contact D. K. Moore, statehouse. This "cool" has sentimental value.

SUIT SALE

A large selection of fine imimported worsteds, herringbones, Glenn plaids and solids in natural shoulder clothing that guarantees a perfect fit.

Reg. 59.95 — NOW 39.88
Reg. 65.00 — NOW 44.88
Reg. 69.95 — NOW 49.88
Reg. 75.00 — NOW 54.88
Reg. 79.95 — NOW 59.88

Many Other Fantastic Buys Now Await You!

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

SALE

100% Imported WOOL PULLOVER by PRINGLE

Everything about this soft, warm pullover speaks with full confidence. So it speaks quietly. Its fine gauge imported wool is sheer luxury to the touch. Classically styled with the V-neck in today's narrow rib.

On Sale Now for $11.21

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

LADY MILTON
February Frogstrangler

Impossible reductions on many goodies for a spring semester flying start!

Finest McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland cardigans cut from $19.95 to below cost Frogstrangler of $10.

Group ladies belts to $6.00 at Frogstrangler of $.99.

Lady Milton shirts regularly to $10.95, have fun at $1.99; $2.99 and $3.99.

Entire collection of British Moderns in one and two piece ensembles - all at HALF PRICE!

Crazy Horse Houndstooth Chesterfield suits cut from $32.50 to $19.99.

Tweedsbury Mohair - wool cardigans in alpaca knitcut from $14.95 to Frogstrangler of $8.99.

Deans of England sweater and skirt sets—skirt and sweater each cut from $19.95 to $14.95.

David Ferguson skirts and slacks plus our own make slashed from $13.95 to $10.99; $14.95 to $11.99; $15.95 to $12.99; and $16.95 to $12.99.

Beecroft Cable-stitch sweater sets from England cut from $50.00 to $30.00.

Our New Poor Boy Outfits; Our New Out Of This World Don Sophisticates; Our New Crazy Horse Outfits need elbow room —so y'all come empty our shelves.

Lady Milton Shop
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Why is this Saddle different?

It's a Florsheim!

There's always more to a Florsheim Shoe than meets the eye; superb quality in every detail, premium leathers, finer workmanship. And the traditional Florsheim longer wear that means lower cost in the long run.

Florsheim

In 2-tone cordovan (black & mahogany); black Scotch grain with black cordovan saddle, and Hawthorne brown grain on black cordovan saddle...

Julian's

Milton's February
Frogstrangler

With Winter Still Blasting, Get With It, And Have A Buying Ball On The Choicest Old School Traditional Trappings In This Wide World!

You made us do it — Milton wants to convince the few doubters that our M-2 shirt is the greatest — so now you can pick from 1177 button-downs with that fabulous roll button-down in stripes and some solids, including our own inimitable formal shirt, regularly to $8.95, all at BELOW COST $2.99.

Group wool and spring weight dacron-wool sport coats, regularly to $50.00, you can't pass these up at $29.99.

Group suits formerly to $90.00 at whopping $44.99.

Group English shoes to $35.00 including wing tips and plain toes, all fully leather lined, now at amazing $16.99.

Famous and finest shetland on the world market. McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland, V-necks Frogstrangled from $16.95 to $12.99 and cardigans throttled from $21.95 to $14.99.

Convoy Car Coats With hood from wool melton cloth, English import, cut from $25.00 to Frogstrangler of $18.99.

Entire stock cuffed pants including some End-Iron permanent creased ones, regularly to $9.95, all a mere $5.99.

Mohair wool scarves cut from $7.95 to $3.99.

Group worsted wool flannel pants cut from $14.95 to $8.99; $16.95 to $12.99 and $22.95 to $18.99.

Many Other Buys For Spring Semester Satorial Splendor!

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

SEE the LETTERMEN
in Person At The Record Bar
TODAY From 3:30 to 4:30

MEET The REAL LETTERMEN

Have an Autograph Signed by this Famous Group

SEE ALL THIS PLUS THOUSANDS OF GOOD BUYS TODAY AT

THE RECORD BAR

Across from the POST OFFICE on Henderson Street

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Free Flick

"Death of a Salesman" will be the Free Flick tonight. The film, starring Frederick March, will be shown at 7:00 and 9:30 in Carroll Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, No. 91 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Blood Drive

Only 269 students have signed up in Y-Court to give blood Wednesday. Nine hundred donors are needed.

SDS, Carolina Forum At Odds Over Ban Issue

Two Carolina student organizations were at odds here today as George Nicholson, chairman of the Carolina Forum attacked the Students for a Democratic Society.

Nicholson labeled the SDS "notorious." He called their invitation to Communist Herbert Aptheker, "ill-timed, ill-planned and for the sole purpose of sensationalism."

He called some of the statements made by SDS representatives the "absolute epitome of irresponsibility and of political naivete."

Nicholson added that the Carolina Forum also joined in the invitation to Aptheker "only in support of a principle" of free speech and open forum. Being in favor of Aptheker or any other extremist speaking does not mean support of the SDS by the Carolina Forum organization, Nicholson declared.

Derogating again the SDS, Nicholson said, 'We have serious reservations about some of their basic motivations in the entire matter."

The Carolina Forum's chief added, "We have confidence in the Board of Trustees and in Governor Moore. We feel that the decision reached by the executive committee was one reflective of a desire for a ruling by the entire board of trustees, and we are confident that at their meeting on February 28 they will adopt policies and procedures which will clarify the haze surrounding the present situation."

Nicholson refused to be a part of a campus-wide rally here last Monday, although he was originally scheduled to be one of the speakers. "I thought the meeting was loaded in favor of the SDS," he said. "The two faculty members present were said to be representative of the faculty. I don't think the were. They had Prof. Joseph Straley and Lewis Lipsitz, both of them partisans of the SDS position. If they had wanted representative faculty opinion, they would have gotten someone like Prof. C. P. Spruill (Chairman of the Faculty and former Dean of the Faculty.)"

Therefore Nicholson refused to participate.

Nicholson said he was issuing his statement today in order to clarify the position of the Carolina Forum, owing to the fact that "unfortunate interpretations" have been made of several actions by student government agencies.

Nicholson said the Carolina Forum's invitation to Yale Professor Staughton Lynd was not associated with the Aptheker case. He also said invitations had been sent in October, 1965, to Pete Vassilev, Bulgarian cultural affairs representative in Washington, and also to Frank J .Donner, a New York lawyer, and Fulton Lewis III, the GOP teen-age division director. The idea was to plan a forum discussion, with all sides of issues represented.

"We are fully convinced Governor Moore and the Board of Trustees are sincerely dedicated to a free university as evidenced by their successful effort last fall" in getting rid of the Speaker Ban Law, said Nicholson.

Nicholson's attack upon the SDS is the latest in a series of developments which began when the SDS invited Aptheker to speak in Chapel Hill March 9. Last week the chairman of the SDS, James McCorkle of Swarthmore, Pa. resigned, after making a blast at Governor Moore.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

High Hopes For Academic Freedom

A student by the name of Bryden Manning sends us the following songs and we reprint them in the hope that you will all enjoy them.

"Since all movements must, by definition, have protest songs, the following two are offered in connection with the recent trustee decision":

The Right To Speak
(To be sung to the tune of "Rebel Soldier")

We all know that our government
Is a democracy;
We all know that it guarantees
That everybody's free,
It guarantees the right to speak
And even disagree
As long as it is not with me
Said the big trustee.

We only said two men can't speak
And that is not a horde;
To show good faith we give you Welch
As a due reward,
You are adults as long as you
Don't try to cut the cord;
We will protect your little minds
Said the trutee board.

All invitations must be cleared
A month or so before;
We'll use our veto power
And thus prevent a roar;
We'll kill the controversy
Behind a big closed door,
Illusions are what matter
Said the governor.

We'll make this university
Much freer than before;
All invited speakers speak;
How can you ask for more?
You're free to hear just whom you wish
Of that you can be sure,
With just one stipulation—
That his name be Dan K. Moore.

Academic Freedom
(To be sung to the tune of "High Hopes")

Once there was a little old ban,
Got enforced by Governor Dan,
Everyone knows that Dan can't
Go enforcing a ban.
(Refrain)
Cause we've got
Freedom,
Academic freedom,
We've got Amended
Recinded
Freedom,
So now it's time to make a note
For next time you vote,
Just remember this sham,
Oops there goes another trustee
Ker-blam.

Once there was a little old breach
Of a right that's known as free speech,
Everyone knows that speech can't
Be subject to breach.
Refrain.
Once there was a little old group
Jumping through a political hoop,
Everyone knows a hoop can't
Be held for this group.
Refrain.

Navy Plane Buzzes UNC, Salutes Unit

A WF-2 "Willy Fudd" Navy radar airplane drew the attention of Carolina students yesterday morning shortly before 11:00 as it buzzed the UNC campus and dipped its wings to the Naval Armory.

Since the plane flew over during the changing of classes, most of the student body was able to view the show as the airplane soared low, circling the campus.

The Chapel Hill police received complaints from students at Morrison Residence College that the plane was flying too close to the building.

Authorities then contacted the Civil Air Patrol. The CAP tried to contact the airplane on its assigned radio frequency, but was unable to get an answer. The Federal Aviation Agency office at Raleigh-Durham airport is presently looking into the incident.

The "Willy Fudd" is equipped with a large radar dome and is used for 'round-the-clock extended radar coverage. The airplane was possibly based at Norfolk, Virginia, and piloted by a Carolina graduate and former member of the Carolina Naval ROTC Unit.

One conjecture is that the pilot recently earned his wings and had with an overwhelming desire to visit his alma mater.

Pepper To Be First Donor

Sonny Pepper, co-chairman of the UNC blood drive scheduled for next week, said he will be the first to give blood in the two-day collection.

"I've never given blood before," Pepper said, "but I'm going to give some Wednesday."

A quota of 600 pints has been set for the drive.

About 200 persons have signed up to give blood on the sign-up sheets in Y-Court. Pepper said about 900 prospective donors will probably be needed to get the quota.

The co-chairman said members of the NROTC and AF ROTC are planning to give blood but have not signed up. He said several other service groups have told him the members have not signed up but are planning to go together to give blood.

Dr. Edward Hedgpeth, faculty advisor for the blood campaign, said, "I think this is a very laudible undertaking by the student body and I hope the students will take part in it to the best of their ability. I endorse the program 100 per cent," he said.

The blood collected in the drive will be used strictly by the military.

(Continued on Page 6)

UNC Students To Hold Mass Meeting Today

Moore Defends Banning Of Communist Speaker

GOV. DAN K. MOORE

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore Thursday reiterated his objection to Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson speaking at the University of North Carolina and defended his action in speaking out against it.

Moore said his opposition was "based on my personal conviction that their appearance would not clearly serve the advantages of education . . ."

"As chairman of the board of trustees, I felt it was my duty and my right to express my personal opinion on this controversy," said Moore in a statement read at his news conference.

The Committee For Free Inquirey meets today at 12:30 in Gerrard Hall. The meeting is open to all students and faculty members.

Letters that have been drafted to send to Moore and the executive board of the UNC trustees will be presented at the meeting for approval. A permanent steering committee will also be set up.

"I did not attempt to dictate to members of the executive committee" when it turned thumbs down on Aptheker and Wilkson, he said.

Moore asserted that in the decision of the UNC trustees executive committee to deny university facilities to Aptheker and Wilkinson "there has been no attempt to censor free speech at the university, no political interference in academic affairs, and no attempt to dictate speaker policy at the university.

"Any impression that there has been is erroneous, and simply distorts the issue involved," Moore added.

The governor said, "It should be clearly understood that the speaker policy adopted by the trustees leaves the approval or disapproval of each speaker under the law to the trustees, or to whomever the trustees may designate.

"One speaker may be accepted," Moore said. "Another may be rejected."

Under the speaker policy approved, each prospective speaker must be judged on four conditions:

"1. Frequency of this type of speaker on campus.

"2. Appearance must clearly serve the advantages of education.

"3. When permission is granted on 'such rare occasions' reasonable and proper care must be exercised by the institution.

"4. Campuses must not be exploited as convenient outlets of discord and strife."

Moore pointed out that the executive committee met once but could not agree on the

(Continued on Page 6)

Clark Plans Counterattack

A press conference has been called for 11 a.m. today in the main lounge of GM by Wilson Clark, president of the Carolina Conservative Club.

Clark said the main issues to be discussed will be the announcement of a concentrated speaker program by the club, a policy statement on the issue of free speech and criticism of speaker policies of three established campus organizations.

"We feel that the issue of free speech per se is not the most crucial matter in the current situation," Clark said. "We will demonstrate the underlying implications of the current controversy over Aptheker's invitation."

The executive committe of the club has planned a "comprehensive" program of speakers for the nxt three weeks, Clark said.

"We plan to bring a number of nationally known speakers to this campus. Each speaker is an expert in his field and we feel that this program will provide illumination on a number of these vital matters affecting the University," Clark added.

The speaker program will be called the "Free University Series." Clark said it is to begins Sunday night at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall with a spech by Ernest Van Den Haag, sociologist and author of "Passion and Social Constraint."

Van Den Haag will consider the implications of current issues affecting the University, specifically, free speech. The speaker, a professor of sociology at NYU, will discuss "Free Speech: What Does It Mean?"

Rush Centers At Y–Court

Freshmen going through spring rush should pick up their invitations in Y-Court from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. today and tomorrow.

Bids may be picked up there next Friday.

During rush cars will be leaving every 30 minutes from the Scuttlebut to the Zeta Beta Tau house.

Injured Soph OK

Thomas Carroll, 19 year old sophomore who was injured in a motorcycle - car collision Wednesday, is listed in fair condition in the intensive care ward of Memorial hospital.

He has a compound fracture of the left leg.

The driver of the car, Jane Bruebaker, a student nurse at Watts hospital in Durham, has been charged with making an improper turn.

She was traveling south on Manning Drive and turned into the parking area of Morrison Residence College when Carroll, traveling north on Manning collided with her.

Damage to the car, a 1959 Ford, is estimate at $100. The motorcycle, a 1966 Suzuki, is a total loss, police said.

UP Elects Wilson

Ed Wilson was elected floor leader of the University Party at a cacucus Wednesday. He replaces George Ingram who resigned from the legislature.

Wilson, a junior from Cary, represents men's District III.

Morehead Price Hike

Morehead Planetarium will increase its rates for the first time since 1958 starting Mar. 1, according to director A. F. Jenzano.

The new rates are 45 cents for students through the sixth grade, 65 cents for students through the college level,and 90 cents for adults.

Angels Wear Red

The North Carolina Angel Flight have switched uniforms for the new semester. Instead of wearing the old blue ones every Thursday, they are now sporting red uniforms provided by the Fireside.

The new officers for Angel Flight are; executive officer, Diane Gallimore; administrative office, Betty Pemberton; assistant administrative officer, Beth Bandy; comptroller, Connie Croom; information services officer, Terry Verduin; and chaplain, Julia Knott.

Legality Of Ban May Be Contested

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

Legal action against the state, planned early last year by all four Consolidated University student body presidents, but stymied by the speaker ban amendment, may still be in the works, according to Student Body President Paul Dickson.

Dickson confirmed yesterday that the legal action had been planned last year.

He did not rule out the possibility of future court cases if the board of trustees denies requests for speaker appearances under the now-amended speaker ban.

A story appearing in the Winston Salem Journal yesterday about these plans was sustantially correct, Dickson said

Student Government here had planned to invite two persons coming under the original ban, and then take the case to court.

Peter Vessilev, secretary for cultural affairs of the Legation of People's Republic of Bulgaria, was invited for a solo appearance to speak here on "Art and Social Realism in a Communist Country."

Frank J. Donner, attorney-at-law from New York City, the second person invited, was scheduled to debate Fulton J. Lewis III, national director of the teen-age division of the Republican National Committee.

The invitations were made for late this month or early March.

Dickson said the first invitation made by the Forum for "educational purposes" was last March, immediately after his election to the student body presidency.

Dickson took full responsibility for initiating the plan.

He said Student Government has no plans to extend any more invitations.

They will wait until the board of trustees meet Feb. 28, before making any further decisions.

Dickson said the UNC administration had not been informed of the actions of the committee when the invitations were discussed.

He said the presidents of the student bodies at the other three consolidated University schools had helped to form the plans, but he refused to give out any additional names of either students or faculty members.

"There are some at this school and there are some at others," Dickson said, "but since I initiated this thing I don't want to jeopardize their positions."

The presidents of the other student bodies are John Mitchell, N. C. State; Nancy Baker, UNC-G; and Gus Psomadakis, UNC-C.

Dickson said the administration had not been informed of the action because, if there were a court case against either the trustees, the administration, or the General Assembly, dealings with the administration might be construed as "conspiracy."

Under the plans revealed by Dickson, each of the student governments would have brought speakers to their campuses, but in case of refusal, all of them would have brought a joint suit against the state.

Students for Democratic Society, the group which invited Communist Herbert Aptheker, had been aware of the student government plans, but had not told student government about

(Continued on Page 6)

The Dying Village: Part Four

Villagers Want More Pre-Fabs

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

"I'm sure there are doctors, lawyers, teachers and other professionals that would be in other businesses today were it not for Victory Village — not only have they benefited, the state has also benefited."

This is University Housing Director James E. Wadsworth describing UNC's "cheap housing" for married students.

"We think we have been able to keep students in school longer because they have been able to get cheap housing," Wadsworth continued.

Many University officials feel cheap housing is no longer feasable even though it is more than self-liquidating.

"It costs $10-$12,000 to provide housing for one married student and his family," UNC Director of Planning Arthur N. Tuttle said. "For the same amount we can provide space for eight single students in a residence hall.

"New permanent housing will probably raise the rent on all existing units since all the money goes into one fund," he added.

Tuttle is referring to new high-rise buildings. No Victory Village resident interviewed wants these apartments.

Most Village residents agree with George Tulloch, one of the students whose apartment is to be closed down:

"The University is not doing us a favor by offering those brick apartments. They are no cheaper than outside housing and they have more restrictions."

Housing in Odum Village is now only a few dollars cheaper than comparable apartments in Glen Lennox. They will probably be no cheaper at all when construction of new housing raises the rent on the old units.

Every student moving into married students housing is required to put up a damage deposit and to sign a list of restrictions which include no pets, no firearms and storage regulations.

Residents in Odum Village are required to rent stoves and refrigerators for $7 month whether or not they have their own.

The University has included plans for additional permanent married student housing in the capital improvements budget for the 1967 General Assembly, but no pre-fabs are involved, according to University Business Manager James A. Branch.

"While the state supplies no money for housing, it must authorize plans for building housing. The federal government will loan money for such self-liquidating projects," Branch said.

"There has been a tremendous amount of building recently by private enterprise," Branch continued. "These facts have to be taken into consideration."

According to Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Planner Lucian Faust, only 105 building permits were issued for new apartments in 1965 and the "population is keeping pace with the housing."

University Director of Accounting Victor Bowles said it would not be feasable to build more pre-fabs, because "space is at a premium."

Some Village residents, like John A. Gilreath, a graduate Physics student wonder why more pre-fabs can't be built, and existing ones can't be moved to other areas on University owned grounds, particularly the Horace Williams Airport property.

"They moved our pre-fab while we were in School at Clemson," Gilreath said, "and they were building brick apartments at the same time."

"But," Bowles said, "if we build more pre-fabs now, the rent will be more than that of the old buildings because of increased construction costs.

"Anyway, moving the older buildings to a new location would be impractical because we would have to lay new foundations and make other provisions necessary to a housing development."

Village residents realize that the cost would be slightly higher, but they also say it would be nowhere near the cost of new high-rise apartments.

The reactions of the students being forced to vacate their pre-fabs is pretty much summed up by dental student, James Cabe:

"I wouldn't expect the state or federal government to provide us housing, but so long as it is self-liquidating, why not build more pre-fabs?

No more pre-fabs will be built, University officials say, but every official consulted emphasized that no more Victory Village structures would be torn down than were absolutely necessary to the construction of the health affairs complex.

According to long range plans in Director of Planning Arthur N. Tuttle's office, that will eventually be all of them.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

What It's All About

Most of the campus is riled about the rules restricting speakers at UNC. Few people know, however, just what those rules are. The Daily Tar Heel is reprinting the regulations in an effort to clear some of this confusion.

This is the policy statement adopted by the board of trustees Nov. 12, 1965:

The trustees recognize that this institution, and every part thereof, is owned by the people of North Carolina; that it is operated by duly selected representatives and personnel for the benefit of the people of our state.

The trustees of this institution are unalterably opposed to communism and any other ideology or form of government which has as its goal the destruction of our basic democratic institutions.

We recognize that the total program of a college or university is committed to an orderly process of inquiry and discussion, ethical and moral excellence, objective instruction, and respect for law. An essential part of the education of each student at this institution is the opportunity to hear diverse viewpoints expressed by speakers properly invited to the campus. It is highly desirable that students have the opportunity to question, review and discuss the opinions of speakers representing a wide range of viewpoints.

It is vital to our success in supporting our free society against all forms of totalitarianism that institutions remain free to examine these ideologies to any extent that will serve the educational purpose of our institutions and not to the purposes of the enemies of our free society.

We therefore provide that we the trustees together with the administration of the institution shall be held responsible and accountable for visiting speakers on our campuses. And to that end the administration will adopt rules and precautionary measures consistent with the policy herein set forth regarding the invitations to and appearance of visiting speakers.

The executive committee adopted the following procedures Jan. 14, 1966 to regulate the appearance of speakers. They will be submitted for approval of the full board Feb. 28:

Each chancellor, when he considers it appropriate, will require any or all of the following:

(a) That a meeting be chaired by an officer of the University or a ranking member of the faculty;

(b) That speakers at the meeting be subject to questions from the audience;

(c) That the opportunity be provided at the meeting or later to present speakers of different points of view.

All existing statutes relating to visiting speakers will be followed. Only officially recognized student organizations may use campus facilities to present speakers.

The executive committee approved the following rules concerning invitations to speakers at its meeting last Monday. These regulations will also be submitted for approval of the full board Feb. 28:

Each chancellor, when he considers it appropritunity to exercise the responsibilities imposed upon them by trustee regulations respecting visiting speakers, the following procedures will be observed prior to extending an invitation to any visiting speaker covered by G.S. 116-199; 200 (the speaker ban law).

1. The officers of a recognized student club or society, desiring to use University facilities for visiting speakers, will consult with the club's faculty adviser concerning prospective speakers.

2. The head of the student organization will submit to the chancellor a request for reservation of a meeting place along with the following information:

(a) Name of sponsoring organization, and topic.

(b) Name and biographical data of the proposed speaker.

(c) Request for particular date and place of meeting.

(d) Statement of faculty adviser's opinion as to the competence of the speaker to deal with his topic.

3. Upon receipt of the above, the chancellor will refer the proposed invitation to a joint student-faculty committee on visiting speakers for advice.

4. Upon receipt of their advice, the chancellor may consult other constituted advisers prior to making a decision.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"At Least He Doesn't Snore"

Barry Jacobs

Trustees Used Their Power, But Made Wrong Decision

University reaction to the trustees' refusal to allow Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson speak here next month has been intensive, loud, and generally critical. The issue of Aptheker in particular has become the biggest thing on campus since the movement to recall Paul Dickson.

In fairness to the trustees, it must be admitted that they were only exercising their authority outlined by the amendment to the speaker ban law. The revised law gives the trustees the power to decide the acceptability of speakers, and they decided to use that power to ban Aptheker. We now see how far short of total repeal the amendment to the gag law falls.

To say that the trustees had the right to ban Aptheker is by no means to say that they should have banned him. The fact is that the trustees could make the speaker ban law virtually a dead letter by approving all speakers. Perhaps a case might come up in which the speaker should be barred and in which the trustees should exercise their censoring authority. This is not that case.

The arguments that have been made to support the right of the trustees to do what they did evade the real issue. The same attempt to hide behind legality was made during the fight over the original speaker ban law. The important question is, should the students be able to hear a communist or a Nazi or anyone else speak here? The answer is yes.

A university should be the ideal place for the airing of ideas of all kinds. We are here to study and to increase our knowledge. Today it is important that we know something about communism. We cannot simply ignore a philosophy that is now dominant in about one-third of the world. One way to learn about communism, of course, is to read Marx, Lenin, and others. Another way is to hear communists speak. To ban communist speakers makes no more sense than banning Marx from the University library. So far no one has suggested the latter step. Then why the former?

Why did the trustees refuse to allow Aptheker to speak here. Perhaps they agree with many people in this state that communists shouldn't be permitted to speak on university campuses. That is, they may have sympathized with the speaker ban law and recommended amending it only to avoid the loss of accreditation. Such an explanation, while possible, is, I believe, too harsh on the trustees.

I think they were probably afraid of opening the floodgates to a hoard of communists and other "objectionables" wanting to speak here. The fact that they had two cases to consider for dates only a week apart could have strengthened this fear. I don't believe, however, that such fears are justified. Had Aptheker and Wilkinson been allowed to speak without any furor, the campus would soon have settled back to normal. No demand for dozens of communist speakers would have been likely.

By refusing to let Aptheker speak, the trustees have made a martyr out of him. The students can now hardly help but see the issue as a fight between themselves and Aptheker on one side and the Governor and the trustees on the other. The Communist becomes an ally in the battle for freedof of speech. The Governor and the trustees must bear the blame for this ironic and unfortunate turn of events, the effect of which is hardly likely to strengthen the anti-communist feelings of the students.

The first test case under the revised speaker ban law was bound to set a precedent. Unfortunately, the precedent has been set for suppression of the free expression and exchange of ideas.

Letters To The Editor

No Excuse For Ban

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In 1935, when I made the University Day address here, I said that Chapel Hill was the intellectual capital of the South. I had felt that way since the early twenties, when I became familiar with the operation of the University under Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase.

That feeling was strengthened when, in 1923, I was assigned by the old New York Sun to do a series on the renaissance of North Carolina under the leadership of Aycock, McIver and Page. It became quite obvious during that study that North Carolina was by far the most enlightened state in the South and was equalled only by Wisconsin in its progressive outlook in the nation.

It was largely in pursuance of that admination for the state and for the University that my wife and I decided to make this our permanent home in retirement and to build in, or near, Chapel Hill, that "intellectual capital of the South." I agreed to become a lecturer in journalism because the School of Journalism here is among the two best in the South and among the five or six best in the country. It has turned out a great many distinguished newspaper men who have gained their distinction by the advocacy and practice of free speech.

It was quite certain before we came that the speaker ban law would be repealed or amended. The Britt commission had recommended the amendment, the governor had offered no objection. He was, in fact, given credit in a great many editorials for having pushed it through. That being true, it is all the more appalling and destructive of my illusions that eight men under his influence have undone the amendment of the speaker ban law and have, in fact, left the University in worse position than it was under the law.

While the speaker ban law was on the books—and it was amended only under threat of disciplinary action by accrediting agencies—a great many people asked me, and doubtless others who teach at the University, "What happened to North Carolina?"

The answer was easy and seemed to satisfy: a rural-dominated legislature, acting under the emotional stress of desegregation agitation, angry at the demonstrations at Chapel Hill and Raleigh and pressured by such groups as the Legion and the Klan, voted heavily, almost secretly and contemptuously of outside opinion, including that of the President of the University.

That answer served then, but what answer is good now, when the select body of the trustees, under the pressure of the governor (who has no business in any state being on the board of a university) has said to the world that freedom of speech is no good in North Carolina; that this state is afraid of the stale, punkish, discredited dogma that Aptheker mouths; that North Carolina is so unsure of its faculties and students that it has to build an intellectual Chinese wall around them; that the trustees have so little respect for the intellectual, professional and moral commitments of the administration and the faculty that they have on be guided and treated as children?

If this action of the governor and of the trustees under his influence is allowed to stand, the university will certainly go down in academic standing and in the eyes of those who shared my illusion and my great respect for it as a place of learning. It will certainly not be the university to which I thought I was coming.

There is no assurance that the full board of trustees will reverse the governor and the executive committee, as wise as that would be. We shall have to await a better day and more enlightened men.

Mark Ethridge

Communist Scholars

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In the rotunda of the Old State House on Monday afternoon, one of your student leaders appeared surprised to learn from me the extent to which UNC's peculiar stance with regard to communists speaking on its campuses is indeed unique among the better universities of the United States.

In particular, this student leader was surprised to learn that every year there are a goodly number of visiting scholars from Communist countries formally in residence on American campuses and especially on campuses of state-supported institutions.

In the light of his ignorance, I believe that the following data may serve a useful purpose. The American Mathematical Society annually publishes a list of visiting foreign mathematicians working in the United States for the curent year. Nearly all of these work at universities.

These men enjoy world-wide distinction in their fields, and American universities (UNC excepted) might compete to induce certain distinguished scholars to conduct research on their campuses. Twelve mathematicians from Communist countries are currently listed. Thus:

Polish mathematicians are now in residence at Florida State, Indiana University, University of Michigan, University of Washington, and Case Institute of Technology.

Mathematicians from Yugoslavia are currently engaged at the Universities of Kentucky and Washington.

New York University, Stanford, and SUNY (State University of New York) at Stoneybrook have each a mathematician from Czechoslovakia.

A famous mathematician is now at the University of Illinois.

A Rumanian mathematician is currently at SUNY at Buffalo.

This is but a partial list, only of mathematicians and only for the year 1965-66. It hardly suggests the scores of Communist scholars attending various conventions for which American universities other than UNC will serve as host. The intellectual traffic across the Iron Curtain is considerable and is increasing. It is also wearing that Curtain thin.

But the University of North Carolina is being bypassed; here is not where the intellectual action is. It is you, the students, most of whom are North Carolinians, who are victims of the more ignorant elements in your state's political life. They are depriving you of the best possible education. Can anyone afford to be apathetic?

Mark E. Watkins
Asst. Prof. of Mathematics

Wise Trustees

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Being a graduate of Carolina in '64, I was truly relieved to see the Governor support the speaker ban amendment; and the legislature pass it. However, I am more grateful for the recent decision of the trustees because by having an overall perspective, therefore, not having only Chapel Hill's interest at heart, but the entire state's, they have definitely fulfilled their political responsibility to the University.

In short, there will now be no ramifications, which might have resulted in a new and more stringent speaker ban law. I do hope that the students of my alma mater will react rationally to the board's decision.

In deference to "academic freedom," I suggest that the Political Science department invite a communist with irrefutable qualifications, e.g., the Russian ambassador to the U. N. Therefore, the trustees, being mature and reasonable men, could easily point out to the public that his appearance on the campus would directly benefit the purpose of higher education—the right to be informed.

This previous comment leads me to my final point: if the students, etc. would attempt to see the legislators' point of view, then I feel that the legislators would be obligated to see the University's point of view. Gentlemen, on both sides of the "fence," I implore you to be tolerant and reasonable with your respective views.

D. Nash
A devoted citizen of N. C.

Heelprints

Better not let Moore speak on campus. He might talk us into advocating a lot of totalitarian ideas—like the speaker ban, for instance.

* * *

Maybe "a sound military posture" was kept in South Viet Nam during the bombing lull, as General Westmoreland said. But keeping it sure gave this country a bad backache.

* * *

It's amusing how the girls in those ski movie advertisements always find it necessary to wear bikinis in the middle of winter.

* * *

A KKK sympathizer says the Klan feeds the needy, helps the poor and takes an interest in what's taught in the schools. Perhaps the Kluxers have joined the war on poverty.

* * *

All four quadruplets of a Russian mother are girls—which seems pretty normal in a country where most doctors are women.

* * *

Russian moon probe stops transmitting. Good to know, though, that at least one quality TV program didn't go off the air because of bum ratings.

—DAVID ROTHMAN

NOW THAT THE snow has melted, the path in the picture on the left has become a mass of mud. It gets a bit sticky for the Morrison College students who walk on the path to get to class. There is an answer, though. The bricks, above, are to be used to pave the walk. So far, however, they have just been sitting there.—DTH Photos By Ernest Robl.

Planetarium To Present 'Zodiac'

The program for February at the Morehead Planetarium is called "Zodiac" and explains the meaning and origin of the sky which form a background for a great deal of celestial activity. The presentation starts 2000 years ago (about the time when the present zodiac was devised (and shows how the sun, moon, and five naked eye planets all seem to move against the same background of stars.

Planetarium Director A. F. Jenzano said, "About fifteen months of time are seen by the audience in a matter of moments, through the use of the Planetarium's Zeiss Projector. Relatively slow celestial motions then become very apparent." Later on in the program the audience is shown the effect that 2000 years of time has had on the positions of the stars in the sky due to a slow earth motion called precession, a wobbling movement.

The program also features visual presentions of Egyptian, Chinese and the traditional Greek figures of the zodiac.

This interesting and colorful program is presented each evening in February at 8:30; on Saturdays at 11 a.m., 1,3, 4 and 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30 p.m. "Zodiac" and other programs may also be seen by school groups Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2 and 4 p.m.

Music Department Stages 'Boheme'

The UNC music department will present a fully-staged production of Puccini's "La Boheme" in Hill Hall on the campus Feb. 13 and 14 at 8 p.m.

The most elaborate opera performance ever prepared by the department, "La Boheme," under the direction of Wilton Mason, will utilize the services of nine solists, a 30 - voice chorus and a 40-piece orchestra.

The production, including sets and costumes, has been designed by Colin Ferguson of the Carolina Playmakers.

Cast in the leading roles for this most - acclaimed of Puccini's operas will be Marilyn Burris, soprano, as Mimi, Wayne Zarr, tenor, as Rodolfo, Rebecca Carnes, soprano, as Musetta, and Jeff Ishee, baritone, as Marcello.

Mrs. Burris, Mrs. Carnes and Zarr have appreared in many UNC opera productions in the past, most notably Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte." Zarr, who also sang in Hindemith's Hin und zuruck" and Alec Wilder's "The Lowland Sea," is an instructor in the music department. Ishee is a sophomore in music; this will be his first major opera role.

The roles of Bohemians Colline and Schaunard will be sung by Kenneth Smith, bass-baritone, and Joel Adams, baritone. Smith, a senior in psychology, recently appeared as Pooh-Bah in the Carolina "The Mikado." Baritones Norman Pendergraft, as Benoit, and Robert Porco, as Alcindoro, and tenor William Cunningham, as Parpignol, complete the supporting cast. Porco came to the music department this year as a graduate assistant in voice.

Tickets are now available in the office of the music department in Hill Hall. They will also be on sale in the lobby of Hill Hall on both evenings of the perofmance.

Two Classics Majors Now Beginning Study In Rome

Two University classics majors have taken advantage of a new program sponsored by UNC and 13 other universities and are now in Rome for a semester of study.

James E. Noggle of Shelby and John T. Polk of Hamlet, both juniors at UNC, began classes this month with 28 other selected undergraduates from schools in the United States and Canada. Classes are conducted in the Retreat of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart in the Janiculum area of Rome, near St. Peter's and the American Academy.

Offered for the first time this spring, the new venture in the field of international education is open to majors in the classics field. Stanford University will administer the program on behalf of all participating institutions.

According to Berthe Marti, professor of classics here and member of the Classics Center's executive committee, the Rome location was chosen because of the archaeological, historical and artistic materials available there.

Opportunities for field study are also abundant and challenging, she said.

The project was developed by a committee chaired by Prof. Brooks Otis, executive head of the classics department at Stanford, with the support of the Danforth and Old Dominion Foundations.

Prof. Otis and Prof. Keith Stanley of Duke University are in residence at the center.

Although primarily for undergraduates, the program will also admit a few graduate students. Two terms per-year, on an extended semester basis, will be offered.

Other universities in the cooperative agreement include the University of California at Berkeley, Haverford, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Pomona, Scripps, Stanford, Washington, Brown, Missouri and Wesleyan of Connecticut.

Television Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)
8:55 Morning News
9:00 In - School Television
11:00 Parlons Francais
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Midday News
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Spectrum
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 Origami
7:30 What's New
8:00 Festival Of The Arts: "The Master of Santiago" — Henri de Montherlant's classic drama set in Spain in 1519. Owen and Stephen Murray as Marina and Don Alvaro Dabo.

WRAL (Ch. 5)
5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare — Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
1:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: ATOMIC SUBMARINE: Arthur Franz
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Batman (C)
7:30 The Flintstones (C)
8:00 Tammy (C)
8:30 The Addams Family
9:00 Honey West
9:30 The Farmer's Daughter (C)
10:00 The Jimmy Dean Show
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: JUBAL: Glenn Ford

WTVD (Ch. 11)
6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today (c)
9:00 Capt Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News
7:00 Gilligan's Island (c)
7:30 Wild Wild West
8:30 Hogan's Heroes (c)
9:00 Gomer Pyle (c)
9:30 Mr. Roberts (c)
10:00 I Spy (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)
6:00 Dinner Hour Music — Bach: Clavier Concerti No. 1, 4, 5, and Air for G String
8:00 Masterworks — opera stage presents "Don Giovanni" by Mozart.

Toronto Philosopher Here Tuesday

A philosopher of the University of Toronto, Dr. Lesie Dewart, will speak here Tuesday, at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

His topic, "Towards a Renewal of Christian Moral Philosophy" is relevant to some of the new views and objections currently being voiced against the traditional code of Christian philosophy and ethics.

Dr. Dewart has made a name as a writer and speaker. Since 1961 he has been Associate Professor of Philosophy at St. Michael's College, the University of Toronto.

Born in Madrid, Spain in 1922, he spent his early years in Havana, Cuba and studied Medicine at the University of Havana. In 1942, his family emigrated to Canada and he joined The Royal Canadian Air Force. He served as a pilot on bomber-reconnaisance operations until 1947.

He obtained a B.A. in psychology in 1951 from the University of Toronto, and was Teaching Fellow at St. Michael's College there until 1954. He thereupon obtained his Ph.D. in philosophy at the University of Toronto and married.

From 1954 to 1956 Dr. Dewart was instructor in the Department of Philosophy, University of Detroit. He then became Assistant Professor and later Associate Professor at St. Michael's College University of Toronto.

His publications include "Christianity and Revolution," (Herder and Herder, New York, 1963). He has made frequent contributions to periodicals such as Canadian Forum, Blackfriars, Continuum, Commonweal and Cross Currents.

In collaboration with other authors, Dr. Dewart has published "Contraception and Holiness," (Herder and Herder, New York, 1964); "The Prospect of Change," (McGraw - Hill, Toronto, 1965); "Brief to the Bishops," (Longmans, Toronto, 1965); "Peace on Earth," (Sheed and Ward, London, forthcoming in Spring, 1966).

Dr. Dewart has in preparation a work which he is editing on "Christian Morality: A re - examination" (provisional title) by St. Michael's College staff members, scheduled by Herder, New York, for Spring, 1967. He is also preparing a chapter for "Studies in the Cold War," scheduled by the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation, London, for Winter, 1967, and preparing a monograph on "The Nature of Christian Morality" for Herder and Herder, New York, publication not scheduled.

Professor Dewart was made Associate Editor of Continuum in 1965 and was elected a member of the Societe Europeene de Culture.

He will present the fifteenth in the Gaston Series of Lectures at UNC. The series is sponsored by the Newman Association, composed of Catholic Students at the University, and is offered as a free presentation to the general public.

A $17 million national center for testing wonder drugs and toxic drugs, as well as other pharmacological research, will be established beginning in 1966 at UNC as an adjunct to the UNC Medical School.

PETER, PAUL, AND MARY, famous folk singing group, will be in Raleigh tonight for a concert. The performance will be given at Reynolds Coliseum.

CAROLINA
RICHARD BURTON PETER O'TOOLE HAL WALLIS' BECKET
PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR A PARAMOUNT RELEASE
WED., FEB. 16

AT LAST! CHINA CAN BE SEEN!
The first major British film photographed in Communist China.
Felix Greene's CHINA!
This film contains some historical newsreel footage and material obtained from the China Film Corp. of Peking
in color
also First time in America THE PEKING SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Short, "PEKING SYMPHONY"
12:49, 2:15, 3:40, 5:07, 6:33, 8, 9:27
RIALTO THEATRE, Durham

NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. State College Campus
Tonight
8:30 P. M.
The Years Greatest Attraction!
IN PERSON
Peter, Paul and Mary

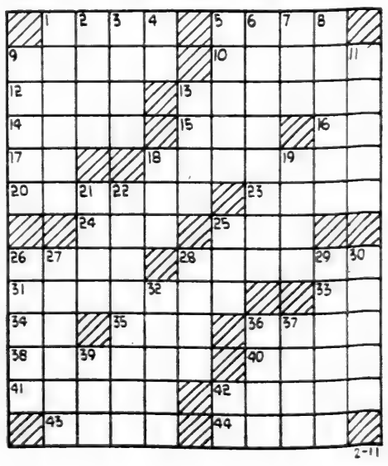
ONE SHOW ONLY! ALL SEATS RESERVED!
Adm. $2.00, $2.50, $3.00. Adv. tickets on sale at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop and Village Pharmacy Camera Shop, Raleigh; RECORD BAR, CHAPEL HILL.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. State of insensibility
5. Elliptical
9. Flutter
10. Kingly
12. Incite
13. Indicate
14. Temple
15. Cereal grain
16. Exclamation
17. Plural ending
18. Tolerates
20. Wisconsin city
23. Pause
24. Hoosier State: abbr.
25. Rural gathering
26. Festival
28. Passageways
31. Precious stone
33. Greek letter
34. Jewish month
35. Narrow inlet
36. Sand
38. Caesar and Waldorf
40. Stand up
41. Threefold
42. Stops
43. Sets of tools
44. Orbs

DOWN
1. Bathhouse
2. Baking chamber
3. Apportion
4. Land measure
5. Mountain nymph
6. Risks
7. Past
8. Woodworking machines
9. Thin, brittle cookie
11. Smallest
13. Ready, as a roast
18. Finis
19. Stagger
21. Quote
22. Infallible
25. Offer
26. Banquet
27. Board a ship
28. Sigh for Yorick
29. Lives
30. Locations
32. Assistants
36. Color
37. Vex
39. Roman numeral
42. Pronoun

Yesterday's Answer



2-11

For the guy who'd rather drive than fly: Chevelle SS 396

Chevelle SS 396 Sport Coupe with Body by Fisher, seat belts front and rear, one of eight features now standard for your added safety.

POTENT
THE CHEVROLET WAY

This is about a Chevelle—a very special one—with a bulging hood, a black grille and red stripe nylon tires.

Start it up and you've tuned in on 396 cubic inches of Turbo-Jet V8.

Get it moving and suddenly you're a driver again. With gears to shift. A clutch to work. Even a set of gauges to read, if specified.

Now take a curve, surrounded by a machine that delights in crooked roads.

This, you see, is an SS 396. A Chevelle, yes. But what a Chevelle.

CHEVROLET GM

All kinds of cars all in one place ... at your Chevrolet dealer's CHEVROLET · CHEVELLE · CHEVY II · CORVAIR · CORVETTE

North Carolina News Roundup

School Gets Ford Grant

RALEIGH (AP) — The Ford Foundation has promised to give $1.5 million to the North Carolina School of Arts at Winston-Salem provided the school raises another $5.5 million, Gov. Dan Moore announced yesterday.

Moore said that "under the terms of the Ford grant, the foundation will give the school $500,000 during the first year. The trustees will have to match this with $500,000 from other sources. In each of the four following years, the Ford Foundation will give the school $250,000. In each of these years the trustees will have to raise at least $500,000."

"The Ford money will be paid to the North Carolina School of Arts Foundation which was established to accept private contributions for endowment, buildings, scholarships and other purposes," Moore said. "the North Carolina foundation will also receive the private contributions which will be sought throughout the state and nation to fulfill the $7 million fund-raising program."

"On behalf of the state of North Carolina I thank the Ford Foundation for this generous gesture," Moore stated. "I am indeed happy to know that our state school of the performing arts, which opened only last September, has been considered worthy of such recognitation."

Pearsall Grants To Be Tried

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Briefs have been filed in federal court outlining the positions of both sides in a suit attacking North Carolina's Pearsall Plan tuition grant system.

The suit, brought last year by a group of Charlotte Negroes, will be heard here Feb. 23 by a three-judge federal panel.

The suit was filed against the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education and the state Board of Education after a grant was approved to a Mecklenburg student who wished to leave desegregated West Mecklenburg High School to attend Carolina Military Academy at Maxton.

Last month the U. S. Justice Department was granted a request to intervene on behalf of the plantiffs.

The government brief claims the Pearsall Plan and the grant tend to perpetuate segregation and are therefore unconstitutional.

The defense brief filed by the state contends the system does not foster involuntary forced segregation and is therefore not in violation of the constitution.

The first argument of the state's brief is that the plaintiffs have suffered no injury and therefore lack the requisite interest to bring suit.

The courts have prohibited segregation, but have not ordered integration, the state argues.

The state grant is not the main support of the private school in which the student is enrolled, so the grant does not constitute segregation of a state school, the brief says.

The government argues states are prohibited from requiring segregation and from circumventing the dictates of the equal protection requirements of the 14th amendment.

It contends that the state's tuition grant plan is a scheme to perpetuate segregation and is therefore unconstitutional.

School Bus Wrecks

MOUNT AIRY, (AP) — Two pupils suffered painful injuries and 16 were slightly hurt or shaken up Thursday morning when a school bus ran off a road and toppled on its side.

The accident happened eight miles east of Mount Airy. The bus was picking up children along Ridge Road to carry them to Ridge — Westfield grammar school, six miles east of Mount Airy, and to Jones High School in Mount Airy.

Trooper J. B. Miller said the driver, James Edward McCarther, 17, of Rt. 2, Mount Airy, told him he had just started forward after picking up several passengers when the bus ran onto a soft highway shoulder and fell over.

Lizzie Penn, 15, who suffered a broken shoulder, and Yvonne Moore, who suffered a neck injury, were admitted to Northern Surry Hospital in Mount Airy.

The others were examined and released.

Avoid Viet Nam Escalation Says Strategist Kennan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A noted Cold War stragetist recommended yesterday that the United States avoid escalating the Viet Nam war but stand firm militarily in an effort to force negotiations for peace.

George F. Kennan, former Ambassador to Moscow and Yugoslavia, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee such a defensive stance might convince the Communists they cannot dislodge us. If they cannot dislodge us they will have to talk to us, because they want us out."

Kennan, who now is with the institute for advanced study at Princeton, N. J., asserted "there is no happy way out of this conflict" but U. S. military involvement should be ended as soon as this can be done "without inordinate damage to our prestige or to the stability of conditions in that area."

"We should do everything possible to avoid escalation," he said, because of the danger that this might involve the nation in major confrontations with Red China and the Soviet Union that could end in nuclear war and "a precipice or an abyss" for the whole world.

While urging a "restrainted and moderate policy" in what he called "a remote and secondary theater", Kennan in his prepared statement said this also:

"Precipitate and disorderly withdrawal could represent in our present circumstances a disservice to our own interests and even to world peace greater than any that might have been involved in our failure to engage ourselves in the first place."

Cautioning against expansion of hostilities "directed to achievement of something called 'VICTORY'," Kennan expressed doubt that even smashing military successes would bring "the complete disappearance of the recalcitrance with which we are faced, the formal submission by the adversaries to our will, and the complete realization of our stated political aims."

Lost Your Eyes?

If you have misplaced your glasses and find yourself getting beady-eyed, you might check with the information desk at GM. One of these could be yours.

Mob Of Dominican Youths Beat Policeman To Death

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A mob savagely clubbed and stabbed a police sergeant to death yesterday in Santo Domingo and youth gangs attacked policemen in three other cities.

The attacks appeared to be outgrowths of violence, touched off when police opened up with gunfire and tear gas on a Communist-led student demonstration. Two policemen, three students and two bystanders were killed in that melee.

The mob, after killing the police sergeant, apparently broke up. But another mob armed with clubs and rocks was turned back in the north central part of the capital by police reinforcements. The mob was marching on a police station.

All the trouble arose because rightist leaders of the armed forces have refused so far to obey a presidential order assigning them to diplomatic jobs abroad. Leftist leaders ordered abroad already have left.

Young gangs were reported to have attacked police in San Juan de La Maguana, La Romana and San Pedro de Macoris in the interior.

Despite all the violence, Gen. Jose de Jesus Morillo, the new National Police Chief, said the situation in the capital and the other cities was returning to normal.

In what appeared to be a significant development, President Hector Garcia - Godoy visited the rebel army camp in the eastern suburbs. He was accompanied by Col. Enrique Perez Y Perez, who, authoritative sources say, will be the new Dominican Armed Forces minister.

The call was believed related to negotiations on proposals military leaders have set forth as a condition to changes in the armed forces leadership. Among these is a demand that the president dissolve the rebel army, placing its members on temporary leave with pay until the new government decides what to do with them.

The appearance of Perez Y Perez with the president tended to confirm reports the president had accepted a proposal that only the armed forces minister be changed in the high command. Perez Y Perez presently commands a military base in the center of the city.

I'll Have Coffee

JEFFERSON, Ohio (AP) — Two Patrolmen on duty at a nearby state highway patrol barracks were surprised when a motorist pulled off U. S. 22, wheeled his station wagon through a hedge and pulled up on the lawn outside patrol headquarters.

"I thought it was a drive-in restaurant and I was just going to get a cup of coffee," the driver, Lloyd H. Fetty, 48, of Cambridge, told the patrolmen.

Patrolmen said Fetty was being charged with driving while intoxicated.

Humphrey's Schedule Is Announced

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is packing in briefings, protocol calls and a field trip today on his mission to help South Viet Nam consolidate battlefield victories with economic and social progress.

The White House announced that, on departing from Saigon Sunday, Humphrey will go on to Thailand, Laos, Pakistan, India, Australia, New Zealand and possibly other points to fill in their governments on the Vietnamese picture.

Plans for improvement of the lot of the Vietnamese people — shadowed by demands of the war effort and Viet Cong control of about 60 per cent of the countryside — have found hard going under every administration for a decade. These date back to the Agroville settlements promoted by the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Here at the request of President Johnson to advance the nonmilitary programs outlined by Johnson and Saigon gov-Honolulu summit conference, Humphrey proposes to to look over things for himself.

"I have insisted on going out and seeing the people," he said "We are not going to have any closeted, walled-in conferences."

Accompanied y Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, Humphrey flew in from Honolulu to spur a South Vietnamese social and economic revolution which he said will provide a "dynamic and lasting answer too the false promise of Communism."

"As you work to carry out that plan of action," he told South Viet Nam's people, "You will continue to have the full support and assistance of the U. S. This is the pledge which was affirmed by President Johnson at Honolulu . . .

"I have come to see some of the projects being undertaken and to report back to the President and the American people on the work you are doing and on the part we can play in support of your great undertaking."

Soviet Writers Go On Trial For Government Criticism

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet writers went on trial yesterday for publishing criticism of the Soviet system abroad. They pleaded innocent. Outside, about 40 youths stood silently in the biitter cold of 6 below zero to protest the trail.

Andrei D. Sinyavsky, a small bearded literary critic, and Yuli M. Daniel, a tall, thin translator of poetry, face possible sentences of seven years in prison followed by five years exile in Siberia. Both are 40.

The government newspaper Izvestia said they did not deny writing works published abroad under the names of Abram Tertz and Nikolai Arzhak. The works are savage satires on the Communist state. But the writers deny anti-Soviet activity, the newspaper said. They are charged with anti-Soviet activity and agitation.

The trial opened before a selected audience at a regional court building. Western correspondents in Moscow were barred and were forced to depend upon the version which Soviet news media chose to make public. The news media made it clear that they regard Sinyavsky and Daniel as guilty.

The indictment was brought before a bench of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation, the main geographic unit of the Soviet Union. The nation's assistant prosecutor, Oleg Tyomushkin, is handling the case.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said that after Sinyavsky heard the indictment read he was asked if he understood.

Standing "barely visible in the dock," the writer said he did.

"Do you plead guilty?"

"Not at all," Sinyavsky replied.

Daniel's reply was quoted as: "No, neither in part nor in full."

In the latest book published abroad under the name of Tertz, "The Makepeace Experiment," the narrator says he is not responsible for what he relates.

"If I'm caught, I'll deny everything," the fictional character warns.

Moscow radio reported that Daniel was questioned in the afternoon court session. He "impudently denied the obvious," the report said.

Sinyavsky and Daniel were arrested Sept. 13. Reports here said Soviet police had long be seeking the author of the Tertz writings, which have appeared abroad since 1956, and found Daniel at the same time.

The young people outside the court when the trial began were ordered off by three uniformed policemen and encouraged to haste by what appeared to be plainclothes police.

One girl said she knew Sinyavsky's work—he has been a leading liberal critic, popular as a lecturer to students—and had come to show support for him.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Russian Writer Claims He Heads Soviet Underground

LONDON (AP) — Russian writer Valery Tarsis said yesterday he is the accepted leader of a new liberal underground movement in the Soviet Union against Communist restrictions.

I am the De Facto editor of all underground political documents that have been published in the Soviet Union recently," Tarsis told a London news conference.

Tarsis, 60, was asked if he was connected with a demonstration in December by Russian youth against the persecution of two other writers—Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel — who went on trial on Moscow today accused of writing anti - soviet books. The Russian replied:

Moscow's literary youth like and respect me." Then he vigorously defended the two writers saying "they belong to the same camp that I belong to."

He said there were about 200 young Russians contributing to underground journals.

"They will be giving press conferences here in a few years," Tarsis said. "Because they too hate the Soviet government as much as I do."

An unsigned pamphlet reached Western newspaper offices yersterday purporting to come from a group of youthful Soviet intellectuals — part of the underground — calling for help from the West for Russian culture.

The most generous of scholarships available to undergraduate college students today is the Morehead Award program.

Cold War GI Bill Sent To President Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP — A "cold war GI bill" more costly than the administration wanted was sent to President Johnson with the unanimous endorsement of Congress.

It would set up a permanent system of education and other benefits for veterans who serve more than six months in uniform, and would be of immediate benefit to an estimated 3 1-2 million veterans discharged since the Korean GI benefits program expired on Jan. 3, 1955.

The House, in passing the bill 381 to 0 on Monday, reduced 38' to 0 on Monday, reduced somewhat the education benefits called for in a version the Senate had passed last July.

The Senate went along with these changes yesterday, but did add some new language before sending the bill back to the House, 99 to 0. The House promptly accepted the Senate change and sent the bill to the White House by voice vote.

The administration had proposed limiting the benefits to veterans with active duty in combat areas, but Johnson is expected to sign the more costly measure.

The cost is estimated at about $335 million the first year and about $500 million annually for five years when the outlays would level off. The administration figured its proposal would cost $150 million yearly.

The bill would provide for education payments ranging from 100 to 150 monthly, depending on the number of dependents. Payments would be made directly to veterans, who could choose their own schools. Unlike the GI bill of World War II, this one does not cover tuition costs.

Veterans with six months or more of active duty since Jan. 31, 1955, could collect one month of education payments for each month in service, with a maximum of 36 months.

No payments would be made retroactively for veterans who have attended school since 1955. Anyone wishing to return for graduate study could, however, receive payments.

Young men who volunteer for six months of active duty who then go into the reserves would not be covered.

Veterans would have to go to school at least half time to get any benefits, with the payments scaled down to match the study load. They would be allowed eight years from the date of discharge fo complete the educational benefits. For men already discharged, the eight years would begin next June 1.

Effective on enactment of the bill, the Veterans Administration would guarantee home loans up to $7,500 and make direct loans up to $17,500 if no private financing was available.

The change made by the Senate was designed to make it clear that veterans who have not graduated from high school would be eligible for the education benefits. House sponsors said that was the intent of their bill, but Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., insisted there was doubt and had the Senate write in clarifying language. The House accepted the change without debate.

Books for Fluttering Hearts

You can find them at the Intimate — everything from the Rubaiyat to Cardiovascular Dynamics.

If your palpitations are caused by fluttering eyelashes, chum, you need to make a visit to our Valentine's Gift Book display.

There you'll find the best of the collectins of love poems, sonnets and sentimental fooferaw, at prices from only $1.00 up. And be sure to have the clerk do it up for you in our Intimate Valentine's wrappings.

The condition, we hear, is incurable, so why fight it? Just pass it on.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Hey!

Are you all fixed for your parties this weekend?

CHECK THESE:

BEER
CHIPS
CHEESE
COLD CUTS CRACKERS
WINE
CHAMPAGNE
ICE
MIXES
OLIVES
NUTS

QUIK FOOD MART
Near the Main Intersection of Town
OPEN DAILY 'TIL 11:30 P.M.

WANT ADS

WANTED — PERSON TO DO translations from Spanish into English. Call 929-5069 after 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED — SOMEONE TO share 2 bedroom, furnished apartment. Bill Busby, 942-2364.

WANTED TO SHARE: 4 BEDroom house; private bedrooms, furnished; with living and dining room. $30.00 per month. Come by 31 Barclay Rd. after 5 o'clock.

HERE COMES THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present SEAN CONNERY in "THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

1st SHOW 11:00 A.M. TODAY

Varsity

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Friday Night Special

COMBINATION SEAFOOD PLATTER

Fried Haddock, Shrimp, Oyster, Scallop, Deviled Crab, Hush Puppies, French Fries, Cole Slaw, Lemon Wedge and Tartar Sauce $1.00

SNACK BAR

Special Anytime

Pizza – Spaghetti – Raviola – Hickory Smoked Barbecue

Fried Chicken – Sandwiches – Ala Cartes and Carry Outs.

OPEN DAILY EXCEPT SATURDAYS

The Popular Place to Meet, Snack or Dine

GIRLS!

Let ROSES solve those Valentine Nightmares.
We have the loudest
PAISLEY TIES
in town.
Ties with matching handkerchiefs.

Reg. $2.50
Now $1.50

ROSES

I'M SO PROUD—
I JUST PICKED
OUT A UNIQUE
GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS

Ledbetter Pickard

'Cats Were Our Toughest: Brown

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writr

"I wish," said UNC Frosh Coach Larry Brown, "that we could have filmed this game and recorded the crowd sounds so that the students back at school would be able to understand how it was down here tonight."

Brown was sitting on the front seat of the Carolina Athletic Association bus which was rolling his freshmen cagers away from Davidson and back toward Chapel Hill. It was late Tuesday night — a night which earlier had seen the Tar Babies' ten-game winning streak and undefeated status teeter on the edge of the canyon of doom, only to be swayed to salvation by some clutch play which pulled the frosh to their eleventh straight win. It was close, 80-76.

Larry clarified his first statement.

"People will probably look at the score and think that we came down here and messed around, but that certainly was not the case. They must have hit a tremendous percentage (Davidson does not keep shooting percentage or rebounds for frosh) and we got into foul trouble on some very questionable calls.

"And the crowd probably had a lot to do with it too," he continued. "I think this place (Davidson's Johnston Gym) is much worse that Clemson, because here they have a better team to rouse. These boys have improved a lot since we played them before, and this was also probably their best game. It was definitely our toughest.

The key to this struggle was the foul trouble into which the Tar Babies worked themselves relatively early in the game. It caused a complete change in the type of game they could afford to play, because the first two men to reach the crucial three - foul point were guards Gerald Tuttle and Dick Grubar.

Carolina had just broken a tie by scoring seven straight points which moved them to a 24-17 lead—their largest. But a minute later, with 7:11 left in the half, Tuttle drew his third personal foul. Two minutes after that, Grubar was charged with his third.

Brown called time out and from that point on, Carolina played the game in a straight zone or a very mild man-for-man. With the pressing tactics usually employed by the backcourt duo virtually grounded, Carolina was forced to play a controlled defensive game for the remainder of the night.

To compound the forced caution on UNC's part, big men Bill Bunting and Rusty Clark picked up their third personals within eight minutes of the start of the 1st period.

This made the situation completely touch-and-go, and the frosh Wildcats poured 'em in from outside with what Assistant Coach Charlie Shaffer said "must have been sixty-five per cent accuracy."

The game was tight. It was not one of the Tar Babies' best, mind you, but it was much further from being their worst. It brought forth an effort which had not been called for in ten previous wins, and with the odds stacked against them, the Babies came through.

"We had to beat everybody and everything down there except Dick Snyder," Shaffer agreed, and that pinpointed it as well as can be done.

"The way they hit from outside was unbelievable," said 6-11 center Rusty Clark. "You had get set for the rebound, but they wouldn't miss.

"It seemed to me," Clark continued, "that the refs let them hit the boards harder than they let us. We had to be real careful the way they were calling fouls. They got Dick (Grubar) real bad twice."

Davidson's shooting on that night bordered on the phenomenal, and it could very easily have had a demoralizing effect on Carolina. But the fellow who gave us that last quote played basketball the way he is really capable, and he was joined by seven others who braced themselves to avert their first legitimate threat of defeat.

Rusty scored 25 points for the second straight game, including nine of the last 12. His two free throws, which brought the final 80-76 margin with six seconds left, iced it for UNC. And the big guy spent the whole night waging an all-out war on the boards, and his count certainly topped his previous high of 16, though the totals were not available.

Larry Brown, as energetic as ever — even more so — on the bench during action, praised the play of Grubar and Tuttle under their foul trouble circumstances, and noted that they ran two fast breaks in their accustomed manner.

"And I believe Bill (Bunting) had one of his better games especially shooting," he pointed out. "Jim (Bostick) gave us a steady game and didn't make any mistakes — that was really important tonight."

But the spark which held the Babies' nose above water level was the second half play of Joe Brown.

Joe played an excellent rebounding game throughout, but tallied 12 of his total (16) points in the second half, and blocked three shots in the opening two minutes of the final round. It was a fitting celebration for making the Dean's List in academics for the first semester.

"You know," said Coach Brown as the bus ate up miles along I-85, "I always said that I wished we could be in a good, tight game that would push us to the limit, because you can't really tell how good a team is until it has to extend itself. And since we won, I'm glad this happened, because now I know these boys can keep cool and do the job under pressure. I'm much prouder of this one than I am of all those 30-point wins. These guys really came through."

Charlie Shaffer said, 'It took guts to hang in there like they did tonight. With Davidson hitting the way they were, and with the crowd like it was, they could have easily become upset and forgotten everything. But they had it, they really had it."

Daily Tar Heel

SPORTS

Garden Fans Cheer UNC

By SANDY TREADWEL
DTH Sports Wrtier

An exciting low - scoring battle was over between Manhattan and Holy Cross and the fans settled down for the second event of last Wednesday night's doubleheader.

A smattering of applause greeted the New York University team as they ran onto one of the world's most famous basketball court — Madison Square Garden.

Minutes later the blue-suited Tar Heels ran onto the floor and began making layups. Manhattan College is the official enemy of NYU, and the Tar Heel athletes were greeted by a standing ovation.

Manhattan freshmen threw their light blue beanies into the air and cheered. And cheerleaders with the letter M sewed on their sweaters yelled "Go Tar Heels, go."

People in the audience began to talk.

"Which one is Lewis? I've read a lot about him."

"He's number 22," someone replied. "He's the country's sixth leading scorer. Boy look at him dunk the ball. Quite a showboat."

A man turned to a stranger and smiled. "I live in Allentown, Pennsylvania," he said. "But I never saw Larry Miller play in high school. I've come to New York just to see Larry play in this game."

NYU was introduced and their applause was drowned out by loud boos from the Manhattan students. Then the game began.

The first five minutes went by slowly. Nine men on the floor were nervous and reluctant to shoot. The tenth man wore number 22 on his uniform. All the eyes in the garden followed that number.

Bob Lewis jumped into the air and arched the ball through the strings. Then he went through two defenders and, after making a great head fake, laid the ball up and in. When Lewis wasn't shooting field goals he was at the foul line calmly chalking up more points.

In those five minutes Lewis' right hand burned red hot. He accounted for every one of the Tar Heels' first 12 points and it looked like the young man from Washington was breaking the game wide open.

The man from Allentown shook his head. "No wonder Lewis scores so much; he's the only one who shoots. I wish they'd give the ball to Larry."

"How can they do that" the stranger asked. "MacKenzie is all over him. Boy, that Lewis can really shoot."

Many of the nation's best sports writers sat behind their typewriters and watched every move that Lewis made. They were impressed by this kid that they'd heard so much about. They whispered together.

It wasn't long before NYU began to hit. They dominated the backboards and clogged up the middle. They tied the score and then they proceeded to pull away. The crowd sat in a depressed silence.

During the opening minutes of the second half the crowd and the man from Allentown came alive. Miller scored three times and began to rebound. Then Bennett hit one and the fans began to cheer. The Heels were coming back.

With six minutes left the Violets started to freeze the ball. Carolina desperately tried to break the ice and the ref's whistle blew almost continuously. The ref made a bad call against Yokley and then chose to ignore an obvious foul on MacKenzie.

The Manhattan students began yelling "fix-fix." Dean Smith jumped off of the bench and someone tossed an egg at the ref.

The buzzer sounded and the game was over. A woman said that the game must have been really frustrating for those Carolina boys.

The Garden emptied and all that remained was the clicking of typewriters and one big question. Lewis scored 34 points. He looked like an All-American. Will he be one?

Lewis On Way To ACC Scoring Title

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's Bobby Lewis, blazing his way toward the 1966 Atlantic Coast Conference scoring champsionship, upped his average to 28.9 with a 34-point performance against New York University in Madison Square Garden last Wednesday night.

Lewis also achieved a personal milestone against South Carolina last Monday night when he tallied his sixteenth point in a 26-point collection. That put him over his total of 505 points registered last year as a sophomore.

Lewis' total is now an even 550, and it has taken him just 19 games to reach it. Last year, when he averaged 21.0 points per contest, 24 games were required for him to gain the 505 plateau.

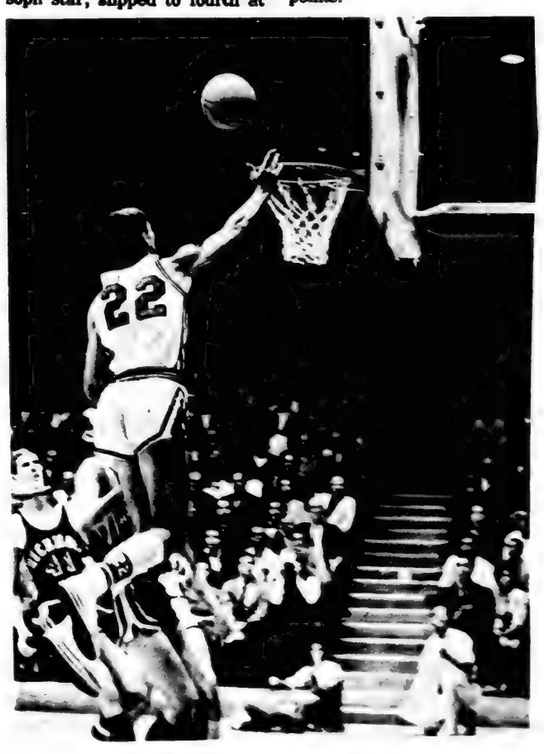
Nationally, Bobby's lofty mark ranks him sixth among the best scorers. He trails No. 5 Dave Bing of Syracuse (29.7) by 0.8 points. Purdue's Dave Schellhase still occupies the top spot with a 31.5 average. Illinois' Don Freeman (27.4) follows Lewis.

In the ACC, Louie seems to have a clear road to the year's pointmaking title. He holds a 4.5 point lead over Wake Forest's Paul Long (22.4). Bob Leonard (WF) is third at 22.6. Larry Miller, the Tar Heel soph star, slipped to fourth at 22.4 with his 16-point game against NYU.

In piling up his impressive point total, Bob has scored over 30 points in ten games. He has been over twenty in all but three of the Tar Heels' 19 matches, falling to 18 in consecutive games against Duke and State. His lowest total — 12 came against West Virginia at Raleigh during the Christmas vacation.

Bobby's high-water mark of his varsity career was reached in Carmichael Auditorium on December 16 when he fired in a UNC single-game record of 49 points to pace the Heels past Florida State. Earlier, he hit 43 against Richmond, and for the season so far, sports totals of 37, 34(3), 33(2), 32 and 30. He bagged over 30 for five straight games early in the season, and followed with two more such games after his 24 versus Florida broke the string.

It Lewis maintains his present average, he will post the highest single-season average in UNC history. Len Rosenbluth (1957) holds the mark now with 27.9. However, Bobby is considerably off the total points pace set by Rosenbluth in '57 when he scored 895 Lewis would have to hold his present average approximately 11 more games to reacn 895 points.



Leapin' Bob Lewis

Lewis Dorm Beats Aycock In Murals

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Frank Kelly rammed in 40 points to lead Lewis White to an 87-45 win over the Aycock Addaxes in intramural basketball on Wednesday. Kelly, who had 12 points at the half, erupted for 13 field goals and two free throws in the second half to finish his fine performance. John Liles had 16 points and Jim Hough 14 for Lewis.

The Connor Vikings defeated the Alexander Playboys, 47-38, behind the 16 points of Dennis Lore.

The Maverick C Steers squeezed by the Maverick C Gunners, 45-43. Warrenfells and Smith scored 15 points each to pace the Steers. Doug Sanders scored 20 points for the losing Gunners.

Stacy No. 3 crushed the Aycock Agamas, 75-22. Glen Brewer had 26 points and Mel Phiffer 21 to lead the Stacy attack. Danny Lester of Aycock scored 15 of his team's 22 points.

Eighteen points by Charles Lupton led the Everett Pachyderms to a 46-41 triumph over the Graham Celts.

The Parker Patrol beat the Avery All-Stars, 46-41, behind the 16 points of John McLain and the 13 of Don Wilslow.

Everett Rogah coasted to a 69-36 decision over the Lewis Reds. Tommy Dail pumped in 29 points and was supported by Johnny Biddle's 21 points for Everett. Dave Shearon had 17 points for Lewis.

The Joyner Jokes thumped the Alexander Pharoahs, 56-26. Stone and Sandburg had 14 points each and Geraghty 12 for Joyner.

Lewis Brown had an easy time with the Everett Pumas, 59-38. Chucky Clark had 23 points and Charles Hambrick 18 for Lewis.

Ehringhaus C-2 defeated the Ehringhaus C Hornets, 41-37. Scott Honeycutt's 15 points were high for C-2. Jack Bennett had 18 and Jim Cutting 15 in a losing effort for the Hornets.

Other scores: Manly Riverrats 49, Ruffin Raiders 43; Aycock Aardwolves 46, Stacy No. 1 39; Graham B-Balls 38, Everett Grossmen 31; Peacocks 65, Law III White 51; Everett Hustlers 27, Everett Eels 21; Gaham Bells 66, Lewis Grey 16; Parker Supporters 50, Parker Pretzels 37; Teague Trojans 69, Avery A's 63.

A mistake was made in reporting an intramural score of a game played on Tuesday. It was stated that Laten Creech scored 20 points in leading DU Blue IV over Delta Sig Blue, 49-19. Actually, Crech plays for Delta Sig Blue and they beat the DU's by the 49-19 score.

Virginia Star Rates In ACC Basketball

The University of Virginia can count but one All-American among its basketball players of the past, but that one (Buzz Wilkinson, A-A 1954-55) rates a loud cheer from basketball history students of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wilkinson was the top star in the league during the first two years of its existence, and rates as one of the all-time greats in ACC history. His special talent was scoring, and he is the only player to average 30 points or better in two different seasons.

In 1954—the first year in which the ACC was organized —Wilkinson rolled up 814 points for a 30.1 average. The next year he topped that performance, scoring 898 points and recording the highest single-season average ever in the ACC—32.1.

The highest point total was registered by Wake Forest's Len Chappell when he tallied 932 in 31 games in 1962. His 30.1 average that year ties Wilkinson's 1954 average for fourth place on the all-time list, with Grady Wallace of South Carolina placing third at 31.2. in 1957.

Lennie Rosenbluth of Carolina holds this school's highest single-season average, but his 27.9 was second to Wallace in 1957.

A Carolina player has led the ACC's scoring five times. Rosenbluth was the first in 1956, and then came Pete Brennan (21.3) in 1958, Lee Shaffer (18.2) in 1960, and Billy Cunningham twice, with 26.0 in 1964 and 25.4 in 1965.

Tickets

Tickets can still be picked up for the VPI game which will be played Saturday evening in Carmichael.

"Next weekend's doubleheader in Charlotte is sold out for Saturday night but some tickets still remain in for the Friday night engagement.

Bridge Tourney

Graham Memorial will host the UNC division of the 1966 Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament on Sunday, February 13 at 1:30 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounges of Graham Memorial. All competition will be by mail and will be conducted on the UNC Campus in a single session.

UNC will be one of more than 200 colleges, universities and junior colleges throughout the country participating in this event.

UNC is in Region V of the Association of College Unions, which includes North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and the eastern parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

There are fifteen national regions, which will be combined into eight super regions. The top scoring East-West and North-South pairs in each of the eight super regions will represent that super region in the Face-to-Face Championships at Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois, on May 6th, 7th, and 8th, 1966, all expenses paid by Whitman Publishing Company.

The hands will be judged by William Root and Lawrence Rosler, contract bridge authorities.

Last year, Eduardo Belmont and John Isenburg were the local campus winners in the competition. Cornell University won the National Championship and the University of Wisconsin won second place while the University of Colorado came in third.

Inexperienced bridge players as well as avid bridge players are invited to participate. Each hand is constructed so as to be a first rate bridge lesson, and beginners will learn a great deal by participating.

All intersted students should come to Graham Memorial on Sunday, February 13 at 1:30 p.m. There will be no charge; entry fees will be paid by Graham Memorial.

State Downs Dolphins

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

After being whipped by N. C. State, 66-29, on Wednesday night, the North Carolina Dolphins hit the road early this morning for a meet tonight with Maryland.

"We have beaten Maryland for two years, so they will be ready for us," said swimming coach Pat Earey. "Mayland is not quite as strong as State was, so it should be a close meet, with the edge probably going to them."

Maryland's top swimmers include distance man Bill Nullmeyer, defending ACC 200-yard freestyle champ; Doug Springer, a breaststroke and individual medley man; Phil Denkevitz, holder of the ACC 100-yard freestyle record; and Bill Phillips, backstroker.

Against State, the Dolphins performed as well or better than their previous times of the year, but they were simply outclassed.

The outstanding Carolina performance was turned in by Phil Riker, who set a new UNC 200-yard butterfly record of 1:58.3 as he won that event. Riker beat State's two butterfly aces, John White and Pat Gavaghan.

Pete Worthen of Carolina won the 50-yard freestyle in 21:8 with UNC's Strud Norfleet finishing second. But State had things their own way in the rest of the meet.

Gavaghan won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:51.8. John Calvert captured the 200-yard individual medley in 2:05.2 and the 200-yard backstroke in 2:02. Steve Hildenbrand of UNC was second in the medley and Gaye Stratten second in the backstroke.

Steve Rerych beat out UNC's Worthen in the 100-freestyle in 47.5. Jeff Herman won the 500 free in 5:03.9 and Ron Wirth won over Carolina's Rick Forum in the 200 breaststroke in 2:20.8.

Smith Is Coach, Not Player Says UNC Sports Enthusiast

By a UNC Fan

Attention Carolina basketball critics. It's high time you realized that Dean Smith is a basketball coach and not a player.

Everytime the Tar Heels loose, who gets the blame? Dean Smith.

Smith is a coach, and as a coach, he has no control in determining the ultimate outcome of a game once the players take the court.

He can drill them in practice and instruct them during time outs, but that's all. The ultimate outcome of the game is determined by the five players on the floor, and it's about time we started judging Smith as a coach, and not a player.

Did you know that the library school here not only turns out nice librarians, but nice basketball fans to.

Recently I had the pleasure of meeting a group of these fine students. It surprised me tremendously to find out that they were avid basketball fans, and not just bookworms.

This group of fans, who wish to remain anonymous are perfect fans, and it would do some of us a lot of good to take a lesson from them.

They always conduct themselves as perfect ladies and gentlemen at games. They are the best fans the team has because they never give up on them even when they are behind.

The golden rule for this group when things aren't going well for the team is not to criticize a player for his mistakes. You might say they believe in the old saying that if you can't say something nice about somebody, don't say anything at all.

So fans are fans, good and bad, but the nicest fans I've met this year come from the library school.

Surgeons at the University of North Carolina Medical School successfully separated Siamese twins joined at the lower hip region. This is the first time in medical history it has been done — and the patients live.

Frosh Tankmen Stay Unbeaten

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's freshman swimming team preserved its undefeated record by gliding by the East Crolina frosh on Wednesday night, 58-36.

Jim Edwards of UNC won the 50 - yard freestyle in 22.0, with Greg Meehan second. David Ball swam a 50.1 winning time in the 100 free. Manchester and Monogham of ECC took the 500 and 200 freestyle races, respectively.

Dick Jacobs swam to a victory in the 200 - yard individual medley with a 2:11.9 time. Fred Danneman won the 200 backstroke in 2:08.3, beating Sultan of East Carolina, their top man.

Jack Sheppard won the 200 breaststroke in 2:29.6 with teammate Hamilton Gadd finishing second. Jack Swartley and Bill Stevens had no opposition in dividing, but competed anyway, with Swartley winning.

The 400 - yard medley relay team of Fred Danneman, Tom Ferretti, Doug Behrman and Al Spier won handily in 3:55.8.

Freshman coach Tom Canon praised Dunneman's backstroke victory and singled out an unofficial performance by Tom Ferretti in the breaststroke.

Ferretti, not competing in the race, swam in another lane and compiled a 2:27.9 time, six seconds better than he has done at any time during the year. Canon says Ferretit may have solved the problem of the breaststroke position for the UNC varsity with his showings this season.

Letters Awarded

The UNC Monogram Club awarded fall letters to new members and certificates to previous winners last night in the club room of Woollen Gym.

Those who received their first football awards were were Charles E. Alexander, Gregory A. Battistello, Jeffrey W. Beaver, Charles I. Boggs, James E. Byrd, Charles L. Carr, Felix B. Clayton, manager John C. Critcher, John F. Davenport, Leroy A. Davis, Charles R. Ephland, David R. Erimias, John J. Esher, Lloyd G. Fisher, William W. High, Michael A. Horvat, Tomlinson A. Ingle, R. Earl Johnson, Thomas S. Lampman, M. Eugene Link, James P. Masino, Brent M. Milgrom, Robert F. Powell, Louis A. Pukal, David L. Riggs, Patrick J. Shea, Charles H. Sledge, William J. Spain, Joseph V. Twamley and George W. Zadjeika.

Second awards in football went to Joseph L. Churchill, William C. Darnall, Charles T. Davis, Joseph A. Fratangelo, John M. Harmon, James S. Harrington, Robert L. Hume, Ronald M. Kaplan, Stephen C. Lister, Alan F. McArthur, Harold L. Phillips, Geo. Henry Sadler, J. Daniel Talbott and Charles H. Wood.

Third awards were received by James H. Addison, John W. Atherton, Max C. Chapman, William M. Edwards, John J. Malobicky and Edward H. Stringer.

Varsity cross country letters were given to William Adnee Bassett, Edward Alfred Daw, manager Richard Dwight Durham, William Harry Janowitz, Franz Jeffrey Kurth, Harry Lewis MacPherson, Alfred Clarence McCall, James Bullard Meade, Russell Henry Putnam, Michael Wayne Williams and Charles Robert Worley.

Aside from football and cross country, letters were awarded in soccer to Edward Turner Baur, Eduardo Jaime Belmont, Gordon Eugene Cadwgan, Daniel Khrishna Galves, Peter Cliff Gilmore, James Hammer, Lawrence Sumner Heath, Francis Eugene Henry, Robert Arthur Hohnson, James Sidney Jonston, William Thomas LeVasseur, John Merrell Loud, Spencer Wyatt McCallie, Andrew Marshall Murphy, manager Scott Patterson, Willem Louis Polack, William Handy Reeves, Thomas Adams Roberts, John Connell Strickland, Gilbert Robert Suitor, Frederic Bronson Van Wych and George Sneden Writer.

INDIVIDUAL SCORING IN ACC

Yr.	Player, School	Pts.	Ave.
'54	Wilkinson, Va.	814	30.1
'55	Wilkinson, Va.	898	32.1
'56	Ros'bluth, UNC	614	26.6
'57	Wallace, USC	906	31.2
'58	Brennan, UNC	554	21.3
'59	Richter, NCS	443	17.0
'60	Shaffer, UNC	437	18.2
'61	Chappell, WF	745	26.6
'62	Chappell, WF	932	30.1
'63	Heyman, Duke	747	24.9
'64	Cun'ham, UNC	623	28.0
'65	Cun'ham, UNC	609	25.4

DOOR BUSTING SALE ON ENTIRE STOCK OF

Fall Sport Coats

Were	NOW
39.95	25.95
45.00	28.95
49.95	31.95
55.00	34.95
59.95	37.95
65.00	39.95

Town & Campus

Fraternity and Sorority RUSH

WHAT could be more enjoyable with a glass of ? punch than an Hors d'oeuvres table set from Hickory Farms.

JUST CHECK THESE:

- ☐ Beef Stick
- ☐ Cheese Ball
- ☐ Salami
- ☐ Cheese Sticks
- ☐ Sesami Crackers
- ☐ Smoked Cheese
- ☐ In fact 126 different varieties of cheese

You may have more rushees than you expected and a few extra loafing Brothers, but can you think of a better way to keep the "HOT LIST" around.

We at Hickory Farms wish you the "Biggest" and "Bestest" in 1966.

9:30-9 M-F 9:30-6 Sat. 1-6 on Sunday

HICKORY FARMS

Eastgate Shopping Center

Today's Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday or Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

Used Book Ex-Students are requested to pick up their money on their books in APO office in South Basement from 3-5 p.m. on Tues.-Friday.

The Reverend John E. Ensign will be on campus Monday, Feb. 14, to interview students for summer employment at Camp Hanover, located 14 miles out of Richmond. Please call 942-3753 for an appointment with Mr. Ensign.

The members of Phi Beta Kapps who were initiated on Dec. 7 may now pick up their keys and certificates in 378 Phillips Hall.

The Current Affairs Committee will meet Monday from 4-5:30, in Roland Parker I. All members plan now to be present.

The "Y" International Relations Committee will sponsor Russell Johnson of the American Friends Service at 3:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation. He will speak on his recent travels in Viet Nam.

There will be supper, music, dancing and conversation at the Sunday Supper Social presented by the Hillel Foundation at 5:30 p.m. Call 942-4057 between 3 and 5 p.m. Sunday for reservations.

Are you an auctioneer? The campus chest needs you! Wild items — Good crowds Practice your talents! It's a one night stand, March 21. A good cause and a good time. If interested please call Bayard Harris, 968-9070 and leave a message.

It will be a Valentine A Go-Go Saturday night following the UNC-VPI basketball game. The Go-Go will be sponsored by Morrison Residence College from 9-1 a.m. Morrison will present its new Go-Go girl, and the music of the "Weejuns." Tickets will be $1.25 per couple and will be on sale Friday and Saturday in Y-Court, Chase Cafeteria, Morrison Lobby and at the door Sat. night.

There's An M-2 In Your Present At Enticing FROGSTRANGLER Prices!

Large choice group of 977 button-down shirts all in our own perfect customized roll button-down, regularly to $8.95, have a Frogstrangler Ball at amazing $2.99.

Many Other Frogstrangler Buys You Just Have to Have.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Dickson Confirms

(Continued from Page 1)

their own plans to invite Aptheker, Dickson said.

According to Dickson, George Nicholson, chairman of the Carolina Forum, was brought in on the plans in early fall, because he had been out of town during the summer.

Dickson was not "mad" about the SDS invitation, but considered it "ill timed."

He said he considered the invitation of Aptheker "too early in terms of the political situation."

The situation could have been dealt with better if students had moved "gradually instead of all at once," he said.

Dickson, did, however, recognize the right of SDS to invite speakers of its own choosing.

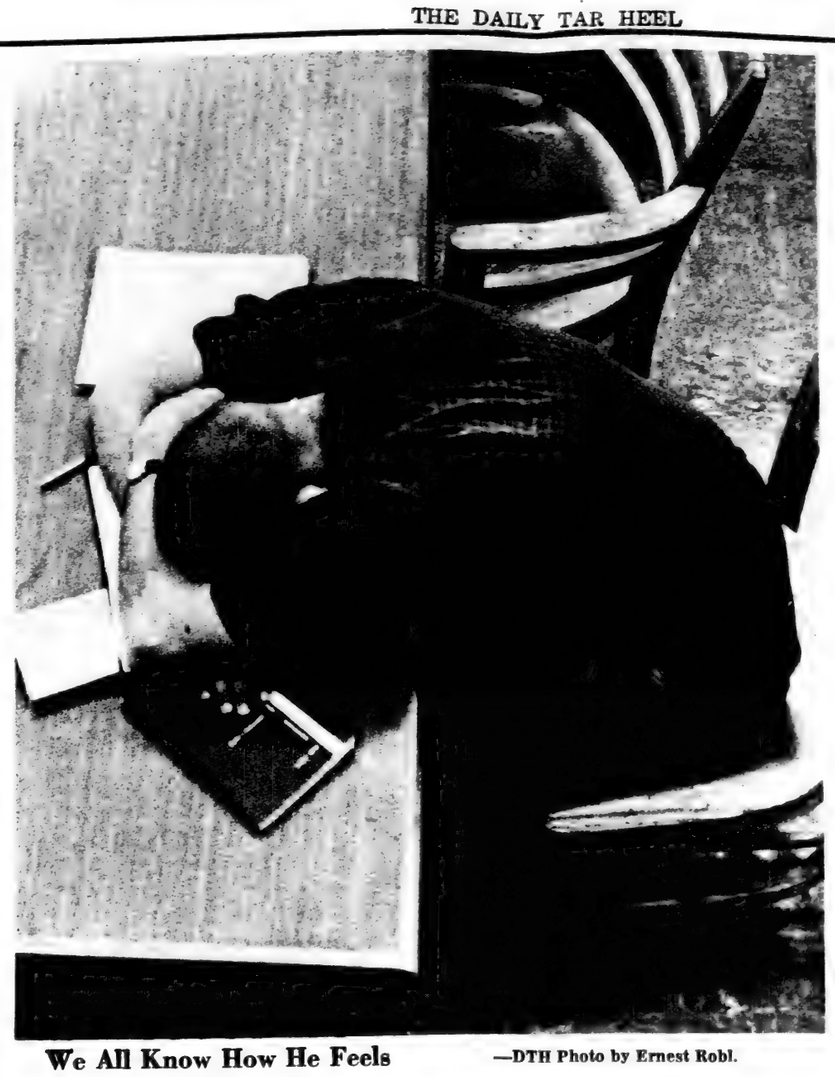
Student Government may yet go to court on the issue if Aptheker is denied a platform here, according to Dickson. But he said he could not make any commitments before he knew the outcome of the board of trustees' meeting Feb. 28.

Interviews Slated For Scholarship

Five students are currently attending the University here on Herbert Worth Jackson Scholarships, one of the school's oldest and most distinguished awards.

Interviews for finalists in the competition to select next fall's winner of the $850 a year scholarship will be held here Saturday, March 19.

Given each year to an entering outstanding freshman boy who is a resident of N.C., the Jackson scholarship was established in 1938 in memory of Herbert Worth Jackson, a UNC alumnus of 1886. His widow founded the original trust fund and other family members have since supplemented it.



We All Know How He Feels —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

More Campus New Briefs

APO Nets $1,250

Alpha Phi Omega, the National Service Fraternity, has completed another successful project. Their "Used Book Exchange" netted $1,250. Response was twice as large as last year.

Most of this money, and money from the "Ugliest Man On Campus" Contest the group sponsored earlier this year, will go to Project Hope, a hospital ship that offers medical aid and training for South Americans.

Firms To Interview

Union Carbide, Lehigh Portland Cement, American Hospital Supply, Proctor & Gamble, U. S. General Accounting Office, and Union Carbide Consumer Products will hold interviews for job prospects tomorrow.

Anyone interested should come by the Placement Service at 204 Gardner to make an appointment.

Post Office Jobs

The Chapel Hill Post Office has several job openings, according to the Board of Civil Service Examiners.

Positions available include Substitute Postal Clerk, Substitute City Letter Carrier, and Substitute Special Delivery Messenger. Starting salary is $2.57 per hour.

Preference will be given to Orange County residents, but nonresidents may also apply for the jobs. The new employees will be chosen on the basis of a written test.

For further information and application forms, see the Chapel Hill postmaster or write the Executive Secretary, Postal Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, P. O. Box 3603, Greensboro.

Archways To Sing

Seven Salem College girls will be in the Graham Memorial lounge at 8:00 p.m. tonight to sing for Carolina students.

The are the Archways — named for the famous archways which are characteristic of the Moravian architecture on the Salem campus. The girls select songs appropriate to the occasion and have a widely varied repertoire ranging from popular songs to soft slow romantic "mood music" to Bach — Swingle Singer style.

Ramsey Lewis Trio

A limited number of tickets for the Ramsey Lewis Trio are still available at Graham Memorial to students. The tickets, which cost 50 cents for students and $1.00 for date tickets, are mostly in the balcony.

—Pepper

(Continued from Page 1)

Pepper said he feels the quota will be reached rather easily because most of the service organizations on campus have pledged strong support of the drive.

"Some people have been a little reluctant to sign up to donate blood," Pepper added, "because the think it might hurt. This will be the first time that I've given but from everything that I've heard, giving blood is painless."

He urged students to sign up today in Y-Court from noon to 4:30 p.m. Pepper said if students sign up before they go to Woollen Gymnasium to give blood the program can be preplanned and collections can be expedited.

Several campus organizations will assist the Red Cross workers in the blood collections.

The groups include Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, Sigma Nu Fraternity, NROTC, Semper Fidelis, and about 60 sorority members.

The assistants will be trained in a special session Tuesday in Woollen Gym from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. by Mrs. Mary Snider.

Pepper said class excuses will be given to students who will be late for a class. The co-chairman urged professors to excuse students who present the excuse cards.

The collections will be made from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Thursday.

Gov. Defends Opposition

(Continued from Page 1)

question of whether Aptheker Wilkinson would be permitted to speak.

"When the committee appeared indecisive in dealing with the first invitations, the reaction from many members of the General Assembly was one of shock and dismay," Moore asserted. "Some legislators felt that the lack of action was a breach of faith with the General Assembly."

Aptheker is a widely known Communist spokesman and Wilkinson is chairman of a National Committee, which wants to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities. They were invited to UNC by a small student group, the Students for a Democratic Society. The invitation was supported by the University faculty and a large segment of the student body. The administration urged that the two speakers be allowed to appear.

A reporter asked Moore if Aptheker and Wilkinson could be invited to speak at UNC after the trustees meet Feb. 28 and adopt rules and regulations governing campus speakers. Moore replied any comment on what would happen in the future would be speculation.

Duo Finds Fortune

HOLLYWOOD (AP — We have all been told of pirates bold, who hid their gold in days of old.

But now it's pop that's on the top, and here's a yarn that's —man. like THWOP!

Our tale begins last October, when adventurous Leonard Brown and his intrepid sidekick, Malcolm Willits, co-owners of the Collectors Book Store in Hollywood, heard of a priceless treasure languishing in a trunk in nearby Burbank.

What this treasure was was—leaping Lepidoptera!" "Comic books!

THWOCK!

As with a stone between the eyes, Brown and Willits were struck with visions of benevolent forture.

Comic books are a gold mine in the rage for pop art. Painters haul down healthy emoluments for merely reproducing the simple line drawings of a simpler day. Portraits of soup cans are putting Botticelli out of business. Beautiful people of true chic revere this trend. They call it high camp and pop, and pay potsful of money for it.

"Gee, Malcom," said Leonard excitedly, "we've got to get that stuff!"

Little did they know what lay ahead.

First they learned that the trunk's owner had moved to Harrisburg, Pa., address unknown.

All we had was his name," said Brown, "so we used a phone book and wrote to everyone by that name in Harrisburg. Finally we got a letter from his uncle."

But—Ooo!" "The uncle did not know where his nephew was. But he did know the trunk was still in a Burbank warehouse, address unknown.

"We finked around the way we always do and contacted every warehouse in Burbank," said Brown, only to learn that the trunk was to be auctioned in January, for lack of storage payments.

Having no idea what the trunk looked like, and afraid of divulging its priceless secret, they decided to buy every trunk.

They bought one. It contained a mess of pottage.

They bought no. 2. Another mess of pottage.

They bought a third. And ZLONK! There the treasure lay.

Comic books — dozens of them, all for a total of $4.16.

"We just stood there awestruck," said Brown humbly. "I mean, like, think of something you've wanted all your life, then write yourself into it." They figure they wrote themselves into a $10,000 investment.

The first comic brought to light was an oldie with Hi Spot Comics as its title. "I can't stress enough now valuable this one is," said Brown. "It includes the first installment of 'Dave Innes,' a serial by Edgar Rice Burroughs. For some reason they never brought out another issue." He figures its worth at about $100.

For a complete set of the first 30 batman comics, "we are going to ask a grand. I think we'll get it."

Then, with a reverent gesture toward the trunk, Brown explained the deeper meaning of it all:

"This," he said, "this is Americana."

Musical Review To Be Given

WILLIAM FESPERMAN
Religion Editor

Criticisms of the church take many voices. Pious reactionaries can decry radical reformers, radical reformers can bemoan pious reactionaries.

Generally speaking, anyone can join the lively fray.

This is all to say that in the life of the church criticism from within and from without is indicative of the vitality of the church as it constantly breaks down and rebuilds in history.

Sunday night at 6:30 at the Presbyterian Student Center on Henderson Street, the church will witness a rather stinging yet therapeutic criticism of its life today.

This will be done by way of a musical revue, For Heaven's Sake, with lyrics by Helen Kromer and music by Frederick Silver.

The musical was written for the North American Ecumenical Youth Assembly in August, 1961. Using song, dialogue, monlogue and various scenario, the tangy musical runs from sweet to sour over the taste buds of the institutional contoversial work worthy of controversy.

With such songs as "Little Man", "A Mighty Fortress is our Church," "Gimme God Blues' and "One Man Awake", the revue presents the church seeing itself for the world.

The musical is being done by the Wesley Players of Duke University. The cast includes Welda Rudin, Jim Clemmer, Peggy Hackney, John Rudin, Dick Paddock, Phil Williams, Cranford Johnson, and Dennis Campbell.

Semi-Annual

FLORSHEIM

SHOE SALE

Reg. 26.95 to 24.95

Now 18.80 to 16.80

Selected styles from our regular stock of famous Florsheim Shoes, reduced for a limited time. Here's your opportunity to save on America's finest quality shoes for men. Shop now while the selection is good.

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction

147 E. Franklin St.

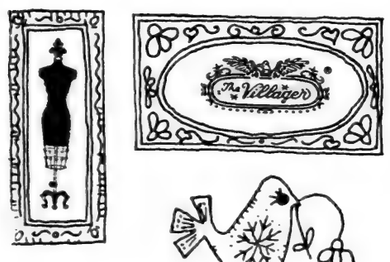
Charge Accounts Invited

GANT SHIRTMAKERS

OXFORD BUTTON-DOWN

Very special our Gant oxford button-down—its flair, its fit, the superb quality of the cotton oxford fabric, the casual roll of the collar. All these attributes are exclusively Gant — all reasons why we carry this distinctive brand. Come in and see our new color selection.

Julian's



Robins are unreliable...
The Spring VILLAGER®
Collection is the first sign of the season.

VILLAGERS come first.
After that, robins,
daffodils, lovers on park benches, and all the lesser signs of Spring. You will be happy to learn that the VILLAGERS are already here. Just arrived, fresh as paint and
new as April...
a complete collection,
to gladden the
winter-weary heart.

Town & Campus

© THE VILLAGER, INC., 1966

DRESS SHIRT SALE

Our entire stock of famous name traditional dress shirts have been cut once again for this once a year sale. Buy several at these low prices.

Reg. 5.00 — NOW 2.99

Reg. 5.95 — NOW 3.99

Reg. 6.50 — NOW 3.99

Reg. 6.95 — NOW 4.99

MANY OTHER FANTASTIC BUYS NOW AWAIT YOU!

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

103 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Varsity Men's Wear

CONTINUING OUR GREAT

Quality SALE

WITH GREATER REDUCTIONS

. . . . on all our SUITS, SPORT JACKETS, TOPCOATS, SLACKS, SWEATERS, etc. Values and prices you haven't seen before . . . Practically our entire stock . . . every item with its famous label. Spark up your wardrobe now — take advantage of these terrific SAVINGS.

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction

147 E. Franklin St. Charge Accounts Invited

KEMP'S GREATEST!

TONITE

ONLY

All Records Regardless of Price, Mono or Stereo-

Classical or Pop — ONE PRICE

$2.25 No Dealers

— Per Record —

FRIDAY NITE ONLY — FEBRUARY 11th

DOORS OPEN 7 P.M. SHARP TILL 11 P.M.

You haven't seen nothing like this one — So Come Early, Get all new releases and stock—

Added Attraction Tonite

Exciting New CIGARETTE DEAL — First Time at Kemp's. This You Can't Afford To MISS . . . ONE SHOT DEAL.

NEW YORK STOCKS ARRIVED FOR THIS SALE

KEMP'S EAST FRANKLIN CHAPEL HILL

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, No. 92 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Late Permission

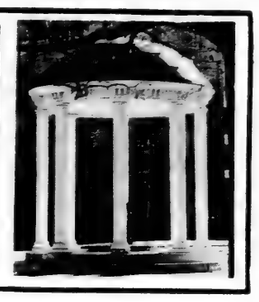
The Dean of Women's office has announced that all girls attending "Winter Mavericks" have late permission (1:30 a.m.)

ZBT Rides

Rides will be leaving every half hour from the Scuttlebut Sunday afternoon from 3 to 6 p.m. for ZBT Rush.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Cheap Smasher Masher

Sonny Pepper, co-chairman of the Carolina Blood Drive, tells us that giving blood can be economical and save you money.

According to Sonny, who is an authority, if you give a pint of blood it will only take two (2) beers to plaster you limitless.

You can understand that of course. There won't be as much blood so it won't take so much alcohol to . . .

Just watch the list of donors grow now.

Governor Follows Rules

A former co-editor of the DTH was talking yesterday about this current problem we're having — speaker banning.

He said he was sure that Governor Dan K. Moore would not except the invitation of the Committee For Free Inquiry, or any other group for that matter, because he does not wish to violate his own speaker policy.

The governor insists that all people who are invited to speak on campus must contribute to the education of students.

Othello By Twain

Speaking of education we heard a good one. A young lady who has recently changed her major from nursing to physical education asked a friend what she had done the night before.

"I went to see Othello," the friend replied.

Othello, who is that?" asked the P.E. major.

"That just happens to be one of Mr. William Shakespeare's better plays," came the answer.

"Oh yes," said the ex-nurse, "the one Hal Holbrook is playing in."

We Wanta' Go Back

Oh for the calm and peaceful days to return to this hallowed hill.

You can't do anything without starting a controversy, or so it seems. Aptheker, Lynd, Committee For Free Inquiry and criticism of hapless cheerleaders, will never cease?

What we wouldn't give to return to the fall afternoons and talk of how to get rid of football coaches.

Still More Trivia

Here we go with some more Trivia; Lord help us to think of enough to fill out the rest of this column. I keep telling them to go back to the bigger type size, but they just won't listen.

1. What are the names of the seven dwarfs?
2. What was the name of the girl who let down her golden hair?
3. What is the name of the lawyer in "Amos and Andy?"
4. Who was Captain Midnight's side-kick?
5. What did they say to Froggie on the "Andy Divine Show?"
6. What are the names of Carolina's backfield men?

ANSWERS:

1. Sneezy, Grumpy, Happy, Sleepy, Dopey, Doc and Bashful; 2. Repunzl; 3. Calhoun; 4. Ikabod Mudd, "That's Mudd with two d's." 5. Plunk your magic twanger Froggie; 6. Stumble, Bumble, Grumble and Fumble.

No Red China For Mock UN

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

DURHAM—The resolution to admit Red China to the U. N. was defeated yesterday at the Model United Nations being held this week at Duke University.

Students from over sixty southern colleges and universities representing 78 nations did not provide the necessary 2-3 majority to pass the resolution.

The resolution put to a vote was:

1. Credentials be withdrawn from the government referred to as the Nationalist Republic of China.
2. The People's Republic of China be given the credentials to represent the People of China in all organs of the United Nations including the Security Council.

Before the vote was taken on this resolution, the delegates voted to require a 2-3 majority for its passage.

The resolution received a simple majority but not the 2-3 majority that was needed.

More nations are being represented by UNC students at the Model United Nations than by any other school.

UNC students are representing seven nations. Duke is second in number, representing six nations. Each delegation contains about four members.

Don Wilson, Student Party Floor Leader at UNC, is the president of General Assembly of the Model U. N.

Wilson, as the presiding officer, had presented the proposal that only a simple majority be required for the resolution on Red China. His proposal was defeated by five votes.

The Model United Nations will continue today in a discussion concerning a proposal that a peace-keeping team be formed by the Security Council to be sent to the Republic of South Vietnam.

Duke Players Perform Here

The Westminister Fellowship will sponsor a musical revue Sunday evening at 6:30, Feb. 13, in the Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Student Center on Henderson Street.

The revue, For Heaven's Sake, will be done by the Wesley Players of Duke University. The group is directed by Welda Rudin, with Jim Clemmer as pianist and Peggy Hackney as choreographer.

Free Inquiry Group OK's Invitation, Speaker Policy

By ERNIE McCRARY
DTH Editor

The Committee for Free Inquiry, with more than 350 students and faculty members in attendance yesterday, approved a letter inviting Gov. Dan K. Moore to speak here and turned down a milder proposal from Dr. Corydon P. Spruill, chairman of the faculty.

The committee organized Tuesday night to express University opposition to the trustees' ruling against the appearance here of Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson, elected a permanent nine-member steering committee during the three-hour meeting in Gerrard Hall Friday afternoon.

The letter asked Moore or a member of the executive committee of the board of trustees to "come to Chapel Hill and make clear to us the reasons for the steps that have been taken."

Thursday, before he received the invitation, Moore said he had "no plans" to come to the University.

"Let us stress that we have no desire whatsoever to embarrass you, your administration, the executive committee or the board of trustees," the letter said. "We simply want to know the truth."

The letter called the "real tragedy" of the controversy the "lack of sincere communication between Chapel Hill and Raleigh."

Political science instructor Sid Waldman led the discussion of the letter.

Faculty Chairman Spruill, speaking "as an individual," told the group he was "concerned the letter will appear to mean we're asking Moore to come over here and be accountable to us."

"In terms of expediency and wisdom," Spruill said, "it would be better to write off the Aptheker invitation as a lost battle."

He was met with a murmur of "noes" from the audience, made up mostly of students.

Spruill suggested, instead, a letter to the trustees saying "we have no disposition to renew the request (for Aptheker's appearance) and we earnestly appeal to the trustees for a reaffirmation of faith in the principles of free expression."

The following members of the permanent steering committee for the CFI were approved: undergraduates—Paul Dickson, student body president; Jim Medford, YMCA president; Jim Little, Student Party chairman; and Neil Thomas, University Party chairman. Graduates — Robert Keiser, political science; Gary Waller, sociology; Daryll Powell, English. Faculty —

(Continued on Page 6)

POLITICAL SCIENCE graduate student and part-time instructor Sid Waldman reads letter to be sent to Gov. Dan K. Moore inviting him to address the Carolina student body. More than 350 students and faculty attended yesterday's meeting in Gerrard Hall.

— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Wilkinson Will Come To Duke

From The Associated Press

Frank Wilkinson has accepted an invitation to speak March 1 on the Duke University campus.

The professional affairs committee of the Duke Bar Association announced Friday it invited Wilkinson.

In Michigan Friday, the state senate voted 15-14 to ask state university presidents to ban Communist speakers on campus in the state.

The Michigan resolution — which does not have the force of law — was passed only hours before avowed Communist theoretician Herbert Aptheker was to speak at Wayne State University in Detroit.

Senate Majority Leader Raymond Dzendzel, insisted "the intent of the resolution has nothing to do with free speech It asks the institutions to stop permitting the enemy to infiltrate upon a captive audience."

The resolution did not mention Aptheker by name, but Dzendzel said that's who it was initially aimed at. Aptheker, who visited North Viet Nam recently without government authorization, is also scheduled to speak at other Michigan campuses.

Concerning Wilkinson, Jim Maxwell, president of the Duke Bar Association, announced the invitation and acceptance and disclosed that two other Duke University student groups plan to invite Aptheker.

The executive committee of the University of North Carolina trustees has denied Aptheker and Wilkinson the right to speak on the UNC campus at Chapel Hill pending a meeting of the full board of trustees Feb. 28. The executive committee based its act on an interpretation of North Carolina's recently amended speaker ban law.

Duke University officials said Friday the invitation to Wilkinson issued without consultation either with the dean of the law scchool or Dr. Douglas Knight, Duke University president.

Blood Drive To Be Aided By Sororities

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

About 50 sorority members will be among the assistants at the blood collection center next Wednesday and Thursday.

Sonny Pepper and Kathy Cauble, co-chairmen of the blood campaign, said members of the Chi Omega, Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Kappa Gama sororities will act as hostesses and serve refreshments to blood donors.

"I'm real glad to see that the sororities are interested in this useful activity," Pepper said.

Over 400 persons have signed up to give blood but Pepper said many more signatures are needd. The quota is 600 pints.

The co-chairman said about 900 signatures will be needed in order to get he quota because many persons are usually not able to give blood when they go to donate.

Pepper said the reason the signups are need is to prevent confusion at he donation center, Woollen Gym.

"We're going to be trying to collect 300 pints of blood in a six-hour period both days of the drive," Pepper said. "That is quite a feat in itself. But if a large group of people come down there and didn't signup beforehand, then there will be a lot standing in line. This is what we're trying to avoid, if it's at all possible."

Pepper said several members of the administration, staff and faculty have asked if they could donate blood in the drive too. Anyone on campus will be eligible to donate blood in the drive, he said.

The Junior Service League of Chapel Hill is donating cookies to be served to donors, Pepper said, and the Pepsi Cola Company will provide free drinks. Lenoir Hall is donating coffee.

The co-chairman said he has been pleased with the response of everyone in the campaign but said he hoped more people will signup before the collections are begun.

The hours for the collections will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

The other groups which will assist at the blood donation center include the Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, Sigma Nu Fraternity, members of the NROTC unit and Semper Fidelis, a Marine Honorary society.

All of the assistants will be trained in a special session Tuesday from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in Woollen Gymansium by Mrs. Mary Snider.

Clark Attacks Policies

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

Wilson Cark, president of the Carolina Conservative Club, attacked the speaker policies of four campus organizations yesterday, including SDS, YMCA, the Carolina Forum and the Carolina Symposium.

At the same time, Clark, speaking at a press conference at GM, asked that avowed Communist Herbert Aptheker should be allowed to speak here.

Also at the conference Clark announced the CCC's own speaker program including a talk by Dr. Ernest van den Haag, professor of sociology at New York University, on "Free Speech, What Does It Mean?" Sunday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Clark asked that special fund solicitation privileges now extended to the YMCA and the Carolina Symposium be rescinded immediately.

On the YMCA Clark said, "It purports to be a Christian youth group but through its International Relation's Committee, its partisan political activity has reached the point where it can no longer be overlooked as it has been in past years.

"It has used funds solicited from the student body at large to attract political speakers who have been of a consistent radical leftist bias."

Next Clark cited the Carolina Forum's $6000 annual budget and commented, "Now, either the Forum seeks to bring to the campus a representative sampling of competent conservative, liberal, and moderate speakers or it does not.

"If the former is the case, its past and present administration must be hopelessly inept and incompetent; if the latter, we believe that the time for a change in the Forum is past due."

Clark, who claimed that his group has approximately 125 members on campus, said that it "rejects the assertion that fringe theoreticians, such as Robert Welch, or racists, such as Ross Barnett, in any way reflect our notion of a legitimate, responsible, conservative viewpoint."

Concerning the Symposium, an agency, which in alternate years brings a number of speakers to the campus to discuss a political issue, Clark said that the speakers at the last session had ranged "from liberal to radical."

He said that of the Symposium's proposed list of 38 speakers for this year, not a single conservative had even been cnsidered for invitations.

Later, in requesting trustee permission for the appearance of Aptheker, Clark said, "We believe, however, that the full meaning of free expression will not be realized by the appearance of Herbret Aptheker or of one hundred Herbert Aptheker. Free expression implies controversy, and controversy has been sadly lacking on this campus."

Clark charged that SDS, in inviting Aptheker, was attempting "to exploit the new speaker policy."

SG Legislators Walk Out, Prevent Dickson Address

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

A small group of student legislators, mostly UP, prevented Student Boby President Paul Dickson from addressing the Student Legislature Thursday night concerning the Aptheker controversy.

In the final 30 minutes of the session Rep. Don Carson (Ind.) called for a quorum. After the motion was made, Carson and most of the UP legislators walked out of the room.

While they were out, Rep. Hugh Blackwell (SP) asked for unanimous consent of the body to rescind the quorum call.

Speaker Britt Gorgon referred the question to Parliamentarian Teddy O'Toole. O'Toole ruled the motion out of order.

Rep. Joe Chandler (SP) moved to rescind the order for the quorum call. O'Toole ruled this motion in order.

Business was then continued, but by this time it was too late for Dickson to speak since by constitution bylaws, the body must move into new business at 10:45.

The controversy started when Rep. Jim Smith (UP) gave a statement, co-authored by Clark Crampton, charged Dickson with allowing SDS to "force the hand of Student Government by accepting an ill-timed invitation for a speaker who leaves much to be desired as a test case speaker."

The Student Party answered by asking Dickson to address the body.

Coed Completes Guatemala Hitch

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

"I can never be sure how much I accomplished will be lasting, but the experience was an education I couldn't have received any other way."

This is pretty Lynda Sanderford describing her two-year hitch with the Peace Corps in Guatemala.

The 1963 UNC graduate and Winston-Salem native found many contrasts between the United States and Gutamala but she also found similarities.

For instance — the Beatle Craze. "I had only been in Guatemala a few days," Lynda said, "when the natives came up to me, repeating a word that sounded like 'vittles.'

"Pretty soon I found that they were not talking about food at all. They thought I was a Beatle because of my short hair."

The Peace Corps assigned Lynda as a community development worker in Barberena, a coffee-growing town less than 30 miles from the capital, Guatemala City.

She shared an adobe-walled, tile-roofed house with two other Peace Corps Volunteers. The house had running water—running three hours a day.

One day the "running water" gave them trouble, so the girls went up to an old man's house and asked where they could get some water pipes.

The old man walked out into his yard with a shovel, dug up some pipe, cut if off and left water gushing in all directions. Thus their pipe problems were solved.

Lynda spent her second year in Guatemala City, teaching and supervising a medical technicians school in Roosevelt Hospital there.

On another trip she was fortunate enough—or unfortunate enough—to take a jeep. She and her partner were slightly injured in an accident on the road between two small villages. Townspeople argued over

(Continued on Page 6)

AT WORK HERE is peace corps volunteer Lynda Sanderford. She is recruiting on campus.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Ehringhaus 'College'

The residents of Ehringhaus voted Thursday to organize into a college. E. Allen Shepard was elected president of the college.

Kenneth Starling is the academic lieutenant governor, Robert Cherry the social lieutenant governor, Scott Goodfellow the treasurer and Donald Streater the secretary.

Officers for the six houses were also elected.

Committee chairmen and the college paper will be named on Wednesday.

Anyone living in Ehringhaus who is interested in a position should apply in room 535 after 7:00 p.m.

Waller To Speak

Gary Waller, spokesman for the Students for a Democratic Society and a member of the Steering Committee of the Committee For Free Inquiry, will speak on the Speaker Ban issue and the Committee for Free Inquiry in the main social room of Morrison on Sunday at 8 p.m.

The meeting is open to the public.

Playmakers Tryouts

The Carolina Playmakers will hold tryouts for roles in their next production "The Importance of Being Earnest" beginning Tuesday at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Five men and four women are needed for the play which will run from Mar. 22-27.

All students, faculty and townspeople in the Chapel Hill-Durham area are invited to try out.

Thomas Wolfe Award

The Kappa chapter of Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity of North Carolina will present the second annual Thomas Wolfe Award for literary excellence and achievement in the latter half of May

Entries for the campus are due May 1.

The prize is a $100 and a silver trophy.

All undergraduates at North Carolina and UNC-G are eligible.

Davis Gets Fulbright

Robert L. Davis, an associate professor of mathematics, has been awarded a Fulbright senior visiting lectureship.

He will teach at the Faculty of Sciences of the University of Aix and Marseille at Nice, France, for the academic year 1966-67.

Man In The Arts

The Presbyterian Student Center will hold a one day symposium on the "Image of Man in the Arts" on Monday

(Continued on Page 6)

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Of Words And Deeds

Governor Dan K. Moore will likely refuse to come to the campus to talk about the Aptheker-Wilkinson speaker mess on the grounds that he has already explained his stand — at his news conference Thursday.

"My opposition to inviting Aptheker and Wilkinson to the University campus was based on my personal conviction that their appearance would not clearly serve the advantage of education, and that our University should not be exploited as a convenient outlet of discord and strife," he said.

Apparently he means Aptheker and Wilkinson would create "discord and strife" here. The governor can be assured of one thing — the "discord and strife" he has created by his heavy-handed role in this affair is infinitely greater than any "trouble" either of these speakers could cause by appearing here. These speakers would have come and gone, largely unnoticed by anyone, if the governor and trustees had not intervened by banning them and throwing the University into a defensive turmoil

"Aptheker is an avowed American Communist who has just returned from a visit to North Viet Nam where he gave support and encouragement to the Communists there who are killing our American servicemen every day. This American citizen made this trip in defiance of the U. S. State Department at a time when the President of the United States was making a valiant effort to win support in the free world for peace with honor," Moore said.

What possible relevance does this have to the spaker ban law or Aptheker's right to speak here? Is the governor trying to tell us that he intends to ban every obnoxious speaker — every man whose actions he condemns and views he abhors? When the speaker ban was amended, was it expanded to include men Dan K. Moore does not like?

If Aptheker broke any laws, the federal government will deal with him without any help from Moore and his own little methods of discrimination and "punishment."

"The University does need the freedom to host national or international scientific conferences which would be attended by Communist scientists, or to hear the ambassador or official representative of a Communist nation," he said.

If this is the only freedom the governor thinks the University needs, we strongly regret that he is the chairman of our board of trustees.

"When the (executive) committee appeared indecisive in dealing with the first invitations, the reaction from many members of the General Assembly was one of shock, surprise and dismay. Some legislators felt the lack of action was a breach of faith with the General Assembly. I did not attempt to dictate to the members of the executive committee at either meeting," Moore said.

This statement implies that Moore spoke out against the invitations in response to legislative dissatisfaction with trustee behavior. Perhaps he was not dictating, but Moore cannot deny that his actions affected the thinking of the trustees and influenced them at both meetings. Reports from several people who sat through those executive committee meetings confirm this.

"There has been no attempt to censor free speech at the University, no political interference in academic affairs and no attempt to dictate a speaker policy at the University," he said, just after implicating legislators in the decision.

Actions speak louder than hollow words.

Please accept our invitation, Governor. Despite your reassuring statements, we still have some questions.

The Daily Tar Heel

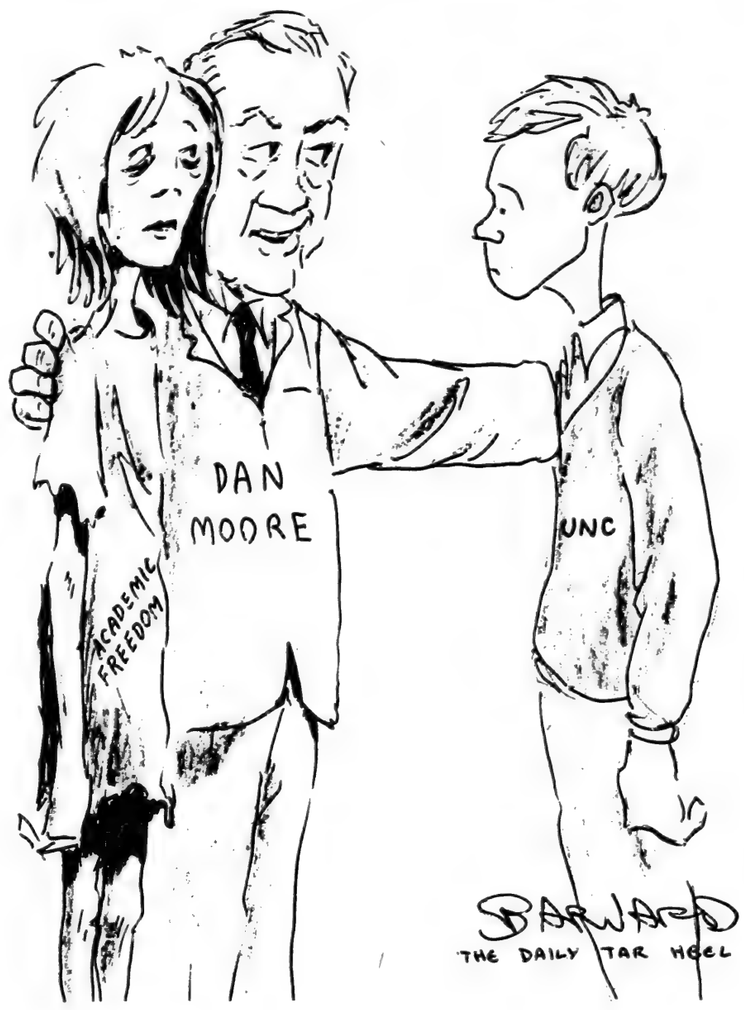
72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"But Son, I Am Taking Care Of Her!"



David Rothman

Banning The Ban Man

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. — The president of the student body has ruled that Governor Ban More cannot speak on the UNC campus.

"More's coming here," said the student body president is definitely out of the question. To my knowledge, he is not a Communist, hasn't pleaded the Fifth Amendment and does not seek the abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Therefore, his speaking at UNC would serve no legitimate purpose.

"However," the president continued, "in More's case, we are willing to take exception to the law that before speaking here, persons must have defied the U. S. State Department ban against travel to North Viet Nam.

"Meanwhile, I am asking the FBI to run a thorough security check on More. So far, I have not been impressed by his background. For instance, he has never participated in any 'Get out of Viet Nam' demonstrations.

"I am told that he hasn't demonstrated against the draft, and is not even a pacifist.

"Also," the student body president said, "More has not attended any leftist rallies on the Washington Monument grounds.

"We wonder, too, if he can be well-informed without being a member of Students for a Democratic Society, especially since he can't read about SDS meetings in the papers because they are held off record.

"And we are especially worried about his power over immature minds. Notice, for instance, how he has been able to influence groups like the state legislature and the board of trustees.

"Indeed, his appearance here might be interpreted as an insult to our men in Viet Nam. Only the other day, Ho Chi Minh was telling me how disappointed he was that More might be allowed to speak."

Informed of the student body president's decision, Secretary of State Mad Er offered several quotes from Voltaire. Then he said: "In view of the commitments of a great university, this is an unfortunate action. More's speaking at UNC would influence nobody. He is a very boring speaker. I know this for a fact. I have listened to him during his political campaigns."

Deputy Attorney General Mouth Noody declared: "I must protest this defeat of academic freedom; the decision is regrettable. Actions like my ruling against Beatle haircuts have established my standing as a great educator; but if More is denied his constitutional rights, I'll have to submit my resignation."

Letters From The Readers

AED Backs Drive

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Alpha Epsilon Delta, the International Premedical and Predental Honor Society would like to express its wholehearted support to the Carolina Blood Drive for our soldiers in Viet Nam on Feb. 16-17. We feel all Americans should be sympathetic with the blood drive, regardless of their personal opinions on the present conflict.

College students should be especially appreciative that they are not over in Viet Nam, fighting and dying. We should recognize the fact that the boys, many of whom are our friends, who are in Viet Nam are doing a job, whether they like it or not, that we could very well have to do, if it weren't for them.

Alpha Epsilon Delta had its own membership blood drive during November through January of this school year. A great number of the members participated, and it was our original intention to have the blood which we donated sent to Viet Nam. However, since this was before the present escalation of the conflict, we were told that our Viet Nam forces had sufficient supplies at that time.

Alpha Epsilon Delta was able to contribute indirectly to this cause, however. By directing that our donated blood be given gratis to any needy person at Memorial Hospital, we were able to help the UNC Blood Bank which had recently had its normal Red Cross blood supplies diverted to Viet Nam.

Although we would like to donate again, we are restricted by the standard two-month waiting period between donations; some of us who gave in November will do our best to help in the present blood drive. We regret that we cannot enter the competition for the organization having the greatest per centage of members donate.

In addition to expressing our support of the Blod Drive, AED would like to congratulate The Daily Tar Heel for organizing such a worthwhile and generous endeavor.

Sincerely,
Dwight W. Wait, III
President, N. C. Beta
Alpha Epsilon Delta

Poor Sportsmanship

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The pseudo - article entitled "Neat Clockwork, Man," in the Feb. 2 issue of the DTH, did little credit to the usually high quality of that paper's content.

Admittedly, there can be some doubt as to whether the winning shot in the Cavalier - UNC game came before time ran out, and Virginia fans will be the first to admit it, but the fact remains that it was not Bill Bibson or Jim Connelly or some partisan Wahoo who ruled the shot good, but the officials, the same officials, I might add, who probably cost Virginia at least half-a-dozen points with some far more questionable calls during the course of the game.

Mr. Rollins seems perfectly convinced of his contention that it was "humanly impossible" that the shot could have been within the time limit, and he presents, so often as to border on monotony, a detailed record of what he claims happened in those crucial moments. Well, having watched the game closely myself, I find his description of the events under the basket in those closing seconds closer to science fiction than factual reporting.

Mr. Rollins' imagination seems to have replaced his memory in recalling the game's end. (Perhaps it was that strenuous ride back to "the southern side of heaven" which dulled his recollection.)

All in all, this childish essay makes its author out to be something of an advanced cry-baby, whose real annoyance, deep down, is probably that his team could not play well enough to beat a team "that had no business being within 20 points of UNC." Well, that's the way the cookie crumbles, Bill. Sorry you couldn't take it in a more sportsmanlike manner. We wonder though, if you would have been so upset if it had been Larry Miller making the shot instead of Buddy Reams.

Yours truly,
Richard W. Hughes

Responsibility Or Rights?

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I would like to commend the D.T.H. on its editorial of Feb. 9. Warnings against such irresponsible actions as demonstrations are particularly important now. It is obvious that the responsible attitude of the students of this university for the last two years has, to a large part, contributed to the enviable position in which we now find ourselves.

Because of our past responsibility, the trustees have learned to respect the will of students on matters concerning them. Now we find ourselves slapped in the face by the trustees' decision, but still respected and responsible to the end.

In fact I suggest that responsibility is more important than our Constitutional rights, and that we should remain dignified and respectable no matter how many rights are stolen from us by tyrants anywhere.

I would like to clarify this point a little, however. This stand for responsibility may be confused concerning Viet Nam. It is obvious to all loyal and critical Americans, who really understand the issues, that the actions of our troops are completely responsible. While the bombing of villages, the use of gas, and the destruction of crops is necessary and respectable, demonstrations, teach-ins, and picket lines are obviously not.

Let us all dedicate ourselves now and in the hard times to come to responsible action, never letting anything deter us from the sacred course of moderatism.

Let me finish with the words of Rabindranath Tagor:

"Student: 'Slave, who put you into your chains?'

Slave: 'I put myself into my chains.'"

Jim Wilson
211 Church Street

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

A View From The Hill

Student-Faculty Dorm Idea Causes Shudders

By ARMISTEAD MAUPIN, JR.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — There is a "substantial argument" for "joint student-faculty residence halls" in the university of the future, concludes a pamphlet recently published by the Harvard Committee on Housing.

The report has prompted considerable discussion in academic circles throughout . . .

* *

The UNC Faculty Club was throbbing with the camraderie of concensus.

Professor Farquar, perched on the edge of an overstuffed armchair was getting to the Crux of the Matter. Everyone knew what he was going to say and everyone agreed with him.

"I'm not a prejudiced man," he emphasized. "Some of my best friends are students. We don't have a bit of trouble as long as they stay in their place."

Several Associate Professors nodded gravely and Farquar continued.

"We just don't like these things forced on us, that's all. You can't legislate human feelings. These things take time!"

"Bydam, you're right, Millard," declared Dr. Leonard Proudbottom springing to his feet and gesturing liberally with a soggy cigar. "If the Good Lord had wanted Professors and students to live together he wouldn't have made them different."

"You've got to look at these things practically," interjected a young Sociology instructor. "When a student moves into your neighborhood, the property values are placed in serious jeopardy."

It was Farquar's turn to speak again.

"It all gets back to those damned Northern Agitators," he suggested. "Those fuzzy Harvard professors don't understand the problem at all. What do they know about students? They don't have as many as we do. And the ones the do have are the exceptional cases — the highbrows and intellectuals. They'd be pretty damned surprised if they ever met a plain old common student like we have down here."

"Students have a number of good points, though," said Proudbottom charitably.

"They make good athletes," offered someone from the back.

"They've got natural rhythm," said the Sociology instructor. "I love to watch them sing and dance.

A Political Science professor leaned forward with a triumphant smirt on his face. He was going to tell a joke.

"You know, they say that if a Professor could ever be a student for just one Saturday night, he'd never want to be a Professor again."

His fellows chuckled appreciatively.

Farquar got back to the Crux of the Matter.

"By and large, they're a shiftless bunch," he said. "If you give them money, the first thing they do is spend it on whiskey. They live in shacks, but they all have a television set and a fancy car. They've got no sense of responsibility."

"That's because their skulls are one-fourth inch thicker than ours," explained the Sociology instructor.

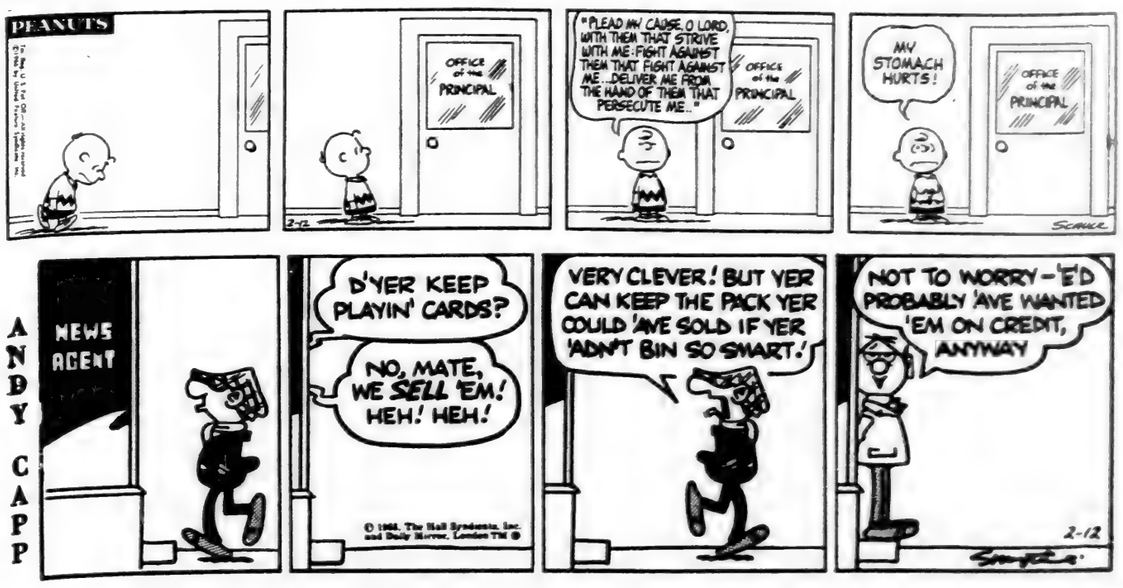
"They're a loyal folk," continued Farquar. "I'm mighty fond of the Old Family Retainers which I inherited from my grandfather. Why, those folks love this place so much that they just couldn't leave."

"I think we all agree on that, Millard," said the Sociology Instructor. "Students are fine as individuals. It's just the group which we sometimes object to.

"Let me ask you must one thing," shouted a grizzled Philosophy professor who had remained silent throughout the discussion "Just let me ask you one thing!"

The gathering became still at once. Farquar nodded reverently towards the venerable pedagogue, beckoning him to speak. The old man rose to his feet, captured the group with a steely glint, and proposed a question which settled the matter once and for all:

"Would you like your daughter to marry a student?"



Aptheker Controversy Brings Various Reactions

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I hope that it is possible for a word of caution to be thrown into the Aptheker fire. I think there could be a great danger in the students of this university choosing this ground to fight the important issue looming over the University's head.

Before discussing this danger I feel I should describe what has happened as I see it. The 1963 Legislature passed the speaker ban law.

This law, although patently unconstitutional, remained on the books for two and one-half years, and even then was only amended — not repealed. This action came after a long, hard, emotional fight by two large groups of people who were firmly committed to their respective points of view.

Therefore, I think it is evident that the final status of this issue has not been reached, and that the University has become a focal point of both the public and the legislature. At this time Jim McCorkel and the SDS did what I and many others believe to be a very stupid thing; i.e. invite Mr. Aptheker and friend.

The only reason I can see that they did this is because they are more concerned with free speech than they are with the practical relationship between the University and the people and legislature of North Carolina, and they feel sure the courts will back them up in their Constitutional view of this issue.

However, the SDS has forgotten the fact that this University cannot have academic freedom without the support of the people and the legislature nor can the University grow in any way without their support.

Secondly, it is clear that the University cannot constitutionally prevent its facilities from being used for a speech by a Communist. However, it is not clear whether they can constitutionally stop a student group from sponsoring such a spech, and it is also obvious that the University doesn't have to allow speeches not sponsored by the University or a sanctioned student group.

Therefore, the constitutional issue is not clear. I personally am not willing to gamble the future of the University on such a cloudy predictability of what the law is.

This is probably how the Governor and the trustees felt on Monday. They rightfully realized that free speech on this campus could not be won in a day, and that it was not diplomatic to start a battle with such a controversial person and at a time when the nerves of North Carolina were still raw over this issue.

In short, this battle can only be won with patience, and there can be great danger if we move too fast and push too hard. This is evidenced by one legislator who voted for amendment of the speaker ban. After viewing the Aptheker situation he is quoted as ready to put a more Constitutional version of the old law back on the books, and in addition was not too inclined to give UNC-CH sorely needed appropriations next session. This probably is the view of many others.

Therefore, it is my view that this is not the time to battle over this issue, for there is very little chance we can win, and too much can be lost if we don't.

Dennis Winner

★ ★ ★

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The Executive Committee of the University trustees has stabbed the University in the back. Their recent decision reveals the true depth of their committment to the principle of academic freedom, which only recently they bandied about with such self-righteous tenacity. They have come full-circle, dragging the idea of free speech through the muck of political expediency.

For this they will reap the wrath of a justly disturbed administration, and a betrayed faculty and student body, for years to come. They can have the satisfaction of knowing that they have completed, to a major degree, the job undertaken two years ago by the American Legion.

Governor Dan Moore can rest confident with the thought that he has finally, through his own will, destroyed a long and cherished tradition of the free and unquestioned right to inquire at Chapel Hill. That he is an alumnus of this University is but a dose of salt is a now reopened and critical wound.

Blaine A. Brownell
602C Hibbard Drive

★ ★ ★

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Several important misconceptions have arisen regarding events of the two student meetings, Monday noon and Tuesday night. Clarification of these points may help the student to better understand the particular events and the spirit of future action. I refer to the differing reactions to Wilson Clark's speeches Monday and Tuesday and the role of the "left" in Tuesday night's meeting.

The response to Clark's Monday "tirade against communism" (Barry Jacobs, DTH Wednesday Feb. 9) was, indeed, rude. The important point, however, is that Clark was allowed to speak. Such response as he received is not to be condoned, but we must realize that an audience cannot and need not sit paralyzed throughout a controversial presentation.

It is interesting to note that when Clark addressed the Tuesday night meeting, audience reaction was favorable. Those present were concerned with free speech and inquiry. That Clark chose to speak on the issue at hand helps explain the difference in audience response.

The Tuesday night meeting needs some further attention. Ed Freakley wrote of the moderating influence of Gulette, Waldman and Dickson. What he did not state is that this moderate influence was exerted from the very beginning (with the exception of Dickson who arrived late). There was never any question of the "left's" attempting to wrest control of the meeting from the moderates. SDS did initially sponsor the meeting but the sole intention of providing a catalyst for student action.

The greatest disagreement of the evening was over the proposed name of the nascent organization. The resulting votes completely splintered any ideological groups that might have been present. The only point of contention between the "left" and the moderates was due to a misunderstanding between one gentleman with a mustache and Paul Dickson as to the meaning of "demonstration."

This momentary impasse was overcome at the suggestion that discussion be directed toward "positive action." There was unanimous agreement on several suggestions, the most promising being the proposed meeting between Governor Moore, trustees and students.

The result of Tuesday night's meeting is a group which represents many on campus; at Friday's meeting this representation will be broadened. The purpose now is to show the Governor and trustees that the entire University is united and responsible. Thus, if the University can be shown worthy of trust, there seems to be no valid reason to deny this trust to the University.

Alan Patterson
118 Daniels Road

★ ★ ★

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

What are we to do about Communism?

Are we to allow free debate? If so, because of the nature of the college student and indeed because of the nature of man, there will always be a protagonist and an antagonist. One will attack communism while another will be forced to defend it.

Because of prevailing political conditions, because of our ideology, and because of what is expected of us the majority will support democracy and vociferously attack communism. The minority, under a stentorian barrage will, as exampled by the previous action of man, be reduced in number and its followers ridiculed.

However, the strong in the group, even though they were relegated by circumstance into that position, will fight back with tremendous elan. Not necessarily enthusiastic because of the idea but because of the skirmish. Resulting in, as has been quoted, "Controversy for controversy's sake."

In time the minority will become either a Gordian knot or completely dissipated. But considering the human mind, the latter seems highly unlikely. One can not coerce man into belief or disbelief. One must win the mind with tact and the least tactful maneuver in this case is brute force.

Brute force is the Ban. We will always have free debate, one can never ban or disallow that. But is this case, I ask the trustees to provide us with an antagonist so that we will not split our forces.

So I say — Let the communist speak — let him expound his views. And in doing so, give us something to attack. We cannot fight an enigma — a mystery — an invisible enemy. His scarcity instills fear. It is like trying to put a jig saw puzzle together while blind-folded.

Give us something that we can advance upon and strike down. We ourselves are making him the elusive fore. We fool ourselves into believing him strong.

Give us something to unite against. Not a decision that is bound to split us up in controversy, but an Aptheker, an enemy that we can see and on whom we can sharpen our weapons against communism.

William Jackson Blackley
Craige Dorm

★ ★ ★

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As an ex-U.N.C. student (M.A. '63), may I suggest a possible way to circumvent the Aptheker-Wilkinson ban imposed by Governor Moore and the trustees?

You might invite both men to appear on the platform, but have their speeches read by a student or faculty member. Although Aptheker and Wilkinson could not speak, their silent presence would underscore the hypocrisy of the ban.

This technique was, I believe, used at Ohio State several years ago with some effectiveness.

Yours sincerely,
Michael J. Yavenditti
Berkeley, Calif.

★ ★ ★

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In the present controversy over freedom of speech and academic freedom, maybe a voice from outside the U. S. could be of some interest.

I come from a small country with a long history of democracy, viz. Sweden. Swedes have for many hundred years feared their great eastern neighbor, Russia. Some 30-40 years ago parents not infrequently disciplined their children by making references to "the Russian" who might come and take the child. I mention this only as an illustration of what sentiments were prevailing among mnay people not long ago.

Today the situation is different. There are no longer such references to Russians as being crude and dangerous for disobedient children. Today the Russian pledge of peaceful co-existence between people adhering to different political systems or theories has entrenched pretty much to the grassroots and people listen to and evaluate by virtue of their deeds debating politicians ranging from conservatives to Communists on university campuses, on radio and TV and other platforms.

Why do I mention this? I understand that the speaker ban law as well as the present outgrowth of it (Aptheker being barred from speaking) is really an issue at heart of American democracy, a probestone if you will.

It opens up the conflict between freedom of speech and communism conceived of as capitalizing on that very freedom in the pursuit of its alleged goal of overthrowing the government. Hence, the most critical questions seem to be:

1. Is it true that communism is aiming at overthrowing the government of the U.S.?
2. If so, will the achievement of that goal be promoted or hampered by allowing free speech and the freedom of inquiry? (In fact, it appears as though freedom of speech though a constitutional right and basic to democracy has been ranked second in the controversy, subordinated to feelings of fear, anxiety, and national insecurity.)

1. Is it possible to answer the first question without really knowing what communism means? I don't think so. Communism seems to me to be vague and nebulous to the extend of not being usable as a concept but merely a word heavily loaded with negative, unpleasant feelings.

Therefore, unless we define the term it is apt to evoke feelings detrimental to any clear thought. Do we refer to communism as the theoretical framework originally designed or do we conceive of it as socialism or Marxism, or Leninism?

Or do we mean the political system as applied in Russia during the '30's or the system applied in the '60's or da we perhaps mean the Peiping branch of communism, or do we mean something else or perhaps a blend of all the kinds? I can very well imagine that it will make quite a difference if we mean the one or the other.

The present kind of Russian communism seems to me, and to lots of people in Europe, to be dependable in its proclamation of peaceful co-existence, whereas the present regime in China is overtly hostile towards the U. S. A.

(For reasons that should be easily understood if we try to place ourselves in the roles of the Chinese and examine the threats and resentments the U. S. are exerting upon China since many years because of the mere fact that she turned Communist. Justifiably, China may experience a deadly threat from the U.S.)

Only if we have rational grounds — not founded on irrational anxieties that psychiatrists perhaps would explain as stemming from our own repressed aggressions or some other internal sources — to conceive of communists as agents or conspirators paying allegiance to a hostile power aiming at conquering the U.S. (from within or from without), only then should I fear communism as defined by the aims of its proponents-conspirators.

2. As I do not fear communism because I do not equate communism and conspiracy, I can see no reason whatsoever for banning Communist speakers, whatever branch of communism the speaker may represent. But his staement may be pretty uninteresting for many Americans as I believe they hold an opposite view, may it be on rational or irrational grounds.

∴ Let us therefore try an answer to question 2 presupposing that the answer to question 1 is in the affirmative. I think I can do nothing better than quote Peter M. Blau in his Bureaucracy in Modern Society, page 107:

"To assure that the majority viewpoint remains supreme, a limitaion has to be imposed on the majority iself. It must not sifle the opposition of any minority, however small its numbers or extreme its views, for unless dissenting voices can be heard today, tomorrow's decisions will not be democratic ones. . . .

"Various attempts to suppress radical political opposition in the interest of national security illustrate how efficiency considerations (proper in a bureaucratic organization) intrude upon freedom of dissent."

Hence, if we pay allegiance to the values of democracy, and I suppose we all do, it would seem as though the cost of suppressing freedom of speech and its corollary the academic freedom would be much too high to be easily resorted to.

Sincerely,
Sven Lundstedt

CAROLINA

RICHARD BURTON
PETER O'TOOLE
HAL WALLIS'
BECKET
PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR
A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

WED., FEB. 16

STUDY IN SOUTHERN FRANCE

An undergraduate liberal-arts year in Aix-en-Provence

FRENCH LANGUAGE & LITERATURE
EUROPEAN STUDIES
ART & ART HISTORY
MEDITERRANEAN STUDIES

Classes in English and French satisfying American curriculum requirements.

Institute students enrolled at the University of Aix-Marseille, founded in 1409.

Students live in French homes.

Tuition, trans-Atlantic fares, room and board, about $1,950.

INSTITUTE FOR AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES
2 bis, rue du Bon-Pasteur
Aix-en-Provence, France

Television, Radio

WRAL (Ch. 5)

6:30 The Lone Ranger
7:00 FROM HELL IT CAME: Tod Andrews; MISSION OF THE SEAHAWK: Terence Morgan
9:30 Milton the Monster (C)
10:00 Porky Pig Show (C)
10:30 The Beatles (C)
11:00 Casper Cartoon Show
11:30 Magilla Gorilla (C)
12:00 Wide World of Sports
1:30 American Bandstand
2:30 Tennage Frolic
3:00 Bugs Bunny Show (C;
3:30 Pro Bowlers Tour
5:00 Championship Wrestling
6:00 Grand Ole Opry
6:30 The Wilburn Brothers
7:00 Porter Wagoner
7:30 Let's Go to he Races (C)
8:00 Donna Reed
8:30 Lawrence Welk (C)
9:30 Hollywood Palace (C)
10:30 Ozzie and Harriet (C)
11:00 ABC News
11:15 Dateline
11:25 Movie of the Week: DARBY'S RANGERS James Garner

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS —12:00 N — Featured this week: an auto demolition derby and the National Figure Skating Championships.

THE DONNA REED SHOW — 8:00 p.m. — Alex is annoyed when he must accept a hospital donation from Donna's former boyfriend.

HOLLYWOOD PALACE — 9:30 p.m. — Donald O'Connor guest hosts, with Edward G. Robinson, Roger Williams, and Jane Morgan and Paul Anka.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:30 Space Soldiers
7:30 Secret Squirrel (c)
8:00 Captain Kangaroo
9:00 Heckle & Jeckle (c)
9:30 Atom Ant (c)
10:00 Mighty Mouse (c)
10:30 Underdog c)
11:00 Tom and Jerry c)
11:30 Quick Draw McGraw
12:00 Sky King
1:00 Wild Kingdom
1:30 Sportsview
1:45 Vic Bubas
2:00 ACC Basketball Wake Forest vs S.C.
4:00 CBS Golf
5:00 Shell World of Golf (c)
6:00 Flipper c)
6:30 Danny Thomas c)
7:30 Jackie Gleason
8:30 The Man From UNCLE
9:30 Branded (c)
10:00 Gunsmoke
11:00 Three Star Final
11:15 Country Style

WUNC-FM 91.5 mc.)

6:00 Dinner Hour Music — Italian woodwind music by Vivaldi, Cambini, Rossini and Ponchielli

8:00 Masterworks — "Concert of Scandinavian Music" —Concerto in A Minor, lyric pieces and Peer Gynt Suites No. 1 and 2 by Greig; Swedish Rhapsody by Alfven; Symphony No. 7 by Sibelius.

NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

AT LAST! CHINA CAN BE SEEN!
The first major British film photographed in Communist China.
Felix Greene's CHINA!
This film contains some historical newsreel footage and material obtained from the China Film Corp. of Peking
In color
also First time in America THE PEKING SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Short, "PEKING SYMPHONY"
12:49, 2:15, 3:40, 5:07, 6:33, 8, 9:27

RIALTO THEATRE, Durham

DAILY CROSSWORD

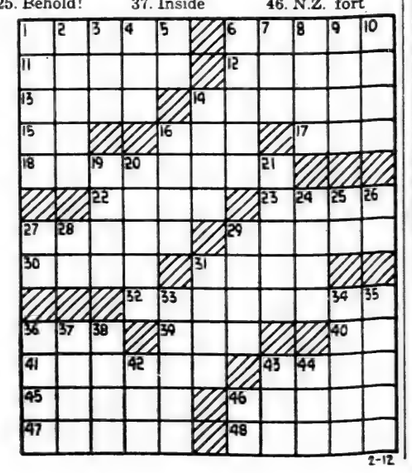
ACROSS

1. Discourage
6. Entrance to a mine
11. Call up
12. Wanner
13. Boy's nickname
14. Red, fleshy fruit
15. Conjunction
16. Back
17. Tennis term
18. Cyclonic storms
22. Breezy
23. Robust
27. To be
29. One kind of league
30. Soil
31. Skillful
32. Beginners
36. Pronoun
39. Phonebook abbreviation
40. Exclamation
41. Salary
43. Folio
45. Gamble
46. Thick soup
47. More painful
48. Separated

DOWN

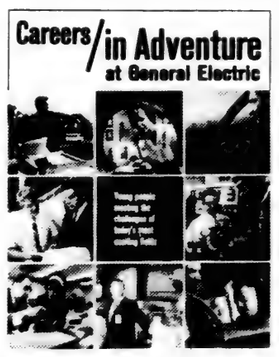
1. Station
2. All
3. Youngster
4. Piece out
5. Music note
6. Eating utensil
7. Kind of meat
8. Old-time exclamation
9. Entertain
10. Job
14. Weight system
16. Frontier post
19. Couple
20. Calls to attract attention
21. Change position
24. Poker stake
25. Behold!
26. Stammering sound
27. Mr. Sullivan
28. Greek letter
29. Simple
31. Man's nickname
33. More domesticated
34. O.K.!
35. Piece of paper
36. Boo
37. Inside
38. Wound mark
42. Turkish weight
43. Young animal
44. Constellation
46. N.Z. fort

Yesterday's Answer



2-12

Got brains?
Got drive?
Got imagination?
Got stamina?



TO: General Electric Company
570 Lexington Ave., Rm. 801-C
New York, N. Y. 10022

Gentlemen:
Show me what it's like to be one of the new generation of idea men at General Electric. Where I might work. What I'd do. What kind of people I'd work with.

Send me my free copy of the 20-page booklet "Careers in Adventure," filled with full-color photographs that show G.E.'s young men — and women — at work in today's most challenging fields: electronics, urban lighting and transit design, aerospace and computers, jet propulsion and nuclear power and all the rest.

Name _____ (PLEASE PRINT)
College or University _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Got a pencil?

Frankly, General Electric is after the cream of the 1966 crop of graduates.

Not just the top engineers. And not just the top scientists. But the outstanding graduates in other fields: economics, business, law, accounting and the liberal arts as well.

See for yourself what you could be doing next year. Fill out the coupon for a copy of our booklet "Careers in Adventure."

And talk to the man from G.E. during his next campus visit. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product
GENERAL ELECTRIC

North Carolina News Roundup

Four Die In Fire

CHINA GROVE (AP) — A mother and three step-children died of aphyxiation yesterday morning in a fire that ravaged their frame home.

Neighbors, attracted by the crackling of flames, pulled the bodies of two children from the home shortly before 7 a.m.

Firemen found the bodies of Mrs. Guy Ramsey, 31, and the other child in a front bedroom before the fire was extinguished.

Ramsey, a driver for Guignard Trucking Co. of Charlotte, was out of town on a trip. The dead children were his by a previous marriage.

Coroner Rufus Honeycutt identified the children as: Nelson Ray Ramsey, 11; Rebecca Ann Ramsey, 8; and Janice Marie Ramsey, 5.

Two children of Mrs. Ramsey by a previous marriage were at the home of Mrs. Ramsey's mother, Mrs. Kermit Frick.

Neither the coronoer nor town clerk H. A. Lentz, a member of the volunteer fire department in this town of 1,500 population eight miles southwest of Salisbury, was able to say how the fire began.

The seven-room building at 610 E. Ketchie St., was enveloped in blazes when firemen arrived, Lentz said. Firemen said the structure was warmed by a central oil heater.

Lentz said Mrs. Ramsey was in a kneeling position and that the youngest child was beside her, stretched out on a floor.

Charlotte Robber Escapes

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A gunman robbed a finance company in downtown Charlotte shortly before noon yesterday and escaped with $1,000.

Two emplioyees at the Provident Finance Co., Ellen Mayer and Lydia Pelt, were in the office when the man pulled the holdup. They estimated the amount of money taken and said another $200 was left in the cash register. They said the man was armed with a pistol.

The finance company's office is on North Tryon St., only three blocks from the center of the city's business district.

A similar holdup occurred last week at another downtown finance company.

Accused Man Bound Over

LEXINGTON (AP) — Samuel Sonny McIntosh Jr., 20, was bound over to Superior Court without bond yesterday on charges of slaying a Lexington storekeeper and former city councilman

Frank M. Hartzog, 56, was killed in his store Jan. 20. McIntosh, a furniture plant worker, was arrested a week later. He is expected to be tried in Superior Court in March.

Probable cause was found at a hearing in Davidson County Court Friday by Judge Jack Class.

Class heard two witnesses, Mrs. Hartzog and Dr. W. G. Smith, coroner and medical examiner.

Mrs. Hartzog said her husband was killed at the front of their store while she was working in the rear, behind a meat counter. She testified McIntosh then forced her at gunpoint. to hand over $397 from the cash register.

Mrs. Hartzog said he ordered her and a store employe, Mrs. Malcolm Thomason, into a meat cooler and escaped.

Moore Announces Grant

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore announced yesterday that the Appalachian Regional Commission has approved a grant of $103,200 to establish local development districts in North Carolina Appalachian counties.

"This project will enhance our efforts directed toward the total development of the state," said Moore. "Probably seven local districts will be formed in the 29-county area. It is hoped that by 1975 each district will have sound programs for development including a hospital, an airport, a library and vocational and higher education facilities."

The governor said the seven districts likely will be formed as follows:

— Cherokee, Graham, Swain, Clay, Macon, Jackson.
— Haywood, Madison, Buncombe, Henderson, Transylvania.
— Yancey, Mitchell, Avery, Watauga.
— McDowell, Polk, Rutherford.
Burke, Caldwell, Alexander.
— Ashe, Alleghany, Wilkes.
Surry, Stokes, Yadkin, Forsyth, Davie.

100th Club Joins

RALEIGH (AP) — One hundred. That's the magic number.

The 100th club has now joined the Tar Heel Junior Historian Association. It's chapter II of the Piedmont Pioneers of the Gillespie Park School in Greensboro.

The club officers are Warren Williams, president; Raymond Williams, vice president; Robert Russell, secretary; and Mike Shelton, treasurer. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sharpe is advisor.

There are three other chapters at Gillespie Park, but chapter II is club No. 100.

This is the first time, with North Carolina history taught only in one grade this year the seventh, that there have been as many as 100 clubs.

The purpose of the clubs are to encourage the study of local and state history by collecting old coins, Indian arrowheads, early farming implements, and similar artifacts; constructing models of wagons, canoes, and early houses; making maps; presenting historical dramas; taking field trips to local museums, cemeteries, and historic houses; writing local history articles; and discussing the community's past.

Members receive the Tar Heel Junior Historian, a quarterly magazine, a club charter, and membership cards. Each may purchase a club pin. The club may borrow slides and films from the North Carolina Museum of History in Raleigh.

Awards are made each year by the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association to winning member clubs. The winners are invited to Raleigh where they are honored guests at an awards luncheon. Winning entries are placed on display in the N. C. Museum of History.

The Junior Historian Movement is conducted through the Department of Archives and History and the Department of Public Instruction.

Growth has been steady. In 1960-61 there were 44 clubs. last year 72, this year more than 100.

Integration Trial Set

GREENSBORO (AP) — Federal Judge Eugene Gordon yesterday set a tentative trial date in May for the civil rights suit seeking to integrate teachers in Asheboro schools.

The Negro North Carolina Teachers Association filed suit last June seeking an injunction to prevent the dismissal of all the Negro teachers of Central High School in Asheboro.

The teachers were dismissed when the classes were integrated and consolidated into a building which was formerly an all-white school. The white teachers maintained their jobs.

Judge Gordon gave the plaintiffs until March 12 to complete acquisition of depositions. A final pre-trial conference will be held in April with the non-jury trial set for May.

The case is a test case as to whether school boards can dismiss all teachers in a school when it is consolidated with another school. Many Negro teachers have lost their jobs because of this.

Cong Stronghold Still A Headache

SAIGON — (AP) — Having captured the An Lao Valley, the Americans face the problem of what to do with it.

The 1st Air Cavalry Division, plus the U. S. Marines, the South Vietnamese and the South Koreans, pinched off An Lao, which is more than the French were ever able to do.

So the valley, 15 miles long and four miles wide, fell to the combined Allied effort, with all the Viet Cong disappearing to the West because that was the only direction they could find. Why the Allies allowed them such an escape route is something the strategists will be talking about.

Now the valley is in hands other than the Viet Cong's for the first time in possibly 20 years. That includes its hillside peaks.

The force that went after it totaled about four divisions. The Viet Cong heard early, left early. They battered three American special force teams which came in on early reconnaissance Jan. 25, and then skipped. That was their last strike.

The South Vietnamese went into the valley today and hauled out 750 refugees plus 150 tons of Viet Cong rice.

A Vietnamese spokesman said:

"We shall have to sit down there and do something about it."

An American spokesman said:

We are holding it until the Vietnamese do something about it."

The capture brought new civic problems for the government. Since the Allied troops poured in, about 3,400 refugees have descended on Bong Son, a dusty, relatively quiet village until it became the center of the allied offensive operations.

Abount 10,000 others are strung out along Highway 1 for 20 miles to the north, according to Capt. Fay White of Oakland, Calif., a member of a refugee control team at Bong Son.

Thirty tons of wheat have been distributed to the refugees and they are receiving medical attention and some temporary shelter. But their future remains clouded. A senior Vietnamese officer said that, unless Saigon provides more troops, the Allies will withdraw from the valley.

The Communists then would filter back and any refugees who returned to their homes would again come under Viet Cong control.

South Vietnamese areas often have been liberated, only to fall back into Viet Cong hands for lack of holding power. This time, the Americans made it plain they would stick around until local government was set up with regional and militia forces to back it up.

The valley itself is not too important.

The will of the South Vietnamese to hold territory is important.

The Viet Cong, in departing, probably think the South Vietnamese in due time will do nothing about the An Lao Valley—as in the past.

It remains to be seen if they are right.

Sooner or later American troops will leave the place. It is not their task to occupy. That is the task of the South Vietnamese government they came in to defend.

Parliament OK's Homosexuality Bill

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons voted yesterday to legalize homosexuality between consenting male adults in private. The bill, already approved by the House of Lords, thus passed its major parliamentary hurdle after a long campaign by social reformers.

The vote in the house was 164-107, approving the bill in principle. It still faces the possibility of amendments before a third and final reading.

The result was greeted by applause in the public gallery of the House, and the speaker had to call for order. The vote reversed a House verdict killing a similar bill only last May. It also supports a recommendation by the government - sponsored Wolfenden Committee on public morality nine years ago.

Home Secretary Roy Jenkins told the House before the balloting he and all the junior home office ministers would vote for the bill, thus giving it government support. He said the present law, dating back to Victorian times, was impossible to enforce.

"The great majority of homosexuals are not exhibitionist freaks, but ordinary citizens," Jenkins said. "Homosexuality is not a disease but is more in the nature of a grave disability for the individual leading to a great deal of loneliness, unhappiness, guilt and shame."

Voting for the bill cut across party lines. It was introduced by Humphry Berkeley, a Conservative and a Roman Catholic. Berkeley commented:

"Half the trouble we find ourselves in today is that we find sin and crime confused with each other at times, and one of the objects of this bill is to cease to make these offenses a crime, while recognizing them, as I think all Christians must, as being grave sins."

Estimates of the number of male homosexuals in Britain run as high as a million, a figure quoted frequently in the debate. The bill does not cover women, since lesbianism never has been illegal in modern Britain. It fixes the age of consent at 21, but raises the penalty for homosexuality with juveniles from three to five years in prison.

Opposition to the bill was largely based on the argument that it would relax the nation's moral standards. Sir Cyril Osborne, Conservative who led the opposition, told the House: "I am rather tired of democracy being made safe for the pimps, the prostitutes, the spivs, the pansies, and now the queers."

Moon Is Navigable

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) —The surface of the moon probably will be as easy to navigate as a good gravel road.

This is yesterday's revised interpretation of the fabulous Russian Luna 9 moon pictures at the U. S. Geological Survey, where they have undergone exhaustive analysis.

The original analysis has been altered considerably as more information has become available to lunar geologists at the moon mapping office here.

The first pictures intercepted by the British Jodrell Bank radio telescope appeared to show a landscape of practically solid lava. Moon scientists discovered the British reception had a 2.5 distortion factor.

Photos released by the Russians show a much smoother surface.

"Win Both Wars"

Humphrey Sees Victory In Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Friday forecast eventual victory over both the Communists and poverty, disease and illiteracy in South Viet Nam.

"The American people ought to know there are two wars going on here and both of these struggles are being won," Humphrey told newsmen.

Making this pronouncement after a heavily guarded, six-hour tour of four Vietnamese self-help porjects, he said successful completition of the dual campaign will take time. He cautioned against setting any deadline, saying that would be wrong.

Humphrey planned to spend a full day in the field Saturday, mostly visiting U. S. troops. He will fly Sunday to Bangkok, Thailand, the next stop on an Asian tour to fill in various nations on Vietnamese developments.

Thailand, Laos, Pakistan, India, Australia and New Zealand are on the itinerary announced by the White House. The Philippines Foreign Secretary, Narciso Ramos, said Humphrey will also stop in Manila for a few hours Feb. 19.

The tropic sun was hot and the Vice President's face was burned on his tour of the four self-help projects, all in the Saigon area. These are examples of the kind of social-economic betterment programs the Saigon government now is pushing with the strong support of President Johnson.

Although he appeared not to notice it, Humphrey was under a close security watch by soldiers with cocked weapons and armed helicopters, called gunships, that crisscrossed the sky overhead. No Viet Cong showed up.

Humphrey traveled by helicopter and car to a recently pacified village now called New Prosperity, a student-run slum rehabilitation project, a housing development and an agricultural experiment station. He described himself as very encouraged by what he had seen.

In between, he paid a call on the Saigon headquarters of the national police. There, he exchanged scout salutes with children of policemen lined up in their Boy and Girl Scout uniforms to welcome him.

In fact, the children seemed to delight him most wherever he went. At the pacified village, about five miles south of Saigon, he became so intrigued with the tots in a kindergarten class that his aides had difficulty pulling him away.

3 OF 4 SURVIVE

Three out of four heart attack victims now survive their first heart attack and go back to their job, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

if she doesn't give it to you...
—get it yourself!

JADE EAST®

Cologne, 6 oz., $4.50
After Shave, 6 oz., $3.50
Deodorant Stick, $1.75
Buddha Cologne Gift Package, 12 oz., $8.50
Spray Cologne, $3.50
Buddha Soap Gift Set, $4.00
Cologne, 4 oz., $3.00
After Shave, 4 oz., $2.50

WANT ADS

WANTED — PERSON TO DO translations from Spanish into English. Call 929-5069 after 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED TO SHARE: 4 BED room house; private bedrooms, furnished; with living and dining room. $30.00 per month. Come by 31 Barclay Rd. after 5 o'clock.

Senate Mail Says

Americans Oppose Viet Nam Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mail reaching chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is reported running about 30 to 1 against escalation of the war in Viet Nam.

And the correspondents are reported also to be favoring, by about the same ratio, the committee's open hearings into President Johnson's policy in Southeast Asia.

A memo prepared for Fulbright by his staff showed that up to last Tuesday some 5,000 had expressed approval of the Arkansas Senator's opposition to escalation of the conflict and favored the hearings. The memo added:

"Those opposed have increased to 170 mainly because of the hearings. The writers mainly object either because of the fact they are being held at all, or to the manner in which they are being conducted."

Fulbright concedes it is likely that the his mail normally would come most heavily from those who support his course rather than from critics. And before the hearings were recessed Thursday for the weekend, Fulbright acknowledged the opposition to hearings this way:

"There has been some criticism of the committee for holding hearings at all. It has been said that we are giving aid and comfort to our enemies."

Thursday's principal witness, former diplomat George F. Kennan, told the committee that while public debate "may be undesirable in some respects . . . I think it is far more important that this debate take place, even though it has undesirable side effects, than that we move into such realms of danger without it."

A sampling of letters read by a reporter—with a proviso that names of writers not be used—included one from a man who said he had held "a recent long conversation with President Ho Chi Minh" of North Viet Nam and had talked with other North Vietnamese and reached this conclusion:

"They are totally determined to continue the struggle until the American- military presence is removed from Viet Nam."

One woman in Cleveland was explicit in suggesting groundwork for future hearings:

"Please conduct any further Viet Nam inquiry in private, or between 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

"Interference of (sic) regular daytime television programs is losing you the support and the votes of housewives."

One letter called President Johnson "a dangerous man who has done more to blacken" the image of the United States "and to undermine the democratic process than any President who preceded him."

A couple urged that Fulbright insist that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara testify at public hearings despite his rejection of an invitation to do so.

"Certainly if American boys can die in South Viet Nam McNamara should explain in public," said one.

HST In Ceremonies

Truman Lays Cornerstone

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) —Former President Harry S. Truman ceremoniously accepted new Israeli coins worth about 66 cents yesterday then went out into 34 degree weather to slap a dab of mortar on the cornerstone of the new Independence Post Office.

He was posing for pictures with a card on which the coins were mounted when someone noted it was upside down.

"With the Hebrew people everything is written backward," quipped Truman. "It really doesn't matter whether it's upside down or sideways."

Hebrew script is read from right to left.

Truman was the first American to receive the proof-like sets of Israel's 1966 coinage. The sets include six coins ranging from one agora to one Lira.

A reporter commented that the set was worth 66 cents.

"I haven't got 66 cents," Truman said.

Books for Fluttering Hearts

You can find them at the Intimate — everything from the Rubaiyat to Cardiovascular Dynamics.

If your palpitations are caused by fluttering eyelashes, chum, you need to make a visit to our Valentine's Gift Book display.

There you'll find the best of the collectins of love poems, sonnets and sentimental fooferaw, at prices from only $1.00 up. And be sure to have the clerk do it up for you in our Intimate Valentine's wrappings.

The condition, we hear, is incurable, so why fight it? Just pass it on.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Air Force Fights Meningitis Outbreak

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)— Military authorities moved swiftly yesterday to confine outbreaks of spinal meningitis in such widely dispersed installations as Lackland Air Force Base here, Ft. Polk, La., Ft. Gordon, Ga., and Ft. Knox, Ky.

Two victims died this week and a survey showed at least 12 were in hospitals.

One death occurred among basic trainees at Lackland Thursday night. A Ft. Gordon soldier died Wednesday.

Military bases reported four meningitis patients at Lackland, three at Ft. Gordon, five at Ft. Polk and 13 at Ft. Knox.

This virulent type incubates in about 10 days during which the victim often does not feel ill.

The infection, entering through the nose and mouth, goes directly to the brain area without the general illness suffered from other forms of meningitis.

The incidence compared with three weeks ago when the army reported 28 cases among soldiers and their dependents during the first three weeks of the year. No reports were made then by other service branches.

Some 16,000 air force trainees at Lackland went into semi-isolation following Slagle's death.

About 5,000 men graduated from basic training at Lackland and went on to other bases in the last 10 days. They went to bases at Denver, Colo., Champaign, Ill., Biloxi, Miss., Wichita Falls, Tex., and Amarillo, Tex. The bases were alerted.

Lackland medical officers ordered all indoor assemblies of basic airmen halted. This led to a close-down of practically all recreational facilities. Physical training was curtailed.

Weekend passes were cancelled.

Civilian employes of the base were allowed to come and go as usual.

At Ft. Gordon, "sneeze sheets" were hung between cots to curb the spreak of germs.

The Air Force conducts all its basic training at Lackland.

More than 30,000 troops are stationed at Ft. Gordon, many of them being trained for Viet Nam duty.

Lt. Col. Elmer V. Dahl, commander of the Air Force Epidemiological Laboratory here, said the breakout of the disease cannot be described as an epidemic.

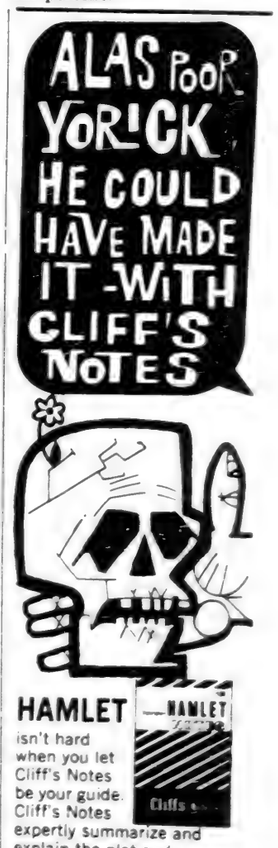
He ordered training limited to groups of flight size, about 55 men, and that each group is to eat apart from others.

The organism, Col. Dahl said, is present in the nasal passages of about one in every six persons.

When you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz™

NoDoz Keep Alert Tablets fight off the hazy, lazy feelings of mental sluggishness. NoDoz helps restore your natural mental vitality...helps quicken physical reactions. You become more naturally alert to people and conditions around you. Yet NoDoz is as safe as coffee. Anytime ...when you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.

SAFE AS COFFEE



HAMLET isn't hard when you let Cliff's Notes be your guide. Cliff's Notes expertly summarize and explain the plot and characters of more than 125 major plays and novels—including Shakespeare's works. Improve your understanding—and your grades. Call on Cliff's Notes for help in any literature course.

125 Titles in all—among them these favorites:

Hamlet • Macbeth • Scarlet Letter • Tale of Two Cities • Moby Dick • Return of the Native • The Odyssey • Julius Caesar • Crime and Punishment • The Iliad • Great Expectations • Huckleberry Finn • King Henry IV Part I • Wuthering Heights • King Lear • Pride and Prejudice • Lord Jim • Othello • Gulliver's Travels • Lord of the Flies

$1 at your bookseller or write:

Cliff's Notes

CLIFF'S NOTES, INC
Bethany Station, Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

Fauntleroy

I received a letter yesterday from some big wheel in CBS. It gave me quite a kick so I've decided to share it with you.

"To Mr. Fauntleroy,

As you know ABC has hit the big time with the Batman show. Everyone is watching it. My staff has been working for weeks trying to come up with a new show to be seen during the same time period on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Everyone in the nation seems to be watching the caped crusader. College students, the kind of men who read Playboy, housewives, and businessmen — they all eat it up. The situation is disastrous. People are no longer interested in a family show like Lassie. It became clear to us that Batman had to be destroyed.

First, we began spreading rumors around. We hinted that a grown man flying around in tights with a young boy (who was also clearly light on his feet) might be un-American. Our rumors got the show banned from Chicago. But they also caused countless suspicious characters to flock to their sets.

Well, we've finally come up with a solution. We need a show about a glamorous millionaire who is without fault. In short, Mr. Fauntleroy, we want you. We know that your strength and manliness would flutter the hearts of the housewives and make Batman and Robin look like pansies.

Your omnipotence, humility, and fame make you a natural. The plot of a show will be in (please excuse the expression) soap opera form. Here is a sample from the first script:

'Loud organ music is heard. A misunderstood young beauty is in tears talking to her delinquent boyfriend.

GIRL: John, I want to love you but I can't. I can't bring myself to marry you. (She sobs)

BOY: Oh Marsha. Why can't you say yes.

GIRL: Well, for a starter you have bad breath. You have dandruff and you're always covered with perspiration. Your pimples are unsightly and my parents are always complaining about the screeching noise made from the tires of your motorcycle. How can I possibly get wedded up to such a grundy twit. (The girl exits. The boy stands alone before the camera.)

BOY: Marsha's right. I must change. I must call the caped crusader of teenage love. I must ask for the help of the king of happiness and the wisest man in the world. FAUNTLEROY. COME TO MY RESCUE.

The organ grinds to a peak as FAUNTLEROY appears. He wears a halo, a golden crown and a leopard-skin robe. The hero is lowered from the heavens and speaks to the boy.

FAUNTLEROY: John, I understand your problem and I think I can help you. Our sponsors make products that will transform you to a handsome prince. Listerine will clear up your bad breath. For your dandruff there's nothing like Head and Shoulders. Right Guard will strangle your sweet nodes and Good Year Tires really grip the road.

BOY: Oh thank you, thank you, Mr. FAUNTLEROY.

THE ANNOUNCED: Will John get Marsha? Will Faunt's advice be heeded. Tune in to the next episode in the continuing story of "The FAUNTLEROY Show."

If you like the script, Mr. Fauntleroy, please get in touch with me. We'll pay any price.

Your adoring servant,
J. B. Tweedly"

Well ballfans, there's the letter. The script may not be much but I've always had a hankering to launch into the entertainment field. I'd appreciate you writing letters to this paper giving me your advice.

In the meantime, I'm sticking to my old job as the basketball prophet supreme. And here are this week's picks:

SOUTH CAROLINA over WAKE FOREST
DUKE over VIRGINIA
WEST VIRGINIA over MARYLAND
N. C. STATE over GEORGIA TECH
NORTH CAROLINA over VIRGINIA TECH

Tar Heels Host Gobblers Tonight

UNC Frosh Face Once—Beaten Goblets

Tar Babies Meet Big Test Tonight

Virginia Tech's once-beaten Goblets challenge the Tar Babies' unbeaten string at 6 p.m. in Carmichael Auditorium tonight, and when the air becomes filled with such high-muckety-mucks as unbeatens, more than just air is liable to hit the fan.

Coach Charlie Moyer's Goblets, who had three games postponed when the snows came, are riding a 7-1 season's record which has been sparked by the winning of their first six games.

The only team to have beaten Tech is Virginia's Wahoos, whom UNC trounced by 114-77. But Moyer says not to be misled by that game.

"Virginia beat us, 82-81," he says, "but we blew a 15-point lead just after halftime. That has been our only real let-down of the year, but it was a costly one. We played pretty good against a Wake Forest team which shot real well last night (Thursday) so I think we've snapped back." Tech beat the Deaclets, 81-61.

Moyer, whose team beat UVA by 84-73 in an earlier meeting in Blacksburg, expresses great respect — and hope of a win when talking about Carolina's high-riding frosh.

"I scouted several of the boys who play at Carolina, so I know that on the strength of those boys alone, they are a strong club. I look at the game in two ways; first, I know it will give our freshmen good experience to play against a team of their calibre; and second, we see it as a big challenge for us to prove that we are as good as we have shown against other teams.

"We have hopes of beating them," he added.

The Techbabes beat Duke (84-80) in the season's opener, and rolled over Pete Maravich's Southwood team by 86-69. Thursday, they beat Wake Forest, 81-61.

Ken Talley (6-6, 220) paces the team in rebounds with an average of 13.9 per game, more than any UNC player. He averages 15.7 points, but there are two above him in the scoring tabs.

Chris Ellis (6-4, 185) is the point leader, averaging 18.1 from his guard position. Moyer says of Ellis: "He is also an exceptional playmaker, averaging about five assists along with his scoring, and he's our best defensive player."

Ron Wagner (6-5, 200) is a 17.7 scorer and an 11.3 rebounder, and Stan Kerrick (6-3, 180) goes at the other forward with 11.7 points and 10.2 rebounds.

"HEY, COACH! WHAT'S A 'TURKEY SHOOT'?"

Intramural Show

Intramural reporter Bill Hass will provide Daily Tar Heel sports with a new feature in Sunday's edition.

Hass will have a weekly intramural column with highlights and features from the intramural world. Watch for it.

Tech Brings Tall Rebounding Team

By JIM COGHILL
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

Virginia Tech, fresh from a 110-85 win over Wake Forest, will invade Carmichael Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m.

The Gobblers who are sparked by John Wetzel and Bob King bring a 15-4 record to UNC and a team noted for its fast-break.

The Tar Heels will have much to contend with especially in the rebounding circles. In the game against Wake, Coach Howard Shannon's boys outrebounded the Deacons 51-31 controlling the boards most of the evening.

Wetzel, a 6-4 forward, is averaging 17.5 points per contest with teammate King, a 6-10 1-2 center, hitting 14.4 points per game.

Other men who will see action tonight include Ted Ware (14.1), night include Ted Ware 14.1), Ron Perry (11.8) and Buddy Martin (6.0).

Dean Smith carries his Tar Heel team into this contest with a 12-7 over-all record and 5-4 in conference play.

Both the Tar Heels and the Gobblers have met common foes in the form of Duke, Clemson, Wake Forest and Virginia. Virginia Tech has beat Clemson twice, Wake once and lost to Duke and Virginia. Carolina has lost to Clemson, Duke and Virginia and beat Wake Forest.

On a comparative basis the Gobblers could have a slight edge, but Carolina is at home and this seems to make a difference with the Dean Smith men.

North Carolina will carry a .535 field goal shooting percentage into tonight's game and Virginia Tech .463, but the range is not quite as great in the foul shooting with UNC supporting a .717 average and Tech .711.

Bobby Lewis goes into this evening's game with 28.7 points per contest and is followed by teammate Larry Miller with 22.8. Another member scoring in the double figures is Tom Gauntlett who is averaging over 10 points per game.

The series record now stands with 36 wins for UNC and nine for Tech.

Matmen Meet Devils Today

The wrestlers of Coach Sam Barnes seek to pull themselves above the break-even mark this afternoon at two o'clock in Carmichael Auditorium against the Blue Devils of Duke.

In addition, they will be seeking to break a three match losing streak. Consecutive losses to N. C. State, Appalachian and West Virginia have dropped the UNC record to four wins and four defeats.

The Duke varsity has suffered an even more discouraging fate this season. The Blue Devils have been able to win only one of five matches.

The preliminary to the varsity encounter will match a pair of fine frosh outfits. The frosh match will begin at 2 p.m. with the varsity immediately following.

The frosh will be after their sixth victory of the year against only one defeat.

Seeing action for the frosh will be Bill Boardfoot, George Johnson, Steve Leon, Steve Allen, Keith Lyons, Bob Steele, Leigh Fergerson, Phil Wanzer and Hank Smith.

Spring Football Practice Will Begin February 21

By BOB QUINCY

Thirty-one lettermen, the largest group of experienced players in some 15 seasons, will report to Coach Jim Hickey of North Carolina when spring football drills begin here on Feb. 21.

Now going through a conditioning period on their own, prospective squadmen have been told to "be ready to hit" on the first day. Practice will continue through March 24, with a "windup" game two days later.

"Our practices are scheduled for Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday for a period of five weeks," said Hickey. "Of course, weather conditions will dictate how closely we follow the schedule."

The coach and his staff will find the entire starting backfield of 1965 available for duty. It consists of Danny Talbott as quarterback, David Riggs and Bob Hume at halves and Tom Lampman at full.

Fellow to watch with ideas of breaking into the veteran stronghold is Dick Wesolowski, a halfback from Canada who led the freshman team to an unbeaten season. Wesolowski gained 582 yards on 110 carries, an average of 5.3 per play.

"Wesolowski will be observed closely," said Hickey, "In fact, there are some real outstanding prospects from the yearling squad. I think the amount of success we have in 1966 will be keyed to how much our rising sophomores can help us."

Two problem areas will be analyzed at length by the coaching staff. They seek (1) an improved pass defense, and (2) a harder-hitter offensive line.

Gone is punter Bill Edwards, who also played defensive safety. Edwards averaged nearly 40 yards per boot over a three-year period. Hickey said Danny Talbott will probably add punting duties to his other activities.

"Talbott punted for us some in late season," said Hickey. "He will be as good as any in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He might have kicked more often, but we didn't want to concern him with too many chores.

"Other than Talbott, we have three quarterbacks who should really stage a battle for rights to play. They are Jeff Beaver, Tim Karrs and Gayle Bomar. All of these boys have talent and leadership."

Karrs, who was held out last season, may also see duty as a linebacker. He weights 215 pounds. Notes Hickey: "Karrs can play almost any position. We've got to play him somewhere."

Ed Stringer, who made ALL-ACC as an offensive center, is gone. Greg Battistello, who logged almost as much playing time, returns. The end position will miss John Atherton, who has highly regarded. Joe Churchill, a scrappy tackle, and Charlie Davis, swift guard, are among the missing.

Among the rushers, only Max Chapman is an absentee. He gained 415 yards, but gave up his starter's role to Riggs in mid-season. Lampman led all ball toters with 444 yards.

Carolina's schedule for 1966 pulls no punches. It includes Kentucky, N. C. State, Michigan, Notre Dame, Wake Forest, Georgia, Clemson, Air Force, Duke and Virginia.

Carolina Runs In Big Six Track Meet This Afternoon

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina is host today to the annual Big Six track meet in the Tin Can. The entries are Carolina, Duke, N. C. State, Wake Forest, Davidson, and North Carolina College.

The highlights of the meet should be in the 60-yard dash, mile relay, and broad jump. In these events North Carolina College has some of the finest performers in the world.

Edwin Roberts, who placed third in the 200 meters at Tokyo, will run the dash against Carolina's speedster Jon Levin, who recorded a 6.2 in the sixty at the VMI Relays. In the broad jump, Norman Tate of NCC should set an indoor record for the Tin Can. In his first meet of the season in Los Angeles, Tate leaped over 26 feet and missed by an inch of eclipsing Ralph Boston's world record indoors.

Both of these elite trackmen are part of the strong N. C. College mile relay which last year won the New York Milrose Games and Knights of Columbus Meet in Boston.

Carolina cannot be counted out of the meet however. The team has gained experience and more depth. Last year the thinclads tied North Carolina College in their initial encounter.

In the field events, Carolina and Duke should pick up valuable points. Carolina's Lester Hyder and Bill Busby have been improving every meet and give the thinclads more depth in this event. In the shot put, Duke has the conference's best in Rod Stewart, who set a record in the shot at VMI a week ago. Carolina's Felix Alley and Ron Short have the fifty foot range in sight and could finish close to Stewart.

Gary Iverson, jumped 22'6" last week in the broad jump. This effort was his second best ever. It will be difficult for him to beat the experienced Tate, but he had a good chance of taking second ahead of Duke's Dunaway and State's Steve Corn.

The high jump has been greatly strengthened with the return of Tilden Bridges. Bridges finished in a tie for second place at VMI. In previous meets Carolina has lost valuable points in this event, but today the tide may change.

The running events should bring an afternoon of exciting and closely contested races. Carolina's hurdlers showed that they were not as bad as some said. At VMI they finished second in the shuttle relay averaging 8.0 a leg. They will have no easy chore since N. C. College's Paul Wilson is an exceptional hurdler who has been up against the finest competition in the nation this year and has fared well. State also has a fine hurdler in Captain Steve Corn, who won the Big Four earlier this season.

The 60-yard dash pits Carolina's Jon Levin against Olympian Edwin Roberts, and Duke's Dave Dunaway In this race Levin will most likely have to better his fine 6.2 — and may just do it.

The mile run has become a strong event for Carolina as a result of Sophomore Mike Williams. At VMI, Williams' distance coach Boyd Newman felt he could have run around 4:15 if the lap official had not misfired the final lap gun. William's strongest competition will probably be from Dukes' Zodda and Guy.

The 1000 yard run has Ed Daw, Carolina's undefeated junior in the 600, pitted against Duke's Stewart. N. C. College will most likely have a fine runner entered in this event since they are consistently strong in the middle distances. The two mile run features Carolina's co-captain Jim Meade and Duke's soph sensation Paul Rogers.

The mile relay is the last event on the agenda and should be a thriller. Both Carolina and N. C. State have fine quartets.

This meet has the entrees to be one of the best in years at Carolina. It is not everyday that such a field of top-flight performers are gathered together.

Sports Calendar

Big Six Track Meet	2 p.m.
Wrestling-Duke	4 p.m.
UNC Frosh-Tech	6 p.m.
UNC-Varsity-Tech	8 p.m.

'Buzzard, Slinky Wizard'- 'Who's Who' For Tar Heels

By BOB ORR

"The Buzzard" brings the ball down court. He passes off to "The Stick," who feeds "The Wizard" for two. "Slinky" and Toad" shout encouragement from the bench and the team is on the go-go.

A cartoon? A comic strip? A Batman innovation?

No, it's just the inside word on "Who's Who" when the Tar Heel basketball team takes the court. Everybody has to have a nickname — and Coach Dean Smith's North Carolina hoopsters definitely have imaginative monikers.

Long, tall and lean Bob Bennett is known as "The Stick." The big center, despite the nickname, has "stuck" some good shots through the hoop this year. Starting guard Tom Gauntlett is called "Tweety." No one said where he got it or how, but who dares — he plays a sound game.

Star sophomore Larry Miller is tagged "Rip." If you saw him bend the basket during the pregame warm-up against Duke, you know why. "The Buzzard" is senior guard John Yokley. Word is that it's a long, long story about how he got the name — and you wouldn't really be interested.

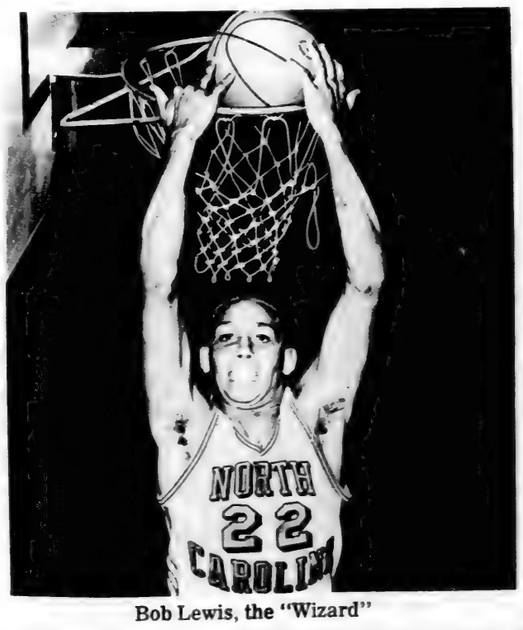
Here's a toughy. Who is "The Wizard"? Opponents, fans, and most anyone who has seen him play, agree that Bob Lewis has an amazing bag of tricks when it comes to scoring. Alacaa—zamm!! That 28-point scoring average proves it.

The reserves have some quaint nicknames, too. Big Mark Mirken is known as "Bagel." Jim Smithwick has two according to our sources: "The Flap" because of his cowlick and "Swifty" because of his lightning speed. Who's "Mo-Mo"? Guard Donny Moe, of course.

"Slinky" is reserve forward Jim Frye. Teammates say he resembles "a slinky toy" when he walks up and down stairs. Sidekick Greg Campbell is called "Blimp" or "Toad." The word is that for a little fellow he manages to keep his weight up.

Sophomore Dickson Gribble is called "Dennis the Menace." It's said he resembles the reknown youngster — all 6-6 of him. Jim Moore — he's "The Floater." Mike Smith, just eligible, is known as "Beep-Beep" or "The Roadrunner."

The players take their nicknames in good stride. Team spirit is excellent — but with "The Buzzard," "The Wizard," "Tweety," "Rip," "The Stick" working together, it's no surprise!



Bob Lewis, the "Wizard"

KA Annihilates Phi Delt As Travis Tosses In 37

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

KA Blue annihilated Phi Delt Orange in intramural basketball on Thursday, 87-14, with Billy Travis tossing in 37 points. Warren Wills had 19 points, Bruce Barraban 12 and Cliff Cutler 11 for the winners.

Some ridiculous scores were run up, including Med School Blue's 91-38 triumph over Law I Red. Walt Avery had 19 points, Don McQueen 15, Tom Koontz 13, Stu Ellington 13, Dick Fleming 12 and John Currie 11 for the doctors.

Balanced scoring also marked the Beta Stilts' 72-23 waltz over Pi Lamb I. Inderfurth was high man with 17, while Van Leuvan had 16, Ballard 12, Harrell 11 and Wood 10 for the Betas.

Kappa Sig Green edged Chi Psi Gold, 43-41 Woody Sobol's 15 points and Charlie Coble's 11 paced the victors. Bill Baynard for 22 for Chi Psi.

The NROTC Neseps ran the Biochemistry Blanks off the court, 51-9. Hill's 19 points and Marshall's 10 led Navy. Lahti scorched the nets for four points to pace the Blanks.

ATO I got 23 points from Teddy DuBose and 21 from George Teneille in a 71-18 pasting of the TEP Flops. Corbelt added 15 and Woodard 10.

DKE Blue ripped Chi Psi Purple, 65-34, behind the 19 points of Steward and White. Willis chipped in with 14 and Egbert 11.

R. Leder's 23 points paced Pi Lam II over the ZBT Zooboys, 62-24.

DU Blue III received 21 points from Guy Smith, 14 from Joe Benton and 13 from Mike Babson in a 73-29 rout of PiKA Blue.

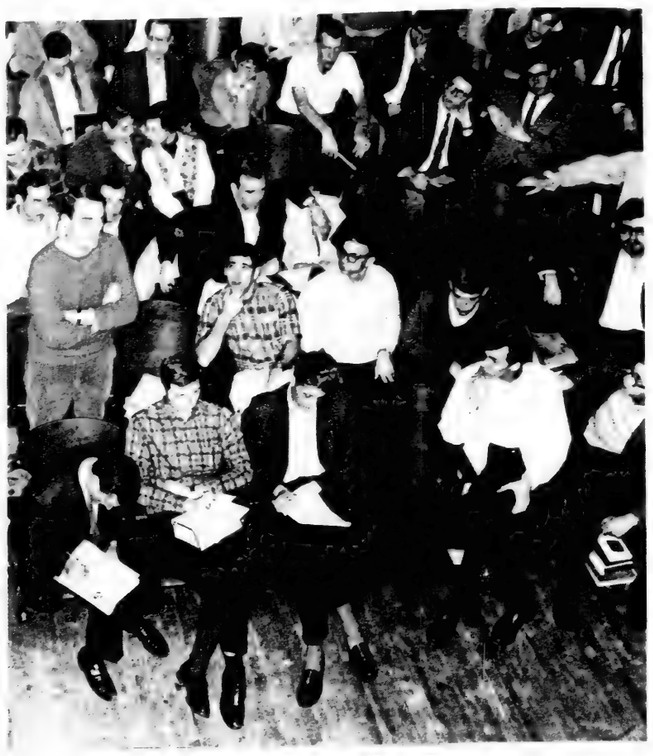
Sigma Chi downed AK Psi, 55-21, with Sherrill scoring 18 points. Williard added 12 and Koontz 10 for the Sigma Chi's.

Frank Gibbs threw in 19 points as the Fellowship of Christian Athletes won over Law I White, 63-36. Bob Sutton added 12 more. Voorhees scored 19 for the Lawmen in a vain effort.

Other scores: Chi Phi Red 53'KA Gold II 19; Beta Bounders 44, Zeta Psi II 34; Phi Kap Sig Defenders 39, DKE Green 19; Phillips Eulers 35, NROTC Sea Dogs 29; Chi Psi Red 44, Phi Delt Red 40; DKE Red 39, Phi Kap Sig Studs 30.

Yesterday's Meeting: Students Want Answers

Issues Explained . . .



Suggestions Heard . . .

Votes Taken . . .

Consensus Reached

Text Of Committee Letter

This is the text of the letter to Moore:

"The Committee for Free Inquiry is a non-partisan, non-political organization which is writing this letter for the sole purpose of learning why the executive committee of the board of trustees has thought fit to bar controversial speakers from state-supported campuses. The Committee for Free Inquiry is not in any sense of the word an extremist group. Its membership contains conservatives, radicals, moderates and simple ordinary people who are united in a common curiosity as to why the executive committee has taken the action it has.

"Because of this curiosity, we would like to extend you a cordial invitation to address the student body here at Chapel Hill within the next few days at your convenience, to explain to them why it was necessary to deny a forum to the controversial speakers, why it is necessary for the University administration to have the power of censorship over any speakers invited by recognized campus organizations, why it is necessary to establish an arbitray limit of 'frequency' for certain types of speakers, why the exercise of constitutional rights leads to 'discord and strife,' and precisely what the executive committee's definition of 'the advantages of education is.'

"We are fully aware of the demands of your schedule, and if you yourself as chairman are not able to address us, perhaps you can arrange to have some member of the executive committee of the board of trustees come to Chapel Hill and make clear to us the reasons for the steps that have been taken.

"Let us stress that we have no desire whatsoever to embarrass you, your administration, the executive committee or the board of trustees. We simply want to know the truth. The real tragedy of this affair has been the lack of sincere communication between Chapel Hill and Raleigh.

"We will appreciate your reply."

Guatemala Coed

(Continued from Page 1)

which village to take them to. After the argument was settled they were loaded into a car and rushed toward a clinic. The car broke down and another argument ensued.

This time they were taken to the other village.

Although the hospital she worked in was free and state-operated, it still had competition. Every day an old lady built a fire under a pot on the hospital grounds and sold herbs.

Lynda said there was never any antagonism or resentment directed against her or any of the Peace Corps Volunteers she was associated with.

Having a Cuban roommate in school made Lynda want to participate in something active. If you want to participate in something active or to just talk with Lynda, just drop by Y-Court.

She'll be there all next week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. You have to be good though, only one out of 50 college students makes it.

Today's Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday or Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

The Reverend John E. Ensign will be on campus Monday, Feb. 14, to interview students for summer employment at Camp Hanover, located 14 miles out of Richmond. Please call 942-3753 for an appointment with Mr. Ensign.

Are you an auctioneer? The campus chest needs you! Wild items — Good crowds Practice your talents! It's a one night stand, March 21. A good cause and a good time. If interested please call Bayard Harris, 968-9070 and leave a message.

It will be a Valentine A Go-Go Saturday night following the UNC-VPI basketball game. The Go-Go will be sponsored by Morrison Residence College from 9-1 a.m. Morrison will present its new Go-Go girl, and the music of the "Weejuns." Tickets will be $1.25 per couple and will be on sale Friday and Saturday in Y-Court, Chase Cafeteria, Morrison Lobby and at the door Sat. night.

The Free Flick will be "From Here to Eternity" starring Burt Lancaster, Deborah and Montgomery Clift. It is a story of army life in Honolulu just before Pearl Harbor, and was the winner of eight academy awards.

SUNDAY

Graduate Christian Fellowship at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. W. L. Sloan, 212 W. University Dr. There will be a discussion Group Prayer led by Mrs. Frederick Brooks.

Banks Godfrey, Jr. will deliver the sermon "The Conscience of Freedom" at 11 a.m. for the Wesley Foundation service of worship for the University Community.

The Sunday afternoon Symposium sponsored by the Wesley Foundation will be War in the Rise of American Civilization: a film, The Orozco Murals with interpretation following the showing by Pof. William Geer and the Rev. Tom Davis. LSA Supper followed by Universal Day of Prayer Service.

Interviews will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. for positions on the Student Government Secretariat. Coeds applying should see Sherry O'Donnell, Student Body Secretary, in Student Government offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

The Academic Affairs Commitee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m. Monday.

There will be a Mandatory State Student Legislature meeting Monday from 4-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present
SEAN CONNERY
"THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY PANAVISION
TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

—More News Briefs—

(Continued from Page 1)

The meeting will be attended by Presbyterian pastors from throughout the state.

Faculty members from North Carolina will discuss what contemporary novelists, playwrights and painters seem to say about the nature and destiny of man and the implications this has for understanding culture and its problems.

Fendall To Talk

Dr. Neville Rex Edwards Fendall, a New Zealander with the Rockefeller Foundation, will speak to a student-faculty seminar on Monday at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of the North Carolina School of Public Health.

His topic will be "The Design of Health Services in the Developing Countries with Special Reference to the Proper Utilization and Training of Auxiliary Health Personnel

Art Exhibition

The winner of the 1966 Art Exhibition at the North Carolina School of Public Health will be selected today.

The prize is worth $400.

Joseph H. Cox and Dr. Harold Dickson are the judges.

Training Course

A five day administrative training course for 45 head nurses in hospitals will begin Monday at the North Carolina School of Nursing.

The course is the second of three identical courses.

The courses are sponsored by an $18,225 federal grant to the School of Nursing.

UNC Gets Grant

The National Science Foundation has awarded $137,530 to North Carolina to finance graduate traineeships.

North Carolina is one of 193 graduate schools to receive the grants.

Prof To Chair Panel

Dr. W. Grant Dahlstrom, professor of psychology at North Carolina, has been named chairman of a National Institutes of Health study sections to evaluate research proposals.

He will chair a group that will investigate proposals in several research areas touching on mental health.

Durham Ski Trip

The Durham Recreation Department will sponsor a ski trip to Blowing Rock on Feb. 19.

Cost of transportation is $6.25 per person, cost of slopes and equipment is $9.00. Ski Lessons are $3.50 per person per lesson.

Persons owning equipment may bring it on the trip.

The bus will leave Erwin Auditorium at 5 a.m. and return to Durham by 9 p.m.

Deadline for registration is Feb. 16.

MOB OF DOMINICAN

A mob savagely clubbed and stabbed a police sergeant to death yesterday in Santo Domingo and youth gangs attacked policemen in three other cities.

The attacks appeared to be outgrowths of violence touched off when police opened up with gunfire and tear gas on a communist led student demonstration.

Law Enforcement

Norman E. Pomrenke of the North Carolina Institute of Government has received an invitation from the president's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice to participate in a special Washington conference next Tuesday.

He is one of nine authorities asked to speak at a meeting on the "General Aspects of Police Personnel in Relations to Current Crime Problems."

He is the only representative from the South.

—Free Inquiry—

(Continued from Page 1)

John Honigmann, anthropology and Dr. Walter Hollander Jr., School of Medicine.

The group proposed its own regulations governing speakers, in opposition to those already approved by the executive committee of the board of trustees.

Dickson, who introduced the rules, said they differed from the trustee proposals because they would apply to all speakers and not just those who would have been subject to the old speaker ban law.

The group applauded loudly when he said, "We think any procedures adopted have to apply to any and every speaker — there can't be discrimination."

Under the proposals adopted by CFI the chancellor would be informed of the speaker's name and background information at least a week before his appearance. The chancellor would not be informed before the invitation was made. The faculty advisor of the inviting organization would be informed of all invitations.

Some students opposed furnishing any information about the speakers to the chancellor, but the original proposals were adopted almost unanimously.

UN Internship Jobs Available

Frederick N. Cleaveland, chairman of the Political Science Department at North Carolina, announced today that the University will again have an intern program at the United Nations this summer.

Three graduate student interns will be selected to work in New York for the United Nations Secretariat for a ten - week period extending from July 5 to Sept. 9.

Each intern will receive a stipend of $850 to cover travel to and from New York and living expenses while there. This is the fifth year on the UNC internship at the United Nations.

The internship is being financed by the Institute for International Order, as in previous years. Yale University is the only other institution participating in the program. A total of six interns are to be selected from the two institutions.

The United Nations has expressed an interest in having at least one of the UNC interns a native of some country other than the United States.

Selection will be based on interest, academic achievement and preparation. Since the activities carried on by the Secretariat are extremely diverse, a variety of academic backgrounds would provide effective preparation.

Application blanks may be obtained from Mrs. Richey, room 101 Caldwell Hall, and must be returned by Friday, Feb. 25.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: An ancient K and E log-log decitrig) slide rule in a worn, tan leather case. Call A. D. Robinson, 505 Craige.

Lost: A light brown leather trimed hand bag containing important identification. If found please call 321 Alderman, Carolyn Todd, 168-9166. Reward offered.

KEMP'S GREATEST!
CONTINUED
AT $2.25
– Per Record –
ALL DAY SATURDAY...FEBRUARY 12
SUNDAY . . . 1 P.M. TIL 8 P.M.
All Records — Mono & Stereo . . . All Labels—All Stocks
NOTHING HELD BACK THIS SALE
KEMP'S EAST FRANKLIN CHAPEL HILL

Make your appearance in
FARAH®
AND LET THE CHICKS
FALL WHERE THEY MAY!

The sharp styling of Farah slacks puts the frosting on anything you might cook up!
SLACKS, JEANS and WALK SHORTS with FaraPress®
NEVER NEED IRONING
FARAH MANUFACTURING CO., INC. • EL PASO, TEXAS

U.N.C Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Barbecue Tonight

Junior Class barbecue from 5-8:30 p.m. The "Seductives" will play. Tickets are $1.25.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Photographer Needed

The DTH needs a photographer. Salary is $26.10 a week. The photographer must furnish his own equipment. Bring yourself and a portfolio of your work to the DTH office Monday afternoon if interested. Ask for the managing editor.

Volume 74, No. 93 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Aptheker Speaks At Wayne State

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Dr. Herbert Aptheker delivered an address on the campus of Wayne State University in Detroit, Mich., Friday night despite protests from the Michigan State Senate and from a student group on the campus.

Aptheker spoke in an auditorium which seats about 150 persons, according to a spokesman. He said only about 100 members of the student body were able to get seats in the auditorium because many were taken up by the press.

2,500 Stand Outside

Approximately 2,500 students stood outside the building while he delivered his hour long address on his recent trip to Hanoi. The student body is made up of over 29,000 students.

There were reported threats on his life and Aptheker was kept under close police supervision while he was on the campus. He was reportedly taken to the auditorium by police and immediately after he completed his speech, was rushed away by police escort. The place where he was staying was not disclosed.

police were inside the auditorium and about 60 outside the building.

The demonstrations were prompted because a larger auditorium on the campus which could have been used was empty. The spokesman said the larger auditorium has originally been scheduled to be used Friday night but the meeting was not held.

Du Bois Club Invites Aptheker

Aptheker was invited to the campus by the Du Bois Club, which was termed as the most "left-wing" organization on the campus, the Wayne Committee to End the War in Viet Nam and the Young Democratic Club.

The Du Bois Club gained recognition as a campus organization only a month ago. It is headed by a girl and has about 35 members.

A spokesman said there were several protests Friday on the campus. He said cars with American flags flying on radio aerials and signs protesting Aptheker's appearance were seen all over the campus.

"It was a touchy situation," the spokesman said. "But it was handled well by the administration."

Students Protest

There were demonstrations on the speech because of lack of space in the auditorium. Some

Board Picks Hildenbrand

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The Publications Board announced yesterday the appointments made for editor and business manager for the Carolina Handbook for next year.

Steve Hildenbrand, a junior from Baltimore, Md., was selected as editor to receive a $100 salary.

Edward T. Baur, a sophomore from St. Louis, Mo., was appointed business manager to receive a 10% commission on all advertisements.

Interviews will be held for associate editors and eight section editors on February 21 and 22 from 3-4 in the Grail Room.

BUT NO ONE CARED—The rain came to Chapel Hill yesterday, but as usual no one seemed to pay any attention to it, as shown by this crowded sidewalk on Franklin Sreet. Business went on as usual.

—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

Books By Aptheker In Wilson Library

Twelve books written by Herbert Aptheker, the Communist who has been banned from speaking on campus, are on display in the Lewis Round Wilson Library.

They are in a second floor case at the east end of the library. The library has 23 of Aptheker's books.

His works here include 11 books concerning the American Negro and the others are about topics related to Marxism, Communism and imperialism.

One of Aptheker's works, "On the Nature of Freedom: The Marxist View," is based on a series of broadcasts from May to July, 1959 on a Berkeley, Calif., radio station.

The earliest work by Aptheker in the Library is "The Negro in the Civil War," which was published in 1938. His latest work here is "Marxism and Democracy," published in 1965.

In one of his works, Aptheker credits the North Carolina Historical Society in Raleigh with supplying some information. The Wilson Library is also credited for assistance given Aptheker.

(Continued on Page 6)

Conservative To Speak

Dr. Ernest van den Haag, a sociologist from New York University, will initiate the Carolina Conservative Club's "Free University" speaker series tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

His topic is "Free Speech What Does It Mean?"

He is expcted to talk on the subject of Aptheker's appearance.

Van den Haag is a frequent contributor to the conservative journal "National Review" and is the author of a widely used college text book on sociology.

Anyone who wants an interview should come by 204 Gardner to make an appointment.

Over 450 Sign

Over 450 people have signed up to donate blood in the blood drive this Wednesday and Thursday.

All prospective donors under 21 have to have a permission slip signed, according to Sonny Pepper.

He said he felt "certain now that we will reach our goal of 600 pints."

Rush Begins Today

Spring rush will begin this afternoon in all fraternities from 3-6. Prospective pledges must visit every fraternity from which they recive invitations during the first two days of rush.

Firms To Interview

Six companies will have representatives on campus Monday to recruit students.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith; J. J. Newberry; Corning Glass Works; Girl Scouts of America (women only); Union Bag-Camp Paper; and College of the Albemarle will have representatives at North Carolina tomorrow.

Thomasville Furniture Industries; Fieldcrest Mills; El. Du Pont de Nemours; Congoleum-Nairn; and Camps Tomahawk and Wicousta

Summer jobs only, will be on campus Tuesday.

Pharmacists' Seminar

The North Carolina School of Pharmacy will sponsor a series of weekly seminars on the uses and abuses of drugs for treating diseases of the mouth beginning Wednesday.

The seminar is open to practicing pharmacists from North Carolina.

The seminars will be held for two hours every Wednesday through Mar. 16 in rm. 116 of the pharmacy school.

Shell Gives $5.000

North Carolina has received a fellowship for work in chemistry for around $5.000 from Shell Companies Foundation, Inc., New York City, according to O. W. Brauss, Manager of Shell Oil Company's Charlotte Marketing District.

The fellowship is for graduate students and young teachers studying for advanced degrees in science or engineering and for general support of the institution offering the fellowships.

Project Wins Award

The Winchester Archaeological Excavations project in England, which has involved students from Duke University and North Carolina for the past two years, has won a Duke of Edinburgh Award.

According to information received here by the local co-chairmen, Dr. Frank T. deVyver of Duke and Dr. George R. Holcomb of North Carolina, the silver UN Medal and Certificate were awarded to the British sponsors of the project for "successfully bringing together in constructive partnership people of different national backgrounds."

The British competition was a feature of the worldwide ICY program — International Cooperation Year, 1965—which celebrated the 20th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Painting Lessons

The Chapel Hill Recreation Department will sponsor painting classes beginning tomorrow at the Umstead Recreation Center on Umstead Dr.

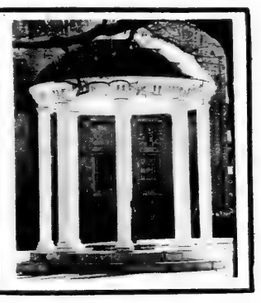
Fee for the session which lasts until April 11 is $10.

Classes are from 7:30-9:30 p.m.

For further information and registration call Jean Sparrow at 942-6054 between 9 a.m.-12 and 3-5:30 p.m.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Hitting Below The Belt

Since yesterday was so gloomy and we in turn were not greatly inspired we got to thinking about all the bad things that have happened this year.

We started looking around for a picture to describe the way things have been going.. We came up with the photo below. Yes, this is hitting below the belt.

Hussies And Pussycats

Have you ever studied the ads on the movie page in your local paper. We were looking through a newspaper yesterday and it seemed to be full of good little notes. Here are some really . . .

NOW!! SCREAM . . . no one will hear you! At this blood-dripping HORRORAMA. For Hits! 'Terror,' 'Tomb,' 'Black Sabbath' and 'Museum Horror.'

THE HUSSY . . .she inherits a world of twisted desires whose existence must be a closely guarded secret! Plus, LAST WOMAN ON EARTH.

THE PINK PUSSYCAT . . . stripped of all inhibitions. Also, LOVE HUNGER

And after reading all that we noticed a small news item on the same page that said a judge had ruled that TV could not use commercials during the televising of A Place in the Sun in such a manner that they would destroy the artistic or pictorial quality of the motion picture.

Happiness Is Small Ideas

Walking by the library two DTH staffers spotted a small card which read:

"Think small. Big ideas upset people."

Lesson learned — Governor Moore and the legislature are just trying to keep everybody happy.

Knight Approves

Wilkinson, Aptheker Are Cleared At Duke

DURHAM (AP) — The way was cleared yesterday for Communist spokesman Herbert Aptheker to address two student groups at Duke University March 8.

President Douglas M. Knight approved the invitations extended to Aptheker by the Men's Student Government Association and the Liberal Action Committee.

Dr. Knight said his action is "in accord with our long-standing policy of respect for the expression of diverse nad at times unpopular opinions."

Aptheker, described as the leading American theoretician of Marxist ideology, is head of the Institute of Marxist Studies in New York City.

With his acceptance, both of the men barred from speaking on the Chapel Hill campus, under an interpretation of the amended state speaker ban law, now have speaking dates at Duke.

Frank Wilkinson, chairman of a group lobbying for the abolishment of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, has accepted an invitation from the Professional Affairs Committee of the Duke Bar Association to speak at the Law School on March 1.

Dr. E. R. Latty, dean of the Law School, noted that Wilkinson is the second speaker invited to the Law School this year to discuss activities of the Un-American Activities Committee. Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., spoke last November on the committee's investigation of the Ku Klux Klan. He is an outspoken opponent of the Klan.

Latty views Wilkinson's appearance as an extension of legal discussions regarding the work of the House Committee.

In announcing his decision, Knight said "it is, and has long been, the policy of Duke University to recognize requests from university - approved student organizations that they be permitted to invite to the campus speakers with conflicting political and social philosophies. It is our belief that such a policy helps realize sound educational objectives.

"Through the years, our student organizations have shown a high degree of responsibility in the sponsorship and conduct of guest appearances, which have on occasion brought to the university community speakers who represent widely differing viewpoints.

Nicholson Rebuts Clark's Speeches

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

George E. Nicholson III, Carolina Forum chairman, charged yesterday that Carolina Conservative Club Chairman Wilson Clark's speeches "in the past two weeks have been just as irresponsible as those made by SDS."

Nicholson was replying to Clark's charge Saturday that the Forum was not bringing a representative sampling of competent conservative, liberal and moderate speakers to the campus.

"When Clark flips off the top of his head such things as we're not inviting conservative speakers to campus and that we have a $6,000 budget, I feel I'm just dignifying his remarks by answering them," Nicholson said in a DTH interview yesterday.

"However," Nicholson continued, "to set the record straight, our budget is $2,000, not $6,000, and we have invited conservative speakers.

"Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, is coming later this month. I suppose Clark would call him a liberal.

"Clark has never come to us and offered any suggestions for speakers. We are open to suggestions from any campus group, but we're not going to be turned into a hack speaker bureau for any campus organization, be it the Carolina Conservative Club or the SDS.

"As for Clark's charges that we haven't been providing conservative speakers. I'll just give him a list: former Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett, Herbert Philbrick, noted FBI counterspy, and Sen. J. Strom Thurmond (R-S. C.) all spoke last year.

"This year we've presented Peter Young, former news analyst for WRAL-TV and Robert Welch is schedule later.

"We've tried to get Barry Goldwater, George Murphy, Richard Nixon, William Buckley, Everett Dirkson and others. They charge too much or they're just too busy. What can we do?"

Lynd Calls Ban 'Thought Control'

"Surely the decision to prevent Dr. Aptheker represents a step backward, in the direction of thought control."

Yale Professor Staughton Lynd made this statement in a letter received yesterday by George Nicholson, Carolina Forum Chairman.

Professor Lynd said he would like to take part in the forum on Viet Nam policy, but felt he could not speak at the University that denied his friend, Dr. Herbert Aptheker, the right to speak.

Lynd said: "I find Dr. Aptheker's exclusion especially regrettable since the state legislature moved to rescind its 'speaker ban' and to restore to the University control over who it does and does not invite."

Lynd's passport was revoked recently by the state department because he traveled to North Viet Nam with Aptheker and SDS organizer Tom Hayden.

He had told DTH reporter David Rothman on Feb. 9: "I am turning down the invitation on constitutional grounds (free speech guarantees in the First Amendment)"

Hershey Approves Changes In Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of Selective Service wants the armed forces to induct more men who have been rejected and put into the 1-Y classification for moral and physical reasons.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey says he believes "there is gold" in the form of militarily acceptable manpower among the some two million men now classified 1-Y—qualified for military service only in time of national emergency.

Hershey said also he believes President Johnson's estimate of 160,000 inductions for the year beginning July 1 is "based on hope." But he didn't say how many he thinks will be inducted.

Asked if the military is rejecting on moral grounds youths who deliberately establish court records by parking violations or other minor offenses, Hershey said he could not cite a specific case "but I do hear far more than I like about people running up criminal records to escape."

"That's one reason I have felt that the armed forces ought to take some of these minor criminals in not to even encourage anybody to think of it," Hershey said.

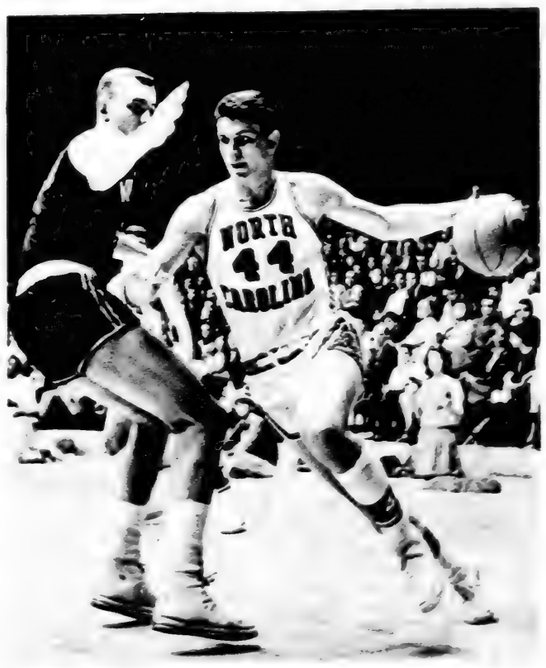
He said also he feels the armed forces have been rejecting a great many people they are going to have to accept because the public is not going to stand having a lot of people escape military service by minor infractions of the law.

Asked what he thinks will be the attitude of the military toward acceptance of students involved in a sit-in last year at the local draft board in Ann Arbor, Mich., and subsequently convicted of trespass, Hershey said:

"If he violated our law by interrupting the procedures, then the armed forces can't turn him down.

"But if he comes up with malicious trespassing in the state of Michigan, they could very well raise the question of violating a law that is not ours and he therefore was not acceptable."

The military agreed recently to ease up on its mental standards so that generally now a high school graduate is acceptable for induction if he meets the other requirements. Local draft boards and the armed forces examining stations are reviewing the records of high school graduates previously ruled to be 1-Y who might now be acceptable under the new standard.



LARRY MILLER drives past an unidentified VPI man for two points during yesterday's varsity game. Despite the heroics, the Tar Heels failed to overcome an early Tech lead. (Other game action p. 5.)

—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

DTH Awards Of The Week

Quote of the Week: Gov. Dan K. Moore, "There has been no attempt to censor free speech at the University, no political interference in academic affairs and no attempt to dictate a speaker policy at the University."

Best Court Ruling of the Week: From the Iowa Supreme Court, a ruling which denied photographer Harold W. Painter custody of his 7-year-old son because the boy would be exposed to a life that is "unstable, unconventional, arty, Bohemian and probably intellectually stimulating."

Bargain of the Week: A fully operative, do-it-yourself ruby laser kit from Electro-Optical Instruments of Pasadena, Calif. Price: $499.50.

Science Fiction Incident of the Week: An excited Rolla, Mo., woman reported to police that she had seen a flying saucer in a wooded area. Investigating officers found it—a large lamp shade which had fallen off a trash truck.

Irony Award: To Jane Fonda, filming "The Cure" in France. Production has stopped because she has chicken pox.

Loser of the Week: The 48-year-old Cambridge, Ohio, man who stopped at what he thought was a drive-in restaurant for a cup of coffee, crossing a lawn and going through a hedge in the process. But it wasn't a drive-in restaurant — it was a State Highway Patrol barracks. He was arrested for drunken driving.

Best Clean-Up Campaign of the Week: To the Russian Federation Paliament, which is in charge of cleaning up names of Soviet towns. Some of the changes already made: Flea Nest to Happyville, Rotten Hole to Oak Grove, Belly-Button to Bankside, Stinkeroo to Field, Foul Hole to New Orchard, Toad Village to Azure, Spit to Little Cherry and Dogville to Spacious.

Best News of the Week for Old Maids: Statistics from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. show that there are more men than women in nearly all age groups under 65 in Canada.

White Man of the Week: Former Alabama Grand Dragon Robert M. Creel, who, in testimony before the House Committee on Un-American Activites, compared himself to a congressman, "just serving my constitutients" and doing what they wanted.

Innovator of the Week: New York Mayor John Lindsay, who has opened a New York office in Washington.

Only Kosher Speakers

The following letter was written to The Daily Tar Heel by Harry Golden, best-selling author and editor of the Carolina Israelite.

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The cancellation of the invitations to Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson to speak at the University of North Carolina, was a thoughtless act.

The Governor and the Board of Trustees do not seem to understand (what every 'outsider" will tell them), that the reputation of North Carolina as, "the most progressive state in the South," is due, entirely to Chapel Hill and the accomplishments of its presidents and faculties across the past 35 years! Don't they know this? or don't they care?

It is not so much that these two Communists have been denied a forum to which they were formally invited, but that no consideration has been given to the fact that non-Communist scholars will consequently shrug off such invitations. For such an invitation henceforth will imply approval by people outside the academic world. Scholars, educators, scientists, and poets may feel too uncomfortable speaking at Chapel Hill, knowing that they would not have been invited if Governor Dan Moore had not first declared them kosher.

If these purely academic decisions are indeed taken out of the hands of the university authority, the political and financial interests of the state will have succeeded in establishing for this great University that second definition of the word school: a large body of fish, all alike, going as a single body, in the same direction.

Harry Golden
Charlotte

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Phil Clay

Keep Rights, Peace Movements Apart

In the last few months, we have witnessed an unfortunate courtship between the civil rights movement and the anti-war movement. The development of this relationship has been suddenly propelled by our increasing involvement in South Viet Nam. The importance of this relationship is significant not only to those of us interested in civil rights, but it is also important to the majority of the American people interested in keeping clear distinctions between separate issues.

Several facts must be born in mind before considering the many aspects of this new romance. First, certain rights leaders have taken public positions to illustrate the situation. John Lewis, head of SNCC has declared, "We believe that the United States government has been deceptive in its claims of concern for the freedom of the Vietnamese people just as the government has been deceptive in claiming concern for the freedom of colored people in such countries as the Dominican Republic, the Congo, South Africa, Rhodesia and the United States itself."

Lewis went on to suggest that Negroes refuse to join the military in what he called American "aggression." The NAACP has disavowed this position. Dr. Martin Luther King has long called for a cease fire in Viet Nam and negotiations to end the war. He has not called for draft resistance or a unilateral withdrawal of American troops. In this courtship, there seems to be little more than verbal intimacy at this point.

There are several reasons to account for this verbal intimacy. Organizationally, there are ties between the two movements. Some groups, including the SPU and SDS, have done admirable work in civil rights and now have turned primarily to the protest of the war in Viet Nam, while still being associated with the civil rights movement.

Some ministers and church groups have found themselves engaged in both movements. This is in addition to the fact that former unattached civil rights workers are now peace pickets with CORE buttons.

A second reason for the courtship is the void in the civil rights movement. The enormous progress that has been made has led some to believe that all is done. A third reason may be explained by what Duke's Dr. Waldo Beach calls the "New Puritans" who are guided by moral ideals and Christian (expressed in a secular fashion) principles.

Their faces appear in any demonstration in favor of freedom or justice. Their only aim is to help their fellow man. Their reform zeal is readily expressed and easily transferred from one movement to another. In short, the relationship is for very plausible reasons, not the sinister plot of Communists as some would have us believe.

There are very serious implications to this relationship. Many people are rightfully questioning the wisdom of this courtship. Will the cause of the Negro be swallowed up in the nebulous debate over what has become the "permanent condition of war?" Is the question of "freedom" the sole issue involved? These and other questions should be pondered in an objective manner.

I believe that the courtship between the civil rights movement and the anti-war movement is unseemly and ineffective. First, let me cast aside two unacceptable points that some use to denouce this relationship.

Some say that the courtship is communist inspired and directed. No one, including the FBI, has presented any evidence to support this charge.

Some others say that the involvement of the civil rights movement in the peace movement will lose "friends" for the Negro cause. I doubt this. I do not believe that anyone committed to equal justice and equal opportunity for the Negro will deny these things because some of the leaders of some of the groups have taken an unpopular stand.

With the trivia cast aside, there are some pragmatic and philosophical reasons that demand an end to this courting. First and foremost is the fact that the civil rights revolution isn't over. To be sure, strong laws are on the books and a new honesty has prevaded Negro - wite relations, but the harder tasks of community organization and political participation demand and require the same dedication and ingenuity that has characterized the civil rights movement in the past. To become a pawn to the peace movement prevents the vital task from having dedicated personnel and persistent action.

Second, an organization dually committed to civil rights and the anti-war movement would not allow persons, like me, to work in an organization singly committed to my interests. Many persons interested in joining the organized movement for equal justice may be hesitant to, if they must at the same time commit themselves to criticizing a policy that they support.

Third, the civil rights movement is not pragmatically related to the anti-war movement. One deals with tangibles, the other with intangibles. The goals of the civil rights movement can be seen and felt. Much progress has been made, public opinion has been mobilized behind it and effective proposals for its success only await implementation.

The anti-war movement is intangible. The SPU and the SDS don't have any better practical answers than the President or the United Nations. They are merely questioning. Since they have no answers, they have no solid grounds for action.

While I recognize the need for questioning, I honestly believe that the intercourse between the two movements is illegitimate, and unless a quick abortion is performed, it threatens to yield a blind and sterile body of ideas when our society needs a set of twins — positive action in civil rights and serious debate of American foreign policy. I don't think these twins can come from the union of these movements.

Fourth, this relationship does not reflect the hope of the Negro masses. Like most Americans, they recognize the necessity of using force to maintain freedom. Finally, we must take a lesson from American history. War has always been a nemesis to reform. It happened to Wilson's "New Freedom" after World War I and World War II prematurely ended the "New Deal." We must not let this happen to the civil rights movement.

If it should happen that the civil rights movement prostitutes itself to the peace movement, the end of the war would mean an end to the civil rights movement. Another two decades would be needed to resume the struggle for equal justice here at home.

We can only hope that these two children engaged in an unfortunate courtship will not do anything hasty and will recognize that they are not made for each other. If they should marry, they will destroy themselves and deprive America of both action and debate.

by Phil Clay

Barry Jacobs

Governor Misses The Point

A wide gulf separates the views of this university on the policy governing visiting speakers from the views of Governor Moore. All the arguments about the timing of the invitation to Herbert Aptheker and about his fitness as a speaker have obscured a basic difference in philosophy and in interpretation of the amendment to the speaker ban. Moore's statement Thursday removed the haze and made his position at last clear.

It is now apparent how Moore construes the meaning of the requirement that previously banned speakers must clearly serve the purposes of education in order to be allowed to speak on state university campuses. He believes that if a man can make a contribution to the education of university students, he should not be barred because he happens to be a Communist. His contribution to education, however, must be unrelated to his political beliefs.

Thus Moore says "the university does need the freedom to host national or international scientific conferences which would be attended by Communist scientists." The Governor would probably have no objection to one of these Communist scientists making a speech while on the campus. But this man would then be speaking as a scientist, not as a Communist. His address would be about science, not about political philosophy. Whether he was a Democrat, Republican, Communist, or monarchist would be irrelevant.

The same basic qualification holds true even for the "official representative of a Communist nation," who Moore also said should be permitted to speak on a state university. This man, too, would be only incidentally a Communist. He would be speaking as a Russian or Polish or Bulgarian representative, rather than as a Communist.

While his communism would likely be more pertinent than that of the scientist, he would not be here primarily as a Communist. The political views of a French representative would no doubt be mentioned if such a person were to speak here, but they would not be the reason for his coming. The same is true for a Russian representative: he would be invited because he is a Russian, not because he is a Communist.

What the Governor doesn't seem to realize is that having a Communist come to campus simply because he is a Communist to speak specifically about communism — even preach Communist dogma — serves the purposes of education. Students must become familiar with the dominant ideas in the world. Communism is certainly one of them, and it won't just go away.

We have all heard about communism from the American point of view. This, unfortunately, is not the point of view from which the rest of the world hears about it. Americans are generally mystified that some people in the world repudiate our system of life in favor of communism. We would be better equipped to understand the reasons why these people accept communism — and thus better equipped to fight communism — if we could be exposed to Communist doctrine in the same form that they are exposed to it. We should hear communism as described by a Communist. We have nothing to lose and potentially much to gain.

David Rothman

Divorce Is Recommended As Key To Happy Marriage

Actor Peter Lawford and Patricia Kennedy have been going out to dinner with each other more often than in the past — when they were married.

As the two put it to a gossip columnist, they intend on being seen together a lot, now that they've been divorced.

I asked a marriage counselor recently if situations like this are unusual.

"No," he replied. "In fact, we're secretly encouraging divorce as a means of building a stabler family life. Notice, for instance, that Pat Lawford explained to a newsman who wondered why she was dating Peter: 'Four children you know.'"

"But isn't there a danger of the couple getting remarried?"

"I hope not," said the counselor. "I always tell persons like the Lawfords not to break up a good thing and once again become part of the three out of four."

"Three out of four?"

"That's the proportion of persons who stay married. Alarming, isn't it?"

But aren't there certain things you can do within marriage that you can't do otherwise?"

"Not if you're careful to avoid the morals squad."

"What about the children?"

"They like the idea of having only one parent at home to yell at them."

"Again — what happens should the couple remarry?"

"Should the couple marry again, I warn them they've made a terrible mistake. Then I encourage them to start life anew and forget about the troubles of the past by getting another divorce. That's the thing wrong with those Hollywood stars — they enhance their happiness by getting divorced four or five times, but then plunge themselves into misery with new marriages."

"And making matters worse is the fact that before you can enjoy the ecstasies of divorce you have to get married. Why only the other day a promising young star let was telling me how much she hated to marry a famous actor; but she did it anyway — so she could have the pleasure of going with him after they got their divorce."

"I still don't like the ideas you've been suggesting."

"I'm shocked," said the marriage counselor. "My approach is best — the women agree. They say they prefer receiving alimony checks to paying a dowry. As for the men — they insist the women can live more cheaply within a fixed budget than within something that isn't so restricted that's why the men have changed their minds about alimony payments."

"How about the rising teen age marriage rate?"

"I'm very distrubed by the way these marriages break up. They last such a short time that the kids aren't even 21 before they are confronted with the duties and responsibilities of divorce. If the teen-agers stayed married longer, things would be better. Then, when they parted, they'd be old enough to fully enjoy divorce's pleasures."

"Churches," I said, "have long frowned on divorce. They say that marriage is holy that broken homes create juvenile delinquency and other personality problems. Are you really willing to ignore this traditional outlook?"

"That view is old-fashioned," the counselor declared. "As I've told you again and again, the only way to have a happy home life is to get divorced"

Letters To The Editor

Otis Uses Poor Logic

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

One thing that we can't deny William Otis is his power to produce. He has trouble, however, turning some of his mammoth productions ("Trustees Action Justified", Feb. 10, DTH) into logical arguments.

Perhaps he can explain to us how the two following paragraphs managed to end up in the same article:

"This is a state-owned . . . institution, and as such enjoys only those prerogatives the state sees fit to grant it. No more."

And later in his piece, "They (the petty little men in Raleigh) . . . might decide one day to close this place down . . . Then we would have something legitimate to complain about."

Are you sure, Mr. Otis?

Richard Nichols
107 Daniels Road

Lament For Village

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

It is gratifying to read that urban renewal has reached Chapel Hill.

That student slum, Victory Village, is to be exterminated. Now, in the tradition of urban renewal, we can look forward to clean-cut, red-blooded American upper-middle class housing, in keeping with the quaint prosperity of our community.

And the evicted? Well, first of all, as everyone knows, no one need have financial problems in the Great Society.

And, secondly, there are plenty of alternatives to Victory Village: work longer hours, borrow more money, get the kids a job, or quit school entirely.

Thirdly, as every conservative knows, young folks thrive on adversity, and those who deserve success, succeed.

So tear the whole thing down, and the sooner the better. It's more than obvious that the university planners have the last word on poverty; out of sight, out of mind.

Sincerely,
Mrs. John N. Wrenn
Victory Village

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

Television, Radio Today, Tomorrow

WRAL (Ch. 5)
7:00 The Big Picture
7:30 The Christophers
7:45 Gospel Caravan
8:15 Musical Meditations
8:30 This is the Life
9:00 TV Gospel Time
9:30 Bullwinkle Show
10:00 Beany and Cecil
10:30 Peter Potamus (C)
11:00 Light Unto My Path
11:30 Bread of Life
12:00 Discovery
12:30 Oral Roberts: HAPPY IS THE TITHER
1:00 Church of Our Fathers
1:30 The Circuit Rider
2:00 NBA Basketball
4:00 American Sportsman
5:00 Family Theater: MAN WHO TURNED TO STONE: Victory Jory
6:30 Gidget (C)
7:00 Voyage to the Bottom (C)
8:00 The F.B.I. (C)
9:00 Sunday Night Movie: THE BEST OF EVERYTHING: Hope Lange
11:15 ABC News
11:30 ABC Scope

WRA LHIGHLIGHTS

THE AMERICAN SPORTSMAN—4:00 p.m.—The cameras this week watch salmon fishing, grouse hunting, and a mountain lion hunt with only a lasso.

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM O FTHE SEA—7:00 p.m.—Two divers have been killed in a treasure ship graveyard, and the Seaview crew wonders if an old curse is real.

THE F.B.I.—8:00 p.m. — Herb and Francine Wilcox unwittingly hire a mentally unbalanced baby-sitter who kidnaps their child.

THE SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE — 9:00 p.m. — "The Best of Everything." . . . Hope Lange and Suzy Parker star in the story of three Manhatten career girls looking for financial and emotional security.

WTVD (Ch. 11)
6:30 Journey "State of Enchantment"
7:00 Davey and Goliath (c)
7:15 News of the Church
7:30 The Bob Poole Show
8:30 Gospel Singing Jubilee
9:30 Jungle Theater "Thunder over Sangolan"
11:00 Installation—Frasier
12:00 Fury (c)
12:30 Face The Nation
1:00 Flicka
1:30 Tennessee Tuxedo
2:00 Amateur Hour
2:30 CBS Sports Spectacular
4:00 NBC Sports in Action
5:00 Voice of the Dragon
6:00 Twentieth Century
6:30 Please Don't Eat the Daisies (c)
7:00 Lassie (c)
7:30 My Favorite Martian (c)
8:00 Ed Sullivan (c)
9:00 Bonanza (c)
10:00 Wackiest Ship in Army (c)
11:00 CBS Sunday News
11:15 Ages of Man Part I

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)
6:00 Dinner Hour Music—Mozart: Divertimento K. 205, and Concerto for Flute, Harp, and Orchestra
8:00 Masterworks — "A Program of Art Songs" — songs by Schubert, Moussorgsky, Wolf, Greig, and Richard Strauss

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

MEN OF OUR TIME—8:00 p.m.—"The Peace Corps: A choice I made." A volunteer in India discusses his reasons for joining the Peace Corps. p.m. "America's Crises: Old Age—Out of Sight, Out of Mind" (Part II)—This program explores further the problems besetting the 18 million Americans already past 65.

WRAL (Ch. 5)
5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson — Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Unce Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: THIS GUN FOR HIRE Alan Ladd
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Double Life of Henry Phyfe (c)
7:30 12:00 High
8:30 Jesse James
9:00 Shenandoah
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 Ben Casey
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 BAND OF ANGELS Clark Gable

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

TWELVE O'CLOCK HIGH—7:30 p.m.—Only one pilot is qualified for a dangerous night attack, but he refuses to volunteer for the mission!

JESSE JAMES—8:30 p.m.—The James gang plans to rob the Laramie bank . . . where the law is a one-armed sheriff who doesn't carry a gun.

PEYTON PLACE—9:30 p.m.—Steven goes to San Francisco to investigate Stella Chernak's past.

BEN CASEY—10:00 p.m.—An unwed mother-to-be and accident victim refuses a necessary operation, fearing her child will die.

WTVD (Ch. 11)
6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search For Tomorrow
12:45 The Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As The World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS Evening News
7:00 The Virginian (c)
8:30 The Lucy Show (c)
9:00 Andy Griffith Show (c)
9:30 Dr. Kildare (C) Part I
10:00 Run For Your Life (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)
6:00 Dinner Hour Music—Mozart: Cassation K. 99, 12 Minuets, K. 568, March in D, K. 249

The Business Of Food

Prillaman Knows His Job

By WES LEFLER

The hot food you eat in a UNC cafeteria is part of the coldest business on campus.

You aren't surprised when you know George Prillaman, director of campus food service.

He's a hard-nosed businessman who accounts for every potato purchased, every cup of coffee served, every crumb under the table.

His analytical mind and black penetrating eyes miss nothing.

Back in 1951 when he took over food service at UNC he recognized gross inefficiency within the program. Immediately he slapped a time and motion study on each employee.

Within the first year he chopped off one third of his staff. And the University began to save $50,000 a year in labor costs alone.

Prillaman has been offered a small fortune for his researched menu cycles and cost control systems. And he's been offered twice his salary by restaurant and cafeteria chains across the country.

It's the rugged business ability of this accountant turned chow boss that appeals to top men in the food industry.

But it's something entirely different that makes him such a big hit with students on the campus.

It's the fine food he serves at rock bottom prices.

He himself was a student at UNC back in the 1940's, and he hasn't forgotten what it was like to struggle through college on a shoestring.

It's no accident that Prillaman knows what foods students like best. For three years he ran preference tests with every conceivable food to determine which foods students prefer. Foods that did not sell well were dropped from the list while the best sellers went into a six-week, 42 menu cycle.

Each of the 42 menus, offered once each six weeks, includes 5 entrees, 8 vegetables, 22 salads, 12 to 15 desserts and 5 different breads or rolls.

Ruthlessly precise in everything he does, Prillaman has set up cost accounting and perpetual inventory systems that tell him how many slices of roast beef are in the cooler, how much each slice costs the university and how much operating profit there is in each pound.

This is why he can offer a 50-cent student special at lunch and dinner. And he knows students like it because two out of three of them buy it. Rising food costs forced the student special up to 50 cents this year after it had been 40 cents for 11 years.

A student special consists of a choice of meats, two vegetables, rolls, butter and tea or coffee.

Prillaman is bitterly opposed to the student-college contract system used on some campuses in which the student is required to pay for all his meals in advance and is financially forced into the campus dining hall.

"The college student of today does not want to be regimented," Prillaman says. "In fact, he rebels against regimentation. He should be allowed freedom of choice. Let him buy his meal wherever he likes. This method goes a long way in improving campus food."

The UNC food expert will tell you, "We think we serve the best food money can buy, and our prices are down with the lowest in the country."

But he's still not satisfied. "We envision the finest campus food service in the nation," he says, "and we are well on our way."

With meal prices trimmed to the bone and food quality at a peak, Prillaman is aiming now for modern, new cafeterias.

The Harry Woodburn Chase Cafeteria, just completed at a cost of more than a million dollars, has been described as "the most beautiful college cafeteria in the United States today."

Students dine at tree-top level with nothing but tinted glass between them and a breath-taking view of the wooded campus below.

Right away you notice an absence of the usual cafeteria noises and odors. Insulation, fans and air conditioning filter out everything but appetites and soft music.

Best of all there is no waiting in line.

The cafeteria is equipped and staffed to serve 4,000 students per meal. A student in a hurry can dash through one of the four serving areas in two minutes flat and have 58 minutes left out of an hour for leisurely dining.

Secret of the high-speed serving is the "scramble" system. Much debated, and often criticized, the system features cafeteria serving without standing in line. With tray in hand, the student goes directly to the food he wishes in a sort of hunt-and-peck fashion, picks up his silverware and pays his bill.

Chase Cafeteria is one of the four student dining halls on campus in addition to smaller dormitory dining halls. Lenoir Dining Hall, located in the middle of the campus, served 2.5 million meals in 1964. Chase, serving UNC's south campus, can serve 4,000 students per meal at present, and its capacity is expected to hit 5,000 per meal by 1970. The Monogram Dining Room features table service and is open for every meal except Sunday breakfast. The Pine Room, located under Lenoir Hall, is popular with students because of its 15-cent hamburgers, snack bar and cafeteria service.

Both Chase and Lenoir offer private dining rooms for group meetings as well as banquets, dinners, luncheons, buffets and picnics to go.

Dining services are not operated to make a profit, although the department is self sustaining in that it receives no subsidies from the state. And no outside group is making a gain from the student service.

Under Prillaman's direction, cafeteria renovations are planned several years in advance and are financed out of receipts. The Pine Room was renovated in 1962. Chase was completed in 1965. And Lenoir is scheduled for total renovation in the summer of 1967.

Prillman's cafeteria business grossed $1.75 million last year, will hit $2 million this year and its expected to top $3.5 million by 1970.

THIS SCENE in Lenoir Hall is typical of dozens of others all over the campus every day as students come to eat and socialize in University cafeterias.

Revolution Won In South—Russell

By PETE IVEY

"The Revolutionary War was won in the South, largely by Southern soldiers, and we needed a book that would give the convincing details," said Phillips Russell in discussing the appearance of his latest work, "North Carolina in the Revolutionary War,"

Russell is a retired UNC history professor.

"Nearly all the histories of our war for independence make it appear that all the important fighting was done in the North, particularly in New England and New York. But the records show that the British lost the war in the South, and that the chief source of men and supplies for the Southern army was North Carolina," said Russell.

"This State responded promptly to calls for help from her sister states, and sent them men and commanders. North Carolina even furnished forces for the defense of the Hudson River in New Jersey and New York State," he added.

"Why has no previous author pointed this out?" Russell was asked.

"Because we had no historians. I undertook the task because no one else was doing it. The truth needed to be recorded, though late."

"What states received North Carolina help?"

"Virginia, South Carolina, and Georgia, chiefly. A North Carolina force was among the defenders at the burning of Norfolk. North Carolina lost a whole army when Charleston, S. C., surrendered. And a North Carolina general, who was poorly supported vainly tried to keep Georgia and Savannah out of British hands."

"Was that General Robert Howe?"

"Yes, he was the only major general that North Carolina had. He was a brilliant leader, but not always fortunate. The really tragic figure among American commanders in the South, was brigadier General James Hogun of this state. He was helping to fortify West Point when in the midst of a bitter winter he was ordered to march 700 men through the snow from there to Charleston. He did so successfully, only to be surrendered with all his men when Charleston gave up. He died there."

"You say Howe was not not fortunate?"

"He was the victim of jealousies and intrigues. He was even forced out as commander at West Point when it was a highly important post. By whom, do you suppose? By no less a person than Benedict Arnold.

"Would you say that North Carolina had a part in causing Cornwallis' surrender?"

"It killed his army by degrees. North Carolinians took part in the destruction of Cornwallis' cavalry at Cowpens; they helped to destroy Cornwallis' left wing at Kings Mountain; and at Guilford Court House they gave Cornwallis a mortal wound from which he staggered to the death of his army at Yorktown."

"Some of the reviewers have called your treatment of Revolutionary history unique. What was your aim?"

"Besides telling the whole unvarnished story, I have dealt with men as well as events. It makes a kind of bio-history. The chief figures are not cardboard images, but men with all kinds of faults as well as virtues. Our blunders were ghastly. But we were saved because the British made even more. The American republic was founded on their joint blunders nicely combined."

DR. PHILLIPS RUSSELL

Art Historian To Lecture At UNC, Duke This Week

A distinguished art historian from Trinity College, Cambridge University, will lecture here and at Duke University this week.

The Cooperative Program in the Humanities will present Professor C. Reginald Dodwell in three public lectures Thursday and Friday.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, he will speak on "The Bayeux Tapestry" in Room 111 Murphey Hall and Friday at 3 p.m., he will discuss "The Apocalypse in Spanish Medieval Painting" in Room 115 of the Ackland Art Center. Refreshments will be served following his talk.

At 8 p.m. Friday, Dr. Dodwell will lecture on "English Medieval Painting" in East Duke Building on the Duke campus. Refreshments will follow.

Dr. Dodwell is a Fellow, Director of Studies and Librarian of Trinity College. He has been a research fellow of Gonville and Cauis College, and of the Warbug Institute at London University. He has served as director of Lambeth Palace Library. He is currently on leave at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University.

The Cooperative Program in the Humanities was established last year at UNC and Duke under a Ford Foundation Grant.

Opera Theater Set 'Boheme'

By SUSAN ZARR

A Valentine's Day story guaranteed to moisten every eye and melt the hardest heart is on the boards at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow in Hill Hall. The Music Department's Opera Theater will present a fully-staged performance of Giacomo Puccini's La Roheme, under the musical direction of Wilton Mason and with a production designed by Colin Jerguson.

Perhaps the best of Puccini's many great Operas, La Boheme (The Bohemians) is a love story pure and simple, uncomplicated by politics, wars, world views or celestial beings. Based on true characters from Henri Murger's autobiographical Scenes de la vie de Boheme, the plot revolves around a rather mercurial young poet, Rodolfo, and his frail, working-class girl friend, Mimi. Rodolfo shares a garret with Marcello, a painter: anl Mimi has an acquaintance, Musetta, a jolly young woman of questionable reputation. These two enjoy a romance equally tumultuous but somewhat less complicated than that of Rodolfo and Mimi. The four principle roles will be sung by tenor Wayne Zarr, of the music faculty, soprano Marilyn Burris, guest soloist from Greensboro, baritone Jeff Ishee, a sophomore in music, and soprano Rebecca Carnes, of Chapel Hill.

Rodolfo and Marcello are usually to be found in the company of two other Bohemians, Schaunard, a music student. These roles will be sung by bass-baritone Kenneth Smith and baritone Joel Adams. Mr. Smith is a senior in psychology and Mr. Adams is, in fact, a music student. Together they face the vicissitudes of a moneyless existence and embrace the joys of a life with few responsibilities. The entrance of the ailing Mimi onto the scene and of passionate love into Rodolfo's life turns the drama into less carefree paths, but the spirit of merry-making and irrepressible good humor persists to the final scene, albeit under a cloud of tragedy which one knows will burst sooner or later.

La Boheme has two small but important comic roles, that of Bonoit the landlord, who makes unsuccessful attempts from time to time to collect the rent from his impecunious tenants, Rodolfo and Marcello; and that of Alcindoro, a rich old goat with whom Musetta tides over hard times. The two parts will be sung by baritones Norman Pendergraft and Robert Proco, both students in music.

The solo cast will be supported by the largest orchestra and chorus yet to be utilized in UNC opera productions. The orchestra personnel are members of the University Symphony Orchestra, Earl Slocum director.

This marks the third season of regular opera workshop and theater productions under Wilton Mason's direction. Although the scope of Boheme places it in the "opera theater" category, the essence of the original workshop philosophy is retained, that is, that music faculty and students might have direct and intimate experience with great works in the operatic literature. Works performed over the three years have included Mozart's Cosi fan tutte, Donizetti's Campanello, Menotti's The Telephone, Hindemith's Hin und zuruck and Wilder's The Lowland Sea.

Dr. Mason, a professor in music, is a musicologist, composer, vocal coach and performing pianist. In the past, he directed many of the musicals produced by the Carolina Playmakers.

A general admission of one dollar will be charged for today's and Monday's performances and tickets will be on sale in the lobby of Hill Hall.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR FEBRUARY

MERCURY Too near sun for observation
VENUS Rising shortly before sun in Capricornus
MARS Visible in SW briefly after sunset
JUPITER Visible in SW until after midnight
SATURN Low in SW at sunset
MOON Full, 5th; Last ¼, 12th; New, 20th; First ¼, 28th

AT THE MOREHEAD PLANETARIUM
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Throughout February
ZODIAC
Skyway of Celestial Activity

Daily at 8:30 P.M.
Saturdays at 11, 1, 3, 4 and 8:30
Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30

Write for School Program Schedule

The Morehead Planetarium gratefully acknowledges the generous cooperation of this newspaper in presenting this program listing.

Chapel Hill's Foremost
BARBER SHOP
Specializing in:
Hair Styling, Razor Cuts,
Hair Dyeing, Hair Pieces Fitted
Now we have THREE Registered BARBERS
Eastgate Barber Shop
Eastgate Shopping Center

WANT ADS

WANTED — PERSON TO DO translations from Spanish into English. Call 929-5069 after 9:00 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR SALE
1961 T-BIRD HARDTOP
Air. power windows—brakes —steering White walls. R-H
BEFORE 6 P.M.—942-1655
AFTER 6 P.M. — 942-2937

The Only Thing That Would Take This Load off my Back Is a STUDIO CARD

Ledbetter Pickard

Pope Paul VI

Pope Wants Controversy Solved Soon

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI said yesterday he will reorganize his special birth control commission in the next few days to hasten its decision on whether or not to recommend changes in the Roman Catholic church stand on contraception.

He told Roman Catholic couples that until the church comes up with new answers to the issue they must follow the traditional rules against mechanical methods of birth control.

Pope Paul made his statements at an audience for delegates to a convention of a national women's organization, the Italian Women's Center.

Speaking of the special commission he appointed in June, 1964, to review the entire birth control question, the Pope, in a remark added to his prepared text, said:

"In the next few days I will renew the commission for the study of birth control in order to hasten its work."

Reports circulated in Vatican circles that Popel Paul intended to appoint to the commission a guiding group of 12 bishops from various parts of the world, added to give it more ecclesiastical weight and wider international representation.

Despite earlier appeals by the Pontiff for the commission to come up with a recommendation—one way or another—sion of moral theologians, doctors, sociologists and other specialists has long been reported deadlocked.

Last September all groups except the theologians were reported ready to make a recommendation. There has been no sign of any change and pressure has risen, from prelates and lay people alike, for a Papal pronouncement.

Speaking yesterday of marriage and family life, Pope Paul said:

"We ask you to await the results of the (commission's) studies, accompanying them with prayer. The teaching authority of the church can propose moral norms only when certain it is interpreting the will of God. And to reach this certainty the church has not excused itself from research, for from the study of the many questions from every pary of the world offered for consideration. This is at times a long and difficult operation."

In another interpolated remark, the Pope repeated what he has said in the past, that he knew he must give an answer to the pressing contraception questions confronting the church, and that he still did not know what to say.

"I cannot make a pronouncement yet on this delicate subject," he said. "I do not intend to sidetrack it."

Through the answers are his alone to give, the Pope has charged his commission to see if there is any possibility for change within a theological - medical framework acceptable to church thinking.

The commission is reported to have been split in three camps—one advocating artificial contraception for Roman Catholics, another opposing any change from present policy and a third urging limited use of contraceptive methods such as the pill.

While the Pope, by his very act in forming the commission, showed changes were possible, he has acted several times to emphasize that until any changes come the present bans remain in force. He did this during the closing days of the Vatican Ecumenical Council. He ordered the Council to include in its document on marriage and family references to the traditional teachings of Popes Pius XI and XII. This was done to avoid any doubt that children remain the primary aim of marriage. He made the same kind of reaffirmation yesterday.

THE LARGEST

The North Carolina Heart Association is North Carolina's largest voluntary health agency, in terms of number of volunteers and public contributions.

North Carolina News Roundup

Home Ec. Award Announced

ASHEVILLE (AP)— Gov. Dan Moore announced yesterday Miss Mary M. Cornwell, home economics extension agent at Waynesville, is the co-winner of the Chairman's Cup Award for National Apple Week.

"The judges found that Miss Cornwell and her committee "did exploit fully the opportunities at hand during this salute to King Apple. The approach was practical, well-conceived, well-rounded and well-executed," Moore said.

NCSU Dean Appointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Dr. Ralph E. Fadum, dean of engineering at N. C. State University, was appointed yesterday vice chairman of the U.S. Army's Scientific Advisory Panel.

In announcing the appointment, Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor said Dean Fadum's "record of distinguished service as a member of the panel assures me that he will provide outstanding guidance and leadership."

Fadum has served on the panel since 1959. The panel is composed of 25 scientific and technological authorities chosen from across the nation to advise top Army officials on research, development, testing and evaluation programs.

Employees Reject Union

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Employees at the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Winston-Salem rejected representation by the Teamsters Union in an election Friday.

The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board, which conducted the election, said there were 67 votes against representation and 30 votes for the union.

The election was requested by Local 391 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen, and Helpers of America.

A spokesman for the NLRB said there were about 102 eligible voters and one challenged ballot.

Negroes To Air Grievances

HERTFORD (AP) — A delegation of Negroes will meet Monday night with Hertford's councilmen to discuss 14 grievances the Negroes have presented to Mayor C. N. Darden.

The Rev. S. L. Andrews of Hertford announced the meeting Friday night at a rally and march of 350 Negroes of Perquimans and neighboring counties.

The Rev. Mr. Andrews is president of the Perquimans County chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He said the mayor had invited the delegation to the council meeting.

The list includes requests that Negroes be named to city and county boards, be added to police and sheriff's forces and be employed as clerks and cashiers in stores.

Floyd McKissick, national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, told the Friday night rally that it is a shame that Negroes have to ask for enforcement of the Bill of Rights and of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. He urged his listeners to present a solid front in making their demands.

Integration Case Date Set

GREENSBORO (AP) —A U.S. District Court case brought in an effort to integrate the public school faculty of Asheboro will be heard here in May by Judge Eugene A. Gordon without a jury.

Judge Gordon Friday gave the plaintiff, the North Carolina predominantly Negro Teachers Association, made up of 12,500 members, until March 12 to complete the taking of depositions. He said the final pretrial conference will be held in April. No definite May date was set for the trial.

The association filed the suit last June, asking for an injunction to prevent the Asheboro City Board of Education from dismissing all Negro teachers. The teachers were dismissed when classes were integrated and consolidated in a building which was formerly an all-white school.

Moore's Schedule Announced

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore will go to Richmond, Va., next Saturday to speak at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner of Virginia Democrats.

Another out-of-town trip next week will take the governor to New Bern Thursday evening for a speech at the annual Lay Day Rally of the New Bern District of the Methodist Church.

The governor will speak Sunday at the State Museum at the presentation of a set of Amati musical intsruments to the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Monday at 2:30 p.m., the governor will go to the Research Triangle for the swearing-in of members of the State Board of Science and Technology.

Wednesday afternoon, Moore will attend a meeting in his office of the Learning Institute of North Carolina Board of Directors.

Man Charged In Axe Murder

UNION (AP) — Isaiah Knotts of Rt. 3, Marshville, died early yesterday in a Union hospital of axe wounds.

Deputy Sheriff James Clontz said Elijah Barrino, 45, of Rt. 3, Union, was charged with murder.

Dirksen—Vindictive?

Is Dirksen Seeking Revenge?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Why did Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois single out the Union Shop Bill, among many administration proposals, for the kiss of death?

The answer undoubtedly is a complex one, as could be expected with the Illinois orator whose path through 30-plus years in Congress has been marked by many twists and turns.

But talks with the Republican leader and some of his colleagues indicate that three lines of thought played an important part in his decision to kill this particular bill with the filibuster weapon.

Dirksen has played a major role in winning passage of several of President Johnson's most important measures, including the 1964 and 1965 Civil Rights Bills and last year's Immigration Bill.

And even when he has opposed other "Great Society" proposals, he nearly always has contended himself with a scathing speech and then has permitted the legislation to come to a vote.

But everything changed with the House-passed bill to repeal section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Law and end the authority of states to outlaw the union shop —an authority which his own state of Illinois does not exercise.

These three motive appear to be present:

— His unhappiness over the fate of his proposed Constitutional amendment on state legislative reapportionment, about which he feels as deeply as 14B.

This amendment, aimed at the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision, would allow one branch of a legislature to be apportioned on factors other than population.

— His desire to score with deep - dyed conservatives among Senate Republicans. Some of these have been muttering about his many assists to Johnson, both on foreign and domestic matters.

— His feeling that 14B is an issue with high emotional appeal to many middle-layer businessmen who are the backbone of the GOP in their communities.

Dirksen's success in blocking the 14B repealer has alarmed many Senate Democratic liberals.

One of these warned Mansfield that, "If we let him get away with this, he can use the same weapon against almost any administration bill where he has southern Democrats' support."

Dirksen himself has said that he might employ the same tactics against two other major labor bills asked by Johnson to expand minimum wage protection and to boost unemployment compensation payments.

Feud Developing Between LBJ And Senate Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the air of extreme politeness on all sides, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's hearings on the war in Viet Nam shape up as one of the most abrasive conflicts in recent years between a President and members of his own party.

President Johnson says he doesn't see it that way.

"No one wants to escalate the war and no one wants to lose any more men than is necessary," Johnson said Friday.

"No one wants to surrender and get out. At least no one admits they do. So I don't see that there is any great difference of opinion."

Most members of the committee insist they don't have any intention of trying to undermine Johnson's hand, although one has said an aim of the hearings is to "try to go over the head of the President to the American people."

Johnson says the Senators and the critical witnesses really are endorsing the course he is following.

From what he knew of the testimony of former diplomat George F. Kennan and retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Johnson said, "There is not a great deal of difference" between what they "are saying and what the government is doing."

It is true that the strongest indictments have been of steps taken long ago rather than those of recent date. And the darkest forebodings have been about what may happen, rather than what has happened in the past few months.

It is certainly true also that no one has accused Johnson of "wanting" to escalate the war.

The deep - seated concern crackling through the hearings is that inch by inch, like a toboggan picking up momentun, the United States may be sliding into war with Red China or perhaps even a nuclear showdown with the Soviet Union.

Committee Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who is presiding over the probe of the administration's Asian policy, put it this way:

"I am fearful that if the war in Viet Nam is not handled extremely well, the Chinese Communists will come in."

"We have been inched into this Asiatic morass step-by step," argues Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., "and there are not many steps short of war" with Red China.

And even though Uncle Sam is sitting in the driver's seat, Gavin said, he has not always been in control of acceleration.

"We have been escalating at the will of our opponents rather than on our own judgment," he said.

And under questioning, Foreign Aid Director David E. Bell acknowledged the power to escalate is not the sole property of the United States — that "the other side" could blow the bugle.

But, suggesting that some of the foreign policy critics were also missing the point, Bell asked; "Isn't that always true?"

Johnson, at his news conference Friday, said there are no plans for substantially greater numbers of U. S. troops in Viet Nam but "there will be additional men needed and they will be supplied as Gen. (William C.) Westmoreland is able to use them and as he may require them."

Just how many troops Johnson wouldn't say. But it sounded a little like one of the steps Gore has worried about.

On Thursday Gore said that Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Johnson had given assurances that U. S. combat troops would not be committed to Viet Nam. Gore said he and others on the committee had argued with administration officials in secret sessions about the steps being taken in Viet we seem not to have made a dent."

So far the committee has cross-examined Bell, secretary of State Dean Rusk and presented the views of Kennan and Gavin.

Fulbright argues the hearings are meant to be educational, that he doesn't consider himself a "great critic," that he doesn't think he is embarrassing the administration and that "it is an unhappy situation to appear to be obstructing your own government — I hope I am not."

Will Lyndon Run In '68?

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is increasing speculation among Democratic liberals in Congress that President Johnson may not seek a second elective term in 1968—an idea not widely shared among political pros as a whole.

But although the idea of Johnson's voluntarily stepping down seems far-fetched to veteran tacticians of both parties some of those in the vanguard of the critical assaults on Johnson's course in Viet Nam are telling each other it could happen.

They base their belief on these premises:

— That despite an enlarged U. S. military commitment the unpopular war is likely to drag on into the Presidential election year without any definitive signs that it can be ended successfully.

— that what they think is voter disillusionment with the President's current policies is likely to bring a Republica resurgence in this year's Congressional races that will make it considerably more difficult for Johnson to obtain cooperation from the legislative branch.

— Finally, that Johnson might prefer to leave his landslide victory of 1964 and his domestic leadership since as a watermark on history rather than to risk the kind of razor-edge victory by which Woodrow Wilson won a second term in 1916.

The liberals are reluctant to concede it but their current fury over the manner in which Johnson has ignored their advice on Viet Nam probably has influenced the assumptions they are making.

Johnson Pondering

On the other hand, a frequent White House visitor said that Johnson prefaces many of his selling talks on projects for which he is seeking Congressional support with the statement that "I am not a candidate for anything, I'm not running for office."

No vice-president who succeeded to the top job has ever had a second elective term. Theodore Roosevelt rejected the idea but later changed his mind and tried unsuccessfully again after a lapse of four years.

After him, Calvin Coolidge and Harry S. Truman turned down the chance for a second election try.

If this is an American tradition, then political strategists think Johnson is just the man who would like to break it. They noted also that if Johnson should win a second term and serve it out, he would have been president longer than any man except his idol, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

These strategists do not believe that Johnson would quit voluntarily in the middle of unfinished business in Viet Nam, nor do they believe he would be likely to be defeated if he runs again during a war.

They say also he would hardly be enthusiastic about having Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., become a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination to succeed him.

Johnson is giving Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, whom he chose as his 1964 runningmate after rejecting Kennedy, a chance to sun himself in the political spotlight by sending him to Saigon and other areas in Asia.

But if Johnson has any idea of backing Humphrey to succeed him, politicans generally think he may need more time to build up the Vice President's voter popularity than the less than two years remaining before the 1968 preconvention campaigning starts.

For these and other reasons, most of the pros are convinced that when 1968 rolls around the familiar name of Johnson will be on the ticket again.

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Sunday and Monday

BEEF NIGHTS

Rare Roast Beef, Thick Slice

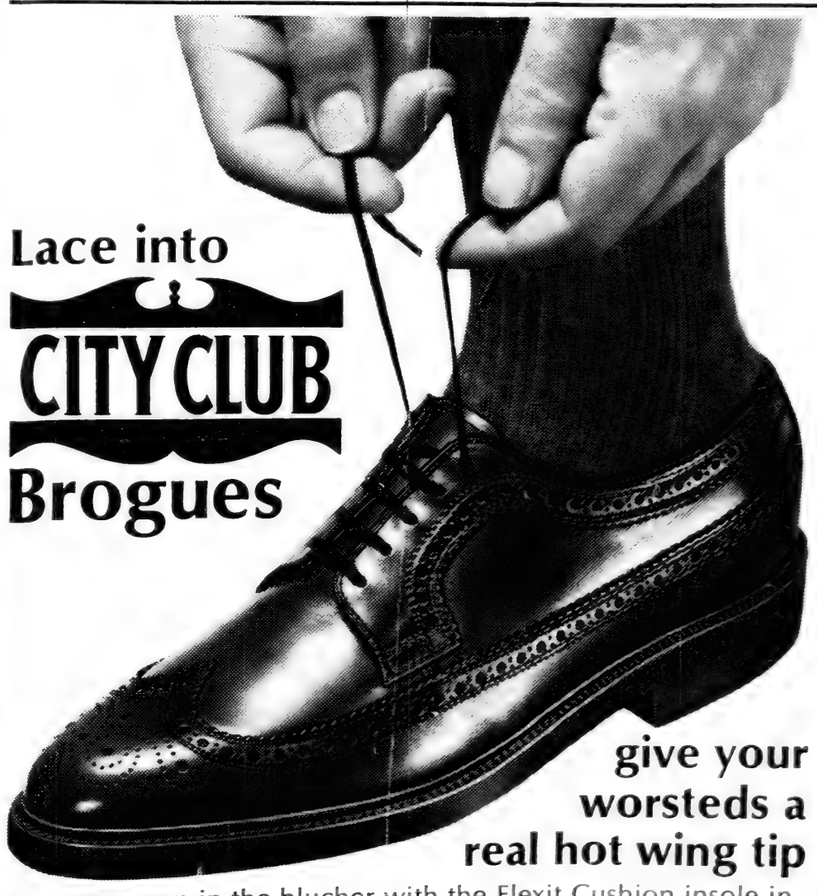
Baked Potato with Sour Cream Dressing

Tossed Green Salad

Rolls and Butter

$1.25

Serving 5:00-7:15



Lace into CITY CLUB Brogues

give your worsteds a real hot wing tip

Get a move on in the blucher with the Flexit Cushion insole inside. Outside everything's smoothed over in smooth black forest or black cherry or black calf. City Club Shoes $15.00 to $24.00.

Wouldn't you like to be in our shoes? Most of America is. International Shoe Co., St. Louis, Mo

Available at these fine stores:

R. E. Bell Co. 711 East Davis St. Burlington, N. C.

Griffin Shoes Eutaw Shpg. Ctr. Fayetteville, N. C.

Foremost Shoes Oxford, N. C.

Clip Me Out

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF FEBRUARY 14

Zoom Zoom

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Luncheon Specials 99¢

MONDAY
Country Style Steak
two vegetables, salad, bread

TUESDAY
Chicken Cacciatore
two vegetables, salad, bread

WEDNESDAY
Beef Parmegiana
WITH SPAGHETTI
salad, bread

THURSDAY
Spaghetti
With MEAT SAUCE
salad, bread

FRIDAY
Roulade
With SOUR CREAM or
Filet of Flounder
With CREAM SAUCE
salad, bread

NIGHT SPECIALS

Tuesday, 7 & 8:30 P.M.
ALL YOU CAN EAT
Spaghetti . . . $1.10
With MEAT SAUCE including salad, bread, tea or coffee

Thursday, 7:30-8:30 P.M.
SPECIAL
½ Price Pizza
Peperoni or Plain
104 W. Franklin St.

Clip Me Out

Intramural Clipboard

With Bill Hass

The Pi Kappa Phi Baena captured the fraternity division's volleyball championship by beating Phi Delt Blue this week, 11-8, 1-12, 10-5. Members of the winning team are Lou Bunte, John Wainir, Buddy Sensenbach, Alf Pike, Dick Watson, Bill Early, John Falconer, Bob Whtie and Tim Carr.

In the graduate division, the Med School Reds took the title by downing Navy I, 9-7, 5-7, 5-3. Jim Rhyne, George Lothian, Bob Whitley, Sam Harris, Allen Whitaker, Morris Williams, and Bud Thompson comprise the Med team.

The Teague Toughs won the residence hall championship last week. The three teams will play to determine the campus all-championship sometime after next week.

There will be no fraternity action in intramurals this wek due to rush. Residence hall and graduate leagues will carry on as usual, however.

* * *

Entries are due for intramural bowling on Thursday, Feb. 17. Only one team can be accepted from each organization. Four players will make up a team with as many alternates as desired.

Competition will be on a single elimination basis. Matches will consist of four points, one for each winning game and one for total pin fall in the three games. A fourth game will be rolled in case of a 2-2 tie.

Site of the tournament has not yet been selected.

* * *

There were a handful of basketball games played on Friday. The Everett Hustlers got 20 points from Tim Mullinay and Bryce Beard in a 65-22 win over the Aycock Addaxes.

The Ruffin Rapiers nudged Grimes, 39-35, behind the 18 points of Bircher and Lea's 11. Hal Hassenfelt collected 16 for Grimes.

The Mangum Mugs topped the Manly Riverrats, 54-44. Sam Hardison had 14 points, Frank Harris 13 and Bill Sessoms 11 for Mangum. Jerry Clark and Gene Clark had 12 each and Gene Coley 11 for the Rats. the Old West Studs, 53-47.

The Alexander Pharoahs got 17 points from Bob Becket and 15 from Norwood Selby in beating the Alexander Mooses, 55-45. Don Staley hit for 17 points for the Mooses.

The Ruffin Raiders downed the Mangum Mites, 52-47, with Harrington scoring 16 points and Smith 13. All 11 players scored for the Mites, but except for Bob Hobgood's 14 and Keith Drum's 13, no one had over five points.

Carolina's Comeback Falls Short; VPI Gobblers Down UNC, 81-75

CAROLINA'S BOB LEWIS fires from the outside during the opening minutes of last night's VPI tilt. Looking on are VPI men Dan Wetzel (50) and Ted Ware (30). —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

By GENE WHISNANT
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's second half comeback fell short last night to a strong VPI team, 81-75.

The Tar Heels down 35-26 at half-time tied Gobblers at 11:52 of the second half on Miller's follow shot, 47-47.

However, Ted Ware hit a bucket for VPI with only 3:33 remaining to put them back in the lead for good.

John Wetzel was the big gun for the winners with 21 points and 11 rebounds.

He got scoring support from Bob King, VPI's 6-11 pivotman, and Ted Ware, both with 17 points each.

Carolina suffering only their second loss in Carmichael Auditorium was led in scoring by Larry Miller with 25 and Bob Lewis with 22.

Bob Bennett added support with 15 points and 10 rebounds.

VPI jumped off to 6-0 lead in the opening minutes and coach Smith's men shooting only 34.4 % in the first half were not able to overcome the taller Gobblers.

The Gobblers shoot an even 50% in the first half.

The Tar Heels improved their shooting somewhat in the second half with a 56.7% lead by Larry Miller.

Overall, Carolina hit 28 of 62 shots from the floor for 45.2%. On the foul line they hit 19 of 29.

VPI hit 33 of 71 from the floor for a 46.5% and 15 for 25 from the line.

Smith said after the game, "We had a great effort against a real fine team."

"We played an awfully good basketball game the first half except for our shooting."

"Miller did a tremendous job. So, did Bennett."

"Except for the shooting, this is one of our best games."

The first half had only 8 personal fouls called, four on each team; however, there were 30 fouls called in the second half with 15 on each team.

The win gives the Gobblers a 16-4 record for the season, while the Tar Heels drop to a 12-8 season record.

Since Carolina beat Maryland and Wake Forest, they had alternated wins and defeats for seven straight games.

However this defeat coupled with the 83-78 loss to NYU breaks the string.

The Tar Heels's next game will be against the N. C. State Wolfpack, Tuesday night in Raleigh.

This game will decide who takes over second place in the ACC race.

At halftime, the Junior trotters from Spartanburg, S. C. entertained the fans with a great display of ball handling.

The Junior Trotters range in age from 11 to 17 years old.

They have appeared at numerous high schools and colleges from Florida to New York.

These teenage "wizards" with a basketball have been recommended for the NCAA National Finals to be held at College Park, Md.

Too Much Tech!

UNC Player	FG	FT	Reb	TP
Yokley	1-1	0-1	1	2
Gauntlett	1-8	1-1	4	3
Lewis	8-18	6-11	8	22
Miller	10-19	5-6	8	25
Bennett	5-12	5-6	10	15
Mirken	1-2	2-4	1	4
Moe	1-1	0-0	2	2
Smithwick	1-1	0-0	0	2
	28-62	19-29	34	75

VPI Player	FG	FT	Reb	TP
Perry	5-9	0-1	4	10
Combs	1-6	2-3	4	4
Wetzel	9-20	3-5	11	21
Ware	8-12	1-2	9	17
King	7-14	3-5	11	17
Martin	3-7	6-9	4	12
Brown	0-3	0-0	1	0
	33-71	15-25	44	81

CAROLINA	26	49	— 75
VPI	35	46	— 81

Searching For Top Soph? Set Your Sights On Miller

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

One of the toughest tasks imaginable would be to try to determine the most-heralded sophomore ever to play in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Certainly no player has ever been more talked about than Bob Lewis after his sensational freshman year at Carolina. And how about Duke's Art Heyman and Jeff Mullins, or Wake Forest's Len Chappell and Bob Leonard?

The difficulty of the job would skirt the realm of impossibility. But if you undertook it you couldn't go far wrong by starting with Larry Miller, Carolina's soph ace whose play has brought more people to their feet than all the tacks that have ever been placed in the teacher's chair.

Here is a young man who was the most sought-after high school player in the nation at this time two years ago. He scored better than 30 points per game for his hometown high school in Catasauqua, Pa.

But the real eye-catchers one spots when reviewing his high school record are the facts that he once scored 65 points in a game and went as high as 45 rebounds. That's in 32 minutes, too.

Then Larry came to Carolina last year and, although playing against much tougher opposition, hardly broke stride in piling up a 32.9 scoring average and leading the frosh club in rebounds.

Newspapers said that Miller would team with Bob Lewis to form one of the top scoring tandems in the nation. But in his first game — surrounded by a frenzied mob of opposition in Clemson Field House — he was a hesitant, unsure sophomore, who seemed to be holding something back.

Whatever he held back then, however, he turned loose like water over Niagara five nights later in Columbus against Ohio State.

UNC led by 70-64 with just over three minutes left when Larry, who had already scored 24 points, blitzed the Buckeyes for nine more points to sew up the 82-72 Tar Heel win.

So tremendous was Miller's last-few-minutes scorch, that Tobacco Sports Radio Network broadcaster Bill Currie, who airs all Tar Heel games, exclaimed:

"People, this performance by Larry Miller is the most amazing one that I have ever seen for such a short amount of time! I saw Dick Groat (former All-America) have some great halves of basketball when he was at Duke, and I've seen a lot of other great players put on some great exhibitions. But tonight Miller took a whole half and wrapped it up into about four or five minutes! He pulled his team from the very brink of defeat, he won this game when it seemed that the Tar Heels were dying, and with this game he has certainly reached the super-star status which was predicted of him!"

"Mills," as his teammates call him, has averaged 22.4 points per game thus far in the first season of his varsity career, and he has been as consistent in his scoring as you could ever hope to see.

He has been over 30 points only twice (33 and 32), but on the other hand, he has been below 20 just four times, getting 14 twice, 16 and 17. Larry hit over 20 points for nine straight games earlier in the season, between being held to 14 each against Vanderbilt and Virginia.

Besides his scoring prowess, Larrupin' Larry — who stands only 6-3 — is a double figure rebounder, and one of the toughest defensemen around. Larry says:

"I can't get in a 'raw' battle with a team like Duke with much taller and heavier players. It's mostly a matter of 'boxing out.' I just have to get position on the taller men, go as high as I can, and hope the ball doesn't fall his way. There's a lot of luck in it, too."

One of Miller's best games was his effort in the Duke game. Duke won, 88-77, but Larry bulled his way up through the arms and bodies of the tall and husky Duke frontliners for 27 points and 11 rebounds, causing Blue Devil Coach Vic Bubas to remark:

"This Miller is so strong. Several times he would go up in there under the basket and one of our boys would get a hand on the ball. But he's so powerful, he just pushed the ball on by and into the basket. He will be a real good one."

Miller feels that perhaps his best defensive game was against Maryland's Jay McMillen when Carolina played the Terps in Carmichael Auditorium. McMillen averaged over 16 points coming into the game, but Larry held him to just three.

"I was 'up' for McMillen, because he was from Pennsylvania," Larry said, "but even though I probably over-played him, a lot of credit has to be given to the rest of the team. We play a team defense, and sometimes I'll leave my man to try to surprise the man with the ball. Then it is somebody else's responsibility to pick him up."

Coach Dean Smith, who recruited Miller, says of his muscular all-purpose performer: "Larry is the complete ball player, and it's nice to know that he will improve over what he is now in the next two years. Larry does so many jobs for us, that it seems as if he would be too tired to go so hard on offense and score the way he does."

But Miller has always had to assume the role of leader, and he says that he is ". . . thankful for the God-given talent to take that responsibility. But this is a real team, and we do everything kind of together."

And so it goes. People keep watching Larry Miller play basketball and they keep saying that he is ". . . at least ONE of the best sophomores in the nation," and they keep saying that he has played just as good this year as could be asked of a player of any amount of experience.

But as the Tar Heels' chartered plane approached its landing point in Charlottesville about a month ago. Larry sat on the edge of his seat thumping out a beat on his knees with his hands and singing "You don't know me baby . . . like I know myself . . ."

And if, as he professes, Larry Miller has not yet fully played up to his potential — watch out world, for two more years.

Frosh Repulse Goblet Bid With Grubar Leading Way

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Dick Grubar spearheaded an early second-half UNC breakaway and shot in his highest point total of the season to spark the Tar Babies to their twelfth straight win, 86-74 over VPI's Goblets.

Grubar came on strong in the final period for 19 points, running his game-high total to 27. He maneuvered for a number of steals, took about ten points off his own total with give-away assists, and scored three baskets in one minute which broke his team away from a 44-42 lead and sent it on its way. He hit 12-of-14 shots as the Babies were an amazing 65.5 percent accurate from the floor.

Gerald Tuttle joined Grubar in a flashy floor performance. As an illustration, when Grubar hit his three quick baskets to open it up, Tuttle aided two of them with sharp assists.

The breaking point came with 16:31 left in the game when Grubar hit his streak, but another key factor presented itself a minute earlier when Virgina Tech's standout guard, Chris Ellis, fouled out of the game. Ellis, an 18.1 averager and a competitor who had shown his worth in the first period with some slick playmaking, had scored two quick Tech baskets to cut the Babies' lead to 41-38. After he left, UNC had its way in practically every phase of play.

The starters, plus Jim Bostick and Bill Dodson, ran up their largest margin — 23 points — at 84-61 with 4:34 left. Then Coach Larry Brown opened the gates of mercy by emptying his bench, and VPI was able to cut the final margin in the remaining time.

Rusty Clark backed Grubar's terrific performance with 22 points, hitting 9-of-10 shots, and snatched 16 rebounds. Ken Talley, VPI's 6-6 center, grabbed 17 caroms. Joe Brown made seven of his eight field goal tries for 14 points.

For the Goblets, who placed five men in double figures, Stan Kerrick was high with 16.

VPI hit just 39.7 per cent from the floor, and was outrebounded by UNC, 47-35.

The game began as a close struggle, and stayed that way until Grubar's blitz broke it open with 16:31 left in the game.

Guard W. R. Deskins hit the game's first basket to put the Techbabes into a 2-0 lead just 11 seconds after the match started. But Carolina ran off seven straight points before the visitors rebounded with six straight of theri own, taking a 12-11 lead at 14:07.

A length-of-the-court pass from Tuttle to Joe Brown for a layup at 11:40 gave the Tar Babies an 18-16 lead, and they after.

Tech stayed close, Kerrick's basket with 2:12 left in the first half making his team's deficit just 34-32. But Tuttle tossed in a one-hander, and then Dodson bagged a free throw and passed to Brown for a layup to open up a 39-32 lead. It was 39-34 at the half.

With 16:31 left in the game, Grubar hit a drive shot, took a Tuttle pass for a layup at 16:04, and then Gerald stole the ball and hit Dick in the clear for a basket which made it 50-42 at 15:34.

With 7:31 left, Grubar gave up an easy basket, passing to Clark in the lane for a two-pointer. Then, on the next exchange, Clark returned the compliment in almost the exact same manner. Seconds later, Grubar took a Tuttle pass and was in the clear for another easy two, but flipped the ball back over the defender's head to Tuttle, who was trailing, for one of the top plays of the game.

Tricky Dickie!

UNC Player	FG	FT	Reb	TP
Tuttle	3-5	0-1	2	6
Grubar	12-14	3-5	3	27
Bunting	3-12	2-3	9	8
Brown	7-8	0-4	7	14
Clark	9-10	4-8	16	22
Bostick	1-3	0-0	3	2
Dodson	1-2	1-2	0	3
Royall	0-0	0-0	0	0
Rindfleisch	1-2	0-0	1	2
Camnitz	1-1	0-0	3	2
Harrison	0-0	0-1	0	0
Adams	0-1	0-0	0	0
	38-58	10-24	44	86

VPI Player	FG	FT	Reb	TP
Ellis	6-9	0-1	3	12
Deskins	5-10	0-2	0	10
Wagner	4-14	5-6	7	13
Kerrick	5-9	6-7	4	16
Talley	3-14	3-7	17	9
Jones	3-10	4-4	0	10
O'Donnell	1-2	0-0	0	2
Herbert	0-0	2-2	0	2
	27-58	20-29	31	74

CAROLINA	39	47	— 86
VPI	34	40	— 74

Who Will Win ACC Tourney?

By JIMMY FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

The 1965-'66 basketball season is drawing quickly to a close. In fact, in two and one-half weeks, the season will be history.

As the season comes to a close, it's only natural that coaches, players and fans alike begin to think about the ACC Tournament to be played in Raleigh on March 3, 4, and 5.

Here are a few comments from some Carolina students on how they feel the Tar Heels will fare in the tournament:

Karen Hahn, grad. student—"I think we'll win. We've done it before and we can do it again."

Bo Hitchcock, soph.—"It's going to be tough to beat Duke. I think we'll finish second, but you can't overlook State. They are always tough."

Joe Mann, frosh.—"In my heart, I think we'll win, but in my mind, I know Duke will."

Mickey Reedy, sr.—"They'll probably finish second."

Joan Byrum, soph.—"I hope we do real well, but I don't know that much about basketball to say whether or not we'll win."

Sprite Barbee, fr.—"The only way we can win the tournament is to paint the whole coliseum Carolina blue."

Susan Milton, grad.—"If they are having a good night they can beat anybody, but otherwise, anybody can beat them on an off night."

Bill Robinson, sr.—"I believe we'll get to the semi-finals, but we'll get beat there because I don't forsee any great finishing streak like last year."

Bobby Bunce, sr.—"I think they'll give Duke a run for their money, but I believe Duke will win in the end."

Carol Combs, grad. — "I think we had better worry about finishing the regular season first before we start thinking about the tournament."

Temple Grassi, fr.—"I think we'll come in second to Duke, but you better watch out for Virginia because they have a bad habit of getting hot just when you aren't expecting it."

UNC Matmen Defeat Devils

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

The varsity and freshmen matmen experienced their finest hour against the Duke grapplers yesterday in Carmichael Auditorium.

Barnes' boys served the Blue Devils a scrumptious 28-8 defeat. And frosh Coach Grover Wilhoit bubbled over with excitement after a 28-11 victory.

Coach Barnes summed up the afternoon by saing, "It's the worst beating Duke has suffered at our hands in 20 years. And a Duke freshman team has never experienced a greater licking."

UNC's Bill Cook started the varsity rolling with a 9-0 shutout over Duke's Place in the 137 division.

Duke remained scoreless after the 145 pound match as Tar Heel Captain Roy Hagerty wrestled with near perfection.

Lane Verlenden wrestled a 152 pound match against the Devil's Lavine. His performance was the most beautiful of his career.

Jay Jacobson (160) and Alen Marshall (167) won their fifth and third matches respectively of the season.

The most notable victory of the afternoon came in the 177 division. Carolina's Fred Priester defeated Darling, last year's ACC runner up, by a point total of 6-2.

Duke's O'Brian pinned Ken Galloway in the heavyweight match with 3:44 on the clock.

The Tar Heels are now 5-4 on the season.

For the freshmen: Tar Baby Broadfoot pinned his opponent in the 123 division. UNC's Johnston (130), Leon (137), Lyons (152), Steel (160), and Wanzer (177 all chalked up victories. Four out of the five grapplers pinned their men.

The frosh now have a season record of 6-1.

Terps Top Dolphins

UNC's Dolphins fell to the powerful Maryland swimmers 57-37 Friday night at College Park, Md.

The freshmen swim team managed to do considerably better — defeating the Maryland frosh 63-32.

University Staffers To Attend Meeting

Four University staff members will attend the third annual meeting of the Southern Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators Wednesday and Thursday in Atlanta.

Dr. Julian Mason, director of the office of student aid; Mrs. Eleanor Morris, assistant director; Everett Hampton, University loan officer; and Mrs. Opal West, administrative assistant, will all be present.

Dr. Mason is membership chairman for the association in North Carolina.

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographing
Xerox
150 E. Franklin
Over Sutton's Drugs
942-5325

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS
SEE US for MONEY!
Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.
Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

-LA PIZZA SPECIAL-
MONDAY NIGHT
Small PIZZA
One Ingredient Salad
$1.25
Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

The works

This week in the Old Book Feature Case
Science Books in German—
This clump were red hot stuff in World War II days —Now they're only mementos historical breakthroughs.
We're tired of 'em, and they are priced to go—we hope!
19c each
The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

LOVE, LUST, ADVENTURE!
M-G-M presents A JOHN FORD-BERNARD SMITH PRODUCTION
7 women
ANNE BANCROFT
SUE LYON · MARGARET LEIGHTON
FLORA ROBSON · MILDRED DUNNOCK
BETTY FIELD · ANNA LEE and EDDIE ALBERT
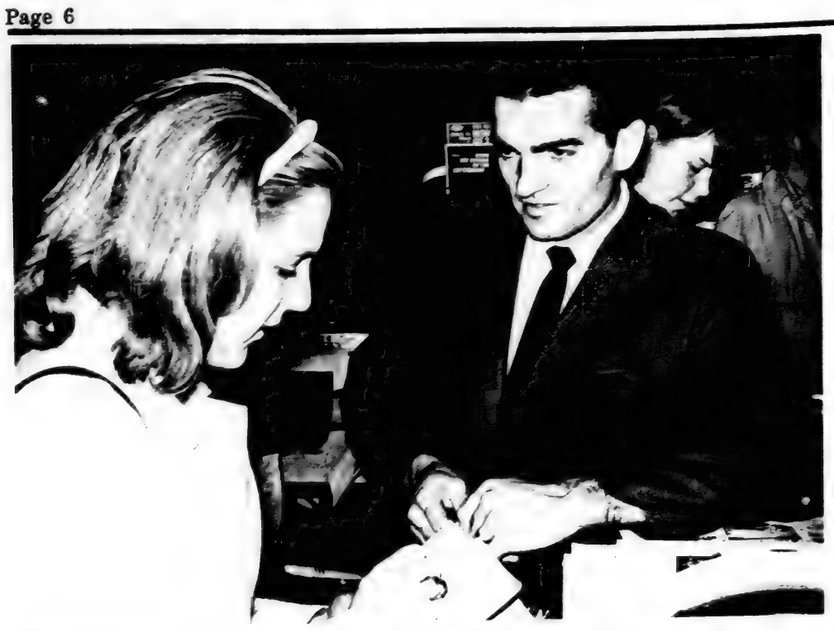
Panavision Metrocolor
Shows at: 1:30—3:20
5:10—7:00—9:00
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

Books for Fluttering Hearts
You can find them at the Intimate — everything from the Rubaiyat to Cardiovascular Dynamics.
If your palpitations are caused by fluttering eyelashes, chum, you need to make a visit to our Valentine's Gift Book display.
There you'll find the best of the collectins of love poems, sonnets and sentimental fooferaw, at prices from only $1.00 up. And be sure to have the clerk do it up for you in our Intimate Valentine's wrappings.
The condition, we hear, is incurable, so why fight it? Just pass it on.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.



BOB ENGEMANN, of the Lettermen, talks to DTH reporter Carol Gallant during their visit to Chapel Hill last Friday. The Lettermen made an appearance at the Record Bar where they spent the afternoon talking with students. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Lettermen Hit Hill

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

Tony, Jim and Bob—nice all-American names for three nice clean-cut all-American type guys. Ask anyone who was in the Record Bar Friday where they were autographing their albums and flashing toothy smiles to teen-age girls who stood around nervously admiring the trio, and they'll probably say, "Really nice guys."

Now I can remember the day when I stood grinning idiotically at some idol who happened to smile back at me, and I knew it was love. College girls, of course, are long past the age of being nervous in the presence of three good-looking, wealthy, famous men. Uh . . . yes.

One interesting thing about these guys is that they are down-to-earth, and chat comfortably and agreeable with any Tom, Dick or Carol that walks up.

Jim Pike, Bob Engemann and Tony Butala are really lettermen, which seems somehow appropriate. Bob lettered in both baseball and football in Van Nuys, California. Jim Pike starred at halfback in football and played guard on the basketbal team in high school in Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Tony won laurels in baseball and track in his native Sharon, Penn.

All had individual careers in show business before teaming up. Jim had appeard at Hollywood's Moulin Rouge with Louis Prima and Kely Smith, Bob had been heard with Lawrence Welk's Orchestra and Tony had previously organized The Fourmosts, the group which featured Connie Stevens.

Jim and Bob met at Brigham Young University. Tony was at UCLA. Bob moved to California, met Connie, then Tony, Jim then came to "The Golden State," and a group called the Lettermen began a soft mellow, "group sound" that made them successful six years running. Their first hit was "The Way You Look Tonight" in 1961 followed closely by "When I Fall In Love."

You guys who don't really put a lot of money in albums like "Love With The Lettermen," may not be aware of the album sound these guys offer. It is definitely of the "soft, candle-light (soft candlelight?) variety, best listened to in the twilight hour or while studying for a Zoo quiz. In stage performances the group becomes more active, and usually begin with a zippy little rendition of "Hey Look Me Over." Having seen them once on stage, I can attest to their showmanship. Every girl in the audience was sure they were singing to her. They have a good sense of humor and enjoy satiring the singing styles of other groups.

The Lettermen say they have a deep respect for songs and the people that write them; therefore, they are determined to do a good job with every song thy sing.

What do they like the most about their work? They enjoy the money, the singing and meeting the people. The novelty of travel, however, has completely worn off, especially for Bob who would like to spend more time with his wife and six-month old boy.

The Lettermen will probably go on for quite a while because love just doesn't seem to go out of style, and their style appeals especially to those caught up in their particular type of emotional frenzy.

Also, as long as two of them remain single, those girls will keep flocking in, smiling of course.

Chancellor Sharp Put On Education Commission

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp who becomes president of Drake University in Iowa on March 1, has been placed on the American Council on Education's commission on "Plans and Objectives for Higher Education" in the United States.

The American Council on Education is the largest organization of colleges and universities in the nation, numbering more than 1,300 institutions of higher learning.

The commission to which Dr. Sharp has been appointed is conducting a review of graduate study and graduate education.

Dr. Sharp, in his new duties with the American Council on Education which he will deal with from his new position at Drake University, will be concerned with a report on the evolving statewide systems of higher education. He will also work with the commission in a continuing study of liberal arts education.

Chancellor Sharp's appointment with the American Council on Education is for two years, from 1966 through 1968.

Dr. Sharp resigned as chancellor of the University here in January, effective February 15. He will assume his new duties at Des Moines, Iowa, in the next two weeks.

He has been chancellor at Chapel Hill since September, 1964, and prior to that time was president of Hiram College in Ohio. He has taught at a number of mid-western universities, conspicuously the University of Wisconsin. He is a historian, with emphasis on the Northwest region of the United States and of Canada.

He will be succeeded as chancellor on Feb. 16 by Kenan Professor of History J. Carlyle Sitterson, now vice chancellor who will become acting chancellor. A faculty committee has been appointed to advise on Chancellor Sharp's permanent successor.

Martyrs, Maters Valentines' Origin

By JIM COGHILL
DTH Staff Writer

Valentine's Day, 1966, will have the same significance as the first Valentine's Day did some 1700 years ago—the affection and love for friends and sweethearts.

Just who is responsible for Valentine's Day is really unknown, but legend provides several possibilities.

One possibility goes back to St. Valentine, the patron saint of lovers who was martyred in Rome on Feb. 14, 269, by Caludius II in his persecution of the Christians. This legend became intermingled with another martyr, and bishop of the same name who lived some 50 miles northeast of Rome.

Another legend holds that a young Roman by the name of Valentinus originated the occasion. For giving aid to the Christian martyrs, he was imprisoned and sentenced to death by Caludius II. While awaiting execution, he befriended the blind daughter of the jailor and restored her sight.

On the night before he died Valentinus pinned a farewell message to the young girl who had meant so much to him and signed it "From your Valentine." Valentinus was put to death on Feb. 14 in the third century A. D. Near his grave a pink almond three, a symbol of abiding love, is said to have bloomed after his death.

It is said that to these legends only accidental connections can be associated to Valentine's Day and the real origin is owed to the conventional medieval belief, generally held in England and France, that on Feb. 14 the birds begin to mate.

Although religious at first, by the 14th century, Valentine's Day had become institutionalized with a non-religious significance.

After postal systems had been established, the sending of homemade valentines usually in verse and tender in nature, but sometimes comic and even coarse became widespread.

Although the origin of Valentine's Day has not definitely been determined, love & affection for friends and lovers is the prevalent theme from all sources observing this day reserved for those you love and think of most.

Campus Events

TODAY

The Wesley Foundation, 214 Pittsboro Street, will present a service of worship for the University Community at 11 a.m. Banks Godfrey, Jr. will deliver the sermon "The Conscience of Freedom."

Hillel presents a Sunday Supper Social at 5:30 p.m. This week's theme: "Taka Knap." Supper, music, dancing and conversation. All are welcome. Call 942-4057 between 3 and 5 p.m. Sunday for reservations.

Graduate Christian Fellowship at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. W. L. Sloan, 212 W. University Drive. There will be a discussion on Group Prayer led by Mrs. Frederick Brooks.

The Carolina Political Union will meet Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room to elect officers for next year.

Caldwell 304 at 10 p.m. Steering Committee of Grad. Committee for Free Inquiry. All grads unrepresented come at 9:30 p.m.

Rides for ZBT Rush will be leaving every half-hour from the Scuttlebut from 3-6 p.m.

At 4 p.m. the Wesley Foundation will sponsor a Sunday Afternoon Symposium—War in the Rise of American Civilization: A Film, The Orozco Murals with interpretation following the showing by Professor William Geer and The Reverend Tom Davis.

La Boheme by Giacomo Puccini, will be presented by the Music Department at 8 p.m. Sunday and Monday nights in Hill Hall. It will be a fully - staged production. General admission, $1.00.

LSA Supper followed by Universal Day of Prayer Service Sunday night. "The Bicycle Thief" will be the Free Flick Sunday evening. Italian dialogue with English sub-titles. The story of an ordinary man buffeted by an indifferent world.

SUNDAY

Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

APO Business Meeting in Delta Room of Chase Cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

Interviews will be held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. for positions on the Student Government secretariat. Coeds applying should see Sherry O'Donnell, Student Body Secretary, in Student Government offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

Mandatory meeting of State Student Legislature Meeting in Roland Parker I from 4 to 5 p.m.

The Toronto Exchange will have a short but important meeting at 5 p.m. in GM.

UNC Blonds Have Chance To Visit NY

Is it true blonds have more fun? No one can say for sure except you courageous girls that have experimented with the idea.

For those of you that have succumbed to the temptation to have golden blond tresses, bottled or not, or those of you who are toying with the idea, there is an opportunity to start with the "more fun" bit right now by winning a three-day trip to New York.

The Aesthetic Beauty Salon has announced that Mrs. Lisa Hilliard is eligible for the Supreme Hair-Styling Contest in New York, March 15-17. To be eligible for this international contest, a beauty parlor operator must win a first place state trophy, which Mrs. Hilliard won in Raleigh, Feb. 6.

Mrs. Georgia Rogers, also of the Aesthetic, won the all-state trophy in 1964, and a first place state trophy in 1961. She also will be entering the contest in New York.

Mrs. Hilliard and Mrs. Rogers will be selecting their models for the contest from their customers. They are interested in (pardon the expression) "bleached blonds," and they will each take their best "blond" with them to New York in March.

If any coeds are interested in being considered for the trip, call one of these operators for an appointment.

—Aptheker—

(Continued from Page 1)

Other works by Aptheker in Negro Slave Revolts"; "Dare We Be Free," which is a description of the meaning of the attempt to outlaw the Communist Party; "A Documentary History of the Negro People in the U.S."; "Essays in the History of the American Negro"; "History and Reality"; "The Labor Movement in the South During Slavery"; and "Laureates of Imperialism."

Also, "The Negro in the Abolitionist Movement"; "The Negro in the American Revolution"; "The Negro in the Civil War"; "The Negro People in America"; "Negro Slave Revolts in the U.S. 1528-1860"; "The Negro Today"; "Some of the Republic: The Negro Today"; "To Be Free: Studies in American Negro History"; "Toward Negro Freedom"; and "The World of C. Wright Mills."

100,000 VOLUNTEERS

More than 100,000 North Carolinians are serving as Heart Association volunteers during the 1966 Heart Fund Campaign.

La Boheme Here Tonight

BOHEMIANS DRINK a toast at the outdoor Cafe Momus, a scene from the second act of the Department of Music's production of La Boheme, playing tonight and Monday in Hill Hall. From the left are Ken Smith as Colline, Jeff Ishee as Marcello, Wayne Zarr as Rudolfe, Marylin Burris as Mimi, and Joel Adams as Schaunard.

SG Invited To Meetings

Carolina Student Government has received invitations for delegates from the Carolina campus to five student conferences around the country.

Towson State College, in Baltimore, Md., is presenting an International Relations Conference March 4-6.

Registration fee will be $15. Delegates will pay the registration fee and the college and arrange accomodations.

The University of Texas in Austin will hold its fifth annual Challenge Colloquium Feb. 25 and 26 on the topic of "Campus in Ferment."

Registration fee is $5, and will cover housing and a buffet.

The Conference on International Affairs at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., will consider the topic "Pax Americana," March 3-5. A registration fee of $10 will cover housing and some of the meals.

MIT, in Cambridge, Mass., will sponsor an Intercollegiate conference on "Urban Challenge" April 13-16.

A registration fee of $15 will cover meals and lodging for four days, and a reimbursement for the cost of transportation over $30 will be given.

A student seminar on "Congress and American Foreign Policy" will be held in Washington, D. C., July 4-26.

Cost for board, room, and tuition is $270.

Students wishing to attend the conferences should see Presidential Assistant Bob Wilson in the Student Government offices between 2 and 5 p.m. on weekdays.

Death Decrease Causes Need For Birth Control

Attitudes toward birth control are changing, according to Dr. Philip R. Lee, assistant secretary of health and scientific affairs for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"Birth control pills are widely used, he said. "From 1962 to 1964 their use more than doubled. There is a rapid acceptance of birth control techniques."

Lee said about $23 million was allocated by the federal government for birth control programs. But he said there is a shortage of funds in some programs but more funds are being considered. "The attitude of the Congress is changing toward this, as well as the opinion of the general public."

The speaker said the pace of the change has been greatly affected by volunteer agencies, public information, researchers who have taken part in programs and the promotion of contraceptive products.

He said Roman Catholics in general now strongly support planned parenthood programs supported by public funds even though they don't completely use it themselves.

Lee said birth control programs became necessary because the death rate fell while the birth rate remained constant.

Katharine Gibbs Memorial Scholarships

* * *

Full tuition for one year plus $500 cash grant

Open to senior women interested in business careers as assistants to administrators and executives.

Outstanding training. Information now available at the College Placement Bureau.

* * *

21 Marlborough St., BOSTON, MASS. 02116
200 Park Ave., NEW YORK, N. Y. 10017
33 Plymouth St., MONTCLAIR, N. J. 07042
77 S. Angell St., PROVIDENCE, R. I. 02906

Katharine Gibbs SECRETARIAL

Missing

Electric Cigarette Lighter

Will the person who took the Electric Cigarette Lighter from Dutch Auction Sale display at Wentworth & Sloan, please return it, in order to avoid embarrassment?

Wentworth & Sloan JEWELERS

167 East Franklin Street

To Tell You the Truth – I'd Rather You Buy My Gift at KoKo's

Formfit-Rogers 2.00

KoKo's Lingerie

Eastgate Shopping Center

RANCH HOUSE

CHUCK WAGON BUFFET

4 MEATS 6 VEGETABLES
6 SALADS, BEVERAGE, DESSERT

ALL YOU CAN EAT 2.95

CAROLINA

RICHARD BURTON PETER O'TOOLE HAL WALLIS' BECKET

PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR A PARAMOUNT RELEASE

WED., FEB. 16

KEMP'S GREATEST! CONTINUED AT $2.25

– Per Record –

ALL DAY SATURDAY...FEBRUARY 12

SUNDAY . . . 1 P.M. TIL 8 P.M.

All Records — Mono & Stereo . . . All Labels—All Stocks

NOTHING HELD BACK THIS SALE

KEMP'S EAST FRANKLIN CHAPEL HILL

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Social Committee

The Graham Memorial Social Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the GMAB office.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

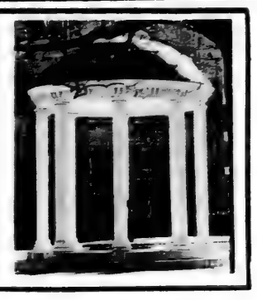
Blood Drive

Assistants for the blood Drive will be trained 1:30-3 p.m. in 304 Woolen Gym.

Volume 74, Number 94 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



No. 22 Never Quits

Most everyone had left Carmichael Auditorium by 9:30 Saturday night. There were only a few sportswriters left in the press box.

Parents and girl friends were scattered around waiting for the players to shower and dress.

Two men had started to dust and sweep the basketball court. Others were beginning a long job of cleaning the stands.

The gym was dark. There were only a few lights on.

The number 22 emerged from the Carolina dressing room. The blue numbers were dark with sweat and the white uniform clung to the lean body.

The body walked slowly toward the court occasionally bouncing a basketball. The shoulders were slumped and the head bowed.

For almost an hour number 22 poured the ball through the net. It jumped and shot from all around the key, stopping now and then to talk with coaches John Letz and Larry Brown.

Bob Lewis finally stopped.

As he left the court he looked up at the score board—Visitors 81, Home 75.

Big Heart Causes Problem

About that huge valentine that was seen out in front of Smith Resident Hall yesterday.

Some poor fellow over in the Phi Kappa Phi house has been catching a lot of flack because the valentine was sent to someone named Brantley. His name is Tom Brantley and he was most upset over the whole thing.

We checked and cleared the mess up. The valentine was sent to one Brantley Claris, a sophomore in Smith, by Jim (big-hearted) Lentz, a sophomore in Morrison.

Below is the culprit that caused the mix-up.

Hall Funds Being Held

Funds intended for residence colleges are being held by Dean of Men William Long, Chancellor Paul Sharp and MRC Chairman Sonny Pepper.

Long said the main reason for not distributing the cash immediately was that the financial structure of some areas is not stable.

He said they are waiting so that "the certain lack of stability that has been present in the past will not be possible."

According to Pepper, there are three qualifications which residence colleges must meet before funds will be released:

1. The college must have an approved constitution.
2. The college must have a representative form of government, including a senate.
3. The college must have duly elected officers.

These must be met to assure Long that an adequate system of "checks and balances" has been established.

Pepper said that Morehead, Scott, and Morrison Residence Colleges were closest to meeting the new requirements. The Upper Quad, to be Kenan College, is also about ready to submit a constitution for approval.

The funds in question are the $2 per man increase in fees voted upon an approved in last fall's elections.

The residence halls are now operating on old funds. Pepper feels that there is no noticeable slow - down of residence hall functions because of the lack of new funds.

Research Triangle Center Will Service Entire State

WOW! A VALENTINE-MAKING contest between Morrison and Nurses Dorm ended in a tie when the both parties noted that the Big Mo valentine was bigger while the Nurses' valentine was prettier. Morrison recently "adopted" Nurses Dorm as its sister dorm. Here delegations exchange valentines in front of the Nurses Dorm.—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Computer Complex To Service Students

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

RESEARCH TRIANGLE — The establishment of one of the world's largest university computer centers and grants of $1.5 million from the National Science Foundation were announced yesterday afternoon by representatives of the three Research Triangle Universities.

The unique venture in computer sciences to be established in North Carolina's Research Triangle is expected to provide statewide computer services for Tar Heel colleges and universities in the near future.

The service will provide top-quality computer instruction and research service for 28,000 students and several thousand administrative, faculty and staff personnel at UNC, State, and Duke University.

Grants of $500,000 were made to each of the three campuses to help defray costs of the recently formed Triangle Universities Computation Center (TUCC).

Dr. James K. Ferrell, president of TUCC, made the announcement of the center on behalf of the universities and TUCC.

Dr. Ferrell said: "None of the cooperating universities will need to go to the Research Triangle to use the center. Smaller on-campus computers will be hooked directly to the center by telephone wires."

Computer problems of professors, officials, and students will be initiated on campus and fed directly into the wire. An answer to the problem will be returned in two to four minutes.

Dr. R. B. Des Jardins, chairman of the UNC Computer Users Committee, said, "It's exactly like having a very large computer on each campus, except that it costs less."

Governor Dan K. Moore, who was present at the announcement, said: "This is another step forward in our institutions working together for the development of the state." President William C. Friday, representing UNC, said: "It is a major advance in

(Continued on Page 6)

150 To Train At Woollen

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Approximately 150 students will take part in a training session this afternoon in preparation for what they will do during the campus blood drive Wednesday and Thursday.

The student assistants will meet in room 304 Woollen Gymnasium from 1:30 to 3 p.m. today. Mrs. Mary Snider, will be the instructor.

Included among the assistants will be members of the ROTC programs, the Angel Flight, Semper Fidelis, Sigma Nu fraternity, and several sorority members.

Pepper said he feels confident that the 600 - pint quota will be reached in the two-day drive. About 450 persons have signed up to give blood during the two days and others from service organizations on campus have pledged their support of the project and will go to Woollen Gym enmasse to donate blood.

"I've never seen so many people be so cooperative in anything," Pepper said. He said everyone he has asked to help with the campaign has willingly assisted.

Several Chapel Hill women will also assist at the blood center which will be in the lobby of Woollen Gym.

Rooms Can Be Reserved

Students now living in residence halls may reserve a room for the summer and fall sessions.

Men students must make room reservation deposits for the summer and fall sessions with the University cashier by Mar. 15. Fall reservation fee is $10. The fee is not refundable after Jun. 1.

Women students should sign up in their residence halls by next Tuesday. Room reservation fee for women is $25. Women students who have been living in town and would like to live in residence halls next year should sign up in the Dean of Women's office, 202 South Building.

Failure to sign up at this time will mean that students will not get the rooms they want.

Singles for the summer session are $60 for women, $43.50 for men. Doubles are $40 for women, $33.50 for men. Rooms for married couples are $66.

700 Buy Class Rings

About 700 North Carolina students purchased class rings at last week's Grail ring sale according to Jim Meade, chairman of the sale.

At an average of $40 dollars a ring, that's $28,000 spent for rings.

The Grail receives $2 for each ring sold. The money is used for a scholarship fund. The fund is administered by the Student Aid Office.

Meade said the Grail is planning another ring sale for the first week of March.

Job Interviews

Thomasville Furniture Industries; Fieldcrest Mills; E. I. Du Pont de Nemours; Congolem - Nairn; and Camps Tomahawk and Wicousta will have representatives on campus today to interview students for jobs.

American Institue for Foreign Trade; Aluminum Company of America; Jefferson Chemical; Great American Insurance; Ashland Oil — Refinig; and E. I. Du Pont de Nemours will be represented on campus tomorrow.

Students who want an interview should come by the Placement Service at 204 Gardner to make an appointment.

Post Office Positions

The Post Office Department has openings for seasonal assistants to be employed between May 1 and Sept. 30 at $2.37 an hour.

Applications for the jobs have to be in by Feb. 24. A civil service exam will be held in March. Anyone passing the test will be furnished a list of post offices in their home state where positions are available and the candidate must select three from the list.

Application forms or information on where to get them may be picked up at the post office or any Civil Service Commisison Office.

Openings are mostly in large post offices.

Top Artists Named

Thomas Hammond and Howard Thomas were named co - winners of the annual art exhibit of the North Carolina School of Public Health.

The prize, worth up to $400, will purchase both winning entries for permanent display at the School of Public Health.

SG Seeks Coeds

Student government will interview coeds for positions on the SG secretariat from 2-5 p.m. today and tomorrow.

Coeds applying should see Sherry O'Donnell is SG offices in Graham Memorial

Dewart To Speak

Dr. Leslie Dewart of the University of Toronto will speak tonight at 8:00 p.m. in Carroll Hall. His topic is "Towards a Renewal of Christian Moral Philosophy."

He is sponsored by the Newman Association. The talk is the fifteenth in the Gaston Series of Lectures.
ries of Lectures. The lecture is open to the public.

Most Frosh Can Go Through Rush

Sixty - three percent cent of the 1850 men class are eligible for rush this spring, according to the office of the Dean of Men.

At a meeting of potential rushees held in Memorial Hall 457 freshmen filled out fraternity interest cards.

Formal rushing hours for the rest of this week are as follows:

Today 7 to 10 p.m.
Wednesday 7 to 9:30 p.m.
Thursday 7 to 9 p.m.

Strict silence must be maintained except during the formal rush period.

Bids will be distributed in Y-Court 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday but notification of passing a house may be given Wednesday night.

Dr. Earle Wallace Named As Acting Graduate Dean

Dr. Earle Wallace, associate dean of the graduate school for the past three years, has been named acting dean of the graduate school here.

Dr. Earle Wallace

Dr. Wallace succeeds Dr. C. Hugh Holman who on Feb. 1 returned to full - time teaching in the English Department.

Announcement of Dr. Wallace's appointment is made by Chancellor Paul Sharp.

A graduate of Morehead City High School, Dr. Wallace earned his bachelor's degree from The Citadel, following service during World War II.

He was awarded his master's degree and Ph.D. here.

In 1962 Dr. Wallace won the University Tanner Award for excellence in teaching and was selected in 1963 by the junior class for its outstanding teacher award.

Now a member of the political Science Department faculty, Dr. Wallace is presently scheduled to return to fulltime teaching next fall. He has also taught at The Citadel.

His teaching and research area is American national government, with specific interest in the federal courts and constitutional law and the control and administration of natural resources.

He has served on the Faculty Council, and is a member of the American Political Science Association and the Southern Political Science Association.

Included among his publications are "Politics USA," "Natural Resources and an Informed Public," and articles in many journals.

He is married to the former Elaine M. Mulligan of Chicago and they have two children.

Conservative Hits Aptheker Invitation

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Dr. Ernest van den Haag, professor of social philosophy at New York University, said Sunday night that politicians "are less competent" to decide who speaks on campus than "academic authorities."

"But students also lack this competence," he declared.

Only the faculty should decide who is invited to speak, van den Haag told about 80 persons in Memorial Hll at a Carolina Conservative Club symposium.

He said political interference in speaker selection is "always wrong."

Van den Haag criticized Students for a Democratic Society for inviting Communist Herbert Aptheker here. The invitation was issued from the wrong quarter, he said.

The author of The Fabric of Society asserted that Aptheker is a poor speaker, suggesting that inviting him "could only do damage to the cause of communism."

But he doubted Aptheker was invited for educational purposes.

Under the Britt Amendment, on-campus speakers falling under the original speaker ban (like Aptheker) must appear for this purpose only.

Communism can best be understood by learning from students of the ideology, not by listening to Communists, van den Haag said.

He said students should attend college to study ideas, not organize for or against them.

"It is not your task to bring about change," van den Haag declared. "It is your task to study why changes are being made or not made.

"The world has gone along without being reformed by you for many years," he added. "It might go for a few more."

Van den Haag said university administrations have the right "to prevent organization of or recruitment for action on campus."

Academic freedom applies only to faculty members, he stated. He defined it as "the freedom to perform individual research and assess its results."

Puffing his cigar, he told the Memorial Hall audience that Communists do not come within the limits of academic-freedom because of their having to follow a "party line."

Political science professor William Fleming disagreed with van den Haag in asking students to "take some action" and "act upon your beliefs."

Power Failure Causes Chaos In Girls' Dorms

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

You boys say you've always wondered what life in a girl's dorm is like? Oh, you say in 21 years you never even thought about it.

Well, curiosity notwithstanding, here is the "inside dope" on one day in the exciting life of that indescribably lucky creature, the dorm girl.

In reality, dorm life never changes. Faces change, the paint on the wall changes, but somehow that dorm retains the same quality, the same sounds, year after year.

Day in.

Day out.

You've heard the song. Occasionally, however, some little incident will serve to undermine the routine.

Sunday's power failure was such an incident. I can speak only for Alderman Dorm, but I can imagine that similar scenes were being acted out elsewhere.

Rise cheerfully (you know how cheerful you always are on Sunday morning), flick your radio on, turn on the coffee, cut the light-switch on and due to your alert state realize five minutes later that not one of the things you flicked, turned, or cut, has co-operated with you.

My roommate and I aren't almost ready to graduate from college for nothing. We figured out after only a few minutes' discussion that the power was off.

Life moves on. After lunch, the rooms still seem a little dim, but at least the sun is shining outside. Since the radio won't work, we'll just put on a few records and...

"Sure is quiet."

"Yeah."

"Got your guitar?"

"Yeah."

"Wanta sing?"

"Yeah."

(My roommate and I have always, through the use of serious, intellectual discussion, been able to arrive at such momentous decisions).

From the direction of the laundry room we hear . . . "so I'll tell him it's a pleated skirt already. Forget the pressing bit!"

Morning passes into afternoon. There is a restless wandering by some. They content themselves with wandering about in our room (The more adventuresome ones), pinching a few apples on the way out and taking a couple of squirts of our best perfume. "Too dim in my room to study you know," they mutter.

We discover that it is possible to study by the light from the window by taking turns balancing ourself on the window ledge, one foot on the radiator, the other on the back of a chair that periodically moves itself, and the reader, some three inches.

Afternoon passes into evening. Just as the last rays of the sun slip from the page, you realize how wise it would have been to dress for supper before the purple dusk of twlight drifted across the room.

"Let's see. You hold the flashlight for me while I fix my hair . . . Oh, alright go ahead and find your contact . . . Hey, a candle! This light's pretty good to put your make-up on by. Now, if we just spend the entire evening in candlelight . . . You have to stand close to this candle and . . . What's that funny smell? No! . . . Just stand still and I'll cut it out. Just this one little scorched patch right here on the side."

Suddenly, miraculously, there is light! Radios blare. Screams of delight are heard. Screams of "shut-up!" are heard, and dorm life moves happily, smiling silently, back into its comfortable little rut.

Johnson Asks Congress For Rent-Subsidy Funds

Washington, (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress for the relatively modest sum of $30 million yesterday and fired up what may become another major brawl over his rent - subsidy program.

Congress authorized the program in a housing bill last year but refused to vote the funds needed to put it into operation after Republicans attacked it as a "grandiose scheme" that they said would benefit contractors, property owners and lending institutions more than the low - income renter.

Johnson said critics were misled by "false propaganda and misrepresentation."

In renewing the request yesterday Johnson included it in a three - way package seeking a total of $55.88 million for the current fiscal year ending June 30.

The two other items are $13.2 million for the National Teachers Corps, which also suffered a last - minute turndown when Congress was preparing to adjourn last fall, and $12.68 million for helping the Selective Service system meet added demands for manpower.

In a letter to House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., Johnson told Congress that the three items "are not the frills of luxury."

"They are the necessities of a nation devoted to the improvement of man's estate," he said.

An indication that the Republicans have not softened their opposition to the rent subsidy program came from Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, Chairman of the House GOP Policy committee, who said:

"It is an inflationary expenditure at a time when we have all the inflation we can use. It seems to me this kind of thing can wait."

The program would be open to families whose incomes are below the levels established for public housing projects. The government would help these people by meeting the balance of their rent bill after they had put up 25 per cent of their income toward it.

It has been estimated the government payments might average around $45 a month and would be paid only to nonprofit type landlords such as churches, unions, co-ops and similar organizations.

Johnson said in his letter to McCormack that the housing and urban development department already has received proposals to build nearly 70,000 housing units under the program. These involve 424 projects in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

Johnson said the housing must be of modest design and cost — no swimming pools and no more than one bathroom per unit.

In addition to certifying their income levels each year, tenants would be required to show they have no assets beyond the boundaries usually set in public housing programs.

One argument presented by House opponents, who knocked out the program's financing last October after the Senate had agreed to provide $12 million, was that persons with low salaries but high investment incomes could obtain rent subsidies.

House members complained that they were unable to get from housing authorities a clear answer to the question: how poor would a family have to be to be eligible?

One difficulty cited was that there is no nationwide dollars-and-cents figure for eligibility for public housing. Local housing authorities across the country set the rules for their communities.

News Brief

Committee members and committee chairmen of the 1965-1966 Carolina Symposium have been named.

Chairman of the Symposium is George Butler; David Lane is the vice chairman.

Bill Taylor is chairman of the Related Discussions Committe; Social and Hospitality Committe will be headed by Susan Ehringhaus. Bill Tomford is in charge of the Intercollegiate Seminar.

Dominicans Sniping

SANTO DOMINGO, (AP) — Six Paraguayan troops of the Inter - American peace force were slightly wounded early yesterday in a hit-and-run grenade attack in downtown Santo Domingo.

Snipers also opened up in predawn darkness with a 50-calibre machine gun at a U.S. jeep patrol. There were no casulaties.

These were the latest developments, reported by U.S. spokesmen, in the continuing violence in this city, where the death toll after five days of disorders stood at 19.

A policeman, an Air Force sergeant and an unidentified civilian were killed last night in separate shooting incidents. The sergeant's body was emasculated by the civilians who shot him and another soldier, witnesses reported.

On orders of President Hector Garcia-Godoy, in a move aimed at stopping the downtown violence, a new company of American 82nd Airborne paratroopers was ordered into the center of Santo Domingo. This makes a total of 330 Americans now on duty in what once was the rebel sector of the city.

Four policemen and one armed forces member have been killed since police Wednesday opened up with gunfire and tear gas to break up a Communist - led student demonstration. The police claimed students fired and hurled rocks at them. Three students died as a result of the incident in front of the national palace. The others were killed in the wave of disorders that followed.

Most of the capital appeared tightly shuttered by a nationwide general strike called by ex-President Jun Bosch's Dominican Revolutionary party and backed by left - wing extremists. The strike has hit hardest in government offices and state - owned operations, such as the sugar industry, chief producer of dollar revenue for this nearly bankrupt country.

Viet Nam Mop Up Continues

SAIGON, (AP) — U. S. 1st Cavalry troopers grappled hand-to-hand with Viet Cong guerrillas yesterday in continuing operations around An Lao valley that since mid-January have killed 1,295 enemy troops and apparently scattered Communist forces entrenched there for 11 years.

Reports from the 1st Cavalry base camp at Bong Son said in the day's close - in fighting the U. S. troopers killed another 29 Viet Cong, boosting to 703 their own kill of enemy troops in four phase of the An Lao operations. United States Marines, South Vietnamese and South Koreans accounted for the others.

About 40 miles to the south, Viet Cong road mines killed 54 Vietnamese civilians and wounded another 18 in a huge rice bowl recently wrested from Communist control by U. S. and Allied force. The victims were in three buses on a road 10 miles from the rice harvesting center of Tuy Hoa.

CLOUDS LIMIT STRIKES- Heavy clous limited U. S. air strikes against North Viet Nam. U. S. Military spokesmen in Saigon said Air Force and Navy planes carried out 19 missions against coastal installations, particularly around Vinh, a railway and highway hub that leads to the South and the Ho Chi Minh trail in the west across the Laotian border. The cloud cover prevented calculations of damage.

The Allied operations in the An Lao area were described as the harshest punishment handed out yet by the Allies to the Communists in an area they had held for a long time. An Lao Valley, 280 miles northeast of Saigon, had been Communist real estate since December 1954, and South Vietnamese attempts to penetrate it were always beaten off.

STILL SEACHING The 1st cavlary formed the thurst of the operations that began Jan. 24. The division's 2nd and 3rd brigades pushed while U. S Marines, the Vietnamese and Koreans took up blocking positions.

The 2nd Brigade still is inside An Lao valley, searching Communist forces and starting resettlement and civic action programs for civilians. The 3rd Brigade has pushed out into dozens of tiny valleys that could afford the Communists with escape routes.

It was in one of these valleys that the 1st squadron of the 3rd Brigade's 9th Cavalry clashed hand-to-hand with Viet Cong guerrillas before dawn.

North Carolina News Roundup

Scranton To Speak

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania, who sparked a "Stop Goldwater" movement in 1964 and who is a Republican presidential possibility for 1968, will deliver the keynote address at the Republican State Convention next month.

The convention will be held at Charlotte on Friday and Saturday, March 11 and 12. Scranton will deliver the keynote address at 1 p.m. Saturday, Republican State Chairman James Garnder announced Monday.

Gardner announced that the feature speaker at Friday's opening session will be Rep. Howard Calloway, the first Republican representative from Georgia since Reconstruction Days.

On Friday evening, March 11, the Republicans will stage a fund-raising dinner honoring J. E. Broyhill of Lenoir, long-time Republican national committeeman. The dinner speaker will be Sen. Thurston Morton of Kentucky, former Republican national chairman.

Charlotte Having Crime Wave

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Charlotte's 13th armed robbery in 36 hours was accomplished about noon yesterday by two bandits who robbed a grocery on the northwest side of $640.

Mrs. Bonnie Duckett, the only cashier on duty at Piedmont Supermarket, told police:

"He, the bandit, walked up to a counter and asked for a package of cigarettes. I gave them to him and he said, 'Oh, give me a pack of gum, too.'

"After I handed him the gum, he pulled a gun and said, 'This is a stickup.'

"He reached over an pulled the drawer open and made a grab for a big stack of bills, and when he did I slammed the drawer on his hand. It caught his fingers good.

"His buddy stood by his side all the time. He didn't say anything and they both ran out with the money together."

Health Board Members Named

RALEIGH(AP)—Nine appointments to the State Health Insurance Advisory Board were announced today by Governor Moore.

Reappointed to new terms were Dr. Frank W. Jones of Newton and Joseph E. Barnes, administrator of Rex Hospital in Raleigh, to serve as at-large members; and Hubert F. Ledford of Raleigh and O. F. Stafford of Greensboro, to serve as insurance industry members.

Mrs. N. P. Stone of Winston-Salem and Rep. Earl H. Tate of Lenoir, at-large members; and Micou F. Browne of Raleigh and Arthur Clark of Durham, insurance industry members.

The new appointees replace Cecil Duncan of Charlotte, John C. Williamson of Knightdale, John T. Manning of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Stella Spencer of Lenoir and Watts Hill Jr. of Durham.

All terms run until Sept. 15, 1967.

Golf Seminar Being Held

GREENSBORO (AP)—The annual teaching and educational golf seminar of the Carolinas PGA will be held in Greensboro today and tomorrow.

Business talks highlight the Tuesday program, which will be capped by a banquet and dance. Trick shot artist Paul Hahn will be the banquet speaker.

A merchandising show Wednesday morning will be followed by a rules discussion and a PGA business meeting conducted by President Dugan Aycock of Lexington.

The final event is a golf show featuring Hahn at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Greensboro pro Aubrey Apple is seminar chairman.

Russian Writers Convicted, Sentenced To Long Terms

MOSCOW — (AP) — Two Russian wrtiers who smuggled books out to the West were convicted yesterday of spreading Anti - Soviet propaganda and given heavy sentences.

The Supreme Court of the Russian Republic sentenced Andrei D. Sinyavsky to seven years at hard labor. Sinyavsky published abroad as Abram Tertz, depicting Soviet life as brutal and corrupt.

Yuli M. Daniel, whose nom de plume was Nikolai Arzhak, got five years, also at hard labor. He had painted an equally unfavorable picture.

Sentence was imposed after a four - day trial closed to Westerners.

The two defendants pleaded not guilty and argued that they were entitled to artistic freedom of expression.

Judge Lev N. Smirnov, highest ranking jurist in the Russian Federation, the Soviet Union's largest Republic, and his two lay assistants ruled that Sinyavsky and Daniel had done harm to their country by providing material that could be used against it. This, according to article 70 of the Soviet legal code, constitutes a crime.

Both men are 40, married, and have children. Their wives were weeping as they left the courtroom.

Auto Safety Bill Imminent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration will reportedly propose to Congress soon a five year auto safety program to cost about $500 million. One provision would permit the government to set national standards for automobile safety.

One source said today the bill, now in the final drafting stage, would give the federal government for the first time a mandate in this area and have a "substantial significant effect" on automobile safety.

The program would begin during the fiscal year which starts July 1 but its major impetus, at least moneywise, would be felt during the four fiscal years which begin July 1, 1967. Almost $50 million would be spent on the program during those four years, the source said.

Foiled Again!

LOUISVILLE, Ky.— (AP) — William Embry grew tired of thieves kicking in the front door of his appliance store.

So, when he replaced the glass for the third time this year, he and his stepfather, Marshal Marcum, lay in wait in the darkened store.

Early yesterday, an intruder kicked the door in again and reached for a television set.

Marcum yelled and fired twice with a pistol. He missed the fleeing man.

Embry let go with a blast from a shotgun. He too missed the burglar but wrecked a big plate glass window.

Three Juicy Bits from Our Table of Bargains . . .

THE GRILL AND WAFFLE COOKBOOK, by Helen Hovey and Roslyn Chidekel. An abundance of toothsome recipes, ranging from appetizer to dessert, all easily made on your grill-waffle baker. Get yourself a name as the miracle-kitten of your neighborhood, with this new, inexpensive fad. Was $2.50. Now Only $1.49

The Ladies of Richmond, THE LADIES OF RICHMOND, by Katharine M. Jones. Here gathered from a multitude of letters and diaries, is the true story of domestic life in the Confederate capitol for four exciting and tragic years. Originally published at $6.00. Now $2.98

EARLY CHRISTIAN ART. A big, luxurious, picture book, with illustrations in color and black and white. This will be the high point in any collection of Medieval reference books. Published at $25.00—Now $14.95

LOTS MORE—COME TREASURE-HUNTING!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

WANT ADS

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditioned 10' x 50' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

A beautiful day to own a Volkswagen Station Wagon.

On Saturday, January 23, 1965, an estimated 262,825,003.74 tons of snow fell upon the United States of America.

In Fraser, Colorado, a VW Station Wagon that stood for days out in temperatures of 25 below, started up without a tremble.

In Sheboygan, a lonely VW was blazing a trail to the kiddie matinee.

In Syracuse, a VW took 8 angry neighbors down to the local service station for 8 sets of chains.

In Cedar Rapids, a VW woman was first in line at the A&P Steak Sale.

Up in Providence, a group of college kids were finding out how many toboggans they could stuff into 170 cubic feet of VW space.

A Grand Rapids junior hockey team won its game by default.

On Saturday, January 23, 1965, not too many VWs were sold in the United States of America.

On Monday, things picked up.

ALSO A GOOD SELECTION OF USED VW'S

Triangle Volkswagen, Inc.

3828 Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd. Phone Durham 489-2371
"Chapel Hill-Durham Area's Only Authorized VW Dealer"

Something New at . . . LA PIZZA!!

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday Nite

HAMBURGER STEAK

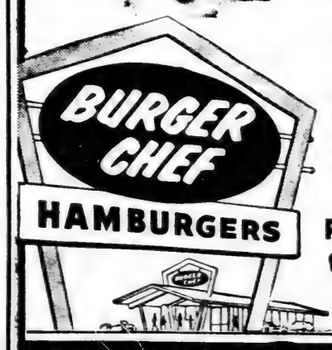
Smothered in Onions,
Baked Potato — Salad.

$1.25

Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

people on the go...

go BURGER CHEF



College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 W. ROSEMARY ST. OPEN 10 A.M. — 11 P.M.

Franchised exclusively by Burger Chef Systems Indianapolis, Ind.

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Monkey Business

BALTIMORE, (AP) — The bride kept throwing off her veil and insisted on eating bananas, a string ban played "Abadabba Honeymoon," and the groom didn't even show up for the ceremony.

But the elaborate Valentine's Day affair was held anyway, with the wedding guests watching from behind glass panels.

When the proxy ceremony was over, the bride Sylvia went back to her cage to await the groom and a delayed honeymoon.

Hercules, like Sylvia a 2-year-old gorilla, is due to arrive at the Baltimore Zoo Thursday after a flight from Holland. Bad weather prevented his takeoff earlier this week, although some simple simians at the zoo whispered he was attending extended bachelor's party.

Pitcher Steve Barber of the Baltimore Orioles and his wife Pat acted as the proxy bride and groom, while Sylvia alternately sat on the floor and climbed into the arms of her attendant.

Juniors, Seniors . . .

Career Opportunities In All Phases Of Marketing

- Advertising
- Sales Management
- Merchandising
- Sales Promotion
- Market Research

Join Vick Chemical Company's Programs for Career Development this summer. Schedule a campus interview with the company representatives now.

Seniors . . . Permanent employment. Gain extensive experience in all 5 phases of marketing.

Juniors . . . Summer employment. Get a head start on your career before graduation. Gain valuable sales and marketing experience.

Both programs provide car, good salary and pay all expenses seven days a week.

Contact your Placement Director for full details.

Interviews on February 22 and 23, 1966.

Vick Chemical Company

Manufacturers of Vicks® VapoRub®, Cough Syrup, Cough Drops, Nasal Preparations, Cold Tablets, Lavoris® and Clearasil®.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Trailways and the new Interstate highways mean smoother, safer, faster travel! It's the way to "Discover America"

Wide lanes, gentle curves. No cross traffic, not a stop light in sight. These are the Interstate highways, taking you through America's most spectacular scenery. And Trailways newly-designed buses were built for this kind of travel. Smooth going all the way. You ride up high. Enjoy the big view. You'll be where you're going before you know it—and right in the heart of town.

Chapel Hill	One-Way
NEW YORK	$17.05
Thru Express-reserve the seat of your choice
NORFOLK	$ 6.05
Thru Express—frequent departures
WASHINGTON	$ 8.55
Thru Express—reserve the seat of your choice
ASHEVILLE	$7.45
Thru Express—convenient departures

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin St. 942-3356

Easiest travel on earth

TRAILWAYS.

Jim Coghill

Assistant DTH Sports Editor

A determined group of UNC grapplers pulled the wool over the eyes of Duke University's wrestling team Saturday and gave the Blue Devils their worse defeat in 20 years, 28-8.

The UNC freshman squad was also victorious as they trampled the Dook Frosh 28-11 and gave them a licking they will never forget. In fact Coach Barnes said, "A Duke freshman team has never experienced a greater licking."

The Carolina grapplers found their weak spots Saturday in the 123 pound division as well as the heavyweight spot, but it was all the way in the other categories as the Barnes' men swept seven other top positions.

"We needed this win," Coach Barnes said, "since the kids have been working hard but still losing."

The Tar Heels were really proud of this win since they have only exploded with three impressive wins for the season. These victories include Washington and Lee, Davidson and the poor Blue Dooks.

Coach Barnes is running the team through the mill now in preparation for this weekend's matches with VMI and VPI, both of which will be tough contenders.

"We purposefully scheduled these two back to back so as to assimilate the team in preparing for the tournament which comes up March 4 and 5 at Maryland," Barnes contended.

Carolina travels to VMI on Friday and then to VPI Saturday and the UNC coach and most of his team will be in for a hectic weekend of tough wrestling.

Coach Barnes will be expecting good showings from Roy Hagerty (145), Fred Priester (177) and Jay Jacobson (160) since he singled out these men as doing fine jobs on the Blue Devils.

"Hagerty wrestled with near perfection, Priester looked very good and Jacobson looks much better," Barnes concluded.

The freshman team deserves recognition as well as the varsity, not only for their win against the Duke frosh, but for the fact that they are now 6-1 for the season.

Barnes commented, "This is the best freshman team we have ever had here, but many people really wouldn't know this since they are the only freshman team on campus who have lost a game."

Coach Barnes hopes to keep the momentum going, but he is somewhat worried since this week is fraternity rush and most of his boys are frat men.

The UNC squad now has a 5-4 record for the season with three matches left which include this weekend's encounter with VMI and VPI and next weekend's finale at Maryland.

When ACC Tourney time comes around on March 4 and 5, Coach Barnes figures to take four or five contenders with him to bring home the bacon.

Tar Heels Try To End Losing Streak

MILLER IN FLIGHT

Sophomore Larry Miller is shown driving for the basket in an earlier game this season with the Blue Devils of Duke. Bob Bennett (31) and Mark Mirken (32) watch the flight. Miller will team with Bobby Lewis to lead the Tar Heels against the Wolfpack of N. C. State tonight at 8 p.m. in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh.

Game May Decide Second Place In Conference Race

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina's Tar Heels will be seeking to break a losing streak and clear some ACC confusion when they battle the Wolfpack of N.C. State tonight in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh.

The Tar Heels, who have won 12 and lost eight, find themselves in a come-back role after losing two straight to New York University and VPI.

That VPI defeat, coming this past Saturday night in Carmichael Auditorium, was particularly tough for the Tar Heels. North Carolina, trailing by nine points at the half, put on a second-half surge to pull five points ahead. The Gobblers of course had iedas of their own and nipped that Tar Heel come-back for an 81-75 victory.

Both the Tar Heels and the Wolfpack will also be seeking to clear the confusion in the ACC race for second place.

Although Duke's Blue Devils with a 9-1 conference mark are one victory away from clinching at least a tie for the top spot, no less than four clubs are fighting for the second spot.

North Carolina, Clemson, and N. C. State are currently tied for second with 5-4 records. Waiting closely behind are the Maryland Terps with a 5-5 conference mark.

Tonight's encounter will be the second meeting between the two clubs. North Carolina won that first one — 84-77 — in Carmichael Auditorium.

The Wolfpack, who own a 11-7 overall mark, will be after their second straight home victory. Saturday night saw the wolfpack dump Georgia Tech of the Southeastern Conference.

The Wolfpack, sporting a rapid - fire defense, will throw a short but deep squad at the Tar Heels.

Although Coach Press Maravich likes to alter his starting line - up from time to time, he has stuck mainly with Larry Worsley (6-5) and Tommy Mattocks (6-2) at the forwards, Pete Coker (6-5) at center and Eddie Biedenbach (6-1) and Billy Moffitt (5-11) at the guards.

But Maravich is blessed with almost an equally strong unit on the bench. Ready to step in at forward or center are Harold Blondeau (6-4) Ray Hodgdon (6-4), Bill Kretzer (6-7), Jerry Moore (6-7), John Sellers (6-8) and Paul Hudson (6-11).

Stepping in at the guards are Gary Hale (6-0), Sam Gealy (6-0) and Merv Gutshall (6-1).

Highlighting the Wolfpack basketball fortunes since semester break have been two close - calls with top-rated Duke. The Wolfpack gave the Blue Devils all they could handle in Durham before losing in the final minutes of action.

The situation was even closer this past Thursday night in Raleigh. The Wolfpack led by as much as five points in the second half before losing 78-74.

But the big Wolfpack offensive weapon appears to be a harassing, all-out defensive effort. Junior guard Eddie Biedenbach is the ring leader of that defensive charge. Pressure and more pressure is the secret and double and triple teaming of the offensive man results in quite a number of loose balls for the Wolfpack.

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, will be seeking to regain their shooting form after a poor performance against VPI. North Carolina, leading the ACC in field goal accuracy with a 54 per cent mark, found they could only hit 34 per cent of their shots in the first half against the Gobblers.

Their second-half performance did improve (56 per cent) but the damage had been done.

Sophomore Larry Miller and Bobby Lewis, the ACC's leading scorer, led the Tar Heel offensive Saturday night and a repeat of that performance is expceted against the Wolfpack.

Miller hit 25 points against VPI—three points above his seasonal average of 22. Lewis hit 22 points—almost seven points below his average of 28.9.

Center Bob Bennett, with 15 points, was the other Tar Heel performer in double figures.

Frosh Go For Big Four Title At State

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

It's baby brother versus baby brother tonight when the kinship university frosh basketball teams meet on the floor of William Neil Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh at six o'clock. And it's a very important date for Carolina's Tar Babies.

The game is very important because a win over N. C. State's Wolflets tonight would clinch UNC's third straight Big Four freshman cage championship. The Babies stand in first place in the league with a 5-0 record, followed by Duke (3-2), NCS (2-3), and Wake Forest (0-5). Duke and State battled last night in Durham, with Duke the heavy favorite, having already defeated the Wolflets twice.

State will start the same five men which, in the teams' first meeting, bore the brunt of a mid-first half Tar Baby hot run which opened up an insurmountable halftime lead and spurred UNC to a 103-83 rout.

Nick Trifunovich, a guard who led State in scoring when last we looked at them, has now fallen into second place behind forward Joe Serdich. Trifunovich (5-8, 180) averages 16.5, and Serdich (6-4 205) 20.3.

Like the Tar Babies, Coach Charlie Bryant's Wolfets have all five starters averaging in double figures. Dick Braucher (6-4, 185) is at 11.9, Jerry Rivlin (5-8, 160) is 11.4, and Robert JcLean (6-8, 210) of Morehead City is hitting 10.8.

State's only Big Four wins have come at the expense of Wake Forest. They have lost twice to Duke (before last night's game) and once to UNC.

Standing between the Tar Babies and the official reputation as the only undefeated freshman basketball team in this University's history are four games. They should all be counted as definite tests. After the State game tonight, Virginia Tech is met on its home court in Blacksburg this Friday; Southwood, with its great star Pete Maravich, comes to Carmichael next Tuesday; and Duke hosts the Babies on Friday, February 25—the night before the UNC-Duke varsity clash which ends the season.

With 93 points in his last four games, 6-11 center Rusty Clark has assumed an unchallenged lead in the team's scoring derby. Big Russ, whose average has been over 19 points all season, has boosted it now to 20.8. He has played very inspired basketball of late, and and seems to be blossoming into the player that everyone expected to see by this early point in his career.

Second in scoring is Bill Bunting, and the 6-8 forward has been having his troubles of late. Bill hit only 3-of-12 shots in the Saturday game against VPI, and for the first time this year, his shooting percentage has fallen below 60 per cent (57.9). As a scorer, he is at 18.0. His reound average is just under 10 per game, while Clark leads with 12 even.

Coming off his hottest game of the year when he scored 27 points against Tech, guard Dick Grubar has boosted his average to 15.5. Dick also had probably his best floor game too, and was joined by guardmate Gerald Tuttle in wowing fans with the execution of numerous fast breaks.

The Tar Babies are averaging 92.1 points per game, with a defensive yeild of 66.7. They have hit 443-of-800 field goals for a 55.4 percentage, and have been inconsistent at the foul line with 218-of-341 for 63.9 per cent. Brown has made just 20-of-47 free throws, while Bunting leads with 40-of-52.

Tar Heels Capture Big Six Track Win

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's fast - improving track team defeated highly touted N. C. College and Duke in the Tin Can Saturday 41-22-33 behind sophomore Mike Williams and junior Jon Levin.

By winning the Big Six meet the Tar Heels captured the state title as they also beat Wake Forest, N. C. State and Davidson.

In the field events Carolina picked up eight of its final forty - four points. Steve Conn of N. C. State won the pole vault at 14'7" over Duke's Homer. Carolina did not place in this event. However, Felix Alley and Ron Short finished third and fourth respectively in the shot put which was won by Duke's Rod Stewart, with a fine 57' 10½" heave.

Gary Iverson gave the thinclads three points in the broad jump as he finished a close second to NC's Gilmore, who won with a 22'-4½" leap. Tilden Bridges added a point in the high jump as he cleared 6½" to finish behind Kable of Wake Forest and Corn of State.

UNC Hryharrow showed the improvement of Carolina's hurdlers as he registered a second in the 70-yard highs behind Duke's Martin.

In the 60 yd. dash Jon Levin remained undefeated in ACC competition as he won Copeland, Watson and Crisp in the time of 6.4.

Soph Mike Williams took the mile run in 4:28.1 over Duke's Zodda. Williams won easily as he laid back until the last lap and then went to the front to win.

Another easy win for Carolina came in the two-mile relay in which Co-Captain Bill Jarowitz, Frank Kurth, Fred McCall and Tom Carpenter had the lead from the start and won by thirty yards over N.C. State.

Copeland of NCC ran a fine race and defeated UNC's Ed Daw in the 440 yd. dash with a time of 51.2. Daw was with his rival down to the tape, but could not catch him.

In the 1,000 yard run Mike Williams came back for his second win of the day and did so with a fine finishing kick which was too much for N. C. State's England and teammate Bil Bassett, who finished third. William's winning time was 2:16.4.

The Freshmen team was impressive as it won the frosh division of the Big Six with a total of 56½ points. Its nearest rival was NC, who had 40. Leading the frosh were McKinnon and Davala in the pole vault, Farmer, Svennson, and Richey, who swept the shot, and Wayne Mengel, who won the broad jump and the high hurdles.

Next Saturday both the varsity and frosh are hosts to South Carolina and Clemson in the Tin Can.

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Sports Shorts

The UNC-N.C. State basketball game in Raleigh's Reynolds Coliseum tonight is not a sell - out. N. C. State sports publicists announced yesterday that over 2,000 tickets still remain for the contest.

The varsity encounter begins at 8 p.m. The preliminary contest at 6 p.m. will match UNC's unbeaten freshmen club against a sometimes troublesome N. C. State club.

Varsity baseball season gets under way Tuesday, February 15 at 3 p.m. Varsity performers can draw equipment from the varsity supply room at Woollen Gym anytime before 3.

Freshmen pitchers and catchers meet Thursday in Carmichael Auditorium. They are requested to bring their tennis shoes.

Tickets will go on sale soon for the final UNC basketball home game of the season against the Cavliers of Virginia. That encounter will come on Tuesday, February 22.

Cats Top Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky's unbeaten and virtually untested Wildcats reign all but unchallenged as the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in the latest Associated Press rankings.

In one of the strongest showings ever in the weekly poll, Kentucky was placed first on 40 of the 42 ballots Monday by the nationwide panel, and received one second and one fourth. The two other first - place votes went to St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania, No. 8, and unranked Dayton.

Kentucky took over the top last week from Duke after the Blue Devils had led for eight straight weeks. The Wildcats ran their record to 19-0 during the past week by knocking off Florida 85-75 and Auburn 77-64. Outside a 69-65 double overtime victory over Georgia, Kentucky has won by 10 or more points.

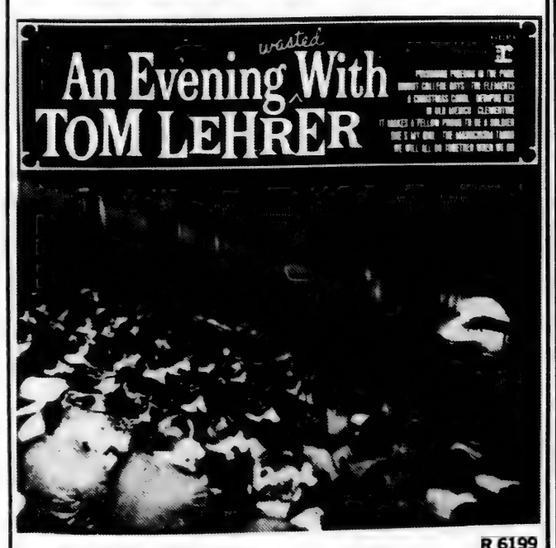
Duke, which lost for the second time this season when it was upset last week by West Virginia, held on to second as the ratings remained almost unchanged.

Texas Western, 18-0 and the country's only unbeaten major team other than Kentucky, made another advance - easing into third ahead of Chicago Loyola in the only change from last week. The Miners won twice in overtime struggles, against Arizona and New Mexico.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, won lost records through Saturday, Feb. 12, and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

1. Kentucky (40), 19-0 416 2. Duke 17-2 355 3. Texas Western 18-0 301 4. Chicago Loyola 17-2 247 5. Vanderbilt 17-3 182 6. Providence 17-2 170 7. Kansas 16-3 169 8. St. Joseph's, Pa. (1) 17-4 134 9. Nebraska 16-3 87 10. Michigan 13-5 82.

IRREVERENT ICONOCLAST!



R 6199

SOCIAL SATIRE AT ITS MORDANT MOST!

reprise RECORDS

...TO PLAY AND PLAY AGAIN

The Fabulous

THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET

WITH PAUL DESMOND

Presented by the Duke Student Union

SEE and HEAR This Sensational Jazz Group

Friday, Feb. 18

8:30 P.M.

Duke Indoor Stadium

Durham, N. C.

Tickets $2.00 at the door.

TRANSACTION

THE AUTHENTIC STOCK MARKET GAME!

Stimulates Learning

Transaction stimulates learning about the market in an exciting new way. You learn the language of the market and how it works. Transaction is more than just a game . . . it moves Wall Street into your home. It allows you to try the various techniques suggested by the different services and advisors, so that you can see the results of your buy, sell, sell short, and cover decisions.

Transaction is used by leading universities for teaching couses in finance and by brokerage firms for training new brokers.

Look Who Has Purchased Transaction

- Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner and Smith, Inc.
- E. F. Hutton & Co.
- University of California
- University of Oregon
- Groller, Inc.
- Kessler Air Force Base

only $6.95

BILLY ARTHUR

EASTGATE

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI — HARRY SALTZMAN —

SEAN CONNERY

"THUNDERBALL"

— KEVIN McCLORY — PANAVISION

TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL,

The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house.

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street

Chapel Hill, North Carolina

GI's Stage Drink-In

Tea Price Protest

SAIGON, (AP) — The teapot in Saigon's tempest of tealeaves boiled merrily today despite a GI protest against the rising price of Saigon Tea —the thimbleful of beverage that comes with a pretty bar hostess attached.

It is through Saigon Tea that a GI gets the company of a bar hostess. If he wants female companionship he must buy the girl Saigon Tea.

Some GIs — but not all— think the price for the stuff is too high — from 160 to 180 piaster, about $2 or more. A whisky and soda costs that much and a bottle of beer is the equivalent of 30 cents.

"Cheap Charlies," the bar hostesses call the protesting GIs.

Saturday night a group of soldiers staged a three - hour drink - in at one cafe to emphasize their protest.

"What do GIs want?" complained pretty Co Hai, hostess at the Paris bar. "Once Saigon Tea 80 piasters. Now Saigon Tea 160. Once rice 5 piasters. Now Saigon Tea 160. Once rice 5 piasters a kiio (2.2) pounds). Now rice 10. Not happy this way."

"Saigon Tea not too much cost," said Nguyen Thi Hue of the San Francisco bar. "Maybe five Saigon Teas one day. Maybe 10 next. How we live?"

A quick check showed that hostesses average from 5 to 20 Saigon teas a day — or night — according to their looks, their charm, their blandishments, and their notions of acquiescence.

"Saigon tea too high?'' said Sgt. James C. Metcalfe of Fayetteville, Tenn. "Not at all. It's just the price of progress. If you don't want to buy a bar girl a drink, don't buy it."

Metcalfe said he thought bar hostesses provided a boost to a soldier's morale.

"Some are delightful," he smiled as he sipped his Saigonese beer.

At the princess bar, Nguyen Thi Tuyet, 20, had a wry smile and a hard word for the protesting GIs.

"Long hours," she said. Have Saigon Tea, have money. No have Saigon Tea, no have money. No like for cheap Charlie."

Gamma Beta Phi Membership Open

By MIKE O'LEARY
DTH Staff Writer

The Gamma Beta Phi Society is currently holding its spring semester rush for new members.

The local chapter of the society, inaugurated last spring, presently has 25 members and is one of 25 chapters representing various colleges and universities throughout the South.

The Society is a non-secret, non - profit leadership - service organization for American college and university students. Its objectives are to encourage and assist scholarship, and to help qualified high school graduates to continue their college education.

The organization is co - educational. Although it is currently composed of upper - classmen, the Society intends to take in freshmen this semester.

According to John Cahoon, president of the local chapter, "The society encourages all freshmen as well as upper - classmen, who made a 2.5 average or better last semester to apply for membership. We would particularly like to see more co-eds in the society since at present there are only four women members."

Besides its goal of encouraging scholastic excellence, particularly among former members of the Beta Club, the auxiliary of the Gamma Beta Phi, the society conducts various service projects.

The local chapter has solicited for the United Fund in a residential district of Chapel Hill. The chapter holds monthly meetings and usually hears a guest speaker on a topic of interest to the society.

Anyone interested in joining the society should visit Gerrad Hall today or tomorrow between 12 and 4 p.m. to obtain further information and application forms.

Flicks To Finance Fund

The Student Nurses Association and Alpha Epsilon Delta will be working in cooperation with the management of the Varsity Theatre collecting money for the Heart Fund every night for the next month.

Dweight Wait, president of AED, the International Premedical and Pre-dental Honor Socieyt, said: "Three boys and four girls wearing Heart Fund signs will be collecting contributions every night from people standing in line and in the lobby of the Varsity Theatre."

The "Ticker" Flicks shown during the next month will be Thunderball starring James Bond and Inside Daisy Clover starring Natalie Wood.

Contributions totaling $26 and $32 were collected during the two showings of Otehllo. Since Thunderball has been playing at the Varsity Theatre, collections have been averaging about $35 a night.

TICKER FLICKS FOR HEARTS—Patricia Dodson, a Heart Fund Queen and president of the Student Nurses Association, holds a heart-shaped "ticker flick" sign in front of the Varsity Theater as she beguiles Major Sandy McClamroch (right) into making a contribution to the N. C. Heart Fund. Also in the picture is Dwight Wait, president of AED and Andy Gutierrez, manager of the Varsity.

SDS Spokesman Reveals Other Invitations Canceled

Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson were not the only speakers invited by Students for a Democratic Society, temporary Chairman Gary Waller told 30 persons at Morrison Residence Hall Sunday night.

Speaking for about 15 minutes in the social room, Waller explained that representatives from three other groups were asked not to come by SDS when the issue over Aptheker arose.

The Women's National League for Peace, the May Second Movement (a student leftist group), and the Progressive Labor Movement all were scheduled to speak on the campus.

Waller's talk was sponsored by the Morrison academic board. He said the "Key" occurrance of last week's events was that "students have become interested and have forced student leaders to become leaders."

A question and answer period lasted more than 45 minutes. In a response, Waller said the "main purpose" of SDS is "participatory democracy."

"We are committed to developing a situation in which people participate in decisisions," he explained. "Students should have a free access to alternatives and information about these alternatives."

African Visits Hill

An African daily newspaper editor who studied American newspapers and attended journalism classes here says he is overwhelmed by "the excellent quality of newspapers in the U. S."

Herbert Ayodele Johnson, editor of The Daily Mail of Freetown, capital of Sierra Leone, is in the United States for 60 to 90 days sponsored by the Governmental Affairs Institute as a part of the International Visitor Program of the U. S. State Department. Chapel Hill was his first stop.

American newspapers, he says, are neater in appearance than their African counterparts.

Also, American newspapers have much more detail and are hence larger. Johnson feels this is a quality representative of the inquiring American mind. "Even small children want to know about me, my country and my government."

Another feature of American newspapers not found in Sierra Leone is the daily editorial. The Daily Mail uses only occasional editorials. When used, editorials appear on the front page. This is one of the first things Johnson will change when he returns home.

Johnson finds American newspaper publish more obituaries and wedding announcements than his paper. The Daily Mail uses only the obituaries of important people and never has pictures or weddings unless asked.

In Africa, says Johnson, most of the newspapers are owned and operated by the government. However, he says this does not prevent criticism of either the newspaper or the government. "Constructive criticism is welcomed, destructive criticism is not."

Of a non-journalistic nature, Johnson finds the American practice of driving on the right side of the road most unusual. He is also impressed by the courtesy American drivers give pedestrians. In Freetown, cars have the right of way.

Johnson left the University of North Carolina campus on Saturday to continue his American tour.

UNC Prof's Work Lauded

Education Prof. Arnold Perry has returned from a six-month trip to Argentina on a Fulbright Exchange Program. He brings with him press laurels and an artistically bound copy of Estanislao del Campo's "Fausto."

"The qualified performance of Professor Perry in this country has signified a decisive step in bringing forth a cultural reapprochement between Argentina and the country to the North," stated La Nacion, a Beunos Aires daily. "It represents one of the most significant contributions of the Fulbright Commission to this work, now spreading to the whole Republic through student grantees travelling in both directions or through professors from both countries that participate in the interchange of educators and researchers."

OH, THOSE 8 o'clock classes. It gets harder each horrible morning, but each morning is getting warmer and warmer. No longer is it necessary to wear long-johns and two sweaters at 7 a.m. and then change to a short-sleeve at 9. It's actually over 30 degrees these days in the wee hours before the mist rises.—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Geology Trip To Mexico Successful

Geology students and professors here have just returned from a 4,000 mile trip to an "almost perfect outdoor laboratory" with mountain folds bigger than most of those in the Rockies.

The place — Mexico, near Monterrey in the part of the Mexican mountains called the Sierra Madres Oriental.

Dr. David Dunn, one of the professors who went, called it a "looking and learning trip" for both the students and the professors.

The most striking 'scenery' of the trip was a series of huge salt diapirs, great upfolds of rock with salt flowing up the middle. "There is nothing else like the area in the States," said Dunn.

The mountain range they were in is about 60 to 70 million years old, or very young, he said.

Perhaps the best part of the trip was summed up by Dr. W. H. Wheeler, a geology associate professor, "While you all were having snow and storms and the like, we were driving through orange groves and eating fresh strawberries."

Exams for the students who went were especially scheduled to allow more trip time and Dr. Dunn comments, "we almost had to drag them home."

Dr. J. Robert Butler, an assistant professor, Alex Richie, Richard Repsher and George DeWolfe, graduate students, also went on the trip.

Campus Calendar

TODAY

There will be an important meeting of the Student Audit Board at 2:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial.

There will be a meeting of the UNC Carobiners (Outing Club) at 7:30 p.m. in 205 Mitchell Hall (Geology Bldg.).

The publicity effort, the Guide-book, and The Banquet at year's end will be among the topics to be discussed. All interested non-members are especially welcome.

S.D.S. meeting at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

WRC meeting at 6:45 p.m. in the Grail Room.

UNC Student Wives Club will meet at Peabody Hall in rooms 08 and 09 at 8 p.m. Dues will be collected for the 2nd semester. Committees will be formed.

Elections Board meeting at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room. Most important that all members be present.

Finance Committee will meet at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

UNC Debate Team meets to-night in Bingham Annex at 6:30 p.m. Both varisty and novice debators are expected.

Tryouts for Carolina Playmak-ers production of "The Importance of Being Earnest" at Playmakers Theater, 4-7:30 p.m. Five men's and four women's parts available.

Medical Technology Club meeting at 7 p.m. in the Clinic Auditorium (in Clinic Bldg.) at N. C. Memorial Hospital. The guest speaker will be Miss Lynda Sanderford who will show slides and talk of her Medical Technology work in the Peace Corps in Guatemala.

Are you an auctioneer? The Campus Chest needs you! Practice your talents! It's a one night stand, March 21. A good cause and a good time. If interested, please call Bayard Harris, 968-9070 and leave a message.

WEDNESDAY

Students interested in working with mentally retarded children at the Murdoch Center are invited to meet in front of the "Y" at 2 p.m. Wednesday, with the other committee members.

Playmakers Hold Tryouts

The Carolina Playmakers will hold tryouts today at 4:00 and 7:30 in Playmakers Theatre for their fourth major production of the current season, "The Importance of Being Earnest" by Oscar Wilde.

To be staged by Tommy Rezzuto of the Playmakers staff, "Importance" has been hailed by critics as "the cleverest play ever written by the greatest wit of them all."

The scrambled plot is mainly concerned with an elegant wastrel named John Worthing who has invented a dissolute younger brother named Earnest whom he impersonates when he goes on a fling. His friend, Algernon Moncrieff, is a thoughtful young man who has invented a sick friend named Bunbury on whom to blame his own peccadilloes.

– Computer –

(Continued from Page 1)

technology and a highly significant development for the entire University system as well as the Research Triangle area."

In the new program there will be a screen, like a TV screen, hooked up to the computer. The user can draw a "picture" program on the screen to tell the computer what to do, and the computer can draw back its answer."

The new computer is about ten times faster than the speediest computers now in use on North Carolina campuses.

It will be able to add a column of one million ten-digit numbers in less than a second.

A staff of 22 persons will operate the computer center which will be attached to smaller computers on the individual campuses.

Frank Sinatra
Laurence Harvey
Janet Leigh

The Manchurian Candidate

TODAY
ONLY

CAROLINA

SALE

For the Traditionalist

Enjoy antique automobiles, the Flemish paintres, Greek tragedies? You're a man who appreciates expressions of style which are meaningfull and lasting. You want your appearance to reflect this attitude too.

Wear a classic Glenn Plaid Sport Coat from the VMW.
NOW $31.95

Varsity Men's Wear
"Clothiers of Distinction"
147 E. Franklin St.

IN THE PRINT ROOM
Colorful Flowers and Beasts

Most seen through whimsical Oriental eyes. The nicest thing that could happen to your wall!

50c per print

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

SUIT SALE

A large selection of fine imimported worsteds, herringbones, Glenn plaids and solids in natural shoulder clothing that guarantees a perfect fit.

Reg. 59.95 — NOW 39.88
Reg. 65.00 — NOW 44.88
Reg. 69.95 — NOW 49.88
Reg. 75.00 — NOW 54.88
Reg. 79.95 — NOW 59.88

Many Other Fantastic Buys Now Await You!

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

TONIGHT

Tuesday, Feb. 15, 8:15 p.m.—DUKE INDOOR STADIUM.
Tickets $2.00, $1.50; unreserved $1.00 on sale at Page Box Office, 681-0111, Ext. 4059.

DUTCH AUCTION SALE

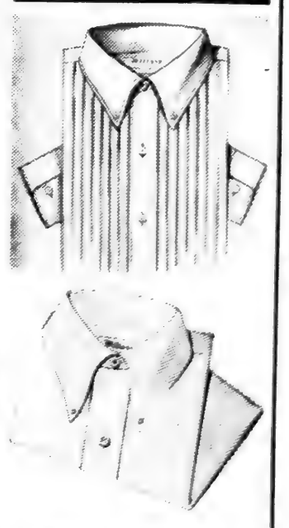
Wentworth & Sloan
JEWELERS

Today is the 7th Day.
Over 800 Items on Sale.
Come in and Bid Today

TUESDAY NITE ONLY
Special
5 to 10:30 P.M.
Mouth Watering Pizza

Large Plain Pizza and
A Pitcher of Beer or Cider
1.50

YE OLDE TAVERNE
E. FRANKLIN STREET
Professional Bldg. 942-5578



There's An M-2 In Your Present At Enticing FROGSTRANGLER Prices!

Large choice group of 977 button-down shirts all in our own perfect customized roll button-down, regularly to $8.95, have a Frogstrangler Ball at amazing $2.99.

Many Other Frogstrangler Buys You Just Have to Have.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

GREAT MATE

NEW LIGHTWEIGHT NAVY TROPICAL BLAZER COAT with Persian paisley lining. Slacks in glen plaid, shepherd check, Indian madras random patch.

Julian's

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 95 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Social Committee

GM Social Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the GMAB offices.

Blood-Drive Starts

Blood Drive today from 11-5 p.m. in the Gym. All red-blooded students are asked to participate. Make the Blood Drive a success!

Mock Trial

UNC Students Arrested For First Degree Murder

By LYTT STAMPS
DTH Staff Writer

Two UNC students will be tried on charges of the first degree murder of the Grand Gizard of the Cu Clucks Clowns during his campus appearance Feb. 1.

This is the case of the annual Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity mock trail, Fri. Feb. 18, in the courtroom of Manning Hall.

The facts for the case are as follows:

— Grand Gizard Frank Bridges was invited to speak on campus at the winter symposium of the Carolina Forum.

Bridges had pleaded the Fifth Amendment 75 times before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

— It was doubtful if Bridges was eligible to speak under the provisions of the Speaker Ban Law. However, the law was repealed and plans were made for his speech to be given in Memorial Hall on Feb. 1.

— Students Wildly Indignant About Nearly Everything (SWINE), a leftist student group, were enraged because the Trustees had refused to allow them to invite certain leftist to speak.

— Feeling that their demonstrations at South Building were doing no good, Terry Gregory and Wendy Farer wanted SWINE to do "something to attract national attention."

— On Feb. 1, Bridges spoke on campus. SWINE picketed the speech. Gregory and Miss Farer were not present.

— About 8:15 p.m., three shots rang out from an outside window. Bridges was hit while he was speaking.

— He died.

— The Chapel Hill Police Dept. determined Bridges was shot with a high-powered rifle.

— Miss Farer was known to have such a gun.

— She and Gregory were arrested after a police search of her apartment in which they found a gun and some mild narcotics.

— The Orange County Grand Jury returned a true bill of indictment against the two on Feb. 10. They were arraigned and charged with first degree murder.

The Prosecutors will be Charles Woerner, chief; and Pat Morgan. Robert L. Thompson, George Carson, Stuart Saunders and Terry Vann are the defense counselors. Thompson is chief.

It is a tradition of the mock trial to have a distinguished North Carolina judge to preside. This year, the Honorable William A. Johnson, Lillington, will preside. He is Superior Court Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District.

A jury will be selected from the student body of UNC. Anyone interested in possible jury duty should come to the Manning Hall Courtroom for interviews at 3 p.m., Feb. 18.

The trial begins at 7:30 p.m.

Robert L. Thompson is chairman of the mock trial committee.

PARTICIPANTS OF this year's Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity mock trial are the defendants, Terry Gregory, left, and Wendy Farer. Chapel Hill policeman D. Gordon Simms is the arresting officer. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

Sharp Leaves. Sitterson Takes Over

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

Dr. Carlyle Sitterson takes office today as acting Chancellor for UNC.

He will temporarily fill the vacancy left by former Chancellor Paul F. Sharp.

Dr. Sitterson said, "In my position as acting Chancellor at UNC, I feel full responsibility for the campus.

"I believe that a satisfactory resolution will be adopted by the board of trustees concerning our speaker policy at their meeting on February 28. I feel certain that in this resolution the board will return the power to select speakers to the administrators of each campus."

Dr. Sitterson feels that the University has arrived at a high standard over the past few years.

"We must not do away with our high standards," he said. "We must build on them. We must continue to seek high-quality faculty and continue consideration of working together with students for a good student government as we now have."

Dr. Sitterson was born in Kinston. He received his A.B. degree from UNC in 1931. He also recieved his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University.

He taught at Georgia Military Academy and was director of the Hall of History in Raleigh before World War II. He served in the Armed Services and was a member of the War Production Board in Washington, D. C. during the war.

Dr. Sitterson is married to the former Nancy Howard of Kinston. The Sittersons have three children, Mary, 17, Joe, 20 and Curtis, 14.

Sitterson returned to UNC in 1946 as a professor in the History Department and continued teaching until this semester.

He became the dean of the

(Continued on Page 6)

UNC Students Launch 600-Pint Blood Drive

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

The Carolina Blood Drive, representing one of the most concentrated efforts at UNC in some time, gets underway today.

Sonny Pepper, co-chairman of the campaign, and Ernie McCrary, editor of the Daily Tar Heel, will give the first two pints of blood at 11 a.m today.

Pepper said the goal for today is 300 pints and 300 more for tomorrow.

About 150 students from several campus organizations will be assisting at the blood collection center as hosts and hostesses.

Included will be members of the Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, Pi Beta Phi, Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Gamma sororities, Sigma Nu fraternity, members of the NROTC program and Semper Fidelis.

Cathy Cauble, co-chairman of the blood drive said approximately 450 persons signed up to give blood during the two-day drive but many did not sign up but plan to give.

The student assistants yesterday were told their duties at a meeting by officials of the American Red Cross. Bill Cade, recruitment director for the regional blood center of Charlotte, instructed and entertained the student assistants as to what they will do during the blood collections.

The students will assist in directing donors through the donor belt line at the blood collection center, located in the main lobby of Woollen Gymnasium. Registered nurses from the Red Cross Center in Charlotte will be on duty at the center to collect the blood.

There be two shifts of student assistants at the center both days.

"The cooperation from everyone has been remarkable," Pepper said.

The Junior Service League of Chapel Hill is donating cookies to be served to donors, Pepper said, and the Pepsi Cola Company will provide free drinks. Lenoir Hall is donating coffee.

Mrs. Mary Snyder, former nurse with the American Red Cross, Mrs. Lindsay Neville executive secretary of the Chapel Hill Red Cross Chapter, and Cade, assisted at the training session yesterday.

Pepper said students will be given excuses showing that they were donating blood if they are late to class. The co-chairman urged all professors to honor the excuse cards.

The hours for the blood collections today will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tomorrow the hours will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

No Competition Says ECC Head

RALEIGH (AP)— Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, said last night ECC "is functioning as a university now without the name" and could operate better as an individual university.

"East Carolina does not want to compete unfairly with the other schools in the state," he said in a television question and answer program over WRAL-TV in Raleigh.

Jenkins said ECC wants to progress as rapidly as possible.

The idea of making ECC a university separate from the University of North Carolina has met opposition from Gov. Dan Moore.

Jenkins, who answered questions from eastern North Carolina newsmen, said ECC is now functioning as a university with six schools and 17 departments.

"A change to university status would require no reorganization," he said. "No additional money would be essential, but, of course, the whole college is growing and additional money would be needed as it grows."

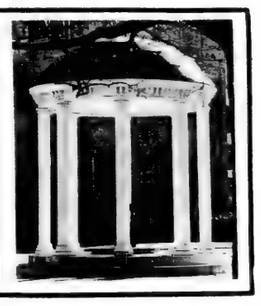
He pointed out ECC's budget is 80 per cent of that for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1960.

As a university, Jenkins said, ECC would be eligible for more federal and private grants. "A university can do somethings a college can't," he said.

SEE HOW SIMPLE IT IS: Mrs. Mary Snider (center) of the Red Cross shows students who will be assisting in the collection of blood next week how to use the plastic bags in which the fresh blood will be stored. Looking on are Charlotte Milstead, treasurer of Chi Omega; Virginia Ann Weldon, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Lance Howden, president of Sigma Nu; and Diana Fotte, Pi Phi.
—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Bleed-In Today

Today is the day that you all can go and give your blood for a very worthy cause. And you can rest assured that this reporter will be giving all of you his moral support.

If you get down to the gym early enough you will see brave little Ernie McCrary give his blood. He has to because he originated the whole idea. He can't chicken out.

Anyway, we hope all of you will make a valiant effort to get down and give your blood.

Remember: A bleeding student is a happy student.

Draft Scare Helps Grades

Ray Strong, central records chief, thinks "fear of being "From my observations on the selective service records filled out by students," Strong said, "I don't think they are as quick to drop out as they once were.

"As long as they were enrolled in school, the draft boards have not being bothering them. So, in effect, fear of being drafted" has kept quite a few students in school.

"This may be changed if new draft regulations go back to evaluating class standings. I would like to emphasize, however, that a lot of this is left up to their local draft boards. These vary from state to state, and from city to city.

"I don't see it getting any worse, particularly if the Viet Nam situation is stabilized.

"Attendance is down as compared with fall figures, but this is normal. A certain percentage always drops out, become ineligible or leaves for various reasons. Few have been drafted.

"There were 12,419 students last fall. This spring there are 11,955, a drop of only 464.

"This compares favorably with last year's statistics — 11,303 in the Fall semester and 10,900 in the Spring semester.

Ban The Butt

Carolina students should look at the speaker ban with the attitude that things could be worse. Students at two colleges in Georgia have had a far more terrible ban placed on them — no cigarette machines allowed on campus.

Guy Atkinson, president of Norman College in Moultrie, Ga., said, "We don't think a Christian school should have cigarette vending machines on campus."

The president of Armstrong State College in Savannah, Dr. Henry Ashmore, said, "I doubt whether any institution supported by public funds should provide for the sale of cigarettes."

Maybe Dan Moore and the board of trustees are more tolerant then we supposed. We should be thankful that North Carolina is the nation's largest producer of cigarettes. If this wasn't the case, our over-protective board of trustees would probably ban the sale of cigarettes here also. Cheer up! Others in our society of freedom are more oppressed than we.

Steering Group Approves Student Rally For 24th

By CURTISS MOORE
Special to the DTH

A nine-member steering committee Tuesday approved plans for a massive student rally protesting the Communist speaker ban law to be held Feb..24.

The plans were approved during a two and one-half hour meeting of the steering committee of the committee of Free Inquiry, a 350-member organization formed about two weeks ago.

The committee was organized after the executive committee of the university board of trustees overruled an appearance by two controversial speakers, Communist Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson.

The steering committee called for the full body to meet tomorrow at 2 p.m. to act on the recommendations for the rally. The place of the meeting will be announced in the DTH.

In other action, the steering committee:

—Said Gov. Dan K. Moore had not replied to an invitation asking him to appear at the rally and explain the rejection of Aptheker and Wilkinson.

—Approved by a 5-1 vote a recommendation that no rallies or vigils be held before Feb. 24 when the full board of trustees of the University meets.

Aid plans to persuade other branches of the Consolidated University at Charlotte, Raleigh and Greensboro to hold similar rallies.

—Approvedmthe distribution of letters and working papers to University alumni and trustees, asking their support of the committee's position.

—Elected Student Body President Paul Dickson temporary chairman of the steering committee.

If approved by the full committee, the rally would fetaure speeches by one alumnus, three students, and one faculty member.

Peace Corps Recruits Here

Students seeking interviews or information about the Peace Corps should contact Lynda Sanderford at 105 Y-Court between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. through Friday.

A staff of veteran Peace Corps Volunteers will be on hand to explain any phase of the Corps to interested students.

Volunteers will show a 50 minute movie, "A Choice I Made," at Carroll Hall 7:30 tonight.

They will conduct meetings and classes in various residence halls throughout the week.

College Honors Sharp

Former Chancellor Paul F. Sharp was made an honorary governor of Scott Residence College during a short ceremony yesterday.

Sharp was presented with a placque and certificate by Bob Hunter, governor of Scott College in his office.

The senate of Scott Collge passed the resolution making him honorary governor.

NAACP Seminar

The NAACP will hold a seminar on the "Common-Law Marriage of the Civil Rights and Peace Movements" tomorrow night at 8 in 203 Alumni.

The discussion will center around the involvement of civil rights leader in the anti-war movement.

Firms To Recruit

The American Institute for Foreign Trade; Aluminum Co. of America; Jefferson Chemical; Great American Insurance; Ashland Oil & Refining; and E. I. DuPont de Nemours will have representatives on campus to interview students today.

The Navy Area Audit Office; Brunswick; J. B. Ivey; Trust Co. of Georgia; and Burlington Industries will be on campus tomorrow to recruit.

Anyone who wants an interview should come by the Placement Service, 204 Gardner, to make an appointment.

Bar Group To Wait

The UNC Student Bar Association had planned to introduce a resolution on speaker policy at yesterday's meeting, but decided to wait until after the final decision of the board of trustees on Feb. 18.

The decision to wait was made after representatives of the SBA met with the dean of the Law School, Dickson Phillips.

Freedom Discussion

"Freedom: A Luxury or a Necessity? — An International Approach" will be the topic of a panel discussion tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the GM Lounge.

Moderator of the panel is Pat Morgan, a law student who spent two years in the Dominican Republic. Also on the panel are Dr. Herbert Badman, Dr. David Basile, faculty members, and 3 students: Lowell Woodward, William Mapes and Buck Grinter, and Barbara Ferguson, a staff member of the Peace Corps.

Seniors Must Apply

Seniors in Arts & Sciences who expect to graduate in June should fill out an application for degree in 206 South Building as soon as possible, according to Frank M. Duffy, the Acting Dean of the School of Art & Sciences.

CPU Picks Van Loon

Eric Van Loon was elected the new chairman of the Carolina Political Union Sunday evening.

Bob Farb is the new vice-chairman, Bill Tomford is the secretary and Mike Crowell the treasurer.

Sharp Leaves For Drake; 'An Exciting 18 Months'

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

Yesterday was Dr. Paul F. Sharp's last day as chancellor here.

He will spend the next 30 days writing a book of essays expressing his views on higher education.

On March 15 he will take office as President of Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa.

"I would like to think I have accomplished and stimulated some things that needed doing," Sharp said upon departure.

"It has been an exciting 18 months — more like 10 years. The parade of crises that have marched across this desk have really kept me busy.

This University has great potential. The role of an administrator in it is always to stimulate the free talents and abilities of students and faculty members.

"The touchstone of satisfaction is always the sense of achieving this," Sharp said.

"I believe an administrator has a real opportunity to help people achieve, through teaching and through an environment that stimulates learning.

"In my judgement, the action by the governor and the executive committee of the board of trustees has reduced this environment. The whole matter is an unfortunate thing.

"It has many aspects of seeing a great University humbled, for the wrong reasons and to the wrong ends.

"The first essential for learning is freedom. If this freedom is missing, there is only indoctrination.

"I think very highly of Crolina students," Sharp continued. "I have enjoyed working with them."

In addition to his selection as President of Drake University, Sharp was recently placed on the American Council On Education's commission on "plans and Objectives for Higher Education in the United States."

He finds this appointment a "source of excitement." The commission is conducting a review of graduate study and graduate education. His appointment with the commission is for two years — 1966 through 1968.

Chancellor since Sept., 1964, Sharp came here from the presidency of Hiram College in Ohio.

He is succeeded today as chancellor by Acting Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson, who was named vice chancellor in July, 1965.

A faculty advisor committee has been appointed to advise on Sharp's permanent successor.

SHARP GETS PLAQUE — Chancellor Paul F. Sharp, center, is shown receiving a plaque from Bob Hunter, nameing Sharp "Honorary Governor of Scott Residence College." At left is Ed Blair, senate speaker for Scott College. Hunter is Governor of the residence college.
—DTH Photo By Glenn Mays

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Support WASTE

A real crisis has developed in the war in Viet Nam.

Things are so bad, even some of the soldiers have begun to protest.

They have not protested about Viet Cong snipers shooting at them. They have remained silent when terrorists blow up restaurants in Saigon. They have not griped when mortar shells explode near their sleeping quarters.

What foul situation has prompted the outcry?

It is sold in bars, but it really does not have much to do with drinking, since a shot of Saigon Tea only amounts to about half a swallow. There is a fringe benefit, however —the company of a bar hostess is included with the purchase price.

The going rate is about $2 now, and some GIs think that is too much. Some of them were so upset that they held a three-hour drink-in protest Saturday night in Saigon.

When the morale of our soldiers has reached such a low ebb, the Washington hierarchy can delay no longer without seriously endangering the war effort.

In line with the provisions of his recent Declaration of Honolulu, President Johnson must extend the Great Society to Viet Nam. There is an obvious need for a new federal agency to handle this situation by subsidizng the purchase of Saigon Tea by GIs.

Soldiers' morale will be salvaged and the Vietnamese economy will be strenthened by the inflow of American dollars.

But the agency will need a name. We suggest "Worldwide Agency for Saigon Tea Enthusiasts" (WASTE).

"Paper, Mister?"

Some days a fellow just ought to stay in bed.
Look what happened to a 15-year-old newspaper
A man stepped out of an alley and asked the boy,
He grabbed the boy by the neck, dragged him into the alley and said, "Give me all your money or I'll beat you." He took $2 from the boy's pocket, threw him to the ground, kicked him and ran away.
Maybe the next time somebody asks him, the boy should say he's selling the Washington Post.

(Christian Science Monitor)

Golden Syllables

Words are worth $70,000 a minute provided they are spoken on television, are in the form of a commercial, and accompany the telecast of next season's National Football League games. For the NFL championship such words had a price tage of $110,000 a minute. We wish we had known this when we were listening to them since we admit to having had the impression of a dearth of worth.

To Procter and Gamble, America's top television advertiser for 1964, visually illustrated words were worth $148 million for the year when carried into the homes of the land where millions have millions to spend and, presumably, await only the advice of the advertisers.

In our judgment, the soaring "value" of words bears comment, but rather than put in our two cents' worth, we defer to a worthy poet who just happens to have the name of Wordsworth. Apropos to the peculiar value which our society places upon words composing television commercials, the bard was moved to proclaim:

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers.

We find ourselves pondering his words for what they are worth.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"This Is My Third Trip Today!"

Barry Jacobs

Two Speakers At Duke Give UNC Black Eye

The senselessness of banning Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson from the UNC campus was underscored last week with the announcements that both "villains" will speak at Duke. A private university, Duke is not subject to the advice of Governor Moore, and President Donald Knight quickly approved the invitation to Aptheker. Moore and the trustees could learn something from the Duke president.

The loser in the Aptheker Affair is the University of North Carolina. Here, for all the world to see, is a contrast between on university, at Chapel Hill, which attempts to stifle the desire of its students to learn something first hand about one of the most important philosophies in the world, and another, eight miles away in Durham, which opens its doors to all speakers in the true spirit of the pursuit of knowledge. the contrast is further emphasized by the fact that each man will appear at Duke just one day before his scheduled address here.

UNC hates to lose to Duke in sports contests. Now, however, the Tar Heels must take second place to the Blue Devils in something more important and more basic to a university than any athletic event.

The appearance of the prescribed speakers on the Durham campus points up the utter futility of the attempt to shelter the UNC students and protect them from the horrors of hearing a Communist. Unless Moore or the trustees make some attempt to quarantine the students on the UNC campus, any of these students who want to hear Aptheker will be able to do so by merely traveling a few miles.

Since it is hardly likely that the Governor will suggest such a drastic step, the attempt to keep the students of this university from being exposed to a Communist will have failed. It is even possible that all the controversy stirred up by Moore and the trustees will attract more Carolina students to hear Aptheker at Duke than would have come to hear him in Chapel Hill.

What, then, can the Governor and the trustees claim to have accomplished? They can say that they kept Aptheker off the state university campus, but they can't say that they kept him from speaking to state university students. Is it any triumph to force Aptheker and the students off campus to meet? Would the situation be worse if they met here? Allowing Aptheker to speak here would certainly not have implied any approval of whatever he might have to say. No, the governor and the trustees have nothing to be proud of. They have done nothing but force this university to take a back seat to Duke.

There is one more point. Some of those who support the banning of Aptheker seem to think that the students who are protesting this ban are only a handful of leftist activitists. Anyone who was at the students' meeting at Gerrard Hall Friday knows that this is not true. The President of the student body, the chairmen of the two campus political parties, and the president of the YMCA were all placed on the steering committee of the Committee for Free Inquiry. Student opposition to the ban is widespread.

Sooner or later, the ban on Communist speakers—or any other kind of speakers—will be lifted. Governor Moore is fighting a losing fight. Every day, though, that the ban continues, the stigma on this university grows; and more damage is done to its fine reputation. The ban should be ended now.

Letters To The Editor

Regrets From Oregon

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The Students for a Democratic Society of the University of Oregon wish to extend our condolences at the death of the freedom of speech on the Chapel Hill campus.

It is with extreme regret that we view the decision of the administration to prohibit the appearance of two prominent figures before the students and the presentation of their points of view. It hardly seems that these administrators are seriously fulfilling their role as protectors of the freedoms, especially dear to the academic community, which permit the democratic processes to function.

Your truly,
K. Kastner
U. of Oregon
Students for a Democratic Society

Thanks To Moore

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The following is a letter (a copy of one) which I sent today to the Governor of this state. The letter speaks for itself; I send it on to you.

Dear Governor Moore:

I want to thank you for the help you gave the board of trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in reaching their decision to bar Communist Herbert Aptheker from the campus. Your help has enabled me to make a decision concerning my future career after I complete my doctoral studies in the Department of Psychology at the University.

I have been living in North Carolina for three years now. Although I saw a state which had its share of the troubles which have plagued the South, I also saw a state which often met these difficulties with foresight and courage. In my own area of study, I have worked for a total of around eighteen months in various local and state institutions for the emotionally disturbed, and have been pleased with the progressive innovations taking place in those institutions.

For a while, I even thought of remaining on in North Carolina, in orderto provide what help I might, as a graduate of your really fine University, in the state mental health programs.

As I said above, you have helped me decide what I wish to do when I obtain my degree from the University. And my decision is to leave—as quickly as possible. It is obvious that you have no intention of helping the University stand as a forum of free discussion and debate about the issues of our time, even when those issues are unpopular.

After all, such a University would only help to remind the people of the state that there is a word larger than the state—a world beset by conflicts and problems. And t is apparent that you wish the state to retain its fine old Southern traditions and remain an isolated pocket of bigortry, suspicion, and narrow-mindedness.

I am sorry that the University, and the state, must suffer because of your wishes, and the wishes of similarly-inclined state legislators. But there is too big, and too fast-moving a world beyond the borders of this state, for me to wish to remain here and work with those who want to avert the consequences of your actions. I am sure, however, that you, and others of your ilk, will be glad to see me and other like-minded individuals leave your state. I wish it were not so, after spending three years here, but the feeling will be mutual.

Sincerely yours,
Eugene B. Daniels,Jr.

UNC Losing Good Prof

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Ever had a class you enjoyed so much, you never even had a thought of cutting it? That you'd go out of your way just to be sure you wouldn't miss it? Ever had a professor instill the enjoyment of learning in you so much that you'd not only be in class every time, but you'd be anxious?

Ever met a professor who had a smile and a kind word for everyone, who made time in an extremely busy schedule for any member of his class—and even people who just want to stop by and talk awhile?

A man who was more interested in what you learned, than what you didn't know; took into consideration a possible weak background in a subject and tried to help not humiliate; a person who was genuinely interested in everyone he met—who was as friendly in class as out.

Stroll by Phillips Hall one day and look around you, maybe you'll see him. He's only about five feet tall, his gray hair is a bit thinned, he's not strong in appearance —he walks hunched over a little bit . . . but in his eyes is a bright twinkle. He has the intelligence of an Einstein, with the personality of a Santa Claus. In his specific field of mathematics, he's one of the best in the world . . . and in his being a man, a friend, a teacher—he's one of the best in the world.

Girls in his class adore him, guys completely respect and like him. In physical stature, he's not so big; but he's taller than any other person on this campus.

In June he won't be here though. Some of our faculty don't approve of the way Dr. Alfred Brauer teaches mathematics. They feel that one must be impersonate, cold, and stern. And because of this difference in opinion and the way it has been expressed in many arguments between the faculty, Dr. Brauer has decided to move to Wake Forest.

Is this the direction our best educators are turning to . . . away from Chapel Hill? Oh, well, that's progress—for what it's worth.

Jay Brilliant
Pi Lambda Phi

Mike Jennings

Meeting Some Fraternity Boys

Sunday I discovered I had an advantage over other rushees.

The other boys came to the houses with clean slates—no strikes against them. I already had two.

I got them last semester, when I wrote an article that upset some fraternity men. The article wasn't per se a criticism of fraternities. It was a report on the improvement of social activities under the residence college system.

But it included some statements aimed directly at fraternities.

My aim was better than I knew: the reactions I got from those statements have sometimes shocked me. I had no idea fraternities were that sensitive.

When I wrote my article, I was pitching. Now the fraternities are pitching and I'm at bat. I could regret my accusations, but I don't. They are saving me a lot of time and sparing me a lot of baloney.

As soon as the fraternity men find who I am, they usually let go of my hand long enough to give me some straight talk. I get an insight into each fraternity's character, and I get it quick.

For instance:

One house—a smaller house—brought up my remarks right away. They gave their side, and I gave mine. They asked me back. I'd call that a good, hard fast ball. A fair pitch.

A set of brothers in a second house asked me if I worked for the Tar Heel, then dropped the subject. They too asked me back. I feel like that was a curve ball, but I don't know which way it will break.

I got dragged—literally — into a third house. The brothers found out who I was, and the Gilbert and Sullivan began.

I got shunted along (toward the side door, I noticed) with smiles and handshakes in front and a running, low-toned conference right behind.

When I reached the door, nobody was left with me but a beaming rush chairman. Someone, he said, had mentioned to him that I had said or written something that might prejudice my chances with the house. Said he had no idea what it was I was supposed to have said.

Yeah, I'll bet he didn't.

He said it would be to my advantage to visit some other houses. I hadn't been inside more than three minutes.

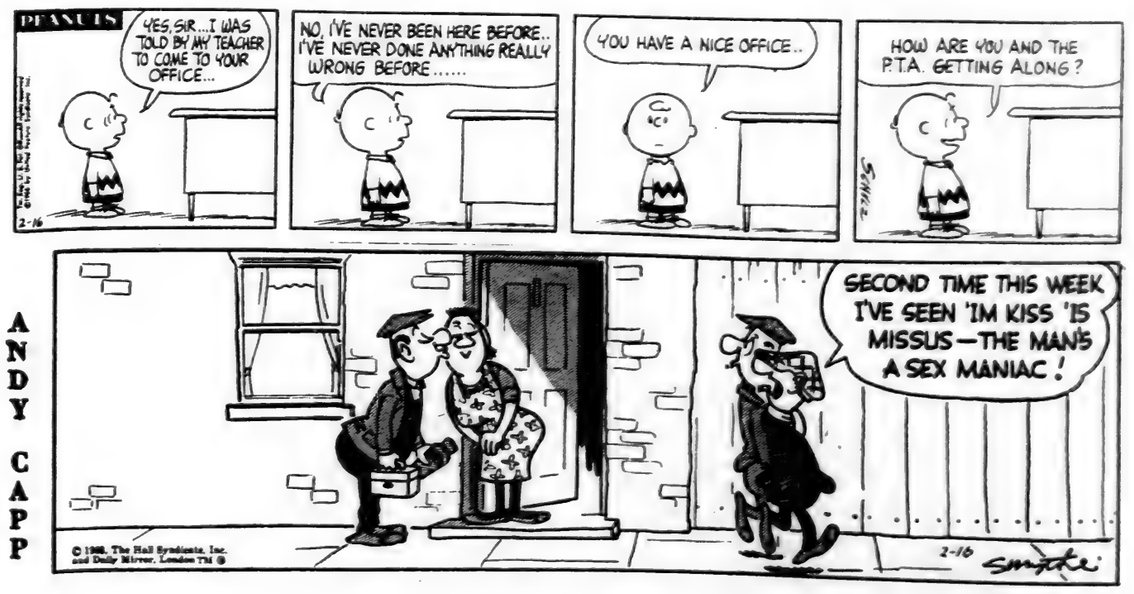
That, friends, was a spitball. Color it black.

I'm glad I am going through rush. It's a good experience. I'm glad to have the chance to meet a lot of boys I didn't know.

I'm glad I'm rushing under a handicap. I'll know that any fraternity that gives me a bid holds no institutional prejudices against me. They couldn't possible have any in my favor.

I'll know that any house that passes me will do so because the boys like me —not because I'm a fat catch on the fraternity market.

That's fine. That's all I wanted anyway



Festival Of Musical Events Set For March

The national professional music fraternity here is working to bring UNC a companion event to the Fine Arts Festival this spring. Alpha Rho chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia is planning this campus's first Festival of Contemporary Music March 24-30 in cooperation with the Department of Music.

The Festival will include a choral concert, a recital by the Department of Music faculty, a jazz concert, a demonstration of electronic music, a duo-piano concert, a composition contest, and the first performance of several works.

Student chairman Buck Malcolm says he hopes Alpa Rho will make the Festival a permanent biennial event alternating with the Fine Arts Festival, which was revived last spring and is planned again next year.

"The idea of the Festival," says Malcolm, "is not only to give musical performers a chance to digest new music, but to give the campus an opportunity to share in the experience. We want to show people that contemporary music can be performed by contemporary musicians."

Plans for the event were begun last spring at the suggestion of Dr. Joel Carter, Alpha Rho faculty adviser. Since early this fall fraternity members have been arranging programs, contacting performers, and planning publicity and fund-raising with the help of Dr. Carter and Dr. William S. Newman of the Department of Music.

The Festival will open March 24, with a concert by the 60-voice choir of Smith College and Wesleyan University. Contemporary works will be emphasized, and one selection, Witold Lutoslawski's "Trois Poems d'Henri Michaux," will be given its Southern premiere by the choir and a group of 21 local instrumentalists.

Violinist Edgar Alden, baritone Joe Carter, organist Rudolph Kremer, cellist Charles Griffith, and tenor Wayne Zarr are among the faculty members who will perform March 25. Dr. Kremer will give the Chapel Hill premiere performance of his most recent composition for organ.

A concert by "The Sinfonians," a jazz ensemble sponsored by the music fraternity and conducted by student Keith McClelland, is scheduled March 27. That evening Professor Emerson Myers of Columbia University will give a demonstration of "electronic music" under the sponsorship of the Southeastern Chapter of the American Musicological Society.

The University Symphony Orchestra will read several new scores under the direction of Professor Earl Slocum in a public rehearsal March 28. The following afternoon a public reading of a new work for band and orchestra will be conducted by John Yesulaitis and Zarr with the University Concert Band and the University Chorus.

Lillian and James Pruett of the Department of Music faculty will give a duo - piano recital March 29. Works by Bela Bartok, Norman Della - Joio, and Paul Hindemith will be performed.

The Festival will end with two programs on March 30. UNC students will give a recital of their original compositions at 4 p.m. that day. That night the winner of the composition contest will be announced and the winning work performed.

Vittorio Giannini, well-known composer for bands and president of the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, will judge the contest, and a representative of the School of the Arts will award the $100 first prize.

A brass choir composed of fraternity members is scheduled to play Moravian music (observing the 200th anniversary of Moravians in North Carolina) on the same program.

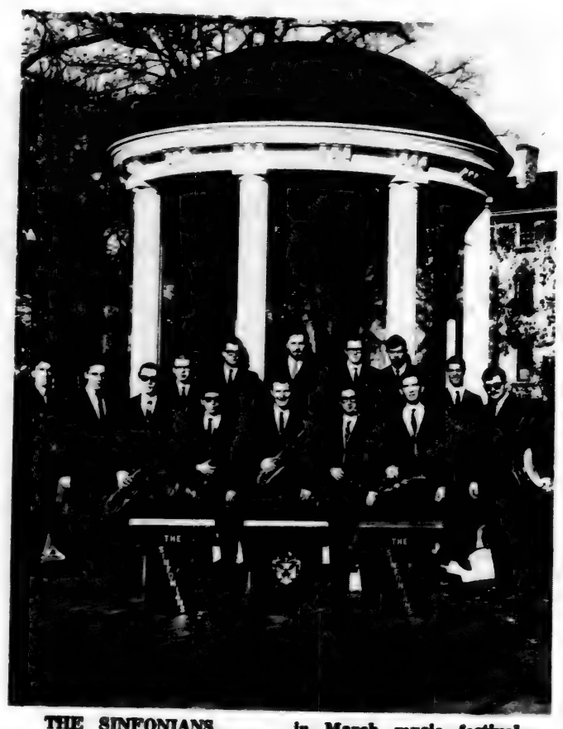
An extra attraction will be a recital by pianist Raoul Spivak, artist-in-residence at North Carolina State University. He will play "Twelve American Preludes," which were especially written for him by the Mexican composer Ginastera. The date of his performance will be announced later.

The composition contest is open to everyone except graduate students in music or music faculty members at colleges and universities, and entries are still being solicited. Works for piano, solo instrument, voice, or any combination of these between four and 12 minutes in length are eligible. However, they must be mailed to Phi Mu Alpha, 201 Hill Hall, before March!

No admission will be charged at any of the programs, and concerts and recitals will be presented in Hill Hall Auditorium except the demonstration of electronic music. That will take place in the rehearsal hall of the music building at an open meeting of the American Musicological Society.

The several hundred dollars needed to meet Festival expenses will be raised by members of Alpha Rho chapter through solicitation. Contributions from members of the University community will be welcomed.

"We hope," says chairman Malcolm, "that this will be only the first of many successful contemporary music festivals at UNC. Perhaps in the future we can expand the event."



THE SINFONIANS . . . in March music festival.

WAYNE ZARR CONDUCTS the University the upcoming contemporary music festival. chorus in rehearsal for their appearance in

Television Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 News
9:00 U S History
9:30 Phys Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 French-Student
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Lip Reading
1:30 Music in Air
2:00 Science-Nature
2:30 Decisions 1966
3:00 Big Picture
3:30 Methods
4:00 Sign Off
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Western Civ
7:00 Adolescence
7:30 What's New
8:00 Decisions 1966
8:30 The Universe
9:00 Two Roads to Center
10:00 Jazz Casual
10:30 Sign Off

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

GREAT DECISIONS: 1966—8:00 p.m. — "Israel and the Arab World" Series moderator David Schoenbrun talks with Ambassadors to the United Nations Michael Comay of Israel and Muhammad el-Farra of Jordan — in separate interviews — discussing the long - standing Middle-East dispute involving Israel and her neighboring Arab nations.

EXPLORING THE UNIVERSE—8:30 p.m. — "Are Theories True?" Dr. John Wheeler of Princeton University, one of the leading theoretical physicists in the world, explains a theory as a way of putting related facts into a useful pattern — and notes that new theories usually contain the old ones they replace. He explains and illustrates Einstein's Theory of relativity and of matter, and discusses Einstein's concept of the space.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS II: TWO ROADS TO THE CENTER — 9:00 p.m. — In examination of the social and economic Chile, this hour - long documentary shows how each is striving to become more of a democratic nation — Chile approaching from the left; and Argentina, from the right.

JAZZ CASUAL — 10:00 p.m. —"Julian "Cannonball" Adderly" — A program of contemporary arrangements in the blues style is presented by saxophonist Julian "Cannonball"Adderly and his Quartet.

WRAL (CH.5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson-Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: Daddy-O: Dick Contino
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Death Valley Days
7:30 Batman (C)
8:00 Patty Duke
8:30 Blue Light (C)
9:00 The Big Valley (C)
10:00 Long Hot Summer
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Wezther
11:30 Starlight Theater: MIRACLE IN THE RAIN: Jane Wyman

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

BATMAN — 7:30 p.m. — Frank Gorshin returns as the Riddler who has a plan to kill the Dynamic Duo.

PATTY DUKE — 8:00 p.m. —Patty's devotion to Richard is shaken when the football captain asks her for a date.

BLUE LIGHT — 8:30 p.m. —David March is ordered to rescue a Russian spy captured by the Gestapo.

THE BIG VALLEY — 9:00 p.m. — Nick Barkley celebrates his birthday at a water-front saloon, and is drugged and shanghaied.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As The World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News (c)
7:00 Hazel (c)
7:30 Lost in Space
8:30 Bev. Hillbillies (c)
9:00 Get Smart (c)
9:30 Dick Van Dyke
10:00 Danny Kaye (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)

6:00 Dinner Hour Music — Brahams: Trio for Horn, Violin and Piano; Beethoven: Piano Trio Op. 1, No. 1

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

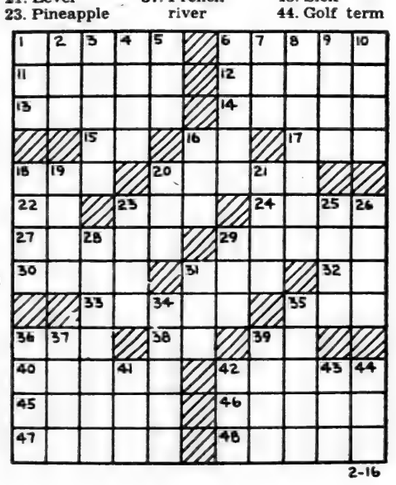
1. Debris at base of cliff
6. Resin
11. Worship
12. Silk scarf
13. Consolidate
14. Roman house gods
15. Music note
16. Exclamation of surprise
17. Aide: abbr.
18. Cook in hot fat
20. Ventured
22. Digraph
23. Jar
24. Opening
27. Once more
29. Chief gods of Norse mythology
30. Gull-like bird
31. Vase
32. Southern state: abbr.
33. Slopes
35. Garment border
36. Hawaiian food
38. Like
39. Spirit: Egypt. myth
40. Metal bolt
42. Silent
45. French river
46. Leg joint
47. Untidy
48. Kind of thread

DOWN

1. Sandy's headgear
2. Soft drink
3. Motor truck: Brit.
4. Impel
5. Observe
6. Hue
7. Danish money
8. Reviews of a sort
9. Beverages
10. Minus
16. Head covering
18. Exploit
19. Anger
20. Spanish title
21. Level
23. Pineapple
25. Green
26. Streetcar: Brit.
28. Comes
29. Land measures
31. —— and downs
34. Companionable: Brit. colloq.
35. Untalented writers
36. Demure
37. French river
39. Rumanian coins
41. Bitter vetch
42. Palm fiber
43. Sick
44. Golf term

AMOS						APIS
AFIRE						CARAT
CAGES						RIATA
ERR						TENSED
			AUGUST
SPINET						IOTA
PANES						ONION
APEX						ANGLED
			CARESS
SPRINT						KIP
ARETE						ALINE
PANEL						DENTS
MODE						SOSO

Yesterday's Answer



2-16

To any kid who'd like to go somewhere:

We'll pay half your fare.

The idea's not as crazy as it may seem.

Anytime we take a jet up, there are almost always leftover seats.

So it occurred to us that we might be able to fill a few of them, if we gave the young people a break on the fare, and a chance to see the country.

The American Youth Plan*

We call the idea the American Youth Plan, and what it means is this:

American will pay half the jet coach fare for anybody 12 through 21.

It's that simple.

All you have to do is prove your age (a birth certificate or any other legal document will do) and buy a $3 identification card.

We date and stamp the card, and this entitles you to a half-fare ticket at any American Airlines counter.

The only catch is that you might have to wait before you get aboard; the fare is on a standby basis.

"Standby" simply means that the passengers with reservations and the servicemen get on before you do.

Then the plane's yours.

The American Youth Plan is good year round except for a few days before and after the Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas rushes.

If you can't think of any places you'd like to go offhand, you might see a travel agent for a few suggestions.

We can't add anything else.

Other than it's a marvelous opportunity to just take off.

Complete this coupon—include your $3. (Do not send proof of age—it is not needed until you have your ID validated.)

In addition to your ID card, we'll also send you a free copy of AA's Go Go American with $50 worth of discount coupons.

American Airlines Youth Plan
633 Third Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10017

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip____

Birth date_____ Signature_____

Color of hair_____ Color of eyes_____

CN

American Airlines

McNamara's Senate Testimony Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has cautioned Senators the Viet Cong have increased their strength and given "every intention of raising the intensity of the conflict" in Viet Nam.

And, he said in censored testimony made public yesterday, the United States is making preparations, should the need arise, "for substantially increasing our deployment in South Viet Nam and raising the rate of activity of our air units there."

But McNamara, in his closed - door testimony late last month and early this month before the Senate Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, said the United States has no plans to mount an offensive against North Viet Nam to crush the Communist regime of Ho Chi Minh.

As to concerns the war might escalate inch by inch into a nuclear showdown, McNamara said "I don't believe any commander, and certainly not

Sec. McNamara

I has anticipated any possible use of nuclear weapons in South Viet Nam."

Pressed about whether this includes North Viet Nam, Mcamara said:

"It is not our intention to carry on military operations in North Viet Nam that would require the use or make desirable the use of nuclear weapons."

As Mc Namara's testimony was released, eight liberal House Democrats urged a slowdown in military activity and commitment in Viet Nam, and called for admission of Red China into the United Nations.

The group said "there are diplomatic alternatives, not yet fully explored, to continued military escalation of the war . . ."

McNamara revealed a report, based on interrogation of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese prisoners, that concluded that stepped up action on the ground and in the air appears to be taking "a toll of Viet Cong morale and combat effectiveness."

As another gauge of the effectiveness of the bombing, McNamara said "there can be no question but what the Chinese have supplied (deleted) somewhere between (deleted) thousand men to North Viet Nam, to help reconstruct their railroads and heads in the North.

"There can be no question but what the North Vietnamese have diverted tens of thousands, some estimate as much as 50,000, of their own personnel from other duties to reconstruct the bridges, roads and other facilities or lines of communications to the south. The cost of infiltration from North to South Viet Nam has risen dramatically."

But despite the bombing and heavy losses in last year's monsoon campaign "they have continued to infiltrate very substantial numbers from North Viet Nam to South Viet Nam, and they have not just replaced their losses but increased their strength and given every intention of raising the intensity of the conflict," said McNamara.

Charles de Gaulle

De Gaulle Wants Peace

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle told North Viet Nam yesterday he is ready to throw his weight behind a Viet Nam peace effort but he made it clear he does not think the time is ripe for negotiations.

De Gaulle put forth his views on the Viet Nam war in responding to a letter sent to him Jan. 24 by President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam.

He said France does not approve of prolonging the fighting or extending it in a effort to win a military solution.

He told Ho that France is prepared to "actively participate" in a settlement of the conflict as soon as this appears possible.

De Gaulle has told the United States of his opposition to the war in Viet Nam and has said he deplores the resumption of air raids against the north after the U. S. — imposed 37-day pause that started Christmas Eve.

De Gaulle assured Ho that France has carefully observered its responsibilities in connection with the Geneva agreements, and restated his conviction that a new Geneva conference should be called.

France wants to hasten the end of the war and, with that goal in mind, wants to maintail all useful contacts with North Viet Nam, De Gaulle said.

In his somewhat oblique offer to act as a third party in getting the war to the conference table, De Gaulle offered no suggestion, nor did he give any indication that France would formally call for the "New Geneva" he thinks is essential.

North Carolina News Roundup

Outer Banks Bill Cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared for House action a bill to establish the Cape Lookout National Seashore in Carteret County, N. C.

The seashore would be at the southern tip of Cape Hatteras National Seashore, the first national seashore authorized by Congress.

The Senate passed a similar bill last year.

The bill would authorize $3.2 million in federal money to buy the remainder of the land and develop the narrow stretch of the Outer Banks for recreation suitabe to its wild, unspoiled beaches. The measure was approved earlier by the House Interior Committee.

Interior Committee Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., told the Rules committee: "This is a rather inexpensive seashore because the State of North Carolina has seen fit to purchase the land while it was relatively cheap. This is another instance where the State of North Carolina, being more interested in conservation than most states, has purchased most of the land and is giving it to the federal government."

An administrative seashore office is expected to be established in or near Beaufort.

Shore protection and erosion control work by Army engineers Aspinall said, is expected to cost $5.9 million.

The lone reef, varying in width from a quarter to three-quarters mile, is 58 miles long, extending from Ocracoke Inlet on the north to Beaufort Inlet.

Housing Specialist Named

RALEIGH (AP) — Luther C. Hodges of Winston-Salem was named by Gov. Dan Moore to coordinate state efforts to provide housing for low-income families.

Gov. Moore announced Hodges, nephew of former Gov. Luther H. Hodges, will serve as housing specialist with the State Planning Task Force. He will direct the task force's Low-Income Housing Demonstration Project.

Hodges will work fulltime and draw a $12,000 salary.

Funds for the project have been provided by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the North Carolina Fund. HUD has put up $80,000 and the North Carolina Fund $10,000.

Gov Moore said the demonstration project "will bring together representatives of consumer groups government, construction, banking, architecture and real estate in efforts to increase the quality of sound, healthful housing for families of limited income and for individuals, such as the aged or handicapped, with particular unmet housing needs."

The project also "is intended to stimulate the growth of housing as an industry," Moore said.

The State Planning Task Force was created by Moore to work in areas of federal-state cooperation. Wayne Corpening is director of the force and John Hampton serves as coordinator.

Hodges, a Leaksville native and University of North Carolina graduate, has had experience in city government, residential heating and air conditioning and public relations.

Three Cities Win Awards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Distinguished Achievement Awards were presented Tuesday to three cities in North Carolina and one in South Carolina in a National Cleanest Town Achievement Award Contest.

Bessemer City, Rocky Mount and New Bern, N. C., and Columbia, S. C., were among cities cited.

CBS News President Resigns After Dispute

NEW YORK, (AP) — Fred W. Friendly, President of News, resigned yesterday in a top - management disagreement over live coverage of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings.

Dr. Frank Stanton, President of the parent Columbia Broadcasting System, announced the resignation with a statement which said in part: "Mr. Friendly feels that he is unable to continue in his post as a result of a decision made by the recently appointed group vice President - Broadcasting, John A. Schneider, not to schedule live television coverage of the testimony of George F. Kennan before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week."

The differences flared on Thursday, the day after Schneider had been promoted from President of CBS television network to a newly created corporate post which made him Friendly's boss.

Schneider's decision was to continue regular programming — soap operas, game shows and re-runs — during the day, a period when NBC preempted its day-time shows to pick up the Washington hearings.

Schneider was quoted at the time as stating that decisions on the coverage would be made on a day-to-day basis and that he felt that prolonged hearings could be "given significance" by edited tapes during news programs or special programs later.

Friendly's letter of resignation to Stanton and CBS Board Chairman William Paley called Schneider's decision on the hearings "a business, not a news, judgment" and said it "makes a mockery of the Paley-Stanton . . . crusade of many years that demands broadest access to congressional debate . . .

Friendly, 50, had been CBS News President since March, 1964, and a as strongly in favor of live coverage of such affairs. He is given much credit for CBS' strong position in the news field and for keeping on CBS the only weekly public affairs hour in prime evening time.

Soprano To Sing

Gwendolin Sims, award-winning operatic soprano, will appear in the G. M. Lounge Sunday at 8 p.m.

Joint Chiefs Forsee Viet Nam Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—Members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff testified at closed Senate hearings on Viet Nam recently and here's the way their views were recorded in a transcript released yesterday:

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs: ". . . I myself, have no doubt that, in the long term, we can achieve military victory. It is not going to be a short war, however."

Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army Chief of Staff:

"The purpose of our forces out there is to dig out the military formations or paramilitary formations from the safe haven areas from which they have operated through these many years, and to prevent large scale attacks by Viet Cong or North Vietnamese on South Vietnamese units, both the military and the paramilitary forces."

Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations:

"I am convinced of one thing, that we will never win out there until we are able to create what I call local forces of law and order . . . so that after our military people pacify a place . . . They can move on and have the South Vietnamese come in themselves with their local political people and their police. Because until they can do that we aren't pacifying it, we are occupying it.

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force Chief of Staff: "We cannot completely stop stop the infiltration of supplies. In my opinion we can make itmore difficult for them than it has been in the past."

WANT ADS

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

FOR SALE: 1965 SUZUKI, 55 cc, M-31. Excellent condition. Low mileage. One owner. asking price $195. Call days 942-6610, nights 942-1280.

FOR SALE: 1953 M. G. Roadster. M. G.-A engine, runs good, clean, new top. 942-1471.

Refreshment anyone?
Game goes better refreshed.
Coca-Cola! With its lively lift, big bold taste, never too sweet . . . refreshes best.

things go better with Coke

Drink Coca-Cola

Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Durham, N. C.

FREE – $1,000 FOR BOOK LOVERS

The Amy Loveman National Award will be presented to the college undergraduate who has the best personal library which shows interest in book collecting.

The final date for getting your entry in to the Bull's Head Book Shop has been moved up to March first. The final date for submission of your essay is April 15th.

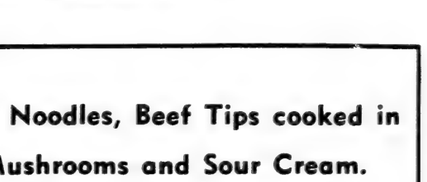
In addition to the National Prize of $1,000, there will be two local prizes awarded. First prize locally is $25 worth of books from The Bull's Head, and the second local prize is $15 worth of books.

The local judges are: Dr. Hugh Holman, of the English Department, Dr. Frank Ryan, of the History Department, and Dr. Jerrold Orne, Librarian.

If you wish to enter the competition, come by The Bull's Head before March first.

BULL'S HEAD BOOKSHOP

GROUND FLOOR UNC LIBRARY
Hours: Mon.-Fri. 9-9 Sat. 9-1



LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50

Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving

BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS

Recommended by
Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway

The Blair House

Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Wednesday Night Special

FRENCH COOKERY

Beef Stroghoff with Noodles, Beef Tips cooked in Red Wine with Mushrooms and Sour Cream.

Tossed Green Salad – Buttered Clover Leaf Rolls

$1.00

IN THE PRINT ROOM

Colorful Flowers and Beasts

Most seen through whimsical Oriental eyes. The nicest thing that could happen to your wall!

50c per print

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

12:59, 3, 5:01, 7:03 & 9:05
Short, "PINK PAJAMAS"
RIALTO, Durham

Make an appointment through your Placement Office to see Equitable's employment representative on March 2, 3 or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division, for further information.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 ©Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

State Downs Carolina With Sharp Defense

Tar Babies Slap Wolflets, 74-66

Carolina Wraps Up Third Straight 'Big Four' Title

By BILL ROLLINS

RALEIGH — Ol' Number 13 was hard to come by.

It wrapped up Carolina's third straight Big Four Title, but it was a much harder than expected test.

State's Wolflets, who pushed Duke into two over times before falling in Durham Monday night, harassed the Tar Babies from the opening tap off, and were still nipping sharply at UNC's heels when the final buzzer ended a 74-66 struggle which was the 13th straight conquest of the Babies.

The story of the game can be told by Carolina's frequent and successful trips to the foul line. UNC drew 27 fouls, and got 40 free throw chances and hit 30, with Bill Bunting leading the parade with 14 without a miss.

State outscored Carolina from the floor, 24 goals to 22. The Babies had their worst shooting night of the year, hitting just 22 - of 56 for 39.3 percent. Sate had the same pe centage on 24 - of - 61.

The Tar Babies were never able to break away in this one. They moved to a 12 point lead when State hit a five minute famine in the first half. But a NCS rally at the start of the second period cut the lead to three and it was hip and tuck for most of the rest of the way.

With 8:51 left in the first half and UNC leading by only three, 18-15, the Wolflets hit a better than five minute scoreless streak. This enabled the Tar Babies to pull away to a 12 point lead, 27-15, before State scored again with 3:32 left in the half.

After Crolina moved to a 35-24 lead at the end of the first period, State outscored their visitors 12-4 beginning the final round to slice its deficit to 39-36 with 14:42 remaining.

The Wolflets were in a medium stall at this juncture, but the Tar Babies played semi-deliberately themselves, and got three baskets in just over a minute, to widen the gap to 45-36 at 13:06.

But State wasn't giving up the ship yet. Baskets by its two 5'8 guards, Nick Trifunovick and Jerry Rivlin made it 50 to 46 with 9:16 to go. Here however, Carolina got four points from Gerald Tuttle, two from Rusty Clark and one from Dick Grubar to pull to a 57-46 lead at 7:40.

It was never close thereafter, but the biggest lead UNC was able to manage was 74-60 after Bunting's two free throws at 1:02.

The scoring leader for North Carolina was Rusty Clark with 21 points. Bunting added 16—all but two from the free throw line and Grubar had 11.

For State, Rivlin lead with 18 and Trifunovick had 16, most of both's coming from outside.

State
Trifunovick	8-15	0-0	5	16
Rivlin	7-14	4-6	7	18
Serdich	4-14	2-3	7	10
Braucher	3-9	5-5	3	11
McLean	2-5	3-4	2	7
Lewis	0-1	2-3	2	2
Johnson	0-0	2-2	2	2
Fogg	0-3	0-0	0	0
Carolina		35	39	74
N.C. State		24	42	66
Totals	24-61	18-23	28	66

NC
Tuttle	2-7	4-5	5	8
Grubar	5-11	1-2	6	11
Brown	3-7	3-4	7	9
Clark	7-15	7-10	17	21
Bostick	4-6	1-4	0	0
Rosyall	0-1	0-1	2	0
Dodson	0-0	0-0	0	0
Camnitz	0-0	0-0	0	0
Adams	0-2	0-0	0	0
Rindfleisch	0-0	0-0	0	0
Totals	22-56	30-40	50	74

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Spring Will Bring Special Intramurals

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

There are several special events coming up in intramurals during the spring which will allow participants to compete individually, of a team, and even representing Carolina.

The Grail Mural Sports Jamboree will be held on March 16 and 17. Included in the program are badminton, foul shooting, archery, handball, table tennis, half-court basketball, swimming and relay races.

Teams are combined from residence halls and fraternities. Last year's overall winner was a team from TEP-Graham with Lambda Chi-Teague second. The purpose of the Jamboree is to promote better relationships between members of fraternities and students in residence halls. It also functions to bring the top intramural athletes in the university together for serious competition.

Those who always wish they could play a varsity sport for UNC can have their chance to compete for Carolina in the Big Four Sports Day. Competition is held against Duke, State and Wake in badminton, golf, handball, horseshoes, softball, table tennis, volleyball, bowling, and tennis.

Even the most frustrated athlete should be able to find something that suits him in those categories. State has had a monopoly on the annual contest for the last five years, Last yeat UNC did not win a single event, which proved embarrassing to our intramural program.

Also held in the spring is the Rod and Gun Field Meet, featuring trap shooting, target rifle, skish bait casting and archery. All outdoor sportsmen should be interested in this affair. Alexander won the meet last year with DKE runner up.

As an added inspiration to all this, individual awards are given in every instance mentioned and team trophies are awarded in the Jamboree and Rod and Gun Meet.

Lewis Could Post 5th Best

Junior Bob Lewis of North Carolina will post the fifth best scoring average in Atlantic Coast Conference history if he can hold his production average where it is for the remainder of the season.

Actually, only three players have ever bettered Lewis's 28.6 -point average for a full season.

But one of them, Buzz Wilkinson of Virginia, did it twice, averaging 32.1 points in 1955 and 30.1 in 1954. Grady Wallace of South Carolina averaged 31.2 in 1957 and Len Chappell of Wake Forest 30.1 in 1962.

Lewis needs to stay ahead of the 28.3 - point mark produced by Bill Yarborogh of Clemson in 1955 to take the No. 5 spot among all-time ACC scoring averages He has put the '66 conference scoring title pretty much out of reach of the challenging field.

A distant second is Paul Long of Wake Forest averaveraging 24.3 points. Through games of last Saturday night, both Lewis and Long had seen action 20 times, with Lewis riding 86 points in front with less than a half dozen games remaining.

Bob Leonard of Wake Forest and Larry Miller of North Carolina continue to age a torrid duel for the No. 3 spot, with Leonard averaging 22.7 points and Miller 22.6 as of latest ACC Service Bureau tabulations.

Maryland's Rick Wise and Duke's Mike Lewis are courting a conference record for field goal accuracy.

Wise has made 68 of 109 from the floor for 62.4 per cent, Lewis 112 of 182 for 61.6 per cent. The existing record of 60.0 per cent was set by Duke's Jay Buckley in 1963.

In free throw shooting, Pete Coker of N. C. State is first with 63 of 72 and 87.5 per cent. Long is next with 110 of 128 for 85.9 per cent.

Mike Lewis tops individual rebounding with 11.7 recoveries a game, with Frank Standard of South Carolina second on 11.1 per outing.

The ten leading scorers:

Play Sch.	fg	ft	pts.	avg.
Lewis, UNC	207	158	372	28.6
Long, WF	188	110	486	24.3
Leonard, WF	177	99	453	22.7
Miller, UNC	178	95	451	22.6
Connelly, Va.	128	80	332	20.7
Verga, Duke	144	64	352	19.6
Marin, Duke	148	63	359	18.9
Helms, Clem.	144	47	335	18.6
Ward, Md.	147	55	349	17.4
S'land, Clem.	113	69	295	17.4

Bill Dodson Turns To Basketball Now

By Bob CURRIE

Bill Dodson, a product of Alexandria, Virginia, is a Carolina freshman athlete who has pleased not just one, but two Tar Heel coaches, and may well please more before the school year is over.

Recruited as a wingback on the freshman football team, Bill (6-1, 185 pounds) is one of those rare exceptions in collegiate athletics who excels in every sport he plays. While attending Bollis Academy in Maryland, this Virginian played football, basketball, and baseball, and, incidentally, captained all three teams.

College competition, which many times proves to be too much for former high school stars, has been no problem for Bill. During last fall's preseason football drills, the freshman coaches were impressed with his performance as a wingback and kicking specialist. Five unbeaten games later, what doubt there might have been in anyone's mind as to the calibre of this youngster was obliterated.

'Billy did a real fine job for us last fall," says head freshman coach George Barclay ."He is an excellent pass receiver and the best freshhave ever coached. He's such a fine athlete, I'm sure he'll play somehwere on the varsity next year."

When you consider that Dodson kicked 12 of 14 extra point attempts and five field goals in a mere five games, and that he averaged 16.2 yards on 10 pass receptions, it is not hard to see why Barclay is so pleased.

When asked about what was his best game last year, Bill with modest reluctance admits, "I guess my best game was against Virginia at Charlottesville when I scored two field goals, one 35 and the other 45 yards"

Barclay is not alone in his praise of Bill. Larry Brown, Bill's basketball coach, agrees that this aspiring business administration major is a top-notch athlete.

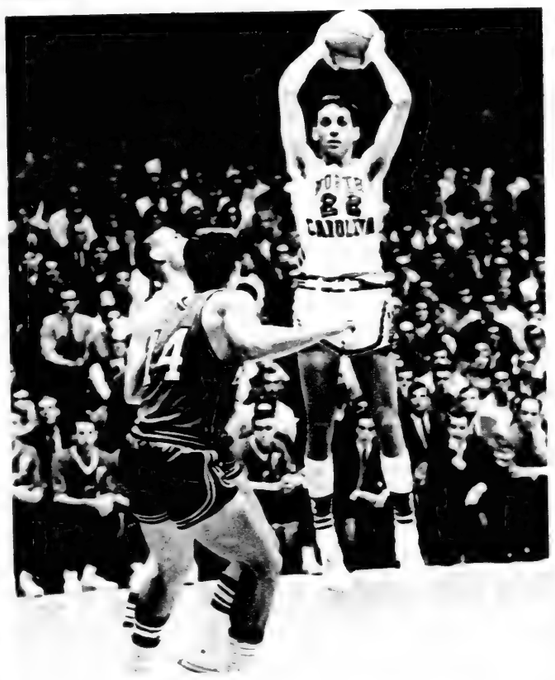
'Bill is presently our number one reserve at guard," says Brown. "He has performed well and has put out a lot of effort. He developed quickly after going out for the team a month after we had started working out. I think if he were to specialize as a basketball player, he would be a great asset to our basketball program."

This compliment is made even more impressive by the fact that the Tar Baby basketball team is currently undefeated and is frequently said to be the best ever at Carolina.

"Like football, my best game was against Virginia up there when I scored 14 points, which is my best total so far."

"One good thing about playing basketball is that it has kept me in good shape so that I will be ready to go when spring (football) drills start. Of course, I won't know until the drills are over exactly where I will be playing, but I hope that I will be placed at wingback. I won't know until after spring drills are over whether I will go out for baseball."

If Dodson does try baseball, he will have been the first to play all three major sports ince Danny Talbott arrived at the Hill.



First 11 Minutes Proves Fatal To Tar Heel Effort

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

RALEIGH— North Carolina State's Wolfpack tore into North Carolina's Tar Heels in the first 11 minutes of action, led by as much as 18 points and nursed that margin for a 87-77 victory before 11,900 fans in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh last night.

The Wolfpack, featuring a razzle dazzle defense, had the Tar Heels offense completely on the ropes in the first 11 minutes of action.

State's defense held Tar Heels scoreless from the floor.

Sophomore Larry Miller hit the first Tar Heel bucket from the floom with 8:57 remaining in the half, but the damage had been done.

The Wolfpack led 27-11 and never surrendered.

State jumped on the Tar Heels from the start, three steals, three lay-ups and a Pete Coker foul shot gave the Wolfpack a 7-0 lead with 17:07 remaining. With 15:40 to go forward Harold Blondeau connected for a 11-3 State lead Minutes later the lead was 13 as Tommy Mattock hit for 18-5 lead.

With 10:50 left, the score was 25-7 in favor of the Wolfpack and the Tar Heels had yet to hit a shot from the floor. The Tar Heels did pull a feeble comeback after Miller hit his basket

They cut the Wolfpack lead to 11 points at 30-19 with 4:41 remaining but the Wolfpack were not about to give up They led at half time 38-25

There were several reasons for the Wolfpack surge

The Tar Heels committed 18 ball handling errors in the first half—including 15 in the first 10 minutes of action

Most importantly they could hit only 6 of 20 from the floor for 30 per cent. The only savior came at the foul line as they converted 14-of-18 attempts.

The Tar Heels did manage to rally once again in the first half. Down by 23 points, 63-40, with 9:08 remaining, the Tar Heels began slowly to cut the margin.

With 8:30 remaining the Wolfpack lead was 17 points, 63-46. With 4:55 the lead was 14 points, 73-59 and with 1:50 remaining 12 points separated the two clubs, 79-67.

In the final minutes of the half the Tar Heels managed to cut the Wolfpack lead to 8 points on two occasions, but again the Wolfpack refused to wilt—gunning for their final 10 point margain, 87-77

In the scoring department Tommy Mattocks put on quite a show for the partisan Wolfpack fans. Mattocks hit 11-of-15 shots from the floor and 6 of 7 from the free throw line for a game high total of 28 points.

Next in line for the Wolfpack were Ray Hodgdon with 16 points.

Ex-Varsity Players Lead Law IV To 87-33 Victory

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Law IV, with four ex-UNC varsity basketball players, caught Dental School IV in intramurals on Monday and beat them to dealt 87-33. Charlie Shaffer led the lawyers with 43 points, while Pud Hassell had 15, Bill Brown 12 and Oeschlaeger 12. Church had 16 for the poor dentists.

The Joyner Supporters had three men with over 10 points as they crushed the Alexander Punies, 84-35. White had 26 points, Cochran had 24 and Carlin 23. Tom Dodson managed 17 for the Punies.

The Morrison C. Cavaliers trampled the Morrison G. Dunkers, 81-45. Scott Peterson had 20 points, Rod Jurash 20 and Glenn Cuthrell 19 for the Cavaliers. Ronnie Arnold scored 20 for the Dunkers.

Rich Benson had 27 points and Larry Simpson 25 in Ehringhaus A No. 5's 60-36 triumph over Ehringhaus C No. 2.

Ehringhaus C Superstars ran over the Ehringhaus D Pedros, 70-39, as every player hit double figures. Miller had 23, LISK 17 and Loman 15 for the Superstars, while John Beam gathered 23 points for the Pedros.

Lewis White blasted the Everet t Hustlers, 76-35, behind the 23 points of John Liles. Sam Lowman added 16 and Charles Parsons 15 for Lewis.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes defeated Dental School A, 73-59. Gibbs scored 22 points and McLaughlin 17 for FCA, while ex-UNC star Jim Hudock had 23 for Dental School.

Twenty-two points by Eddie Gainer led the Parker Supporters to a 65-45 triumph over the Avery Wapps. Ken Cox netted 17 points for Avery.

The Hilltoppers slipped past the NROTC Sea Dogs, 30-26.

The Avery All-Stars downed the Avery A's, 33-27.

The Craige C. Alkaceltics beat the Maverick C Goodguys, 59-50. Teddy O'Toole had 16 points, Kit Murphy 14 and Ozie Faison 13 for Craige.

Ehringhaus B-2, made up of football players, slugged Ehringhaus A-3, 70-38. Tom Lampman led a balanced attack with 21 points.

Lee Clower scored 23 points and Steve Balcom added 19 more in The Graham Bells' 61-36 win over the Graham B-Balls.

The Peacocks downed Med Mooses I, 55-46, behind Jim Speight's 18 points.

The Ruffin Roadrunners raced past grimes, 55-27. Charles Markland scored 16 points while Charles Crenshaw and Robbie Phillips had 12 each.

The Connor Animals nudged the Alexander Poobahs, 35-32.

The Parker Possums beat the Parker Pretzels in a slow game, 37-19.

The Falcons had an easy time with Baptist Student Union, 64-37.

Redshirt Trouble

The practice, of red-shirting collegiate athletes may not be a refuge from the military draft, Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, says.

Hershey said Monday night that it will be tougher for the college red shirt to stretch his academic career and retain his athletic eligibility as well as his draft deferment. Red shirting, barred in some conferences and independent schools, is laying off an athlete for a year from varsity competition and maintain the year for future varsity eligibility.

Hershey also said that the pro baseball and football stars who have been sandwiching their military careers between seasons by taking reserve programs that require only six months of active duty are "already losing this refuge."

He added that college and professional athletes who are holding student deferments will have to work at their studies full time to keep them.

"We are going to be pretty brisk about whether they are full - time students," he said. "And the six-month reserve program is going to be increasingly difficult to get into.

Hershey would not guess on whether heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay will be drafted before his March 29 bout in Chicago with Ernie Terrell. He said it is entirely up to Clay's Louisville draft board.

Hershey defended the medical deferment of Joe Namath, the star quarterback of the New York Jets pro football team, and other athletes who suffer from damaged knees like Namath's.

"The Army can't afford to have four or five trainers around to prepare these people before a fight and take care of them afterwards," he said.

"A lusty, boldly provocative production" — LIFE MAGAZINE

RICHARD BURTON · PETER O'TOOLE
HAL WALLIS' PRODUCTION
BECKET
with JOHN GIELGUD DONALD WOLFIT MARITTA HUNT PAMELA BROWN
PETER GLENVILLE EDWARD ANHALT JEAN ANOUILH
PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR
CAROLINA TODAY ONLY Shows at 1:00 3:00—5:00 7:10—9:15

DUTCH AUCTION SALE

Wentworth & Sloan
JEWELERS

Today is the 8th Day.

Over 800 Items on Sale.

Come in and Bid Today

THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL,

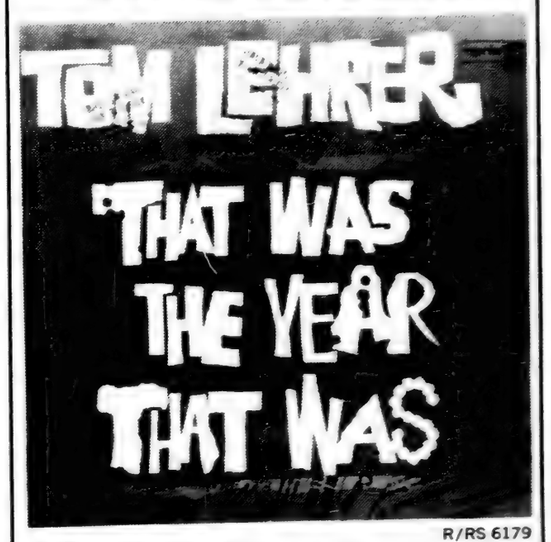
The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house.

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

SHIBBOLETH SHATTERER!



R/RS 6179

SOCIAL SATIRE AT ITS MORDANT MOST!

reprise RECORDS

TO PLAY AND PLAY AGAIN

Revolutionary Teaching Method

Lab Students Can 'See' Tapes

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

"You learn Spanish just as you learned English when you were a baby."

This was the reaction of Mrs. Page Keen, a Spanish I student taking the part of a "guinea pig" this semester in an experimental laboratory-taught course in Spanish.

And what's better, "this new lab is fun," says Mrs. Keen. She is one of 16 students in the experiment.

"We're really encouraged about the experiment," Dr. Anthony G. Lo Re, director of the UNC language laboratory, said. "But it's too early to tell how successful the new teaching method is going to be."

— The new lab method of teaching involves no text book and has added another sense for the student to use in learning Spanish-sight.

The sight sense is put to use with illustrations of the audio portion of the lab.

"It take about for or five hours to prepare a lesson," LoRe said, "but we think it is better than the audio laboratory."

The lessons are prepared by LoRe, Ron Grieve, who is the laboratory technician, and Mrs. Glee Noble, who draws the illustrations.

The illustrations have to be photographed and a filmstrip prepared. Now the filmstrip and audio portion of the laboratory are on seperate machines, but the entire laboratory will later be contained on a small audio - visual tape, LoRe said.

The Spanish class is being taught by Miss Annette Grant, a graduate student.

Tuesday the 16 students had their first quiz under the new teaching system. It was short and fast but the instructor could find out what progress the student is making. The quiz consisted of 20 oral questions and it was all over in less than two - and - one - half minutes.

All of the responses are oral and there is nothing written or read. Each student's response is recorded on one of four four - track tape recorders and the students are graded later.

Miss Grant, of Miami, Fla., describes the audio-usual-lingual method of laboratory teaching as "different and refreshing. The students have been very enthusiastic about this," she said.

The idea of the new method is about two years old, LoRe said, but it hadn't been used here until this semester. He said he learned about the new method through Chester Electronics Laboratroies which installed the language laboratory equipment.

"When learned about it," LoRe said, "I didn't sleep for two nights."

In the future the lessons will be made up of materials composed with authentic accents and the visual aids will be actual pictures rather than drawings.

"Right now we're trying to get ready for some experimental equipment that is on the way," LoRe said. The new equipment will be "slo-scan" television equipment and eventually will be installed in each booth in the laboratory.

"The theory of the audio - visual - lingual teaching method," LoRe said, "is that we are hoping to improve upon the present laboratory system

He said it is difficult for students to get used to the system. But he added that they are "thinking positive" about it.

Mrs. Page Keen, a student in the class, commented, "The new lab is fun. You learn Spanish just as you learn English when you're a baby."

EXPERIMENTAL LABORATORY — Spanish I students in the first experimental audio-visual-lingual laboratory here observe the illustrated lessons on a viewer in the classroom. The students have no text. Miss Annette Grant, the lab instructor, is at left and Dr. Anthony LoRe, language laboratory director is on the right. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Talks Set For Hillel This Week

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religion Editor

The Hillel Foundation, the Jewish student organization of North Carolina, is this week presenting the second program of the Rosa B. Weinstein Memorial Lectures on Religion.

The program will be in the Music Room, East Duke Building, at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow evenings. It is to take place at Duke University.

Dr. Marvin Fox, professor of philosophy at Ohio State University, will be the speaker for both evenings. Tonight he will talk about "Duties vs. Rights" and tomorrow "The Spirit and the Letter". The general topic for the lectures is "The Jewish Concept of Law".

Dr. Fox has written studies of major Jewish thinkers, especially Buber, Heschel, Maimonides and of major figures in the history of philosophy, including Plato, Hume and Kierkegaard. He is currently working on a book on the philosophy of Maimonides.

Before going to Ohio State, he was on the faculty of Northwestern University. He has traveled in Europe and Israel and was a 1962-63 Fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies.

There is no admission charge for the Winter Program of Lectures sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. The program is co-sponsored by the B'nai B'r Hillel Counsellorship at Duke University.

Campus Events

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only

TODAY

The Stray Greeks will meet at Brady's at 6:30 p.m. for a supper meeting.

Applications for the Gamma Beta Phi Honor Society which is now holding its Spring Rush can be obtained at Gerrard Hall between 12 and 4 p.m. Anyone making a 2.5 average last semester is eligible for membership.

The State Affairs Committee will meet in Woodhouse at 5 p.m.

Beginners's folk dance class meets at the Presbyterian Student Center from 7-8 p.m. Admission free.

Folk Dancing at the UNC phy-nesday nights at the Presbyterian Student Center.

Dr. Douglas Cutler will speak on the "Study of Motion by Nuclear Magnetic Resonance" at the UN physics Coloquium at 4 p.m. in room 215 of Phillips Hall Tea and coffee will be served one half hour before the talk in the lounge, Room 277, Phillips Hall.

Four tickets to the Ramsey Lewis trio desperately needed. Will pay extra. Contact Mary Coleman, 968-9171.

Interviews will be held from 2-5 p.m.f ro position son the Student Government secretariat. Coeds applying should see Sherry O'Donnell, student body secretary, in Student Government offices on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

The Hillel Speaker Forum presents William Geer of the Department of History UNC, who will speak on "The Moral Alternatives to War" this Friday at 8 p.m following Friday night services at 7 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mock Trial jury selection, 3 p.m. Friday in the courtoom, second floor, Manning Hall.

Jubilee Plans Big Weekend

Nobody's talking yet, but Jubilee weekend is rumored to be bigger and more colossal than ever this year.

GM Director Howard Henry refused to "leak" any information yesterday, but "we're working on it very mightily," he said.

Festivities on the weekend of April 29, 30, May 1 will be in Polk Place again this year. Some new twists might include:

— free flicks shown outdoors.

— programs in the form of matchbooks.

Henry said no names will be released until "signed contracts" are negotiated. "We'll have something on it very soon," he said.

Informed sources tell us that if it weren't for a poor connection in a telephone conversation yesterday, the full program would have been announced.

One thing is for sure. There will be big names (bigger budget!). GM is booking Jubilee Weekend through one agency this year.

—Sitterson—

(Continued from Page 1)

DEAN J .C. SITTERSON

College of Arts and Sciences in 1955, but still continued to teach classes.

He also served as the dean of the General College and was named a Kenan Professor of History in 1961.

Dr. Sitterson has been serving as vice chancellor of UNC since July of 1965.

"When I became the dean of the college of Arts and Sciences eleven years ago, there were less than 7,000 students at UNC," Sitterson said, "Now th enrollment has almost doubled. We are now expecting an enrollment of 17,000 by 1970.

"We have to continue attracting the best possible faculty and retain the faculty we now have in order to keep up our standards along with the fast growth of the University."

"I hope for cooperation of student leaders and I expect to call on them for help. I feel certain that with the quality of courage and responsibility of our students and faculty that we will move right along."

A special faculty committee headed by Dr. William Wells, has been selected to make recommendations to Consolidated University President William C .Friday for a new chancellor.

Friday will present his choices from these recommendations to the board of trustees, who will select the new chancellor.

Skirts Or Ski Pants?

NEW YORK (AP)—A quick opinion poll disclosed today that short skirts are more distracting to the male than ski pants, although chillier.

In general, American men think ski pants are for skiing, shoveling show or scaling an Alp. A business girl who wants to trip up the roving eye will get better results with her knees in the breeze.

"Women in business should Jack WooJad shrdl cmfwy cm be effeminate," commented Jack Wood, a clotheir of Charlotte, N.C. "They don't look good in pants. They should leave the pants to men."

"With boys wearing long hair, it's hard enough already to tell the difference between some of them and the girls," said Sol Lapin, a Kansas City restuaranteur. "If women wore ski pants to the office it would confuse things that much more."

The question of how the girls should dress for business in winter was raised by Dr. Geoffrey Taylor, a doctor based at Cricket Malherbie, England.

"Girls," said the doctor, "Would be more efficient employes if they wore ski pants and men would work better if they wore lone underpants."

"Long underpants?" said Wayne Wood, a junior English major at Emory University. "Oh, he means on the men."

Emanuel Cassamatis, proprietor of an Eatery in St. Louis, said a girl with good legs should wear them out in the open. "Naturally, the unfortunate girl that doesn't have it must do the best she can," said Cassamatis. "So she would favor ski pants."

John Woodbury, news director of a radio station in Saul Ste. Marie, said "ski pants are all right when she's going skiing or lounging around the house, but a good - looking dress on a good-lookin woman . . ."

"Women should wear skirts no matter how cold it gets," asserted Richard Askue, a senior at Georgia State. "Skirts are more feminine. We don't want our girls turning into men."

Soviet Diplomat To Speak On Propaganda At Duke

UNC students have received a special invitation from the Duke Law students to attend their conference Feb. 18 and 19, on "The International Law of Propaganda," co-sponsored by the Duke International Law Society and the American Society of International Law.

This Southeastern Regional Conference will sponsor a number of experts in the field, of International Law & Propaganda, but one name in particular strikes the eye when scanning the program for the two - day conference; that is the name of Yuri I. Bobrakov, Second Secretary, Embassy of the Soviet Socialist Republics. He will speak on the "Communist Commitment to Propaganda".

Registration for the conference will begin at 11 p.m. Friday, and welcoming remarks will be made by President Knight at 1:30 p.m. The conference is free.

Other speakers will include Richard T. Davies of the VSIA and Richard C. Rowson of The Free Europe Committee, Inc. They will participate in a symposium panel with Bobrako Friday afternoon on "The Impact of Philosophies of Propaganda".

The Conference will last til 5:30 p.m. Saturday. More information can be obtained at the Tar Heel office.

Coeds Offered Scholarships

The 1966 Tri Delta Scholarship Competition begin Wednesday, Feb. 16. Two $150 scholarships are to be awarded. The recipients of these scholarships will be eligible for competition for a $1,000 National award. The deadline for application is Feb. 26.

The sorority's scholarship program is an international service, irrespective of fraternity affiliation. All women students of UNC are eligible to apply for the scholarships. Application blanks may be obtained from the Student Aid Office.

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographying
Over Sutton's Drugs
159 E. Franklin
942-3225
Xerox

LA PIZZA SPECIAL
Wednesday, Thursday Nite
HAMBURGER STEAK
Smothered in Onions,
Baked Potato — Salad.
$1.25
Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

Our H. Freeman Jacket MELLOWS WITH AGE!
Of all the Sports Jackets we know our Shetland is the most long lived. It is the only fabric we know that actually mellows with age! That is why some men wear their H. Freeman Jackets for years and years . . . and enjoy boundless luxury with each wearing!
In handsome SCOTTISH HEATHERS
Expressly for
Julian's

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS
SEE US for MONEY! Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.
Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

THE NEW YORK LIFE Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358
NEW YORK LIFE
NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present
SEAN CONNERY
"THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY PANAVISION
TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

Three Juicy Bits from Our Table of Bargains . . .

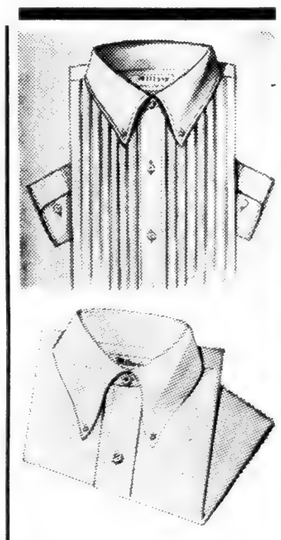
THE GRILL AND WAFFLE COOKBOOK, by Helen Hovey and Roslyn Chidekel. An abundance of toothsome recipes, ranging from appetizer to dessert, all easily made on your grill-waffle baker. Get yourself a name as the miracle-kitten of your neighborhood, with this new, inexpensive fad. Was $2.50. Now Only $1.49

The Ladies of Richmond, THE LADIES OF RICHMOND, by Katharine M. Jones. Here gathered from a multitude of letters and diaries, is the true story of domestic life in the Confederate capitol for four exciting and tragic years. Originally published at $6.00. Now $2.98

EARLY CHRISTIAN ART, A big, luxurious, picture book, with illustrations in color and black and white. This will be the high point in any collection of Medieval reference books. Published at $25.00—Now $14.95

LOTS MORE—COME TREASURE-HUNTING!
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

DRESS SHIRT SALE
Our entire stock of famous name traditional dress shirts have been cut once again for this once a year sale. Buy several at these low prices.
Reg. 5.00 — NOW 2.99
Reg. 5.95 — NOW 3.99
Reg. 6.50 — NOW 3.99
Reg. 6.95 — NOW 4.99
MANY OTHER FANTASTIC BUYS NOW AWAIT YOU!
THE HUB of Chapel Hill
103 E. FRANKLIN ST.

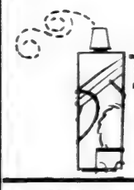


There's An M-2 In Your Present At Enticing FROGSTRANGLER Prices!
Large choice group of 977 button-down shirts all in our own perfect customized roll button-down, regularly to $8.95, have a Frogstrangler Ball at amazing $2.99.
Many Other Frogstrangler Buys You Just Have to Have.
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

DOLLAR DAYS
THURSDAY FRIDAY SATURDAY
5 EXTRA SPECIALS
PLUS
$335 in Merchandise—In an Exciting Give-Away
FREE

• SIX $29.95 Zenith Table Model Radios
• SIX $12.88, 6-Transistor Radios
• SIX $12.88 Electric Steam Irons
THIS IS HOW YOU WIN —
Specials will be numbered and you will be notified at checkout if your purchases have a winning number.

$1.59 Value Ladies' FIRST QUALITY Cantrice NYLON HOSE . . . 88c
(Lucky number on package)



$1.50 Value HELENE CURTIS Top Model Hair Spray 54c
(Lucky number on can)

$1.99 Value Old Fashion Kerosene LAMP 88c
(Lucky number on lamp)

$29.95 Value
• 3 LIVING ROOM TABLES $14.49
(Lucky number on carton)

• NEW LISTERINE TOOTH PASTE
Reg. 69c Tube 2 for 69c
(Lucky number on tube)

15 Only Reg. $3.77
BURFODI HOLLY BUSHES & SYCAMORE TREES ..... $1.00 ea.

Wood's
5 & 10c STORE — Eastgate

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 96 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Meetings Today

The Publications Board will meet today at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room. There will be a meeting of the freshman class social committee in Roland Parker III at 4 p.m.

Lost Notebook

The person that lost a Poli Sci 150 notebook yesterday in Woollen Gym may claim it at the DTH business office.

Students Get Lower Rates For Cruises

Carolina students can take a four-day cruise to Nassau, Bahamas during Spring break for $75-$160 depending on the type of accommodations desired.

The cruise will leave Miami on April 4 on the S. S. Bahama Star. The ship will return to Miami on April 7.

The price of the cruise includes three full course meals daily plus early morning coffee, mid - morning bouillon, afternoon tea and midnight buffet.

Entertainment and all shipboard facilities and activities throughout the trip are included in the fare. Two orchestras will provide music nightly for dancing.

While the ship is docked in Nassau, passengers can return to the ship after a day on the island to spend the night on the ship. If the passengers prefer they can secure hotel accommodations on the island.

An alternate three-day weekend cruise is offered for somewhat smaller rates. This cruise will leave Miami on April 8 and return on the 10.

No vaccination certificates or passports are needed for U. S. citizens.

Any interested students should contact Continental Travel Agency as soon as possible.

Nurse Francis Young Helps Senior Mary Haverstock Give Blood.

Moore Turns Down Invitation To Speak

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore refused Wednesday to speak at a mass rally in Chapel Hill and explain why two controversial speakers were denied visiting rights at the University.

Instead, Moore suggested that the Committee for Free Inquiry, which had invited him, should ask a member of the Executive Committee of the board of trustees to appear at the meeting.

The invitation to Moore came from Paul Dickson, president of the university student body. The CFI Steering Committee, of which Dickson is chairman, had left the date open for Moore's appearance.

Dickson in his letter asked Moore to address the student body at Chapel Hill within the next few days "to explain to them why it was necessary for the university administration to have the power of censorship ever any speakers invited by recognized campus organizations, why it is necessary to establish an arbitrary limit of 'frequency' for certain types of speakers, why the exercise of constitutional rights leads to 'discord and strife' and precisely what the Executive Committee's definition of 'the advantages of education' is."

Gov. Moore replied, "I will be unable to accept your invitation to address your group in regard to the action I have taken with respect to visiting speakers at the university."

The governor said his reasons for opposing appearances by Aptheker and Wilkinson were made public at his news conference Thursday.

Moore told newsmen then that his opposition was "based on my personal conviction that their appearance would not clearly serve the advantage of education. As chairman of the board of trustees, I felt it was my duty and my right to express my personal opinion on this controversy."

The governor also referred to the report of the Britt Commission which studied North Carolina's speaker ban controversy.

"If you and your associates will study these documents," Moore wrote Dickson, "you will, I believe, have adequate answers to your questions and better understand my position in this matter."

Moore said he "would not presume to ask" a member of the Executive Committee to explain the action of the committee.

Blood Drive Gets 181, Falls Short

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

A first day goal of 300 pints for the Carolina Blood Drive fell short yesterday as only 181 pints were collected.

Today is the last day of the drive with a goal of 600 set for the two-day effort.

Co-chairman Sonny Pepper said yesterday that the goal could be easily reached. "We could take as many as 400 pints, all we need are bodies," Pepper said.

The drive gets underway at 9:30 this morning in Woollen Gym. It will last until 3:30 p.m.

More than 250 people turned out yesterday but many were turned down because of recent illness, medication and other reasons.

Pepper said about one out of every four donors was turned away. "I was disappointed in the turn out. We hope it will be better," he said.

Squimishness, the weather and apathy were some of the reasons Pepper cited for the poor turn out.

"I've never seen people work so hard and so well," Pepper said. "Everyone was so willing and their enthusiasm is greatly appreciated."

The groups working yesterday were the Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, Sigma Nu and the Chi Omega sorority.

Today's workers are Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Kappa Gamma, NROTC and the Semper Fidelis society.

The operation only takes about 30 minutes. Students fill out a questionnaire, have their temperature, bloor pressure, pulse and a hemoglobin count taken and then give blood.

After you have given the blood you are treated to cookies and drinks.

CAROLINA STYLE with Ed Freakley

Bleed-Out Is Not So Bad

If you didn't get down to the bleed-out in Woollen Gym yesterday you really did miss a good show. But don't worry there is one last performance today.

Now I don't think there were too many people who just walked right in and gave without any reservations. Everyone had a nervous look on their face and they weren't laughing very convincingly.

But when they came out they all seemed real pleased with themselves.

A lot of credit is due Sonny Pepper and Cathy Cauble and all the others working with the Red Cross people. They had a very efficient operation going. And they took real good care of everyone.

Students had many comments, while they sat around eating cookies and sipping soft drinks.

Harry McLean said, "I'd rather be giving it here than losing it in Viet Nam."

"I was scared to death when I came in, but I was really surprised to find out that it wasn't bad at all," Dean Painter said.

Hugh Dorsey: "If it saves one person's life it's worthwhile."

John Hodge: "As long as they're willing to fight for me it's the least I could do."

Margi Erickson: "If I can do it anybody can. I was scared to death."

Harry Wetherbee: "I regret that I have but one pint to give for my country."

When Armistead Maupin walked in and saw all the people lying on the tables he said, "This looks like a scene from 'Gone With the Wind.' "

DTH news editor asked the nurse if it was going to hurt. "Of course, it is," came the reply.

You'd have to be a masochist to enjoy it.

The DTH which under the leadership of Editor Ernie McCrary initiated the drive had 16 donors yesterday. Five staffers were turned down and six must go tomorrow. That will add up to 100 percent participation.

There were a lot of co-eds giving blood so there is no excuse for all you Carolina Gentlemen being afraid.

Of course you might get turned down if you have had a certain illness, taking some kind of medication or if you have been pregnant in the last year.

Carolina Students Improve Through Reading Course

By MIKE O'LEARY
DTH Staff Writer

Are you one of the unfortunate college students who can not remember the name of the main character of the novel you just read?

Do you find yourself up until the wee hours of the morning reading the same assignment over and over again while your roommate has gone to bed several hours earlier?

If this description fits you or if you would just like to improve an already satisfactory reading ability, the University Reading Program can help you.

The program is sponsored by the University Testing Service through the Division of Student Affairs.

It is a voluntary, non-credit course open to any student who wishes to improve his reading speed and comprehension. While there is no required attendance, 30 hours in the reading laboratory is recommended as the minimum necessary for noticable results.

Students can pick the hours of the week they would like to attend and may attend for as many hours as they wish.

The program begins with a series of tests which estimate a student's reading ability at the start of the program. The student then begins the program at the level prescribed by his test results.

The student progresses at his own speed. Work is done in the lab from assigned reading in prescribed texts. Five graduate assistants are on hand to help participants in the program.

"We stress flexibility in reading but some students want help in one area," said Mrs. W. D. Campbell, director of the reading program.

"We have a large selection on study skills which will aid the college students in studies," stated Mrs. Campbell.

Last year 300 to 350 students took advantage of the program. Approximately 175 have participated so far this semester. Most participants stay for the suggested 30 hours, but some stay for as long as two semesters.

The average speed for students participating in the program is below the average for college students. "It could be because students who come here need the program," stated Mrs. Campbell.

"We also get a few, not a large number, of foreign students who are interested in improving their reading. They seem to be successful at it."

The average speed for incoming participants last year was 237 words per minute, "which is somewhat low for college students. They usually double—"that's also average," said Mrs. Campbell.

Two years ago a test was run on students who had participated in the program but who had been out of it for three months. The results showed that they had dropped three per cent in their speed rate, but had gained in comprehension.

"Retention of what they get in here is pretty good," stated Mrs. Campbell.

Regular classes may be scheduled between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and 9 a.m. and noon on Saturdays.

An enrollment fee of two dollars is used to cover the cost of materials and is payable at the start of the program. The flexibility of reading class schedules permits enrollment in the course at anytime throughout the academic year.

Students who feel that they do not have the time to participate in the program will not have that problem. According to Mrs. Campbell, "After two or three weeks of reading, students comment that they have saved more time than they have spent in the course."

Russians To Visit Duke

Four Russian scientists will visit Duke University Medical Center next month to study the work being done there in hyperbaric oxygenation.

The four are on tour of medical and industrial facilities in the United States.

The Soviets are Dr. Sergei N. Yefuni and Dr. Yuri M. Lopuchin, both doctors, and two engineers, Vladimir V. Lopalin and Andrei P. Meshkovski.

Job Interviews

The Navy Area Audit Office; Brunswick Corp.; J. B. Ivey, Trust Co. of Georgia, and Burlington Industries will interview students for jobs today.

The Social Security Administration; S. D. Leidesdorf; and Burlington Industries will have representatives on campus tomorrow.

Anyone desiring an interview should come by the Placement Service, 204 Gardner, to make an appointment.

Nursing Discussion

The Alumni Association of the North Carolina School of Nursing will hold a panel discussion of the "Nurse Mystique" on Feb. 22 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the School of Nursing.

The four member panel will offer suggestions on what the ex-nurse can do to help the nursing profession.

Math Tutors Sought

Temple University's College of Education is looking for graduates who would be interested in working with disadvantaged youngsters in Philadelphia.

Nine undergraduate credits in mathematics is the only requirement.

After an intensive summer session interns begin teaching in September with the help of a master teacher.

For more details seniors should contact Dr. Jesse Rudnick, Director of the Junior High Mathematics Internship Project at Temple Univ., Philadelphia, Pa.

Free Inquiry Group Meets

The Committee for Free Inquiry will meet this afternoon at 2 p.m. in Gerrard Hall to vote on a proposal that would ban all student marches or vigils until after the board of trustees meets on Feb. 28.

The proposal was made by the steering committee of the group consisting of two faculty members, three graduate students and four undergraduates.

Student Body President Paul Dickson, III, temporary chairman of the steering committee, said that a permanent chairman of the group will also be elected at the meeting.

The steering committee approved a massive student meeting to be held on Feb. 24.

Engineers Make Diagnosis For Sound In Carmichael

By GLENN MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Acoustical engineers conducted tests in Carmichael Auditorium for about six hours to gain data which might help to determine a solution to the sound problem in the auditorium.

Athletic Director C. P. (Chuck) Erickson said the engineers were hired to determine the best sound system for the auditorium.

"This is not unexpected that we have to make some improvements in the sound system," Erickson said.

The engineers, Matt Long and Guy Rudisill, of Long Engineers of Winston - Salem, and Bing Aycock of Knowlton Associates of Raleigh, were conducting the tests with sounds ranging from music to weird "outer space" type of sounds.

Long said some of the sound problem is due to the long reverberating time in the structure. He said tests were conducted to determine the reverberation time, clarity and noise level in the building.

The engineer said the engineers will try to achieve a balance in the accoustics he said.

Erickson said the accoustics change when the building is filled with people. "We're trying to get the system fixed so that it will be suitable for everything that is held in Carmichael."

Able Assistants Aid Blood Collection

Margie Gregory (left photo) and Vallerie Gwynne (center and right) aid donors Andy Myers and Mike Ford. — DTH Photos By Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

What They Don't Know . . .

It just isn't fair.

I was at the gym early — 10 o'clock. Sonny Popes, chairman of the Carolina Blood Drive, was going to give the first pint.

I was going to give the second.

We helped make some last-minute arrangements and drank a couple of the free soft drinks while the Red Cross workers got everything set up.

I filled out the registration form. They took my temperature. They took my pulse. They took my blood pressure. Fine.

I went to the "history" table.

"Have you had a blood transfusion in the last six months?" the nurse asked.

"Nope."

"Have you been ill in the last month?"

"Nope."

"Have you had a surgical operation within six months?"

"Nope."

"Have you ever had malaria, tuberculosis, diabetes or rheumatic fever?"

"Nope."

"Have you ever had more red blood cells than white?"

"Well, I'm not sure. I've had mono, though."

"When?!"

She sounded awfully eager, but I admitted having it last October.

"Goodby," she said.

"Why?"

"Because the mono is still in your system—it'll last a year, and anybody who gets your blood would get mono."

"But that's great. Take the blood anyway and send it to the Viet Cong," I said. "We'll start a mono epidemic in North Viet Nam that will shorten the war by two years."

But they mumbled something about "Red Cross ethics" and "germ warfare" and threw me out.

I ate one of their cookies anyway, just to show I couldn't be bullied.

And I've already sent in my application to that pacificist group out in Berkeley that is collecting blood for the Viet Cong.

What they don't know won't hurt them . . . much.

The All-Purpose Letter

Been getting a little static from home, huh?

Don't write your folks very often . . . and they worry about you?

Well, it isn't your fault. It takes time to write a letter, and time is harder to budget than your weekly allowance.

Besides, it takes the edge off your incentive to write when you notice that every epistle-to-home you compose sounds just the same.

As a public service, The Daily Tar Heel is going to solve the problem. Just cut out the form below, make a few copies and fill one out and send it home

It doesn't take much of your rationed time and your family has some indication other than canceled checks—that you're still alive.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL ALL-PURPOSE LETTER-TO-HOME

Date _____

Dear Folks,

I am fine____ kinda so-so____ in the infirmary____ (check one).

How are you?

I made____ (grade) on my last quiz, but I know I'll do better____worse____ about the same____ (check one) on the next one.

The weather here is hot_____cold_____ warm_____ cool_____ rainy_____ snowy_____ sunny_____ windy_____ foggy_____ confused____ (check appropriate blanks).

I have_____ have not_____(check one participated in student demonstrations lately.

I have____ have not_____(check one) felt that I was being subjected to communist indoctrination lately.

I did____ did not____ go to church last Sunday.

I will probably be home next_____(date and year).

My bank account has $ ____left after that last check I wrote. Please send $____ IMMEDIATELY.

Until next week —

Your son_____daughter_____

(check one),

Name _____

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Mono? Then I'll Give It To The Viet Cong!"

Phil Clay

Anti-Poverty Offensive Vital To Asian Victory

For the past several days, Vice President Humphrey has been touring Southeast Asia in an attempt to win support for yet another offensive in the Asian war—the effort to win the people's support for freedom by providing social and economic reforms. This offensive was agreed on at the Honolulu Conference of American and Vietnamese leaders.

Viet Nam has long suffered from political instability and social disorganization. These conditions prompted the Indochina War and have been the cause and effect of turmoil since the Geneva Agreements of 1954.

Efforts to change these conditions have been to no avail because of continued preoccupation with war and a lack of assistance on the part of developed western nations. The build up of American troops in Viet Nam and the worsening conditions of the villege people give us just reason for being concerned.

The main reason for our concern with the social and economic conditions are not entirely altruistic. They are more practical and strategic. Since the aggression from the north began, the effort to repel the aggression has been hampered by religious conflicts, frequent coups and sympathy on the part of villagers to the "agaraian reform" appeal that the Viet Cong claims to offer.

The Vietnamese people, who only want a fair deal, have been continually subjected to subversion, terror and violence. Numerous fascist governments in Saigon have not developed programs to help the people or have not stayed in office long enough to attempt reform.

Another reason for the emphasis on aid is the recognition that a military victory would be meaningless if freedom from armed aggression did not bring at the same time freedom from fear, hunger, disease and bridled thought. The free elections—long promised and even longerdelayed—will only result in the election of Communists of facists if people are still politically backward and economically deprived.

The Administration, in this economic offensive, hopes to gain the support not only of the people of South Viet Nam, but also of the people of neighboring states. In his John Hopkins speech, President Johnson set the tone when he said, "The task is nothing less than to enrich the hopes and the existence of more than 100 million people . . . In areas riped by conflict, of course, development will not be easy. Peace will be necessary for final success."

The President has asked Congress for more than $400 million dollars to start this offensive. This seems small compared to the $12 billion dollars requested for the military effort in Viet Nam.

Finally, there is still a paradoxical problem to the whole question. While recognizing that reforms must be instituted, it seems difficult to expect that they will come easy or soon. What engineers may build by day, the military may destroy by night Peace Corps volunteers may find it difficult, in war, to convince a villager to plant rice instead of land mines.

In short, it may be impossible to maintain an economic program of the dimensions needed while a massive and vigorous land war continues.

In the last analysis, however difficult this task may be, it is noble. Freedom for the Vietnamese people—North and South—will not be won by a mere cessation of hostilities. It will only come when the people of all Viet Nam begin to wage war against the common enemies of all men—tyranny, poverty, disease and hunger.

This new frontier in the President's battle for a great world society may well be the only victory possible in Viet Nam.

Letters To The Editor

Don't Restrict Education

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have been at this institution of higher learning (a term which I must use loosely for the moment), and already I am greatly disillusioned. The Aptheker case seems unreal; it is hard to believe that such a man may not be allowed to speak here because his ideas conflict with someone else's.

What is more unbelieveable is that someone would take the position that: "This is a state - owned and state - supported institution, and as such enjoys only those prerogatives the state sees fit to grant. No more."

This seems to be a rather communistic idea to me, especially aimed at the college level education.

It seems to me that the university was established for the purpose of educating the student. In theory, it should provide the opportunity for the student to obtain the type of education he so desires; if he does not take full advantage of the opportunity that is his failing.

Education itself should be a broadening experience; one in which the student comes in contact with a variety of viewpoints from which he formulates his own. Maybe a majority of the students are not intellectually inclined, but should the ones who do want a broad education be deprived of that?

Should interested students be forced to congregate off campus to hear a controversial speaker; isn't that defeating the purpose of establishing an institution?

Education should be as free from restrictions as possible, only then can it have real meaning. It should not make the student conform, but should encourage him to be an individual; conformity is brought about by the rules of society.

I am not advocating that the student should disregard rules (there must be a balance between freedom and order), but the rules should not be made to confine the student in his quest for knowledge.

Therefore, I think it is time for the governor, the state legislature, and the board of trustees to stop trying to play nursemaid. We are going to have to face the great cruel world of reality eventually; why prolong the agony? If we are not mature enough to defend our own ideals, it is doubtful that we will ever be. We should at least be given the chance.

Kathie Byrnes
113 Winston

'Timing' Unimportant

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel

An odd development of the latest speaker controversey is the question of "timing." Everyone except SDS is claiming the invitations to Aptheker and Wilkinson were "ill - timed." Just what this is supposed to mean is unclear, since no one has bothered to explain it.

I suspect it means that no one wishes to share the blame now that the cause has failed. The Carolina Forum certainly publicized its me-too invitation, and, had Aptheker and Wilkinson been allowed to speak, the Forum would have shared the credit.

The cause has been slapped down by the governor and the trustees, however, and academic freedom and those other fine phrases have been reduced to this vague matter of "timing." The blame has been shifted to SDS alone, which no one likes or takes seriously, anyway.

Professor Mark E. Watkins pointed out in his letter of Feb. 11 that mathematicians from Communist countries are currently visiting 11 American universities. Scholars in different fields are at these and other universities. As he notes, "The intellectual traffic across the Iron Curtain is considerable and is increasing. It is also wearing the Curtain thin."

Russian writers Valery Tarsis, Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel are under fire for their critiques of communism. The latter two face "possible sentences of seven years in prison followed by five years exile in Siberia" (DTH, Feb. 11). Under present arrangements, would any of them be allowed to speak at UNC?

I am not a member of SDS, nor do I know any members. I do think it is high time we knew and exercised our constitutional right to hear anyone we wish, from Herbert Aptheker to Ian Smith. If this right is still denied us, we had better find it out. At least then we know what must still be achieved. My hat is off to SDS for putting academic freedom and the Bill of Rights before this quisling business of "Timing."

William Ramsey
Odum Village

Clear Goal Needed

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I am deeply disturbed by the muddled direction of the Committee for Free Inquiry. Deliberations to date have been marked by a startling degree of inconsistency and mixed purpose. The group has not yet decided, nor do its policies reflect, whether its focus will be ameliorative or normative.

By ameliorative I mean working within the given political context to seek a satisfying compromise with the stand taken by the governor and the executive committee of the board of trustees.

By normative I mean standing firmly for unadministered free inquiry. These two alternatives require different strategies, rely on different constituencies. There is value in each, but only through a commitment to one or the other is success remotely possible . . .

It takes minds more knowledgeable of Carolina politics and student attitudes than mine to evaluate the success potential of each alternative, but it is a decision that must be made, for the current trend in the CFI promises only diaster. I infer from the composition of the Steering Committee that the orientation of the leadership is ameliorative, but at no time has it been made explicit, nor has a resultant strategy emerged.

The resolution endorsed by the meeting of the CFI calling for a mass rally attempts to embrace mixed purposes. The two elements of it are informational and political. By inviting the Governor and members of the Executive Committee we seek information—the rationale behind their recommendation to the full board.

This is distinct from the desire to establish an influence vector—to rally the support of those who oppose speaker suppression. One purpose negates the other. With mixed purpose, the rally might degenerate into a debate measured by an applause meter reading of sentiment on the Chapel Hill campus. Attendance would reflect only interest in the issue rather than commitment to free speech . . .

John Chapman
819 Old Pittsboro Rd.

David Rothman

Russians Lead Snow Race

The Russians are forging ahead of us in the science of snow removal.

Eighteen inches brought all cabs and buses in Washington to a standstill. But two and one-half feet didn't interrupt Moscow's transportation services "for a single minute," a Soviet news agency gleefully reports.

Tass says 2,000 snow-clearing machines unclogged the highways of the USSR's capital after an "unprecedented" snowfall that "even old timers cannot remember."

This news was fearfully received in Washington, where the following developments took place:

President Johnson cabled Moscow, "Snow removal is a matter deserving the peaceful cooperation of all the countries of the world. I fully promise that the United States intends to share with other nations any technological advances it might take in this field."

Johnson told Congress, however, "The first nation to clear its streets will doubtlessly have an important military advantage over its rivals. Therefore, I am asking for authorization to let Vice President Humphrey head the advisory board of NASA —the National Aeronautics and Snow Administration. Humphrey, I feel confident, brings to this job a background of solid experience, having lived in South Dakota and Minnesota."

Probes were launched from the White House to Silver Spring, Md., and Alexandria, Va. These areas had surface coverings between 12 and 18 inches.

But televised reports received by the Jodwell Banks Observatory revealed the unexplored territory was safe for landings by emergency traffic.

Because of the costs of the war in Viet Nam and the anti-poverty program, many Republic politicians asked that the snow removal race be halted temporarily.

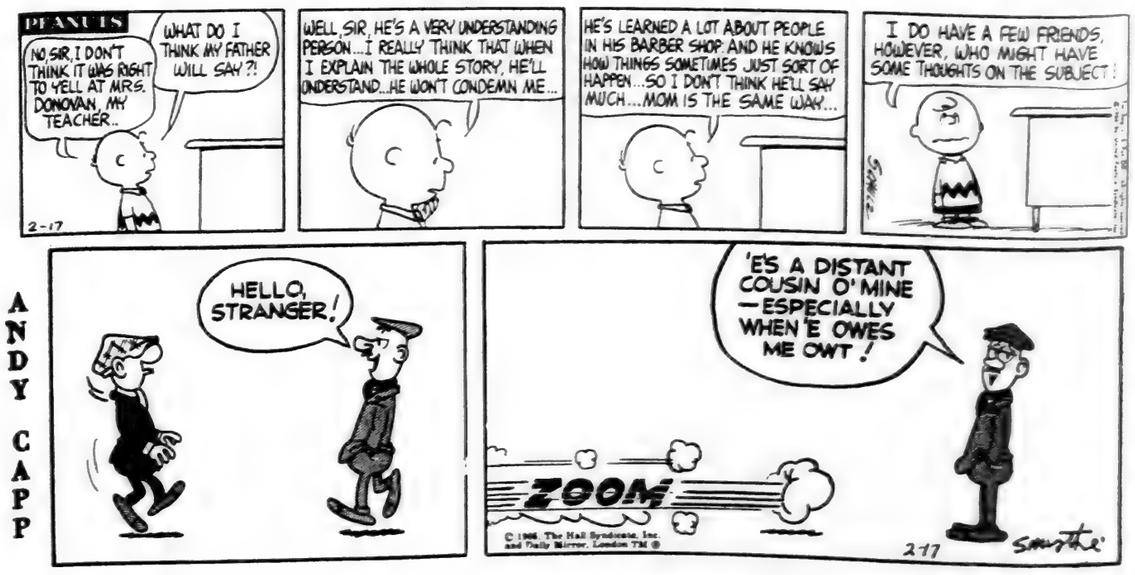
From the White House came this reply: "We owe it to ourselves to be first. Despite our commitments at home and abroad, I am certain that the streets of Washington can be cleared by 1970."

Johnson and his Democratic congress approved the construction of a snow control center at Houston, ignoring intense GOP criticism.

"I fear that politics is involved here," declared one Republican senator. "Why build in Houston? As everybody knows, Washington is the area of the nation with the largest number of resources and qualified personnel available for this undertaking."

"We feel the present situation is unfair," said a Texas congressman, however. "Workers in my state and many others are complaining that Washingtonians have been receiving more than their just share of snow holidays."

But Chapel Hill and the rest of North Carolina have not missed out on participation in the snow research program. Only last month, the government authorized 12 inches so some Gemini astronauts could complete their training at Morehead Planetarium.



N.C. Orchestra Coming To UNC

Tickets go on sale today for the Feb. 25 concert by the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. Graham Memorial and the Chapel Hill Concert series are sponsoring the event, scheduled for Memorial Hall.

Balcony seats are reserved for students at a cost of $.50, with tickets for date or spouse costing $1. They are on sale at GM Information Desk.

The New Orleans Philharmonic is currently embarked on an extensive tour of the east. The high point of the tour was a concert scheduled last night in New York's Carnegie Hall.

The orchestra's solid reputation has been enhanced in recent years under the direction of Alexander Hilsberg and its present conductor, Werner Torkanowsky.

Performing with the New Orleans Philharmonic here will be piano soloist David Bar-Illan. The young Israeli will play Maurice Ravel's "Piano Concerto in G Major."

In addition to Bar-Illan's solo, the orchestra will perform such staples as Beethoven's "Overture to 'Fidelio'," Dvorak's "Symphony No. 6 in D Major," and the tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration, Opus 24," by Richard Strauss.

Torkanowsky is currently in his third season as director of the New Orleans symphony orchestra. German - born, but raised in Israel, he appeared as violin solist with the Jerusalem Radio Symphony and with the Mozarteum Society of Vienna.

Torkanowsky came to the United States when he was 20. He became a member of the Littsburg Symphony and concertmaster of the Collegium Musicum of New York. He later was associated with Robert Shaw as concertmaster of his Collegiate Chorale Orchestra.

In 1954, Torkanowsky became conductor of the Ballets Espagnola. During the following summer he joined the conductor's master class of the late Pierre Monteux. He has also had experience as director of Jerome Robbins' Ballets: U.S.A. and of operas at the City Center in New York.

In the past five years he has conducted several major orchestras, such as the Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, Boston, and San Francisco Symphonies and the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Every year Torkanowsky participates in the Inter-American Music Symposium, sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation, Tulane University, and the New Orleans Philharmonic. The concerts given in this symposium consist of world premieres of works by American composers and North American premieres of works by non - American composers.

The performance by the New Orleans Philharmonic will be the first by a visiting symphony orchestra in Chapel Hill in several years.

Today's Television Listings

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 Lloyd Thaxton
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS Even. News (c)
7:00 Daniel Boone (c)
8:00 Perry Mason
9:00 Thursday Movie
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc.)

6:00 Dinner Hour Music—Schubert: Symphonies No. 1 and 2

WRAL (Ch. 5)

5:30 Aspect 3
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson-Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare — Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: THE 27th DAY: Gene Barry
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Thurs. Night Movie: I AIM AT THE STARS: Curt Jurgens
9:00 Bewitched
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 The Baron (C
11:00 Dateline. Sports — Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: THE ENEMY GENERAL: Van Johnson

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 News
9:00 U S History
9:30 Phys Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Arts — Music
11:30 The Universe
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Sign Off
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Discovery
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 You the Deaf
7:30 What's New
8:00 Arts — Music
8:30 Ericourt
9:00 Performance
9:30 U S History Since 1865
10:15 Sign Off

THE ARTS: USA — MUSIC — 8:00 p.m. — "Jazz Goes Intellectual: Bop" The first in a series of the three programs that examine popular music in the United States as it has been performed and composed in the last twenty years features one of the greatest trumpeters of all time — Dizzy Gillespie. In addition to performing some of the jazz greats such as "Salt Peanuts," "Night in Tunisia," "Whispering" and others, Gillespie talks about his music and his part in the development of bop, the "New Jazz" which was to form the basis of almost all modern jazz.

PERFORMANCE — 9:00 p.m. —"Piano Recital" University of North Carolina studets of music at Chapel Hill, Sue Ann Yarbrough and Clifton Matthews, are presented in recital. Selections: Brahms' "Intermezzo in C Major, Opus 119." Debussy's "Reflections in the Water," and, featured work, Beethoven's "Sonata, Opus 109."

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

earn $1500 or more this summer* with Good Humor ICE CREAM

* At least half the students working 13 weeks earned $1500 or more. And here's what others earned . . . even those working fewer weeks:

1 out of 2 earned $121 or more a week.

1 out of 3 earned $133 or more a week.

1 out of 4 earned $139 or more a week.

You can earn as much or more this summer . . . and you need no sales experience. You're carefully trained and work on proven routes where people have been buying Good Humor for years. Everything supplied, free . . . there's nothing to invest.

HOW TO QUALIFY FOR INTERVIEW

1. Minimum age 18.
2. Need a valid driver's license . . . and must be able to drive a clutch transmission.
3. Be in good physical condition.

REGISTER NOW

Ask your Summer Placement Director or Student Aid Officer to schedule you for our campus visit.

INTERVIEW DATE

February 24

An Equal Opportunity Employer. (M F)

TODAY-TUESDAY
"ONE OF YEARS 10 BEST FILMS"
—Satuday Review
—N. Y. Post

"A STUNNING FILM!" —Crowther N.Y. Times
THE MOMENT OF TRUTH

Pink Phink Short,
"PINK PAJAMAS"
12:59, 3, 5:01, 703, 9:05

RIALTO, Durham

ONE OF THE MOST BRUTAL FIENDISH SADISTIC BLOODCURDLING comedies OF OUR TIME!

JACK LEMMON
VIRNA LISI
"HOW TO MURDER YOUR WIFE"
TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

TODAY ONLY

CAROLINA

DAILY CROSSWORD

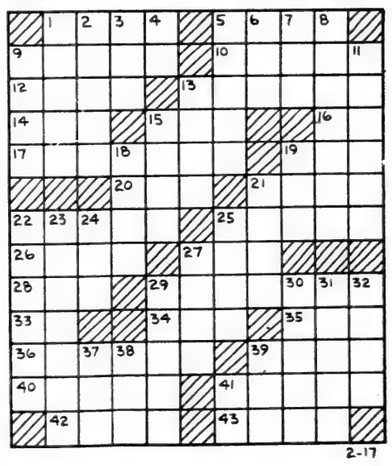
ACROSS

1. Peaceful
5. Pigeon
9. A chatter box
10. Bay window
12. Jewish month
13. City in India
14. Fresh
15. Fido, for one
16. Metric measure: abbr.
17. O. T. book
19. High priest
20. Picnic insect
21. Birds as a class
22. Grouch
25. Top of a wave
26. Skein of yarn
27. Mail: India
28. Arista
29. Pirate ship
33. New England state: abbr.
34. Type of tape
35. Plaything
36. Metropolises
39. Memorandum
40. Roman magistrate
41. Belonging to a city in Ohio and Peru
42. Smorgasbord treat
43. Parasitic plant

DOWN

1. Biblical name
2. Town in Ethiopia
3. Girl's nickname
4. Show Me State: abbr.
5. Stall
6. Fortify
7. Cut of meat
8. Hunting dogs
9. Where the bitter half goes
11. Certain poet
13. Thrash
15. Pale-red
18. Moist and humid
19. December 31
21. Freight-boats
22. Risk
23. Untanned skin of cattle
24. Sothern or Blyth
25. A calling
27. Performs
29. Indians, originally of Canada
30. Proton and ion
31. Jots
32. Cereal grains
37. Bind
38. Unkind
39. Aegean Island
41. Roman 950

Yesterday's Answer



2-17

THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL,

The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house.

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

Rake in Extra Savings on these FOUNDER'S SALE

Meat Specials!

ALL SIZES 4-TO-22 LB. AVG. TOP QUALITY YOUNG TURKEYS

"SUPER-RIGHT" FRESHLY GROUND BEEF PER LB. 39¢

No Limit On Purchases! Per Lb. 45¢

ALLGOOD BRAND NO. 1—SLICED BACON 1-LB. PKG. 69¢ L Pkg. $1.37

Prices Eff. Thru Sat., Feb. 19th

MILD & MELLOW 8 O'CLOCK COFFEE
1-Lb. Bag 63¢
3-Lb. Bag $1.85

A&P PURE Instant Coffee 10-Oz Jar 99¢

• MARVEL BRAND ICE CREAM 2 HALF GALLON CARTONS 95¢

JANE PARKER 1-LB., 8-OZ. Apple Pie
REG. 49c EACH SPECIAL 3 FOR $1.00

POTATOES U. S. NO. ONE ALL PURPOSE WHITE 10 LB. BAG 49¢

CIA Recruiting On 100 Campuses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's super spy agency, the CIA, confirmed yesterday that it has recruiting teams visiting about 100 college campuses interviewing students as prospective analysts and agents.

"We want good people," said Col. Stanley J. Grogan, "We are out looking for them."

At present the CIA is particularly interested in students, especially graduate students with basic scientific training which would quality them for photo interpretation work. That is a high priority field of intelligence which was brought to public notice in the U2 spy plane sensation of six years ago, and in the aerial photographs that uncovered Russia's secret rocket installations in Cuba in 1962.

Grogan, an assistant ot the CIA director, Adm. William F. Raborn, said the Central Intelligence Agency probably has more employes and officials with advanced academic degrees than any other agency in government. It is a hard claim for any outsider to check against the record. Grogan said that under the law even the CIA total employment is secret.

But he also reported that it is known that CIA has about 600 "senior people" — apparently meaning officials of some importance — of whom 53 per cent have advanced academic degrees such as doctorates in science and philosophy.

The CIA's recruitment program was propelled into national prominence when a small group of students at Grinnell College in Iowa picketed a CIA man on campus. The students displayed posters asking what the CIA is doing in Viet Nam, Indonesia, and the Dominican Republic. One poster said: "Where there is an invisible government there is no democracy."

A Grinnell spokesman said the college didn't mind the picketing which had been "orderly . . . pretty peaceful."

The CIA here was obviously unperturbed also. In fact an inquirer gained the impression that the agency is not adverse to getting a big of publicity for its talent scouts.

North Carolina News Roundup

Outer Banks Project OK'd

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The House passed Wednesday by voice vote a bill to authorize establishment of the Cape Lookout National Seashore along North Carolina's lower outer banks.

The 58-mile barrier reef extends along the Atlantic coast from Ocracoke Inlet to Beaufort Inlet. It would be the nation's seventh national seashore.

The bill goes back to the Senate, which passed a similar measure last year. The House bill has some minor and technical amendments which the Senate must agree to before the measure can be sent to the White House for President Johnson's signature.

Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., of the House Interior Committee said the cost of land acquisition to the United States would be very small because North Carolina has acquired and donated most of the land.

Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., senior Republican member of the committee, estimated that by the end of five years the area would be visited annually by one million people. He commended North Carolina for donating the land, as did Rep. Rogers, C. B. Morton, R-Md., who said the State has set an example for other states to follow.

Jonas Pledges CPCC Aid

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina Congressman Charles R. Jonas Wednesday pledged strong action to aid the fund-plagued basic adult education program sponsored by Central Piedmont Community College.

Calling the federal government's action in the matter "a shame," the 8th District Republican promised to do what he could "to straighten these people out."

His pledge followed a decision Tuesday by Dr. Richard Hagemeyer, college president, to shut down the program after Thursday night's classes because all available funds have been exhautsed.

Dr. Hagemeyer said he had no choice but to shut down the four - county program because all the money will be gone after teachers are paid Thursday.

Drunks Can Drive Legally?

DURHAM (AP) — The North Carolina Association of ABC Boards was told Wednesday that motorists in North Carolina might sometimes be driving drunk, and still be within the legal blood-alcohol ratio.

Dr. Fred W. Ellis of the School of Medicine of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill said the legal level of blood-alcohol ratio in a driver should be lowered.

He spoke at the midwinter meeting of the association in Durham.

Under present law, a blood-alcohol level of 0.1 per cent or 0.15 per cent may be reached before a driver is considered to be driving drunk.

Noting that a number of surveys on drinking people involved in accidents have been conducted recently, Dr. Ellis said there are indications that the "actual driving ability of a high percentage of drivers is impaired significantly over the wide range of 0.03 to 0.07 per cent blood-alcohol level.

"When a blood-alcohol level of 0.06 per cent is reached, the estimated probability of causing an accident is double that of a driver with no alcohol," he said.

"Drivers with a 0.1 per cent blood-alcohol level are more than six times as likely to cause an accident as one with no alcohol," Dr. Ellis said.

He called for the North Carolina law against drinking drivers to be changed to make it "illegal to operate a motor vehicle if the blood-alcohol level exceeds 0.05 per cent."

Murder Trial Begins

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Three defense motions were denied this morning by Forsyth Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain in the first degree murder trial of Robert E. Porth 57-year-old missile engineer charged with killing his wife.

Attorney James J. Booker moved first to quash the first degree murder indictment against his client, who pleaded innocent Monday in the death of his wife, Mrs. Hilda Borchardt Porth. Mrs. Porth's body was found on a mountainside near Pulaski, Va., last August.

Booker then made a motion for a bill of particulars. When that failed, he asked permission to record the proceedings of the trial, presumably on a tape recorder or other electronic device. The trial, is being recorded by an official court reporter.

The defense motions came after a twelfth male juror was selected following 30 minutes of questioning of veniremen.

Viet Nam Bill Debate Begins In Senate

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Senate embarked on a historic Viet Nam debate yesterday with Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., saying the body should affirm President Johnson's Asiatic policies.

Up for debate was a bill to authorize $4.8 billion of the $12.3 billion of emergency military funds Johnson asked for Viet Nam fighting.

Even before the formal speeches began, Long, the acting Democratic leader, told an informal news conference that "some people would like to pull the rug out from under our boys" by attaching restrictive policy riders to the bill.

Because of this, Long said he personally favors an affirmative statement supporting the President's policies. He said, however, he would not offer it if Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee objects.

Russell has said he opposes tying any policy statement to the bill.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., spokesman for a group of Senators who opposed resumption of North Viet Nam bombing, said in a separate interview that a rider opposing escalation of the war may be offered.

Long said he regards a vote on the bill — expected to be passed overwhelmingly after several days of debate — as offering support for "both our fighting men over there and our President."

But Hartke said a vote for the bill can't be construed as endorsement of the President's policies.

Savings Bond Rate Of Interest Hiked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government raised the interest rate today on U. S. Savings Bonds by four - tenths of one per cent in a three - pronged effort to strengthen the economy, fight inflation and help meet mounting costs of the Viet Nam war.

President Johnson announced the increase from 3.75 per cent to 4.15 per cent at a White House ceremony. It was raised from 3.52 per cent.

The new rate will apply to all Series E and H bonds, the type sold to the public, as of last Dec. 1.

This means that Series E Bonds bought on Dec. 1 or afterwards will mature in seven years, instead of seven years, nine months. Series H bonds will continue to mature over 10 years but will yield the higher interest rate.

Holders of bonds purchased before Dec. 1, however, need not cash them and buy new ones to benefit from the new rate. As of Dec. 1, their bonds will begin earning the new rate of interest although the maturity date will remain the same.

Savings bond sales have been declining and the redemption of nonmatured bonds has increased because of more attractive interest rates in alternative investments. Treasury officials expressed hope that the new interest rate will reverse this trend.

Banks can pay up to 4 per cent interest on personal savings accounts and some savings and loan associations pay close to 5 per cent.

Laser Operation Brings No Blood

NEW YORK, (AP) — Surgeons have successfully used a laser beam to remove a tumor from a man's leg bloodlessly, the New York Times reported yesterday. Although it cut through blood vessels like a knife, it cauterized them so that no blood flowed.

"I'm absolutely jubilant," said Dr. Thomas E. Brown, one of three doctors who performed the surgery at children's hospital in Cincinnati, according to the Times.

"There's no apparent reason," Brown said, "why we cannot use the same laser to cut into the liver, the spleen or even the brain without fear of hemorrhage."

He said the laser also might be used to cauterize wounds of hemophiliacs, whose blood doesn't clot properly.

The laser is a sharply focused beam of light, up to one billion times brither than ordinary light.

Brown said that for the tumor operation he used a gas laser known as argon or "green" laser, developed at the Bell Telephone laboratories in Murray Hill, N. J., by Eugene I. Gordon and Edward F. Labuda. Unlike some other lasers, it emits a steady, high powered beam, easy to control.

Lasers were used shortly after their discovery in 1960 for certain kinds of eye surgery. But other techniques proved as effective and less hazardous, so laser surgery fell into disuse.

Expert Watch and Jewelry Repairing

Our watch and jewelry repair experts will restore your proud possessions to their original beauty and usefulness.

T. L. Kemp Jewelry

Charm Headquarters

WANT ADS

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

FOR SALE: 1953 M. G. Roadster. M. G.-A engine, runs good, clean, new top. 942-1471.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditiond 10' x 55' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED TO BUY. NEED extra cash? If you have rolls or single coins to sell call J. P. Riggsbee, Chapel Hill Ice Co., 942-3268.

SIX BIG PIECES OF A

BIG CHICKEN!

99¢

TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of French Fries
TOASTED ROLLS

W. T. Grant

Thurs. 4:00-;730

All the Tea You Can Drink . . . 15c

IF YOU CAN AFFORD $39.95 PER MONTH, YOU CAN OWN THE HOT, ALL-NEW ECONOMY CAR FROM CHRYSLER!

Feature for feature Simca 1000 gives you more. 50 hp rear engine. Four forward speeds, all synchronized. Plenty of space for a family of five. Extras? All you could want, free. Don't take our word. Take a test drive. See us today.

simca 1000

OLD HICKORY MOTORS

334 Roxboro Rd.
DURHAM, N. C.
Phone 447-2102 Open until 9 P.M.

people on the go...

go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 W. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

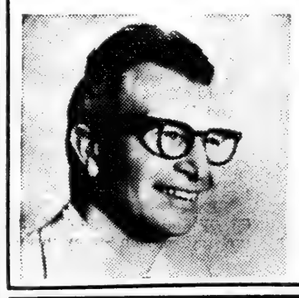
Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

The Fabulous

THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET

WITH PAUL DESMOND

Presented by the Duke Student Union



SEE and HEAR This Sensational Jazz Group

Friday, Feb. 18

8:30 P.M.

Duke Indoor Stadium

Durham, N. C.

Tickets $2.00 at the door.

Jack Jar Durham

BIERSTUBE

AUTHENTIC GERMAN FOODS Served Buffet Style

Every Sat. Night 5:30-9 P.M.

CAFE BRIGHT LEAF

Don't Forget Sunday Family Buffet

11:30 A.M.-2:30 P.M.
5:30 P.M.-9:00 P.M.
• Children ½ Price •

CAPITOL MONTH CONTINUES AT THE RECORD BAR

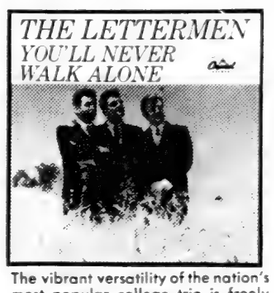
Thursday . . . Friday . . .. Saturday, and Sunday

ALL CAPITOL LP's AT HUGE REDUCTIONS

ALL 4.00 LP's . . . NOW 2.49

ALL 5.00 LP's . . . NOW 2.99

ALL 6.00 LP's . . . NOW 3.49



The vibrant versatility of the nation's most popular college trio is freely expressed in a wonderful repertoire of pop favorites. Hear Tony, Jim and Bob sing I Believe; Walk Hand In Hand; You'll Never Walk Alone; Exodus and seven others. (S)T-2213

All Summer Long/The Beach Boys—I Get Around; All Summer Long; Hushabye; Little Honda; We'll Run Away; Carl's Big Chance; Wendy; Do You Remember?; Girls On The Beach; Drive-In; Our Favorite Recording Sessions; Don't Back Down. ST-2110

The Beach Boys Today!—Do You Wanna Dance?; Good To My Baby; Don't Hurt My Little Sister; When I Grow Up; Help Me, Ronda; Dance, Dance, Dance; Please Let Me Wonder; I'm So Young; Kiss Me, Baby; She Knows Me Too Well; In The Back Of My Mind; more. DT-2269

Capitol Artists include Beachboys, Lettermen, Beatles, Jackie Gleason, Judy Garland, Nat King Cole, and many others.

Sale Good in Chapel Hill Store Only . . . Sale Ends Feb. 20, 1966 at 6 P.M.

THE RECORD BAR

Across from the POST OFFICE on Henderson Street

Gene Rector

DTH Sports Editor

College newspapering has often been called "pat-on-the-back" journalism.

Some point to the natural "obligation" between college newspapers and college athletic teams and conclude that any negative matter gets no further than the waste basket.

Of course the Daily Tar Heel sports department has tried to shake that trend this year. When athletic teams were lousy on the field—they were lousy in print.

But a recently received letter from a University of Maryland fan pointed to a field entirely neglected during this basketball season.

The letter was an apology for the actions of certain Maryland fans during the game with the Tar Heels on January 5. Maryland cheerleaders threw miniature basketballs in the stands at halftime and when second-half officiating turned against the Terps — those same basketballs pelted the playing floor.

This action is the subject of the apology:

"I should like to publicly voice my embarrassment concerning the outrageous action of a handful of rowdies in our stands during the Maryland-North Carolina basketball game at Maryland on February 5.

"The ridiculous and dangerous rubber-ball throwing by several students at the referee and players did not represent the thousands of other Maryland basketball fans present, myself included. Do not judge the majority of Maryland students by a handful of degenerates. Please accept my apology on behalf of the sincere basketball fans at the University of Maryland.

A sincere Maryland basketball fan."

* * *

The point brought to mind by this Maryland apology is the almost flawless conduct of Tar Heel fans this season.

Perhaps this is "pat-on-the-back" journalism but certainly not without just cause.

Coach Dean Smith and several varsity performers have expressed time and time again their appreciation for the fan conduct this season.

Few incidents have arisen and certainly none with the magnitude of the Maryland case.

Even in the emotion-filled game with Duke, UNC fans managed to sensibly and maturely express their support. Coach Dean Smith issued a statement prior to the game requesting UNC fans to be on their best behavior.

The request was carried out to the letter.

Many people regard fan support as rowdily baiting the opposition UNC fans this basketball season have solidly and boisterously supported thier Tar Heels —but with no hint of the distasteful extremes experienced by the Tar Heels in some of their road games.

So, if college newspapering is "pat-on-the-back" journalism — this should be true to form. If not — well it need to be said none the less.

Connor, Physics TEP Win Handball

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Finals were held in intramural handball competition on Tuesday, with teams from Connor, Physics and TEP posting wins in their divisions.

Connor defeated Mangum 2-0 to win the residence hall championship. In the singles match, Joe Haseman of Connor defeated Bill Elliott of Mangum. Larry Hall and Fred Eggers of Connor clinched the victory with a doubles win over Phil Griffin and Don Thompson of Mangum.

In the graduate division, Physics defeated the Peacocks, 3-0. Jack Chaffin of Physics took Wood of the Peacocks in the singles match. In doubles, Phil Peters and Bill Bynum of Physics defeated Dick Dahl and Dave Coffman and Pat Rickey and Don McQueen of Physics beat Dave Moody and Lynn Dawson.

The TEP Tops captured the fraternity crown by downing Phi Delt Blue, 2-1. Bul Phillips of Phi Delt beat Ken Breslow of TEP in the singles matches for the win. Matt Lippa and Jay Schwartz beat Mike Cummins and Sandy Shaw, and Ken Kaplan and Bill Zuckerman defeated George Saenger and John Hubble.

In basketball action, Law III White squeeked by the NROTC Neseps, 60-57. Robin Katz and Bill Abernathy had 18 points each for Law III, while Pete Tomlinson added 8, Ralph Ansell 10 and Pascal McNeill 6. Charles Noel gunned in 32 points to lead the Neseps and David Hill added 14.

The Everett Grossmen were beaten by the Everett Trojans, 41-31. Ted Gupton had 15 points and Bill Diehl 11 for the winners, while Al Smith and Bob Zendel each hit 8 points for the losers.

The Morrison H Maurauders blasted the Morrison D Devildogs, 57-26. Bucky Gammon led the way with 17 points while Erishman had 14 and Hokeman 13 for the Marauders. Mike Clinard scored 13 for the Devildogs.

Law II Orange racked up a 53-44 win over the Blooming Idiots. Mulford had 17 points and Wellford 14 for the Law while Lyndon Brown and Ed Warren collected 13 each for the Idiots.

Old East Blue Ribbons scored an easy 63-21 win over Carr. Jon Anderson had 19 points, Wilbur Atkinson 12 and three others 8 each for Old East.

The Alexander Mooses edged by the Alexander Playboys, 57-56. Don Staley threw in 22 points, Alex Kaplan 13 and Denny Caldwell 10 for the Mooses. Bill Shiver had 20 and Ben Grant 14 for the Playboys.

The Morrison F Falcons beat the Morrison I Inebriates, 38-21. Rhodes led the way for the Falcons by pumping in 18 points.

'...Disappointed But Not Discouraged' Says Smith

By JIM COGHILL
Asst. DTH Sports Ed.

"Sure we were disappointed, but not discouraged."

This was Coach Dean Smith's reaction to the ball game with N. C. State Tuesday evening which State won 87-77.

SMITH

Late Varsity Box

WOLFPACK MOLEST TAR HEELS

N. C. State	g	f	r	tp
Mattocks	11-15	6-7	3	28
Blondeau	3-6	3-3	5	9
Biedenbach	5-15	1-3	4	11
Hodgdon	8-11	0-2	5	16
Coker	5-17	2-3	10	12
Worsley	3-5	1-2	0	7
Moffitt	0-3	0-0	0	0
Moore	2-3	0-0	3	4
Gealy	0-2	0-0	0	0
Hale	0-0	0-0	0	0
Totals	37-77	13-21	31	87

Carolina	g	f	r	tp
Yokley	0-1	1-1	2	1
Lewis	5-15	12-15	13	22
Bennett	3-9	4-5	8	10
Smithwick	1-2	0-1	4	2
Miller	9-20	1-1	14	19
Moe	1-1	0-0	1	2
Mirken	2-3	4-4	0	8
Gauntlett	6-10	0-0	7	12
Campbell	0-3	1-3	0	1
Fletcher	0-1	0-1	0	0
Totals	27-65	23-31	49	77

Score by halves:

Carolina	25	52—77
N. C. State	38	49—87

Carolina played a strong Wolfpack club before a partisan crowd of State enthusiasts and to top that, Coach Press Maravich's boys were at their best.

The Tar Heels' downfall came in the first 11 minutes of play and it was catch-up ball the rest of the game.

Coach Smith attributes the numerous ball handling erros (18 in the first half and 15 in the first 10 minutes) to two factors: the State press as well as sloppy ball handling on the part of Carolina.

Smith singled out Miller and Lewis for their performances and gave the entire team praise for the courage they exhibited throughout the game.

He said, "Miller played 40 minutes of offense, defense and rebounding with Lewis breaking through in the second half with very good rebounding."

The Tar Heels must look forward next to Clemson which Coach Smith said "is the only game on tap at the moment."

"I think the second half of the State game was a new surge for the remainder of the season, but we must wait until Friday night and see," Smith explained.

Carolina has been up and down all year, but this, Coach Smith says "is due to a mental letdown and not a let-down of effort.

"We've got into every game except the State and Duke games and we had an outside chance against State, but our worst defeat came at the hands of Duke," Coach Smith said.

The Carolina basketball head concluded by saying that the team needs each other both offensively and defensively in order to win and with this in mind the Tar Heels will invade the Charlotte Coliseum on Friday and Saturday night taking on Clemson and South Carolina in the North-South Doubleheader.

The Tar Heels now carry a 12-9 overall record and a 5-5 conference record being tied with Maryland for third place in the ACC.

The Clemson Tigers are currently the hottest team in the ACC — winning six of their last seven contests. Their latest success came against Wake Forest Monday night 104-89.

The Tigers are currently tied with N. C. State for second place in the ACC conference race with a 6-4 record.

'Wasn't Beautiful, But A Win' Says Larry Brown

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

It wasn't the most beautiful game to watch, and it wasn't the kind of performance which might have sent fans away saying that Carolina would be "fixed for basketball" for the next three years.

In fact, most of the people who came to Reynolds Coliseum a little early Tuesday night to see the Carolina freshman team they had heard so much about were probably disappointed.

But it was a win — the Tar Babies' thirteenth straight — and it wrapped up UNC's third straight Big Four title, and that was enough to make Coach Larry Brown look past the 22 floor mistakes and low shooting percentage, and smile.

"I am thankful each time we win," Brown said. "No team is going to shoot 56 per cent frosh FG pct. every game, and no team is going to play without more than a few errors every game.

'I have always thought," he stressed, "that a team which doesn't make some mistakes isn't giving a full effort. We had a few more errors than usual last night (22), but we won, and I am always thankful for that."

State's Wolflets played a gritty game, refusing to wilt when it seemed that Carolina would pull away just before the half ended.

It was 35-24 at the break, but with some fine outside shooting by guards Nick Trifunovich and Jerry Rivlin, that lead was whittled to three before the Tar Babies put on a rush to win. The largest lead was 14, 74-60, before State scored the last six points for the final 74-66 margin.

Both teams played very effective defense, as State committed 16 ball - handling mistakes and UNC was guilty of 22 turnovers. Also to be attributed to the defense was the fact that both teams shot just 39.3 per cent from the floor—low season marks for both. At halftime, Carolina had hit 9-for-29 (31.0), and State was even worse, with 8-for-29 (28.2).

One of the outstanding phases of the game from UNC's side was the backboard dominance (50-28), and expecially the rebounding of Bill Bunting (13) and Rusty Clark (17). State's three forwards are 6-8, 6-5, and 6-4, and pretty husky, but their individual totals were only 2, 3, and seven.

The next frosh game will be Friday night against VPI in Blacksburg, Va.

Standard Brands To Interview Here

$700 million food firm needs graduates for sales and marketing positions

NEW YORK: Standard Brands Inc., a giant in the nation's booming food field, today announced that their college recruiting program has been expanded extensively. Interviews are scheduled to take place here shortly.

With a whopping sales increase last year of 13% over the previous one, Standard Brands ranks as one of the fastest growing food processors in the country. Its products are a line of blue chip brands that include Chase & Sanborn Coffees, Planters Nuts, Baby Ruth and Butterfinger Candy Bars, Fleischmann's and Blue Bonnet Margarines, Royal Desserts, Tender Leaf Teas, Fleischmann's Yeast and a long list of bulk products sold to volume users such as bakeries, hotels and restaurants.

In discussing the college recruitment program, officials of Standard Brands stressed the immediate need for qualified graduates with a Bachelor's degree in arts, science or business to fill the firm's sales and marketing training programs.

Opportunities for rapid advancement and salary increases were said to be excellent. A long list of new products, currently in development, point to enormous future company growth and increased job security.

Those selected for on-the-job training by Standard Brands will receive full fringe benefits that include retirement plans, comprehensive group insurance and paid vacations and holidays.

Company officials urged graduates who are interested in a career with an unlimited future to sign up now for Standard Brands schedule. Complete information about opportunities, training programs, and the Company is available in the Placement Office.

The Company's Marketing Representative will visit your campus on March 3.

'Student' Bob Lacey Primes For Pro Season With Giants

By JIM FIELDS

Two years ago, Bob Lacey was an All-American end on Carolina's 1963 Gator Bowl championship team. Today, Bob Lacey is just another student here at Carolina.

Bob, who is an education major in physical education, came back to school to get his degree. But football is still the main objective in his life.

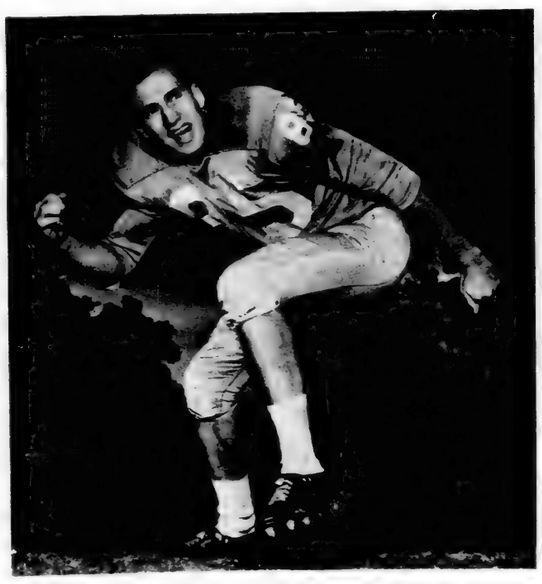
When Bob finished playing ball here, he finished in impressive style. In three years, from 1961-63, he broke three ACC records and one team record. He caught 102 passes for 1,362 yards for two career ACC records, and he set an ACC season record in 1963 with 48 receptions.

Bob caught 10 passes in one game twice in his career. The first time was against Michigan State in 1962 and then again against South Carolina the following year.

"When I left Carolina, I was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League," said Bob. "But I injured my knee in the All-Star game at Buffalo that summer and had to have an operation. I spent the next month and a half with the leg in a cast and so the Vikings put me on their injury reserve list.

"The Vikings soon released me, but the New York Giants called and placed me on their taxi squad. They activated me for their final game of the season, but I didn't get to see much action.

"From what I've experienced so far, the big difference between college and pro ball is the defensive backs," said Lacey. "They are so much bigger and faster than the college backs I had to run patterns against. You really have to work to get in the clear against them.



Bob Lacey

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

DOLLAR DAY SALE

Imported Crystal BAR GLASSES from Portugal—reg. 49c each — Dollar Day $ $ $ Price ..... 6 for 2.24

8x11 TWEED VISCOSE RUGS—foamed backed, popular colors. Dollar Day Price 10.94

ROSES Downtown CHAPEL HILL

Quality Paperbacks at Low Prices

For class requirements, for background reading — but then in our Old Book Corner at just about half the new book price.

The Intimate Bookshop

LA PIZZA SPECIAL

Thursday Night

HAMBURGER STEAK

Smothered in Onions. Baked Potato — Salad.

$1.25

Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Thursday Night — Italian Night

DINNER SPECIAL

Choice of Raviola or Spaghetti with Meat Sauce, Garlic Bread, Tossed Green Salad.

90c

Serving 5:00 - 7:15

LOOK WHAT $1 BUYS DURING HICKORY FARMS' DOLLAR DAYS!

Reg. 59c Box Hickory Farms COOKIES
Vanilla Wafers, Ginger Snaps, Sugar Cookies, Oatmeal Cookies — 2 Boxes $1.00

Reg. 1.29 lb. Hickory Farms Caramel Candies
Vanilla, Licorice, Vanilla Nut, Chocolate, Chocolate Nut — $1.00 lb.

Reg. 1.29 Lb., Aunt Jack's Creamy Fudge
Chocolate or Vanilla — $1.00 lb.

Reg. 49c Box Sesami Stix 3 for $1.00

HICKORY FARMS
Eastgate Shopping Center

Blood Donor Honor Roll

Here are the 181 persons who gave one pint of their blood yesterday.

Albert P. Pepper, Jr., Frank E. Baker, Jr., Lewis R. Ritchie, Fred A. Wilkie, Frank K. Barnard, Clyde E. Hensley, Thad T. Moore, Donald W. Loiek, Joseph A. Brookes, Jr., Milton H. Zauber, Suzanne Smith, John F. Moss, Phillip L. Owens, Boyd R. Garber, R. Lee Whitenton, James M. Hines, Robert W. Brown, John P. Acree, Stewart W. Rosen, Arthur B. Caffee.

Mary E. Haverstock, Andrew B. Myers, John F. Amend, Robert A. Haywood, Edward Freakley, James W. Ball, Jr., George R. McLain, Donald B. Saunders, Richard B. Lineberry, Sherrill R. Newman, Mr. Jerry Rutledge, Betsy Ann Vick, Charles L. Cooper, James E. Jester, Wiley Obenshain, III, George W. Curtis, Jr., Harry A. McLean, King Charles Evans, William C. Tate, David H. White.

Also, E. J. Walton, Jr., Willie E. McGee, Thomas M. Cordell, Kenneth L. Mann, Gerald S. Schafer, Alan F. McArthur, Arthur J. Beaumont, John H. Snyder, John E. Hodge, Nathan Hipscomb, Jr., Margaret E. Erichson, Terence N. Furness, Larry Strawbridge, Harry Wetherbee, Linda M. Klein, Kevin P. Twine, Timothy E. Deal, John Askew, Robert Botsford, Carl W. Atkinson.

Also, Carol Gallant, Jeffrey K. MacNelly, Sandy Treadwell, Christopher Cox, Joe Exum, Edward A. Youngs, Thomas E. Blanton, Jr., David G. Mann. Ernest F. Patterson. Gary W. Marshburn, James Fields. Peter Batke, William M. Edwards, Lyttleton L. Stamps, Stephen J. Bennett, Leslie R. Eastman, Jr. William Keating, Erl Huband, Charles Lewis, Patrick P. Taylor.

Also, Paul D. Henry, Charles P. Wilson, III, Joyce Watt, Everett C. Thompson, Dennis T. O'Toole, Harris J. Ogburn. Andrew J. Upshaw, Walter Kirkland, Clifford S. Lindsey, Herbert C. Henley, Robert Holcombe. Jack D. Miller, Baxter Graham, Wayne J. Hurder, Homer LeGrand, C. Gene Whisnant, Raphael M. Jones, Darell W. Brock, Neil C. Evans, Timothy C. Carroll.

Also, Cynthia P. Seawell, Cornelia S. Roberts, Richard E. Creal, Clark R. Egeler, Jr., Thomas R. Robertson, Albert B. Marshall, Jr. Rober A. Roskind, Larry J. Youngblood, J. Marshall Acee, Joseph W. McGirt, Jr. Malvern F. King, William M. Butler, Jr., Robert W. Wright, Barry G. Jacobs, William F. Stith, Wayne B. Walker, Stewart J. Shirey, Boyce R. Brown, Jr. William J. Houck, Alan A. Palisoul.

Also, Mary S. Humphreys, Richard F. Blue, Richard F. Piersall, Larry Katzin, Dean E. Painter, James Earle Martin, Charles C. Downton, Wilson V. Curlee, Hugh M. Dorsey, William W. Bowman, David S. Neilson, Rebecca Pearson, W. P. Roughton, William J. Nucciarone, Sam M. Talmadge, Terry G. Cox, James Peeler Smith, Louise Cherille Mayo, Terry W. Moore, Armistead Maupin.

Also William J. Derby, Mary E. Strother, Kenneth C Day, John F. Greene, Joseph Waldrop, John E. Deitz, Robert L. Harris, Robert G. Davidson, Mrs. Natalie Dobbin, James B. Sockwell, Jr.

Also, Jack H. Nance, Bernard W. Bauguess, Terry R. Bellman, Edward C. Ray, Joel S. Cleland, Donald H. Bumgardner, Donald F. Walton, Gilbert M. Oakley, Thomas C. Harville, Mrs. Eloise Walker, George D. Vick, Miss Georgia Marshall, John R. Davis, William R. Chambliss, Fredrick L. Rudell, Ellen B. Allen, Richard M. McClain, Robert S. Barnhardt, David R. Thompson, Lawrence L. Wagenseil.

Also, Richard D. Greenamyer, Robert D. Holland, Miss Karen Jewel, Robert M. Daniel, Gerald J. Merritt, Richard R. Powell, James E. Newton III Miss Jean Allen, William F. Pritchard, Charles E. Worthington, Miss Barbara Poole, Claude M. DeBruhl, Hardy E. Batchelor, Jr., Oakie Pickard, Phillip R. Magnuso, Franklin N. Smith, Michael R. Ford, Sherry L. Clark, Mitchell M. Waldrop, Edward F. Messina.

These are the people who did the work at the drive yesterday.

Dr. N. A. Love, Dr. P. K. Perkins, Tom Harville, Corky Jackson, Ann Hutchison, Lee Easterly, Sue Forney, Georgia Marshall, Betsy Bourne and Nancy Rogers.

Also Marina Harris, Michele Beaulieu, Diana Galimore, Tom Clark, Bob Frady. Connie Roberts, Cynthia Seawell, John Acree, Wayne McDonald and David Thompson.

Also, Beth Bandy, Bill Chaffin, Tom Conway, Richard Creal, Betty Jo Gray, Connie Croom, Julia Knot, Ronald Tanner, Bert Marshall and Pete Caudill.

Also, George McLain, Gene Rector, Clyde Thompson, West Hellen, Boyd Garber, Shirley Ryland, Bo Lalanne, Alan McArthur, Tom Arthur and Piggie Potter.

Also, Gerogia Marshall, Anne Allen, Margaret Groome. Margie Erickson, Cathy Cauble, Garry Marshburn, Salley Ivey, Kathrine Mann, Tommy Adams, Margie Gregory.

Also, Rovie Angell, Charlotte Milstead, Pat Taylor, Eddie Koonce, Brian Berger, Skip Crayton, Kitty Kuester, Trey Obenshain, Jim Martin and Jim Jester.

Also, Malcomb Brugess, Gene Meritt, John Freeman, Lee Domina, Susan Russell, Valery Gwynne, Lee Easterby, Claudia Barnes and Carolyn Welsh.

Also Nancy Parr, Mrs. Carl Gottschalk, Mrs. C. F. Falconer.

Free Tickets For Mathis

If you see a 3x5 card on a string dangling from a limb of a tree, or the knob of your room door, or the handle — bars of your Honda — grab it.

Your card might mean a good time — and a free time— for you and your date to hear Johnny Mathis in Carmichael Auditorium March 10.

The card trick is GM's way of publicizing Sabicas, the Spanish gypsy guitarist who will appear in Memorial Hall Feb. 27.

GM will tie hundreds of cards around the campus Monday. They're good for tickets to Sibicas, which is free to all students anyway.

The good part is three of the cards can be swapped for Mathis freebees.

Tickets to the Mathis show will cost students $1 and the general public $1.50. Student sales start February 23; public sales, Feb. 28.

Tickets to the Sabicas show will be given out beginning Feb. 20.

What's Going On

TODAY

Carolina Christian Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Dining Hall for a supper - meeting. At 6:30 there will be a Bible Study.

C.W.C. will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

The Univrsity Party Monday evening in Carroll Hall to establish voting procedures for the party convention. At this time, all candidates seeking a nomination must submit a written statement to the Chairman of the University Party. The nominating convention will be Wednesday, Feb. 23.

Tri Delta Scholarship Competition is underway. Two scholarships will be awarded, each $150. All women students at UNC are eligible to apply for the scholarships. Application blanks may be obtained from the Student Aid Office.

Are you an auctioneer? The Campus Chest needs you! Wild items — good crowd! Practice your talents! It's a one night stand, March 21. A good cause and a good time. If intrested, please call Bayard Harris, 968-9070 and leave a message.

FRIDAY

Bowling Party Feb. 18. Leave Presbyterian Student Center at 7 p.m.

Mock Trial jury selection, 3 p.m. in the courtroom, 2nd floor, Manning Hall.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: A pair of thin hornrim glasses; if found call 966-5189.

Lost: Brown Wallet which contains very important papers. Contact Robert Mitchell. 204 Morrison, 929-3017.

Lost: A dark grey herringbone top coat. Lost in 108 Garder Monday between 9 and 12 p.m. If returned, no questions will be asked. Contact Peter Whalen, 410 Craige, 968-9057.

Lost: A brand new white umbrella. Left in Gerrard Hall after Committee for Free Inquiry meeting Friday, Feb. 11. Please return as former owner is contracting pneumonia from walking around in the rain. Contact C. Gallant, 968-9173.

THIS WEEK'S

Bargains at the Intimate

- ART BOOKS Big, beautiful, colorful books for the Escofier in the great painters. Mostly planned as Christmas Gifts, to sell at $25.00 or more, now cut to $14.95.
- COOK BOOKS Big, handsome, colorful books for the Escofier n your kitchen. A wonderful investment to begin with, but a must at their new, low prices.
- NATURE BOOKS Books on gardening, on nature, and a dilly on Beetles, all designed as handsome gift volumes, and all now price down where you and I can afford 'em.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

only one of its kind
FOLKWEAVE® SUITS

Folkweave® woolens are completely exclusive. Woven by an honored Scottish mill, they are found only in Folkweave® Suits!

N. FREEMAN & SON
the label that means finer clothing

Julian's

DOLLAR DAYS
at
The HUB of Chapel Hill
Thursday — Friday — Saturday
Save During Dollar Days
3 Big Days of the greatest savings of the year. All items have been drastically reduced for this event.

DRESS SHIRTS
Large group traditional long & short sleeve dress shirts. Brand names that you are sure to know. Values to 5.95 Dollar Days Special
99c

SOCKS
A special treat for this big event. A large group of socks Ban-Lon included. Don't miss these Dollar Days Specials.
77c

SPORT COATS
Just in time for the warm weather ahead. Large group of sport coats in stripes and plaids, and solids in the ever popular dacron blends. Values to $35.00. Dollar Days money savers
$10.00

SPORT SHIRTS
A large group of sport shirts at a give-a-way price for Dollar Days. Buy several at 99c

CORDUROY PANTS
Our complete stock of corduroy pants reduced for this special sale. Values to 6.95. Dollar Days Special $3.99

LADIES-WEAR
Entire stock ladies wear—including coats, dresses, blouses, skirts & accessories. Dollar Days Special.
½ Price

The HUB of Chapel Hill
103 EAST FRANKLIN STREET

Dollar Day Sale
Don't Dare Miss Any of These Special Values

Suits		Sport Coats
100.00	NOW 66.66	69.50	NOW 46.37
89.95	NOW 59.98	65.00	NOW 43.34
85.00	NOW 56.67	59.50	NOW 39.98
75.00	NOW 49.99	55.00	NOW 36.67
69.50	NOW 46.37	50.00	NOW 34.34
65.00	NOW 43.34	45.00	NOW 30.00
59.95	NOW 39.98	39.95	NOW 29.95
		35.00	NOW 26.00

All Famous Brands Included in this Sale

Special Group Dress Shirts NOW 1.99 Values to 6.50

Shirts Reg. 6.50 NOW 2.99

ONE GROUP OF GARTER LENGTH SOCKS Now 99c

Sweaters		Fall Slacks
12.95	NOW 8.67	15.95	NOW 11.96
14.95	NOW 9.97	16.95	NOW 12.71
15.95	NOW 10.68	17.95	NOW 13.46
16.95	NOW 11.35	18.95	NOW 14.21
25.95	NOW 17.58	19.95	NOW 14.95
29.95	NOW 22.46	23.95	NOW 17.95
39.50	NOW 26.47

Varsity Men's Wear
"Clothiers of Distinction"
147 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-6610
Alterations Extra

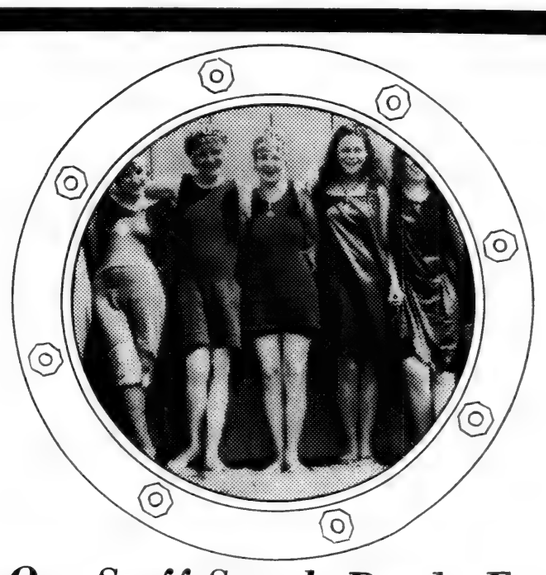
Sharyn Lynn Shoppe

Thurs.-Fri.-Sat.

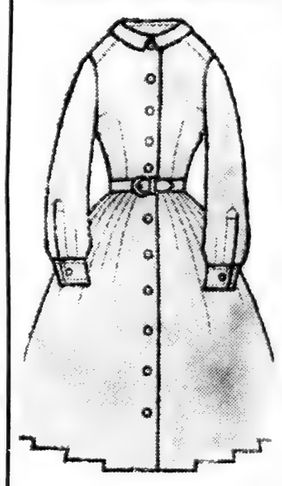
One Grabtable of
SLIPS, SKIRTS, SWEATERS, CULLOTTES, etc. $1.00

1 Group
BLOUSES $2.00
All Fall and Winter
DRESSES $5, $7, $10
SLAX—all wool ..... ½ Price
All Wool
SKIRTS & SWEATERS ½ Price
Flannel
PJ's & GOWNS ..... $2 & $3
1 Group
BAGS $2.00
Wool Sweater
VESTS $2.00
WOOL SCARFS $1.00

Sharyn Lynn Shoppe
Next to North Carolina National Bank
135 East Franklin Phone 942-2516



Our Staff Stands Ready For
The Greatest
Dollar Day Sale
Of All
REDUCTIONS FROM
30% to 75%
That will make you most happy you came by.
Sale Commences Thursday Morning At 9:00 Sharp.
UPSTAIRS and DOWNSTAIRS
Town & Campus



All our swingin' deals aren't limited to the "stronger" sex —hear ye, hear ye, hear ye— Aunt Bessie is tired of knitting those cardigans and the sheep are running too fast to catch the right colours, so get with it and get a devasting shetland sweater and pick up a matching skirt while you're at it — it only hurts for a little while—each regularly $15.95, choice selections now at $12.99

It pays to be little—if you don't believe it, take a gander at the corduroy shirtwaists regularly to $20.00 at Frogstrangler of $2.99—for your lucky 21.

We're stuck with 10 pairs of Black match wool tartan flats made by Carmelettes, regularly $20, won't you bail us out at ..... $.99?

Want something different—take a gander at our British Moderns—all at half price.

Shifts—shifts—shifts— the demure sophisticated rag — all at a Frogstrangler deal—plenty at a gold savings of one half.

This is but a mere teaser of all the goodies that make up the wonderful world of Lady Milton.

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA

Milton's February
Frogstrangler

A Real Andy Griffith "Mount Airy Monsoon" chock full of the best deals on the choicest items—it will even match a swingin' "Keep Kemp's Green Deal." The greatest deal going since Brooks Bros. got their long handles out for the gold rush of 1849—617 of our fabulous M-2 roll button-down shirts with finest impeccable single needle tailoring boasting the only matched stripes in captivity—regularly to $8.95, have a ball at a bagatelle of $2.99.

A good 5c cigar, a 31c complete lunch at old Swain Hall may be a thing of the past, but there's a fine Old School Suit in your present at the gold old days prices, group regular to $95.00 at demolishing $45.00

The black sheep got away, thank God, but those that were caught were just right for the finest shetland sweaters in the space age—McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland—$16.95, v-necks to $12.99 and $21.95 cardigans to a mere $14.99.

Sport coats used to be for Victorian cats like Diamond Jim Brady but in our age of Old School, you need only the desire to be sharp and look sharp and Milton's make this entirely possible with group of sport coats formerly to $50.00 at Mt. Airy Monsoon of $29.99.

So even if it's 110 in the shade, you've got to swing to Milton's this weekend . . .

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Freshmen Bids

Freshmen pick up bids for Spring Rush today in Y-Court, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

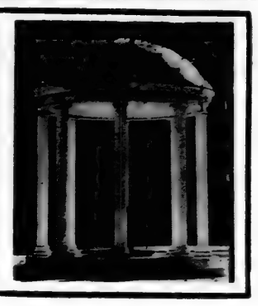
Volume 74, Number 97 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Photographers!

The DTH is still looking for a photographer. Salary is $26.40 a week. The photographer must furnish his own equipment. Bring a portfolio to Pat Stith at the DTH office in GM if interested.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Trivia Is Camp

If it's camp then it's in such poor taste that it becomes part of a new art form. In other words, it's so far 'out,' it's 'in.'

Here is our list.

SDS is camp.

Losing basketball and football teams are camp. Dean Long is camp. A two-month old umbrella is camp. Student Legislature is camp.

Trivia is camp.

And More You Know What

And speaking of our favorite here we go again.

1. What were the first spoken words on the Lone Ranger Show?
2. What color is Jimmy Olson's hair?
3. What was the name of the dog on "The People's Choice?"
4. What is one of Mad magazine's favorite expressions?
5. What was the name of Pete Porter's wife on "December Bride?"
6. What were Yul Brynner's closing lines in the "Magnificent Seven?"
7. What was the name of the elephant on "Circus Boy?"
8. How did Clarabelle communicate?
9. What were the only words Clarabelle ever said?
10. Who played the part of Tonto?
11. Who places eighth among college basketball teams in over all winning for the past 10 years?
12. What was the name of the Indian in "Yancy Derringer?"
13. Who was radio's Abominable Snowman?
14. Who starred in "Tightrope?"
15. Who was the girl who modeled the mink coat on "The Big Payoff?"
16. What is the longest run in pool?
17. Who was the first Playmate of the Month?
18. Who was the announcer on the old Jackie Gleason show?
19. Who were the three men on the street on The Steve Allen Show?
20. What was the name of the country in "The Mouse That Roared?"
21. Who was famous for saying "Hello Baby?"
22. Who does all the Warner Brothers cartoon voices?

ANSWERS:

1. "Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear"; 2. Red; 3. Cleo; 4. Millard Fillmore lives; 5. Gladys; 6."The old man was right; the farmers won and we lost. We always lose"; 7. Bimbo; 8. With his horn; 9. "Goodbye Kids," on the last Howdy Doody show; 10. Jay Silverheels; 11. Would you believe— our Tar Heels; 12. Pahoo; 13. Stan Freburg; 14. Mike Conners; 15. Bess Myerson; 16. 548 by Mosconi; 17. Marilyn Monroe; 18. Jack Lescoulie; 19. Don Knotts, Tom Poston and Louie Nye; 20. Grand Fenwick; 21. The Big Bopper; 22. Mel Blanc.

UNC Students Show Interest To Recruiters

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Carolina students have shown plenty of interest in the Peace Corps this week according to Lynda Sanderford, one of five Peace Corps recruiters on campus this week.

About 40 students have signed up to take the entrance test and more are expected to apply today. The recruiters have been at Y-Court and Lenoir Hall this week with information about the Peace Corps program.

Miss Sanderford said there was some concern over the recent appointment of Robert H. Vaughn as Peace Corps director. However, she said the new appointment probably won't affect the Peace Corps to any great degree.

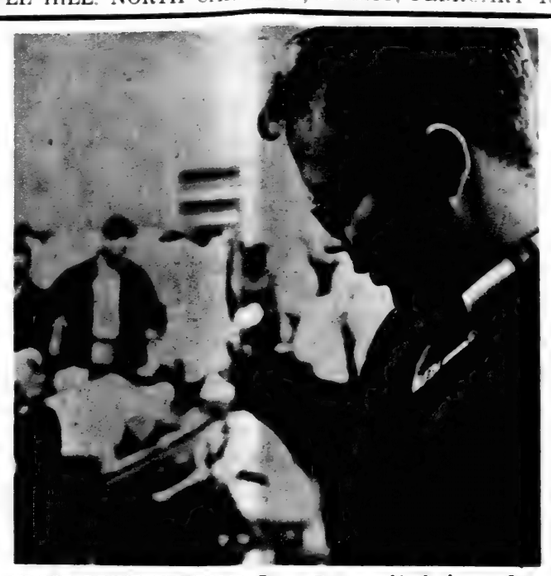
"He has been with the Peace Corps for a long time," she said.

Students were also interested in draft status. Peace Corps volunteers are deferred while serving and it's up to the local draft boards as to whether or not they will be drafted when their Peace Corps service is completed.

The volunteer recruiters along with Miss Sanderford include Barbara Ferguson of Wilmington, Timothy Burke, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Shirley Robinson of Greenville, S. C., and Linda Stephens of Virginia.

Miss Sanderford said the Peace Corps Placement Test is a required step in the application process. The tests will be given through Tuesday of next week in room 12 of Peabody Hall.

The test is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday and another one at 10 a.m. Saturday.



BLOOD DRIVE CHAIRMAN Sonny Pepper aids junior coed-in-distress Andy Henderson by tying a tourniquet before she gives her pint of blood. Pepper turned down students when the 535 mark was reached yesterday because of the heavy turnout near deadline. — DTH Photo by Andy Myers.

State Official Bans SSL From Old Capital Building

By JOHN GREENBACKER
Special to the DTH

State Student Legislature, meeting in Raleigh this week, was denied the use of the old capital building yesterday by Dr. Christopher Crittenden, director of the archives and history department.

Crittenden's decision, backed up by Gov. Dan K. Moore, came after consultation with SSL President Jane Levine.

Saying the old capital should be preserved "as an historic shrine," Crittenden's action prompted a resolution in SSL protesting the refusal. It was passed by acclamation.

Other action in a joint session of the House and Senate was a resolution directing the president to invite Dr. Frank Porter Graham to speak before the student group

The House elected UNC Representative Jim Little speaker by a 57-45 vote. Other positions filled were:

—Speaker pro tem, Mari Earle of Duke.

—Recording secretary, Cookie Wickham of Appalachian State.

—Reading clerk, Matthew Greene of Johnson C. Smith College.

—Sgt. at Arms, Wade Norris of Duke.

Chapel Hill Has Everything For Residents' Recreation

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

"I wish I were back home. There's nothing to do in Chapel Hill."

You have heard this statement many times, but it isn't true. The following is a partial list of varied recreational facilities in the Chapel Hill area:

Art Galleries — Ackland Art Gallery on Columbia Street and Art Gallery of Chapel Hill, above Country Store on West Franklin Street.

Billiards — Two commercial billiards rooms are open in Chapel Hill, on West Franklin Street and on West Rosemary Street. UNC also maintains a billiards room for students in the basement of Graham Memorial.

Boating — University Lake on the Jones Ferry Road out of Carrboro.

Bowling — All-Star lanes in Eastgate Shopping Center, restaurant, meeting rooms, various civic, University, and other bowling leagues open to students.

Concerts — Free, Hill Hall every Tuesday night at 7:30.

Dancing — The Patio and the Balan Lounge, both in Eastgate Shopping Center.

Fishing — University Lake, Clearwater Lake (off the Farrington Mill Road — go down Pittsboro Road and just past Morgan's Creek, a sign points the way), Mountain Dew Lake — also off the Farrington Mill Road (open for a small fee), and Faircloth's Lake off Jones Ferry Road (also open for a small fee).

Various other private lakes and ponds throughout Orange County are fishable either by fee or by permission of the owner.

Fishing licenses can be bought at Knight - Campbell Hardware on West Franklin Street or Andrews - Rigsbee Tractor Co. on South Greensboro Street.

Most frequent local catches are bass, bream, catfish, crappie and carp.

Golf — Finley Golf Course, off NC 54 turn right just past the Pines Restaurant; Chapel Hill Country Club, at the east end of Country Club Road; Twin Lakes, on Mann's Chapel Road, 15-501 South four miles out.

Finley charges $2.50 a day for guests and University alumni, $1 a day for students and faculty.

The Country Club charges $2.00 a day for guests, members play free.

Rubish's Golf City on the Chapel Hill - Durham Boulevard provides putting and a driving range.

Horseback Riding — Two commercial stables are available: White Oaks Stables, and Pine Knoll Stables, both on the Old Durham Road.

White Oaks specializes in hunter-jumper boarding, showing, training and teaching, but also has horses for hire. Bill Gosling, proprietor; telephone Durham, 489-6191.

Pine Knoll specializes in saddle seat boarding, showing, training and teaching, and also has horses for hire. Betty Lou Brunson, proprietor; telephone Durham, 489-3523.

Hunting — In season, in various areas of unposted woods throughout the County. For seasons and bag limits consult Orange County Game Warden Thomas L. Williams, Hillsborough.

Hunting licenses can be bought at Knight - Campbell Hardware or Andrews - Rigsbee Tractor Co. Combination hunting - fishing licenses are also available.

Movies — Two, the Varsity and the Carolina, both on Franklin Street.

Nudist Camps — Sorry, none in the vicinity, but the Sunny Bares Travel Club of Philadelphia, Pa., occasionally operates in North Carolina. Nearest permanent camps are in Norfolk, Va., and Augusta, Ga.

Picnicking — The two most popular areas are Battle Park, off Country Club Road, and the woods around University Lake. There are many other places, but they are most enjoyed when discovered independently.

Restaurants — There are 28 in Chapel Hill. For specifics, consult the yellow pages.

Swimming — University swimming pool in Woollen Gym, open to students, faculty and their families; Country Club swimming pool, open to members only; Exchange Swimming Pool, off Umstead Drive, open to members and their guests; Chapel Hill-Carrboro Swimming Pool, behind Roberson Street Community Center, open to the public during the summer on purchase of a season ticket or payment of a small daily fee; and Clearwater Lake. Please don't swim in University Lake — it's the community's reservoir.

Town Recreation Facilities — Anyone may use any of the town's publicly-supported recreation programs ao either the Umstead or Roberson Street Center without charge, except for small fees required for some special Recreation Department programs. For some special programs, nonresidents are charged a fee.

For specific information consult Jane Hogan, Chapel Hill recreation director, telephone 929-1175.

Woollen Gymnasium — All facilities of Woollen Gym are open to all University students.

Woollen's facilities are also open to UNC faculty and employees and their immediate families, on purchase of a privilege card.

UNC Begins Bloody Mary Festivities, Fun Tonight

Feeling bloody awful about having all of your blood drained out?

Graham Memorial has the answer to your worries — "Bloody Mary Weekend."

The 450th anniversary of the birth of Queen Mary I will be the excuse . . . er . . . occasion of a weekend - long celebration sponsored by GM.

A nationwide search of college bulletins shows no such celebration anywhere else.

Festivities for Friday night include a dance and a Free Flick. The One-Eyed Jacks will play in the Naval Armory at 8 p.m., and "Lili," starring Leslie Caron and Mel Ferrer, will be shown in Carroll Hall.

"Lili" is a romantic musical about a young French girl and the carnival puppet show which she joins.

Saturday night will be the high point of "Bloody Mary Weekend." The Ramsey Lewis Trio will appear in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. Tickets to Ramsey Lewis are sold out, but for those who can't see the trip, "The Detective" will be shown in Carroll Hall as the Free Flick.

Free Flicks will be shown at 7 and 9:30.

Fraternities and Residence Halls and Colleges have been urged to celebrate "Bloody Mary Weekend" in a fitting manner — which means any way possible.

Scholars are also urged to read up on their English history.

'ERE IS Bloody Mary 'erself.

— DTH Cartoon by Chip Barnard.

'Everyone Was Terrific'

Blood Drive Over; 535 Pints Collected

A final day surge of 354 donors brought the total number of pints to 535 for the Carolina Blood Drive.

Although the drive fell 65 pints short of the original goal of 600, everyone was pleased with the results.

Co-chairman of the drive, Sonny Pepper, said yesterday's effort was extended for an hour and a half because of the overflow of people.

"We turned away at least 50 people," Pepper said. "If we had had the facilities and could have worked a little longer we could have easily gone over our goal of 600."

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary, who originated the idea behind the blood drive, said, "I'm sorry we couldn't extend the drive longer. But no matter how many we got, I consider it a success.

"It's the most constructive thing the student body has done this year and it is certainly the most satisfying," McCrary said

Wednesday's turn out only brought in 181 pints. Pepper said there were more people yesterday because of the good weather, and because many of Wednesday's donors went back and told their friends how easy it was.

"It certainly restored my faith in the student body," Pepper said.

Pepper, who is president of the Men's Residence Council had been working all week on the blood drive. He hasn't been to one class this week.

"This drive has shown that the students of this University have their hearts in the right place."

"Now I'm tired," Pepper said. "Oh, one more thing. As far as I could tell the girls were a lot braver than the boys."

Donors included ministers, professors, doctors and volunteer nurses from Memorial Hospital and members of the Student Peace Union.

Pepper said he had never seen so much cooperation. "Everyone loved working, I had to run some of them off so others could work."

The DTH staff had 100 per cent participation. Although some were turned down, including Editor Ernie McCrary who couldn't give because he had mononucleoesis in October. He pleaded with them to take the blood and send it to the Viet Cong.

Yesterday's drive began at 9:30. The nurses and volunteer workers continued until about 5 without taking a break for lunch.

All the blood will be processed and given to the Defense Department for use in Viet Nam and in U. S. Army Hospitals.

In summing it all up Pepper said, "It has just been tremendous. It's the most amazing thing I have ever seen. The people were just great—the workers, the donors—everyone."

Committee OK's Walk, Resolution

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

Students For Free Inquiry in a two - hour meeting yesterday, approved plans for a mass student rally on Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall to be followed by a walk to Consolidated University President William C. Friday's house for the presentation of a resolution by SFI.

The 150 students present accepted the format for the rally which had been proposed by the steering committee of SFI earlier this week and also adopted "in principle" a six - point resolution by political science graduate student Richard French.

The main points of the resolution, as presented at the meeting, were:

1. In the pursuit of knowledge, the written word is not enough. Prior restraint in the area of free speech can never serve the purpose of education.

2. A policy of prior restraint can only call into question the intelligence and the ability of the students of the University to act with good judgment.

3. Prior restraint of free speech is a denial of the very tools necessary to the academic profession, regardless of the field of speciality.

4. The faculty and graduate students will have no reason to remain at the University if they are subjected to intolerable fetters on their freedom of inquiry.

5. Since the worth of degrees is only as good as the reputation of the institution granting them, the loss of eminent scholars can only result in the diminuation of the degrees granted.

6. The present generation of students and those of the future will in consequence be denied the full worth of their student years, and will be the victims. A second class university can only mean second class graduates and second class graduate schools and jobs.

French will present the resolution before the rally, following the appearance of speakers yet to be selected, and if the resolution is adopted, will issue an invitation to those present at the rally to participate in the walk.

French said that he had contacted Friday and that Friday had told him that he would accept such a resolution.

Sumner To Direct

Mark Sumner, head of the North Carolina Institute of Outdoor Drama, will direct the Durham Theatre Guild's second major production of the season. The production will be Jean Kerr's comedy, "Mary, Mary."

"Mary, Mary" will open Thursday, March 10 at 8:30 p.m. for a four - night run at the Allied Arts Center in Durham.

General admission will be $1.50. Students and Allied Arts members will receive a 50 per cent discount.

UNC Students On Trial Tonight

Two North Carolina students, Wendy Farer and Terry Gregory, will be tried on a mock murder charge tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Manning Hall Courtroom.

The mock public trial is an annual presentation of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity.

Charles Woerner and Pat Morgan are the prosecutors. Robert L. Thompson, George Carson, Stuart Saunders and Terry Venn will defend the accused.

William A. Johnson of Lillington, Superior Court Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District will preside.

Any students wishing to be interviewed for possible jury duty should come by the Manning Hall Courtroom at 3 p.m. today.

Otto Griebling—A Living Example That 'All The World Loves A Clown'

By MARY JO HESTER
Special to the DTH

All the world loves a clown! And all the world loves Otto Griebling, one of the most widely-known and highest-paid clowns in the United States today.

Otto is touring for his fifteenth season with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus playing in Raleigh through Sunday.

Originally from Germany, Otto joined the circus as a bareback rider in 1912 at the age of 14. He gave up the bareback riding after several broken arms and legs. In 1920 he began clowning.

"It came natural to me," Otto said in his low throaty voice as he paused after performing the opening circus routine.

"I'm not trying to be funny. You can't force it, it must come from the heart," he continued.

Asked why he became a clown, Otto said, "It's easier than attempting the trapeze."

"It's a good thing that I found myself in life," the famed clown continued. "I work on human psychology. I want to get the Academy Award for clowning," he said.

Otto had no model which he followed to mold his career. "I was myself," he said. Once a routine had been worked out, it does not change.

"People don't like me to change. Once a sequence is established, you must keep it up. It makes people angry when I don't 'knit' for them," Otto said.

In one of the sequences, Otto takes a seat, pulls his knitting from his pocket and begins to knit with bright red yarn.

Mrs. Griebling travels with her husband. They have three children, two girls and a boy, who are all "happily married and not in show business."

Otto's salary rose from that of an apprentice boy at $1 per week to that of one of the highest-paid clowns in the business.

Last year Otto decided to give up the circus life and retire. He was out of the show only one-half season before he had answered the circus officials plea to return.

All the world loves a clown! All the world loves Otto Griebling, the Academy Award Winning Clown!

CLOWN OTTO Griebling will be with the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus in Raleigh until Sunday.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

A Lesson In Cooperation

Aside from the obvious benefits for the soldiers who will use the blood donated here, the Carolina Blood Drive has given the campus a real lesson in constructive cooperation.

The project was really a massive one, requiring the involvement and assistance of hundreds of people.

Workers came from the Piedmont Carolina Red Cross Blood Center in Charlotte, the local American Red Cross Chapter, Pi Beta Phi, Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Gamma sororities, Sigma Nu Fraternity, Semper Fidelis, NROTC, Arnold Air Society and the Angel Flight.

Supplies and other help came from the Chapel Hill Junior Service League, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, Fowler's Food Store, the Woollen Gymnasium staff, Lenoir Hall and radio stations WUNC, WCHL and WKIX.

Vital cooperation came from Dr. Ed Hedgepeth and his staff at the student health center, Mrs. Lindsay Neville of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Red Cross and Oliver Cornwell at Woollen Gym.

Leadership came from Sonny Pepper and Cathy Cauble, co-chairmen of the drive. More than anyone else, these two made the drive a success by handling the countless details and little crises that accompany such a project.

The donors — 535 of them — came from everywhere. Freshmen, graduate students, faculty members, boys, girls, staff members. Name a group, and it was represented.

Those thousands of you who did not go to the gym Wednesday or Thursday cannot imagine the atmosphere there. It is a rare and gratifying occasion on this campus to witness such a collection of people who are so satisfied about what they are doing and just generally filled with goodwill.

A few fidgeted nervously as they waited in line, but they all left smiling. The lines grew as those "veterans" returned to the residence halls and fraternity and sorority houses with the message that the experience was "really great."

It was without doubt the most constructive project attempted by the student body this year. The Daily Tar Heel is proud to have sponsored it and extremely grateful to all those who worked so hard to make it a success.

Break Out The Brushes

It really isn't earthshaking. Just a little irksome.

Have you noticed the big white house at the corner of East Franklin Avenue and Raleigh Street lately?

In Chapel Hill, a town of many beautiful homes, that one is almost an eyesore because it needs a paint job so badly.

The columns are faded, the siding is peeling.

Does some irresponsible bum live there?

Hardly. The president of the University of North Carolina lives there.

Time magazine has just called him the head of the best University in the South.

Shouldn't the best university in the South take the best possible care of its president in every way — including keeping his house painted?

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Oh, I See You Boys Have Already Met Your Blind Dates!"

Barry Jacobs

Tough Decisions Needed About Our Role In War

Testimony given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by Secretary of Defense Robert S. MacNamara this week and recent statements by President Johnson and Premier Ky indicate strongly that the Vietnamese War is about to be further escalated. The Viet Cong appear to be getting stronger and the number of North Vietnamese regulars present in the south is increasing.

President Johnson recently renewed air attacks north of the 17th parallel. He seems ready to order more American troops to South Viet Nam. In light of these important moves, American military strategy needs a thorough, close scrutiny.

The "peace offensive" was a clear failure. The highly publicized trips of American emissaries to capitals all over the world never really held out much hope of accomplishing anything, and they didn't. The struggle, at least for now, must be fought on the battlefield.

The question now facing this country is, how shall the war be fought? The alternatives range all the way from pulling out completely to launching a nuclear attack on China. Every possible line of strategy has its advocates, and the debate is intense.

One line that is voiced too often is the argument that this country must do everything necessary to win the war. This kind of pronouncement sounds patriotic and determined. It seems to be a positive plan, yet it is really no plan at all. It assumes that by doing enough, by exerting enough force, by putting enough troops into South Viet Nam, we can win the war.

Possibly we can win if we apply enough force in Viet Nam. This, however, is a conclusion that must be reached by careful examination and weighing of the various factors involved in this war. It is by no means certain that simply by increasing the number of American troops in Viet Nam to a certain level, we can win the war.

Senator John Stennis of Mississippi has said that we must prepare to send 600,000 men into Viet Nam. Perhaps that will be enough to win the war. (It is more than we ever had in Korea.) But if 600,000 600,000 isn't enough, will Stennis or someone else call for 800,000 or 1,000,000 men for this war? Before sending such huge numbers of troops into battle, we should have at least a good idea that we can thereby win a victory. The French found out both in Indochina and Algeria that a large, powerful army is no guarantee of success.

There are two decisions that we must make about our role in this war. We must decide exactly what our goals are, and we must decide what amount of force we are willing to employ to achieve them. For goals we need concrete objectives, not flowery phrases.

To say we are fighting to stop aggression may be true, but such a statement is not enough. Why are we fighting aggression here and now? We have allowed it to go on unopposed before. To say that we are fighting for freedom is meaningless. The Vietnamese people have not had, do not have, and will not have freedom, even if we are completely triumphant, if by freedom we signify what is generally meant here—the right of the people to govern themselves. It will however, be an improvement if we can give them freedom from terrorism. Can we do this? Is this our goal in this war?

The truth is that our goals are not clearly defined or understood. The American people certainly don't understand them. We stumbled into this war, and it is still hard to realize just how big it has become. Whatever our purposes were when we first began to send in military advisers, they must have changed now. Strategy that is applicable for a detachment of 25,000 troops can hardly apply to any army of 200,000 and more.

Assuming that we do have clear goals in mind, how far do we go to achieve them? Looming as a very real threat is the huge bulk of China. By continuously escalating the war, we run and increasing risk of triggering a war with China, a war that we can hardly win on the Asian mainland. Will war with he Chinese mean the opening of the Pandora's box of nuclear warfare?

Perhaps we will attempt to fight this war in the same way we fought the Korean War, with one hand tied. Then we didn't bomb north of the Yalu River in order to avoid possibly involving Russia in the war. Now we are reluctant to bomb North Viet Nam extensively, probably for fear that such bombings will bring China into the war. The question of just how far we will go is probably the most crucial one facing Johnson now.

This is not a plea to get out of Viet Nam. We have gone too far to simply get out. Such action would likely lead only to war in some other spot. What we must do, though, is decide exactly what we want and what we are willing to do to get it. In the event that the force we are willing to employ is not sufficient to achieve our goals, we must we willing to compromise. We must be ready for such an unpleasant eventuality.

Letters To The Editor

Compulsory Retirement

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Concerning Jay Brilliant's letter in the Tar Heel of Feb. 16, I think that I speak for all members of our Department of Mathematics when I say that it contained a timely and fitting tribute to a great man, a renowned mathematician and a unique teacher. We share Mr. Brilliant's sense of loss when we think of Professor Brauer's imminent retirement.

However the last two paragraphs of an otherwise excellent letter were marred by a misunderstanding of the cause of this retirement. According to regulations of the University Board of Trustees, retirement is compulsory for all persons who have reached their 72nd birthdays, with retirements to become effective automatically on the July 1 following such birthdays. This regulation now applies to Professor Brauer, and it is the only reason we know of that requires his retirement.

Sincerely,
W. Robert Mann,
Professor of Mathematics

Country Changes

Editor, Daily Tar Heel:

In World War II, the United States performed a controversial and irregular act by encamping untrustworthy Japanese in California. These people lost all their possessions and underwent great suffering in these camps. I am not asking if this act was right or wrong. Instead, I am merely trying to point out that it was done.

The American Youth of today has become too complacent. They are constantly spouting ideas but seldom using any common sense. The basis for this preceding statement is very simple and evident. The war in Viet Nam calls for the murder of Communists, in cold blood or in battle.

American youths in Viet Nam are risking their lives for the Carolina student right now. And what for? In order that the Carolina student might be privileged to hear a Communist speaker, a person who would be killed on a battle field in Viet Nam.

There are no enforced camps in America for the communists like there were for the Japanese. Instead, the communists have free - run of the country. I am not advocating that there should be camps for communists, for thi swould be ridiculous. I am simply trying to show the change a country can go through in 20 years.

Jim Johnson
1031 Morrison

Work For Free Speech

Editor, The Daily Heel:

A number of committed, or partly-committed, students has asked in the past few days what they can do about preserving free speech at the University. There are several things they, and every student with a deep concern for the fate of the University, can do:

1. Write to the Governor and the board of trustees urging them to give to the student organizations and their faculty advisers the power of decision on who shall speak at the University.

2. Go home this weekend, if you live in North Carolina, and talk to the folks at home: your parents, their friends, church groups, civic groups, city officials, businessmen, alumni, even the trustee from your county. (The Consolidated University office will give you a list of all the Trustees and their addresses, upon request.)

3. Tell these people that something they care for, something that is of great use and importance to their lives (economically, not the least) is being destroyed, or at least irreparably altered for the worse, by a handful of politicians bent on petty revenge and by a Board of Trustees that seems to be more scared of the word "Communist" than they are by the decay of the greatest University in the South.

4. Explain to them that the Constitution and the Bill of Rights protect not only that rather vague and abstract right of free speech, but also protect them, concretely, against such things as false arrest and unfair trial. Explain to them that when politicians get away with tinkering with the Constitution, their freedom—the freedom of the average citizen of North Carolina—is put in jeopardy.

5. Tell them how many and what different sorts of people in Chapel Hill are up in arms about this thing.

Finally, ask, cajole, BEG these people at home to write to the Governor and the board of trustes expressing their concern—if indeed they have any. Tell them how important it is that they urge the board of trustees to give up all censorship of free speech on state-supported campuses. Tell them how little effect our actions in Chapel Hill seem to have on what happens in Raleigh. Make it clear to them that it is not spring riots or leftist troublemaking, but REAL DANGER FOR THE UNIVERSITY AND FOR THE STATE.

I realize that this gesture might be a sacrifice of beer and rush parties, and that perhaps it is not the Carolina gentlemanly thing to do, to mingle and speak with the great mass of people in this state. But maybe it's time for a little sacrifice on everybody's part, before it's too late. For the sake of the school you love, GO!

Thank You,
David Gullette
203 Bingham Hall

Refuse The Degree

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Mr. Daniels (DTH, Feb. 16), since you feel as you do about the action of the board of trustees as influenced or not influenced by the Governor, there is another consideration you have apparently overlooked. You must realize that if you complete your requirements for a Ph.D. that you will carry this title "Ph.D., University of North Carolina" the rest of your life.

Now if you are really sincere in your stated concern (and you must be to deny this great university of your services upon graduation provided you were offered a job here) you must believe that such a title would be a black mark on your record that you could hardly afford.

I think the only rational thing left for you is to depart before this stigma of a Ph.D. from UNC is forged upon your longed for successful career.

Now, Mr. Daniels, you have an excellent opportunity to "express" yourself. If you have a conviction and you must, "STAND ON IT" REFUSE YOUR PH.D.!! Really, have you taken a stand by advising the Governor that you will not stay and work at UNC upon graduation? You really did not tell us whether you had been offered employment here.

Cecil Long

38 Dogwood Acres Ext.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

Heelprints

First medical science shows that ulcers can be caused by executive tensions. Now comes word that people with gout have more leadership potential than the general population. Seems it's becoming increasing embarrassing to be healthy nowadays.

* * *

Literary critics say "In Cold Blood" elevates journalism to art. Maybe so. But judging from modern fiction, perhaps it's time to elevate art to journalism.

* * *

No wonder Governor Moore is so happy about the Research Triangle's forthcoming computer. That's at least one high - powered brain which won't drift away from here because of the speaker ban.

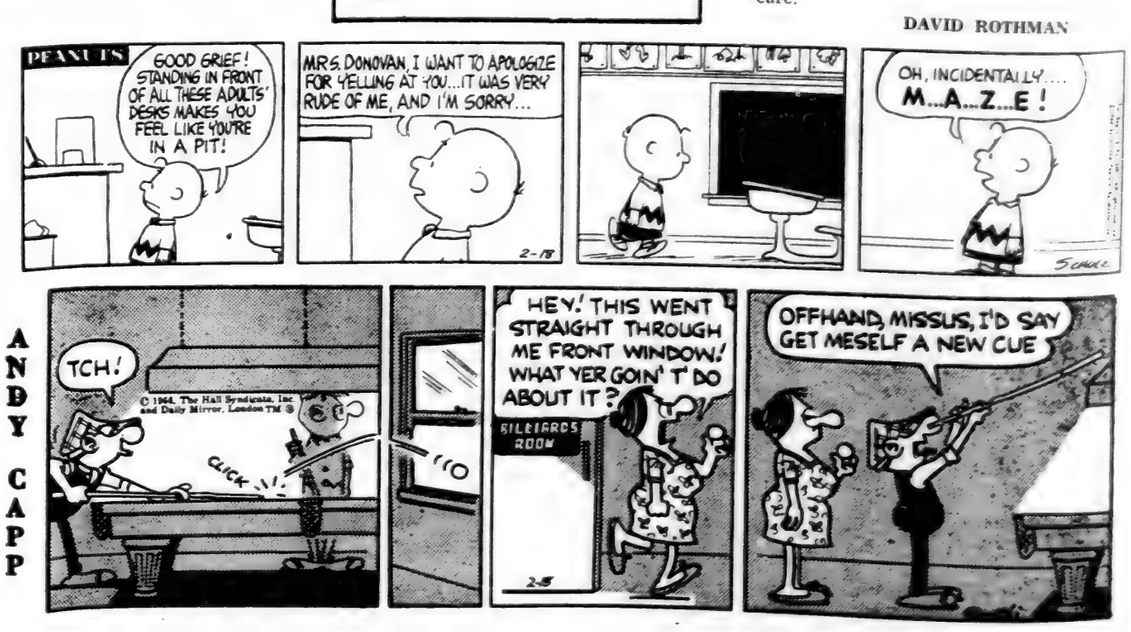
* * *

Considering the prices of some Chapel Hill merchants, students don't bleed just when they give blood for our troops in Viet Nam.

* * *

LBJ calls his critics "blind" and "deaf" Maybe he's mad at them for not using Medicare.

DAVID ROTHMAN



'From Then On I Played All Day Long'

An Exclusive Interview With No. 22

By DRUMMOND BELL
AND SANDY TREADWELL
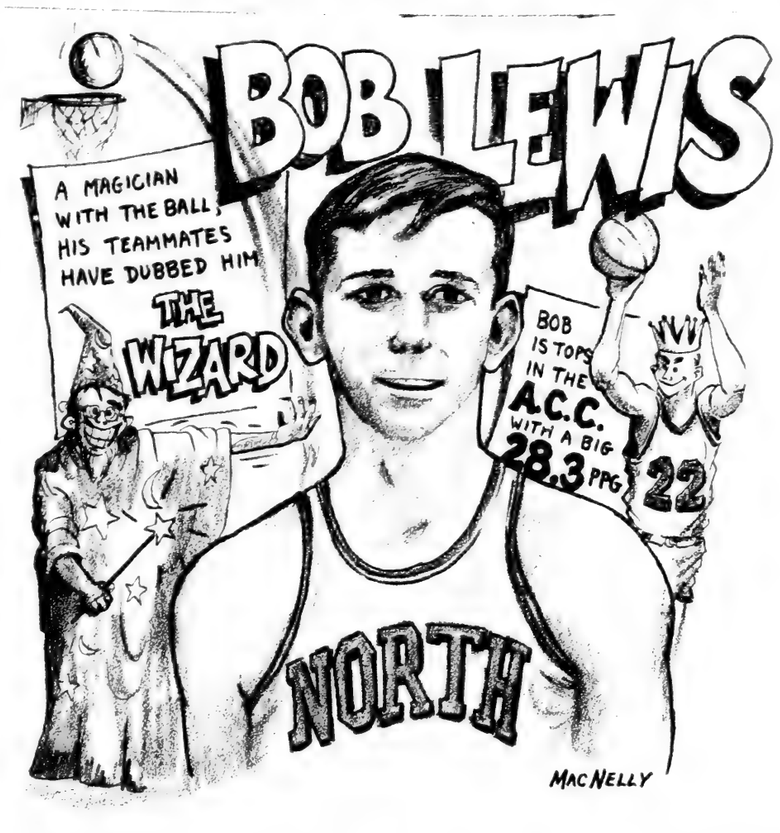
DTH Sports Writers



Just 24 hours after Carolina's second loss in a row, at the hands of VPI, Bob Lewis draped himself across a bench in the Avery Canteen.

He wore a Carolina sweatshirt and olive - colored chinos instead of the familiar blue and white uniform with 22 sewed on.

Lewis talked for more than an hour. In an amiable style he touched on a wide range of subjects from Red Auerbach to Bob Verga. He spoke about his team and his coaches, but mainly about himself.

This is what he said:

TAR HEEL: When did you first become interested in the game of basketball?

LEWIS: When I was a young kid I never liked basketball too much. I was a baseball psycho. Then, when I was in the sixth grade, I read a book by Red Auerbach.

I remember particularly the inside cover. It said, "If you want to be a great basketball player, you can't play anything else." So that was that. (Bob smiled) No more baseball. From then on I played all day long.

TAR HEEL: How did you like playing in high school? How different was it from college?

LEWIS: I went to St. John's in Washington. It was a tough league with such standouts as (Fred) Hetzel of Davidson and (Dave) Bing of Syracuse. Our record my senior year was 21-10. I couldn't wait to get out.

The other teams put a lot of men on me, and I had a heck of a time scoring. Down here there's only one man on me. But recently the scoring has been pretty tough. (Bob smiled)

TAR HEEL: We noticed the other night against VPI that many of your shots weren't falling. You looked real worried about it.

LEWIS: I don't get psyched out, but I do get mad at myself and know that I should not. I wasn't hitting Saturday night, and there's always a reason.

TAR HEEL: Bob, what do you think the reason was against VPI?

LEWIS: Shooting is all here in the fingertips. (Holding up his right hand) Did you guys see the picture in the paper? The form was good, the arms were just right, but if you look closely, the ball was on my palm instead of my fingertips.

I had no spin on the ball. I threw it flat and every now and then it rolled off the side of my hand. It's never felt so bad. After the game I went back and practiced my shooting. The lights were down, but I could see the basket. Now the shooting is back.

TAR HEEL: How do you feel when the team loses

LEWIS: I want to win so bad it hurts. If I don't play well, I feel that I'm hurting the whole team. I don't care about the points so much as just winning. I thought about the VPI game all weekend. It sticks right here. (Fist over his heart)

TAR HEEL: Do the bad games stick?

LEWIS: No, it's a funny thing. You forget a game after you have played again.

TAR HEEL: Does the team share your feeling after a loss?

LEWIS: If we lose a game the locker room and the bus ride back are really quiet, but winning is a different story.

TAR HEEL: There has been a lot of talk about team unity and team spirit.

LEWIS: The team morale is high, and the effort is always there. All of us have great respect for Coaches Smith, Brown and Lotz.

TAR HEEL: The team has had some bad halves after the exam break. Do you know what has caused them?

LEWIS: We're making mistakes now that usually are made at the beginning of the season. On a good night we can beat anyone, but when things go bad, we really stink the place up. (Bob shook his head.)

Everyone expected us to have a real bad season. We started out so well, but something happened. Once you start to get beat it's easy to get into a losing feeling. We gotta pull out of it. We're a good ball club and we want to prove it.

TAR HEEL: Isn't it true that these games aren't as important as the Tournament? You can afford a few losses now.

LEWIS: It's easy to say that these games don't count. And it's easy to say that we're looking to the Tournament for our big games. It's easy, but we can't do it.

TAR HEEL: We noticed that the lay - up drill that you like to be the last person to put the ball through the hoop. Are you superstitious?

LEWIS: (He laughed) Yeah, sometimes I'll do that. I have many little things that I'll do before and during the game. Sometimes I have to have water. Now it's gum.

I also like to wipe my hands on the towels, and at other times I have to be the last man out on the court. I guess you could call it superstition or just plain habit.

TAR HEEL: What's it like to play college basketball?

LEWIS: I guess it depends on the schedule. We play a tough season this year and we have a tough job ahead of us everytime we go out on the floor. That's the way it should be.

Duke plays a good schedule also. It's like that with all the best teams. We didn't have to play VPI. We could have played an easier team like Humpty Dumpty U. Sure, we'd have a great record, but the season wouldn't mean anything.

TAR HEEL: Is it true that basketball is a contact sport?

LEWIS: It's rough under the boards. A lot of free elbows are thrown around. The refs have to let many board fouls go. They see them, but they can't call 'em all. If they did there would be players on the foul line for half the game.

TAR HEEL: What is it like to be a player?

LEWIS: The hardest thing to do is study. This is personal. I'm not saying its true for all the boys. I'm really behind. It is hard. We practice from five to seven and after dinner, I'm so damn tired that I can't get down to work.

The trips make it even harder. I've learned that you can't take books along. The sophomores always try it. They'll even take a couple of history books to the bench. They give me a kick since I know that they'll never open them. I tried it.

TAR HEEL: Do you like the L and M (Lewis and Miller) publicity?

LEWIS: Yes, and I think Larry does too. It's something different.

TAR HEEL: What about your coverage in the state papers?

LEWIS: I think that they just look for my scoring. Say I make 15 of 40 from the floor and seven of 15 from the foul line. They'll count up the totals and then write my name in the headlines.

But if I only get 18 points, but grab ten rebounds and play a good all around game, they'll think I had a bad night.

Sportswriters tend to have bad memories. I don't read all of them. If I did, I'd be a real psycho.

TAR HEEL: Bob, what's the team's biggest goal this year and yours?

LEWIS: The ACC is our long range goal. My biggest goal personally, is to improve. I have a lot of troubles. When I'm out there I want to solo and get the ball. I see the basket and go right at it.

I want to go all the way, but when they plug up the middle I'm beginning to learn that I can't go in every time.

I guess I picked this habit up in high school. As sophomore I used to stand around. I used to wait for the passes. Now I know that I must cut more and go for the ball.

Defense is my big problem. It's bad, but I think more about offense. I have to learn that the points will come. Points are good. I would give anything to be the leading scorer in the country. I want to be something, but there are other parts to the game of basketball.

TAR HEEL: What has been your biggest thrill?

My 49 points against Florida State was a thrill because it broke the single scoring record. But I felt that the State game here was my best performance.

I only scored 18 points, but I had eight assists. After the game I felt that I played good all around basketball. Playing in Madison Square Garden last week was really a thrill. I've always wanted to play there. I love the place. The floor is terrible and so are the lights, but the baskets are great. There's something about it.

TAR HEEL: What do you think of Duke's Verga?

LEWIS: You mean Verga - the - shoot? He's the type of player who loves to shoot. I know him personally and we are good friends. Long of Wake Forest is another good shot. He's really amazing. I could not believe him against us.

TAR HEEL: Bob, you're one of the best in the country and you've worked on your game for a long time. How much of it has come naturally to you?

LEWIS: My jumping is all natural and so are the moves. You can't practice a shot like a driving lay - up. It's all natural instinct. I think that basketball is three-quarters natural ability.

TAR HEEL: What do your parents think of all this?

LEWIS: Their main interest is that I get my college degree. They keep up with my basketball and they're very interested in how I do.

You know, my mother used to play basketball. (Bob smiled) She made 35 free throws in a row once. I sure could have used her on the foul line last Saturday night.

TAR HEEL: Do you want to play pro ball when you leave Carolina?

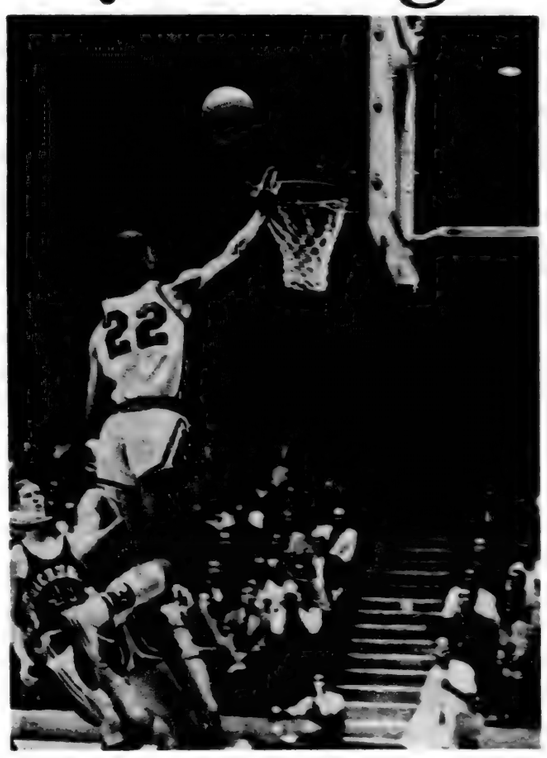
LEWIS: Professional basketball is really a hectic life. You live in a suitcase. It's also a physical beating, there's no question about it. I'm only a junior and I really haven't considered it.

Of course, it would be a great honor. No one has spoken to me yet, and I might end up playing in playgrounds. (We laughed) I still want to play ball somewhere when I do finish school.

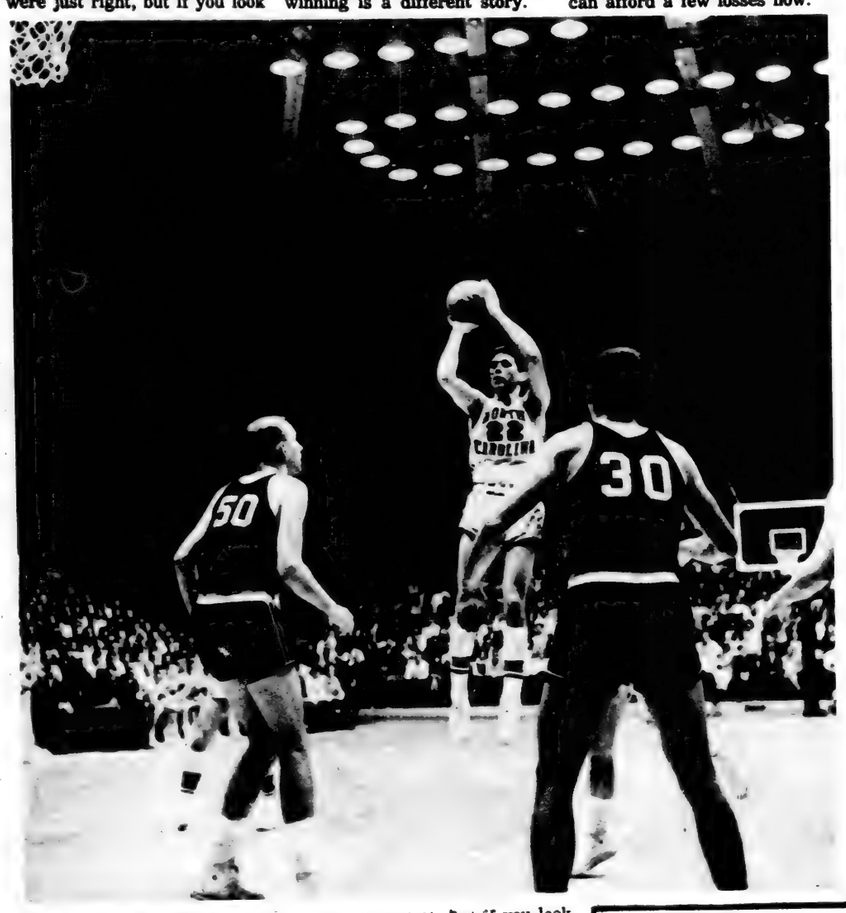
TAR HEEL: Finally, Bob, why did you choose Carolina?

LEWIS: (he smiled) I've often been asked that question and I give a different answer every time. The truth is I really don't know. I didn't want to go to any other school from Maryland on up since I hate the cold weather.

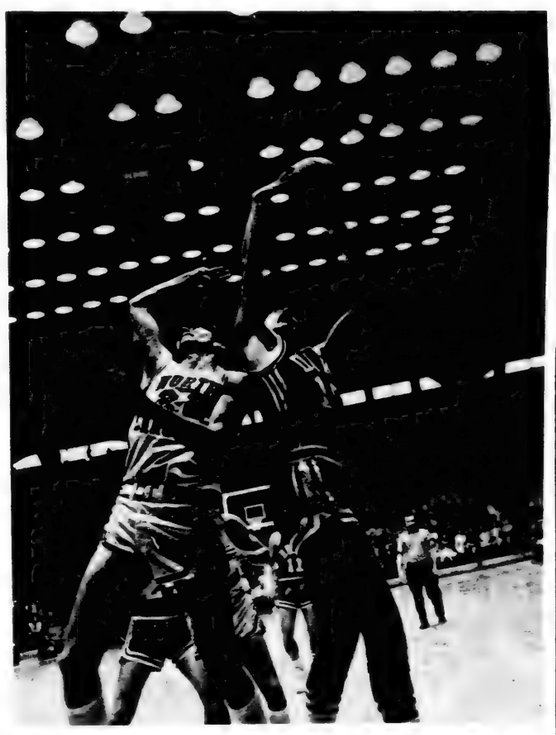
I came down here in the spring and fell in love with the place. It's great. Most of the time I am really happy here. Sometimes I kick myself and wonder why I didn't go somewhere else. But that's human. Everybody feels like that sometimes.



My jumping is all natural and so are the moves.



The form was good, the arms were just right, but if you look closely, the ball was on my palm instead of my fingertips.



I want to win so bad it hurts.
—Photo by Jock Lauterer

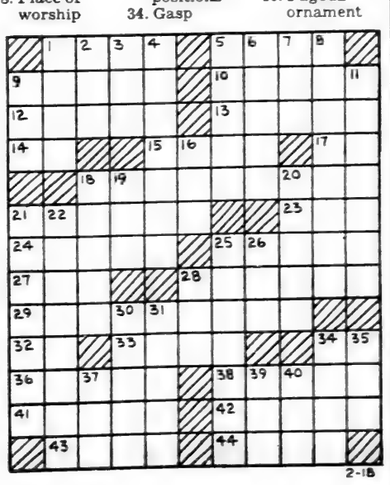
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Pellets of lead
5. Type of gas
9. Moon-goddess
10. Foreign
12. Of greater age
13. Perfume with incense
14. Depart
15. Unrelenting
17. Exclamation
18. U. S. islands
21. Metal tags
23. Medieval tale
24. Lithuanian coin
25. Inscribed
27. —— Claire
28. Blackboard item
29. Contract
32. Compass point
33. Religious service
34. Hebrew letter
36. Sea eagles
38. Atlas, for one
41. Weather word
42. Correct
43. Plural suffix used with law and saw
44. Legislature

DOWN
1. Farm feature
2. Owned
3. Type of base hit
4. Rifle-range items
5. Unspoken
6. Fragrant resin
7. French river
8. Resound
9. Alsatian, for one
11. "Juicier," as some gossip
16. Scandinavians in Russia
18. Place of worship
19. Meadow
20. City in Belgium
21. Assumed names
22. Cautiously
25. Twisted by force
26. Hank of twine
28. Type measures
30. Arabian chieftain
31. Bridge positions
34. Gasp
35. Finish
37. Born
39. Wurttemberg measure
40. Pagoda ornament

■	CALM	BARB
RADIO			ORIEL
ELUL			BOMBAY
NEW	PET	■	GR
OBADIAH			ELI
■	■	ANT	AVES
CRANK			CREST
HANK	■	OAK	■
AWN	■	CORSAIR
NH	■	RED	TOY
CITIES			NOTE
EDILE			LIMAS
■	EELS	■	MOSS

Yesterday's Answer



2-18

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!
ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present
SEAN CONNERY
"THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY
PANAVISION
TECHNICOLOR
UNITED ARTISTS

TODAY-TUESDAY
"ONE OF YEARS 10 BEST FILMS"
—Satuday Review
—N. Y. Post
"A STUNNING FILM!" —Crowther, N.Y. Times
THE MOMENT OF TRUTH
Pink Phink Short,
"PINK PAJAMAS"
12:59, 3, 5:01, 703, 9:05
RIALTO, Durham

THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL,

The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house.

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

The MOTION PICTURE WITH SOMETHING TO OFFEND EVERYONE!!
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Filmways present
Martin Ransohoff's Production
The Loved One
starring
ROBERT MORSE
JONATHAN WINTERS
ANJANETTE COMER
Shows At:
1—3:00—
5—7—9:15
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA
FROM THE MAN WHO MADE "TOM JONES"!

I'M SO PROUD—
I JUST PICKED
OUT A UNIQUE
GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND
UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS
Ledbetter Pickard

North Carolina News Roundup

Groups To Study Sex Laws

RALEIGH (AP) — The membership of commissions to study North Carolina's laws relating to sexual deviations and inter-state cooperation were announced yesterday by Gov. Dan Moore.

Lt. Gov. Bob Scott named to the interstate study group Sens. Sam L. Whitehurst of New Bern and Adrian L. Shuford Jr. of Conover, who will serve as chairman. House Speaker Pat Taylor named Reps. Earl W. Vaughn of Draper, Thorne Gregory of Scotland Neck and Joe E. Eagles of Macclesfield.

Designated by the governor were G. Andrew Jones, state budget officer, Claude E. Caldwell, state personnel director, and Dan E. Stewart, director of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

State Prisons Director Lee Bounds was named to head the commission on criminal laws relating to public morality. The group will report to Moore and the 1967 General Assembly.

Bounds and Dr. Eugene A. Hargrove, commissioner of the State Department of Mental Health, are ex-officio members of the commission.

Moore named James T. Hedrick, a Durham attorney and Doran J. Berry, a Fayetteville attorney, to the group. Scott picked State Sen. Ruffin Bailey of Raleigh and Taylor named State Rep. Jack Moody of Siler City.

Dr. George W. Paschal Jr., president of the State Medical Society, appointed Dr. Hans Lowenbach of the Duke University Medical Center and Charles H. Young, Raleigh attorney was appointed by J. Kenyon Wilson, president of the state bar.

Dr. James Taylor Vernon of Morganton was named by Dr. Isaac M. Taylor of Chapel Hill, dean of the University of North Carolina Medical Affairs Division.

Sanford Compact Completed

DURHAM (AP) — Two governors seated more than 3,500 miles apart will place their pens to similar bills today at exactly the same moment and the new compact for education will become legally operable, former Gov. Terry Sanford said yesterday.

Sanford said Gov. John Chafee of Rhode Island and Gov. Jack Campbell of New Mexico will confer by long distance telephone so that their signatures will be affixed to legislation at exactly 11 a.m. EST and 9 a.m. MST.

Both legislative houses in each state just completed passage of similar bills which will adhere their states to the new compact since the compact needs 10 signatories to become legally operable and since eight states have already joined, Gov. Campbell and Gov. Chafee decided on the simultaneous signing. The other eight states or territories which had previously joined include: Arkansas, the Virgin Islands, Hawaii, New Jersey, Minnesota, Illinois, Texas and New Hampshire.

Sanford, former governor of North Carolina who during the past year worked to develop the compact, said he would join in the conference telephone call with the two governors in order to congratulate them.

Vandals Plead Guilty

SHELBY (AP) — Guilty pleas to 72 counts of damage to personal property were entered yesterday by four youths from Blacksburg, S. C.

Some $3,000 in damage resulted from a Jan. 14 shooting spree with an air rifle at nearby Grover. Plate glass windows in business places and automobile windows were shattered.

The four are Sandy Lee Lunsford, 18; and Eddie Wayne Westmoreland, William Lee Rumfelt and John Taylor Roberts Jr., all 16. They have been free under $2,000 bond each since their arrest.

They will be sentenced in Cleveland County Recorder's Court March 3.

They face similar charges arising from incidents at Blacksburg and Gaffney, S. C. Trial on those charges is scheduled for March.

Originally, they were charged on 80 counts in the Grover incident, but two charges against each were not prosecuted when prosecuting witnesses could not be found.

Moore Speaks To Christians

NEW BERN (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore last night called on Christians to make "our religion a practical, vital force in the affairs of our state and our nation."

The governor told a New Bern district Methodist lay rally that the need for religion as a daily force "perhaps never before in our history has been so great as it is today."

In a prepared talk, Moore, a Methodist, told the rally "you and I must bring the Christian force into our own lives. We begin this through prayer. We need more prayer today, rather than less as recent decision of the United States Supreme Court seem to indicate.

"Prayer should be voluntary, of course, and not an enforced act," he said. "By the same token, however, no restriction should be placed on the practice of prayer."

Gov. Moore said, "by faith and example, you and I can make the Christian force within ourselves bear upon all that we do. It is here that we see our first and foremost duty as Christian laymen. It is you and I, as practical men in a practical world, who can make the Christian religion an effective force in everyday life."

Moore noted, "This is a period of extreme stress. Confusion, unrest and uncertainty are the order of the day. It has always been this way in times of rapid social and economic changes such as we are undergoing.

"We see certain individuals and groups try to turn this condition to their own advantage, by dividing our people," the governor said. "We see certain individuals and groups who decide for themselves which laws are right and which are wrong — which laws they will obey and which they will disregard."

Moore said, "fortunately, these individuals and groups are relatively few in number, although their voices are disproportionately loud. I am convinced that the great majority of our people believe in adherence to the law as the basic framework of our society.

DOLLAR DAY SALE

Imported Crystal BAR GLASSES from Portugal—reg. 49c each — Dollar Day $ $ $ Price ..... 6 for 2.24

8x11 TWEED VISCOSE RUGS—foamed backed, popular colors. Dollar Day Price 10.94

ROSES

Downtown CHAPEL HILL

U. S. Loans $100 Million To India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said yesterday India has been granted a $100 million loan to buy raw materials and spare parts to get its faltering economy in gear.

This is the first U. S. loan to this country since Washington cut off economic aid to India and Pakistan when the two neighbors fought a war over the divided Himalayan state of Kashmir last September.

Humphrey announced in Karachi a $50 million loan to Pakistan. In both cases, U.S. officials said the loan did not constitute resumption of U.S. development aid.

At a news conference where he announced the loan, Humphrey said India must take measures to help itself. He said he is impressed with India's plans to improve agriculture. Severe drought has brought on food shortages and food riots have swept the state of Kerala.

Humphrey said he reviewed U. S. foreign assistance objectives in conferences with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other top Indian officials.

"We believe that to be effective, our assistance must be coupled with internal efforts which would accelerate the development process," he said.

One of Humphrey's main missions in India was reported to be to get assurances from Mrs. Gahdhi that India will launch a drive to reach self-sufficiency in food while accepting massive American aid.

Humphrey said the United States has shipped 6.5 million tons of food grains to India since July.

Unions Reject Federal Limit Wage Demands

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—AFL-CIO construction unions, under White House fire for "inflationary" wage increases, rejected yesterday a federal proposal aimed at limiting wage demands.

President C. J. Haggerty of the AFL - CIO construction and building trades department said the plan proposed secretly several weeks ago by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz was unanimously slapped down by the Presidents of the 18 unions of the department, representing some 3.5 million workers.

"We . . . unanimously agree that the plan supported by Secretary of Labor Wirtz is unworkable and we therefore are unable to accept it," the union chiefs said in a statement.

Haggerty said he believed that Wirtz had proposed the plan for a national labor-management council to settle contract disputes "with the White House's approval and knowledge."

Haggerty, who earlier charged the government with using racial discrimination proceedings against the unions as a means of pressure on the wage proposal, said he did not know whether the unions could excpect further retaliation from the administration.

"We don't think retaliation is justified," Haggerty said.

The Johnson administration, increasingly concerned about inflation, had singled out the construction industry for special criticism of excessive wage and price increases.

Haggerty said it was possible that rejection of the plan could cause stronger consideration by the White House of mandatory wage - price controls.

Haggerty and the 18 construction union presidents said they would go along with such extraordinary federal controls if they were applied across the board to wages, prices and profits.

Taylor Tells Senate Committee

Reds Hope For Dissension

Hanoi Thinks Washington Weakening

WASHINGTON (AP)—Presidential Consultant Maxwell D. Taylor told Congress yesterday the Communists hope dissension in Washington will help them win the war in Viet Nam.

And when a Senate critic told him the military struggle will one day be repudiated by the American people, Taylor snapped: "That's going to be good news to Hanoi."

Taylor, former U. S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that no one has come up with a strategy better than the course President Johnson has already chosen.

"I feel that our present strategy is the best that has been suggested and that it is important that we adhere to it," said the retired general, former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

While Taylor argued the administration case before the committee, a standing - room-only crowd and a national television audience, the Senate debated a $4.8 billion emergency spending bill to help pay for the war.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss, appealed for prompt and unanimous passage of the authorization measure, saying it is time for an end to carping criticism. Stennis predicted that escalation of the war would bring larger draft calls and a partial call-up of the national guard and military reserves.

"If the war continues, increased taxes are urgent," Stennis told the Senate. "We may ultimately be forced to a choice between guns and butter. This might entail economic controls and rationing of goods and materials, and at least a partial disruption of normal business operations."

MAXWELL D. TAYLOR

Stennis said the Communists have drawn the line in South Viet Nam and have determined "to make this war a test of our power and our strength of national purpose"

"We must make a national decision that it is our purpose to win," he said.

The House Armed Services Committee approved Johnson's request for an extra $4.8 billion and added $49.7 million to the bill for construction projects for the Marines in Okinawa and the Navy at Subic Bay in the Phillipines. The committee action raised the bill's total to $4,857,450,000.

Taylor told the Senate committee that more American fighting men will have to join the 205,000 already in South Viet Nam but he would not venture a guess as to how many.

He said U. S. ground and air strategy is limiting the ability of the Communists to support additional troops of their own, and this in turn will limit the number of men needed to combat them.

And he said the war is a limited one — "limited as to objective, as to geographical scope, as to weapons and forces employed and as to targets attacked . . .

"The key, I believe, is inexorable pressure at all points, directed at the will, the ability and the means of the Communist aggressors," Taylor said.

Taylor's words of concern about divisions at home began with a look back a dozen years, to the massive defeat suffered by French forces at Dien Bien Phu, in what is now North Viet Nam.

He said the Communist regime clearly is not convinced that the United States is irrevocably committed to the support of South Viet Nam.

"They hope against hope that through international or domestic pressures our government can be forced off course," Taylor said. "They have not forgotten that the Vietminh won more in Paris than in Dien Bien Phu and believe that the Viet Cong may be as fortunate in Washington."

For, said Taylor, internal division sapped the will of France to fight her Indo-Chinese war.

Taylor added this assessment of the Communist view:

"They doubt the will of the American public to continue the conflict indefinitely."

Thant: Halt Bombing

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U. S. Secretary - General U Thant said yesterday he favors an end to U. S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

In a statement issued through a spokesman, he said he had no knowledge that North Viet Nam has put forward three basic requirements for taking part in Viet Nam peace negotiations, including a halt to U. S. bombing.

The statement was issued in commenting on a story in the New York Times which quoted highly placed sources as saying that continuing private diplomatic efforts had found out three basic requirements by Hanoi:

1. A new pause in the U. S. bombing at targets in North Viet Nam.

2. Indications by the United States that it has discontinued escalation of the ground war.

3. Assurance from the United States that the United States and South Viet Nam would accept representation of the National Liberation Front at peace negotiations.

China Has Bomb?

TOKYO (AP) — Red China may explode a third atomic device within a few months and test a hydrogen bomb by fall at the earliest, Japanese military experts reported yesterday.

They said the Chinese are trying to develop a three-ton atomic bomb that can be carried in their Iluyshin-28 light jet bombers.

In their report, the military men said that judging by the level of Chinese technology, Red China also may have an intercontinental ballistic missile already "within their reach."

They predicted that it would not be long before U. S. satellites would detect missile expriments undertaken by Red China.

The Chinese exploded their first atomic device Oct. 16, 1964. It was believed to have been about the size of the A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

The second test took place May 14, 1964. The Japanese believe it was a device of about five tons detonated in the air, either from a tower, a missile or an airplane

Peking's time-table on nuclear development is divided into four stages, the military experts said. They are:

1. Mass production of atomic bombs.

2. Scaling down the size of the bombs.

3. Development of hydrogen bombs.

4. Development of missiles.

Communist China has a vast deposit of uranium ore and the experts estimate it is producing 6,000 tons a day. Most of these deposits are believed to be in Sinkiang, the province in the remote northwest.

Experts said China is refining Uranium 235 at a plant in Lanchow in northwest China. If the coming nuclear test is successful, the Chinese will be capable of producing at least two atomic bombs a month, they added.

World's Largest Plane Crashes In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet TU114 the world's largest airliner, crashed yesterday on takeoff from Moscow's International Airport. Soviet sources said 48 of 70 persons aboard were killed.

It was the first known crash of a TU114, pride of the Soviet Air fleet. The plane can carry up to 220 passengers.

The plane was bound for Brazzaville, capital of the Congo Republic, and aboard were a number of Africans as well as a Soviet trade delegation.

The manager of a western airline office said the plane started its run for takeoff, failed to lift and crashed at the end of the runway.

From the nature of the injuries of one of the principal passengers, it appeared that there was an explosion.

The western official said cranes could be seen moving into the area, apparently to remove this wreckage. But he said the terminal lacked details of the accident.

People at the airport reported that snow plows had been working the runways nonstop before the takeoff, but that patches of ice may have remained.

Two Africans, looking dazed, emerged during the day from a living quarters block adjoining the terminal. The face of one was badly swollen.

They said they were Guineans and tried to discover what had happened to their baggage. The two were hustled away by airport personnel when a westerner tried to talk with them.

The Kremlin hospital confirmed that an important passenger, Vyacheslav Bashkirov, was being treated for burns. Bashkirov, chief of the Soviet air fleet's International Transport Administration, was going to hold talks with Congolese officials on regular flights of the TU114 to Brazzaville.

Tass said the causes of the accident are being investigated but gave no details of the crash nor say how many persons were killed.

The Soviet government withholds information about floods, fires, crashes or other disasters, which make bad publicity.

The first brief official confirmation of the TU114 mishap was not given until almost 20 hours after it happened, and then only when Non-Soviet sources had made the fact of a crash undeniable.

The plan was to make an 18-hour flight of 7,440 miles to Brazzaville, with stops at Conakry and Accra.

The TU114 is powered by four turbo-prop engines. It has a maximum speed of more than 500 miles an hour with a range of 5,500 miles. It has a wing span of 167 feet, is 177 feet long and has a height of slightly over 38 feet.

When the TU114 made its first appearance at the Paris Air Show in 1959, it was so huge that Le Bourget airport had no steps tall enough to reach the passenger door. There are at least 20 of the giants now in service, and they fly nonstop from Moscow to New Delhi and Havana.

By contrast, the Douglas DC8, one of the largest U. S. commercial airliners, has a wing span of 142 feet and is 150 feet long. Powered by four turbojet engines, it can carry up to 189 passengers. The DC8 and the similar Boeing 707 cost about $6 million. Cost of the TU114 never has been disclosed.

Cong Toll Mounts

SAIGON (AP)—Allied troops swelled the count of enemy dead in the two-week-old Operation White Wing to 1,028 yesterday. Among Viet Cong who perished were 37 of a 50-man band that attacked a U. S. Air Cavalry bivouac about down.

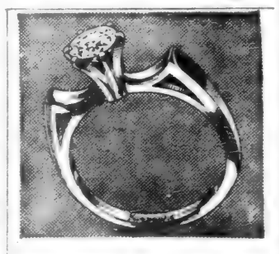
Briefing officers reported further air strikes against bridges and storage centers of Communist North Viet Nam. They said that, though the weather turned bad again, U. S. Navy and Air Force pilots flew 27 millions Wednesday, hitting again in the Dien Bien Phu, Dong Hoi and Vihn sectors.

Emphasis in the Honolulu summit conference on promotion of social and economic development of the South Vietnamese led to a new job for U. S. Deputy Ambassador William Porter. He was appointed to head all American aspects of the largely stalled rural pacification program.

The Vietnamese armed forces to pull many troops from offensive operations for pacification work and guard duty, the program has been largely confined to the five provinces around Saigon. The republic has 45 provinces.

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said in a statement:

"We are determined that this program for peace and progress shall be carried forward with all the energy and skill of a fully coordinated U. S. mission effort, always with full recognition that the basic task of nation building here belongs to the people of Viet Nam and to their governments."



A Wide Selection Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

135 East Franklin

942-1331

WANT ADS

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

FOR SALE: 1953 M. G Roadster. M. G.-A engine, runs good, clean, new top. 942-1471.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditiond 10' x 55' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR SALE: '61 METROPOLitan Must sell, $250. Great deal. Phone 929-5279.

A REASONABLE OFFER will make some student a proud owner of a 1965 Suzuki 55 cc. M-31. Excellent condition, low mileage. One owner. Call days 942-6610, nights 942-1280.

NEW STOCKS ARE IN – ALL RECORDS

All Labels New Releases 50% OFF REGULAR PRICES

FEBRUARY 18th

KEMP'S Franklin Street

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Friday Night Special

COMBINATION SEAFOOD PLATTER

Fried Haddock, Shrimp, Oyster, Scallop, Deviled Crab, Hush Puppies, French Fries, Cole Slaw, Lemon Wedge and Tartar Sauce $1.00

SNACK BAR

Special Anytime

Pizza – Spaghetti – Raviola – Hickory Smoked Barbecue

Fried Chicken – Sandwiches – Ala Cartes and Carry Outs.

OPEN DAILY EXCEPT SATURDAYS

The Popular Place to Meet, Snack or Dine

Charlotte Hosts North-South Doubleheader

Tar Babies Meet Techbabes 'The Second Time Around'

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

They say that "love is lovelier the second time around," and who knows, maybe it is.

But whether or not basketball success is better the second time around remains to be seen — and for the Tar Babies the answer will come tonight when they face off against Virginia Tech's frosh in Blacksburg.

The Goblets hit The Hill last Saturday with a fat 7-1 record, and were soundly done in by Carolina, which ran up a 23-point lead before winning by 86-74.

VPI Frosh Coach Charlie Moir felt, as did many UNC partisans, that the turning point in that game came when his talented 6-4 backliner, Chris Ellis, fouled out with 16 minutes still to be played. From that point on, the Tar Babies completely dominated play until UNC Coach Larry Brown emptied his bench with six minutes remaining.

Moir felt that if Ellis had avoided foul difficulty, his team would have made a much tighter game of it, and a VPI victory would not have been outside the realm of possibility.

Tonight Ellis and his Techbabes get another shot at Carolina's unbeaten frosh power—on their home court. And, incidentally, neither they nor their varsity brethren have been beaten there this year.

Ellis is the leading scorer for Tech, with a 17.8 average. Another tough man for the Babies to contend with is center Ken Talley, who was the high rebound man in last Saturday's contest as he pulled down 17. Talley's scoring mark is 15.2. Forward Stan Kerrick, VPI's leading scorer (16) in the first meeting, has a 17.3 per game quota.

Completing the starting outfit for Tech are guard W. R. Deskins (11.2) and forward Ron Wagner (12.4).

The Tar Baby standout in Saturday's match was 6 - 3 guard Dick Grubar, who whisked through UNC's offensive patterns for a personal scoring high of 27 points. Dickie hit 12-of-14 shots.

Rusty Clark, the Tar Babies' 6-11 center, has been a tough man to contend with all season, but Wednesday after practice, Coach Larry Brown remarked:

"Rusty had his best day ever today. He has started to do some things now that he just wasn't doing before. You saw the way he drove down the lane for those baskets. He's still improving, but even now, he's getting tougher every game — every day even."

Rusty has bettered 20 points in each of the past five games, and has been a double figures rebounder in all but three of the 13 contests to date. His team-leading scoring average is now 20.9.

The Tar Babies return to Carmichael Auditorium for their last home game of the season next Tuesday against Southwood College.

MELT THAT LARD

Are you a porter by profession? If not, why carry around extra baggage. The North Carolina Heart Association says that fat and good health don't mix. A good recipe for a longer, happier life is to keep your diet down. See your doctor if you are becoming overweight. A change upward in your weight can mean a change downward in your health and lifespan.

Ruffin Raiders Edge Ruffin Rebels Behind Harrington

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The Ruffin Raiders beat the Ruffin Rebels in intramural basketball on Wednesday, 59-55. Mike Harrington had 21 points and Dan Huges 18 for the Raiders. Bill Skeen scored 18 and Dave Bower 14 for the Rebels.

The Maverick C Goodguys slipped past the Maverick C Killers, 42-39. Barton Bridges had 10 points to pace the Goodguys while Weaver Kirkpatrick scored 10 for the Killers.

The Teague Totalers sneaked by the Avery Wapps, 46-45. Harris Prevost scored 18 points and Larry Smith added 15 for Teague while Bill Pittman had 18 for Avery. Teague led 26-24 at the half in the close game.

Fred Watts tossed in 23 points to pace the Parker Supporters to a 47-24 win over the Parker Possums. Wayne Killian had 11 and Gardner Artman 10 for the Supporters.

Jim Sanford and Colby Daughtery each tallied 20 points in the Teague Toughs' 54-37 victory over the Parker Pretzels. Mark Graham hit 12 for Parker.

Ehringhaus B-3 romped over Ehringhaus C-2, 67-37 behind Sheehan's 25 points. Horvat added 14, Carr 12 and Esher 11 for B-3. Jerry Bliss managed 13 points for the losing C-2's.

The Lewis Reds got 21 points from Dave Shearon in a 60-42 win over the Aycock Aardwolves. Wade Carter connected for 18 points and Butch Poplin 13 for the Reds. Banner scored 22 points for the Aardwolves.

John Liles fired in 20 points as Lewis White coasted past Stacy No. 2, 56-38. Jim Hough scored 10 points in a supporting role. For Stacy, Phillips was high man with 12 and Sherman had 10 more.

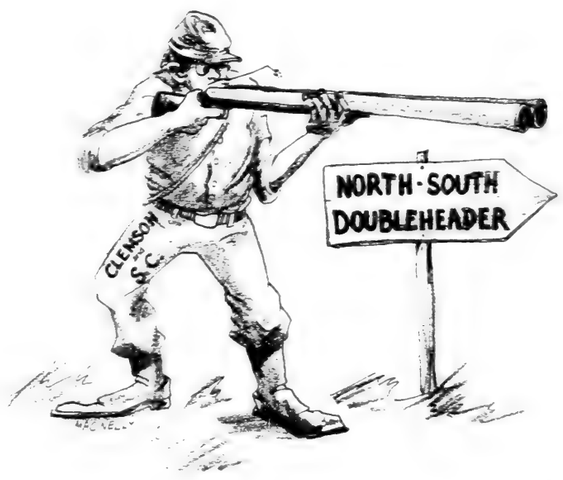
The Stacy Studs turned the tables on the Lewis Greys, 44-36. Jim Carpenter hit 14 points and Clem Medley 11 to lead the win. Mike Vannoy scored 11 and Dave Sherrit 10 for the Greys.

McPhaul's 21 points led the Graham Celts to a 47-37 decision over the Everett Pumas. Robertson assisted with 16. Earl Jenkins was the whole show for the Pumas, scoring 23 of his team's 37 points.

The Connor Animals humiliated the Alexander Punies, 55-16. Bill Field scored 18 points and Don Richards 12 for the Animals. The Punies, who make a habit of losing big, got 6 points from Nick Nichol.

Law III White trampled the Biochemistry Grads, 59-21. Ralph Ansell had 14 points, Robin Katz 12, Bill Abernathy 12 and Pete Tomlinson 11 to pace the Lawyers' balanced scoring attack.

Law Blue I downed the Statistics Grads, 54-33. DuBose had 12 points, Ivey 12 and Fuller 11 for Law Blue. Dowling scored 19 in a vain effort for the Stat Grads, as no one else hit over four points.



★★★

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

★★★

Tar Heels Drop; Lewis Still Tops

By GENE WHISNANT
DTH Sports Writer

The Tar Heels with three straight losses have dropped into fifth place in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings with a 5-5 record but are only one game out of second place.

However, Carolina's Bob Lewis is far ahead in the Conference scoring race with a 28.6 average on 572 points in 20 games.

In the league race, Duke has already clinched at least a tie for first place and a win against Maryland at College Park, Saturday afternoon on regional television would lock up first place for the Blue Devils.

Currently, N. C. State and Clemson are tied for second place with 6-4 conference records. Maryland is in fourth place with a 6-5 record.

ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE

Team	Conf. W	Conf. L	Ov.All W	Ov.All L
Duke	10	1	18	2
N. C. State	6	4	12	7
Clemson	6	4	12	7
Maryland	6	5	13	8
UNC	5	5	12	8
USC	3	7	9	9
Wake Forest	3	8	7	14
Virginia	3	8	5	12

The Leading Scorers:

Player, Sch.	Games	Pts.	Avg.
Lewis, UNC	20	572	28.6
Long, W.F.	20	486	24.3
Leonard, W.F.	20	453	22.7
Miller, UNC	20	451	22.6
Connelly, Va.	16	332	20.7
Verga, Duke	18	352	19.6
Marin, Duke	19	359	18.9
Helms, Clem.	18	335	18.6
Ward, Md.	20	349	17.4
Sut'land, Clem.	17	295	17.4
Coker NCS	18	305	16.9
McMillen, Md.	20	329	16.4
Harlicka, S.C.	17	256	15.1
Biedenbach, NCS	18	265	14.7
Lewis, Duke	19	277	14.6
Katos, Va.	15	220	14.6
Boshart, W.F.	20	285	14.3
Standard, S.C.	17	240	14.1
Mattocks, NCS	18	246	13.6
Mahaffey, Clem.	18	244	13.6
Salvadori, S.C.	17	228	13.4
Vacendak, Duke	18	232	12.9

Team Scoring:

Team	Off. Avg.	Def. Avg.
Duke	88.1	74.0
North Carolina	85.7	76.5
Wake Forest	83.0	90.1
N. C. State	77.0	72.9
Clemson	76.4	73.3
Virginia	74.8	81.1
Maryland	72.8	68.6
South Carolina	67.6	68.7

Team Shooting:

Team	Pct.	Pct.
North Carolina	.529	.721
Duke	.496	.728
Maryland	.462	.663
N. C. State	.460	.723
Wake Forest	.459	.700
Clemson	.456	.679
South Carolina	.432	.665
Virginia	.430	.696

Wake Forest's Paul Long is second place in the scoring race with a 24.3 average and teammate Bob Leonard is in third place with a 22.7 average.

UNC's sophomore star, Larry Miller is in fourth place with a 22.6 average. Miller has 451 points in 20 games compared with 453 in 20 games for Leonard.

Virginia's Jim Connelly is in fifth place with the only other average above 20 at 20.7.

Carolina has the conference top field goal shooting average with a 52.9% accuracy. Duke is in second place with a 46.9% accuracy.

In team scoring, the Blue Devils are first with a 88.1 average per game and the Tar Heels are second with 85.7.

Duke, also, has the leading foul shooting average at 72.8%. N. C. State is second with a 72.3 %and Carolina is third at 72.1%.

The strength of the Atlantic Coast Conference is evident in the fact that only two teams have over-all losing records, Wake Forest with 7-14 and Virginia at 5-12.

Atlantic Coast Conference teams have a 46-25 record against non-conference teams.

Few Tickets Remain

No more than 200-250 tickets remain for tonight's North-South Doubleheader in the Charlotte Coliseum.

Saturday night's games are a sell-out.

The Tar Heels hit Clemson at 9 p.m. tonight with N. C. State playing South Carolina in the 7:30 game.

CAROL GALLANT, DTH Staff Writer and secretary, will offer Tar Heel sports fans a completely new realm of athletic coverage in Tuesday's Tar Heel. Carol will travel to Charlotte's Coliseum for Friday and Saturday night's North-South Doubleheader and report the "feminine" outlook on college basketball.

UNC Hits Tigers: State Plays USC

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

The South invades the North tonight in the Charlotte Coliseum as the Tigers of Clemson and the Gamecocks of South Carolina battle UNC and N. C. State in the opening round of the North-South Doubleheader.

South Carolina battles N. C. State in the 7:30 opener tonight. The Tar Heels hit Clemson in the 9 o'clock contest.

Saturday night, the four clubs exchange opponents with N. C. State playing Clemson at 7:30 and UNC tangling with South Carolina at 9 o'clock.

The doubleheader will match three of the top teams in the ACC. Clemson is currently tied with N. C. State for second place in the conference with a 6-4 record. Both the Tigers and the Wolfpack have won 12 of 19 games overall this season.

The Tar Heels who are in fifth place in the conference with a 5-5 record will be seeking to break a three-game losing streak. Consecutive losses to New York University, VPI and N. C. State have dropped the Tar Heel overall record to 12 wins and eight defeats.

The Gamecocks of South Carolina is the "bottom" club in the Doubleheader. The Gamecocks have managed only three wins in 10 ACC games although they have split 18 decisions overall.

But even the Gamecocks have some claim to fame. They are the only ACC club with a victory over the Duke Blue Devils —currently pacing the conference with a 10-1 record and ranking second in the nation in the latest wire service polls.

The Gamecocks defeated the Blue Devils 73-71 in the first meeting between the two clubs —then gave Duke quite another scare before falling 41-38 in their second meeting.

The Tar Heels will be seeking revenge against the Clemson Tigers in the 9 o'clock meeting tonight. Clemson defeated UNC 84-74 in the season opener for the Tar Heels.

But the Tar Heels might be hard pressed to gain that revenge. Clemson appears ready to have their finest season in ACC history.

Coach Bobby Roberts has seen his junior-senior dominated club win eight of its last 10 games to stand on the brink of Clemson's best cage year since the 1952-53 club registered a 17-7 record. The 13-12 mark two years ago was the Tigers' first winning season in the past decade and one victory in their final five games will insure no worse that a breakeven year.

Roberts calls North Carolina a "vastly improved ball club" over the one beaten in the opening game of the season at Clemson. He calls Larry Miller and Bob Lewis the "best all-round duo in the conference" when it comes to scoring, rebounding and play making.

But Roberts is quick to say "there isn't a single Tar Heel who can be left open. They can all shoot" he says "and if you pay too much attention to one —another one is going to be laying it up for two."

Lewis and Miller of course lead the Tar Heels in scoring. Lewis leads the ACC in scoring also with a 28.6 average. Miller is in fourth place with a 22.6 average—one-tenth of a point behind third-place Bob Leonard of Wake Forest.

No other Tar Heel performer is averaging in double figures —although Tom Gauntlett and Bob Bennett are close. Gauntlett is averaging 9.8 points per game while Bennett is averaging 8.3.

Miller, Lewis and Bennett pace the Tar Heel in the rebounding department. Miller averages 9.9 rebounds per game; Lewis, 5.5; and Bennett, 6.5.

Cassius Clay Now Subject To Draft Call

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — World Heavyweight Boxing Champion Cassius Clay's draft status was changed to 1-A yesterday, making him immediately eligible for military service.

Clay, 24, previously had been classified 1-Y. He had been deferred from military service after failing mental aptitude sections of his examinations.

Clay's attorney, Edward W. Jacko Jr., of New York, declined to say whether the reclassification would be appealed. Local board 47 deliberated for about two hours after hearing Jacko's tesimony, before making the expected reclassification.

The reclassification was made under new, lower qualifications which were established to make more men eligible for the increased draft.

Jacko said he has not determined any grounds for an appeal.

"I want to keep in confidence anything said before the board," he said.

If the decision is appealed, it would be heard by the western judicial circuit selective service appeal board in Louisville.

Unanimous decision by the appeal board is final, but the classification could be appealed to Washington on a split decision.

Clay has contracted for a championship fight with Ernie Terrell in Chicago on March 29.

Parker Brings Ranking To Lacrosse

By JIM FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

When Jeff Parker came to Carolina, a varsity Lacrosse team didn't even exist. Now, four years later, Carolina rates among the top twenty in the nation in this sport and last season Parker was named third team All-America as well as first-string All-Conference.

"The only thing that we had at first was a lacrosse club," said Jeff. "But we had a great number of boys who were interested in playing and who had experience so we started playing freshman teams from other schools that year.

"The next year, Coach Steele (Connie) got us varsity recognition and became our coach. At first, he knew nothing at all about the game, but he read books, studied films and viewed games day and night until he knew the game backwards and forwards.

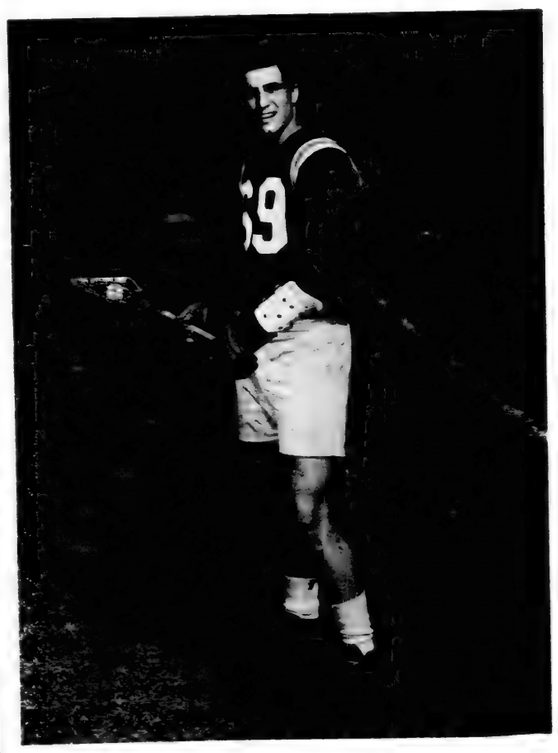
"We didn't have a real good record that year and won only one game, but we were in all of them right to the end."

Last year, the team lost only two games, and Jeff was the leading scorer with 27 goals in seven games. His season high was in a losing effort against Virginia when he scored seven goals. The following week in a 14-2 trouncing of Hartwick Jeff had six more goals.

Jeff has real high hopes for even greater sudcess for this year's team. "We ought to have a real good season this year," he said. "We (the team) feel like there isn't any reason for us not being able to go undefeated. We are especially looking forward to the Virginia and Maryland games because these are the two big games for us."

Coach Steele had the following to say about Jeff: "Jeff is a real outstanding player, and I think that in the past two years he has really proven his ability. It was quite an accomplishment for him to make All - America last year considering that it was only our second year of varsity competition. He is a great team player and very unselfish, and everyone on the team respect him a great deal."

Jeff plays attack on the team and describes the game as "fast and rugged." "The game is kind of a combination of football and basketball," he said, "and anyone that likes to watch either of these two sports will find it easy to like lacrosse."



JEFF PARKER

Quality Paperbacks at Low Prices

For class requirements, for background reading — but then in our Old Book Corner at just about half the new book price.

The Intimate Bookshop

THIS WEEK'S
Bargains at the Intimate

- ART BOOKS Big, beautiful, colorful books for the Escofier in the great painters. Mostly planned as Christmas Gifts, to sell at $25.00 or more, now cut to $14.95.
- COOK BOOKS Big, handsome, colorful books for the Escofier n your kitchen. A wonderful investment to begin with, but a must at their new, low prices.
- NATURE BOOKS Books on gardening, on nature, and a dilly on Beetles all designed as handsome gift volumes, and all now price down where you and I can afford 'em.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

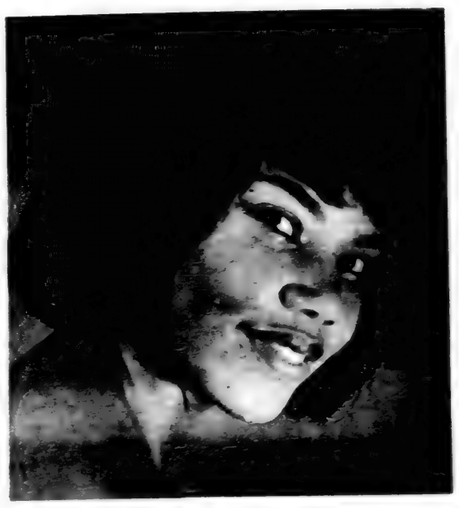
The Fabulous
THE DAVE BRUBECK QUARTET
WITH PAUL DESMOND
Presented by the Duke Student Union

SEE and HEAR
This Sensational
Jazz Group
Friday, Feb. 18
8:30 P.M.
Duke Indoor Stadium
Durham, N. C.
Tickets $2.00 at the door.

QUIK FOOD MART
(Near the Main Intersection of Town — A Stone's Throw from the Zoom-Zoom)
CARTON CIGARETTES $1.88
BEER CHAMPAGNE WINE

Short-Sleeve
BANLON SHIRTS
Navy, maize, tan, black, green, lt. blue, red, white.
In All Sizes.
Only $3.00
Mill Outlet Sales Room
Located on East Franklin Street
Upstairs Over Sutton's Drug Store

OPERA LOVERS



You are cordially invited to attend a concert by Miss Gwendolin Sims, soprano, winner of the "Lilli Lehmann Medal," Salzburg, to be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in The Graham Memorial Lounge. The concert is free and open to the public.

Here are today's blood donors:

David W. Saum, William P. Robinson, Robert S. Beckett, Michael G. Benton, Cynthia Graham, Scott M. Castleberry, William D. Kouba, J. C. Holding, David W. Pearsall Jr., Carolyn A. Welch,

Glenn W. Rollins, Elizabeth Henderson, John C. Beane, Linda F. Sweatt, Lucy Grasty, Vida Michaela Reedy, Marshall W. Hass, J. Paul Beyer, Thomas W. Hanaway, Harold J. Weiler, III,

Jan Jelmert Jorgesen, Charles B. Walter, William F. Simpson, Frederick D. Vastine, Edward H. Stoddard, Elliot Dahan, George Wesley Troxley, Paul J .McQuade, Kenneth Brown, James N. Fowler,

Charles R. Kline Jr., Edward E. Crews, Charles B. Church, George M. Dillehay, Dick Sayre, Alfred Truman Parmele. Bette Kreiser, Kenneth Alton Atkins. Charles B. Spivey, Panthea Anne Twitty.

Elizabeth Daisy Hepler, Anne Elizabeth Belcher, Brian F. McIntosh, James R. Queen Jr., James H. Hamm, Robert B. Newlin, E. Elgar Macy, David M. Herring, Henry C. Dozier, Peter Whalen,

Donald A. Streater, Joe L. Harrell, John Joseph Kispert Joe A. Jackson, Lee Henry, Wright Seaborn, Philip H. Logan, Nicholas Holland, Stephen H. Fogarty, James Brewer,

Locke M. Newlin, Warren C. Willig, Tommy W. Jarrett, Alan R. Eissle, Ann Walston, Elizabeth A. Britt, Hoyt Ray Evans Jr., Kennth H. Martin, Phillip Baddour, Fred S. Clark,

Philip P. Phipps, David James Howell, James Cary Alsobrook, Courtenay Williams, John D. Fowler Jr., William S. Blackwood, Roger W. Norman, Lee M. Limbert, Mary Limbert, June Crellin,

Richard C. Wilson, Roger Stables, Donald W. Reinfurt, Ray Bunton, Fredrick E. Toms, Bryan W. Smithwick, John H. Clark, William E. Byrd, Hubert E. Seymour, Douglas D. Williams,

Alan Weil, Raymond A. Watson Jr., Marina Harris, Daria Morgan, Chris C. Ferguson, Dorothy E. Creem, Gray Bass, David K. Parrish, John H. Menges, Orie D. King Jr.,

David B. Hogue, Daniel S. Shea, Jimmie C. Brown, Sammy C. Going, Jerry W. Holladay, Edwin S. Roberson, Samuel G. Grimes, Richard T. B. Stone, Peter M. Cummings, Thomas A. Morrow,

Charles Dassie, Charles Hoggard, Alexa I. Draxler, Judy A. Bartlett, Elizabeth Anderson Taylor, Gail Smathers Austin, William Wolf Rouzer, George Saleeby, Julia Ann Falconer,

Benjamin Loyall Taylor Jr., Robert Beck Jr., Marion D. Sims, Phillip L. Oldham, Gene L. Rector, Elisabeth Stuckey Rives, Charles J. Murray, Curtis Andrew Twiddy Jr., Timothy Knowlton, John Joseph Hackney,

Jack Gary Leader, Bruce Goldstein, Joe H. Davis, John A. Blackwelder, Hugh Blackwell, Leo Finkelstein Jr., Clifford C. Wester Jr., Travis Edgak Brackett Jr., Charles S. Day, Frederick H. Cryer,

Ray Pate Linville, William W. Moore Jr., Paul Leonard Powell Jr., Terry E. Verduin, John W. Shaw, Katherine B. Campbell, James Randall Hiner, William F. Ainsley, Robert Bruce Wright,

Charles R Evans Jr., Walter C. Worsham, Faith U. Fogle, David L. Rowe, Christine J. Garden, Thomas E. Reynolds,

Susan M. Oldham, Williams J. White, James D. Little, Franklin Woodward, Robert Y. Neely, John D. Yount, R. H. Rosefield, Wilburne W. Turner, Robert M. Arndt, Donald F. Kemlein,

Claire J. Gilstad, Agness A. Wiggins, Douglas W . Morgan, Robert J. Nuckolls, Fred F. Behnson, David B. Whitehill, Susan D. McFarland, Tenney R. Farmer, John Flowers, Danny R. Leigh,

Susan M. Lenfesty. David G. Frey, Ken Giles, Charles W. Thompson. John A. Cornell, Raymond T. Nickens, David B. Sentelle, Jan Crawford, Alvin G. Chesson, Michael B. Terry, Jim M. Parrott, James H. Addison, Larry R. Clark, Douglas F. Evans, John Gernert, David Rothman, Larry W. Jenkins, James W. Coghill, Hugh E. Partin, Craig M. Wardlaw,

Joseph A. Goldenberg, Jane F. Feierabend, Richard E. Irving, William B. Hooks, Roger W. Smith, David William Long, Leslie J. Haas, Wendell Sigmon J. Troy Smith, John U. McManus.

William H. Burbage, Robert McGaw, Betsy J. Price, Katherine A. Bryce, Paul V. Mowerg, Richard F. Overcash, John W. Crosey. David P. Courts, Norman G. Lieberman, Michael P. Klaff,

Cameron L. Smith, Phillip Coleman, Hubert J. Parrott. Phillip L. Howell, Lacy H. Reaves, Samuel D. Wyman Jr., Mark Campbell, Robert S. Neal, Allan Barkley, Terry K. Robinson,

Linda M. Tittle, James Edward Creech, Jack J. Pollard, Chet W. Arnold, Cyrus McNeill Baker, John A. McKeel, Sterling Eugene Phillips Jr, George K. Thompson, Larry E. Pergerson, Dennis R. Brandon, Andi J. Stein, William Hatch, Joel D. Morrisett, J. E. McDonald, Jerry L. Price, Paul Dickson, III, Arthur F. Jacobsen, John O'Neill, Susan L. Scott.

Susan M. Oldham, Williams J. White, James D. Little, Franklin Woodward, Robert Y. Neely, John D. Yount, R. H. Rosefield, Wilburne W. Turner, Robert M. Arndt, Donald F. Kemlein.

Claire J. Gilstad, Agness A. Wiggins, Douglas W. Morgan, Robert J. Nuckolls, Fred F. Behnson David B. Whitehill, Susan D. McFarland, Tenney R. Farmer, John Flowers, Danny R. Leigh

Susan M. Lenfesty, David G. Frey Ken Giles. Charles W. Thompson, John A. Cornell, Raymond T. Nickens, David B. Sentelle, Jan Crawford, Alvin G. Chesson, Michael B. Terry

Douglas L. Boynton Michael R. Owens John Leonard Robert Gaston Dock Adams Kenneth J. Galbraith Mark Loftin Allison Graham Allen Michael D. Ishman Michael R. Johnson Charles W. Sensenbach

Albert L. Ellis Tilden W. Bridges Meredith A. Crimmins Joe Pinson Elizabeth Jones Mike Zimmerman Gary P. Hill Leslie G. Collins Joel B. Kaylor Edith F. Borie

John H. Hanan Hampton C. Hager Michael C. Krug Craig Katzstephen J. Gassman Harold C. Gotoff Nancy Thompson Dana W. Eddings John Boulware. Russell P. Field Lock T. Clifford Thomas Krones Norman G. Overcash Peter S. Kipson Paul Feldman Lloyd Kerley Larry E. Butler Tony Greenowod Ken S. Lueders Julianne Larson.

Yesterday's Honor Roll

Mike Higgins, Terry D. Ennis, Sam T. Camp, Mayada L. Kisier, Victor E. Ruehl, III, Joan Archer, Charles L. Phipps, Walter W. Schell, Golbert M. Cofer, Joe E. Lyons,

John B. Hammett, Gayle Sharon Garrison, John L. Murchison, Charles A. Carr Jr., Robert A. Pippin, Emily Feagin, William E. Riggan, Robert H. Lowery, Dale Norris Ford, William T. Davis,

Edwin B. Garrison, Jim Hoppe, Elisha H. Bunting, Ricky Shrum, Ronald G. B. White,

John W. Springer, Leonard Thomas Roberts, Joe H. Crump, George D. Martin, Stan Lewis, Albert H. Scott, Ralph B. Strickling, Joe Churchill, Morgan C Mitchell, Marg E Coker,

Frank A. Hall Edward F. Boyette, Thomas H. Guerry, James M. Mndelson,

Douglas L. Boynton, Michael R. Owens, John Leonard, Robert Gaston. Dock Adams, Kenneth J. Galbraith, Mark Loftin, Allison Graham Allen, Michael D. Ishman, Michael R. Johnson, Charles W. Sensenbach,

Albert L. Ellis, Tilden W. Bridges, Meredith A. Crimmins, Joe Pinson, Elizabeth Jones, Mike Zimmerman, Gary P. Hill, Leslie G. Collins, Joel B. Kaylor, Edith F. Borie,

John H. Hanan, Hampton C. Hager, Michael C. Krug, Craig Katz, Steph. J. Gassman, Harold C. Gotoff. Nancy Thompson, Dana W. Eddings, John Boulware. Russell P. Field, Lock T. Clifford, Thomas Krones, Norman G. Overcash, Peter S. Kipson, Paul Feldman, Lloyd Kerley, Larry E. Butler, Tony Greenowod, Ken S. Lueders, Julianne Larson.

Dollar Day Sale

Don't Dare Miss Any of These Special Values

Suits		Sport Coats
100.00	NOW 66.66	69.50	NOW 46.37
89.95	NOW 59.98	65.00	NOW 43.34
85.00	NOW 56.67	59.50	NOW 39.98
75.00	NOW 49.99	55.00	NOW 36.67
69.50	NOW 46.37	50.00	NOW 34.34
65.00	NOW 43.34	45.00	NOW 30.00
59.95	NOW 39.98	39.95	NOW 29.95
		35.00	NOW 26.00

All Famous Brands Included in this Sale

Special Group Dress Shirts NOW 1.99 Values to 6.50

Shirts Reg. 6.50 NOW 2.99

ONE GROUP OF GARTER LENGTH SOCKS Now 99c

Sweaters		Fall Slacks
12.95	NOW 8.67	15.95	NOW 11.96
14.95	NOW 9.97	16.95	NOW 12.71
15.95	NOW 10.68	17.95	NOW 13.46
16.95	NOW 11.35	18.95	NOW 14.21
25.95	NOW 17.58	19.95	NOW 14.95
29.95	NOW 22.46	23.95	NOW 17.95
39.50	NOW 26.47

Varsity Men's Wear
"Clothiers of Distinction"
147 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-6610
Alterations Extra

Milton's February Frogstrangler

A Real Andy Griffith "Mount Airy Monsoon" chock full of the best deals on the choicest items—it will even match a swingin' "Keep Kemp's Green Deal." The greatest deal going since Brooks Bros. got their long handles out for the gold rush of 1849—617 of our fabulous M-2 roll button-down shirts with finest impeccable single needle tailoring boasting the only matched stripes in captivity—regularly to $8.95, have a ball at a bagatelle of $2.99.

The black sheep got away, thank God, but those that were caught were just right for the finest shetland sweaters in the space age—McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland—$16.95, v-necks to $12.99 and $21.95 cardigans to a mere $14.99.

Sport coats used to be for Victorian cats like Diamond Jim Brady but in our age of Old School, you need only the desire to be sharp and look sharp and Milton's make this entirely possible with group of sport coats formerly to $50.00 at Mt. Airy Monsoon of $29.99.

So even if it's 110 in the shade, you've got to swing to Milton's this weekend . . .

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

Carolina Campus Capers

The 1966 Tri Delta Scholarship Competition has begun. Two scholarships are to be awarded—each $150. The recipients of these scholarships will be eligible for competition for a $1,000 National Award. The deadline for application is Feb. 26. The sorority's scholarship program is an international service, irrespective of fraternity affiliation. All women students of UNC are eligible to apply for the scholarship. Applications may be obtained from the Student Aid Office.

The Hillel Speaker Forum presents Mr. William Geer of the Department of History at North Carolina, who will speak on "The Moral Alternatives to War" at 8 p.m. following Friday night services at 7 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Students wishing interviews or information about the Peace Corps should contact Lynda Sanderford at 105 Y-Court between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. now through the end of the week. A staff of returned Peace Corps Volunteers will be on hand to explain any phase of the Corps to you.

SATURDAY

Chapel Hill High School will have a pancake sale 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. or later if necessary. Serving at school cafeteria, next to Granville Hall. All pancakes, sausage and coffee you can eat for $1. Milk extra. Children under 12, 50 cents. Tickets at the door.

COMING SOON

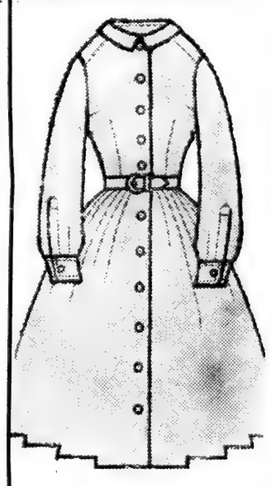
The Carolina Political Union will meet Sunday Night, 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. Acting Chancellor Sitterson will address the group on "University Speaker Policies and the North Carolina Political Climate." Members only for this meeting please.

The NSA Campus Committee will have a mandatory meeting Monday, Feb. 21, at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker III. All members please be present and on time.

The Officers and Executive Committee of the Order of the Old Well will have a very important meeting in the Grail Room, Wed., Feb. 23 at 3 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Two students won study lamps as a result of their participation in a psych experiment this summer on concept formation. They are Micky L. Hutchins and Ilah M. Murray.



All our swingin' deals aren't limited to the "stronger" sex—hear ye, hear ye, hear ye—Aunt Bessie is tired of knitting those cardigans and the sheep are running too fast to catch the right colours, so get with it and get a devasting shetland sweater and pick up a matching skirt while you're at it — it only hurts for a little while—each regularly $15.95, choice selections now at $12.99

It pays to be little—if you don't believe it, take a gander at the corduroy shirtwaists regularly to $20.00 at Frogstrangler of $2.99—for your lucky 21.

We're stuck with 10 pairs of Black match wool tartan flats made by Carmelettes, regularly $20, won't you bail us out at ..... $.99?

Want something different—take a gander at our British Moderns—all at half price.

Shifts—shifts—shifts — the demure sophisticated rag — all at a Frogstrangler deal—plenty at a gold savings of one half.

This is but a mere teaser of all the goodies that make up the wonderful world of Lady Milton.

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA

DOLLAR DAYS

at

The HUB of Chapel Hill

Thursday — Friday — Saturday

Save During Dollar Days

3 Big Days of the greatest savings of the year. All items have been drastically reduced for this event.

DRESS SHIRTS — Large group traditional long & short sleeve dress shirts. Brand names that you are sure to know. Values to 5.95. Dollar Days Special. 99c

SOCKS — A special treat for this big event. A large group of socks Ban-Lon included. Don't miss these Dollar Days Specials. 77c

SPORT COATS — Just in time for the warm weather ahead. Large group of sport coats in stripes and plaids, and solids in the ever popular dacron blends. Values to $35.00. Dollar Days money savers . . . $10.00

SPORT SHIRTS — A large group of sport shirts at a give-a-way price for Dollar Days. Buy several at . . . 99c

CORDUROY PANTS — Our complete stock of corduroy pants reduced for this special sale. Values to 6.95. Dollar Days Special . . . $3.99

LADIES-WEAR — Entire stock ladies wear—including coats, dresses, blouses, skirts & accessories. Dollar Days Special. ½ Price

The HUB of Chapel Hill
103 EAST FRANKLIN STREET

$DOLLAR $ DAY $ SALE $

Friday and Saturday at KoKo's

Reg. 4.00 & 6.00 SLIPS 2.75 & 3.50	Reg. 6.00 GOWNS 3.50
Reg. 12.95 to 24.95 ROBES 6.95 up	Reg. to 12.95 Skirts, Slacks, And Sweaters 4.95 up

Terrific Reductions On Many Other Items

BRAS GIRDLES GLOVES KNEE SOCKS PAJAMAS

KoKo's Lingerie
Eastgate Shopping Center

Dollar Day Sale at J. B. Robbins

Group— Skirts & Slacks 5.00 Values to 17.95	All Fall & Winter Sweaters ½ Price	GROUP—BLOUSES 2.00 Values to 5.98 GROUP—BLOUSES 3.00
Group LINGERIE ½ Price	Large Group— Dresses—5.00 Values to 17.95 Large Group— Dresses—10.00 Values to 25.95	All— Atlantic & Leeds LUGGAGE 20% Off Reg. Price

ALLOWANCE OF $1.00
On Purchases of $10.00 and Every Multiple of $10.00.
This Allowance on All New and Advance Spring Merchandise
THURSDAY — FRIDAY — SATURDAY

Our Staff Stands Ready For
The Greatest
Dollar Day Sale
Of All
REDUCTIONS FROM
30% to 75%
That will make you most happy you came by.

Sale Commences Thursday Morning At 9:00 Sharp.

UPSTAIRS and DOWNSTAIRS

Town & Campus

Reference Desk
Wilson Library
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Bloody Mary Weekend

The Daily Tar Heel

Ramsey Lewis Trio Tonight

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 98 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Frank Graham Says Gag Serves No Useful Purpose

GREENSBORO (AP) — Dr. Frank P. Graham, a former president of the Consolidated University, said Friday speaker consorship on college campuses does not serve a useful educational purpose.

"Such a policy," Graham said, "overrates the meaning, values and powers of communism or fascism in a free society," and "underrates the intelligence, loyalties and responsibilities of students and teachers in a free university."

Graham's remarks, apparently aimed at North Carolina's amended Speaker Ban Law, came during the observance of the 75th anniversary of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The law, passed by the 1963 General Assembly, prohibited Communists and 5th Amendment pleaders from speaking on state-owned college campuses. A special session of the General Assembly in November amended the law, returning to the college trustees the power to decide who should and shouldn't speak on the campuses.

FRANK PORTER GRAHAM

The present controversy over the law—its first test since it was amended—arose two weeks ago when the trustees executive committee of the University denied Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson permission to speak on the Chapel Hill campus.

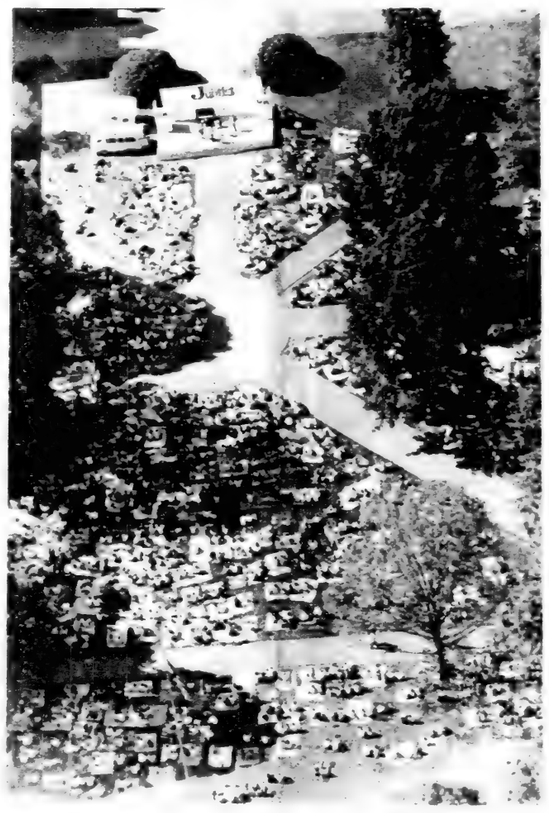
"It is not a wise policy to build up the idea . . . that the Communist view is so powerful that is will outweigh all other views persented in the university community," Graham said.

Graham, who is now a United Nations mediator, said, "In Chapel Hill for example, the present storm center, there are hundreds of teachers who are both anti-Communist and anti-Fascist, and . . . over 12,000 anti-Communist and anti-Fascist students."

The former U. S. Senator said, "a policy for the censorship of ideas in the American free market of ideas would not serve a real democratic educational purpose."

Graham said those who ask university leaders to accept a policy they believe is wrong "for the sake of gaining the world are asking all out state colleges and universities to sell their souls, with the result in the long run being they lose both their souls and the world."

North Carolina, Graham said, "must not be the only state which prohibits open forums in violation of the Bill of Rights."



THIS IS WHAT last year's Jubilee looked like from above. Photographer Jock Lauterer took the unusual shot.

Singers, Musicians Chosen For Jubilee

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

Jubilee this spring will feature the Bitter End Singers; David, Della Rosa and Brooks; Jay and the Americans; Al Hirt; and Charlie Byrd.

Jubilee activities will be held in Polk Place again this year on April 29, 30 and May 1.

The Bitter End Singers, a well-known five-member folk group, will appear April 29 at 7 p.m. They have just finished an engagement at the Americana with Woody Allen.

The festivities will continue April 30 at 3 p.m. with the spotlight being shared by two singing groups.

David, della Rosa and Brooks received a standing ovation at their recent concert at N. C. State. They are "clean-cut" college students who sing every type of music.

Jay and the Americans will also appear at the concert that afternoon. The seven-member folk group offers a kind of jubilent entertainment that is always in great demand on college campuses.

The fabulous Al Hirt and his band will perform at 7 p.m., April 30.

Charlie Byrd, the famous jazz guitarist, will appear May 1 at 3 p.m. He has been credited with making the Bossa Nova a popular jazz media.

Howard D. Henry, head of Graham Memorial, said that the performances at night will begin at 7 p.m. (an hour earlier than last year) so that people will have plenty of time for late dinners or combo parties after the performances.

Henry said, "I.D. cards will admit any student and his (her) date. The student will also be able to secure tickets for another couple by signing a statement of responsibility for the actions of the other couple."

Carolina gentlemen planning to invite girls from off campus should begin looking for approved places for them to spend the night. The most popular homes will soon be filled.

It is expected that Carolina coeds will receive late permission for Jubilee activities as in the past years.

The weekend will include outside combo parties to be held immediately after the performances in the Carr Dormitory parking lot beside Bynum Hall.

The Tassels Combo will play Friday night. Saturday night's party will feature Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs.

Free flicks will be shown on both nights, possibly outdoors. Charade starring Audrey Hepburn and Cary Grant will be shown one night. The other free flick has not yet been confirmed.

The Daily Tar Heel Wins ACP All-American Award

The Daily Tar Heel has won an All-American Honor Rating, the highest award given by the Associated Collegiate Press newspaper critical service.

The award was based on analysis of each issue of the DTH published last semester. Judges were professional newsmen or persons with extensive backgrounds in publications work.

News coverage, content, typography and photography were judged on a point basis. The DTH received 3,820 total points, 120 more than the minimum score required for the All-American rating.

Highest scores went to use of news sources, news feature balance, editorials and photography. Copyreading, editorial page features and make-up and sports coverage received the lowest ratings, although they were all in the "good" or "very good" category.

All college newspapers judgd by the critical service are rated All-American, first class, second class, third class or fourth class. Figures on the number of papers which received All-American awards will be available after the judging is finished, probably next month.

The ACP is associated with the School of Journalism at the University of Minnesota.

Vote Is Slated On Amendment

UNC students will vote Tuesday on a proposed constitutional amendment to elect the student body president and vice president on a single ticket, rather than on individual tickets as in the past.

The change in chairman of the elections board will have no effect on the vote. John Wilborne, of DKE, was named temporary chairman to replace Al Tyndall who resigned this week because of academic reasons.

No permanent chairman was named because Student Legislature did not meet this week. It does not meet during Rush.

If a majority of students vote to approve the amendment, the election for next year's student government officers scheduled for March 22 will be conducted under the amended constitution.

The proposed amendment has been endorsed by a majority of student government officers, including both President Paul Dickson and Vice President Britt Gordon. It passed Student Legislature by the 2-3 vote necessary to present it to the student body.

The two immediate past-presidents of the student body, Bob Spearman and Mike Lawler have announced their support for the amendment.

TV Panel Queries Leaders

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Student Body President Paul Dickson and Bob Powell, chairman of the Student Government State Affairs Committee, were on television yesterday to explain the position of the UNC students in connection with the Herbert Aptheker decision.

Dickson and Powell were questioned by three newsmen for 30 minutes on the program "Campus Issues."

Bob Morse of WSOC-TV of Charlotte, Gibson Prather, managing editor of the Fayetteville Observer, and Perry Young of the Raleigh News & Observer, made up the panel of newsmen.

The questions centered around the invitation of Aptheker and the decision of the UNC board of trustees.

The program had been arranged to present and explain fully the student position on the entire controversy, according to Powell.

On the program he told newsmen that the general opinion of students, citing the Daily Tar Heel poll and the opinion expressed in the recent student body meeting, is that Aptheker should be allowed to speak here.

When asked what the student government plans to do if Aptheker is not allowed to speak by the trustees, he said, "Until the trustees approve specific speaker regulations, it's impossible for us to make any definite plans. We have a great deal of faith that they will do what is in the best interst of the University. I hope we are not disappointed."

Powell said the student body politically could be classified as "moderately conservative." A newsman commented that if the students are relatively conservative, then why is not a great deal of opposition to letting Aptheker speak here.

"The question of his right to speak," Powell said, "has not developed into a liberal conservative question. It is true, that some students don't feel that his appearance would serve an educational purpose. But these students would be the first to attack Aptheker with questions if he were allowed to speak."

Concerning Gov. Moore's intervention into the Aptheker invitation Dickson said, "To a certain extent it is political interference with the education process. But we must keep in mind that Gov. Moore is chairman of the board of trustees. We, of course, have a difference of opinion with Gov. Moore on this issue but his position certainly entitles him to speak out in this matter."

There were also comments concerning the argument that if the Communists are being fought in Viet Nam then why allow them a platform in North Carolina.

Dickson commented, "From my 10 - month experience in Viet Nam, I'm convinced that we need to know more about communism in all of its forms if we are to effectively fight it."

Powell added, "Our experience with speakers like Dr. Aptheker has proved that college students can quickly see through the weaknesses of such a philosophy and can push a speaker like him into a corner with some intelligent questions."

Dickson was asked if he thought college students will be misled by a communist speaker if one does speak on campus.

"Absolutely not," Dickson said. "I have the utmost confidence in the maturity and intellectual preception of today's college students. And I can speak for them when I say we are not afraid to hear anyone."

Powell said he felt the interview was very thorough and adequately covered the controversy and its effects.

"Because there was no conclusion reached in the program we think that people will take a more objective look at the situation and better understand our position here in Chapel Hill."

The program will be shown on WUNC-TV at 4:30 p.m. Sunday and 9 p.m. Monday. It is also scheduled to be shown on television stations in Charlotte, Asheville, Greensboro, Wilmington and Elizabeth City within the next few days.

Galbraith Will Keynote Symposium

John Kenneth Galbraith, author of "The Affluent Society," will be the keynote speaker for this year's Carolina Symposium.

George Butler, chairman of the Symposium, said Thursday Galbraith will speak at Memorial Hall April 17.

The topic for the five day Symposium will be "Man, Mind, Myth." The programs will explore "Myth and Science," "Mind and Myth," "Myth and Politics," "Myth and the South" and "Myth and Literature." Other speakers will be announced later.

Galbraith appeared on campus last year sponsored by the Carolina Forum. The statesman, scholar, educator and writer spoke on "A Modern Foreign Policy."

The past Ambassador to India served during World War II as Deputy Administrator of the Office of Price Administration. Later he was head of the Office of Economic Security Policy in the Department of State.

Over 1,000 students heard his speech here last year. He said, "Is it possible to get rid of poverty? It certainly is, but you can't do it unless you try."

The Harvard professor of economics received his Ph.D. from the University of California. He has LL.D.'s from California, Toronto, Massachusetts, ard and Brandeis.

Galbraith is best known for "The Affluent Society." It is a study of a high - income community. It calls attention to the problem of maintaining balance between the private and public sectors of the economy.

He has written six other books. He received the Medal of Freedom for his wartime services.

The Carolina Symposium began in 1927 as the Institute of Human Relations. It was changed in 1937 from a quadrennial to a biennial schedule.

In 1956 the Institute of Human Relations was changed to the Carolina Symposium on Public Affairs. Since its beginning it has won acclaim both in North Carolina and throughout the nation.

Past speakers have included James Reston, William Fullbright, Gen. James M. Gavin and Ralph Bunche.

It is sponsored by private contributions and the Student Government.

Dr. Daniel Patterson is faculty advisor for the Symposium.

JOHN K. GALBRAITH

Delegation To Introduce Resolution

The UNC delegation to the Student State Legislature plans to propose a resolution at tomorrow's session asking for "total student support affirming the right of Aptheker to speak at UNC," SSL delegate Bob Powell announced today.

SSL is a mock legislative meeting of over 200 students from almost all colleges and universities in North Carolina. The SSL holds a three-day session each year at the Capitol Building in Raleigh.

Powell, along with Student Body President Paul Dickson, attempted to introduce the resolution Thursday, but no business was being conducted at the meeting at that time.

CAROLINA STYLE with Ed Freakley

There Is A Difference

It is not very often that an aspiring journalist sits back and takes a couple of pot shots at the rest of the news media.

However, this is one of those times when someone needs to point out a serious error.

The newspapers, electronic media and wire services of this state are guilty of being irresponsible. News men say it is their duty to present all the news and to give it in perspective.

All the stir that has been created with the speaking invitation to Communist Herbert Aptheker has received a tremendous amount of coverage throughout the state. Papers have assigned top reporters to cover this story in its entirety. The television cameras have shot thousands of feet of film.

In all fairness I think this University has been given a black eye by the press. Perhaps we deserve it in this case — but that remains to be seen.

Thursday the Committee For Free Inquiry met, about 130 people, and made plans for a mass rally. On television they are calling it a demonstration, a word that does not have a worthy connation in the minds of many of us. It may be a demonstration when it occurs, but for now it is only a rally. There is a difference.

But the most grievous error surrounding the matter is the lack of any coverage of the Carolina Blood Drive. Here were all types of students giving their blood, and in a way showing their loyalty to this country and our beliefs. The Red Cross people said the only place they have seen as much enthusiasm was at Fort Bragg, home of the Green Berets.

How much coverage did the press give to this event? Did they present the news and the people of this community in proper perspective? is this responsible journalism?

No. It hurts people, when you get smacked in the teeth and have no way to swing back.

Neither Is Viet Nam

The DTH ran a story Thursday about things to do in Chapel Hill. The story missed a few places that should not be neglected.

There is the laundro-mat with its Coke machine and if you are lucky you might find and old magazine. Don't forget that a half hour in Jeff's can be entertaining.

Of course there is the Grill and all those other places. If you get hard up you can watch a basketball game in Carmichael.

And if you are really at a loss for something to do try studying — not very entertaining but then neither is Viet Nam.

Banov To Run For Editor

Alan Banov yesterday became the first person to announce his candidacy for editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

In a statement issued to the DTH, Banov, Assistant Press Secretary of Student Government, asserted, "The first purpose of The Daily Tar Heel is to inform students primarily of campus news, then of state, national and world news.

"Secondly, the newspaper must challenge its readers to think about the important issues on campus and around the world. Thirdly, it must provide interesting and entertaining reading to whet students' imagination.

The Daily Tar Heel in the past has been not only the foremost college newspaper in the South, but also a respected molder of campus opinion. If elected editor, I plan to return the paper to its old position of prestige and prominence."

ALAN BANOV

Banov, a junior from Charleston, S. C., was editor of his high school publication and his school's reporter to the local newspapers. For several years he has been a correspondent for The Charleston Evening Post and News and Courier at North Carolina, and he plans to work as a reporter for one of them next summer.

Banov is a former News Editor for the DTH. Two summers ago he was a reporter and sports editor for the Summer Tar Heel, and also served on the Attorney General's Staff. A Dean's List student last semester, the political science and hisotry major is on the Honor System Commission and Vice-President of Sigma Delta Chi Professional Journalistic Society. He has been twice selected for the CCUN United Nations Seminar in New York.

The editor of The Daily Tar Heel will be elected on March 22, along with other Student Government leaders and Student Legislators, in a campus-wide election.

FROM LEFT to right, Bo Lalanne, Ann Tilghman, Jean Sims and Margie Erichson count profits from the Chi Omega sorority bake sale which was held yesterday in Y-Court. The purpose of the bake sale was to raise $100 to support a South Vietnamese orphan. The sorority fell $30 short, but hopes to make up the difference through another bake sale or other project. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Please Save Us

Another speaker controversy is imminent.

Dr. Erich Klinghammer is coming to speak here at 4 p.m. next Tuesday

The trustees have not approved his appearance but he is going to speak anyway.

What irresponsible gang of campus rabble-rousers is sponsoring his speech?

The UNC Psychology Department.

Who is Dr. Erich Klinghammer?

He is from the University of Chicago and the psych department says he has worked with Dr. Eckhard H. Hess on several research projects and is "emminently qualified to present the ethological approach towards problems of animal behavior."

What is he going to talk about?

"Sexual Imprinting in Mourning Doves."

This is obviously an inflamatory topic, and in line with current trustee policy concerning controversial speakers, we think Klinghammer's visit ought to have official approval of the president and chancellor of the university before he is allowed to use state-owned facilities for a platform.

Certainly the students here deserve this protection from a man coming to talk about sex, just as much as they need protection from a man who might talk about communism. Maybe even more.

Trustees, do your duty. Protect us from speakers who might say something we should not hear, or we'll have a protest march to WRAL's television studios.

A Drinking Man's Filter

It looked as if the end of the road had been reached when they came out a few years ago with that cigarette with a tobacco filter.

Where else could those ingenious filter designers go?

Well, sales of that tobacco filter cigarette never really caught fire, and those designers have found some new ieas.

They use charcoal, but it isn't just ordinary charcoal. It's activated in one brand and it comes from coconut shells in another.

We have filters that are so good people would rather fight than smoke another kind of cigarette.

We have some that deliver "menthol soft" taste and others that are usually smoked in conjunction with the eating of a hat.

Again it seems the filter designers have reached a pinnacle from which further ascent is impossible.

They have now developed the water tip.

It's the "newest taste in smoking — tiny capsules of water are suspended in the tip of every cigarette."

At least this is more practical than those charcoal filters. Now if you have that parched feeling when you finish a smoke you can break open the filter and drink it.

If S. C. Can Do It . . .

North Carolina legislators might learn something about handling delicate problems if they paid more attention to their South Carolina counterparts.

A South Carolina State House committee is working on legislation to control the showing of pornographic films.

Columbia police have made more raids lately, and there was even a group of boys and girls at the University of South Carolina caught watching these obscene movies.

Such conduct among college students is unimaginable, but the House committee has things well in hand.

The members are watching the films to see what ought to be done about them.

There is some precedent for this procedure, although some people might question its usefulness. Those with doubts are advised to contact UNC Dean of Men William G. Long, who reportedly has some experience in this field.

Columbia police say current legislation is inadequate to cope with the problem, so the legislature is seeking to resolve the trouble.

When North Carolina's General Assembly convenes it should follow this progressive lead of our sister state and have its own screening of skin flicks.

Anything South Carolina can do, we can do better.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Thish Ish Da Bes Liddle Ole Glass
Of Tomato Juice I Eva Had!"

David Rothman

It Was A Bloody Good Time

"For God," I said.

"For Mother," she replied.

For Country."

Then the nurse stuck the needle in my arm.

I had reached the point of no return when the Red Cross people read out the question on the donation form which asks if you have hay fever.

"Please," I begged. "Now that you've proved me so healthy, you won't notify the draft board, will you?"

"No," she said.

drive was handled very competently, though I have several minor complaints.

For one thing, too many pretty nurses were wasted on female donors.

Many Carolina Gentlemen agreed with me in saluting the fine job done by the NROTC fellows. But they also felt ignored upon discovering that not everybody taking care of them was a curvy blonde.

"Are you sure you want to give?" the nurse had asked me earlier.

"I am willing to bleed for my country," I said, "if it means the war in Viet Nam can be shortened."

"You're a juicy one-" the nurse exclaimed.

"?"

"You're spurting like a fountain of youth."

"That's because I eat plenty of roast beef," I modestly replied.

After it was all over, I decided I'd received pretty fair treatment, especially when they handed me some home-made cookies.

I was a bit disappointed, however, not to get a band-aid with battle stars on it.

But the person I'm really mad at is my psychology teacher.

The day before I gave blood, she had showed a very objectionable movie.

The film featured cats with holes drilled inside their brains.

You might say, then, that it didn't contribute much to my emotional stability when the nurse pierced my arm with that needle.

The forger was unscrupulous for a worthy cause, so we won't turn him in.

He is the spur-of-the-moment parent of some students here under 21 who forgot to get the parental signatures needed in the Red Cross blood drive.

Since his "children's" average age is 19 and he's in his early 20's, that would make him a father at about three.

Obviously he comes from one of those mountain families favoring early marriage.

* * *

An SPU friend of mine (except for politics) insists he sabotaged the recent campaign to bring paperbacks to the GIs in Southeast Asia.

"First I asked the book collectors if they would send everything I gave them to Viet Nam," he says.

"They said they'd do that.

"So I donated some books Larry Phelps (the ultra-leftist former UNC student) had left behind — his collection of the writings of Mao Tse-Tung."

* * *

On the other side of the political fence —Bill Otis, UNC's adamant but affable conservative, must be letting ideology follow him to phys. ed.

Even his bowling balls drift to the right.

Bill's friend Wilson Clark is humorously discussing the hostile reception he got recently in Memorial Hall when he tried to give his views on the speaker ban.

The president of the Carolina Conservative Club tells reporters:

"Next time you write an article about me, you'll probably have to date line it RALEIGH-DURHAM AIRPORT.'

"I hope the mob doesn't get me before I board my plane."

The award for this week's most inappropriate headline goes to a Charlotte newspaper.

Laying out the women's page, the editor wrote over Ida Jean Kain's reducing column:

"Fun Tests Show Extra Pounds."

Apparently, different people have different notions about "fun" — which in my opinion doesn't involve being overweight.

Jim Trulove, a sophomore who lives above the Varsity Theater, says he can listen to "Thunderball" through his radiator.

According to him the sound is not tinny. "It's as if you hear it at a distance."

He says the person down the hall, an avid movie fan, is thinking about using a stethoscope to monitor the film.

Another Varsity Theater dweller wants to cut a knot-hole in the floor "so I can see all the Bridgette Bardot movies."

Still another second-floor resident comments about both Bond and Bardot: "They're beneath me."

* * *

We may have the figures down wrong, but it's worth mentioning anyway.

Prof. Kenneth Byerly tells his classes that he's written "the best community journalism textbook in 12 years."

Then he modestly adds: "No other text in this field has been published in the past 14."

Armistead Maupin Jr.

A View from The Hill

It was Gush Week and the Plasma Nus were clustered confidently on the steps of Woollen Gymnasium.

Smiling and nervous, the new prospects filed past the line of blood brothers into the Georgian lobby of the imposing structure. An amiable sophomore was filling out namecards inscribed with the crest of the Aorta chapter.

"Your name, please?"

"Franklin D. Frogworthy," replied Franklin D. Frogworthy, fidgeting with the inside of his elbow.

"Bloody good to have you with us," exclaimed the sophomore, guiding Franklin into the throng. "We hope you'll circulate around a bit."

"I'd like to," said Franklin, eyeing the tall padded table with the green tops.

"Let me show you around the house," the sophomore suggested.

He led the faltering gushee to one side of the room and pointed to a large colored photograph.

"That's Ann Emia," he explained, "the Sweet Heart of Plasma Nu. Some of the brothers think she's a Typical Carolina Coag, but she's got some really nice jugulars."

Franklin nodded appreciatively, and the sophomore continued.

"We lead a pretty active social life around here. Only last week we had a mixer with the Kappa Laries."

Franklin made an adequate remark—but just barely. His mind was wandering.

Across the room a clump of gushees were drinking Bloody Marys. Franklin turned around again and the soph was gone. Several feet away two brothers were whispering. One of them said something about "country clots." The other mentioned "half-pints."

A tall boy with a smile walked across the room towards Franklin. They shook hands.

"Franklin," he began, "we here at the Plasma Nu house operate on a one-pint system. We also have a white corpuscle clause in our by-laws, but this, of course, would not affect you."

"There are, however, a number of positive factors which go into the selection of a pledge. We are not a veinglorious house, but we are mighty proud of our bloodline."

He stopped a moment and patted the gushee on the shoulder.

"To be quite frank, Franklin, you just aren't our type."

Letters To The Editor

Hard Workers

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

This letter is in reply to Mr. Jay Brilliant's letter in the DTH on Feb. 16. As graduate students and teaching assistants in math, we are in contact with most of the math professors daily. We are able to observe these men in their relationships with their students, both graduate and undergraduate.

Rarely is a professor "cold and stern." When this does occur, the student usually deserves it, and it is for his benefit.

The professors in our department spend a great deal of time helping their students, both in class and outside of class. It is amazing to observe the number of hours they spend with students while trying to do original research. We should add that the members of the math faculty are "impersonate" (i.e. "invested with personality"—Webster's).

Dr. Brauer will be greatly missed in Phillips Hall next year. We all consider him to be a great mathematician and one of our most dedicated teachers.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Smith
Thurman Whitley

Bravo For 'Boheme'

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I feel that Dr. Wilton Mason and all who took part in Puccini's "La Boheme" last Sunday and Monday are to be congratulated on a splendid performance. It is greatly to the credit of the University that it can produce grand opera at such a high standard. One measure of the stature of any university is the level of cultural activity in art, literature, music and drama produced by its members.

The production of serious opera puts particularly high demands on its resources, and the risk of a poorer quality of performance is greater than in straight drama or musical comedy.

The waves of applause at the end of each act of "La Boheme" was testimony to the achievement. It is a pity that more did not see and hear it — I have talked to some who did not attend because they feared a local production of grand opera would not be at a high level — they need have had no such fear.

At the same time it is a matter of some regret that "the South's largest College newspaper" consistently passes such important events by without sending a (competent) person to write a review for publication.

While the DTH announced these activities in advance, it rarely, if ever, reviews them, and particularly in the case of activities produced by the university community, it is important that it should do so.

In the present instance, I counted several times of a trival nature which could well have been omitted to provide space in which to pay well - deserved tribute to all those who worked so hard to make "La Boheme" the success it was.

Campbell B. Read

Weak Exhibit

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have a word to say about the faculty exhibit now being displayed at Ackland. The word — disappointing. It is regrettable that the paintings amount to nothing more than exercises in color and composition.

Viewing these exercises in a gallery is similar to going to a football game and watching the teams warm up without ever coming into contest.

The faculty paintings are immature in that few of them bring any responsible reflection of the world, man, or the artist himself. They're nothing more than confused splatterings of paint.

Bob Gaston
506 Ehringhaus

Petition At Duke

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The following is a copy of a petition circulated in the Divinity School of Duke University. The petition bears the signatures of 63 students and faculty members.

"We the undersigned students and faculty of the Divinity School of Duke University wish to express our profound regret concerning the recent action of the executive council of the Board of Trustees in prohibiting the appearance of Mr. Aptheker and Mr. Wilkinson on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Such censorship displays an abysmal ignorance, not only of the most rudimentary elements of academic freedom, but also of the United States' Bill of Rights itself. Has political expediency taken over every principle of our free American Society and the traditions of liberty of the state of North Carolina? Can freedom be defended by its denial?

"We sincerely hope that the full Board of Trustees will rescind the lamentable action of the Board of Trustees executive council."

Foster A. Embry, Jr.
1906 1-2 James St.
Durham

Television, Radio

WRAL (Ch. 5)

6:30 The Lone Ranger
7:00 RULERS OF THE SEA: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.; THE H-MAN: Yumi Shirakawa
9:30 Milton the Monster (c)
10:00 Porky Pig Show (C)
10:30 The Beatles (C)
11:30 Magilla Gorilla (C)
12:00 Wide World of Sports
1:30 American Bandstand
2:30 Teenage Frolics
3:00 Bugs Bunny Show(C)
3:30 Pro Bowlers Tour
5:00 Championship Wrestling
6:00 Grand Ole Opry
6:30 The Wilburn Brothers
7:00 Porter Wagoner
7:30 Let's Go to the Races (C)
8:00 Donna Reed
8:30 Lawrence Welk (C)
9:30 Hollywood Palace
10:30 Ozzie and Harriet (C)
11:00 ABC News
11:15 Dateline
11:25 Movie of the Week: THE GODDESS: Kim Stanley

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS —12:00 n. — It's the World Gold Skate Classic from California; 4-man bobsled championship from Cortina, Italy; and the Daytona Continental sports car race (last segment in color.)

LAWRENCE WELK — 8:30 p.m. — The Champagne Music Makers open with a stirring salute to "Brotherhood Week."

HOLLYWOOD PALACE — 9:30 p.m. — Bing Crosby hosts with guests Gary Crosby, Rosemary Clooney, and Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:30 Space Soldiers
7:00 Secret Squirrel (C)
8:00 Captain Kangaroo
9:00 Heckle & Jeckle (C)
9:30 Atom Ant (C)
10:00 Mighty Mouse (C)
10:30 Underdog C)
11:00 Tom & Jerry (C)
11:30 Quick Draw McGraw (C)
12:00 Sky King
12:30 Adventures of Lassie
1:00 Wild Kingdom
1:30 Sportsview
1:45 Vic Bubas Show
2:00 ACC Basketball Duke vs. Maryland
4:00 CBS Golf Classic
5:00 Shell's World of Golf (C)
6:00 Flipper (C)
6:30 Walt Disney (C)
7:30 Jackie Gleason
8:30 The Man From UNCLE (C)
9:30 Branded (C)
10:00 Gunsmoke
11:00 Three Star Final
11:15 Country Style Jim Thornton

N. C. Writers' Conference Meets Here Next Month

The N. C. Conference of News and Feature Writers will have their annual meeting here March 16, with a list of top national speakers for the one-day session.

Woodrow Price, managing editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, will preside over the sessions of the newspapermen, broadcast newsmen and other members of the News and Feature Writers. Price said the news and feature writers are cooperating with the UNC Journalism School which is holding its first "Journalism Week." Other newspaper and news organizations will be meeting from March 12 through March 20.

Hugh Mulligan, colorful reporter for the Associated Press Newsfeatures, is main speaker for the News and Feature Writers. Mulligan will be just returned from Viet Nam where he has covered sidelights of the war in that country.

"Newsweek" magazine's senior editor, Edwin Diamond, will also give tips on "Feature Ideas From the Magazine Field."

Don Carter, managing editor of the new and succesful weekly national newspaper, "The National Observer", will take part in a debate with Charles Kuralt, news commentator for CBS News. "Two Views of the News" is the title of the panel. Roy Thompson of the Winston-Salem Journal will be moderator.

The former executive editor of the Chicago Daily News, Tom Collins, now living in Chapel Hill where he writes a nationallly - syndicated column, will conduct a workshop titled "New Slants for News and Feature Writers."

A critique of North Carolina newspaper features will be presided over by Prof. Joseph Morrison of the School of Journalism.

Price stated that registration for the annual meeting will be at 9 .m. March 16, in the Carolina Inn. The first session will begin at 10 a.m., and meetings will last through the evening dinner meeting for the address by Hugh Mulligan.

The Student Speaks

Controversy Has Educational Value

By JOHN E. DIETZ

There has been a great deal said and a good deal done about the Aptheker controversy, but the issues have recently fallen in the wake of would-be eloquence.

The result is that Governor Moore can uncontestedly seek the position of Protector-of-the-Realm, the motives of those who are interested in hearing Aptheker are obscured, and the student body is once again left with the uncomplimentary tint of pink. The first label is ludicrous, and the last two are unfair, both to those labelled and to the people of North Carolina who are trying to distinguish reality from political expediency.

The first cloud came over the horizon when the Governor announced that the invitation was a blatant example of "controversy for the sake of controversy," and therefore had no educational value. Because hot air rises, maybe I can slip in an explanation.

Controversy, in itself, is educational. Its direct by - products are discussion, disagreement, and eventual resolution; issues which might be found only in the inner sanctums of high-echelon politics are made public — the electorate is made aware, and if you will, they are educated.

The Governor further hazed the issue at hand by stating, after the Trustees' 8-3 vote in his favor, that he had not intervened in University affairs, that he had not dictated the decision, and that he stood firmly behind the ideal of free speech. Oh, come now.

As modest as the Governor is, he ought to take credit when credit is due. It was the Governor who singlehandedly brought the controversy to the fore when he stepped in at the beginning. It was he who took his views before the group of men who are appointed by the State to serve as this University's Board of Trustees, and came out with the not-very-surprising verdict that Aptheker and Wilkinson would not be allowed to speak.

As Chairman of the Board, the Governor not only underscored the issue, but he made sure that the (tentative?) resolution ended in his favor

Now the most important question stands out: should Aptheker, or any other speaker in disagreement with the Governor, be allowed to speak on this campus? A competent summary of the rationale which surrounds the negative answer to the question was printed in The Daily Tar Heel a few days back.

The re - printed WBT editorial quoted J. Edgar Hoover as warning: "the unvarnished truth is that the Communist conspiracy is seizing this insurrectionary climate (on college campuses) to captivate the thinking of rebellious - minded youth and coax them into . . . serving the Communist cause." (The three dots are their's, not mine.)

The editorial concluded with a congratulatory pat-on-the-back for Governor Moore. The quote, the editorial, and the Governor's stand are invalidated by logic. Mr. Hoover made the statement some time ago, and since then the students of Harvard, Yale, Ohio State, Michigan, et. al. have been subjected to Communist infiltration.

Last fall, the gubernatorial race in New Jersey was run solely on that issue, and Governor Richard Hughes' support of the Rutgers' professor won an overwhelming vote of confidence from the electorate.

The point is this: show me where this infiltration of Communist propaganda has had any effect. Are any of the students in worse shape now than they were before they listened? Is the ideal of democracy so weak, so imperfect, that it can be overcome by an hour long dissertation on the values of an opposing ideal? Apparently Governor Moore thinks so.

I contend, as do the vast majority of students who favor free speech, that the democracy which we enjoy cannot fall to any subversive group, no matter how convincing the group may sound. We ask now for the chance to prove that assertion; to prove to anyone who wants to listen, that the fruits of democracy (the fruits upon which we have been born and bred) are unconquerable by anv other ideology.

The few fuzzy - heads who think they believe in communism (or any other opposing view) shall endure, regardless of any Governor's efforts, but they will not prevail.

A decade and a half ago there was another man who quaked at the sight of a country so weak as to support-serious-minded dissent. His name was McCarthy, not Moore. ("That which we call a rose. By any other name would smell as sweet.")

We can now stand proud as citizens of the most powerful, most secure country in the world because our forebears had the faith and the wisdom to let the dissent rage.

The students of this University should be granted the privilege of asserting their faith in a government strong enough to permit freedom. With the clouds cleared, perhaps the privilege can be granted.

WERNER TORKANOWSKY will conduct the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra when it gives a concert in Memorial Hall Feb. 25. Torkanowsky is in his third season with the New Orleans Philharmonic, which is currently on an eastern tour. Tickets are now on sale for the concert. Balcony seats have been reserved for UNC students at a cost of $.50. Date and spouse tickets are $1.

Whitaker Scholars

First Group Makes Fine Record

Do winners of large, prestigious university scholarships usually live up to their potential?

Here's one award group which has done so well that any selection committee and scholarship donor would consider themselves justified in their choices of winners.

That group is the first graduating class of Whitaker Scholars at UNC, seven young men who had outstanding records as undergraduates and who are now continuing to excel.

Who are the Whitaker Scholars? They are students selected their freshman year on the basis of academic records, promise and character to receive stipends of $400 to $1000 a year during their four years of study. Some graduate awards are also made.

Dr. Julian Mason, director of the Office of Student Aid, calls the fellowships "the most distinguished group available at UNC."

First awarded in 1961 through a bequest left by William Asbury Whitaker, a former Winston-Salem resident who later lived in New York City and an alumnus of 1904, the scholarships are part of a three - prong $1,750,000 program set up by the Whitaker Foundation. Money was also left to the library and to the Ackland Art Museum.

That 1965 and first graduating class included:

—Vance Barron Jr. of Chapel Hill who now serves with the Peace Corps in Africa.

—Henry Moore Middleton III of Raleigh who attends Medical School here at UNC.

—Another UNC graduate student, Thomas Charles Lominac of Weaverville, who is in mathematics.

—A Salisbury boy, Lavon ifornia, who holds a National lowship in math at the University of Virginia.

—Daniel Tucker Hefelfinger of Charlotte, a chemistry student at the University of California, whohholds a National Science Foundation Fellowship.

—Another NSF winner, William F. Griffeth Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., who is at the University of Chicago studying math.

—And an English student, Stephen Myron Blackwelder of Concord who is at the University of Wisconsin.

Currently some 47 Whitaker scholars are on campus and together they receive over $30,000 a year.

Interviews for next year's winners will be March 19 and 26 and approximately 30 applicants will be interviewed.

Whitaker, who received his M.A. at Columbia and an honorary doctorate here in 1955, has a nephew and namesake, William A. Whitaker of Winston-Salem, who is a junior here now.

A founding partner of Francis I. duPont & Company, in New York, dealers in securities, Whitaker was a leader in activities in the University of North Carolina Club in New York.

Short-Sleeve

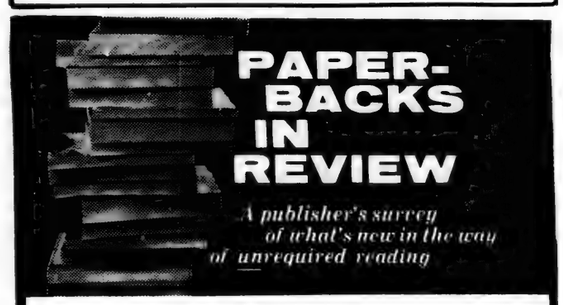
BANLON SHIRTS

Navy, maize, tan, black, green, lt. blue, red, white.
In All Sizes.

Only $3.00

Mill Outlet Sales Room

Located on East Franklin Street
Upstairs Over Sutton's Drug Store



What's new?

DOOBIE DOO. A hardback novel by Ivan C. Karp that is not only unrequired, but, according to some early readers and reviewers, un-American.

DOOBIE DOO is the history of a pioneer of pleasure who has his cake and eats it without dire results. Except to the cake. It is an investigation into the dazed plight of sophisticated, husbandless city girls which raises the question: How much love should wisely be given to the desperately needy?

Until it was published last month, we had dozens of lines like this to use describing DOOBIE DOO. Now the reviewers have taken it away from us. (See below.) Nearly all of us have had a marvelous time reading it.

This is DOOBIE DOO

This is what some early DOOBIE DOO fans say

"DOOBIE DOO is a novel with convoluted plot — complete with sub-plot that in the end gets properly hooked up with the main plot — [which] is a parody of novels with convoluted plots and a spoof of the spoof genre and is awfully funny . . . The chief performers in the circus that goes lickety-cut are Maynard Ricefield, a musicologist who works, on the periphery of his vocation, in a company that manufactures claviehords, harpsichords and harpsichord kits, and the two beautiful girls between whom he divides his evenings fair and square . . . 'Whoever said that life was real was living in a dream world,' observes Clarissa (one of the heroines, the 'wordly' one). The book is full of such profoundities as this which, while they bring the reader to the brink of lunacy, do not bog down the narrative." —JEAN STAFFORD

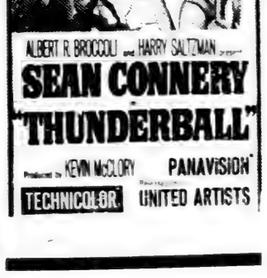
"A wildly funny avant-garde novel with a message. The message is: 'If everybody refused to sing commercials, there would be no singing commercials'." —CHARLES POORE, N. Y. Times

"An outrageously funny novel . . . a little Rock and Roll running amok might be just what the American novel needs at this stage. Hang on Henry James, Henry James, hang on." —DONALD D. JONES, Kansas City Star

"A doozey . . . Karp has real talent. He is funny, hip, cynical, brazen — and he can write." —JOHN BARKHAM, Saturday Review Syndicate

"Roy Lichtenstein has helped . . . with a Pop book jacket that billboards a red-dotted girlface and a great, cliff-hanging tear, poised on the lower cilia. But what Karp does with this hokum is to reach right inside the tear. Funny tear. It is not empty, but full of salt, humor, damp warmth, and, I think most important, refractions that bring out all the sparkle and plenty that so many shnooks claim is missing from Today's Living. Funny, funny, saving tear." —BROCK BOWER, Book Week

DOOBIE DOO is published by Doubleday & Company, Inc., Garden City, New York, which usually devotes this column to Anchor Books, but couldn't resist the temptation to slip one special hardcover book in. DOOBIE DOO sells for $4.50, and like Anchor Books, is available at one of the best equipped booksellers in the country — your own college store.



A Wide Selection
Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry

135 East Franklin
942-1331

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present
SEAN CONNERY
"THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY
PANAVISION
TECHNICOLOR
UNITED ARTISTS

DAILY CROSSWORD

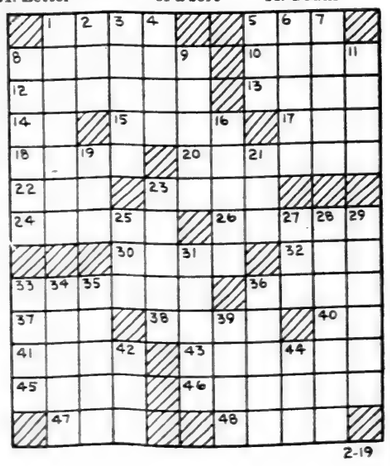
ACROSS

1. Coconut fiber
5. Common adder
8. Mouse of a sort
10. Pencil of a kind
12. Roof of mouth
13. In this place
14. Man's nickname
15. Tidy
17. Roman money
18. Quote
20. Judge's concern
22. Shield
23. Ernie of WWII fame
24. Meaning
26. Jumps
30. Pub sign
32. Biblical city
33. Dealer in cloth and dry goods: Brit.
36. Rodent
37. Rank
38. Certain
40. Music note
41. Elliptical
43. Paleness
45. Llama country
46. Cares for medically
47. Normal: abbr.
48. Football players

DOWN

1. Goblet
2. Lubricate
3. Silly
4. Plexus
5. Tree
6. Club or porterhouse
7. Kind of soup
8. Distances between
9. Prepared
11. Finest
16. Highway charges
19. Large cask
21. Letter
23. Belonging to a goddess of volcanoes
25. Exhaust
27. Girl's name
28. Imitators of a sort
29. Scoffs
31. Burst forth
33. "In the bucket" item
34. Traveler of a sort
35. Conscious
36. Lady of Troy
39. Uncommon
42. Carry with difficulty
44. Youth

Yesterday's Answer



2-19

TODAY-TUESDAY
"ONE OF YEARS 10 BEST FILMS"
—Satuday Review
—N. Y. Post

"A STUNNING FILM!" —Crowther N.Y. Times
THE MOMENT OF TRUTH

Pink Phink Short,
"PINK PAJAMAS"
12:59, 3, 5:01, 703, 9:05

RIALTO, Durham

THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL,

The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house.

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina

Exciting Music Happens When the

Duke

Meets the Maestro

and the Boston Pops

Recorded "live" at Tanglewood —the musical meeting of America's foremost interpreter of popular classics with the man who created so many of them. In this new album, Arthur Fiedler and Duke Ellington play 12 of the Duke's tunes, arranged to make the most of the combined talents of the Boston Pops, the Duke's own sidemen on bass and drums, with the Duke himself at the piano. Here's a new "big band sound" that really takes off. Included in this swinging study of essential Ellingtonia are "Caravan," "Mood Indigo," "Sophisticated Lady" and "Satin Doll," with liner notes by the Duke himself. You'll love it madly.

RCA Victor

Refutes War Critics

Solons Hear Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk told Senate critics of the U.S. stand in Viet Nam today that one-sided worry about a widening conflict could lead the Communists to expand the Asian struggle.

"If only one side worries about escalation," the government's top diplomat told the Senate Relations Committee, "then you can have a big war . . .

"Of course we are concerned about where this will go," said Rusk.

Rusk said U. S. policy — guided he said, by the commitments of the Southeast Asian Treaty — has been steady and firm, but restrained as well.

But he carefully avoided saying just what the United States would do to meet future Communist moves.

"What is the extent of our commitment in South Viet Nam," asked Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., "and is there any point beyond which we would not go in meeting that commitment?"

Rusk: . . . The commitment is contained in the language of the Southeast Asian Treaty.

Aiken: . . . That doesn't give any limit.

Rusk: It is not easy for me in open session to talk about the idea of limits . . .

Aiken: Would you say there is a limit?

Rusk: "I'm not going to say that this country has accepted in advance a certain point beyond which it will not go in meeting its commitments . . .

DEAN RUSK

He said that could lead to misunderstandings and Communist miscalculation of U.S. intent.

But at the same time, Rusk stressed the current boundaries of conflict. "Some people are concerned about a great land war in Asia," he said. "I would like to comment that this is not the shape of that conflict . . . at the present time."

Like Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, who testified Thursday, Rusk said Communist recognition of U. S. determination is a key factor in a quest for peace in Viet Nam.

"They must not count upon divisions among us to give them what they want in Viet Nam," he said.

And he said the Communists must believe the United States when it declares:

"This you must not do."

Rusk carried with him a 50-page statement declaring that the 1954 Southeast Asia Treaty was a solemn commitment for U. S. defense of Viet Nam.

Foreign relations committee members who served then and serve now, he said, all voted for ratification of that pact.

Among them: Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ala., and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn.

They have been sharply critical of President Johnson's current policy in Viet Nam.

Rusk said the eight - nation pact binds the United States to help defend South Viet Nam against armed attack. And he said this pact has always guided U. S. steps in South Viet Nam.

". . . I'm very much concerned . . . that if we as a nation decide that one of our alliances is not very important," Rusk said, "that this will have a fundamental effect on the strength and the solidarity and the usefulness of other alliances."

Gore and Morse both challenged Rusk's contention that the pact binds the United States to its current course in the Southeast Asian struggle.

Soviet Union Charges US Violating Test Ban Treaty

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Repercussions over the U. S. nuclear bomb that went astray after a plane crash in southeast Spain a month ago have subsided here, but the incident continues to stir controversy elsewhere.

The crash of the nuclear-armed U. S. B52 bomber came up at the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva Thursday when the Soviet Union charged such flights violated the 1963 Moscow limited nuclear test ban treaty.

The Strategic Air Command's bomber had been on an alert flight from a base in North Carolina.

Eleven crewmen died when the bomber and a refueling plane collided over Palomares Beach on Jan. 17. The B52 dropped four unarmed nuclear weapons.

Three were found but the fourth has eluded an extensive search on land and sea.

There has been speculation in recent days that search crews have recovered the missing bomb, but U. S. officials have made no announcement.

About 5,000 U. S. Navy and Air Force personnel were involved in the search, along with Spanish police

Searchers found radio activity in the land area where most of the bomber's wreckage fell.

Dockmen Threat To Boycott Ships

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) —American Maritime Unions said today they will boycott all foreign ships dealing with North Viet Nam unless President Johnson persuades U. S. allies and other noncommunist nations to stop dealing with the enemy.

"Our boys are fighting and dying along with the loyal South Vietnamese forces and those of our other allies," the 29-union AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department said in a telegram to Johnson.

"Trade with North Viet Nam puts blood money in the pocket of shipowners and other profiteers of so-called allied nations," the telegram added.

The threatened boycott would prevent the loading in U. S. ports of hundreds of foreign vessels from Great Britain, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, France, Italy, Egypt, and other nations, union spokesmen said.

Paul Hall, president of the Maritime Trades Department, said the boycott will begin in 30 days unless Johnson is successful through diplomatic means in stopping allied nations from trading with Communist North Viet Nam.

The telegram to Johnson was sent last Monday, union spokesmen said, but there has been no White House reply. In Washington, White House Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said he had not seen the telegram and declined comment.

They said the Johnson Administration had ignored union demands to blacklist all such ships for fear of offending U.S. allies.

The telegram said a recently announced U. S. blacklist of five such foreign vessels was only "a slap on the wrist," preventing the five vessels only from carrying U. S. government cargoes but not barring them from U. S. ports to pick up private shipments.

"We believe the time for pussyfooting is long past," the unions told Johnson.

"American seamen and longshoremen are determined to take action to discourage the flow of supplies which strengthens North Viet Nam and their puppets in the Viet Cong in their aggression and thus enlarges the threat to world peace," the telegram said.

Hall said the unions will hold a public conference in Washington in the next few weeks, inviting members of Congress and the Johnson Administration, to discuss the issue.

The boycott "on all the waterfronts in this country" will begin after the conference unless Johnson by then persuades U. S. allies to stop their North Viet Nam trade.

NATO Ends Discussions On Strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense ministers of five Atlantic Alliance Nations today concluded two days of discussions of common nuclear strategy.

The ministers representing the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy and Turkey are members of the Nuclear Planning Group, a subcommittee of the NATO special committee of defense ministers.

A Defense Department Announcement said the group "concentrated its attention on questions concerning planning with regard to strategic nuclear weapons."

The Defense Department said the discussions included "an appraisal of the process by which the threat to NATO is measured; consideration of the way in which nuclear forces are planned, procured and managed; discussion of problems and procedures in the development of plans with respect to such forces as well as the command and control arrangements which govern them."

The group also made "detailed examination of targeting procedures, planning with respect to allied strategic forces and an evaluation of what the various kinds of forces could be expected to achieve under different conditions of nuclear war."

Flu Bug Hits East Coast

ATLANTA, Ga., (AP) — The flu bug may be spreading across the nation, authorities said today after they had identified another influenza virus from the Atlanta area.

The identification brought to five the number of states along the eastern coast to definitely attribute a widespread illness to type B flu. And in a sixth state, California, a type A—more infectuous—virus has been identified.

Massachusetts, Florida, Rhode Island, and Maine isolated the B virus from outbreaks since January.

Dr. John E. McCroan, Chief epidemiologist of the Georgia Department of Public Health said the outbreak seems to be following a standard type B pattern, moving from school to school and affecting mainly children.

Type A is more commonly known as Asian flu.

Either type is basically flu — causing fever, headache, sore throat, and vomiting, Dr. R. Q. Robinson of the communicable disease center in Atlanta said.

But to specialists, idenfification of the various viruses is important for an innoculation program.

McCroan explained that specific identification of flue is a difficult thing. Many other areas may be suffering from influenza, now, but until specimens have undergone intensive laboratory analysis, they cannot be officially designated flu.

Are You Running With Me, Jesus?

Prayers by MALCOLM BOYD

The book of uncommon prayer — by the Episcopal priest who is "chaplain-at-large to U.S. college students."—Time

3rd LARGE PRINTING

Only $3.95 at your college bookstore

Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc.

North Carolina News Roundup

Charlotte Has Crime Wave

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The "Queen City of the Carolinas" added a most unroyal jewel to her crown during the last 10 days: 21 armed holdups.

Armed robbery, Charlotte-style, is not a gentlemanly game.

A Minute Market operator was shot in the stomach by one of two robbers who took $600 from the small market.

A suburban housewife was knocked unconscious by a man who entered her home and took $5 and two packs of cigarettes.

Three robbers alternately kicked a man in the head while taking $1.70 from him.

A 41-year-old man was beaten by three men who took $150 from him.

In recent months the number of brazen daylight robberies of downtown finance companies and holdups involving people taking money to banks has been on the upswing.

Charlotte city councilmen, sensitive to the city's crime rate, publicly commented Monday, after the preceding 48 hours had produced 14 armed robberies.

They supported Mayor Stan R. Brookshire's suggestion that businesses take more care in handling money.

The bandits, both white and Negro, have been of various ages and descriptions. Police have questioned several suspects and made some arrests.

ECC Med School Not Dead

GREENVILLE (AP) — The president of East Carolina College said Friday although the school can't meet the requirement of national accrediting agencies by next Jan. 1 "the two year medical school idea is very much alive."

Dr. Leo Jenkins issued the statement in response to reports that consultants hired to study the medical school proposal had recommended an institute of life sciences and community health rather than the medical school.

"Trustees, after a close examination of the report and lengthy discussion, agreed such an institute would implement and not supplement a medical school," Jenkins explained, "but the institute definitely was not considered in lieu of a two-year medical school.

"The institute proposal is very much in keeping with our original plan to obtain more doctors and a medical center for the East," he said.

"The first step in this direction would be broadening the paramedical base and strengthening the medical sciences," said Jenkins.

The act creating a two-year medical school at ECC specified that if accreditation was not obtained by Jan. 1, 1967, "the State Board of Higher Education shall study the proposal for a medical school."

The law required that the board "first give its approval before the college continues or implements any program for a two or four-year school of medicine."

The General Assembly appropriated $100,000 for the first year of the biennium for employing a medical school dean or other personnel to set up a satisfactory curriculum to meet the standards of the medical accrediting agencies.

Reapportionment Approved

GREENSBORO (AP) — A three judge federal panel ruled Thursday that the recent reapportionment of North Carolina's legislature is in conformity with U. S. Supreme Court standards.

But it ordered the state's congressional districts realigned again after the 1966 elections.

The ruling, which gives the state until no later than July 1, 1967, to again attempt to bring the congressional districts in line with the high court's equal population standards, was filed here late Friday.

At Raleigh, Gov. Dan Moore said he was pleased that the federal court had approved the action of the Legislature in its reshuffling of House and Senate seats.

"This is an indication that the Legislature made a conscientious and dilligent effort to comply with the law," the governor said.

Moore said the federal court action means that, in addition to approving the House and Senate reapportionment, the way was cleared for Tar Heel congressmen can run this year in districts established by the legislature.

Further reshuffling of congressional districts will not have to be undertaken until the next regular session of the General Assembly in 1967.

The reapportionment plans for House and Senate and the remapping of congressional districts was done at a special session of the Assembly in Januarv.

U.S. Scores Ground Wins Continues Aerial Attacks

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)— U. S. cavalrymen located another Communist base area south of Bong Son at noon yesterday and killed 54 Viet Cong in a fight that lasted into the night. The contact was reported heavy; American casualties light.

In another phase of the coastal offensive, South Viet Nam's government acclaimed the battle for the Tuy Hoa area rice crop as essentially won. It gave major credit to U. S. 101st Airborne Division paratroopers and South Korean soldiers guarding from the Viet Cong a harvest expected to total 110,000 tons.

At the same time the allies gave up the rich An Lao valley west of Bong Son — seized with little bloodshed 10 days ago — for lack of troops to serve there as an occupation force. Various valley dwellers, fearing a return of the Communists, abandoned their rice paddies and flew out with departing American units.

Briefing officers disclosed seven Americans died in two helicopter crashes elsewhere, the causes unexplained. Six soldiers were killed in the fall of an Army helicopter 10 miles northeast of Saigon. A Marine copter crashed and burned in taking off from Phu Hai Thursday. One Marine was killed and four injured.

A soldier of the U. S. 25th Infantry Division died a hero's death in a skirmish in the Cu Chi sector northwest of Saigon, throwing himself on a Viet Cong grenade that might have scythed down other Americans. His name was withheld.

About 100 guerrillas had attacked a squad of infantrymen posted in ambush positions 500 yards from the American defensive perimeter. They struck with machine guns, automatic rifles and grenade launchers.

Nearly two platoons of American reinforcements and jet napalm attacks were needed to get the beleaguered unit out. American casualties, including the grenade's victim, were officially described as "light to moderate." Estimates of the Viet Cong dead ranged from six to 10.

Dien Bien Phu remained a focal point of American Air raids on North Viet Nam. A U. S. spokesman said that, with fresh damage in three strikes over as many days, 255 of 419 buildings in an air base complex of about four square miles now have been destroyed.

Barracks, warehouses and multistoried administration centers were among the targets. U. S. Air Force raids Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were reported to have set off many secondary explosions at the base, 185 miles west of Hanoi.

U. S. Navy planes attacked bridges and roads leading west and south to the Ho Chi Minh supply trail through Laos. The spokesman said they destroyed five bridges and cratered the approaches to five others.

The fresh action on the coast Thursday in which American cavalrymen killed 142 Viet Cong.

The greatest toll that day, 128, was exacted in a long fight by two U. S. battalions with enemy elements defending what was believed to be a regimental headquarters in mountains 40 miles southwest of Bong Son.

Bunnies Fear Fat, Old Age

NEW YORK (AP) — The hearts of frightened bunnies over America went pitter-pitter-pat, pitter-pitter-pat today.

With fear and misgiving they studied their mirrors for fateful signs of plumper hips or lines around the eyes.

The management of the Playboy Clubs has decreed that bunnies who outgrow the bunny look must turn in their ears.

More than a score, ranging in age to a venerable 29, have been set free from the plush Playboy warrens of Chicago, Cincinnati and New York.

No pretty doe knows which doe may be next to go.

As all red-blooded American males are aware, the Playboy Club bunnies are girls dressed in costumes with rabbit ears and tufty tails.

Recently the Playboy head office in Chicago decided some bunnies were no longer as sleek as they were when they first donned the uniform.

"Bunnies must be youthful," explained Alan Spiers, manager of the Chicago Club. "They know when they are hired that they cannot keep their jobs if they do not keep their looks."

CAROLINA

NOW PLAYING

The MOTION PICTURE WITH SOMETHING TO OFFEND EVERYONE!

ROBERT / JONATHAN
MORSE / WINTERS

Shows at: 1:00—3:00—5:00—7:00—9:15

Don't Miss The Big Beautiful Books on Our Bargain Table!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 E. Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

SUNDAY SERVICES

The Rev. William Coates—Episcopal

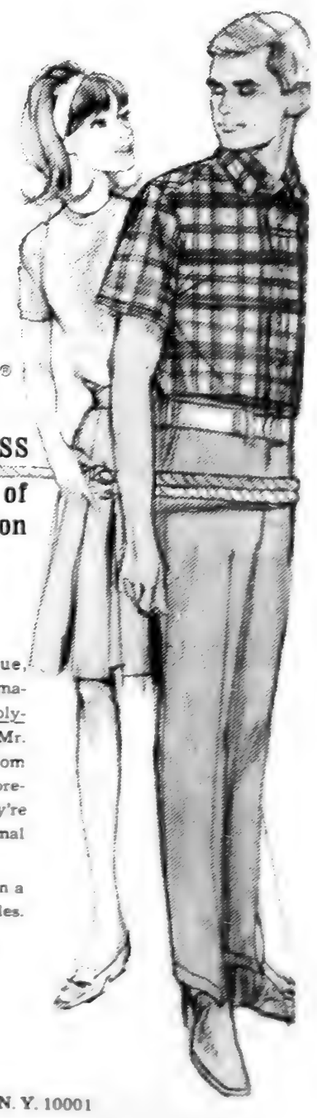
Chaplain at The University will Preach

9:30 A. M.—Holy Communion and Services
(Church School and Nursery)

The Church of The Holy Family

200 Hayes Rd. GLEN LENNOX

Cramming
Clowning
Crashing
Pubbing
Frugging



Mr. Wrangler®

PERMANENT PRESS

Shirts and Slacks of FORTREL® and cotton

From dawn to discotheque, they're really with it... Permanently pressed 50% Fortrel polyester and 50% cotton make Mr. Wrangler your best buddy from early classes to just-one-more-frug at midnight... and they're guaranteed for one year's normal wear.

They stay like new forever. In a full range of colors and styles.

SEE YOUR LOCAL STORE
FOR FAMOUS
MR. WRANGLER
SHIRTS & SLACKS or write
Mr. Wrangler
350 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10001

Why should a traditional Shantung stripe have a loop label?

Resilio

To keep the small end neatly in place.

Resilio uses the luxury and texture of silk to create a colorful group of Shantung stripes. The meticulous craftsmanship of these Resilio ties extends even to the authentic loop label on the back. Tuck the small end through, and it stays always centered and lying flat. At knowledgeable retailers or write Resilio, Empire State Building, New York City, N.Y.

P.S. All Resilio ties have loop labels.

Fauntleroy

WHO IS THE FAUNTLEROY?

I hear your cry. In fact, I've been hearing it all year.

I walk down a city street and I hear all sorts of people asking the question.

I suppose there was an aura of mystery about the whole thing.

I bet that you've always wondered what the Lone Ranger looks like behind that black mask. You picture Jesse James as a wonderful man who wore an old black hat and a red bandana across his face. You probably whispered with your friends and imagined that behind that bandana was a horrible scar or a chin bespeckled with pimples. And all of us have always wondered what Yogi Berra looks like when he's not "the man behind the sandpaper mask."

I'll bet you watched the fearless Lone Ranger week after week in hope that you might catch him in the bathroom. And sure, you've sat through countless sagas of the old west hoping that you'll see po' ol' Jes shot in the back and then unmasked by some clean-cut green horn of a sheriff. Maybe you even joined the thousands of Yankee haters at the stadium just to catch a glimpse of Yog.

I too have been disguised. Sometimes I'm Liz or Jane, I've even been Tony Randall. Recently I haven't even assumed these famous identities and the mystery deepened.

Everyone who follows sports reads my column for the picks. But to make the readership universal I decided not to reveal my true image.

SO, BALLFANS. HERE I AM. You'll laugh, and I can hear your comments now: "That worm is the "great" Faunts. Ha! Just look at that guy. He's 4'6" tall and wears size 12 shoes. He's in his fifties and just look at that outfit. He has pudgy pink knees and he wears glasses.

Well, it's all true. But my mother still loves me.

Now, why have I decided to reveal myself. The answer's quite simple. Too tell you the truth I've hit a slump. Last week I made four picks and bombed out on at least two of them.

I've been thinking all week, and yesterday I decided it was time for an act of faith. The mystery is over. I may lose the interest of many readers. But now I'm asking all the good people in our land to stay loyal to my work. And I'm asking the cynics to have pity on me. So here I am. No crowns, no masks or disguises and no haircut. Just me.

When the Lone Ranger, Jesse James and Yogi Berra were finally exposed they met with tragic ends. The ranger is drifting around in foreign air waves. Jesse was indeed shot in the back. And Yog (gasp) is on the coaching staff of the New York Mets.

But with me life still goes on. The mystery is over, but the great mind which lurks behind those glassy eyeballs is ready to make a glorious comeback. So, get ready. Place your bets with supreme confidence and faith on this weeks' picks.

NORTH CAROLINA over SOUTH CAROLINA
DUKE over MARYLAND
VIRGINIA TECH over WAKE FOREST
WEST VIRGINIA over SYRACUSE

Tar Heels Down Tigers In Charlotte

Tar Heels Meet Gamecocks Tonight

By JIM COGHILL
Asst. DTH Sports Editor

The North meets the South tonight in Charlotte Coliseum, but both teams would rise to the tune of Dixie and with little reservation since UNC's Tar Heels take on USC's Gamecocks.

Tap off time will be 9 o'clock and Coach Dean Smith's men are looking for another win over South Carolina just as impressive as the 104-70 victory on Feb. 7 on the local court.

The Tar Heels are now in fifth place in the ACC with a 12-9 overall record and a 5-5 conference record and the Gamecocks carry a 9-9 record overall and 3-10 in conference play.

This North-South Doubleheader will also feature N. C. State and Clemson who play prior to the UNC-USC encounter.

Although Carolina has trounced the Gamecocks, South Carolina can boast that it beat Duke, currently the number two team in the nation, so the UNC ball club will have to be on its heels tonight.

Carolina will be led by Bob Lewis who leads the ACC scoring with a 28.6 average and Larry Miller who is averaging 22.6 points per contest, one-tenth of a point behind third-place Bob Leonard of Wake Forest.

Tom Gauntlett is averaging 9.8 points per game while Bob Bennett is scoring at a pace of 8.3 points per contest.

In the rebounding department Miller, Lewis and Bennett are averaging 9.9, 5.5 and 6.5 rebounds per game respectively.

South Carolina will build its probable starting lineup around sophomore guards Jack Thompson and Skip Harlicka as well as Gamecock forwards Al Salvadoria and Frank Standard and center John Standard.

The ACC race is now going into the final laps and North Carolina, N. C. State and Clemson are all looking for second and third place berths and South Carolina is trying to escape the conference cellar in order to avoid a pairing with Duke in the ACC Tournament on March 3, 4 and 5.

Carolina will have two games remaining after this weekend's encounters at Charlotte. The game with Virginia next Tuesday night will be played at Carmichael and then Saturday afternoon the Tar Heels travel to Duke in rounding out season action.

Mangum Nips Ruffin 72-71

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The Mangum Mugs held on for a 72-71 thriller over the Ruffin Rebels in intramural basketball on Thursday. Frank Harrison pumped in 26 points to pace the Mug attack while Joe Dunn ripped in 16 and Bill Sessoms added 16 more. Dave Bower hit 23, Norm Leate 11, Dave Spencer 10 and Bill Skeen 10 for the Rebels. Ruffin trailed, 36-28, at the half, and outscored the Mugs 43-36 in the second half, but their rally fell one point short.

The Everett Rogah defeated the Aycock Aardwolves, 72-50 behind the 26 points of Tom Dail. John Biddle had 16, Andy Denny 13 and Tom Howard 11 for Everett. Huntley scored 26 and Worsley 16 for the Aardwolves.

The Joyner Supporters pummeled the Joyner Dunkers, 61-25. White and Cochrane led all scorers with 24 and 22 points, respectively.

Steve Spencer tallied 25 points as the Alexander Poobahs scored an easy 61-25 victory over the Joyner Lyons.

The Morrison D Ponies edged the Morrison B Bucs, 45-44. John Morris scored 15 for the Ponies while Charles Cranford had 20 for the Bucs.

Jeff Ward had 15 points as Law III Blue beat the Hilltoppers, 36-35.

Med School White downed the Phillips Eulers, 43-36. Shearin scored 12 points, Kourl 10, Woodard 10 and Archie 9 for Med School.

Law II Orange beat the Geology Coprolites, 39-34, with McMillan scoring 13 points and Wellford 10. Repsher had 13 for Geology.

The Med School Blues defeated the Navy Dolphins, 63-48. Bill Jarman scored 16 points, Bill Hubbard 13 in the win. Bob Keber had 15 for Navy.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes polished off the Town Falcons, 84-57. Frankie Gibbs, Mike Knowles and Bill Bouten each scored 18 points for the FCA. Pennington tallied 18 for the Falcons.

Former football player Gene Sigmon popped in 24 points to lead Law II Blue over BSU, 78-36. Barr added 16, Babbs 13, Cannon 13 and Trammel 12 as every Law player hit for double figures.

M. Williams scored 20 points and J. Rhyne 17 as the Med Yellows defeated Dental School IV, 53-46. Church had 17 for Dental School.

The NROTC Neseps nosed out Med Mooses I, 42-40, Marshall was high scorer for the Neseps with 22 points and Hill was next with 9.

Women's Rights Or "I Was A Rejected Sportswriter"

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

"Hey, I saw your picture in the paper, Carol! Going to report the Clemson-Carolina game in Charlotte, huh? Great!

Yeh. Great. There is only one little thing wrong. Said Carol is not traveling to Charlotte's Coliseum "to report the "'feminine' outlook on College basketball," as the clever little caption under the clever little picture informed the general public.

Because I feel sure just thousands of you have hardly been able to concentrate on studies since you are living in happy anticipation of the moment when the "femine outlook" will appear, I'm going to tell you, and I want you to be brave about it, why I was unable to attend the North-South doubleheader in Charlotte.

I have a major problem that at this late date I feel sure will be difficult to overcome. I'm a girl.

Girls in a press box are as welcome as bubonic plague in the spring, it seems. Certain people, "a high official source reported today," would not be pleased with my blundering attempts to play sportswriter. There is only one woman sports writer in the state, and since I don't look a great deal like her, there was little chance of faking that "high source" off.

Granted, I'm a little over the three months away from a college degree, in journalism; that if a boy decided he's like to be "Sportswriter For A Day" his press card would be as good as a gold Hearst Newspaper Award; that it was an original approach to something that is reported so often that there seems no remaining possibility of originality.

No, I'm not bitter. Me? Do I feel discrimated against? Me? Sure I can understand why they can't have scads of starry-eyed reporters in sweet syrupy voices saying, "Oh please, Mr. Editor. Can I play sportswriter tonight?" (Appropriate fluttering of eye-lashes here). Press box would begin to look like the beauty parlor at high noon, and sound like it too.

But funny thing. It seems that I'm rather unique in my desire to see what it's like being a sports editor (I have a rather morbid sense of curiosity), and reporting on it in a "feminine way." Somehow I doubt seriously that similar requests would pour in from around the state. Besides, my eyes are too blood-shot to be starry, and the syrup leaves my voice when I hang up the phone.

Anyway, stop holding your breath now because there won't be a report from me in the sports section of Tuesday's paper. Wednesday there will be. I'll be attending the game Tuesday night with notebook in hand.

Of course, unless I can get a test case based on the Civil Rights act (no discrimination on the basis of sex) through the Federal Courts by that time, I may be up in the stands along with the normal people.

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Clean Sweep Claimed By North As Carolina, State Take Opening Wins

GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

CHARLOTTE — North Carolina's Tar Heels gave the North a clean sweep in the opening round action of the North-South Doubleheader in Charlotte last night defeating the Clemson Tigers 70-66.

In the opener, the Wolfpack of N.C. State defeated South Carolina 68-63.

The Tar Heel victory, which ended a three game UNC losing streak, dropped the Tigers into a third place tie with the Tar Heels—each with 7-5 ACC records. The Wolfpack victory left them all alone in second place with a 7-4 record.

The Tar Heels forged a tough 38-28 halftime lead and held on against repeated Clemson second half rushes.

Bobby Lewis, Bob Bennett, and Larry Miller were the Tar Heel stalwarts in that first half. Lewis managed 18 points while Bennett added 9 more. Miller swept the boards clean—grabbing 11 rebounds to lead both clubs.

The Tar Heels quickly jumped to the advantage in the opening minutes of that first half—outscoring the Tigers 8-10 during the first four and one half minutes.

The Tigers soon reacted however, and with 11:40 remaining, the Tar Heel lead was one point—13-12. With 8:40 remaining the Tigers had tied the score at 20-20.

Then the Tar Heels began another spurt, outscoring the Tigers 9-2 in the next two minutes to take a 29-22 lead, but the Tigers again perked up the action—scoring five points in succession to cut that lead to two points—29-22 with 4:44 remaining.

But a foul by Yokley and a three point play by Bennett increased that lead to 34-28. A Lewis field goal with 1:35 remaining and another swisher with the buzzer sounding gave the Tar Heels a ten point advantage—38-28.

The Tigers made their serious spurt in the opening minutes of the first half—outscoring the Tar Heels 11-2 in the first three minutes. A Jim Sullivan field goal with 16:40 remaining in the game cut the Tar Heel lead 40-39.

But again the Tar Heels pushed back the Tigers. With 14:25 remaining a John Yokley free throw gave the Tar Heels a 46-40 advantage. With 13-35 remaining a three point by Lewis shot the Tar Heels 51-43. With 9:35 remaining Larry Miller hit for an 11 point advantage 59-48.

The Tigers never seriously threatened after that. With nine minutes to go the Tar Heels went into their four corners offense and played for the good shots. Two baskets by Gary Helms and one by Gerald Ayoob in the final minute of action cut a 70-60 UNC lead to a final 70-66 margin.

North Carolina's Bobby Lewis led the scoring for both clubs with 26 points. Tom Gauntlett and Bob Bennett added 17 each. Larry Miller scored only 7 points, but he pulled down 17 rebounds to easily lead both clubs in that department.

The Tigers also placed three men in double figures. Gary Helms lead with 16 points followed closely by Randy Mahaffey and Jim Sullivan with 14 and 13 points respectively.

The big Tar Heel advantage came at the foul line as they hit on 20 of 25 chances. Clemson managed only 10 of 19. The Tar Heels hit 25 of 51 from the floor for 49 per cent and they also lead in rebounding 36-34.

Babies' Streak Chopped By VPI Goblets, 71-61

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

BLACKSBURG, Va. — The unbeaten season is no more.

Just like an aged twig when it is bent past its giving extreme, the Tarbabies 13 game winning streak was snapped here last night.

It was no green twig cracked, but a clean, complete break, which was tarnished by a poor officiating job, and by a brief fight which erupted in the wanning seconds of the game.

Virginia Tech's Goblets took that twig in their hands last night and snapped it as cleanly as you'll ever see. They took the lead from the outset of the game and never surrendered it, turning back every semblance of a Tar Baby rally to win by 71-61.

Tech played a hard-driving, harrassing brand of basketball, which was lead by its top-notch guard, Chris Ellis.

Ellis turned in a sterling performance, scoring 20 points to lead his club, grabbing seven rebounds, and stealing the ball with reckless abandon.

The Goblet star fouled out of the game with 27 seconds left. When he fouled Gerald Tuttle for his fifth, a push-and-shove resulted which saw several players throwing punches. Then both benches emptied, but the melee was calmed before extensive damage was done.

It was Ellis' play which broke the game open with just over eight minutes remaining.

Carolina was down by 49-43 with 8:26 to go, after trailing by 35-32 at the half. Ellis then scored on a base line drive, stole the ball for another basket as UNC brought the ball upcourt, and took a pass on a fast break with 6:58 left for a score which widened his team's lead to 12. Stan Kerrick hit two free throws seconds later to make it 57-43 with 6:40 left.

At this time, UNC rallied for seven straight points, with Rusty Clark—the game's high scorer with 24 points—getting six. Joe Brown's follow shot at 3:59 made it 58-52, but Tech stretched it to nine. Then with 2:16 left the Goblets scored seven straight to run to their biggest lead of the night, 71-56 with 42 seconds to go. The Tar Babies scored the last five points of the game, but it was all over.

VPI jumped to a 5-0 lead and the closest Carolina could come to taking the upper hand in the first half was 10-9 with 13:08 to go.

Tech outscored UNC by 9 to 2 in one two-minute stretch before halftime to build a 31-19 lead. But the Tar Babies scored the last nine points of the half—five by Tuttle—to close to within 35-32 at the midway point.

Down the second half stretch Rusty Clark tried in vain to rally his team, as he scored 12 of 14 Tar Baby points in five minutes. But also in this period, VPI was building a seven point lead to 15, and Carolina was out of it.

Clark hit 11 of 14 shots from the floor and was the only UNC player to hit better than half his shots. As a team, Carolina was able to hit only 27 of 56 field goal trys for 46.2%. Additionally, they made only 7 of 15 free throw chances. Clark led in rebounding with 14, as Carolina led in that department, 39-33. VPI hit 49.2% from the floor.

Frosh Unbeaten

The UNC freshman swimming team finished its season unbeaten by beating Staunton Military Academy of Virginia, 78-15, and Marist School for Boys of Atlanta, 72-22, yesterday.

A 200-yard medley relay team of Fred Danneman, Tom Ferretti, Doug Behrman and Jim Edwards swam 1:40.2, shattering the NCAA freshman record and tying the American national record. Dave Ball set a UNC frosh record with a 4:08.2 in the 200-yard freestyle

Thinclad Action Today

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

After a satisfying win last Saturday in the Big Six, the Carolina trackmen take on ACC foes Clemson and South Carolina in the Tin Can today.

In the field events Carolina will have the same line-up as they did a week ago. In the pole vault the combination of Lester Hyder and Bill Busby should give the thinclads a good one-two punch. Ron Short and Felix Alley have shown considerable improvement in the shot put and do not have to contend with Duke's Rod Steward, this week.

Tilden Bridges, who finished third last week, has a good chance to win the high jump this week. He showed that he has the potential to be a fine high jumper, and he is the favorite in this event. In the broad jump Gary Iverson, who has been consistently over 22 feet, has a good chance to take first place honors.

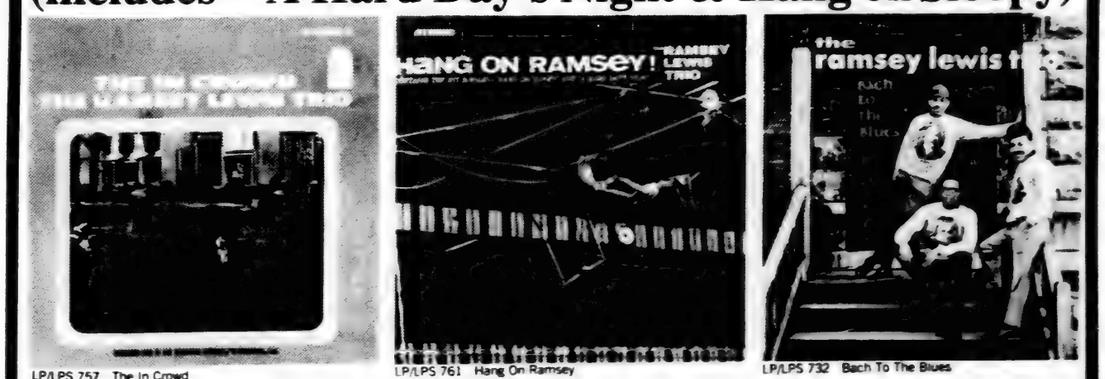
Jon Levin remained undefeated last week in the 60 yd. dash. Clemson has talent in race, but Levin has the speed to win. The hurdles have become a strong event for Carolina in the past few weeks. Hryharrow and Ambrose give the trackmen added and much needed depth in this event.

Ed Daw, who lost last week to NCC, still remains undefeated in ACC competition. He will face strong opposition from Clemson, which has always had a strong contender in this race. Co-captain Bill Janowitz and soph Bill Bassett are the 880 yd. entries for Carolina. They will face stiff competition from Bob Crombie of South Carolina, who won this event last year in the ACC Indoor Games.

After an incredible double in the mile and the 1000 yd. run last week, sophomore Mike Williams will be put to the task as he most likely will have to beat last year's ACC outdoor mile champion, Bob Crombie. Williams has not been pushed this year, and this race should be an exciting one.

Jim Meade, who has been having a bad year, should win the two mile. Dronc of Clemson is his main competitor, but Meade has beaten him consistently for three years and should do it again.

The Ramsey Lewis Trio exclusively on Cadet Records latest album — "Hang On Ramsey" (includes — A Hard Day's Night & Hang on Sloopy)



LP/LPS 757 The In Crowd
LP/LPS 761 Hang On Ramsey
LP/LPS 732 Bach To The Blues

There's a world of excitement on Cadet, Chicago, Ill. 60616

DAVID, DELLA ROSA AND BROOKS, a sensational new singing group, will appear here during Jubilee April 30. They received raves from their recent concert at N.C. State.

8 Groups To Get Awards

Sonny Pepper, chairman of the North Carolina Blood Drive, said yesterday that the Senior Class will present service awards to the groups who helped in the drive.

The eight groups that have been named to receive the service plaques are the Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight, NROTC, Semper Fidelis, Chi Omega, Pi Beta Phi, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Nu Fraternity.

Pepper said, "Members of these groups gave at least three hours each of their time and most of them also gave blood."

NSA Sponsors Tour

The U. S. National Student Association is sponsoring a

All students from NSA member schools are eligible to apply. The dealine for applying is March 15.

Six delegates and six alternates will be picked.

The purpose of the delegation is to meet with the students of the Pacific area student leader delegation to New Zealand, Australia and Japan for this summer.

The delegates will visit these countries from June 15-Aug. 18. All expenses are paid

Firms To Interview

Swift & Co.; Price Waterhouse & Co.; Johnson & Johnson; J. P. Stevens & Co.; and Monsanto (summer work) will interview students on Monday.

Anyone who wants an interview should go by the Placement Service, 24 Gardner, for an appointment.

Environmental Health

Dr. Raymond Fagan of the Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. will speak on "Viruses in the Environment" at a seminar in environmental health today at 10 a.m. in room 228 of the School of Public Health.

Flowers To Leave

Dr. Charles E. Flowers Jr., professor of obstetrics and gynecology at North Carolina, has accepted a post as chairman of the Department of obstetrics and Gynecology at Baylor University College of Medicine.

He has been at North Carolina since 1953.

Officials Fear Flu Outbreak

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina health officials are conducting tests on virus from Halifax County to determine if a sharp decline in school attendance Friday was caused by Asian flu.

The symptoms of the Halifax County sickness indicate an outbreak of Asian flu, said Dr. Ronald Levine, head of the State Epidemiology Division.

Levine said the tests will show whether the virus is the same as that which put thousands of teachers and 15 per cent of the student body out of school in the city of Los Angeles Thursday.

A milder strain of the virus, he said, had been reported in Georgia and Massachusetts.

In 1963, a nationwide Asian flu epidemic broke out in Robeson County. During that winter more than 1,000 North Carolina deaths were attributed the disease.

Frank Porter Graham Speech

In this noble temple of liberty and learning, resourced in our spiritual heritage and humane hopes under a gallant administrative faculty and student leadership, it is historically fitting to stand for the intellectual freedom and moral autonomy of a university.

The educational purpose of a university is served when the forum, responsibly and democratically sponsored by students, faculty and administration, is open to all shades of views: the extreme right, the moderate right, the liberal, the moderate left, and the extreme left.

The educational purpose of a true university would not limit an extreme left wing or an extreme right wing speaker to give his views only on a scientific or other scholarly subject. If he is a Fascist or Communist Party member, and thereby under the tyranny of a sometime shifting party line, he is not the most competent authority for such scholarly views which in any way involve ideology, even with the assured freedom of an open forum. A Communist or Fascist is competent to interpret communism of fascism as he sees it.

All American universities have the policy of not knowingly employing a professor who is a member of a Fascist or Communist Party and is thereby under the tyranny of a totalitarian party lines. Such a person is thereby disqualified from teaching in a university committed to academic freedom.

Understand the World

Students who live in the American and Western world also live in a world in which live hundreds of millions of people in the Communist world. Students need first hand to become acquainted with and understand the realities, the issues, the perils and the hopes of the world in which they are to live, work, vote and play their responsible part in a free society. As I have said before, freedom has risks, but the risks of a closed society are far more dangerous than the risks of a free and open society.

It is not a wise policy to build up in students' minds the idea, however unintentional, that the Communist view is so powerful that it will out-weigh all other views presented in the university community, in which, for example at Chapel Hill, the present storm center, there are hundreds of teachers who are both anti-Communist and anti-Fascist, and in which there are over 12,000 anti-Communist and anti-Fascist students.

Such a policy for the censorship of ideas in the American free market of ideas, would not serve a real democratic educational purpose. It is our faith that the authorities on mature thought do not mean to say to a restlessly inquring student generation in a world in ferment, that they are afraid for youth in the state colleges and universities to hear about communism or fasciam from a Communist or Fascist speaker.

Such a policy, however unintentional, is)1) to over-rate the meaning, values and powers of communism or fascism in a free society; (2) to underrate the intelligence, loyalties and responsibilities of students and teachers in a free university; (3) to reveal a lack of faith in the meaning, values and power of the variety and vigor of American freedom and the long tested robustness of our historic American democracy; and (4) to make it difficult to hold and recruit the most distinguished teachers of students and eminent scholars in research in all fields, so indispensable to the building of the agricultural, industrial, educational, humane and spiritual life of a great state.

Don't Sell Soul

The people of North Carolina, however misinformed they may be at a given time, in the long run respect their colleges and universities most when these institutions are most true to their inner selves.

Despite any threats of reprisal or the appeal of political expediency, or any expaseration of circumstances, the university of the people will not sell its freedom to serve the hour.

They do not bend to the winds of fear. They stand foursquare to all the winds that blow. They do not wait to see which way the winds are blowing, but will, in justice to their responsibility for the long-run interest and better selves of the people, seek to give a higher direction to the winds that blow for the present youthful generation and all the generations to come.

Those who in their patriotic zeal and concern would ask the President, the Chancellors, the professors and the students to accept a policy which they consider wrong, for the sake of gaining the world, are asking all our State colleges and universities to sell their souls, with the result that in the long run they lose both their souls and the world.

As members of a largely self-governing community of scholars in a free society, professors and students leaders in the movement for the preservation of academic freedom and the Bill of Rights, who fought on the farthest fronts of freedom for the Bill of Rights for all people, have been shocked to find that there has developed in their own beloved North Carolina, a mood for the denial of the Bill of Rights in one of the original historic American States. All honor to the students, faculty, and eminent President of Duke University for allowing Aptheker and Wilkinson, who are not under federal indictment for disloyalty, to speak in an open forum.

The State of North Carolina, which, after its valiant part in helping to win the American Revolution, did not join the Union until assured that the Bill of Rights would be made a basic part of the Constitution of the United States, must not now be the only state which prohibits open forums, in violation of this Bill of Rights. It is my faith in the trustees that they do not mean to say to the state institutions of higher learning, that these institutions are to have academic freedom provided they do not exercise real academic freedom.

The State of North Carolina, in the days of America's infant weakness, was the first state to authorize its delegates to vote for a Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia. North Carolina, which thereby became a haven of dissenters and the disinherited of the earth, must not now, in the days of America's vast power, be the state, which, in response to a faithless fear, would prohibit dissent in violation of the very principles for which the American Revolution was fought.

North Carolina must again make clear to ourselves and the world that the great declarations of human liberty and human rights are not only the past and historic professions of a great faith but are now the present and living sources of America's faith in herself, the world's faith in America, and America's moral power and influence in a world of peril and hope for all mankind.

Faith Groups Plan Sunday Evening Fete

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religion Editor

There will be an 'ecumenical' exchange dinner sponsored by the UNC — Interfaith Council Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center on Henderson Street.

The program will be "Ecumenical Dialogue in the Univ menical Dialogue in the University Community." Charlotte Bunch, secretary of the National Student Christian Federation, will speak.

Afterwards a presentation by the Interfaith Council, concerning study groups and seminars available at the various religious centers here on campus will be given.

The Interfaith Council is made up of the Lutheran Student Association, the Baptist Student Union, the Wesley Foundation, the Episcopal Student Congregation. the Carolina Christian Fellowship, the Westminister Fellowship, the Newman Club, the Hillel Foundation and the YM-YWCA.

Some of the studies available are on: The Theology of Paul Tillich, The Philosophy of Teilhard De Chardin, The Thought of Dietrich Bonhoeffer, a study of In Loco Parentis, A Kierkegaard Seminar, and the Community of Celebration.

Of course, there are other studies of diverse interest. You can learn further about these groups by attending the supper or by contacting individual centers.

What's Up At Carolina

TODAY

Chapel Hill High School will have a pancake sale 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. or later if necessary. Serving at school cafeteria, next to Granville Hall. All the pancakes, sausage, and coffee you can eat for $1. Milk extra. Children under 12, 50 cents. Tickets at the door.

Two scholarships will be awarded in the 1966 Tri Delta Scholarship Competition. All women students of UNC are eligible for the $150 scholarships. The recipients of these scholarships will be eligible for competition for a $1,000 National award. The deadline for application is Feb. 26. Application blanks may be obtained from the Student Aid Office.

Mrs. Billy Graham

Wife of the famed evangelist, has been named 1966 Easter Seal Chairman for North Carolina.

"It gives me great pleasure to be of assistance to crippled children and adults of North Carolina," Mrs. Graham said.

The North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults is a volunteer health agency which provides volunteer services and facilities for the physically handicapped.

It has pioneered in education for the homebound child, summer camps for the handicapped, speech and hearing clinics and itinerant physical therapy.

LEADING KILLER

More North Carolinians died from heartand blood vessel diseases during 1965 than from all other causes of death.

SUNDAY

The Student Party Advisory Board will meet at 6 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Carolina Political Union will meet at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. Acting Chancellor Sitterson will address the group on "University Speaker Policies and the North Carolina Political Climate." Members only for this meeting, please.

Film Forum — "End of Innocence" will be shown at 7:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center.

Protestant Yough Groups — Supper, 6 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center.

On Sunday morning at 11 there will be a service of worship for the University Community at the Wesley Foundation, 214 Pittsboro Street Robert Johnson will deliver the sermon.

The Sunday Afternoon Symposium at 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation will present a drama: "The Private Lives of the Master Race" by Berthold Brecht. Directed by Terry Gregory in the Gallery.

Cathy Waldron, flutist, and Hunter Jordan, soprano, both candidates for the Batchelor of Music Education degree will present their senior recital at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall. Miss Waldron will be performing works by Bach, Busser, Karg-Elert and David Diamond. Miss Jordon will be singing works of Gounod, Faure, Handel, Carissimi and Gretry.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: History 72 notes in Howell Hall. Please return to Jim Fields, 106 Stacy, or the Journalism Office in Howell Hall.

Lost: One annotated copy of the "Meaning of Meaning" by Ogden and Richards. Also, one grey - bound literature Criticism notebook. Contact Fontaine Belfore, 968-9148

Lost: Red looseleaf notebook in Lenoir Hall. Reward offered. Contact Nancy Walker, 968-9035.

Quality Paperbacks at Low Prices

For class requirements, for background reading — but then in our Old Book Corner at just about half the new book price.

The Intimate Bookshop

LOOK

$1 BUYS WHAT DURING HICKORY FARMS' DOLLAR DAYS!

Reg. 59c Box Hickory Farms
COOKIES
Vanilla Wafers
Ginger Snaps
Sugar Cookies
Oatmeal Cookies
2 Boxes $1.00

Reg. 1.29 lb. Hickory Farms
Caramel Candies
Vanilla, Licorice, Vanilla Nut, Chocolate, Chocolate Nut
$1.00 lb.

Reg. 1.29 Lb., Aunt Jack's
Creamy Fudge
Chocolate or Vanilla
$1.00 lb.

Reg. 49c Box
Sesami Stix
3 for $1.00

HICKORY FARMS
Eastgate Shopping Center

MORE NEW STOCKS ARRIVE DAILY

ALL RECORDS—

ALL LABELS
POP—CLASSICAL MONO
STEREO

50% OFF REGULAR PRICES

SATURDAY. FEBRUARY 19th

KEMP'S Franklin Street

Saddle and Fox

STEAK HOUSE & OYSTER BAR

Chesapeake Oysters
Steamed or on the half shell
Prime Ribs of Beef

Banquets & Receptions

Inquire about our famous OYSTER ROASTS

Take 15-501 Durham By-Pass — Turn Right at Holiday Inn — Continue East 2 Blocks on Hillsboro Road.

ROBERTS

Trujuns

are sewn by hand* to flex on your foot like a glove

The penny loafer's back to campus with a foam cushioned insole making Trujuns feel as good as they look. And look at all the ways they're up and coming: black cherry, black forest or golden harvest Scotch grain leather. Black cherry, palamino or black smooth. All leather lined. Roberts Trujuns $13.00 to $18.00.

*Handsewn fronts

Wouldn't you like to be in our shoes? Most of America is. International Shoe Co. St. Louis, Mo.

Available at these fine stores:

The Country Cobbler 518 South Main St., Burlington, N. C.	Hugh Austin Mens Wear, 237 Market St., Smithfield, N. C.	Richardson Dept. Store, 133-135 South Main St., High Point, N. C.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 99 — CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1966 — Founded February 23, 1893

Faculty Council

Acting Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson has called a special meeting of the Faculty Council Wednesday, 4 p.m., in 111 Murphy Hall.

'Schnapps'

The Dutch in 1680 were the first people to make gin by adding juniper berries to "schnapps."

AQUAHOLICS CLUB member Steve Price is prepapring to dive for a sunken water intake in the muddy 42 degree waters of University Lake. Steve and three other divers finally managed to recover the intake after a two hour struggle, but then it was down again for the Aquaholics — they had to replace it. DTH Photo by Bob Harris

UNC Aquaholics Scrounge Cold, Muddy Lake Bottom

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

Divers from UNC's Aquaholics Club today successfully retrieved an extension intake from beneath the 42 degree waters of University Lake.

This was their fifth attempt to recover the intake which had been buried in the mud under 30 feet of water since last March.

The intake is an angular tube about five feet long and two feet wide, weighing about 100 pounds. It is used to take in top water from the community's water supply, thus avoiding the mud, silt and mineral deposits on the lake's bottom.

J. E. Moore, lake warden, said the missing intake had caused no problems since it had been replaced immediately by a substitute.

The intake is needed mostly in the spring when rains and rising water muddies the reservoir.

Clad in black, hooded, wet suits, the divers looked remarkably like medieval executioners. With their 45 pounds of equipment they submerged in the dark, windswept water, leaving only bubbles and churning froth where they had been.

The divers—Steve Price, Parker Hudson, Ernie Patterson and Tommy Rhodes—were supposed to have been kept warm by their wet suits, but their blue faces told a different story.

Parker Hudson, club president, described what it is like beneath the surface of University Lake: "It's cold. It's dark. It's a dark like you've never seen."

The Aquaholics Club is presently composed of 20 members, including one coed. Seven more coeds are joining when the club starts a new training cycle on March 7. This is the last date new members will be permitted to join this year.

On March 6 the Aquaholics will participate in a "Starfish Derby" near Morehead City. Scuba divers from all over the state will participate.

They also have tentative plans for a "treasure hunt" off the North Carolina coast later this spring, looking for sunken ships.

Many of the club members have had considerable experience diving for sunken ships.

Tommy Rhodes once worked as a salvage diver off the Florida Keys. Both Parker Hudson and Steve Price are accomplished underwater photographers.

SSL Hears Gag Law Denounced

"Speaker Ban Laws are the totalitarian way—open forums are the American way, a former Consolidated University President told the State Student Legislature Friday.

"We must not teach our students communism is so powerful that it cannot be heard," Dr. Frank Porter Graham said.

"This is the only state of all 50 which has taken a stand against the open forum and the Bill of Rights," he said to the group meeting in Raleigh.

Graham recalled when he was Consolidated University President Duke students came to UNC to hear speakers.

Two hundred were present for Friday's meeting in the Dept. of Agriculture auditorium.

ELECTION TUESDAY

Carolina Student Leaders Favor Amendment Change

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

The constitutional amendment which will be put before the student body for a vote Tuesday was termed as the "most important piece of legislation passed in Student Government this year."

Don Wilson, SP Majority Floor Leader, said the amendment will greatly improve the efficiency of Student Government and its ability to serve the student body.

"If it is passed," Wilson said, "it will enable the vice president to take on a bigger role in the student government rather than just presiding over the legislature. He will be able to represent the president and make policy statements whereas this has not been possible in the past where the president and vice president were of opposite political parties."

The amendment, which was passed by Student Legislature Feb. 10 by the necessary 2-3 majority, provides that the president and vice president of the student body shall be elected on the same ticket rather than on individual tickets.

"Student Government is to get something done," Wilson said, "so conflict can't exist among the executive officers."

A bill proposing a similar constitutional amendment was introduced last year. "The SP endorsed the bill," Wilson said, "but the UP legislators voted against it." The bill did not get the necessary 2-3 majority for passage.

Wilson and Don Carson co-sponsored the bill in the Student Legislature this year and after it was endorsed by most student body officials, was passed in the legislature.

"In the past the bill has been defeated purely for political reasons," Wilson said. "Each party thought the other party may get the upper hand if the constitution was changed."

"But both parties have agreed that political reasons be put aside in this issue and vote in the interest of the Student Government and the Student Body," Wilson said.

Student Body President Paul Dickson pointed out that the past five student body presidents have endorsed the proposed change in the constitution. Three of the past five administrations have had the president and vice president from opposing parties.

"Administrations in these years have not been as smooth or harmonious as when there were people from the same party holding the offices of the president and vice president," Dickson said.

He said that during campaigns animosity toward opposing candidates and parties usually develops. "This is to be expected in terms of debate and when you're competing against a man, you don't usually work with him as well as a man who is working with you. The parties, when they select a slate of candidates, try to pick two people who are compatable in terms of ability to work together and in terms of knowledge of student government.

"Running a student government is just like running anything else," Dickson said. "It takes teamwork.

"When you get two people in that office you want them to accomplish as much as possible in the short one year they are in office," he said. "If they have worked together in the past and campaigned together, it's a sure thing they are going to work better together in the office.

MOCK TRIAL

Students Found Innocent

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

A mock trial jury ruled Friday night that Wendy Farer and Terry Gregory did not assassinate Clu Clucks Clown Grand Gizard Frank Bridges.

After deliberating 40 minutes, the jury unanimously found the defendants innocent of first degree murder.

Defense attorneys Bob Thompson, Stuart Saunders, George Carson and Terry Vann were elated.

The State claimed Gregory owned the gun that killed Bridges.

It also introduced as circumstantial evidence the discovery by police of a gun in Miss Farer's apartment three days after the killing.

The defendants had allegedly threatened Bridges by saying he must be "got rid of one way or another."

State attorneys Charles Woerner, Pat Morgan, Martin Lancaster and Jim Chandler said that this evidence, together with testimony that Gregory was a "crack shot," indicated the defendants' guilt.

The defense claimed the prosecution had not even established a case deserving jury deliberation.

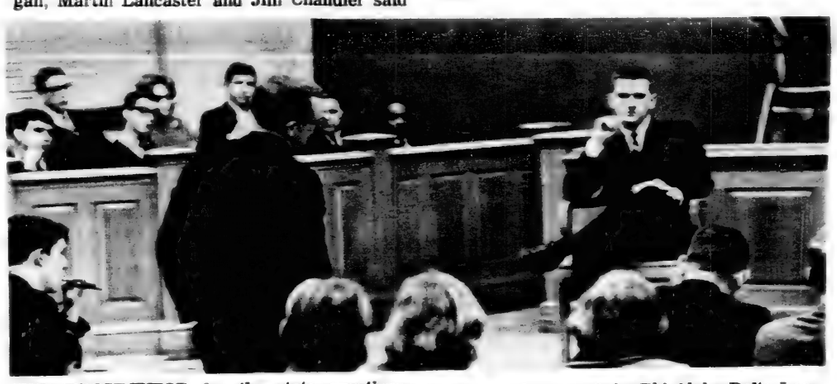
The defendants insisted they were attending a movie at the time of the shooting.

The ticket clerk who said he sold them tickets corroborated their story.

Gregory contested prosecution witness Norwood Boyd's testimony that the murder gun (.243 calibre Winchester with a scope sight), was in Gregory's possession the evening of the slaying.

He said the weapon he had then was a .22 caliber with which he was to show Miss Farer how to shoot rabbits the next day.

Miss Farer testified that many persons had access to her apartment and could have used the gun and returned it without her knowledge.



THE PROSECUTOR for the state questions a witness during the mock trial of two North Carolina students held Friday night. The trial is an annual event of the Phi Alpha Delta Law fraternity. —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

ECC Head Sees Many Alternatives

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

The president of East Carolina College Leo W. Jenkins said yesterday the possiblity of merging his school into the Consolidated University was only one of several alternatives being considered in expanding the college into a university.

Jenkins refused to elaborate on statements earlier in the week on the actual possibility of bringing ECC into the Consolidated University.

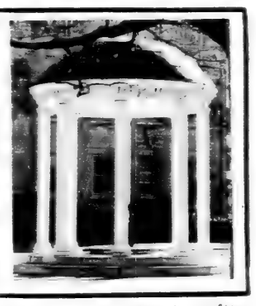
He would not say whether he had changed his mind about attempting to make ECC an independent university, a concept he has strongly backed in the past.

Jenkins said he would rather not discuss the matter over the telephone. Only Tuesday, speaking in a Raleigh TV interview, Jenkins, had said that ECC "is functioning as a university without the name."

Jenkins issued a statement Friday saying that he had been instructed by his board of trustees to "explore and expound on the idea of East Carolina becoming a university."

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



(Ed Freakley is out of town. His column today is written by David Rothman).

Offending? Why Of Course

The advertisements for The Loved One were more honest than the undertakers that the movie satirized.

Nobody at the Carolina Theater Friday night felt misled by the publicity ballyhooing it as "The Motion Picture With Something to Offend Everyone."

The film fulfilled the promise beautifully.

It ridiculed God knows what besides the funeral industry—including God.

Repulsion being The New Art Form, many persons asked the departing audience The Question:

"Were you offended?"

"Yes," was the unanimous reply.

"It's sacrilegious and an insult to one's country," somebody declared. He said he was very inspired.

The crowd happily grinned. They filed into the building, taking the place of the persons leaving.

The film opened with scenes of ugly Los Angeles while an off-camera chorus solemnly intoned: "A-mer-i-ca the beautiful." One person added to the irony by saluting the movie screen.

"Here's the slumber room," said a voice on the sound track. Among the room's attractions were busty funeral parlor employes — whose measurements led one Carolina Gentleman to be a Carolina Gentleman by yelling: "Aw riiii . . .te! The girls lay in caskets.

The AFROTC members of the audience probably got a bit peeved at seeing Air Force officers jump into the coffins to be hugged.

Mainly because they couldn't join the men in the film.

As for the ministers in the theater — I'll bet they reacted somewhat differently on watching their cinematic colleagues try to rape one of the brunette employees.

If any architects attend the film, they probably didn't like scenes of houses ready to fall off cliffs.

Scientists? I guess they did not enjoy the way a young rocket expert yelled "Blast-off!" while "a modified Atlas missile" hurled a "Loved One" — that is, a corpse — into space.

The cemetery operators planned to use rockets to dispose of the bodies so theycould be dug up to make room for "a senior citizens' home" which would be more profitable "because of the high turn-over rate."

I'll not even assume that any funeral directors were present — unless they had masochistic tendencies.

My own impressions?

I thought it was a great picture except for the part which satirized the newspapers.

Freshman Coed Found Innocent Of Manslaughter

Kathlen Lafferty, 17, freshman from Concord, was freed Friday on a manslaughter charge in the death of James Hammett, 21, also of Concord.

Recorder's Court Judge L. J. Phipps found no probable cause on the charge and acquitted Miss Lafferty on a reckless driving charge growing out of the highway accident the night of Dec. 11.

State Trooper T. J. Hines said Miss Lafferty was driving a car belonging to Hammett when it ran into the rear of another vehicle on N. C. 86 about a mile north of Chapel Hill. Hammett, who was riding in the front seat, died in Memorial Hospital the next morning of head injuries.

1966 Queen From UNC?

Coeds here have a chance to win $5,000 in prizes as the 1966 National College Queen.

This is an annual search to honor "the nation's most outstanding college girl." Judging is based on academic accomplishment—as well as attractiveness, charm and personality.

Prizes include an automobile, trip to Europe, ten shares of stock and a $500 wardrobe of the winner's choice.

The winner will be selected in June. One college girl from each of the 50 states will make the trip to the finals in New York.

Any undergraduate girl is eligible to enter. She may enter her own name or her name may be entered by any campus group. All entries—and questions—should be sent to National College Queen Contest Committee, 1501 Broadway, New York, N. Y., 10036.

The winner last year was a Michigan State sophomore, Susan Mallett. She was featured on a float in this year's Rose Bowl Parade. North Carolina's entry was Doris Stoessel of Duke.

Ecumenical Dinner Today

The North Carolina Interfaith Council will hold an ecumenical exchange dinner today at 5:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center on Henderson St.

Charlotte Bunch of the National Student Christian Federation at Duke will speak on the ecumenical dialogue in the university.

A program of religious seminars for the spring will be discussed at the dinner. The cost of the dinner is 60 cents and may be paid at the door.

The programs to be sponsored by the Interfaith Council will be on "The Philosophy of Teilhard De Chardin," "Conversations on Myth," "Tangled World—A discussion of Our Changing Society," "The Theology of Paul Tillich," "The Community of Celebration," "A Kierkegaard Seminar," "The Thought of Dietrich Bonhoeffer," and "A Dialogue on Student Freedom and University Authority."

Heart Group Officer

Henry Skinner, a sophomore from Wilson, was appointed as officer at large of the Orange County Heart Association Friday.

This is the first time a student has been so recognized, according to Dr. Oliver K. Cornwell, president of the association.

Frosh Cordinator

Interviews for Freshman Coordinator will be held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, according to Carol Ann Shaffer, present Freshman Coordinator.

The coordinator is appointed by the Women's Residence Council and holds office for one year. Junior and senior women are eligible.

The freshman coordinator is a member of the Orientation Committee and plans special orientation program for freshmen women.

During the rest of the year she works with the WRC in making and changing rules for freshmen women.

The interviews will be held in Roland Parker II in Graham Memorial on Monday from 5-6 p.m., on Wednesday from 3:30-5 p.m. and on Friday from 2-5 p.m. Applications may be picked up at the GM information desk.

Statistics Lectures

The first two lectures in a series of seminar lectures on "Combinatorial Mathematics and Its Application to Problems of Statistical Design and Communication Theory" will be held on March 3 and 4.

H. B. Mann of the Mathematics Research Center of the U. S. Army will speak on "Linear Relations Between Roots of Unity" on March 3 and 4 p.m. in rm. 265, Phillips.

Dr. D. K. Ray-Chaudhuri, also of the Mathematics Research Center, will speak on "Line Graphs of Bipartite Graphs" on the following day at 2 p.m. in 265 Phillips.

Special Free Flick

A special film, viewed by over two million persons at the Mormon pavilion at the New York World's Fair, will be shown in Carroll Hall Thursday at 8 p.m.

The film, "Man's Search for Happiness," present man's search in each of its three spheres of life. The flick is opened to the public.

Planetarium Courses

Morehead Planetarium will begin a 16 hour introductory course in astronomy on March 1. The course is open to adults and will meet Tuesday evenings from 7:15 to 8:30. Each session will involve one hour in the Planetarium, a fifteen minute break, and another hour in the classroom.

Any adult wishing to enroll in the course should pre-register by sending the Planetarium his name, address and a $15 fee.

Where Have The Flowers Gone?

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Somebody goofed.

Yesterday four signs were stuck in flowerpots outside Phillips Hall on the side facing Venable.

They said: "Please leave these flowers for others to enjoy."

The trouble is that the pots contained no flowers.

"The whole area's going to be fixed up when they get the money," said Sterling A. Stoudemire, chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee.

He said the spot will eventually be filled with greenery. The pots have been empty since the building was completed in 1959.

Campus Security Chief Arthur Beaumont declared: "I can't ever figure why they've left holes that size in the pots. Somebody might trip and fall down.

"For a while," said Beaumont, "we had the holes plugged up with plywood.

"But the clean-up crew must have been too efficient. They perhaps assumed a contractor left the wood there.

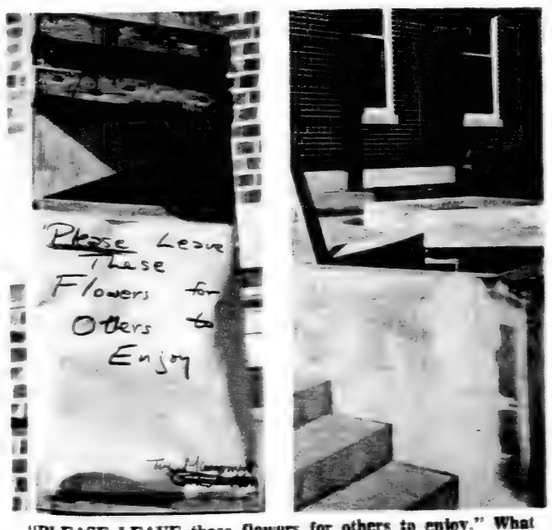
"The men follow instructions," he said. "They pick up everything."

Beaumont says the plywood probably isn't necessary since very few people use the back stairs of Phillips at night.

Meanwhile, the professors and students of the Physics Department are waiting the day when the entire area will spring forth with plants and the flowerpots will contain flowers instead of signs.

One student comments, however:

"I'd rather see placards asking that flowers be put into their pots than see some suggesting that American troops go out of Viet Nam."



"PLEASE LEAVE these flowers for others to enjoy." What flowers? The building committee says that these holes will burst forth with brilliant greenery — as soon as there's enough money. The sign on the left is hanging on the post sticking in the "flower beds" behind Phillips Hall.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

WUNC-FM (91.5 MG) SUNDAY

Mozart Spectacular for ten hours, from 1 to 10 p.m. Important works by the composer with commentary. Requests will be taken at the station on the day of broadcast.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

DTH Awards Of The Week

Most Comforting Fact of the Week: The announcement from Dr. John Billingham, a physiologist from the Manned Spacecraft Center, that the chances are only 2 1-2 in 100,000 that Appollo astronauts will be fatally injured by space radiation.

* * *

Concerned Governor Award: To Gov. Dan K. Moore, for his appointment of a nine-member commission Thursday to study North Carolina's criminal laws relating to sexual deviation and morals offenses.

* * *

Chicken of the Week: A 28-year-old Salerno, Italy, man who said "I don't want her" in the midst of his wedding last Sunday. He walked out of the church and his bride fainted. Relatives revived her, caught him and brought him back.

He married her.

* * *

Odyssey of the Week: State Student Legislature's search for a place to roost in Raleigh. For 28 years the group of college students from across the state has met in the chambers of the Old Capital, but the Department of Archieves and History — backed up by Gov. Dan K .Moore — refused to let them in this year. Wandering from pillar to post, the students Friday tried the Highway Commission Auditorium, the Education Building, the First Baptist Church and the board room of the Department of Agriculture.

* * *

Most Interesting Fact of the Week: The Veterans Administration said 13,892 Spanish-American War veterans are still alive and 12,800 of them are drawing compensation for service-connected disabilities or pensions for disabilities from other causes.

* * *

Mother of the Week: Mrs. Lucille DeVita of Huntington Park, Calif., who saved her five-year-old daughter from an attacking lion by sticking her hand down the beast's throat. The incident happened at a stable where the lion was kept as a pet. The child received head gashes and the mother suffered only tooth wounds on her right hand.

* * *

Worst Hair-Do of the Week: The "Batman Cut," featuring shaved-off eyebrows "to emphasize angles."

* * *

Best Protest of the Week: Tennessee Tech coeds who protested a month-long beard-growing contest being held by male students in connection with the Cookeville, Tenn., school's anniversary. The girls expressed displeasure with the fuzzy situation by wearing long gowns and night caps and carrying banners and large reproductions of safety razors, electric shavers and razor blades.

* * *

Bloody Good Fellow Award: To Richard Burton, just named president of the Oxford, England, Hemophilia Society.

* * *

Quote of the Week: General Maxwell D. Taylor, in response to Senator Wayne Morse's comment that the military struggle in Viet Nam will one day be repudiated by the American people: "That, of course, is good news to Hanoi, Senator."

* * *

Loser of the Week: Cassius (Muhamad Ali) Clay, reclassified 1-A by his draft board after earlier avoiding induction because of a low score on mental aptitude tests.

* * *

Worst News of the Week: Bunnies in Playboy clubs in New York, Chicago and Cincinnati are being fired because they have "outgrown the Bunny look." Turned-out Bunny Kelly O'Brien was indignant.

"Me too old?" she said. "I'm only 25 and nobody takes me for more than 19."

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Mike Jennings

Letters From The Readers

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The people of the United States are in real trouble. Their rulers have lost faith in themselves and therefore in man. This is especially true of North Carolina when the state legislators decided it was unsafe to let students in public schools listen to ideas that they themselves were afraid of. They turned the state's back on the future.

When I was a student at the University of North Carolina, 1912-17, the University was considered the leader of thought, free and uninhibited, in the South and the equal of any in the nation. No idea was denied its chance in the market place. And none, of course, should be, for it is here only that their value can properly be measured.

This enlightened policy was continued without interruption until the end of Frank Porter Graham's tenure of office as president. During this period, wherever I traveled — and I traveled very extensively throughout my more than 34 years service as a regular Army officer — I was proud to proclaim I was a product of the University of North Carolina. And I want to add that among scholars, I was accepted as a graduate of one of the leading universities of the United States.

This is no longer true, especially since the adoption of the speaker ban law. This is very unfortunate as are all witch hunts. The rulers of the state are degrading themselves as well as the teachers, the students, and the people of the state. The only comparable self-enforced injury I can think of is the Tennessee state law prohibiting the teaching of evolution.

I had hoped that the recent Governor's commission and the legislature would repair in part at least the original damage. But both again failed. Now the only hope lies with the students. I suggest they boycott all speakers until they are permitted to hear any one they choose.

It is time, it seems to me, that the teachers and students have both the power and right to listen to any and all ideas they choose. either the legislators nor the trustees should have the power to veto speakers which in substance means the power to veto ideas. This is a form of fascism completely incompatible with an institution of learning and a democratic free society.

Hugh B. Hester
Brig. Gen., U.S. Army, Ret.
Class of 1916

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The speaker ban law is indeed controversial, but it is not unconstitutional, and the trustees who upheld the new, modified ruling only demonstrated their depth of understanding and responsibility to the community that intrusted to them the operation of one of the country's finest universities.

In the first place, no students' rights have been violated. No one has ruled that a student may not hear Aptheker or anyone else. Any student is free to hear anyone anytime. What the ruling says is that such a person should not be allowed to speak on campus which reflects the views of the taxpaying majority in the state

The student, like the teacher, is perfectly free to pursue knowledge in any manner he chooses, providing he accepts his responsibility to honor the law, and the democratic wishes of the people, which is the spirit of the law.

You see, the student does not own the university, nor does he contribute to its support (with the rare exception of the taxpaying student) and is, therefore, a privileged guest of the society that does support the institution. He should be mature enough to see this relationship and act with the moral responsibility of a guest

If one were to visit a friend's house, one would not claim that he has a "right" to put his feet on a chair against the host's wishes because the constitution suggests that he may pursue happiness. So, in like manner should the student get his "feet off the taxpayers' "chair."

The trustees, however, cannot be held blameless as they are entrusted with the job of developing mature persons with good moral standards and a good ethical code. The trustees should point out to the students that if they wish to put their "feet" upon the "chair," they must first convince their host it is helpful without being detrimental.

This problem can be solved by an intelligent rational approach decided upon by an intensely interested group which is able to take an objective look at the real conflict and why it exists.

If a large group of students participate in pointless mass demonstrations and general harassment of duly elected and appointed individuals, they will be showing the community at large that it was indeed right to limit the availability of subversive material to those who are mature enough to digest it in its proper light. In short, no one wants to give a gun to a baby; if the students demonstrate, they practically assure the failure of their cause.

Yours truly,
Ken Winslow
107 Hanna St.
Carrboro

North Carolina Newspapers Have Stood Together Against Fear And Ignorance

The editors of the major N. C. daily newspapers deserve a vote of thanks for their support of UNC in the speaker rulings.

They editorially presented the University's position as a responsible one. Some of them came out in flat opposition to Governor Moore's stand and the Trustees' decision.

The Charlotte Observer took a moderate stand. It stated that the overruling of the invitations to Aptheker and Wilkinson was apparently intended "to satisfy a few frightened politicians who promised too much when they pleaded with the General Assembly to amend the Speaker Ban Law."

The Raleigh News and Observer and the Durham Morning Herald voiced similar moderate opposition to the ruling.

The strongest opposition came from the Winston - Salem Journal and the Greensboro Daily News. A Journal editorial stated, "We talk of freedom. Yet we are so insecure that an order must go down from the Governor of North Carolina . . . that students cannot hear this and that speaker."

No newspaper in the state gives its positions more firmly than the Daily News. Its courageous condemnation of the Governor and Trustees must have seared some eyeballs in Raleigh. "The decision of the UNC trustee executive committee," it stated, "is bad for the committee, bad for the university and bad for the state of North Carolina. It suggests that North Carolinians are afraid of free speech."

The great newspapers stood for the University, and they stood alone. The majority of weekly papers and smaller dailies supported the Governor. The Durham Sun stated, "An overwhelming majority of the people of North Carolina does not intend to allow this state's state-supported educational institutions to become wracked into disarray . . . by radical minority student groups."

The Burlington Daily Times-News claimed the students who invited the banned speakers owed the Governor an apology for the "disrespect they have shown for him personally and for the University."

We should treasure the papers' support especially since the press is the only powerful interest in the state that has spoken in our behalf. The other news media, radio and television, range from policies of no editorializing to those typified by those organs of the Guide to Repentence and Salvation (Jesse Helms), the WRAL stations. There is no actively liberal voice in North Carolina broadcasting.

It has become obvious in recent years that North Carolina is distinguished from the rest of the South by the excellence of a few of her institutions — not by overall superiority.

The University is one such institution. The major daily newspapers are another. They stand though the chains of fear and ignorance sometimes threaten to drag them down.

And they stand together. That's good to know.

Barry Jacobs

Interest Wanes In CFI; March Is Bad Remedy

Judging from the turnout at the meeting of the Committee for Free Inquiry Thursday, interest in the activities of this group is waning. The CFI appears to be heading toward the position of just another small, loud group of students. In no sense can 150 people be taken to represent the student body.

Why the shriveling up of what promised to be a major student movement? Several explanations suggest themselves, and all probably contributed to the growing indifference toward the CFI.

First, despite the attempts by the group to appeal to all students and the active part played by Paul Dickson and other student leaders, the free speech movement is still identified with the Students for Democratic Society. The presence of Gary Waller, an SDS leader, on the steering committee of the CFI has kept this relationship clearly visible. Many students on this campus simply want no part of SDS and are reluctant to become involved in this movement because of the association. This hesitancy may be unfortunate, but it is there.

The long period of time that has elapsed since the issue first came up and the lack of dramatic incidents has doubtless contributed to a natural attrition of interested persons. Two weeks may not seem like very long, but it is too long to maintain interest on the momentum generated by the initial action of the trustees' committee in banning Herbert Aptheker.

Everything that can be said condemning this action and supporting the rights of free speech and free inquiry was said then. Certainly they are worth saying again, but the constant repetition is bound to drive some students away. It's hard to get emotionally worked up over an abstract principle without specific incidents to dramatize the situation.

In this case, however, the fight almost has to be kept on the abstract level because of the nature of the speaker involved. Few students are going to fight very hard for an acknowledged Communist. They will fight for the right of free speech, but always in the back of their minds is the thought that they are being allied with a Communist. The conflict this produces within each student is bound to hurt the free speech movement.

In short, the students don't care very much about Aptheker. They oppose his ideas, and they really aren't particularly interested in hearing him speak. The principle of free speech motivated them to act but it cannot by itself sustain the motivation.

Apparently realizing the need for some action more positive and forceful than mere meetings, the steering committee of the CFI has recommended a mass rally and a march to President Friday's house. The rally is a good idea. The march is a bad one.

The only legitimate purpose for a march of this type is to present a petition of grievances to the party responsible for the grievances. This party is certainly not President Friday. The Administration of the University has supported the students in their fight for free speech.

The persons responsible for the ban on Aptheker are Governor Moore and the trustees. If a march is going to be made, it should be made to one of them. The Governor, of course, would be the ideal party since he is both the chairman of the board of trustees and chief executive of the state. In any case, a march to President Friday's house makes no sense. If convenience is the reason why not march on South Building or Dickson's fraternity house?

David Rothman

Is A Stable Mid-West Upbringing A Wholesome Kind Of Environment

Should children be exposed to well-read fathers and to mothers who hold master's degrees?

Not if the youngsters have "a dependable, conventional, stable, Middle West background."

This was the opinion of the Iowa Supreme Court when it ruled recently that Mark Painter could not be reunited with his father after Poppa married a lady with an M.A. following his first wife's death.

The court in effect decided Mark should stay at his grandparents because Harold Painter, Mark's daddy, had picked up newfangled Ideas while roaming the country as a newsman.

Painter, it seemed, read too many books and therefore couldn't offer the boy A Stable Mid-West Upbringing.

Is culture bad for Iowa kids? I think so, and the parents of Elmer Cornflake wholeheartedly agree.

Elmer's problem started in the first grade. All the other kids wanted to watch Lassie . . . but Elmer?

"It's terrible," his mother declared. "Elmer's been hanging around that newsstand picking up filth again."

"Not again!" said Elmer's father.

"I'm afraid it's true," she replied. "Yesterday the juvenile officials said they saw him with a Shakespeare paperback."

"I've got a story just as unpleasant. Today I went into his room and found something between the mattresses. I had trouble making out the title on its cover, but I'm pretty sure it was a dictionary."

"And those pictures we caught him with! They were all over the walls. I'm embarrassed to death. Suppose a neighbor walked in and saw those drawings by that MacVinci fellow."

"Worst of all, Selma, they're peddling the stuff by mail. Yesterday I discovered three pamphlets advertising the World Book Encyclopedia that were addressed to our son."

"Why can't he turn to the wholesome side of life? Time nd time again, I've tried to share with him my copies of TV Guide and Modern Romances."

"I'm not letting the boy down either. Last week, remember, he wanted to go to a concert . . ."

"Yes . . . and you made him attend a wrestling match instead. I'm so proud of you, George. I'm just hoping that this weekend the whole family can see that inspiring movie."

"Oh come on now, Selma. Beach Party is too high-brow — even for folks like you and me."

"We shouldn't force the boy to improve himself," the father said, "but if he doesn't go there on his own, we'll just have to drag him to the local pool hall."

"I guess so. But all I want to do at the moment is get him interested in Modern Romances. We'd better make him memorize, maybe, three plots a week."

"I think he oughta see more of Playboy."

"!!! George!"

Please, Selma."

"Definitely not."

"It's instructive."

"The pictures of the Playboy nudes are very educational, George. But the short stories in that magazine contain too many new-fangled ideas."

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors.

Dr. Semonche: Only God Could Make An 'A' In His Courses

By JUDY BOLCH
UNC News Bureau

People who claim we're getting away from the good old Constitutional principles just don't know what they're talking about.

So says a man who can speak from two viewpoints: historian and lawyer.

Dr. John Semonche, history professor here and law student at Duke, believes the conservatives who cry that the government is departing from the Constitution don't take note of the whole picture.

"They're basing their criticism on one element of our past," he says, "the protection of property rights. The classical liberal (the forerunner of today's conservative) called this the fundamental right. This worked well, but we've moved into an age where we can't value property rights over constitutional ones such as free speech."

Dr. Semonche can speak as somewhat of an expert on his subject. For the planned result of his merger of history and law is a career as a professor with specialities in legal and constitutional history.

A graduate of Brown who received his Ph.D. from Northwestern, Semonche originally chose to study history instead of law; then returned to school part-time in 1962 to work at adding the law degree to his doctorate.

Why this rather unusual combination? Semonche is aiming for a "double perspective." Constitutional history and legal history are usually taught by a lawyer or a historian, and he feels that either type of teacher is limited in his understanding of the fields. Significant research requires, he thinks, the double perspective."

DR. JOHN SEMONCHE

In his dual role as student and teacher, the vigorous Semonche conducts three classes while he takes a 2-3 full course load in law. He plans to finish the law degree next year and take the bar examination even though he won't practice.

He's enthusiastic about both pursuits, but when questioned about how he manages to find time, not to mention energy, to lead a double life, he answers: "I'm not a perfectionist. This is what enables me to do things other people wouldn't attempt."

If conflicts arise between his studies and teaching, Semonche is quick to decide in favor of his work as a professor. "Teaching requires the majority of my time. I don't want my extra endeavors to make me less available to my students."

Known as a man who demands a great deal of his students and gives the same, Semonche repeats with a laugh a joke on himself circulated among his classes.

"They claim that I say God could make an 'A' in my course, that I myself could make a 'B' and that anyone else could hope for a 'D' or an 'F'."

When someone told Semonche about this story, he quipped, "Oh no, what I really said was that God could only make a 'B'."

Humor aside, Semonche likes to teach and he enjoys his students. Although many of his classes are made up of freshmen taking the required modern civilization course, he's never thought in terms of people having to be there.

"In many ways a freshman is an exciting student and I ask a lot of him. Some people think a freshman should be treated gently and then when he's a senior he will magically be sophisticated and learn to think for himself. That's not true. He must start right."

In addition to his teaching and studying, Semonche has recently completed several articles. One, on "Motion Pictures, Obscenity and the First Amendment," explores that area of constitutional controversy.

Examining Supreme Court cases involving the complicated subject, Semonche defends the Court's seemingly inconsistent decisions as necessary evils on the road to consistency.

Another recent paper published in The American Journal of Legal History concerns "Common - Law Marriage in North Carolina." Although the established view is that common - law marriage was never valid here. Semonche sees the evidence and the very lack of evidence on the subject as proving that such marriages did exist and were recognized.

New Wine 'Demythologizes' Myth

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religious Editor

(NEW WINE, a Christian Journal of Opinion, published by the UNC Westminister Fellowship, will place its Winter Issue on sale today at the Bull's Head Bookshop, Graham Memorial Y-Cout, Lenoir Hall, Kemp's Record Shop, and the Carolina Coffee Shop. This issue's topic is "Man and Myth."

Myth is how a culture takes itself in imagination. When a culture looks at its myths, it is looking at the essence of its creative life.

The latest issue of New Wine seeks to do this. As a sort of prefatory foundation for this year's Carolina Symposium, New Wine opens up some of the vital meanings of myth for our life together.

Ted Solomar of St. Andrew's Presbyterian College attempts to make what is primarily a Tillichian interpretation of myth in an article entitled "Man's Need for Myth." He emphasizes the failure of literal semantics in religion to provide a clearer concept of the transcendent. The myth as symbol must not be made objective truth apart from the myth itself. Myth must be understood in terms of the reality it tries to explain, i.e. God is a symbol of God (Tillich).

In dealing with literal interpretation of the Christian history, it would have been instructive to seek the origin of such interpretation. Literal interpretation arose in Antioch through application of Aristotelian methods to Christianity. The allegorical (or mythological) interpretation arose in Alexandria through a synthesis of Platonism and Stoicism with Christianity. This understanding would have helped Mr. Soloman orient himself more accurately before a discussion of the Christian myth was attempted.

Soloman himself seems to fall in the Alexandrian school. He says that "The Christian becomes a 'whole' person by identifying himself with the model of Christ." The Platonism is evident. This tends to romanticize Christ.

"Myth as Explanation and Justification" is an article by UNC Professor of Anthropology, John Honigman. He suggests that myths play an important role in national ethical decisions. In duscussing what myths do while alive and how they are killed, he arrives at a definition of myth for the life of a culture. "Myths are narrative accounts which men hold to be important because they link present to past."

Miss Suzanne MacRae, a graduate student in English here, writes about one of these vital myths of the past. In a most fresh and interesting paper, Miss MacRae investigates the 'devil' as an archetypal figure in literature. She does this in relation to Mephistopheles in Goethe's Faust and Satan in Milton's Paradise Lost. In both instances the devil is a being of darkness and irrationality who balances or complements the rational nature of man. Miss MacRae arrives at the paradox of a satanic power which is involved in salvation just because it is the power of darkness, destruction and evil.

Drawing upon a precise and pleasing style, Miss MacRae contemplates a myth which is too often relegated to the sancuaries of literary analysis. Her analysis overcomes the literary footnote by enlivening the devil in our consciousness. This itself may be a paradox. But it is a pleasing paradox.

Robert Sherer, a graduate student here in History, talks about another kind of devil in "Redemptive and Demonic Myths of the South."

Moving from the failure of the Gospel of Wealth to establish the Negro in American culture, Sherer suggests the deeper myth which chained the Negro to his own image. This was exemplified by Booker T. Washington.

Martin Luther King, Jr., on the other hand, has drawn upon the redemptive quality of Christianity found in suffering.

Sherer also deals with the tragic comprehension in the mind of the South, using C. Van Woodward as his source. Although his style is rather uninteresting, Sherer makes a vital case for how myth has operated in the South.

If one considers that myth He does a fine job of saying what is and what is not myth in the Bible. He asserts that God (Yahweh) is necessarily 'no' myth to the Hebrew mind. This God is a rejection of pagan theogony because it is a God which enters history.

On the other hand, the Bible is myth. It is myth in a poetic sense. In poetry the figurative language serves as the vehicle for the tenor (or meaning) that the poet wishes to express. In this sense, the Biblical accounts are myths that serve as the vehicle, the tenor being the revelation of God in history.

The drama of history stands in with this God, who is no myth, and the story of his revelation, which is expressed mythologically. The reality of God, then, always stands behind the myth of history.

Dr. Boyd has managed to hold together with his scholarly concern for his subject an affirmation of the myth that gives meaning to history.

Another kind of affirmation comes from Dr. Virgil Aldrich of the UNC Department of Philosophy. He deals with the question "Myth is Dead?"

Dr. Aldrich has written a refreshingly controlled paper on the death of God theology and its relation to myth. He treats the phrase "God is dead" linguistically and tries to say where it breaks down as symbolic language.

Men like Altizer — whom Dr. Aldrich portrays as a kind of theological 'playboy of the Western world' — have gone beyond men like Tillich by failing to hold together the symbolic utterance as over against the reality of God in history.

This fits nicely into Dr. Boyd's paper, for it means that Altizer has made a myth of God in order to annihilate him.

Dr. Aldrich gives a clear analysis of the "God is dead" theology and also relates it to modern tehcnology and its attempt to supress myth in the larger myth of progress. What he seems to say is that the great theologians of this century have revitalized religious language, affirmed the God of history, and made Christianity relevant once again. The "God is dead" men have not done this since they are not sure what they are saying to the world, except, of course, that God is dead.

Other articles include "Myth: the Language of Faith" by Lawrence L. Gruman, "Man the Teller of Tales" by Robert E. Neale, and "Myth and the Comics" by David Cort.

Considering the difficulty of demythologizing the American mind of its myth about myth, New Wine has done a helpful thing in its newest issue. The journal has by its content recognized the imaginative life of myth in our culture and has found itself talking about it seriously.

When we can take myth seriously, we may find ourselves participating in the regeneration of imagination.

Calendar

MONDAY

International Students Board will meet at 7:15 p.m. Monday upstairs in the Y-Building.

The NSA Campus Committee will have a mandatory meeting at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker III. All members please be present and on time.

Carolina Handbook Interviews for section editors and associate editors will be held Monday and Tuesday from 3-4 p.m. in the Grail Room.

Interviews for Freshman Coordinator will be held on Monday, 5-6 p.m.; Wednesday, 3:30-5 p.m., and Friday, 2-5 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Applications may be picked up at the GM information desk.

There will be a meeting of the University Party at 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall to establish voting procedures for the party convention. At this time, all candidates seeking a nomination must submit a written statement to the Chairman of the University Party.

APO Business Meeting in Delta Room of Chase Cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

TV-Radio Today, Monday

WRAL (Ch. 5)
SUNDAY

7:00 The Big Picture
7:30 The Christophers
7:45 Gospel Caravan
8:15 Musical Meditations
8:30 This is the Life
9:00 TV Gospel Time
9:30 Bullwinkle Show
10:00 Beany and Cecil
10:30 Peter Potamus (c)
11:00 Light Unto My Path
11:30 Bread of Life
12:00 Discovery
12:30 Oral Roberts: HOW TO GET GOD'S ATTENTION
1:00 Church of Our Fathers
1:30 The Circuit Rider
2:00 NBA Basketball
4:00 The American Sportsman
5:00 Family Theater: GORILLA AT LARGE: Raymond Burr
6:30 Gidget (c)
7:00 Voyage to the Bottom (c)
8:00 The Way Out West
9:00 Sunday Night Movie: THE SOUND & THE FURY: Yul Brynner
11:15 ABC News
11:30 ABC Scope

MONDAY

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: WASP WOMAN: Susan Cabot
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Double Life (c)
7:30 12:00 High
8:30 Jesse James
9:00 Shenandoah
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 Ben Casey
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: THE LINEUP: Eli Wallach

WRAL Highlights

Sunday

THE AMERICAN SPORTSMAN — 4:00—Joe Foss hunts cape buffalo in Africa; Larry Craig takes a young boy rabbit hunting; and Joe Books fishes for Argentine trout.

GIDGET — 6:30 — Gidget fights to keep the favorite hamburger hut from becoming a victim of urban renewal.

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA — 7:00 — The Seaview is sabotaged and required a shakedown cruise with eight scientists aboard who are all killed.

SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE — 9:00 — "The Sound and the Fury" . . . Yul Brynner stars in Faulkner's best seller about love and hate in the sweltering South.

MONDAY

TWELVE O'CLOCK HIGH—7:30—A guilt complex induced by a fellow flyer's death motivates an officer's refusl to join the "buddy" system.

SHENANDOAH — 9:00 — Julia Riley, a pretty ranch owner, wants to put her brand on Shenandoah.

PEYTON PLACE — 9:30 — For the Fowlers, a long-withheld confession; for David Schuster, a torturing request.

BEN CASEY — 10:00—Owen Carter has sympathetic pains for his identical twin brother.

WUNC (Ch. 4)
SUNDAY

3:00 Ericourt
3:30 Decisions 1966
4:00 French Chef
4:30 Performance
5:00 Jazz Casual
5:30 Arts: Theatre
6:00 Arts: Music
6:30 Amer. Crises: Old Age, Part II
7:30 Adolescence
8:00 Two Roads to Center
9:00 Warsaw Phil
10:00 Sign Off

MONDAY

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Arts: Theatre
11:30 Origami
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Sign Off
3:30 Tele-Visit
4:00 Sign Off
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Western Civ
7:00 Glory Trail
7:30 What's New
8:00 Mussolini
9:00 The Pitchmen
9:30 In My Opinion
10:00 Piano Styles
10:30 Sign Off

WUNC Highlights
SUNDAY

4:30 p.m. "Piano Recital" Senior music student Sue Ann Yarbrough. Selections include Brahms' "Intermezzo in C Major, Opus 119," Debussy's "Reflections in the Water," and, as her featured work, Beethoven's "Sonata, Opus 109."

6:00 p.m. "Jazz Goes Intellectual: Bop" The first in a series of three programs that examine popular music in the United States as it has been performed and composed in the last twenty years features one of the greatest trumpeters of all time — Dizzy Gillespie. In addition to performing some of the jazz greats such as "Salt Peanuts," "Night in Tunisia," "Whispering" and others, Gillespie talks about his music and his part in the development of bop, the "New Jazz" which was to form the basis of almost all modern jazz. Joining Gillespie in discussion of jazz are two jazz critics Ralph Ellison and Martin Williams.

MONDAY

7:00 p.m. "Eyeball Witnesses" Concentrating primarily upon the men most responsible for giving the West its reputation — the reporters and the writers such as Horace Greeley, Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain), and Bret Harte.

8:00 p.m. "Men of Our Time: Mussolini" Focuses on the life of enito Mussolini, Facist dictator of Italy during the reign of the Axis power, prior to its defeat in World War II.

WTVD (Ch. 11)
SUNDAY

6:30 Journey "Michigan"
7:00 Davey and Goliath (c)
7:15 News of the Church
7:30 Bob Poole Show
8:30 Gospel Jubliee
9:30 Jungle Theater "Fury of the Congo"
11:00 Insight
12:00 Fury (c)
12:30 Face The Nation
1:00 Flicka
1:30 Tennessee Tuxedo
2:00 Amateur Hour
4:00 Big Three Golf (c)
5:00 Tuscon Open (c)
6:00 Twentieth Century
6:30 Please Don't Eat The Daisies (c)
7:00 Lassie (c)
7:30 My Favorite Martian (c)
8:00 Ed Sullivan (c)
8:00 Bonanza (c)
10:00 Wackiest Ship In The Army (c)
11:00 CBS Sunday ews
11:15 Laredo (c)

MONDAY

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
17:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 The Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Live
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search For Tomorrow
12:45 The Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As The World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 The Secret Storm
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 Huckleberry Hound
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS Evening News (c)
7:00 The Virginian (c)
8:30 The Lucy Show (c)
9:00 Andy Griffith (c)
9:30 Dr. Kildare (c) Part I
10:00 Run For Your Life (c)
11:00 Channel Eleven Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WANT ADS

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditiond 10' x 55' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Sunday and Monday

BEEF NIGHTS

Rare Roast Beef, Thick Slice
Baked Potato with Sour Cream Dressing
Tossed Green Salad
Rolls and Butter

$1.25

Serving 5:00-7:15

1 NIGHT ONLY! February 28, 8:15 P. M., PAGE AUDITORIUM
Duke University, in association with Jay K. Hoffman presents Under the Patronage of the Instituto Italiano di Cultura

Vittorio Gassman (in person)

The Game of Heroes
(in Italian—with an English introduction)

An Anthology of Italian Theatre... designed to delight, stimulate and warm the hearts of theatre lovers.

with Edmonda Aldini
Carlo Montagna

Vittorio Gassman has given European audiences some of their most memorable theatrical experiences. As Italy's most versatile interpreter of great comedy and drama, he has taken his unique "Anthology of Italian Theatre" into Paris, London (Aldwych Theatre) and has now been invited to the United States. ■ Now, the virtuoso Gassman brings this theatrical tour-de-force to New York for the first time. In costume, he and his troupe will perform a remarkable collection of extracts from Italian theatre of the past and present:

BEOLCO (KNOWN AS IL RUZANTE)—"Parlamento"
GOLDONI—the dinner scene from "La Locandiera"
ALFIERI—"Orestes"
PIRANDELLO—"The Man With a Flower in His Mouth"
UGO BETTI—"The Queen and the Rebels"
GRIFFI—"An Airport Too Far Away"
DOLCI—"Waste"

The scenes have been chosen by Mr. Gassman himself. The dialogue is in Italian; however an English introduction to each scene will help guide the audience.

Tickets on sale at Page Box Office.

MAIL ORDER FORM:
VITTORIO GASSMAN'S
"THE GAME OF HEROES"
Ticket Prices: $2.50, $2.00, and $1.50

NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY STATE ZIP

Please mail with self-addressed envelope. Make check payable and send to: Duke University, Box KM, Duke Station, Durham, N. C., Tel. 681-0111, ext. 4059.

Sen. Kennedy Urges Viet Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., urged President Johnson yesterday to invite Viet Nam negotiations on the basis of accepting some Communists in a coalition Saigon government.

Callint for limited use of U. S. military power, Kennedy said any effort to destory the "objectives and forces" of North Viet Nam probably would result in massive Chinese intervention in the war.

The brother of the late President John F. Kennedy expressed some reservations about the course Johnson is pursuing. He said, for example, that he has such reservations about the resumption of the bombing of North Viet Nam because he is unsure of its limitations and objectives.

Kennedy, who is not a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and thus did not share in its televised hearing made his views known at a news conference.

The committee wound up its public sessions Friday with an invitation from Secretary of State Dean Rusk to Congress to vote on Viet Nam policy "if there is any doubt" about it.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said he sees no need for further public hearings. The committee is to decide at a meeting tomorrow whether to ask Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to appear at closed sessions. Both have declined to testify publicly.

The major focus of the policy dispute shifts to the Senate floor tomorrow in consideration of a $4.8-billion Viet Nam military authoritization bill.

White House: No Missles Enter Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said yesterday thee is no evidence that offensive weapons systems have been moved into Cuba since the Soviet Union withdrew missiles from the island in 1962.

Spruille Braden, a former U. S. Ambassador to Cuba, said in Miami Friday that an organization he now heads has received word that five Soviet ships are bound for Cuba with nuclear missiles.

Braden, who heads the Citizens Committee for Free Cuba, gave no details.

Commenting on Braden's statement, Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers said "We continue to have sources of information adequate to inform us if offensive weapons systems have been reintroduced into Cuba. There is no evidence that this in fact has been done."

White House officials said that, from time to time, the Cubans receive from the Soviet Union replacements for defensive surface-to-air missiles. It was said that these weapons have a limited "shelf life" and must be replaced periodically.

Moyers said American intelligence agencies thoroughly check every report of the presence of offensive weapons in Cuba "as a continuing matter of high priority."

He said no such weapons have been moved into Cuba since the 1962 missile crisis.

According to one report, Braden was said to have passed along his report to President Johnson. Moyers said he did not know in what fashion this might have been done—that he had been unable to find any evidence such was the case.

North Carolina News Roundup

Moore: State Role Strong

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore of North Carolina said last night he does not feel "that the important role of the state is diminishing or the effectiveness of state government is at a minimum.

"There are encouraging signs of change in the trend and philosophy of the federal government toward the states," Moore said in a prepared keynote speech to the Virginia Democratic Party's Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner.

The Democratic administration has shown in recent session of Congress, Moore said, "that it realizes the importance of state governments and their abilities and opportunities to serve their citizens."

He pointed to the Appalachia program in which Virgina, North Carolina and other states participate.

Under the Appalachia program, Gov. Moore said, "The federal government has accepted state governments as full partners in the planning, as well as the operation, of this program in natural resources.

"Under the unique Appalachian Regional Commission, representatives of the states and the federal government work together as equals to stimulate local initiative, to resolve the complex problems of the Appalachian region and to cooperate as equals in mutually agreeable solutions. This is an encouraging sign and the Democratic Party is responsible for it."

Moore said he could understand the concern of those who feel the federal government is becoming too powerful and usurping state authority "because we all realize the dangers involved in putting too much power in one central government."

However, he said, "federal-state relationships have changed drastically in recent years, as the federal government has moved more and more into areas were formerly considered reserved to the states."

Moore said, "regardless of whether we approve or disapprove of the many federal aid programs, the trend is well-established and new federal-state relationships are now a matter of fact."

To serve the needs of the people, Moore said, the states must be equal partners with the federal government.

"Too frequently in the past," he said, "the states have been the junior-or silent-partner in federal-state programs."

The opposite approach, he said, was exemplified by the passage of the federal Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

'This type of partnership offers, perhaps, the last chance for state governments to maintain initiative in their own affairs. If we fail, then the trend toward Washington can do little else but continue," Moore said.

Which Congressman Goes?

GREENSBORO (AP) — A decision handed down by a three-judge federal panel Friday says the North Carolina Legislature may have to answer this long-avoided question by July 1, 1962.

Which congressmen in the sparsley populated East or West must run against each other to eliminate one, so more representation can be added in the more populous Piedmont?

The legislature kept the congressmen in their own districts for the 1966 races, but probably won't be allowed to next time around.

In ruling on the reapportionment and redistricting plans passed by a special session of the General Assembly in January, the court said the lawmakers must pay more attention to compactness and contiguity in the next reapportionment plan.

It gave the General Assembly until July 1, 1967 to draw it up.

The court approved the General Assembly's plans for reapportioning the State Senate and House of Representatives. Since the plans throw more legislative representation to the Piedmont, the door is open for major changes in congressional districts when the issue comes up next year.

The ruling by the court indicated the redistricting plan was left as it was so this year's elections can proceed as scheduled. But the ruling noted the districts are not "as nearly equal in population as practicable."

The opinion said the "conceded rationale" of the legislature in adopting the plan was to protect incumbent congressmen.

Charlotte Fights Crime

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police Chief John Hord said yesterday he is assigning a special two-man motorcycle squad to Charlotte's robbery-plagued downtown area.

Hord made the announcement shortly after the fourth robbery in 24 hours occurred.

Members of the new squad will ride cycles that were made for rugged terrain and can climb curbs and be driven through gulleys and over ties along railroad beds. Each man will carry a walkie-talkie so he can keep in constant touch with headquarters.

"This will give us a greater deterrent to purse-snatchers, shoplifters and thieves who steal from cars," Hord said.

"The main thing is to have the men there in a minute's notice. This has been one of our problems because the typical motorcycle and squad cars have to move sometimes through heavy traffic."

Hord added that the new cycles "can cup up sidewalks, go down rutted alleys and even along the railroad tracks."

The police department had put an extra 15 police cars on duty Friday. The cars patrolled a six-block area around Independence Square where gunmen had robbed loan offices the two previous Fridays.

AL, HE's THE KING, HIRT will be just one of the top-notch performers on hand for Jubilee weekend this year. The RCA Victor recording artist's success just shows what can come to a man who keeps a stiff upper lip.

Suburban Trend Declining

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans are still flocking to metropolitan areas but the flight to the suburbs—the trend which characterized the 1940s and 1950s—may be losing some of its force.

That is the conclusion of the census bureau in its estimates of population patterns and trends during the first half of this decade.

In a new study entitled "Americans at mid-decade," the bureau listed these as some of the charges which have occurred in the nation since the last census in 1960:

1. The total population increased by about 2.8 million yearly reaching 195 million last August.

2. California replaced New York as the most populous state while Texas moved from sixth to fifth.

3. The West continued to be the fastest growing region with Nevada showing the largest percentage increase.

4. The number of women continued to increase faster than men.

5. Los Angeles replaced Chicago as the second largest metropolitan area.

6. Four more metropolitan areas reached a population of one million or more, raising the number of these areas to 26.

The new ones are Denver, Miami, New Orleans and — hold your hat — Anaheim-Santa Ana-Garden Grove, Calif.

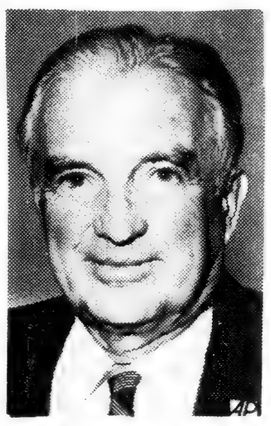
In fact, the bureau said, Anaheim-Ana-Garden Grove was the fastest growing metropolitan area in the nation during the first half of the decade, showing an increase of more than 9 per cent.

Another Southern California areas—San Bernardino - Riverside-Ontario — was second with an increase of slightly less than 5 per cent and a total population of just under one million. The Washington, D. C., area was third with a growth rate of just under 4 per cent.

The government now lists the two California areas as separate metropolitan districts rather than combining them with the already sprawling Los Angeles area which itself had an estimated population at mid-decade of 6.7 million.

New York continued by far as the largest metropolitan area with an estimated population at mid-decade of more than 11.3 million and a growth rate of slightly under 2 per cent.

Symington Urges Lifting Of Bombing Restrictions



Sen. Stuart Symington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., urged last night the elimination of target restrictions which he said are making U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam largely ineffective.

He said U. S. pilots should be permitted to strike "such military targets as power plants, oil stores, docks, etc."

Reporting on a recent 10-day trip to Viet Nam battle areas, Symington indicated his belief skilled American pilots and costly warplanes should not be risked on targets limited to bridges, highways, railroads and supply trails — a pattern the administration has been following to lessen the danger of escalating the war by inflicting heavy civilian casualties.

Symington told of discussing the current bombing rules with the leaders of the U. S. 2nd Air Division at Tan Son Nhut and said these include "almost unbelievable target restrictions."

The Missourian is a former Secretary of the Air Force and a long-time advocate of greater use of air power in the Viet Nam war.

Aussies Protest Humphrey Visit

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — "The first time you retreat" before communist aggression, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey declared yesterday "the first time you fold up your tents, on that day no one will ever believe in free men again."

Speaking at a luncheon at which Prime Minister Harold Holt of Australia was host, the U. S. traveling Vice President also declared that he felt every Anti - Communist nation should be represented in Viet Nam, even by as small a presence as a single doctor. If there is such a symbolic presence showing unity, he added, "the Communist juggernaut will be halted."

During the day, Holt announced the Australian government is "actively" considering increasing the number of its troops in Viet Nam. He made the statement at a joint news conference with Humphrey after the Vice President met his first hostile reception in a 21,000-mile journey that has taken him to six countries. He moves on to New Zealand today.

Holt said the matter of more Australian troops for the Viet Nam war is "actively under consideration," but that no conclusions have been reached yet.

"We have been considering for some time what more Australia can do in Viet Nam," Holt said. "We hope to announce soon what Australia can do to supplement our present forces in South Viet Nam."

Both Humphrey and Holt denied Humphrey put any pressure on Australia, but it was obvious the troop situation was a prime topic in their nearly three-hour discussion at Paliament House. At present, Australia has about 1,500 men in the Viet Nam field, most of them in a battalion of infantry which has seen considerable action against the Communists.

About 150 demonstrators waited for the Vice President outside the low, rambling Parliament House with placards reading all the way from a mild "peace for Viet Nam" to "Bomb Washington, D. C." one said "Humphrey was criminal."

Police said the demonstrators were a combination of leftist students, left wing labor union leaders, pacifist and anti-conscription mothers. The crowd appeared in good humor at first but turned ugly when Humphrey appeared with Holt. It surged forward, some in the crowd yelling "warmonger," others shouting "we want peace."

Police and security officers quickly moved in, and none reached Humphrey before he got into his car. There were no arrests, police said. The pickets straggled behind Humphrey's motorcade toward a nearby hotel where the luncheon was held. But they were held firmly several hundred yards from the hotel and dwindled away.

The atmosphere at the luncheon was in sharp contrast to the demonstration. Humphrey hailed the Autralians as "comrades in war and comrades in peace." Holt said he was "grateful for the firmness of purpose" shown by President Johnson in Viet Nam.

Humphrey appeared unruffled by the demonstration, telling laughing listeners the thought that passed through his mind during the hubbub was: "What the Prime Minister will do to make me feel at home."

Without referring to the demonstration Holt said, "I believe you will find support in this country as strong as anywhere in the world" for U. S. Policy on Southeast Asia and Viet Nam.

The Vice President said he feels "restrained optimism" as a result of his tour so far. He has three nations to visit before returning to Washington. In addition to New Zealand he will stop in the Phillippines and South Korea.

★★★★★★★

Marines Seek Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — Helicopters poured thousands of U. S. Marines into battle array yesterday against Viet Cong in the Phuoc Valley, 350 miles northeast of Saigon. Striking through light sniper fire, they hunted the enemy's hard-core 1st regiment.

U. S. Navy fighter-bombers flew in support of the Marines. They streamed in from the carrier Valley Forge in the South China Sea.

U. S. B52 jets carried the war to the Viet Cong on the other side of the country. They attacked points only two miles from the Cambodian frontier with a one-two punch and a new fusing device intended to let bombs bore deep into enemy tunnels before they explode.

Communist gunners shot down three aircraft in other sectors.

Two American helicopters were felled during fresh operations of the U. S. 1st Air Cavalry Division around Bong Son, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, that account for 37 Viet Cong dead.

Ground fire downed a South Vietnamese Army L19 spotter plane 12 miles south of Da Nang, the U. S. Marine headquarters and Air Base, and its two Vietnamese crewmen were killed.

"Some speakers need no introduction. They need conclusions."

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

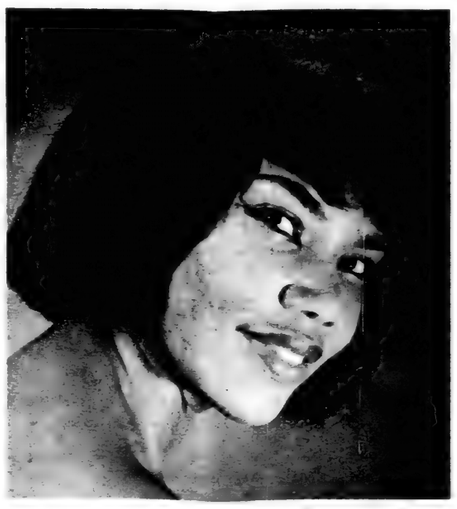
SEE US for MONEY! Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.

Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

The Only Thing That Would Take This Load off my Back Is a STUDIO CARD

Ledbetter Pickard

OPERA LOVERS



You are cordially invited to attend a concert by Miss Gwendolin Sims, soprano, winner of the "Lilli Lehmann Medal," Salzburg, to be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in The Graham Memorial Lounge. The concert is free and open to the public.

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING
The MOTION PICTURE WITH SOMETHING TO OFFEND EVERYONE!

ROBERT / JONATHAN
MORSE / WINTERS
Shows at: 1:00—3:00—5:00—7:00—9:15

STUDENT SPECIAL

Clip this ad and receive an extra 10% OFF on on any Tape Recorder in stock. Good for month of February 1966 ONLY.

CARRY-CORDER '150' CORDLESS CARTRIDGE TAPE RECORDER
Snap in tape cartridge, flick a switch, record! ANYWHERE! Portable Carry-Corder comes complete with deluxe carrying case, mike with detachable switch, 4 tape cartridges and patch cord.
SEE IT! TRY IT! BUY IT AT:

Wholesale Prices on Everything in Electronics.
Vickers Electronics
506 E. Main Street
DURHAM

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF FEBRUARY 21st
Zoom Zoom
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Luncheon Specials
99¢
MONDAY
Braised Beef Tips
two vegetables, salad, bread
TUESDAY
Baked Chicken
with Berry Sauce
two vegetables, salad, bread
WEDNESDAY
Beef Parmegiana
WITH SPAGHETTI
salad, bread
THURSDAY
Pepper Steak
two vegetables, salad bread
FRIDAY
CHOICE
Stuffed Flounder
two vegetables, bread, peach cobbler or Chicken Croquettes
two vegetables, salad, bread, peach cobbler.
TUESDAY NIGHT
7:00-8:30
ALL YOU CAN EAT OF
With MEAT SAUCE
Includes: 1 Salad, Bread
Tea or Coffee
Thursday, 7:30-8:30 P.M.
SPECIAL
½ Price Pizza
Pepperoni or Plain
Clip Me Out

Intramural Clipboard

With Bill Hass

Mangum, Phi Delta Theta and Law School hold the leads in the point standings of their respective divisions with five sports compiled.

Mangum made a strong showing in handball and volleyball to forge ahead of Everett in the residence hall division. Mangum has 512.90 points to Everett's 463.10. In third place is Aycock with 434.85. Alexander slipped from third to fourth with 410.90.

Ruffin took over fifth place with 389.20 points and Old East slid to sixth with 352.40. Graham remained seventh with 305.80. Morrison F advanced a place to eighth with 259.20 points.

Stacy made the most impressive gain, coming from 21st to ninth with 246.40 points. Lewis moved into the tenth spot with 238.55. Another big jump was made by Joyner, which rose from 23rd to 11th place.

The Phi Delts jumped from third to first place in the fraternity division with 483.90 points. DKE slipped from first to second with 482.05, making the race extremely tight with the Phi Delts.

Chi Psi advanced to third place with 404.45 points while Zeta Psi remained fourth with 398.55. St. A's dropped from second to fifth at 395.50, barely ahead of sixth place SAE with 394.40. DU is seventh at 372.50, Pi Kappa Phi eighth at 359.05, PiKA ninth at 358.60 and Sig Ep rounding out the top ten with 349.90. Just of the pace is Chi Phi at 347.50.

Law School held its lead in the graduate division with 478.92 points. Med School closed in considerably with 460.08. The Peacocks are third at 373.50 and NROTC remains fourth with 353.84 points.

* * *

Some of the nicknames these intramural teams choose are colorful to say the least. There are, of course, the traditional names — Everett Rogah, Alexander Poobahs, Joyner Supporters, Aycock Aardvaarks, Graham Bells, Parker Pack and so on.

Then there are the weirdies. Aycock has teams known as the Aardwolves and Addaxs, rather unconventional. Pi Kappa Phi has the Baena, as difficult to pronounce as it is puzzling to figure out.

In basketball, the names often reflect the game — Gunners, Bounders, Dunkers, even a team called the Celts.

The NROTC teams have some interesting names — Sea Dogs, Dolphins and one called the Neseps, for example. Neseps must be some Navy letters for a super-secret thingamajig, because whoever heard of them. Nothing like a flock of Neseps, I always say.

There is a town team I like, the Blooming Idiots. It takes guts to call yourself that. Then there are the Morrison I Inebriates, who play ball about like their name indicates.

There are others — Riverrats, Dormrats, Roadrunners, Mites, All Stars, Superstars, Punies, Pharoahs, Panthers, Grossmen, Pachyderms, Wumps, quite a few Trojans and Playboys, Agamas, Hagori, Pumas, Crackers, Eels, Hustlers, Jokes, Rebels, Hornets, Animals, Vikings, Devildogs, Tops, and in the fraternities, every color of the rainbow.

Looie(33)+Larry(27) Equals 60; Gamecocks Can't Take It, 83-71

Tar Heels Tie For Second

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina's Bobby Lewis and Larry Miller poured out their wrath on the South Carolina Gamecocks last night to lead the Tar Heels to an 83-71 victory before 11,666 fans at the North-South doubleheader in Charlotte. The win completed a UNC sweep of the two-night Queen City stand, Clemson having fallen 70-66 on Friday.

Lewis carried the biggest stick, hitting for 33 points on 10-of-18 from the floor and a perfect 13-13 from the free throw line. Miller followed with 27 points, making 10-of-12 from the floor and 7-of-7 from the line. Lewis has not missed a free throw in his last three games, hitting 31 straight.

Tommy Gauntlett with 12 points was the only other Tar Heel in double figures.

In the first game of the night, Clemson outscored N. C. State 11-9 in overtime to take a 76-74 victory. The Wolfpack defeat, coupled with the Tar Heel win, left Clemson, State and UNC tied for second place in the ACC with 7-5 records.

A one-man show, the Gamecocks' center Al Salvadori kept South Carolina close in the first half. Salvadori hit eight-of-nine shots from the floor, 1-1 from the free throw line for 17 of the 27 points managed by the Gamecocks in the first half.

The Tar Heels had just 30 points by halftime, for a three-point lead. Lewis scored 14 of that total and Miller had 12.

First half action was nip-and-tuck. The Gamecocks managed a four-point lead (12-8) in the early minutes of play for their biggest lead of the night. The largest UNC lead of the first half was seven points, 26-19, coming midway in the first period.

With Salvadori scoring eight of the first 12 Gamecock points, USC jumped to a 12-8 lead with 14:15 left in the half.

But Bob Lewis scored on a three-point play to cut that margin to one—12 to 11. Seconds later, Larry Miller hit on a jump shot to pull the Tar Heels ahead to stay at 13-12.

With 9:39 left in the half, Lewis again hit on a three-point play and the Tar Heels' advantage was three at 18-15. With 7:52 to go, Miller made the Tar Heel lead four points, hitting on a jumper from the corner for a 21-17 lead.

A John Yokley layup with 6:48 left gave the Tar Heels their biggest lead of the half, 26-19.

The Gamecocks did manage a slight comeback, and with 1:13 left in the half, an Al Salvadori tip-in pulled them within two points, 28-26. But they could get no closer.

The Tar Heels turned on the offensive steam in the second half, as they outscored South Carolina 53-44. Lewis and Miller again led the charge, with 19 and 15 respectively.

With 14:50 left in the half, the Tar Heel lead was 10 points, 45-35. With 14:20 left, two Lewis free throws made it 47-35, and the Gamecocks never got closer than that 12 point deficit.

The biggest Tar Heel lead of the evening came with 11:19 remaining. Lewis again was the big gun, hitting on a three-point play to give the Tar Heels a 60-42 lead.

The Gamecocks did manage to cut the UNC lead to 80-68 with 1:54 to go, but they never seriously threatened.

Although leading the scoring for the Gamecocks, Salvadori cooled off considerably from his 17-point first half production. He hit only eight points in the second half, for a final total of 25. Guard Jack Thompson was the only other Gamecock in double figures, with 10 points.

The Tar Heels won the game at the foul line. USC led in field goals, 30-29, but lost by 14 points at the foul line. North Carolina hit 25-30 free throws, while South Carolina hit only 11-of-18.

CAROLINA
Player	FG	FT	Reb.	TP
Yokley	1-2	1-1	2	3
Gauntlett	7-10	3-3	3	17
Lewis	10-19	6-6	4	26
Miller	1-10	5-9	17	7
Bennett	6-8	5-6	7	17
Mirken	0-2	0-0	3	0
Moe	0-0	0-0	0	0
Totals	25-51	20-25	36	70

CLEMSON
Player	FG	FT	Reb.	TP
Benedict	1-8	2-4	1	4
Sutherland	6-13	1-1	5	13
Helms	8-16	0-0	6	16
Gardner	3-4	3-3	9	9
Mahaffey	6-11	2-3	9	14
Ayoob	1-5	1-3	1	3
Channell	3-7	1-3	3	7
Totals	28-64	10-19	34	66

CAROLINA	38	32—70
Clemson	28	38—66

CAROLINA
Player	FG	FT	Reb.	TP
Tuttle	3-9	1-4	8	7
Grubar	4-7	2-2	7	10
Bunting	0-5	2-4	6	2
Brown	7-16	1-01	2	14
Clark	11-14	2-3	14	24
Bostick	2-5	0-1	3	4
Totals	27-56	7-15	39	61

VIRGINIA TECH
Player	FG	FT	Reb.	TP
Ellis	9-14	2-3	7	20
Deskins	6-12	1-1	0	13
Wagner	5-12	1-3	10	11
Kerrick	5-10	4-4	4	14
Talley	4-11	5-9	12	13
Jones	0-0	0-0	0	0
Totals	29-59	13-20	33	71

Life Is Hazardous For Sports Photog

EDITOR'S NOTE: If you had been behind the camera which snapped this shot, you would have seen a three-part sequence: Dick Grubar deflecting the ball away from VPI's Ken Talley, the picture which appears above, and then you would have been bombed—right in your bird's eye view! That's what happened to DTH cameraman ERNEST ROBL, and in this story he tells what it's like to be a sports photographer.

By ERNEST H. ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

You don't really have time to think when the action is all around you.

One finger on the shutter release, another hooked around the high-speed film advance trigger, the photographer sits on the sidelines under the basket and waits for the team to come downcourt.

Then you fire away—more by instinct than anything else. It's not that photographing a basketball game consists merely of firing away blindly at anything and everything in sight, but there are just too many variables to allow careful decisions on what to shoot and what not to shoot.

And then there is always the deadline.

For night games beginning after 8 p.m., photographers have 10—at most 20—minutes to take their photos, before they have to run back to their darkrooms to process their film in order to get them in the next morning's paper.

The working newspaper photographer seldom sees the conclusion of a game, but there are other advantages, like seeing all the action from close up — sometimes from very close up.

And since the blue out-of-bounds line is no guarantee that either the players or the basketball will stop, the action sometimes gets a little too close.

At least once every game a photographer has to fend off the ball or a mob of players that converge on him. And getting hit in the head with a basketball is not a pleasant experience (from one who speaks with experience).

While the action rages at the other end of the court, there are always impromptu bull sessions with the other photographers.

There are good and bad games — not only for the players, but also for the photographers. Some games seem almost jinxed.

If there's a good tussle for the ball, a player or a referee manages to get in the way of the photographers.

What does a photographer look for at a game?

Anything and everything: The photographer has to watch the ball, the players and the officials, and still manage to have the camera pointed in the right direction when THE moment of the game happens.

Often people ask me what the main difference is between watching a game from the bleachers and from the sidelines. I don't really know.

Ever since I can remember, I've been shooting photos from the sidelines. I haven't watched a game from the stands in the last four years.

Personally, I wouldn't want to watch a game any other way.

'I Wish I Could Forget' —Shaffer

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Charlie Shaffer strapped on his seat belt and wheeled his olive-green Mustang out of the parking lot which lay just to the right of the Virginia Tech Coliseum. He mecahnically maneuvered through a series of gear shifts. Then, using his right hand for motion emphasis, the UNC assistant freshman coach said:

"I would just like to forget it. I know there will be a lot of talk about it, but I'm just going to try to forget I ever came up here."

Shaffer was right. It was indeed something you'd like to wipe from your memory completely. Virginia Tech's freshmen—and you must understand that they played one heck of a tough game — had just upended the Tar Babies, handing them their first loss of the season after 13 straight victories.

Yes, it would be nice to forget. But Shaffer couldn't and he kept talking.

"It's not fair to the boys to have them work so hard all season long and then have something like this happen to them. I never thought I'd see any worse officiating than at Davidson, but I certainly did tonight. And I'm not trying to alibi, because they (VPI) certainly played a great game. But it's really something the way those referees let that guy beat Bill (Bunting) around, and then called the foul when Bill finally got fed up and pushed back." (Bunting drew three fouls in the first 11 minutes and had to sit out much of the contest.)

"And how about the time that (VPI) guy piled Gerald (Tuttle) into the basket supports and no foul was called. And the shot that Rusty (Clark) made at the end of the half which they didn't count? (Clark fired a shot from five feet beyond midcourt which banked into the basket. The ball was in the air when the horn sounded, but it was disallowed.)

"It's hard to say if the officiating made the difference or not," Shaffer continued, "because ten points is a big margin. I'd just like to forget it."

The UNC law student, who has been a great aide to Larry Brown in developing Carolina's fine frosh club, had more to say about the game — while he was trying to forget the reffing job.

"You have to say that Ellis (VPI guard Chris) played a tremendous game. His presence (Ellis fouled out of the UNC-VPI game here) may not have made much difference in the first game, but he was certainly the difference tonight."

Ellis scored 20 points and played very aggressive defense to emerge as the second most outstanding player in the game. The top honor goes to UNC center Rusty Clark, and here's what Shaffer had to say about that:

"Rusty became a man out there tonight. He was going for the basket like he does in practice, and he played more aggressively than I've ever seen him play."

For the Tar Babies in this case, basketball success was not better "the second time around." The possibility of having an unbeaten season has averted them, and it's a real pity, because it is something that this bunch of boys plainly deserved. But somehow, they may become better players because of it.

Thinclads Triumph Jim Meade Stars

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's track team continued its winning ways yesterday in the Tin Can as it outclassed Clemson and South Carolina 66-29-32.

Carolina dominated almost every event as it won nine of thirteen during the afternoon.

Lester Hyder's 12'6" vault gave the thinclads their first win of the day. Nicks and Busb6 of Carolina finished third and fourth respectively.

In the shot-put, Carolina's Felix Alley won with a put of 47'6" over Clemson's Benz Bush of Carolina finished field events was made complete when Gary Iverson and Tilden Bridges won the broad jump and high jump respectively. Iverson won with a 20' 10" leap, and Bridges cleared 6'2" to out-jump teammates Hutchins and Harper.

USC's Gatch won the high hurdles in 9.0 as he beat Clemson's Manus and Carolina's Ambrose. Jon Levin remained undefeated as he ran a 6.4 in the 60-yard dash. Sunnenfield and Wingo of USC were second and third in this race.

Trip MacPherson, Fred McCall, Frank Kurth, and Co-Captain Bill Janowitz, combined to win the two-mile relay in the time of 8:14.5. Clemson was their nearest competitor, and they finished 14 seconds behind.

Sophomore Mike Williams ran a fine race in the mile as he nosed out USC's Taylor at the tape in the time of 4:20. Soph Bill Bassett of UNC finished third in this event.

One of Carolina's few losses was in the 1,000-yard run. Tom Carpenter of Carolina finished second to USC's Eidson who broke the tape in 2:16. However, in the 600-yard run, Ed Daw kept his unblemished ACC string intact as he ran away from the field to win in 1:13.5. His nearest competitor was four seconds behind at the finish.

Jim Meade ran the finest two-mile run of his life as he recorded a fine 9:21.6. No one was with him as he completely outdistanced Mitchum of USC and UNC's McCall.

Lost the mile relay, but that didn't matter. Carolina is now 10-1-1 for the season. Next week they go into the ACC Indoor Games.

Duke Takes ACC Crown

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Bob Verga came off the bench to score 27 points and lead second-ranked Duke to a 74-69 basketball victory over Maryland Saturday, which clinched the ACC regular season title for the Blue Devils.

The Blue Devils trailed 44-29 early in the second half, their largest deficit of the season, but rallied behind Verga and Jack Marin.

Duke finally caught the Terps at 62-62 with five minutes and went ahead to stay on a 20-foot jumper by Verga, putting the Blue Devils ahead 66-64 with 3:05 to play.

Maryland did not have bonus foul shot until Duke clinched its 19th victory in 21 starts and increased its Atlantic Coast Conference to 11-1.

Maryland, which had a six-game winning streak snapped, hit 50 per cent of its shots while running up 39-29 first-half lead.

The Terps outshot the Blue Devils 44 per cent to 39 per cent for the contest, but could not withstand the late rush by Duke.

Big Name Athletes Feel Pressure Of Draft Calls

NEW YORK (AP) — Big name athletes are beginning to feel the pressure of stepped up draft calls caused by the war in Viet Nam.

Cassius Clay, Joe Namath, Arthur Ashe, Bob Shann, Mike Garrett, Choo-Choo Winters, Terry Dischinger and James Ware are among those affected.

Most widely know, of course, is Clay, heavyweight boxing champion of the world. His Louisville draft board reclassified him as 1-A and he may be called up before his scheduled title fight in Chicago on March 29 with Ernie Terrell. Clay said he would appeal the board's decision.

In gneral, the Selective Service is taking a much harder look at all deferments.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the director, says draft boards are taking a dim view of the red shirting of colleg athletes.

around to prepare these peoan athlete from competition for a year in order to maintain future eligibility and thereby stretch his college education from four to five years.

Hershey also said that professional football and basebal stars who take reserve duty betwen seasons are "already losing this refuge."

On the other hand Hershey was sympathetic with the case of Namath, and others with damaged knees.

"The Army can't affort to have four or five trainers around to prepare thes people before a fight and take care of them afterwards," he said.

Freshman Invitational Here Tomorrow For Swimmers

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina will host the Freshman Invitational Swimming Meet tomorrow, with the Baby Dolphins looking like the class of the competition.

All Atlantic Coast Conference schools — Maryland, State, Wake, Duke, Clemson, South Carolina and Virginia—will be represented along with the Citadel, Washington and Lee and Virginia Tech.

The 400-yard medley relay and part of the diving will begin at 3:30 and everything else starts at 6 p.m.

"There is no question that UNC look like the power," said varsity Coach Pat Earey. "They finished unbeaten in 11 meets and most of the swimmers will be at their peak for their best effort of the year."

Carolina swimmers with good chances for win are freestyler Jim Edwards, butterflyer Doug Berhman, freestyler Randy Wade and divers Rob Carney and Jack Swartley.

A close race will be the 100-yard backstroke. UNC's Fred Danneman and Maryland's Bill Heim are the best in this event. In College Park, Danneman beat Heim by an eyelash and a repeat close call seems eminent.

Maryland will offer the stiffest team competition.

SPORTS

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographying
Over Sutton's Drugs
159 E. Franklin
942-3225
Xerox

SUNDAY SERVICES
The Rev. William Coates—Episcopal
Chaplain at The University will Preach
9:30 A. M.—Holy Communion and Services
(Church School and Nursery)
The Church of The Holy Family
200 Hayes Rd. GLEN LENNOX

This Week's Old Book Feature
Philosophy
A nice small collection of material of interest to the graduate student.
Earth Sciences
Books on Anthropology, geography, Geology . . . A pleasant little mess that may contain treasure for you.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI ... HARRY SALTZMAN ...
SEAN CONNERY
"THUNDERBALL"
Produced by KEVIN McCLORY PANAVISION
TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

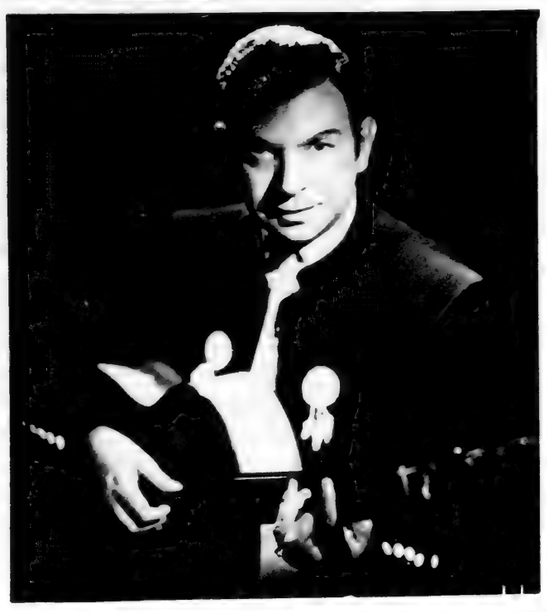
THIS WEEK AT THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP IN CHAPEL HILL.

The back of the shop is a-buzz with excitement. It's the end of the semester book-buying session, and good books are coming in fast and furiously. And at the same time, the local sharpshooters are hauling away stacks of good used paperbacks at about half-price. There's plenty of it now, but it won't last long, so join in the fun, chum, while the pickings are the best.

And at the front of the shop, the Valentine's display table seems to be the favorite stopping place. Love poems abound, naturally, at prices from $1.00 up, and the selection is a big one. You'll find Japanese Haiku, Chinese love poems, world and American collections at all prices. So if you want to tell your lover (or your spouse) of your affections, but you get all fluttery, let a book of poetry do the job. Gift wrapping, as usual, is on the house

TAKE TIME OUT THIS WEEK FOR A VISIT TO

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina



SABICAS, flamenco guitar player from Spain, will entertain in Memorial Hall next Sunday. Tickets will be reserved, free and available tomorrow at the GM information desk.

Student Helpers Needed

Carolina students will have an opportunity to help the mentally ill by working in John Umstead Hospital north of Durham.

The YM-YWCA is looking for students who will be able to devote about three hours a week working with selected patients at Umstead hospital.

Volunteers will spend one hour a week with their individual patients and then meet, along with other volunteers, with a therapist for group discussions.

Students must be able to contribute three consecutive hours a week. Anyone wishing to help should contact Robert E. Boone or Patty DeLaney, co-chairmen of the YM-YWCA Umstead Committee.

Nationalist Groups Waning

NEW YORK (AP) — One year ago this month Malcom X was shot to death on the stage of a New York ballroom. Since that Sunday afternoon, less and less has been heard from militant Negro nationalist groups such as the Black Muslims.

In most areas the nationalists seem to have lost their momentum. Malcom X's own organization is dying on the vine. But there are signs that other groups may only be biding their time.

"We're less interested in talking — we want some action," said James Lawson, Harlem-based president of the United African Nationalists, in a recent interview. He didn't say what kind of action.

The Black Muslims receive occasional reflected publicity from their most famous member, heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay whose sect name is Muhammad Ali.

But the organization shows few signs of life in the big cities—such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles—where it was most prominent.

The organization Malcolm X launched a few months before he was killed has slipped into limbo.

Malcolm's half-sister, Mrs. Ella Collins of Boston, who took over the group, says there has been no recruiting of new members and conceded that membership has fallen.

"Some members are skeptical of a woman's leadership," she said. "Others were frightened away by my brother's death." Mrs. Collins is secretive about the size of the group. Echoing her late brother, she says, "If you expose a tree's roots, it will die."

In Chicago, the police subversives unit said no concerted Black Muslim recruiting campaign had been noted lately. The order's publication, "Muhammad Speaks," has toned down its anti-white writings.

The total hard-core membership of all black nationalist movements in Philadelphia is estimated at 250 to 300.

Hemlines Rise Thighward, Cosmetics Fall Kneeward

NEW YORK (AP) — As hemlines go up, up, up, makeup is going down, down, down, adding a glittering sheen to the new nudity of knees.

The beauty people say a woman can't get by just making up her eyes anymore — she needs a knee knack.

With skirts thigh-high no one looks at her eyes anyway.

"Why stop your beauty treatment at your chin line?" Asks Charles of the Ritz, a cosmetics firm. "The knees cry out for attention, too."

And attention they will get. Blush at the thought.

Blush, lubricate, moisturize — even exercise.

"Knees can change for better or worse the entire look of the legs," the company girl watcher says.

Charles of the Ritz and Elizabeth Arden are a leg up in the business. Neither Avon nor Revlon has taken to legs. Neither has Helena Rubinstein.

But Charles of the Ritz is ready for the new fashions with a whole beauty treatment for the legs, transferring facial care south of the hemline.

CADETS AND Angels in the Air Force Detatchment at UNC are shown holding the 50 continuous feet of copy paper used to compose for a letter to their former commanding officer, Major Lawrence D. Garrison. Garrison is presently serving in Viet Nam. The letter, composed of notes from about 50 individuals in the Detatchment, was mailed last Friday. Major Garrison was Commandant of Cadets at Carolina from 1963 to 1965. Shown from left to right are Barbara Lorek, Bert Marshall, Betty Oldham and Bob Payet.

Today Around Campus

TODAY

The Student Party Advisory Board will meet at 6 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Carolina Political Union will meet at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. Acting Chancellor Sitterson will address the group on "University Speaker Policies and the North Carolina Political Climate." Members only for this meeting, please.

Film Forum — "End of Innocence" will be shown at 7:30 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center.

Protestant Youth Groups — Supper, 6 p.m., Presbyterian Student Center.

On Sunday morning at 11 there will be a service of worship for the University Community at the Wesley Foundation, 214 Pittsboro Street. Robert Johnson will deliver the sermon.

The Sunday Afternoon Symposium at 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation will present a drama: "The Private Lives of the Master Race" by Berthold Brecht. Directed by Terry Gregory in the Gallery.

Cathy Waldron, flutist, and Hunter Jordan, soprano, both candidates for the Batchelor of Music Education degree will present their senior recital at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall. Miss Waldron will be performing works by Bach, Busser, Karg-Elert and David Diamond. Miss Jordon will be singing works of Gounod, Faure, Handel, Carissimi and Gretry.

Westminister Fellowship presents "The Meaning of Sexuality," a talk by Rev. Harry Smith at 5:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center.

Graduate Christian Fellowship at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker III. Discussion on group prayer led by Mrs. Frederick Brooks.

All Protestant Fellowships, Catholic and Jewish students are invited to an Ecumenical Exchange Dinner to be held at the Presbyterian Student Center at 5:30. The program at 6:15 will be "Ecumenical Dialogue in the University Community" with Miss Charlotte Bunch of the National Student Christian Federation as speaker. Followed by a presentation of the spring program of Religious Study Opportunities by members of the Interfaith Council.

Female Circus Rider

By MARY JO HESTER
Special to the DTH

Ingeborg Rhodin, equestrianne extraordinaire, carries on a Kipizzane artistry that has been in her family for six generations.

Swedish Ingebord, a center-ring attration of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, is famed mistress of the riding art which dates back 300 years.

The Lipizzane stallion is the equal to the American white stallion, explained Ingebord's Swedish husband Trolle Rhodin while his wife, who speaks little English, sat near by.

The art was begun in Vienna, Austria, when one of the Hapsburg rulers started to grade horses at Lippiza, thus the name Lipizzane, Rhodin continued.

The Austrian emperor built a riding house, the Spanish Riding School, which still stands today as a great tourish attraction.

Some of the Kipizzane stallions now come from Budapest, Hungary. Mrs. Rhodin's "Baby" came from there.

with her famous Gauntier family at the age of eight in Vienna, riding astride "Baby I." Since that time she has had another stallion and at present rides "Baby II."

"My wife and the trainer worked for three years before Baby was ready to come into the ring," Rhodin said. Each day Ingebord works with Baby about thirty minutes or an hour.

An English saddle that has been in Ingebord's family for over 100 years is used in her act.

Ingebord may be best remembered by North Carolinians as the woman whose horse threw Roy Rogers. Rogers, hosting the NBC taping of the circus in Greensboro Monday night, was riding atop Baby when the "King of the Cowboys" was thrown.

"We told him not to use spurs and in the three rehearsals he didn't," said Rhodin. During the program Rogers must have forgotten and wore the spurs, which jabbed the horse.

Leg pressure manages the horse, not the use of reins, related Rhodin.

Rogers was also riding in an English saddled for the first time when he fell. The English saddle has no horn as the Western styled saddle.

Rhodin, now General European Representative for the Ringling Circus, was a third generation circus owner in Sweden. He met Ingebord Gautier when she and her parents, played the Rhodin circus, and in 1945 the circus owner and his star performer were married.

The Rhodins have three children, Trolle, 12, Cario, 10, and Dianna, 8, who live in Sweden with Rhodin's parents. The children came over last summer during their three month vacation from school and traveled with their parents in the show. Rhodin said that they would visit again the first week in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodin have been with Ringling Brothers for 15 months.

During the '65 season Rhodin toured with the circus to become familiar with American showbusiness. This season he is touring while his wife performs.

"The circus here is very exciting and completely different from the European circus," related Rhodin.

The European counterpart to Ringling's show is "not so big, with only one ring.

"The circus in Europe is always out-of-doors where it is dirty, rainy, or snowy," Rhodin translated. "We like this much better."

MR. AND MRS. TROLLE RHODIN pause from their busy circus life to talk about the differences in American and European circuses. Ingeborg Rhodin is a center-ring attraction with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus. Her husband is general European Representative for the company. Mrs. Rhodin is best known as the woman whose horse threw Roy Rogers. — Photo by Mary Jo Hester.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON SPECTACLAR

COME TODAY NEW STOCKS HAVE ARRIVED

1 P.M.-6 P.M. — FEBRUARY 20th

ALL RECORDS REGARDLESS OF PRICE Mono-Stereo

$2.25 Per Record

ONE PRICE FOR ALL

KEMP'S

205 E. FRANKLIN STREET
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Our AVERAGE Student Reads 4.7 Times Faster

THAN HIS BEGINNING SPEED WITH EQUAL OR BETTER COMPREHENSION

The internationally famous EVELYN WOOD Reading Dynamics Institute INVITES YOU TO ATTEND

A FREE DEMONSTRATION

in Durham High School on Duke St.	in Raleigh YMCA 1601 Hillsborough St.	in Chapel Hill at the Carolina Inn
at 4:30 or 8 P.M.	at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.	at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
MON., FEB. 21	MON., FEB. 28	WED., Mar. 9
TUES., FEB. 22	TUES., MAR. 1	THURS., Mar. 10
WED., FEB. 23	WED., MAR. 2
THURS., FEB. 24

READING DYNAMICS CLASSES BEGIN

in DURHAM H. S.	in RALEIGH YMCA	in CHAPEL H.S.
Monday, Feb. 28 at 7 P.M.	Tuesday, March 8 at 7 P.M.	Thursday, March 17 at 7 P.M.

— REGISTRATION BEGINS 30 MINUTES EARLIER —

At the Demonstration

- You will see a Reading Dynamics graduate read at amazing speeds from a book he has never seen before and then tell in detail what he has read.
- You will see a documented film that includes actual interviews with Washington Congressmen who have taken the course.
- You will learn how we can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater recall.

HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE?

Eighteen years ago Evelyn Wood, a Utah schoolteacher, made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward a master's degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 89 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension. Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read faster than 1,500 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of experience in public schools and universities, she has made it possible for you to benefit from this great discovery.

IS IT SIMPLY A PROMOTION STUNT?

Over the past eleven years more than 160,000 graduates have been convinced that Reading Dynamics is a proven method. About Reading Dynamics' impact on our nation's legislators, Time Magazine said "Washington has seen nothing like it since the days when Teddy Roosevelt read three books a day and ran the country at the same time."

SENATOR PROXMIRE, Wisconsin: "I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It certainly compares favorably with the experience I've had at Yale and Harvard."

SENATOR TALMADGE, Georgia: "It is my opinion that if these techniques were instituted in the public and private schools of our country, it would be the greatest single step which we could take in educational progress."

MICHAEL LEVY, Pres. Standard Security Life: "My normal relaxed reading is now at a rate approximately 4,000 words per minute. Even with the most difficult and technical reading material, I find that my speed exceeds 2,300 words per minute."

SENATOR STUART SYMINGTON, MISSOURI—"I can now read materials at speeds above 3,000 words per minute and technical material in the 2,000 word per minute range."

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,000 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student AT LEAST 3 times with good comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition to any student who, after completing minimum class and study requirements, does not at least triple his reading efficiency as measured by our beginning and ending tests.

READING DYNAMICS INSTITUTE

Telephone 274-4273 or 942-7142

1412 Westover Terrace, Greensboro, N. C. Chapel Hill

Quotes from Former Students

IN DURHAM . . .

A reading speed of over 2,000 words per minute is enabling me finally to read the vast quantity of material I feel I should read. I am going to try these techniques on cases in Law School, and of course in all my other reading.
Alan W. Eckert.

Since I am studying to be a teacher my increased speed is not only a blessing, but a joy. I am grateful that I took the course.
Janice Smith.

Reading Dynamics has enabled me to read greater than 2,000 words per minute with better comprehension than before. This is particularly of importance to me because of the precious little spare time I have to read.
Jordan Gutterman, M.D.

IN RALEIGH . . .

Part of A Letter Home

"Everything is going just fine here. My courses are all pretty tough but all very interesting. I'm really going to enjoy this semester. You'll be glad to know that my reading has helped me tremendously! It really is a time saver. I've been getting to bed around 11:00 to 11:30 . . . and it certainly is not because I don't have any homework because I always have plenty of it. That reading, though, has just cut my study time. It really is great! That's one of the most useful presents I have ever received. Thanks a million for it! Lots of love to you all,
from a student at State.

I never really learned how to study in school; this course has given me more insight into the "art" of study than the 14 years of schooling I have taken. The guides to organizing your study are of value to all students. The development of Gist Sheets should be taught in all high schools.
Peter Savage

I now understand how to read, how to evaluate a book, what to look for and how to find what I want to in books. I had not learned any of this even after going through college. I can now preview a book for its importance or skim material for beneficial facts. I now appreciate books and the ability to read them.
Thomas Youngblood

IN CHAPEL HILL . .

● "The course has been extremely useful to me. I wish all of our graduate students could take the course."
DR. DAN PRICE, Director, Institute for Research in Social Science, U.N.C.

Again I want to wholeheartedly endorse your course and method. I began at 400 wpm and finished — reading dynamically — at speeds as high as 3,000 wpm with no loss of comprehension.—Dick League, Law School, U.N.C.

As an acting intern on pediatrics, I had gained tremendous experience but had done practically none of the general reading required for orals. The night before the examination, I was on duty and essentially, the extent of my reading was from one to three and from five to seven in the morning. In that period of time I was able to read about five hundred pages with satisfactory comprehension. I did not panic or get overly anxious. I had the feeling of a worthwhile job done satisfactorily. Since I last saw you, I have taken my National Board Examinations in all the clinical fields of medicine.
Jerry Eller, Med. Student

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Handbook Interviews

Carolina Handbook Interviews for section editors and associate editors from 3-4 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

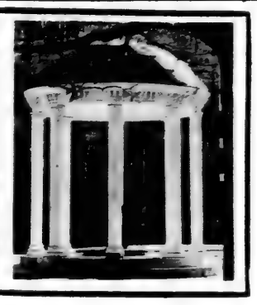
Volume 74, Number 100 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Sabicas Tickets

There are still good seats left for the Sabicas Concert Sunday in Memorial Hall. Pick up tickets at GM Information Desk.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



Show Your Appreciation

Uhh . . . about the cheerleaders.

After spending the weekend in the Queen City of Charlotte watching four basketball teams and occasionally eyeing all the different cheerleaders I have decided that perhaps I was a bit wrong in my opinion of our girls.

It has been said by many Carolina Gentlemen that the cheerleaders add nothing to a ballgame with the exception a little leg here and there.

We were wrong.

During the second half of Saturday night's game against the Gamecocks our cheerleaders were right in front of me. I could have reached out and . . . It was a bit nerve racking.

At any rate I discovered the girls do know something about the game of basketball and they yell loud and long. In fact they rarely stop yelling.

Two or three times one of them came over and asked how many points one of the players had. One young lady kept yelling for our defense to stop a certain South Carolina player from shooting a long jump-shot.

He hit about three straight before they started guarding him outside. He didn't get any more after that.

Well what I'm trying to say is that the girls do a good job and that they deserve credit instead of abuse.

I can think of a lot of things they could be doing that would be a lot more fun than sitting on a hard floor for two hours.

It's hard to appreciate a cheerleader. So I think every free man on this campus should call the Chi O, Pi Phi or Tri Delt house and ask these young ladies for a date — to show your appreciation, of course.

MAUREEN SHANNON, Judy Fleming and Winborne Shaffer are three of the cheerleaders who deserve recognition for their fine efforts this year.

Optimistic On Speaker Rules, Says Sitterson

Acting Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson expressed confidence this week that the Consolidated University board of trustees will assign the administration of speaker regulations to University officials.

Sitterson assumed the post of Acting Chancellor Feb. 15. He had served as a Vice Chancellor since September, 1965.

Asked whether implementation of the newly - adopted speaker policy would be left to the administration when the board of trustees meets here on Feb. 28, Sitterson replied: "I'm hopeful. Until the contrary takes place I believe they will. I'm not going to be pessimistic until the matter is settled in a manner which I'd regard as undesirable."

Regulations and procedures governing visiting speakers on the four campuses were adopted by the trustees' executive committee at a meeting on Feb. 7.

The regulations and amendments formulated by a three-man subcommittee of the executive committee will be submitted to the fall board for approval on Feb. 28.

Sitterson said that he was hopeful the executive committee's regulations would be adopted. He conceded that regulations could be enacted "which constitute censorship."

"But I don't think the trustees are insisting on that," he said.

The Acting Chancellor noted that he was personally disappointed in the failure of the executive committee to allow speaking engagements on the University campuses for persons banned under the speaker ban law, until the new regulations are adopted.

"But we must remember," he said, "that the trustee meeting will be the first full board meeting since the special session which amended the speaker law. The trustee board is the only one authorized to adopt these regulations."

Sitterson declined to discuss the consequences which might result from trustee regulations which either failed to entrust University officials with their implementation or amounted to censorship.

"Of course it would be very discouraging to the faculty, students, administration and

(Continued on Page 6)

ELECTIONS BOARD member Alexa Smith is shrouded by ballot boxes as she helps prepare for today's referendum vote on a constitutional amendment. A light turnout is expected. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Writer's Program Prompts Criticism

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

"We're trying to break away from the chocolate-chip cookie syndrome," said Armistead Maupin, Chairman of the YMCA Writer-in-Residence Committee.

"The Writer - in - Residence Program should offer something more than insipid receptions at which wide-eyed students share Kool-Aid with a Great Man of Letters.

"There ought to be an opportunity for the interested student to receive professional guidance through personal contact with the writer," Maupin said.

Tonight students will have this opportunity. The first Writer-in-Residence Workshop will be held from 8-10:30 p.m. in 107 Howell Hall. Opening remarks will be made by Betty Smith, author of A Tree Grows in Brooklyn and Joy in the Morning.

The world premier of the movie "Joy in the Morning" was held in Chapel Hill last year.

The writing workshops, were initiated by Maupin and Betty O'Bryan, chairman of the YWCA Writer - in - Residence Committee, at the suggestion of this year's Writer-in-Residence, Leon Rooke.

Rooke was recipient of the 1965 O'Henry Award for his novel, If Lost, Return to the Swiss Arms. He has demonstrated an interest in meeting and working with students.

The workshops will be conducted on an informal basis. Students may come in any time, write as long as they wish, and have the assistance and advice of a professional writer if they desire it. The workshops will be conducted on a weekly basis.

This is the first year for Writer-in-Residence Workshops, but the Writer - in - Residence Program itself is several years old. Past participants include Reynolds Price, author of A Long and Happy Life, and John Knowles, author of A Separate Peace.

Myriad Items Cross Border

By LYTT STAMPS
DTH Staff Writer

An exchange program between Escuela Normal Superior of Mexico and UNC which began in 1957 is continuing this semester with three Mexican students studying here.

The project is sponsored here by Phi Delta Kappa, men's honorary education fraternity, and the Frank Porter Graham chapter of Student National Education Association under the guidance of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

The program has exchanged more things that just students. For example:

—Letters between students at ENS and UNC.

—Photographs — ranging from small "snapshots" to framed enlargements.

—Tape Recordings—one for prospective visitors to UNC telling about living conditions, food, clothing and other information helpful to them in planning for their trip.

—Slides depicting education in each country with recorded commentary.

—Motion pictures—UNC students produced a 40 minute sound movie showing university life.

—Phonograph records— The Mexicans sent records of their folk music and UNC returned recordings of American folk music, jazz and English language records of poetry.

—Textbooks—UNC set all texts used in basic courses in the School of Education.

—Professional magazines.

—Student newspaper— The School of Education prepared a Spanish education The Daily Tar Heel. ENS sent copies of English Tidings.

—Art exhibits—ENS sent an outstanding piece of sculpture which was placed on display in Peabody Hall.

—Maps

—Markers—A tree was planted beside Peabody in 1963 by 22 ENS professors. In 1964 a marker was placed at the base of the tree.

Constitutional Amendment

Light Turnout Seen In Referendum Vote

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Voter turnout is expected to be very light today as North Carolina students vote on a proposed constitutional amendment which will affect future elections of the student body president and vice president.

John Winborne, temporary elections board chairman, said, "Very little interest has been shown in this election. As a matter of fact there has been less interest in this than in any election I have seen here in the past three years."

He said there was much more interest in the campus radio referendum last fall than has been shown in the constitutional amendment.

The amendment, if passed, will provide for the election of the student body president and vice president on the same ballot rather than on individual tickets as they have been in the past.

Most of the present student body leaders from both political parties have endorsed the change as well as many past student body leaders.

Today is the first time that North Carolina students have had the opportunity to vote on the amendment change although it has been presented in Student Legislature several times in the past few years. The proposal was brought up last fall in the 39th Assembly but did not carry the two - thirds majority necessary for constitutional amendments to be put before the student body for a vote.

The proposal was introduced again this spring by SP Majority Leader Don Wilson and Don Carson, legislator from Craige, and carried the necessary two - thirds vote in the legislature.

Britt Gordon, student body vice president, said, "This is something that is definitely needed. Many times when the president and vice president are elected from different parties, some disharmony occurs and the executive branch of student government is weakened."

Gordon said candidates from the same political party and similar philosophies of government would strengthen the executive branch.

"Most of the objections to the amendment have been mainly political ones," Gordon said. "Some people say the minority party would be hurt in its chances of getting a candidate into office if the president and vice pres. are elected on the same ballot. Others say the president would have too much power if the two were elected on the same ballot."

The polls will be opened from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. All students are eligible to vote, according to Winborne. He said the results of the referendum should be known by 9 p.m. today.

Speakers Chosen For CFI Meeting

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

The Committee for Free Inquiry will sponsor a meeting of the student body, faculty and administration Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall concerning the speaker policy procedures the trustees will be discussing at their meeting next Monday.

Student body president Paul Dickson, who is also chairman of the CFI, said yesterday that the meeting will feature speeches concerning the speaker policy procedures recommended to the trustees by the executive committee and the CFI.

Speakers will include Dr. David Lapkin, economics professor; Bob Powell, chairman of the UNC state affairs committee; and Richard French, head of the Graduate Students Committee for Free Inquiry.

Dickson will preside at the meeting and will also speak. He is negotiating with a well-know alumnus to secure him as an additional speaker for the meeting.

Dickson said, "Invitations were extended to members of the executive committee. One member contacted personally turned down the invitation and said he thought the other members would turn down the invitations also.

"The meeting will emphasize the aspect of a free university. It will also emphasize academic freedom and integrity and their importance to the University."

Dickson listed the objections that the CFI has to the procedures of the speaker policy proposed by the executive committee of the board of trustees:

*The discrimatory policy will not apply to all speakers but only those in certain categories.

*We consider the policy to be arbitrary. There is no reason why the speakers should not be allowed to speak.

*We consider the policy to be unconstitutional and in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment guaranteeing equal protection of the law.

*The policy allows the Chancellor to violate the First Amendment of the freedom of speech.

*The policy also belittles students, because the executive committee assumes that a student can not evaluate an opposing point of view.

*The policy also shows prior censorship.

SSL Passes Free Speech Resolution

A Resolution in support of free speech at institutions of higher education in North Carolina was passed Saturday by State Student Legislature meeting in Raleigh last week.

The representatives from North Carolina colleges passed the bill by a vote of 90-2.

The Resolution was introduced by Salem College at the suggestion of the University of North Carolina. Bob Powell of UNC spoke to the motion.

The Resolution said in part that institutions of higher education must serve as an open forum for different views and opinions, even if they are unpopular or divergent.

"It is through the criticial examination of all alternatives that the fullest understanding of significant issues can be achieved," it said.

The Resolution also expressed opposition to Communist doctrines.

A copy of the resolution was sent to the Governor, the President of each institution of higher education represented by the Student Legislature, and each member of the Board of Truestees of the University of North Carolina.

SP To Pick Candidates

The Student Party will meet tomorrow night to elect candidates for spring elections. The meeting will be at 7 in rm. 8 Peabody.

Candidates for the offices of school president, vice - president, secretary, treasurer, women and men legislators, senior class president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, NSA coordinator and editor of the DTH will be voted on.

Any student is eligible for the SP endorsement for any position if he or she attends the convention.

All persons seeking party endorsement should bring a good picture of themselves to the convention.

GM Seeks President

Applications for the presidency of the Graham Memorial Activities Board are available at the GM Information Desk.

Deadline for applications is noon Wed., March 2.

Applicants should sign up to be interviewed by the Nominating Committee of the Activities Board when they returned the applications to the information desk.

The president presides at weekly meetings at the GMAB, is chairman of the GM Board of Directors, coordinates GM committees, aids in planning the GM program, selects members of the incoming Activities Board and plans the GM orientation program.

Job Interviews

Kurt Salmon Associates; REA Express; Vick Chemical (Summer work); Montgomery Ward; Prentice Hall Publishing; and Roadway Express will have representatives on campus today to interview students.

Tomorrow, Chubb & Son; Jewel Box Stores; Dow Corning (summer work); Cone Mill; and Xerox will talk to students interested in jobs.

Anyone that wants an interview should come by the Placement Service, 211 Gardner, to make an appointment.

Society Elects 10

Ten of the 34 new members elected to the Southern Society for Clinical Investigation are on the faculty of the North Carolina School of Medicine.

They are Dr. William D. Blythe, Dr. Keneth M. Brinkhous, Dr. William J. Cromartie, Dr. Harold J. Fallon, Dr. John B. Graham, Dr. Morris A. Lipton, Dr. Joseph S. Pagano, Dr. Harold R. Roberts and Dr. J. K. Spitznagel.

NSA Scholarships

The U. S. National Student Association will award 15 full scholarships for the 14th annual International Student Relations Seminar to be held in Washington, D. C. from June 13 to Sept. 2.

Applications must be sent in by Mar. 15. They may be picked up from Eric Van Loon, NSA coordinator, at Student government headquarters, or by writing USNSA, Polish Scholarship Program, 2115 S St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Training Program

Student body president Paul Dickson and Vice president Brit Gordon will discuss student government and students at the fifth meeting of the In-Service Training Program for staff members of the office of the Dean of Women and for associates.

The discussion will be held in rm. 105, Hanes Hall, at 4 p.m. on Thursday.

Unveiling Of Nymph

Ehringhaus will unveil a 35 foot high drawing of a bikini clad nymph at their Duke Weekend Combo party Saturday night from 8-12.

Music will be by the Seductives. Cost is $1 per couple.

Sexual Imprinting

Dr. Erich Klinghammer of the University of Chicago will speak on "Sexual Imprinting in Mourning Doves" today at 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Morehead Building.

The talk is open to the public.

Duke To Hear Yang

Dr. .C N. Yank, a co - winner of the Nobel Prize in Physics, will deliver the 10th annual Fritz London Memorial Lecture at Duke on March 1.

He will speak on the "Symmetry of Physics."

The lecture is open to the public.

Board Will Quiz Pub Candidates

The publications board will hold interviews Thursday in the Grail Room for positions of editor and business manager of the Course Evaluation book and the Yackety-Yack.

Candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel are asked to make appointments for interviews, which will be from 3:30-6 p.m.

Interviews will also be held for Business manager of the DTH.

Interested students should make an appointment at the GM information desk. Members of the publications board are required to attend Thursday.

Questions should be addressed to Dave Heacock at 968-9215. Yack photography contracts will be awarded at the same meeting.

Students interested in filing for the DTH editorship are asked to come by for interviews. No one may run for the office without the approval of the board, or without a petition containing a required number of signatures.

So far, only Alan Banov, a junior from Charleston, S. C., has announced his intention to run for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

Beauty Queen To Be Picked March 26

Penny Clark

The annual Orange County beauty pageant will be held in Memorial Hall at UNC March 26. Carolina coeds who are Orange County residents are invited to enter.

Contestants must have never been married, must be between 16 and 28 years old and must have been a resident of Orange County for six months.

The winner will receive a $250 scholarship from Pepsi Cola Company, a wardrobe and the opportunity to compete for the title of Miss North Carolina later this year in Greensboro.

The pageant is sponsored by the Chapel Hill - Carrboro and Hillsboro Jaycees.

A tea will be held Sunday, March 20 in honor of the contestants and their mothers. Saturday, March 26, parades will be held at 11:30 a.m. in Chapel Hill and Hillsboro.

Saturday evening the contestants and judges will attend a dinner. The pageant will begin at 8 p.m.

Special guests expected to attend the pageant will be Penny Clark, reigning Miss North Carolina, Patti Fields, reigning Miss Orange County, and Burl Ives, who is presently a resident in Orange County.

Tickets for the pageant are being sold by members of the Jaycees and may be purchased at the door.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

SG Needs Cooperation; The Slate Could Help

Those who gripe about the weakness and ineffectiveness of student government have a chance to do something about it today.

Vote "yes" on the constitutional amendment.

Article III, section 1 of the constitution merely says that the student government president, vice president, secretary and treasurer will be elected by and from the entire student body.

The amendment at issue today adds this requirement: "The president of the student body and the vice president of the student body shall have sought their respective positions together and shall be elected together as if they were one person."

In other words, the president and vice president will hereafter be elected on a slate system as in national elections if the proposal is approved.

The amendment is a matter of practicality. This campus has a student political party system which is probably unrivaled in the country for its strength. Candidates are nominated by the Student Party and University Party; then for a month of campaigning they fight one another with unrestrained enthusiasm.

Three times within the past five years the president and vice president were elected from different parties and the results have been anything but outstanding. The two officers simply cannot work together when they have so little in common.

The amendment will force the parties to be as painstaking in their selection of vice presidential candidates as they are in nominating presidents, and the ultimate result will be a more unified student government which has a greater chance of accomplishing its goals.

No One Writes

> "Thus, you yourself, unworthy companion of my sad life, are like the public to whom one must never offer delicate perfumes, which only exasperate them. One must offer them garbage which has been carefully selected."
>
> (Translated from Beaudelaire, The Carolina Quarterly, 1965)

The most recent issue of the Quarterly would not appeal to the public of which Beaudelaire is speaking.

For, although a major portion of the magazine might well be described as garbage, there is no evidence that it has been carefully selected.

It appears to be random garbage.

It appears, in fact, to be a stumbling conglomeration of pathetic bluffs—a handful of fatuous little projects which might succeed at being controversial if they were the least bit coherent.

It appears, in short, to have been compiled by the Sociology Department.

But even this depressing fact is no reason to give up. Every reputable university should have a literary journal. It would be nice if we had one at Carolina.

The dilemma of the Quarterly is simply indicative of the dilemma of the University: No one writes

For writing, as everyone knows, isn't very respectable. No one who is honestly concerned with his image on campus would ever dream of crawling out of comfortable ananymity into the social perilousness of creativity. "People from Harry's write—not regular people. Writing is for beatniks."

And that's the trouble. A small coterie of disillusioned cynics has obtained a monopoly on the market. The result is sometimes dazzling, often tiresome, always lop-sided. There is no one to blame but the legions of potentially promising writers who refuse to exercise a skill which, in the best of all possible worlds, acknowledges no social or political boundaries. The Muses, ideally, are public property.

With this premise in mind, the Writer-in-Residence Committee of the YM-YWCA has initiated a new program at the University.

Tonight in 107 Howell Hall Leon Rooke, UNC Writer-in-Residence and recipient of a 1965 O. Henry Award, will conduct the first in a series of Writer's Workshops in Chapel Hill. Betty Smith, author of A Tree Grows in Brooklyn and Joy in the Morning, will speak at the beginning of the evening. The Workshop will last from 8 to 10 p.m. and will be very informal. Typewriters and advice will be available when needed.

Try it.

Armistead Maupin Jr.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Would You Believe That Tommy Jefferson Did It?"

David Rothman

Striking Back With Trivia

Is trivia part of a protest movement? Does it reflect the confusion of youth? Are its fans mentally unstable?

Students have long wailed about inconsequential questions on their quizzes.

The multiple choice approach — sometimes dubbed the "multiple guess" technique—has been looked upon with contempt because of its often emphasizing irrevelant details.

And "fill in the blank" tests may be just as bad.

Thus, I conclude that trivia, with its accent on the unimportant, is the student's answer to those who harrass him in the classroom. The game's players are unconsciously protesting the meaningless questions of their professors by exaggerating the meaninglessness.

Nobody really cares about what disease killed Emily Bronte's oldest sister (tuberculosis) or President Harding's middle name (Gamaliel); yet questions of this type often appear on exams given in the nation's schools—high schools and, to a lesser extent, colleges.

I myself still have trouble recalling the population of Blackfoot, Idaho, (5,180) or the first person to treat sociology systematically (Auguste Comte).

Throughout high school, I wondered why my teachers couldn't stick to more important matters—like William Shakespaeare's birth date (1564), the color of Sinclair Lewis' hair (red) or the meaning of the word "Nemathelminthes (flat worms).

Other students here were probably just as dissatisfied with their high school quizzes. So, turning to pop culture, they did their best to erase the nightmares of the past by drowning them in a flood of vital information about comic books, radio programs and canceled TV series.

Ed Freakley, my fellow columnist, typifies The New Wave. Only last week, he was concerning himself with the color of Jimmy Olsen's hair, the identity of radio's Abominable Snowman and the name of the dog on "The People's Choice" (see Friday's DTH for the answers).

And the other day, somebody suavely asked me the name of Sen. Goldwater's yacht ("Sun-Dance")—causing me to moan and groan until I got him to admit he didn't know the call letters of the Senator's two radio stations (K7UGA and K3UIG).

All of us were merely protesting against having to remember for school facts like Puerto Rico's population (2,349,544), the author of "Morgante maggiore" (Luigi Pulci) and the distinction of Pulaski, Tenn. (the Ku Klux Klan organized there in 1865).

All of us, most likely, are as neurotic as the person who counts the bulbs in electric signs, the collector of antique waste baskets or the nut who trims his toe nails three time a day.

But what are we to do?

Trivia fans will probably just have to wait until some psychiatrist publicly declares us more deranged than the people who avoid stepping on the cracks in the sidewalk. Then we shall be eligible to enter an institution other than a university

Right now, I'll put you at ease for the moment—by admitting I used an encyclopedia to write this column.

The Student Speaks

Which Is The Smarter Sex?

By HUGH OWENS

As I was ambling down Franklin Street a few days ago on my way to the N. C. my companion made a reasonable proposition: women are less intelligent than men. Preposterous you say?

Perhaps.

Perhaps not.

It all centers around what you define as intelligence. Men are more suited to routine menial mental tasks like adding up long columns of figures. But I have yet to see a girl who can approach a competent male in this field. Most women definitely do not possess the rigorous machine logic of what is recognized as masculine.

Yet in their own way I sometimes wonder if women don't harbor a kind of supralogic. Call it intuition or what you like. If women are logical in the general sense of the word, their form of logic is different from and often at variance with male logic.

I then advanced a statement that women are the foremost realists of the race. Women can instantly spot hypocrisy in their sex. Then my friend asked how it is then that girls can be "snowed" by boys so easily. I disagreed and said that a girl when she put her mind to it could snow a boy more readily than vice versa.

Yet it is interesting to note that women although they see weakness or deficiency in a man — they may not reject him. Whereas a man would eschew and condemn another man who displayed weakness or vacillation, a woman might stand by him.

One often hears of women (often beautiful) sticking by men who possess no recognizable value what ever. But a man would rarely act similarly toward a woman. This type of sentiment is made so pognantly ludicrous in Tom Lehrer's ditty on the subject: " . . . . to Ed or Dick or Bob, she may be just a slob, but to me She's my girl . . . . And I LOVE her!"

Ask a man about his love for a woman and he'll answer what it is about her that he loves. He loves her because she (a) is beautiful (b) compassionate (c) is a Serbo - Croat (d) has a wealthy father etc. But a woman will respond more like Elizabeth Browning: "How do I love thee? Let me count the ways . . . "

So it comes down to a what or WHY vs. HOW relationship. With later rumination I concluded that women are instead the Tragic Realists of the race. Women have to face the tedious tasks of the role that is theirs. It takes a woman to know the reality of childbirth.

Women think in the actual and the concrete. Men think in the speculative and the abstract. For that reason I have never read a poem by a woman that has anywhere near the abstract depth of Shakespeare's sonnet XVIII, or Keat's "Ode on a Grecian Urn" or more particularly Eliot's "Wasteland." There are no great abstract women poets.

In fact there has never been a great woman poet. I recall women's style of poetry as along the whimsical lines of a Phyllis McGinley or perhaps the sensuous imagery of Sara Teasdale. I can continue to prove my point by saying there has never been a great (or even good) woman philosopher. Maybe there never was one.

Try to name a great woman mathematician, or artist, or musician, or composer. You can't do it. Women are not disposed to such abstractions. The metaphor belongs to man.

Why is it then that women can't think in the abstract? Think about the niche in the world that the woman has always occupied. In primitive societies it is the woman who does the work of village and field while the males sit in council. The men lend an arm only when the tasks demands real physical strength. It is the women who bear the babies, feed the gaping mouths, buy the food.

This recalls an amusing incident of my experience. A few years ago while in a supermarket I saw one of the specious fast ones that merchants will cunningly or inadvertently (probably the former) pull on unsuspecting women. On the shelf was a box of food for $.34. Yet a sign blatantly announced that one could get "3 for $.99!" Such a deal. This is the type of thing that most of us men but few women have ever seen.

But again, why do women think concretely? Why is it always mother (and never father) who reminds us "Not to forget our rubbers." Perhaps the primeval female early realized that she could never achieve physical superiority over the male.

So she instead has ever since tried to seize power over the concrete world that is man's. Maybe Chaucer was correct when he wrote that what all women desire is dominance over men. It is a conflict that extends down to the present day.

Are they gaining on us?

I don't know.

Will they ever win?

Who cares.

But I sure enjoy watching them try.

Graduate CFI

Letter To The Trustees

This letter was sent to each member of the Board of Trustees by the Graduate Committee for Free Inquiry.

To the Members of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina:

As graduate students we have a deep concern about the specter of censorship that is facing the educational instutions in North Carolina today and an even more immediate concern over the possible actions that the Board of Trustees might take on Feb. 28.

We came to this University from 48 states and 39 foriegn nations to pursue advanced studies in our respective fields for the reason that at the time of our decisions to come here, this was among the best universities in the United States in terms of faculty, facilities and professional esteem among educated men throughout the world.

The tragic fact today, however, is that the University has already begun to fall in academic standing: professional societies have chosen not to meet there, scholars have on principle declined inviations to speak, and some departments are having difficulty in recruiting faculty. Although some officials in the government already realize this and have taken steps to keep the University from losing accreditation, the actions have left unresolved the very heart of the controversy censorship of ideas.

Any censorship is an absolute contradiction to the educational process, and indeed to the functioning of a democratic society. To prohibit the sincere presentation of divergent opinion not only wakens the opportunity to exchange error for turth but also weakens the foundation of education itself by eradicating the clearer perception of truth that arises from its collision with error.

Moreover, the harmful effects of censorship do not depend upon the mechanism by which the censorship is carried out. A few days ago we learned that two Soviet writers had been imprisoned for criticizing their government, and we were saddened that well-educated Russians not only did not protest this action of their government (for indeed, is not the idea of protest anathema to tyranny?), but that they actually concurred with the judgment.

The denial of Constitutional rights by well-meaning men in America is no different from the denial of these same rights by agents of communism itself, and as citizens in a free society we must speak out for the preservation of freedom.

The Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina should enact a speaker policy which restores to the University students and faculty in particular and the citizens in general the exercise of their right to hear whomsoever they see fit, free from th threat of censorship from any quarter

To do less would no only strike a blow to freedom and guarantee the further decay of a great university, but would also dim the future of North Carolina as a state in which education, industry and the spirit of freedom could flourish.

We surely have a right to expect the Board of Trustees, a body of educated men devoted to the high principles of freedom and education and not to the caprice of political expediency, to display nothing short of statesmanship and moral courage in effecting a solution to this problem facing a free society.

Sincerely,
Bill O'Brien
for the Graduate Committee for Free Inquiry

The Collegiate World

Students Picket Blood Drive

By GIRMA NEGASH
Daily Kansan

Members of the KU Committee to End the War in Viet Nam picketed at noon today in front of the Kansas Union, emphasizing that blood would be saved by bringing the troops home.

Four students carried posters reading, "USA the Warfare State," "Save Blood—Bring the Boys Home," "Stop the War Now" and "Stop the Blood Bath."

Inside the Kansas Union the blood drive continued on its last day.

The decision for the protest was made by the KU Committee to End the War in Viet Nam in its meeting yesterday.

The committee prepared a statement which read:

"We are protesting the war in Viet Nam and feel that a truly humanitarian approach causes that make it necessary. Save blood is needed in Viet Nam, but we question the causes that make it necessary. Save blood by bringing the troops home now."

"We are building up towards the international and national days of protest of March 25 and 26 against the Viet Nam war," said Richard Hill, junior, spokesman for the KU Committee to End the War in Viet Nam.

Increasing interest among students was the focus of discussion last night at the committee's meeting. Suggestions were mentioned, ranging from raising blood donations for the Vietnamese people to preparing bibliography materials on Viet Nam for students.

"The number of anti - war groups in the nation are proliferating. Most are not just sitting down to read anti - war literatures but are more active," Hill said.

The Committee has received a letter of support from the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation.

ANDY CAPP

'But What About The People?'

Audience Applauded Taxes For Education

The following is the first in a series of excerpts from the book "But What About the People?" by former governor Terry Sanford, published at 1966 by Harper & Row, New York.

PART I.
INVENTORY OF WEAKNESS
By TERRY SANFORD

This is the story of an American state not content with the quality and extent of the education available to its children. It is the story of a state dedicated to the proposition that its hopes for human progress depend on educated people.

It is an account of North Carolina's efforts from the beginning of 1961 through 1964, the term of one administration, to commit itself to education as the vital tool for the creation of new jobs, for the development of a more substantial and diversified economic structure, for the elimination of the causes of poverty, the easing of prejudices and racial discrimination, the fulfillment of individual aspirations, and the cultivation of all human capacities.

I believe that government is charged with the duty of providing the means for the fulfillment of the human spirit and the fruitful use of all talents. By starting with sound, meaningful education, we make it possible for each person to add to his own gift to his generation, to become a part of the progress of man. In turn, the individual makes the nation stronger, defends against its enemies, adds to its wealth, and carries forward its ideals and faith.

Essentially this is the account of how political leaders and educational leaders joined in a working partnership, each trusting the other, both intent on using education as the instrument for creative development of human resources.

The story does not intend to suggest that North Carolina knows all the answers, nor even to claim that it has found all the questions. It is the beginning of an answer one state has attempted to give to the question asked of itself, "But what about the people?"

* * *

Education develops human resources. Human resources, in turn, make a nation whatever it is to be. It seemed to me, when I pondered running for governor of North Carolina, that education must of necessity be our primary concern. In the first place, we were behind in the comparative ratings with other states. This meant our children, generally speaking, started life with a competitive disadvantage.

Furthermore, education in the formal sense was not reaching enough people in any state, so even if we provided huge additional sums of money we would not be doing the job of total education. Even in those states and areas where comparative per pupil expenditures were high, far too many children were not benefiting very much.

I decided I would make it my business to imrpove our system of developming human resources. I decided I would run for governor and make education the star by which we would sail.

As a candidate and later as a governor, my first question was whether all children born in North Carolina had a fair chance to develop, compete, to achieve, to use fully all the talents with which God had endowed them. I really didn't need to ask the question because I knew the answer.

Too many were failing to achieve, develop, and compete. To do something about it I first had to pick out our weaknesses. Where were we failing the people? How? What might be done to correct these failures?

To help me define the needs and the action for school improvement, I leaned on many people. As a Sate Senator in 1953, I had been exposed to the policy and budget requests, and as the candidate stressing education as the primary need of the state I attracted much advice from school personnel and patrons. In addition, I and patrons. In addition, I read carefully the recent studies of American education, especially those conducted by Dr. James Bryant Conant.

Out of this cross - section of information and advice I drew my own conclusions about our shortcomings, and made my own inventory of weaknesses. This inventory extended from our inadequate teacher salaries to our overcrowded classrooms; from the neglect for the retarded, the gifted, and the dropout to the lack of opportunity for the Negro; from the consolidated high school to our state universities. This inventory of weaknesses and failures enabled us to begin to shape a program of educational progress.

While taking note of our past achievements, and due credit for our accomplishments, it was appropriate to remember Heywood Broun's comment, "No body politics healthy until it begins to itch." We were preparing to make progress by listing our failures. But first we had to win the election.

As I traveled over the state seeking support, prior to announcing, the audiences began to take the school issue away from me. "We must improve our schools" brought the most applause. The sensibleness of progress through education won the most favorable response at every stop.

I talked about roads and farm income and industrial development and water resources, and the audiences were interested. I talked about schools and they clapped.

One evening a lady stood up to ask, "Where are you going to get the money for all this stuff?"

"Where do you think we will bet the money?" I told her. "From taxes!" The audience broke out in the best applause I had heard.

After we left, I turned to Bert Bennett who was scheduled to be my campaign manager.

"Do you realize what we experienced tonight? Voters applauded when I said we would get new school money from taxes. That's remarkable."

Bert laughed. "Yes, but I wouldn't be too sure. They thought you said you'd get the money from Texas."

But he, Paul Thompson and Henry Hall Wilson agreed this was a dramatic development.

Terry Sanford

Why not talk about taxes? Of course betters schools for our children would cost us more money. Why not make it a part of the campaign speech?

From then on we never failed to suggest the possibility of new taxes, and the promise never failed to get warm applause.

After two primary elections, I was the Democratic nominee.

It appeared that the Republicans had the best chance to win North Carolina since 1928, and after two hard campaigns we faced still another. There wasn't to be any coasting in, as often had been the situation.

It was late on election night when we breathed easy.

Now it was time to go to work.

When, in February of 1961, the printed budget was handed to me for formal presentation to the General Assembly, a staff aide from the Budget Division sent over a suggested Budget Message dealing with each section of the budget. The public school budget was described by the aide, in so many words, as "a good and forward-looking education budget." To that I added, in so many words, "But it is not good enough. We must provide all the money requested by the Board of Education, and I will prepare a second budget message with recommendations for the new tax sources which will be required."

Even with the claim of a mandate, raising taxes is not easy. It is perhaps indicative of how much we take schools for granted that parents who will seek out the best pediatrician for their child, buy toys and clothes far beyond any reasonable standard of need, and generally give their boy or girl the best they can possibly afford, will complain about paying taxes. Yet, taxes are the price of schools, and a good education is the greatest gift we can give our children.

We had t have the new taxes. In March 1961, I delivered my secnd budget message to the General Assembly. I asked it to remove all exemptions was to place the tax on food.

I told the legislators that the existing budget was toally inadequate to achieve the goals for public education which we had set for our state. I told them, "the quality we seek cannot be delivered by the General Assembly, although only you can start the march."

The 1961 General Assembly had the courage to vote this tax increase for support of public education, the largest that had ever been voted in the history of the state. The credit properly belongs to Lieutenant Governor Cloyd Philpott and legislators such as the finance committee chairmen, Senator Tom White and Representative Shelton Wicker, who fought day and night for new school taxes, and the appropriations chairmen, Tom Woodard and Jim Strickleather who skillfully shepherded through the budget items.

Nobody likes taxes, but we are learning that ignorance is the most oppressive tax of all.

The new money raised the salaries of teachers and public school personnel by about 22 per cent the very first year, supervisors' and superintendents' salaries about 30 per cent.

To reduce the ratio of teachers to pupils, we increased teaching positions by five per cent and added 43 assistants for local superintendents.

The state library allotment per pupil was doubled and the allotment for instructional supplies was raised by more than a third.

The new money provided an allotment for clerical assistance in local schools.

In-service training for the professional improvement of teachers was provided, and additional scholarship loans for teachers authorized.

A curriculum study and research program was set up and $200,000 was appropriated to conduct an experiment in merit pay for teachers.

Funds for Industrial Education Centers were greatly increased and the vocational rehabilitation program was revitalized. An appropriation was made to support state-level administration of the National Defense Education Program.

Higher education was not neglected. Faculty salaries were raised about ten per cent, over a thousand new positions for the higher education system were budgeted, and state grants for community colleges were increased from $3.25 to $4.00 per student quarter hour of instruction.

At one point in the discussions, someone had said to me, "Surely, you don't contend that paying a teacher more money will make her a better teacher." The strange thing is that I have now observed that paying a teacher more money does make her a better teacher. At least the way we paid her had this result. We put teachers first.

The new tax produced tangible and significant results in every classroom in the state. Morale was much better, the spirit was much lifted, the teachers were working harder and were determined to do their part. They would "show" the legislature.

I am convinced that we would have obtained many of the intangible results even if we had lost the legislative battles. The point is that the political leadership was fighting, and fighting hard, for the improvement of the schools.

Television Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Decisions 1966
11:30 Glory Trail
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Sign Off
3:30 French-Teach
4:00 Industrial Education
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Discovery
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 Nutrition
7:30 What's New
8:00 Arts: Theatre
8:30 French Chef
9:00 Turn of Century
9:30 U. S. History Since 1865
10:15 Basketball: UNC vs UVA
11:45 Sign Off

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

THE ARTS: USA— THEATRE—8:00 p.m. —"Folkways, Festivals and Free Theatre" Concentrating on the varied theater audiences in the United States, and the diverse theatrical fares available to them, this program visits some of the well-established standards —such as the Cohasset Music Tent, Massachusetts, and the Westport Country Playhouse, Connecticut—where Broadway actress Tammy Grimes talks about her experiences playing the summer circuit.

THE FRENCH CHEF —8:30 p.m.—"Ham Dinner in Half and Hour" Julia Child notes that there comes a time when you have no time, yet it's company time! She illustrates how to solve this dilemma—with a chic, but quick, three-course meal.

THE TURN OF THE CENTURY — 9:00 p.m. — "Music in the Air" Max Morath recalls the era of mechanical player pianos used during the early twentieth century— the sturdy upright player piano; the little Angelus which was attached to a regular keyboard; the Ampico, a player grand piano which reproduced remarkably accurate phrasings and sounds of great concert artists; and the Cremona and Orchestrion, early forerunners of the juke boxes.

SPECIAL: BASKETBALL — UNIVERSITY OF NOTYH CAROLINA VS. UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA — 10:15 p.m. —A delay broadcast of the game played this evening at Chapel Hill is presented via video-tape. Kearney Andrews is commentator for play-by-play description.

WRAL (Ch.5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Unce Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: HIGH SCHOOL HELLCATS: Bret Halsey
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 My Three Sons
7:30 Combat
8:30 McHale's Navy
9:00 F Troop
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 The Fugitive
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theatre: DESERT FOX: James Mason

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

COMBAT! — 7:30 p.m. — Keenan Wynn guests as a pilot who crash lands behind German lines with Lt. Hanley aboard.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Home Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 The Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 Woody Woodpecker
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News (c)
7:00 The Munsters
7:30 Daktari (c)
8:30 Red Skelton (c)
9:30 Petticoat Junction
10:00 Andy Williams (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WUNC-FM (91.5 mc)

6:00 Dinner Hour Music—Turina: Impression of Spain, Op. 20, 47; De Falla: Three Dances from the Three-Cornered Hat.

DAILY CROSSWORD

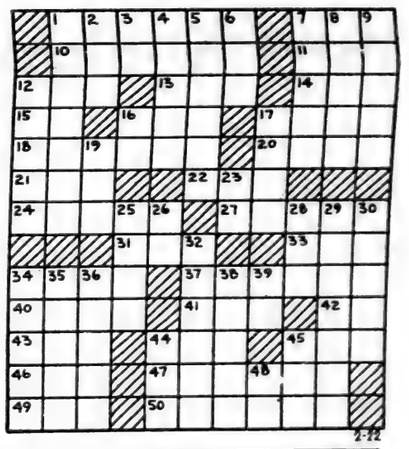
ACROSS

1. A great amount: slang
7. Cloak
10. Settled routine
11. Chicle
12. Common verb
13. Something lost in more ways than won
14. Constellation
15. Tellurium: sym.
16. Chess piece
17. Call, for attention
18. Stone in biblical breastplate
20. Poker stake
21. King of Judah
22. Oriental dwelling
24. Gesture of indifference
27. Rock garden plant
31. Knave of clubs
33. Type of world
34. Roman garment
37. Except that
40. Sacred bull
41. Inlet
42. Bone
43. Easily suede
44. Storage place
45. Purchase
46. Finish
47. Not level
49. King
50. Plant again

DOWN

1. Like a giant in fairy tales
2. Something unrefined
3. Attend to
4. —— pneumonia
5. Leveled
6. Tennis term
7. Once more
8. Explode
9. Central Am. timber tree
12. Legendary giant
16. Greek letter
17. Rodent
19. A fish
23. Of the Far East: abbr.
25. Java tree
26. East of Ala.
28. John or Jane
29. Insecure
30. Dirty
32. Type of opossum
34. Ticket ——
35. Think
36. Dizzy
38. Baseball teams
39. East of Miss.
44. Prickly seed coat
45. A little hum bug
48. A contraction

Yesterday's Answer



2-22

PINE ROOM

"The Popular Place To Meet, Snack, or Dine"

SNACK BAR AND CAFETERIA

Specializing In—

- Hickory Smoked Barbecue
- Raviola Nicoise
- Spaghetti Italienne
- Combination Seafood Platters
- Southern Fried Chicken
- Rare Roast Beef
- Charcoal Broiled Steak
- Broiled Lobster Tails
- Pizza
- Sandwiches of All Kinds
- Homemade Pies Baked Daily

COMPLETE CARRY-OUT FOOD SERVICE

Open: Mon.-Fri. 7:00-12:00
Sundays 4:00-12:00
Closed: Saturdays

"VISIT WITH US AFTER THE GAMES"

A button-down in a basket weave. (Something old, something new.)

This Arrow shirt gives you best of both worlds. (1) A long-pointed collar role in the most authentic tradition. (2) A husky-looking basket weave that updates ordinary oxford. For other interesting features, check the tapered body; back pleat and loop; back collar button. Lots of unusual stripes to choose from. $5.00. You expected to pay more?

Bold New Breed from ARROW.

For Class Requirements Buy
Used Paperbacks
More Reading for Less Money
THE OLD BOOK CORNER
The Intimate
Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street

SLOT RACES
Tues. & Thur. Nites
7:30 P.M.
PRIZES
2 TRACKS, 16 LANES
Billy Arthur
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill

TUESDAY NITE ONLY
Special
5 to 10:30 P.M.
Mouth Watering Pizza

Large Plain Pizza and
A Pitcher of Beer or Cider
1.50
YE OLDE TAVERNE
E. FRANKLIN STREET
Professional Bldg. 942-5578

Sukarno Dismisses Anti-Communists

SINGAPORE (AP) — President Sukarno of Indonesia yesterday dismissed Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, arch foe of Indonesian Communists, as defense minister, Radio Jakarta reported.

Also ousted was the Navy Minister, Vice Adm. Martadinata, another anti-Communist.

Thus Sakarno seemed to have triumped, at least for now, in a power struggle with the armed forces, which have been purging Communists since the Reds tried a coup last October. Sukarno opposed the purge, although the coup was aimed at his regime.

In the broadcast from his palace, Sukarno said Nasution's former combined post of defense minister and chief of the armed forces had been abolished in a cabinet reshuffle.

He gave no reason for dismissing Nasution, 47, and Martadinata, 48, beyond saying the changes were normal. Nasution led the armed forces in crushing the Communist uprising last October. His 5-year-old daughter was killed by the rebels, who were gunning for him.

Sukarno named Maj. Gen. Haji Sarbini, little known outside Indonesia, as the new defense minister. Sarbini was the former army veterans minister. The president implied that Nasution still is Chief of Staff of the armed forces.

The president did not list Nasution's name, however, in reading the list of service chiefs.

Sarbini made a statement claiming counter - revolutionary forces inside and outside the country are now intensifying their efforts to turn the country to the right.

WANT ADS

AM GOING TO EUROPE spring vacation. Will purchase car for someone at considerable savings, Chuck Cunningham, 430 Avery, (968-9100).

FOR SALE: 1953 M. G. Roadster. M. G.-A engine, runs good, clean, new top. 942-1471.

FOR RENT: NEW 2 BEDroom air conditiond 10' x 55' mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3368 or 942-1749.

WANTED: RESOURCEFUL college girl to outwit small boy for two hours every day. Call Mrs. Schlesinger 929-2074.

FOR SALE: 1959 VOLVO Pv 544 4 speed, new tires and brakes. $595.00 or best offer. Call 942-6610 day, 942-1802 night.

North Carolina News Roundup

NC Unemployment Low

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina unemployment during January dropped to its lowest level in 18 months — 2.8 per cent of the workers receiving unemployment benefits.

Henry E. Kendall, chairman of the State Employment Security Commission, said although unemployment rose over December, the jobless rate was 23 per cent below that of a year ago. He said total unemployment insurance payments in January were $2.28 million or approximately $1.1 million less than paid in January 1965.

Kendall said the low joblessness was caused by "generally good economic conditions which have existed since mid-1965."

In terms of employment, he said, "The beginning of 1966 is considerably better than last year."

Inspection Investigated

CHARLOTTE (AP) — R. B. Parker, administrator of the new North Carolina automobile inspection law, left Raleigh Monday for Charlotte to look into published reports that the inspection program is being mishandled by some certified inspectors.

The Charlotte Observer reported that a businessman who asked to remain anonymous had said he had been offered inspection stickers for his fleet of trucks without being required to run his vehicles through an inspection line.

The newspaper said the man reported two service stations approved to make inspections offered him the stickers without inspections for the $1.50 inspection fee for each truck.

Gardner Attacks Ruling

RALEIGH (AP) — State Republican Chairman James Gardner said yesterday the ruling by the U. S. Middle District Court on the state's congressional alignment "adds to the confusion and does nothing for better government in North Carolina."

Gardner's remarks confirmed a suspected split between him and the state's two GOP congressmen over the congressional plan drafted by a special session of the legislature.

The three-man district court in Greensboro approved the legislative apportionment but found the congressional plan "does not come as nearly as practicable to equal population" and declared it constitutionally invalid.

Battleship Honors Nimitz

WILMINGTON, (AP) — The United States flag flew at half mast yesterday aboard the U.S.S. North Carolina Battleship Memorial in Wilmington honoring Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Flowers were sent to the admiral's funeral by the U.S.S. North Carolina Battleship Commission "in grateful memory of the help received from the admiral by the commission in its campaign to preserve this great battleship for the future as a memorial to North Carolina's World War II dead."

De Gaulle Slams NATO In France

PARIS (AP) — President Charles De Gaulle confronted the United States and other Western allies yesterday with this sharp military ultimatum: after April 4, 1969, when in France, submit to French command.

If not, he implied, the United States and all others must withdraw their armed forces from French soil.

De Gaulle, in his first talk with reporters since winning releection to the presidency, spoke for 71 minutes to nearly 1,000 newsmen, aides and civil servants in Elysee Palace, his white house.

He asserted that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), which he termed an American protectorate had outlived its original purpose and usefulness. He again offered to replace it with bilateral accords but made it clear these would be strictly on French terms.

'It is a question," he said, "of re - establishing a normal situation of sovereignty under which, whatever is French, on the ground, in the air, on the sea, and all French armed forces, and every foreign element which happens to be in France, will henceforth be subject only to the French authorities."

This seemed aimed at the sprawling allied militray command structure, including the integrated Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), a European command headquarters at Fontainebleau, the vast American supply line across France and various air bases in the country.

As De Gaulle put things yesterday these would all have to come under French control by April 1969, or be moved to another country.

April 4, 1969, is the date when any of the 15 members of NATO can give notice of intention to withdraw from the alliance. De Gaulle's implication was clear: if necessary, France will withdraw from NATO and remove the legal bassis for the presence of these bases and facilities on French soil.

The United States still hopes De Gaulle will present specific proposals for restructuring the North Atlantic Treaty Organization — but officials said he didn't do so in his news conference.

De Gaulle, officials said, merely restated what he has said earlier that after 1969 France would no longer accept an integrated Western defense system.

Humphrey Will Warn U.S. About Communist China

MANILA (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey returns home from his nine-nation swing today with a new mission—to alert the American people that Red China is a growing menace throughout Asia.

This became known on the highest authority yesterday shortly after Humphrey arrived around midnight from New Zealand for talks with President Ferdinand Marcos.

He will try to get across the message the United States is facing as serious a threat from China in late 1960s as it did from the Soviet Union in Europe in the late 1950s. He will do this in television interviews already lined up and in speeches to groups throughout the country.

His objective:

To make the American people aware that — although South Viet Nam is the major infection from Chinese-backed Communist aggression — there are other problem areas that must be cured before they reach the crisis stage.

Our AVERAGE Student
Reads 4.7 Times Faster
THAN HIS BEGINNING SPEED
WITH EQUAL OR BETTER COMPREHENSION
The internationally famous EVELYN WOOD
Reading Dynamics Institute INVITES YOU TO ATTEND
A FREE DEMONSTRATION

In Durham High School on Duke St.
at 4:30 or 8 P.M.
TUES., FEB. 22
WED., FEB. 23
THURS., FEB. 24

in Raleigh YMCA 1601 Hillsborough St.
at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
MON., FEB. 28
TUES., MAR. 1
WED., MAR. 2

in Chapel Hill at the Carolina Inn
at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
WED., Mar. 9
THURS., Mar. 10

READING DYNAMICS CLASSES BEGIN

in DURHAM H. S. Monday, Feb. 28 at 7 P.M. in RALEIGH YMCA Tuesday, March 8 at 7 P.M.
in CHAPEL H.S. Thursday, March 17 at 7 P.M.

— REGISTRATION BEGINS 30 MINUTES EARLIER —

Quotes from Former Students

IN DURHAM . . .

A reading speed of over 2,000 words per minute is enabling me finally to read the vast quantity of material I feel I should read. I am going to try these techniques on cases in Law School, and of course in all my other reading.
Alan W. Eckert.

Since I am studying to be a teacher my increased speed is not only a blessing, but a joy. I am grateful that I took the course.
Janice Smith.

Reading Dynamics has enabled me to read greater than 2,000 words per minute with better comprehension than before. This is particularly of importance to me because of the precious little spare time I have to read.
Jordan Gutterman, M.D.

IN RALEIGH . . .

Part of A Letter Home

"Everything is going just fine here. My courses are all pretty tough but all very interesting. I'm really going to enjoy this semester. You'll be glad to know that my reading has helped me tremendously! It really is a time saver. I've been getting to bed around 11:00 to 11:30 . . . and it certainly is not because I don't have any homework because I always have plenty of it. That reading, though, has just cut my study time. It really is great! That's one of the most useful presents I have ever received. Thanks a million for it! Lots of love to you all,
from a student at State.

I never really learned how to study in school; this course has given me more insight into the "art" of study than the 14 years of schooling I have taken. The guides to organizing your study are of value to all students. The development of Gist Sheets should be taught in all high schools.
Peter Savage

I now understand how to read, how to evaluate a book, what to look for and how to find what I want to in books. I had not learned any of this even after going through college. I can now preview a book for its importance or skim material for beneficial facts. I now appreciate books and the ability to read them.
Thomas Youngblood

IN CHAPEL HILL . .

● "The course has been extremely useful to me. I wish all of our graduate students could take the course." DR. DAN PRICE, Director, Institute for Research in Social Science, U.N.C.

Again I want to wholeheartedly endorse your course and method. I began at 400 wpm and finished — reading dynamically — at speeds as high as 3,000 wpm with no loss of comprehension.—Dick League, Law School, U.N.C.

As an acting intern on pediatrics, I had gained tremendous experience but had done practically none of the general reading required for orals. The night before the examination, I was on duty and essentially, the extent of my reading was from one to three and from five to seven in the morning. In that period of time I was able to read about five hundred pages with satisfactory comprehension. I did not panic or get overly anxious. I had the feeling of a worthwhile job done satisfactorily. Since I last saw you, I have taken my National Board Examinations in all the clinical fields of medicine.
Jerry Eller, Med. Student

At the Demonstration

● You will see a Reading Dynamics graduate read at amazing speeds from a book he has never seen before and then tell in detail what he has read.
● You will see a documented film that includes actual interviews with Washington Congressmen who have taken the course.
● You will learn how we can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater recall.

HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE?

Eighteen years ago Evelyn Wood, a Utah schoolteacher, made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward a master's degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 89 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension. Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read faster than 1,500 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of experience in public schools and universities, she has made it possible for you to benefit from this great discovery.

IS IT SIMPLY A PROMOTION STUNT?

Over the past eleven years more than 160,000 graduates have been convinced that Reading Dynamics is a proven method. About Reading Dynamics' impact on our nation's legislators, Time Magazine said "Washington has seen nothing like it since the days when Teddy Roosevelt read three books a day and ran the country at the same time."

SENATOR PROXMIRE, Wisconsin: "I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It certainly compares favorably with the experience I've had at Yale and Harvard."

SENATOR TALMADGE, Georgia: "It is my opinion that if these techniques were instituted in the public and private schools of our country, it would be the greatest single step which we could take in educational progress."

MICHAEL LEVY, Pres. Standard Security Life: "My normal relaxed reading is now at a rate approximately 4,000 words per minute. Even with the most difficult and technical reading material, I find that my speed exceeds 2,500 words per minute."

SENATOR STUART SYMINGTON, MISSOURI—"I can now read materials at speeds above 3,000 words per minute and technical material in the 2,000 word per minute range."

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,000 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student AT LEAST 3 times with good comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition to any student who, after completing minimum class and study requirements, does not at least triple his reading efficiency as measured by our beginning and ending tests.

READING DYNAMICS INSTITUTE
Telephone 274-4273 or 942-7142
1412 Westover Terrace, Greensboro, N. C.
Chapel Hill

TRAILWAYS Presents...
AMERICA'S ONLY NEW BUS!
. . . and the only bus with 12 front seats, new "climatized" temperature control, rest room and new interior lighting and decoration
ON DISPLAY AT

Union Bus Terminal — Today 9:00 A.M. to 10:30 P.M.
Morehead Planetarium — Today 11:00 A.M. to 1:00 P.M.
South Building — Today 11:00 A.M. to 1:00 P.M.
Eastgate Shopping Center — Today 2:30 P.M. to 9:00 P.M.

Be Sure to See It, and Ride in It Soon!
TRAILWAYS®
Easiest travel on earth

Tar Heels Face Cavaliers In Home Finale

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina's Tar Heels, who ended their three game losing streak with a bang at the North-South Doubleheader in Charlotte, close out their home basketball season against the Cavaliers of Virginia tonight at 8 in Carmichael Auditorium.

Virginia defeated the Tar Heels 70-69 in the first meeting between the two clubs January 15 in Charlottesville, Va.

Of course that one-point Cavalier victory has probably been the most hotly contested decision of the entire ACC season. The clock failed to go off ending the game and Virginia's Buddy Reams hit a shot in those "questionable" seconds to erase a 69-68 UNC lead and hand Virginia the Victory.

The Tar Heels are now tied for second place in the ACC standings with Clemson and N. C. State — all with 7-5 conference marks.

Virginia, on the other hand, has won only three of 11 ACC games — good for a seventh place tie with Wake Forest.

The Tar Heels are 14-9 overall while Virginia is six and 12.

UNC appeared to have their confidence rebuilt by their Charlotte successes. Appearing before sell-out crowds of 11,666 each evening, the Tar Heels managed a 70-66 victory over Clemson Friday night and an 83-71 victory over South Carolina on Saturday.

The twin victories stopped a Tar Heel three-game losing streak. Defeats came against New York University, VPI and N. C. State before the Tar Heels regrouped themselves.

The Charlotte stand also pointed to the offensive power of the North Carolina offensive duo of Bobby Lewis and Larry Miller. In Friday's victory over Clemson, Lewis hit ten of 19 shots from the floor and six of six from the foul line for 26 points. Miller, although he scored only seven points, completely dominated the rebounding picture — taking down 17 to easily lead both clubs. That seven points by Miller was the first time the Catasauqua, Pa., sophomore had been held below double figures in his college career.

Lewis and Miller had a rather active supporting cast in that Friday victory. Guard Tom Gauntlett and center Bob Bennett both scored 17 points.

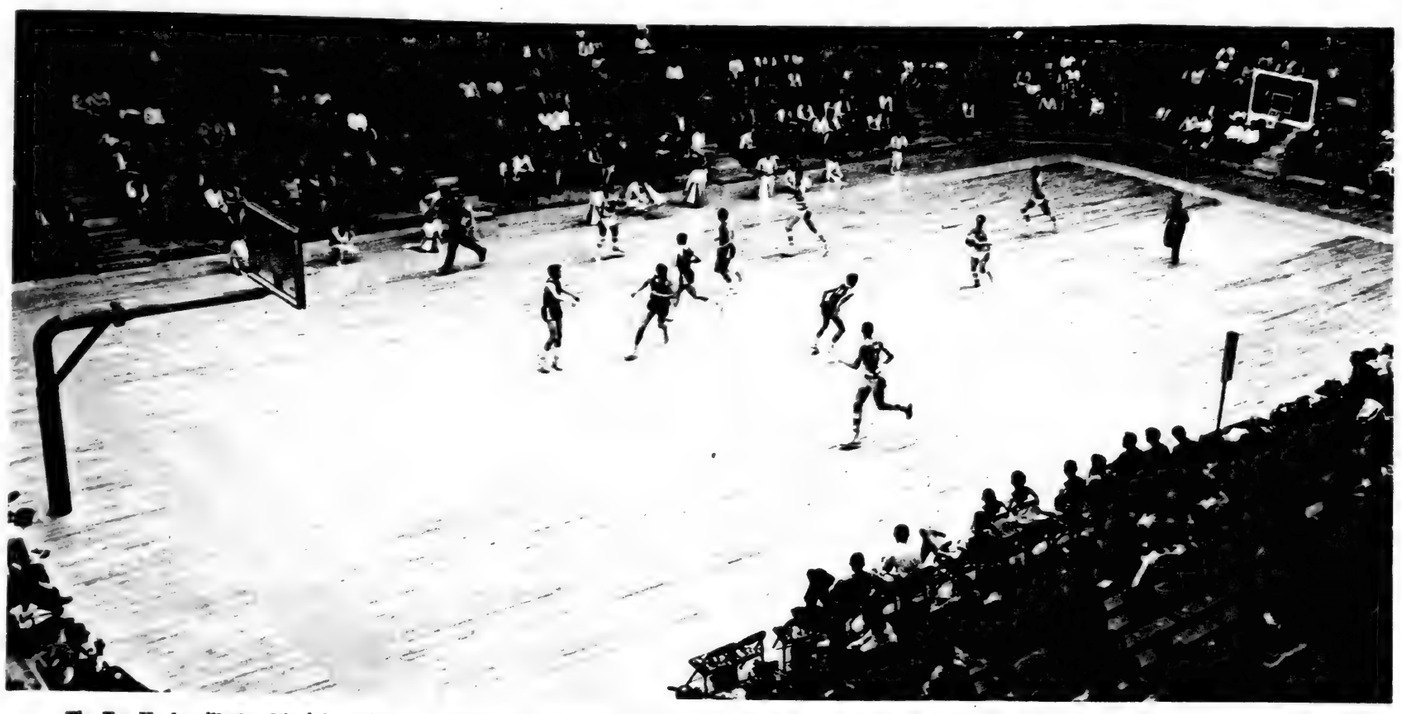
But the L&M combination was never better in the Saturday night victory over the Gamecocks of South Carolina. Lewis score 33 points on ten of 18 from the floor and 13 of 13 from the free throw line. That perfect 13 of 13 from the foul line gave Lewis 31 of 31 in his last three games.

But Miller put on an even more stunning accuracy performance in the South Carolina victory. He hit 10 of 12 from the floor and seven of seven from the line for 27 points. In addition, he led the Tar Heels in rebounding with eight.

Of course the Lewis and Miller total Saturday night was 60 of the 83 points scored by the Tar Heels. Only Tom Gauntlett with 12 points was able to break the L&M domination.

In tonight's tussle, the Tar Heels will be surrendering quite a height advantage to the Cavaliers. Big 6-10, 290-pound John Naponick is the Virginia center. Mike Katos, 6-5, and Jerry Sanders, 6-3, are the forwards. Reams and Jim Connelly, both 6-3, are the guards.

Sanders was the primary Cavalier tormenter in the early season meeting with UNC—scoring 14 points. However Jim Connelly, with a 20 point average, is the leading Cavalier point producer.



The Tar Heels will play Virginia tonight in Carmichael Auditorium in the last home game of the season.

The team has compiled a 7-2 record at home. Losses to Duke and VPI have kept the Tar Heels from a perfect home record in the new gymnasium.

At home this year the team is averaging 93.9 points a game. They scored 127 against Richmond, and 115 against Florida State and Wake Forest.

Carolina will be seeking to revenge the 70-69 loss to Virginia earlier this year.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Pete Maravich(32.6) Leads Southwood(20-4) At Frosh

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Pete Maravich stands six feet, four inches tall, and if you're looking for a small school's answer to Bobby Lewis, this is your boy.

His build is rather spindly —162 pounds are all he packs on his good-for-a-guard height. But like UNC's "Wizard," size is of negligible importance — this boy Maravich scores points.

BIG.

He owns the best scoring average in the state at present, a blistering 32.6. Fifty of his points came in a single game, he's been over 40 five other times, over 30 on six other occasions, and under 20 just once. That was early in the season when he was riding the bench for disciplinary reasons, and scored just seven.

Tonight, Pete Maravich comes to Carolina.

He's one of the biggest drawing cards in the state, and at 6 o'clock he will run onto the stage that is Carmichael Auditorium. Following him will be 13 youngsters who make up Southwood College's basketball team.

Now, unless you're a resident of eastern North Carolina or follow this state's basketball pretty closely at all levels, you've probably never heard of Southwood College.

Well, don't feel bad, because the place just came into being last year. That is, the name "Southwood College" is the brand new 1965-66 name for what was formerly Edwards Military Institute. And actually, "college" is a misnomer, because the school combines high school courses in its curriculum, and would probably more accurately be called a prep school.

But for our purpose, Southwood is a basketball team which has a 20-4 record, and it will be here tonight to oppose Carolina's Tar Babies.

This Southwood team has an offensive attack that has averaged 101.6 points per game. Joining Maravich as the second half of a potent one-two bomb is 6-3, 190-pound forward Dickie Walker, who is averaging 24.7. Walker's high was 42 points against Hargrave Military of Virginia.

Coach Pete Meadows of the Eagles says of his two stars: "I feel that both Pete and Dickie are ready to play in the ACC. There aren't many boys around who are better for their size.

"Pete has become a complete player this year, and as he has improved in that respect, his shooting percentage, and even his scoring average, have also improved. He's tremendous from outside, and has some remarkable moves."

Meadows pointed out that this is his club's last game, and says: "Our two worst games have been against Duke (Southwood lost both, 104-76 and 99-80) but I hope that we will be able to have our best against Carolina. We're catching them on the rebound after their loss Saturday, and that is something I naturally didn't want. We are, though, optimistic about the game. We have as good a pair of small men (Maravich and Walker) as I've seen all year. Willie Taylor (6-0, 161), who plays guard with Maravich is also a fine little man (11.2 scorer).

"But," he added, "we have no one to compare with (Rusty) Clark and (Bill) Bunting under the boards. We will have a real good chance if we can stay close to them in rebounding."

Meadows doesn't have anything to cry about. He has a 6-8, 220 - pound center named Vince Schafmeister who is averaging 15 rebounds per game, and his other starter, Chris Speciale (6,7, 225) averages 11 rebounds. They are hitting 8.7 and 9.8 points per game.

It will be the final home game of the year for the Tar Babies, who complete the season at Duke on Friday night, and they and their fans owe each other something.

From the players' side, they owe it to their fans to show them that they are just as good or better this week when they hold a 13-1 record as they were last week when they were 13-0.

And the fans, well, they owe it to their freshmen to give them a full house before which to prove their point.

Rusty Clark, who has bettered 20 points in each of his last six games, now has a 21.0 average. Bill Bunting is second at 16.7, Dick Grubar follows with 14.8, and Joe Brown is fourth at 11.9. Gerald Tuttle has fallen just under double figures at 9.8, and Jim Bostick's average of 7.9.

Frosh Dolphins Jump Into Lead

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolnia got off to a fine start by taking a first and two seconds in the afternoon events of the 12th annual Freshman Invitational Swimming Championships in Bowman Gray pool.

Dave Ball of Carolina won the 400 - yard individual medley in a time of 4:34.6. Doug Behrman of UNC finished second with a 4:39.5 mark. White of South Carolina was third at 4:40.2, Randy Wade of UNC fourth at 4:45.8 and Lafferty of East Carolina fifth at 4:57.1.

Balls time was better than the varsity record of 4:36.6 in that event, held by UNC Olympian Harrison Merrill. The event is a new one this year for the freshman invitational.

In the 1650 freestyle, Bill Heim of Maryland won the event with a 17.35.3 mark. Joe Sanders of Carolina finished second with 18:48.3. Third was Manchester of East Carolina at 19:09.5, fourth Schwartzel of Mrryland at 19:42.9 and fifth was Sikorski of Maryland at 20:11.2 Laborde of South Carolina was sixth, McCarty of Wake Forest seventh and Allen of William and Mary eighth.

The rest of the events were held Monday night and complete coverage will be given in tomorrow's Daily Tar Heel.

Competing in the Invitational are North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Duke, Wake Forest, Clemson and North Carolina State from the Atlantic Cost Conference. Also competing are East Carolina, William and Mary, Virginia Tech, Washington and Lee and The Citadel.

WATCH YOUR WAIST

There is no proof that over weight causes heart disease, but it has been found that high blood pressure nad many forms of heart disease are much more common among persons who are overweight, the North Carolina Heart Association says.

Duke Cannot Seem To Find Wrestlers

(AP) — Duke's basketball team may be No. 2 in the nation, but the Blue Devils can not suit up enough wrestlers to compete in a wrestling match.

A Duke - Maryland match was postponed early in the season because Duke did not have a full team. It was rescheduled for Monday night.

Monday morning, Coach Carmen Falcone of Duke notified Coach Sully Krouse of Maryland he was forfeiting the match because he had only three wrestlers.

Krouse said it was the first time in his 20 years as Maryland coach that an entire match had been forfeited. He claimed a 45-0 victory for the Terps, perennial wrestling champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Conference Standings

	Confer. W	Confer. L	All Games W	All Games L
Duke	11	1	19	2
UNC	7	5	14	9
N. C. State	7	5	13	8
Maryland	6	6	13	9
Wake Forest	3	8	7	15
Virginia	3	8	6	12
USC	3	9	9	11

"Some speakers need no introduction. They need conclusions."

THE MOTION PICTURE WITH SOMETHING TO OFFEND EVERYONE!!
M-G-M and FILMWAYS present MARTIN RANSOHOFF'S PRODUCTION
The Loved One
LAST TIMES TODAY
CAROLINA

Your Room Will Perk Up With Oriental Prints
From Our PRINT ROOM
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

Fauntleroy

"BUM. BUM."
"ALL RIGHT."
"INCROYABLE."
"TOUCHDOWN AND POINT AFTER."
TA-TA-TA TA TA (Blare of trumpets).

Thank ya fans, thank ya. But really it's not necessary. I promised you a dramatic comeback. And I gave you what I promised.

To be honest fans, I am kind of proud of myself. And I really appreciate all your kind words, and particularly those trumpets.

In my last column I was just a wee bit on the defensive. I'd hit a slump for the first time in my, and I modestly blush, illustrious life. So I decided to reveal myself.

Well folks, I pulled a fast one. It wasn't really me who this cat MacNelly scribbled below my column. It was my kid brother Stanley Fauntleroy. I've never looked humble. (Never will—no need to.) So, I asked Stan to pose for me. Stan has no trouble striking the pose. My brother, no offense Stanley, is kind of a crud.

Now I'm back to normal. I chose UNC over S.C., DUKE over MARYLAND, VIRGINIA TECH over WAKE FOREST and WEST VIRGINIA over SYRACUSE. And they all won.

Sure, I only made four picks. That ain't too many. But any big leaguer will tell you that when you're climbing out of a slump it's best to start real slow and easy.

Stay tuned for my column on Saturday. I'll still be climbing.

Vito Moves To VMI

Vito Ragazzo lost a national scoring record but found a new job this school year. The former University of North Carolina assistant was named today as head coach at Virginia Military Institute.

The tall, 37 - year - old from Aflex, Ky., a member of the UNC staff since 1961, returns to succeed John McKenna at the Lexington, (Va.) school. Ragazzo had coached for McKenna prior to joining the Carolina staff at Jim Hickey's invitation.

A William & Mary product, Ragazzo held the NCAA record for touchdown passes caught (15) from 1949 until 1965. Last fall, Howard Twilley of Tulsa set a new mark.

Ragazzo, who looks as if he could still play a quarter or two of football, was utilized in an offensive capacity at Carolina and one of his top products was Bob Lacey, All-America end in 1963. He approached his coaching at UNC with a firm hand, but he was a great favorite among players.

"I thoroughly enjoyed my years at Chapel Hill," said Vito. "Coach Hickey was a fine person to work under and I wish him and Carolina nothing but the best next season. In fact, my only regret in going to VMI is in leaving such an outstanding group of athletes. I sincerely feel that Tar Heels will come through big next fall."

Vito evidently was a quick choice for W.M.I. authorities. He was contacted shortly after McKenna announced he had accepted a position under Bobby Dodd at Gerogia Tech.

"The challenge is a great one at VMI," said Ragazzo. "There will be limitations to some extent, but I know we can come up with a real presentable club.

Late Box Score

SOUTH CAROLINA	FG	FT	TP
Salvadori	11-16	3-7	25
Standard	4-9	0-0	8
Schroeder	1-2	2-4	4
Harlicka	1-6	3-3	5
Thompson	4-9	2-3	10
Kickey	2-3	1-1	5
Farrell	2-5	0-0	4
Lovelace	2-2	0-0	4
Womack	1-2	0-0	2
Burkholder	2-2	0-0	4
Gorgant	0-1	0-0	0
Totals	30-57	11-18	71

NORTH CAROLINA	FG	FT	TP
Miller	10-12	7-7	27
Lewis	10-18	13-13	33
Bennett	0-1	0-0	0
Gauntlett	6-9	0-0	12
Yokley	1-3	3-5	5
Mirken	0-2	1-3	1
Moe	0-1	1-2	1
Smith	0-1	1-0	0
Campbell	1-1	0-0	2
J. Moore	0-0	0-0	0
Fletcher	0-0	0-0	0
Smithwick	1-2	0-0	2
Totals	29-50	25-30	83

PINE ROOM
"The Popular Place To Meet, Snack, or Dine"
SNACK BAR AND CAFETERIA
Specializing In—
• Hickory Smoked Barbecue • Rare Roast Beef
• Raviola Nicoise • Charcoal Broiled Steak
• Spaghetti Italienne • Broiled Lobster Tails
• Combination Seafood Platters • Pizza
• Southern Fried Chicken • Sandwiches of All Kinds
• Homemade Pies Baked Daily
COMPLETE CARRY-OUT FOOD SERVICE
Open: Mon.-Fri. 7:00-12:00
Sundays 4:00-12:00
Closed: Saturdays
"VISIT WITH US AFTER THE GAMES"

MODEL
6 to 8 Week Courses with
JOYCE SIMMS
Former Director of
Palm Beach School of Modeling
Presently Modeling Instructor
with
Godwin School of Dance
In Durham, N. C.
Announces
New Location
at 151 E. Rosemary St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Joyce Simms, Director
Registration To Be Held
February 22, 23 4-6 P.M.
• Expert training in fashion and photographic modeling.
• Charm, modeling and reducing classes beginning immediately.
• Teen-age and adult Day and Evening classes.
• Budget Terms—Enroll now to be a model or a new you, 6 week courses available for busy women.
Phone 942-6853 Home—Durham 596-6250
SIMMS SCHOOL OF MODELING

people on the go...
go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF
HAMBURGERS
College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.
337 W ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. - 11 P.M.
Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Leukemia Treatment Discovered

UPTON, N. Y. (AP)—Medical researchers at opposite ends of the country are developing a treatment which they say shows promise of slowing development of the fatal blood disease leukemia.

Since late 1964, more than two dozen leukemia patients at the Brookhaven National Laoratory on Long Island, and at the University of Washington in Seattle, have had their blood circulated through a beer-keg-sized machine containing radioactive cesium.

Dr. Michael Greenberg, a Brookhaven specialist in blood diseases said in an interview the radiation can kill large numbers of the abnormal white blood cells that cause leukemia without harming the vital, oxygen-carrying red cells.

The treatment, called extracorporeal irridation, or simply ECIB, is not a cure. And Greensberg emphasizes it is too early to determine the success of the experiments.

Nevertheless, he said, it gives leukemia victims reason to hope.

"In every case we were able to kill leukemic cells," he said. "Our patients have lived months longer than they would have without this treatment."

Leukemia or cancer of the blood," is characterized by abnormally rapid multiplication of abnormal white blood cells. Acute patients often die in three months.

Not every victim responds to drugs, and drugs often cause complications, Greenberg said, which require stopping their use for long periods of time.

Dr. E. Donnall Thomas, who has put five chronic cases through similar treatment at the University of Washington, said his patients were chosen after drug therapy ceased to be effective.

Of the five, he said, one improved enough to return to drug therapy, one was relieved of his symptoms for two years and another for six months, two improved for four to six months but died of infection unrelated to irradiation.

At Brookhaven, 20 men and women have undergone the treatment, which involves permanently inserting two plastic tubes in an artery and a vein, usually in the patient's forearm.

The tubes are connected together when not in use. For treatment, they are plugged into the lead-shielded cannister of cesium, and their hearts act as pumps to circulate blood through about eight feet of coiled tubing.

The treatment lasts about 4 hours, and Greenberg said the patient's blood circulates through the cannister about five times.

It had been known for some time that radiation would kill white blood cells, he said, but the dosage needed could kill a patient if applied to his entire system at once.

Greenberg said the blood retains none of the radiation when it returns to the body.

Most patients get daily treatments for the first six weeks, and then return twice a week.

Greenberg emphasizes that it will take more patients, time and experience to say how effective radiation treatment will be.

"We are now able to say our patients live as long as any other group of patients treated with the standard therapies," he said. "I think we're doing better, but we don't have a large enough number of people to say that."

Two UNC Students Studying In Rome

Two University classics majors have taken advantage of a new program sponsored by UNC and 13 other universities and are now in Rome for a semester of study.

According to Berthe Marti, professor of classics at UNC and member of the Classics Center's executive committee, the Rome location was chosen because of the archaeological, historical and artistic materials available there.

Today's Calendar

TODAY

Carolina Handbook Interviews for section editors and associate editors will be held today from 3 - 4 p.m. in the Grail Room.

The WRC will meet at 6:45 p.m. tonight in the Grail Room at GM.

SDS will hold an open meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 111 Murphy Hall.

The UNC Carobiners (outing club) will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight in 205 Mithcell Hall.

The Student Peace Union will meet this afternoon at 5:30 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

The Budget Committee will meet this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in Graham Memorial. The room location will be posted. Chairman Dick Sayre urges all members to be present.

The International Law Society will feature a speech by Dr. Frederico Gil at their meeting this afternoon at 1 p.m. in Lenoir Hall. Law students, graduate students and interested undergraduates are invited to attend the lecture on "Latin American Economic Integration: Legal and Political Problems".

Writer - in - Residence Workshop 8 - 10:30 p.m. in 107 Howell Hall.

Symposium Committee Chairmen Meeting at 8 p.m., 107 Hanes Hall.

The psychology colloquium will feature Dr. Erich Klinghammer of the University of Chicago who will speak on "Sexual Imprinting in Mourning Doves". Tea at 3:30 p.m. and talk at 4 p.m. in the Morehead Planetarium, Faculty Lounge. Open to faculty, students, and visitors.

All members of the Carolina Quarterly staff will be at meeting to start at 5 p.m., Washington's Birthday, in the Quarterly Office. This is a must!

UNC Debate Team meets tonight in Bingham Annex at 6:30 p.m.

Professor Max Dresden of the State University of New York in association with the UNC Physics Department will speak on "The Role of Symmetries in S-Matrix and Field Theory". He will speak at 2 p.m. in Room 25, Phillips Hall.

WEDNESDAY

The Officers and Executive Committee of the Order of the Old Well will have a very important meeting in the Grail Room at 3 p.m.

TO SING HERE — Noted singer Johnny Mathis will perform in Carmichael Auditorium at 8 p.m. March 8. Tickets for the performance go on sale at GM at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Mathis is known for many of his songs, namely "A Certain Smile," "The Twelfeth of Never," "Wonderful, Wonderful," and "Misty." He has also appeared in movies and on television.

—Sitterson—

(Continued from Page 1)

me personally. I'm not speculating."

Before moving into the Chancellor's office this morning—"We're moving across the hall because that's where people expect the Chancellor to be" — he described former Chancellor Paul Sharp as an "articulate, courageous, thoughtful, educational leader." Sharp has resigned to become President of Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa.

The board of trustees is expected to name the new Chancellor sometime this spring. In the meantime, Sitterson appeared ready to assert the full authority of the office.

"I wouldn't want to hold this position and not fulfill its responsibilities," he said.

Sitterson believes this message cannot be given secondhand to the people. "I hope that soon people in all areas will have seen and talked with members of the University community. This means a lot to them. It is the greatest reassurance to the people that the University community is actively concerned enough for us to be somewhere. It is important to be visible to the people of North Carolina."

FINAL WINTER Clearance SALE
Savings Up To 50%
THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

Too busy with the studies to read?

You have to unwind, sometime, chum. Do it with a great murder mystery from the Mystery Corner at the Intimate.

Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, John Dickson Carr, Josephine Tey, Margery Allingham, Ngaio Marsh, Phoebe Atwood Taylor, Ian Fleming — you'll find all of their sleuths and heroes at the Intimate.

And there's a new one — Inspector Gently, created by Alan Hunter. Track him down soon, and forget your worries for a bit.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Evenings until 10

Milton's February Frogstrangler Countdown!

All these wonderful buys will be history after Saturday.
Still have a choice assortment of M-2 perfect roll button-down shirts regularly to $8.95 at give-a-way of $2.99.
Last Call to suits regularly to $95.00 at only $45.00.
Group coats to $50.00 at $29.99.
Shoes regularly to $35.00 at $16.99.

* * * * * *

Scads of Lady Milton Goodies at Greatly Reduced Prices!
McGeorge shetland cardigan sweaters cut from $20.00 to $10.99.
Scintillating shetland sweater sets all at enticing reductions.
Good deal of Suzanne handbags.
Lots of good looking shifts at half price.
Group Lady Milton shirts regularly to $10.95 at $1.99, $2.99 & 3.99.

* * * * * *

Many other fabulous buys that will be history after Saturday.

* * * * * *

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

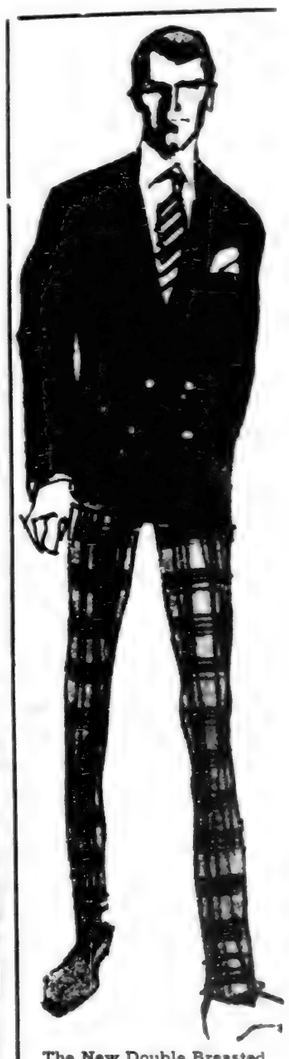
Join the millions in

Florsheim Genuine Moccasins

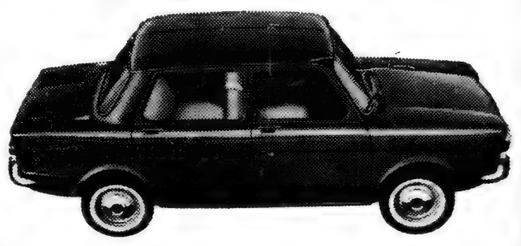
Handsome go-everywhere styling, butter-soft comfort, and superbly fashioned hand-sewn fronts put Florsheim genuine moccasins in a class by themselves. Make sure you try on a pair soon!
22.95
Florsheim
Varsity Men's Wear
"Clothiers of Distinction"
147 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-6610

MONTALDO'S
Downtown Durham
Shoe Showing
our representative will be in our shop
Tuesday and Wednesday
February 22nd. and 23rd.
with a complete selection of shoes for Spring
Shop Now 9:30 A.M. until 5:30 P.M.
Monday Through Saturday

Varsity
NOW PLAYING



The New Double Breasted Lightweight
Navy Blazer
SLACKS in PLAIDS, CORBIN TATTERSALLS and imported checks . . . with decoration of wine, navy and powder blue.
Julian's



Drive it now! Chrysler's all-new economy car—Simca 1000 with the 5-year/50,000-mile engine and drive train warranty*

It covers parts that could turn other cars with shorter warranties into expensive propositions: vital drive train parts, vital engine parts. And it pays for both replacement parts and labor.

No other economy import's warranty on these parts lasts even half as long as the warranty on Simca 1000.

What kind of car rates this protection? A family car with sports car features: Porsche synchronizers; 4 forward speeds; 4-wheel independent suspension; a 50-hp rear engine. And more.

Test drive one at your Simca dealer's. Only

*HERE ARE THE FACTS: Chrysler Motors Corporation warrants all of the following vital parts of the Simca 1000 for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first; during which time any such parts that prove defective in material or workmanship will be replaced or repaired at an Authorized Simca Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor: engine block, head and internal parts, water pump, intake manifold, Trans-Axle parts and rear wheel bearings.
HERE'S ALL YOU MUST DO: Give your car this normal care—change engine oil and retorque the cylinder head at first 600 miles, and thereafter change engine oil every 3 months or every 4,000 miles, whichever comes first; clean oil separator every 6 months (spring and fall); clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years; and clean the crankcase ventilator valve oil filler cap and change Trans-Axle lubricant every 6 months, or 8,000 miles, whichever comes first; AND every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to an Authorized Simca Dealer or other Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

OLD HICKORY MOTORS
334 Roxboro Rd.
DURHAM, N. C.
Phone 447-2102 Open until 9 P.M.

Trailways and the new Interstate highways mean smoother, safer, faster travel! It's the way to "Discover America"

Wide lanes, gentle curves. No cross traffic, not a stop light in sight. These are the Interstate highways, taking you through America's most spectacular scenery. And Trailways newly-designed buses were built for this kind of travel. Smooth going all the way. You ride up high. Enjoy the big view. You'll be where you're going before you know it—and right in the heart of town.

From CHAPEL HILL	1-way
NEW YORK	$17.05
Thru Express—reserve seat of your choice
GREENSBORO	$ 1.45
9 convenient trips daidy
MEMPHIS	$22.80
Thru (no change) via Chattanooga
RALEIGH	$ .95
11 convenient trips daily
CHARTERS/TOURS/PACKAGE EXPRESS

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin St. 942-3356

Easiest travel on earth
TRAILWAYS.

Westvaco wants men interested in starting their careers before military service

If you think impending military service makes your future too uncertain to consider employment now—think again.

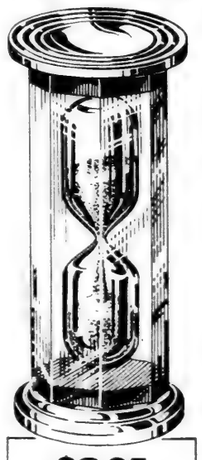
West Virginia Pulp and Paper is still interviewing and hiring graduates with these commitments, so you can begin your career before military service.

Sign up through your Placement Office, and speak with the Westvaco interviewer about career positions when he is on campus.

Interview Date
March 3

West Virginia Pulp and Paper
230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017

IT'S NEW
THE Tele-Timer
3 minute Telephone Call Timer



GORHAM STERLING
Give it! Have it!

Tells when to stop talking and start saving money. Helps keep those toll calls within the 3 minutes you get for $1.00 all over the United States "after hours".

- Makes a handsome paperweight. Let your wife try it to time eggs. (But you may have to fight to get it back!)
- Wonderful gift for "the man who has everything" (except time to waste!).

$8.95
Gorham Sterling Caps
Heavy Lucite Center
The Deluxe Gift

WENTWORTH & SLOAN

UNC Library
Public Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Track Meet

The ACC Championship Track meet will be held Saturday in Woollen Gym. Look for the story on page 5.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

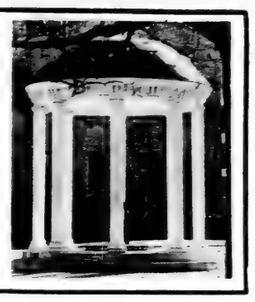
SP Convention

The Student Party will hold its nominating convention tonight to select candidates for the spring elections. The convention will be held at 7 p.m. in 08 Peabody.

Volume 74, Number 101 CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA. WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1966 Founded February 23, 1893

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley



With The Woman's Touch

Since The Daily Tar Heel has no woman's page I thought it would be appropriate to pass along the following article which was written by the women's editor of the paper at the University of Georgia.

Every girl dreams the man she will someday fall in love with will be Prince Charming — romantic, brave, loyal, ambitious and sexy.

And what does she actually fall in love with? Someone more like this:

— He's married, divorced, an alcoholic, a Don Juan, a homosexual, already has a girl, or doesn't like you.

— His best friend tells you that you're wasting your time. You tell him what his best friend said, and he says, "You know, he may have a point there."

— He won't tell you anything about his past.

— He tells you everything about his past.

— He thinks all your girl friends are stupid.

— He thinks you are stupid (and he's right).

— You ask him whether or not he thinks your relationship should come to an end, and he says, "What relationship?"

— He hates weddings.

— He's forever saying what a fine person you are and that you should get married and have children like other girls.

— Everybody worries about him. So does he. Incessantly.

— He's all that people say he is. But you defend him anyway.

— He always calls you by your last name.

— When you've worked on yourself for hours to look particularly fetching, he tells you that you've got on too much make-up.

— He forgets birthdays. And anniversaries. In fact, he forgets everything.

— You spend a fortune having the hair tylist create your "new image," and he says, "What happened to your hair?"

— You start to cry if he hurts your feelings and he turns up the TV.

— He never understands your jokes.

— He knits.

— He thinks your mother is a kook.

— He goes away for weekends without you, comes back raving about the wonderful time he has had, but won't tell you what happened.

— After a lovely evening together just when you think you've really turned him on, he wanders away muttering something about playing hearts with the guys.

— He has marvelous timing. Just when you've decided you're through with him, he does something wonderful and you're hooked for another month.

Wouldn't you like to meet this young lady's boy friend?

Morgan Nixes Red Speakers At University

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

"A Communist has no right to speak at the University because his audience would include immature students incapable of detecting his deceptions."

Senator Robert Morgan said this Monday night in a speech to the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) on the topic of academic freedom for the responsible teachers.

Morgan is a representative to the state senate from Harnett County. He was one of the strongest backers of the speaker ban.

Dr. Joseph W. Straley, a UNC physics professor, introduced Morgan at the meeting of the AAUP. Straley is the president of the Chapel Hill chapter of the AAUP.

Senator Morgan siad, "College professors have the greatest influence on the American public. They should observe special restraints in the instruction of the immature students."

Senator Morgan said, "Col- the audience of over 200 that it had been 20 years since he was a student at UNC.

He said, "My ideas and opinions were not the same as yours then and I feel that they may not be the same as yours now.

Morgan emphasized his opinion that Aptheker should not be allowed to speak on the UNC campus by giving a quotation from Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court which said:

"Every member of the Communist Party is an agent to promote the objectives of the party."

Morgan said, "In the Aptheker case we are not talking merely of a controversial speaker who is loyal to the democratic way of life. We are talking about letting a member of the Communist party, which advocates the overthrow of our government, come here and speak to an audience which would undoubtably include immature students."

Bare - Busted Waitresses: Coming Here?

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

In June 1964 fashion designer Rudi Gernreich introduced ladies' topless swimsuits to the American public. Since then another topless development has taken place — bare-busted waitresses.

Is this a trend? Will it come to Chapel Hill?

To answer this question The Daily Tar Heel polled a number of area restaurant owners, waitresses and students. Here are some of their comments:

John Sauls, sophomore, Lakeland, Fla. — "I think the number of bare-chested women will remain in the minority because most women's chests do not look good enough when compared to the bare - chested models who have made the topless wear seem so desirable."

Candy Keener, junior, Charlotte — "I don't approve or disapprove. However, if I were dating in such a club, I think the distraction would offer too much competition. The nudity might cause undesirable consequences later on in the evening."

Robin Broadwell, waitress, Eastgate Restaurant— "I don't approve of the topless wear. People tend to look down on waitresses already. This job is only a way to make a living and it depends upon yourself what you make of it."

Alan Rodgers, owner and manager of Balan Lounge— "Bare - busted girls have been working in bars and clubs for many years so its not exactly a new trend. I imagine it will continue and my own personal approval would depend upon the type of girl."

Sarah-Helen Pierce, senior, Raleigh — "I think the trend will continue in the night clubs of large cities, but the failure of Gernreich's topless suits to sell in the United States seems to indicate the American public is not ready to accept this on public beaches.

As far as North Carolina goes this exposure could possibly be introduced into night clubs, but I don't think it will be successful in public restaurants. I personally wouldn't want to eat in a place with nude waitresses running around."

Wayne Burgess, junior, Sanford — "Someone will come up with a better idea or this nudity business will be outlawed."

Amendment Gets Approval

Referendum Carries 2-To-1, Results May Be Challenged

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

UNC students yesterday voted overwhelmingly in favor of a constitutional amendment concerning the future elections of student body presidents and vice presidents. Although the majority was large, there was an extremely light voter turnout for the referendum.

The final margin was 1,283 for the amendment to 657 against, almost a two-to-one majority.

John Winborne, temporary elections board chairman, said the light turnout was evident in all the polling places on campus. But he added, "The turnout was about what I expected."

He said there was very little interest shown by students in the amendment change. Most poll tenders said students would ask, "What are we voting for?" when they went to the polling places.

The election may be challenged, according to reports. There were reports that ballot boxes at Y-Court were left untended at times.

Winborne said a mixup among some of the poll tenders as to where they were to be caused the situation.

The chairman said the constitutional committee of the elections board will rule on the referendum if it is challenged. "But as far as I'm concerned, it is valid," he said.

If the election is not challenged the amendment will apply in the student body elections March 22.

The amendment provides that the student body president and vice president shall be elected on the same ballot rather than on individual ones as they have in the past.

All the present student leaders from both the SP and UP have strongly endorsed the proposal which was passed in the student legislature earlier this month. The bill which has been introduced several times in the past few years has been supported by all the recent student body administrations. Three of the past five have been made up with the president and vice president have been from opposite political parties.

Yesterday was the first time students have had the opportunity to voice their opinions on the constitutional change.

Student political leaders said the amendment would provide a stronger executive branch for the student government and it would be more effective.

Winborne said he did not know when the constitutional committee will meet to decide on the election's validity

Speculation High On Party Tickets

By JOHN GREENBACKER
Special to the DTH

It has often been said that the spring season brings out the madness in men, and Chapel Hill's spring is never any exception.

A key sign in this annual renewal of life is that joyous Saturnalia known as the spring elections. Students will know it is upon them when they awaken in the morning to find scurrilous little pieces of campaign material stuffed under their doors.

Candidates will shake numerous hands, smile like models in toothpaste ads, tell dirty jokes (if the candidate is a male), slap backs and feel the keen disappointment of seeing their campaign posters marred obscenely by an ungrateful electorate.

The Student Party's convention will be held tonight, and it appears it will offer a bigger surprise than anyone had expected.

Up until a week ago the name of Bob Wilson, a latter day prophet who characterized the undergraduate's model of the modern student body president, had been on the lips of the masses.

Cool, suave, good - looking, Wilson had compiled for himself an enviable list of credits and a great knowledge of Student Government.

He was almost a "shoo-in."

About two weeks ago the word started to filter out that Wilson didn't want the job. He was hearing the call of graduate school and feeling the urge to get married.

Investigation of this rumor proved it to be correct, but there are counter rumors circulating about Wilson's motives in making this announcement.

If Wilson is serious, the nomination could go to any of a number of persons. Mentioned by Wilson himself is the name of Bob Powell, a North Carolina debater, Student Government administrator and State Student Legislature delegate.

The University Party, regardless of the rumors, is operating under the theory that Bob Wilson is the man to beat. UP leaders have been seeking a candidate for months now, and the issue is still up in the air.

The front runners are Sonny Pepper and Teddy O'Toole.

Pepper, a master politician, is the president of the Men's Residence Council.

O'Toole, active in Student Government as a class officer and member of Student Legislature, is a likable fel-

(Continued on Page 6)

THE PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT is building a four foot high cyclone wire fence across the drive from the new $1.8 million Carmichael Auditorium. See Ernie McCrary's editorial on page 2. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

Won't Run, Says Dickson

"I'm not running!"

That was the comment by Student Body President Paul Dickson yesterday when asked whether he was planning to seek the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel.

"I had considered it," he said. "Many people have come to me and asked me if I would run. But I gave it a lot of consideration and I don't think it would be worth coming back another year. It would actually be a step down in position for me.

"I think there has been enough controversy aroused while I was here," Dickson said.

Thus far, Alan Banov is the only candidate to announce that he is running for editor of the Daily Tar Heel.

Persons who plan to run for any of the offices handled by the GM Publications Board have to be interviewed by the board members Thursday. The appointments may be made for the meeting at the information desk in GM.

Clark Egeler and Banov are the only persons who have signed up for appointments. Egeler is seeking the editorship of the Yack.

— GLENN MAYS

First In 4 Series

Worthless Check Problem Growing In Chapel Hill

By STEVE LACKEY

Students writing worthless checks are just trying "to negotiate a short-term loan," according to the manager of Varsity Men's Wear.

On the other side of the fence, the Dairy Bar manager says "students do it on purpose, knowing they don't have money, or planning to make a deposit then forgetting to do so."

Exactly what is a "worthless check" and how serious is the problem in Chapel Hill?

The problem is growing here. It may be from sheer carelessness on the students' part or from purposeful writing of worthless checks, but it is a growing problem.

On the average, nine checks are turned over the Chapel Hill's two justices of the peace every other business day. Exactly how many of these are written by students is unknown, but it is a sizeable number.

There are countless other checks which "bounce" but are never sent to the "JP" for collection. Most Chapel Hill merchants claim to send notices to students whose checks have bounced. The majority of those notified come to the store and "buy their check."

There are two legal definitions of a worthless check. One law reads:

"Every person who, with intent to cheat and defraud another, shall obtain money, credit, goods, wares or any ytent to cheat and defrad another, shall obtain money, credit, goods, wares or any other thing of value by means of a check, draft or order of any kind upon any bank, person, firm or corporation, not indebted to the drawer, or where he has not provided for the payment or acceptance of the same, and the same be not paid upon presentation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor . . ."

The other law defining bad checks says:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to draw . . . and deliver to another any check or draft on any bank or depository, for the payment of money or its equivalent, knowing at the time of the making . . . that the maker or drawer thereof has not sufficient funds on deposit in or credit with such bank or depository with which to pay the same upon presentation."

Several students at North Carolina have admitted to writing a bad check. Of the six interviewed, five had written the check with NO intent to cheat and defraud and NOT knowing that their money had not been deposited. Yet these students were called before a justice of the peace and convicted of the criminal offense of "writing a worthless check."

Counter checks were the cause of four of these checks being bad. The students simply forgot to record either the name of their bank or their hometown on the check.

Some students write checks

(Continued on Page 6)

Freeman Elected Head Of IFC

Lindsay Freeman was elected president of the Inter-Fraternity Council by acclamation Monday night.

Other officers elected were Mac Thompson, vice president; Randy Meyer, secr-etray; Joe McGirt, treasurer; and Sterling Phillips, Rush chairman.

Elected to the IFC Court were Nelson Schwab, Tom Higgins, Steve Fox, Jimmy Barber, Terry Robinson and Trey Obenshain.

A resolution calling for an annual factulty - administration - fraternity conference was introduced by John Greenbacker.

Stolen Cloth

Chapel Hill Police have recovered clothes stolen from James A. Gunter last weekend. They were found Monday, hidden under a stiarcase in Battle Residence Hall.

Gunter reported the clothes missing Sunday afternoon.

Recovered were an overcoat, two wool suits, two wool sports coats, a summer sports coat and a military field jacket.

Three wallets, one belonging to Gunter, were found. One was a girl's wallet with a '61-'62 ID card in it.

Gunter said his watch was still missing.

Honors Commission

The Honor Systems Commission will hold a meeting tomorrow from 4:30 to 6 in Roland Parker 2 in Graham Memorial. Anyone having questions should contact the Student Government offices in GM.

Computor Seminar

Application of digital computors to literary and social-scientific research will be discussed at two UNC seminars Thursday and Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The Thursday seminar on "The Computor in Literature Research" will feature as speaker Dr. Salley Y. Sedelow of St. Louis University.

Seminar topic for Friday will be "The Computor in Social-Scientific Research" with Dr. Walter A. Sedelow, Jr., of St. Louis University.

Both seminars will be conducted in room 265 Phillips Hall and will be open to the public.

Lecture At Queens

John E. Keller, professor of Romance Languages at UNC, will lecture at Queens College in Charlotte Friday, Feb. 25.

He will spend the day on the Queens campus, meet with students and faculty, and discuss medieval Spanish literature, which is his specialty.

Dr. Keller will give his lecture on the Cantigas de Santa Maria, illustrated by color slides.

Fordham Will Speak

Student body President Paul Dickson announced yesterday that Jefferson B. Fordham, Dean of the University of Pennsylvania (Philadelphia) Law School has agreed to speak at the Thursday meeting of the Committee for Free Inquiry.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Another Botched-Up Vote

The validity of yesterday's constitutional amendment vote is, at best, highly questionable.

Temporary Elections Board Charman John Winborne predicted a light turnout of voters. He did not predict the light turnout of poll tenders.

At least two of the most important polls were untended throughout the day and scores of people were unable to vote. Students must vote in their own district. If the polls in that district are closed, they cannot legally vote.

Y-Court and Carolina Inn were the two major untended polls. Winborne said a representative of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, which was responsible for manning the Carolina Inn poll, called him the morning of the election and said there would be no volunteers there.

Untended Y-Court Poll

Winborne said his only alternative was to place a sign in Carolina Inn directing those who came there to vote to go the poll at the Scuttlebutt.

Chi Psi fraternity was responsible for manning the Y-Court ballot boxes. At 4 p.m. yesterday no tenders had appeared, despite at least two calls from Winborne to the Chi Psi Lodge, and not one vote had been cast at what is normally one of the busiest polls.

A freshman who lives in Alexander Residence Hall reported to the DTH that the polls were not open there.

Several students from Morrison Residence College said that poll tenders there neglected to mark identification cards when they voted, even though some voters reminded the tenders of the requirement.

The election laws were violated on at least four counts.

1. All polling places were not open the same hours and all were not open for the required minimum of seven hours.

2. Each polling place was not attended at all times.

3. Presentation of identification cards was not required at all polls.

4. Some students voted at polls intended for use of residents of other districts.

The district-hopping in this vote is irrelevant because of the nature of the election. No district candidates were up for election, so voting by district was not important.

Nevertheless, if this is a preview of things to come in next month's spring elections, it ought to be called off. If that voting takes place under such haphazard conditions every defeated candidate will appeal and chaos will be upon us.

Similar problems have arisen for years, and the DTH urged changes in the voting system after elections last November. Student Government took no action to ease the situation.

Yesterday the DTH asked SG President Paul Dickson to appoint an individual or committee to study the problems and find solutions before the March 22 elections.

He agreed.

Now is time for the work to start.

Don't Fence Us In

The Athletic Department wants a fence.

A four-foot-high chain link fence . . . In front of our $1.8 million showplace, Carmichael Auditorium.

The DTH is of the opinion that four-foot-high chain link fences are ugly, and such a fence would detract considerably from the appearance of a new campus landmark.

Athletic Department officials agree that a hedge along the roadway next to the parking lot would be much more desirable . . . someday.

One of the greatest assets of this campus is its beauty. It impresses every visitor and comforts every resident.

We would like to hang on to every scrap of that beauty we can, as the campus is being swallowed by steel and concrete monuments to architects' imaginations.

Until that hedge can be planted, a simple cable or chain fence, like those around campus sidewalks, would do everything a chain link fence could do.

Except look so ugly.

And cost so much.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"A Daily 'Tar Heel' Is Out Of The Question!"

Barry Jacobs

War Will Be Political Issue

In a nation such as ours, every war becomes not only a military, but also a political issue. Would-be leaders have a chance to make a name and gain a following for themselves by making the correct decision as to whether to support or oppose the war.

The opportunity to make political hay from the Vietnamese War is greater than from any other war perhaps since the War of 1812. The current conflict may or may not be the most unpopular war this country has ever fought. It is certainly one of the most unpopular, and the strong opposition has evoked equally fervent defenses of our involvement. The polarization of feelings provides a ready forum for any politician who takes a stand on either side of the question.

Nothing said here should be taken to imply that politicians got us involved in Viet Nam for political gain. This is obviously not so. We became involved through a series of well-intentioned miscalculations and blunders. Now that we are at war, though, several groups and individuals stand to make political advances because of it.

First, of course, there is the Republican party. This is an election year, and the GOP has several ways to use the war as a campaign issue. They can criticize the way President Johnson is conducting the war and call for either increased force or a scaling down of the fighting. Most Republican leaders, however, have supported the President's conduct of the war; so this line of attack seems generally closed. Other avenues, though, remain very much open.

The Republicans can take issue with the President for not keeping the American people informed as to the situation in Viet Nam and the part the United States is playing there. Administration secretiveness is a valid campaign issue. The President has not really confided in the people concerning our role in this war.

The highly publicized "peace offensive" is certain to be lashed in some quarters as merely a grandstand play on Johnson's part. Critics will say that the wide publicity given the diplomatic missions to various parts of the globe effectively ruined whatever slim chance of success the peace drive may have had.

The biggest Republican issue related to the war, though, is sure to be inflation—Johnson's determination to have guns and butter. The President has announced that the domestic programs of the Great Society will continue only slightly abated, despite the balooning expense of the war. In so doing, he has left himself open to charges that his program will lead to dangerous inflation. If the President yields to labor pressure for a much higher minimum wage, the Republican artillery will be furnished with extra ammunition.

The opposition party is not the only group that can gain politically from the war. Dissident members of the Democratic party now have an issue on which they can sincerely differ with the President. While this could spell trouble for some, it also gives ambitious Democrats a chance to get out from under the long shadow of the President. The most obvious example, of course, is Robert F. Kennedy.

Few men doubt that the Senator from New York has his eye on the White House. That he and Johnson are not exactly bosom buddies is no secret either. It is unlikely that LBJ would pick Kennedy as his successor.

The Senator is basically more liberal in his beliefs than the President, but Johnson's adoption of many liberal programs has left him little ground for opposition on domestic policy. The war, though, is one area in which the two have fundamentally different positions. Kennedy underlined his differences with the President by calling for giving the Viet Cong a share in the government of South Viet Nam in order to end the war. Johnson's meeting with Ky in Honolulu does not indicate that he would approve such a proposal.

The break between Johnson and Kennedy had to come, and it apparently has come now. While most observers were predicting a Kennedy-Humphrey battle for the Democratic nomination in 1972, it now seems possible that Kennedy will attempt to rally liberal support for a challenge of Johnson in 1968.

The Collegiate World

Gov. Moore Plays Dual Role

Old Gold and Black
Wake Forest

Governor Dan Moore felt the pull last week of his dual role as Governor of the State and chairman of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees. In what was all too obviously a political move "to maintain the continuing confidence and trust of the members of the General Assembly and the people of North Carolina," Moore and the trustees denied Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson the use of University facilities.

Moore could have avoided the charge of "political interference in academic affairs" by delgating the authority for applying the amended Speaker Ban Law before the need for application arose. He did not do so, and with his Board of Trustees, had to apply the condition of the amendment himself.

His application, contained in remarks Thursday, made the nightmares of many seem to come true: the law, in effect, has not really been changed—only the faces of its enforcers are different.

Moore's remarks revealed the same misunderstanding of education which prompted the law, only slightly tempered by a respect for science and diplomacy. Said Moore, "The University does need the freedom to host national or international scientific conferences which would be attended by communist scientists or to head the ambassador or official representative of a communist nation."

But for theorists like Aptheker, whose concern is with ideas, Moore has little use. For him, education is test tubes and international politics—not what goes on in men's minds.

We hope that when the trustees eventually pass authority of regulating speakers' appearances to those who do understand the educational process, political pressure of the State's higher educational system will cease. But as long as the Governor of the State is also the chairman of the Board of Trustees, we fear that the University will be subject to recurrent pressure from men of good will but of little understanding.

Letters To The Editor

Dickson Commended

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Paul Dickson is to be commended for the responsible role he played as leader of the student body of the University of North Carolina in advocating that Aptheker and Wilkinson be allowed to speak on the UNC campus. It is indeed sad that an institution less than eight miles away from the Hill has the freedom of speech and discussion so necessary especially in the academic context that UNC lacks.

It would seem, rgretably, that the speaker ban law has been amended only for the sake of expediency and that the intellectually stifling principles upon which it was based are remaining in operation not even covertly but overtly; however, being a realist, I had previously assumed that this would be the situation upon hearing of the amendment of the law.

Not only each student but also each citizen should be "greatly disburbed" by this state of affairs. Certainly one should be perturbed when a society which professes to be politically democratic takes steps to curb freedom of speech and inquiry, steps which bear resemblance and close affinity with the tactics of totalitarianism.

With the crisis of Viet Nam currently agitating the nation and the world (here I shall dismiss discussion of whether the position and policy of the United States in the affair is moral and just) and in view of the marked rise and renewal of the Far Right with its elements of fascism in this country in the past few years which makes of the Communist a modern bogy man, it is imperative that the Communist position be heard and understood. Yet this necessity is second to the basic premise that all ideas, social, political, ethical, theological —whatever they may be, deserve to be given a forum and to be intelligently examined in an atmosphere of freedom; or as Dickson worded it—with my additions, one must exercise—and fight for the freedom in which to exercise it—"The right to listen and inquire . . . to make our own judgment."

Quite contrary to the statement of the honored governor of North Carolina at my own commencement ceremonies at UNC last June in which he stated (I paraphrase but believe I do not distort the Governor's words) that the people of North Carolina support the speaker ban law and thus the law, as it then stood—and in force, it has not changed in spite of amendment—should be respected by the academic community, there must be no compromise in fundamental principles of a free, democratic society, such as the freedom in question, in order to appease the inhabitants of the state.

In commending Dickson, I am also commending the students who supported him and, in turn, the students whom he represents. Were I still a member of the student body at the Hill, I should be backing him also.

Myron Blackwelder
University of Wisconsin

Taking Advice

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

One of your correspondents, Mr. Cecil Long, has raised the interesting question whether a graduate student would remain in residence at the University when he finds himself opposed to the practices of North Carolina's political leaders.

In my opinion, Mr. Long is right, and I myself am doing exactly as he suggests. It is my opinion—based on more than three years' acquaintance with the situation — that political dogma has determined the curriculum to such an extent that I do not want to be burdened for the rest of my life with the title, "Ph.D., University of North Carolina."

I am not angry with anyone about this, since it is in an obvious sense the privilege of the people of North Carolina to do what they please with the institution (although I am vexed at their insistence on calling this place a university when they do not want it to be a university and could not tolerate it if it were one).

On the other hand, however, Mr. Long is undoubtedly aware of the damage I could do by remaining in resident and earning a doctorate here. I have a family; I even have a teaching job at another branch of the University. And every day I am heard and seen here, I help to give people the idea that a man can be a tolerable and responsible sort of person in spite of failing to feel any need to keep the Negro in his place.

This may not sway Mr. Long's beliefs, to be sure, but it may weaken other people's convictions and thus make the leaders' jobs more difficult and less pleasant.

Bullies depend on their pals, their gangs, to follow blindly and not feel doubts. And in the same way, the Southerner's fondness for violence depends on his conviction that his neighbors will approve and applaud. So if my being here and demonstrating that liberals are not monsters serves to weaken the confident beliefs of the pals and neighbors, why, then to that extent I'm pulling the claws of the leaders. That's why my continued presence in Chapel Hill would do damage to the Southern Conception of Life

And that's why I'm sorry I don't have the nerve to stay. Mr. Long is right in a sense, but he is wrong, too. The burden of being known as a UNC graduate is nothing compared to the joy of knowing that one has done something to weaken the rock-like faith Southerners have that every rational man feels the way they do.

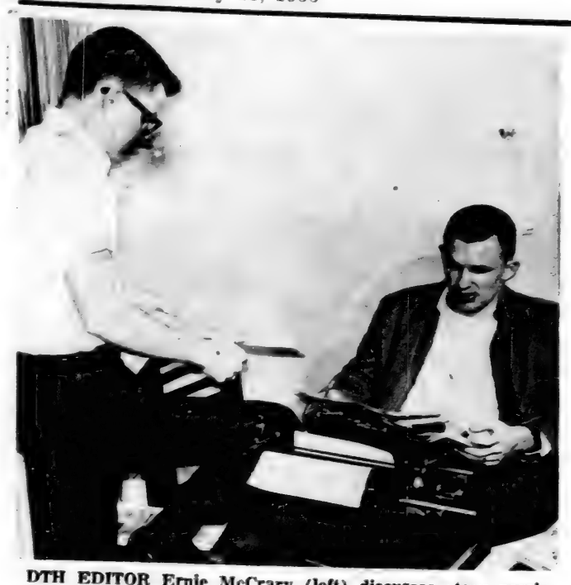
Yours sincerely,
James F. Perry
102 King St.

Need A Walk

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

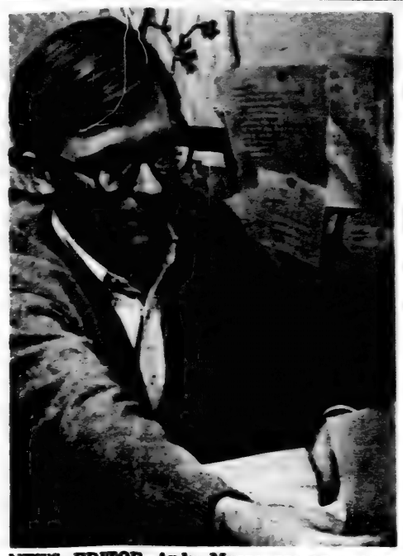
We need a sidewalk, and we need it now. Batman couldn't even walk to class from Morrison.

Ken Brown
1011 Morrison



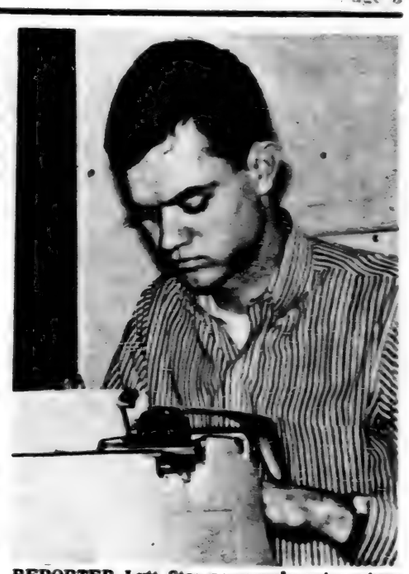
DTH EDITOR Ernie McCrary (left) discusses story possibilities with Managing Editor Pat Stith. The managing editor takes charge of page-one layout. McCrary writes all editorials.

AD SALESMAN Woody Sobol measures layouts before page is turned over to news staff. Salesmen pound the pavement daily to sell space for the DTH.



NEWS EDITOR Andy Myers prepares copy before it is sent to print shop. The DTH uses the same facilities as the Chapel Hill Weekly on West Franklin Street.

COPY DESK man Ron Shinn checks the day's AP wire copy. Two wire machines provide the campus with state and world news.



REPORTER Lytt Stamps pounds out a story which must be researched and written before 6:30 p.m., the DTH deadline. More than 600 inches of copy are prepared daily.

Daily Tar Heel 73 Years Old Today

TAPE-PUNCHER Jean Fogleman justifies lines of type before being set by linotype machines. The tape is fed into the linotypes, which set lead type automatically.

LINOTYPE-OPERATOR Cecil Teal keeps an eye on the automatic typesetter. The keyboard on the linotype shown above is used when copy is set by hand.

COMPOSITER Kerry Sipe places stories and heads on the dummy sheet as they are "slicked." Black spaces are left for pictures, which are photographed separately.

PHOTOGRAPHER Bill Prouty places finished layout on camera. Exposure takes about 15 seconds under bright arc lamps.

DTH Growth Pains Come Each Year

★ ★ ★ Photos by Ernest Robl Text By Andy Myers ★ ★ ★

One cold February morning 73 years ago today, Carolina students awoke to find the first issue of the Tar Heel slipped under their doors.

From a humble, one-sheet paper, filled with lists of names because the editor had nothing better to use, the Tar Heel has grown into the South's largest college newspaper.

This spring the DTH was enlarged to six pages, a growth spurt which would have amazed the first Editor-in-Chief Charles Baskerville.

The Tar Heel was first sponsored by the Carolina Athletic Association. Now almost completely autonomous, while partially financed by Student Government funds, the DTH serves as the official spokesman for the Carolina student body.

The first paper was printed on a hand-operated screw press, probably a few days before it first appeared on Feb. 23, 1893. The DTH now prints more than 10,000 copies six days a week.

Other recent innovations include the offset printing process instituted last June. This process gives much better picture reproduction and a whiter page.

The process works like this:

— Each story is transferred to tape form by a machine resembling a typewriter.

— The punched tape is fed into a linotype machine, which sets the copy into lead type and "justifies" (spaces out to fill the column) the lines.

— Mistakes are corrected and a "slick" proof is made of each galley of type, as it would appear in the paper.

— As each story is "proofed" it is pasted down on a life-size "dummy sheet." Headlines are printed separately and pasted down.

— Knock-out blocks are placed where pictures will appear (shown in accompanying photos).

— A photograph is taken of each page and the resulting negative is used to make a positive on a zinc sheet.

— The completed positive is fastened to press and ink is transferred indirectly from it to the paper.

DAILY CROSSWORD

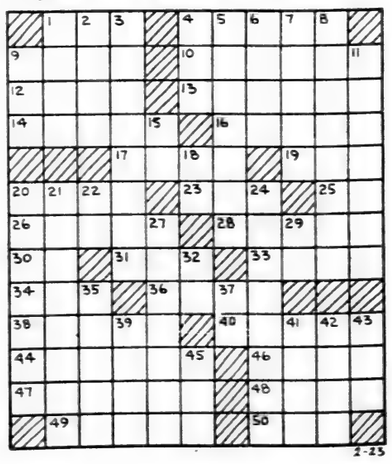
ACROSS

1. Cereal grain
4. Water gone crazy with the heat
9. Powder and shot, for short
10. Lifts with effort
12. Capital of Peru
13. Unmitigated
14. Cache: slang
16. The "upper crust"
17. Amphibian
19. Impudence
20. Porkfish
23. Code signal
25. Music drama: abbr.
26. Correct
28. Harlan Fiske
30. Cavalier State: abbr.
31. Obtain
33. Famous Betsy
34. Turkish title
36. A golf bawl
38. Daughter of Rigoletto
40. Come in
44. Lure
46. Bestow
47. Fabric joiner
48. Waste allowance
49. A slip cover
50. Female fowl

DOWN

1. Leave out
2. Abbess
3. One type of fork
4. Shinto temple
5. Shipworms
6. Nobleman
7. Help
8. Refers to
9. Smith and Jolson
11. Asian plains
15. Exclamation of surprise
18. Like
20. Barbarians
21. Created, in a fashion
22. Compass point
24. Power
27. Mars
29. Hawaiian bird
32. Toward
35. End of a well-known march
37. Music note
39. One type of novel
41. Even a big wheel needs one
42. Level
43. Soak flax
45. Bitter vetch

Yesterday's Answer



2-23

Our AVERAGE Student Reads 4.7 Times Faster

THAN HIS BEGINNING SPEED
WITH EQUAL OR BETTER COMPREHENSION

The internationally famous EVELYN WOOD Reading Dynamics Institute INVITES YOU TO ATTEND

A FREE DEMONSTRATION

In Durham High School on Duke St.	in Raleigh YMCA 1601 Hillsborough St.	in Chapel Hill at the Carolina Inn
at 4:30 or 8 P.M.	at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.	at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
WED., FEB. 23 THURS., FEB. 24	MON., FEB. 28 TUES., MAR. 1 WED., MAR. 2	WED., Mar. 9 THURS., Mar. 10

READING DYNAMICS CLASSES BEGIN

in DURHAM H. S.	in RALEIGH YMCA	in CHAPEL H.S.
Monday, Feb. 28 at 7 P.M.	Tuesday, March 8 at 7 P.M.	Thursday, March 17 at 7 P.M.

— REGISTRATION BEGINS 30 MINUTES EARLIER —

At the Demonstration

- You will see a Reading Dynamics graduate read at amazing speeds from a book he has never seen before and then tell in detail what he has read.
- You will see a documented film that includes actual interviews with Washington Congressmen who have taken the course.
- You will learn how we can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater recall.

HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE?

Eighteen years ago Evelyn Wood, a Utah schoolteacher, made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward a master's degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 89 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension. Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read faster than 1,500 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of experience in public schools and universities, she has made it possible for you to benefit from this great discovery.

IS IT SIMPLY A PROMOTION STUNT?

Over the past eleven years more than 160,000 graduates have been convinced that Reading Dynamics is a proven method. About Reading Dynamics' impact on our nation's legislators, Time Magazine said "Washington has seen nothing like it since the days when Teddy Roosevelt read three books a day and ran the country at the same time."

SENATOR PROXMIRE, Wisconsin: "I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It certainly compares favorably with the experience I've had at Yale and Harvard."

SENATOR TALMADGE, Georgia: "It is my opinion that if these techniques were instituted in the public and private schools of our country, it would be the greatest single step which we could take in educational progress."

MICHAEL LEVY, Pres. Standard Security Life: "My normal relaxed reading is now at a rate approximately 4,000 words per minute. Even with the most difficult and technical reading material, I find that my speed exceeds 2,500 words per minute."

SENATOR STUART SYMINGTON, MISSOURI—"I can now read materials at speeds above 3,000 words per minute and technical material in the 2,000 word per minute range."

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,000 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student AT LEAST 3 times with good comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition to any student who, after completing minimum class and study requirements, does not at least triple his reading efficiency as measured by our beginning and ending tests.

READING DYNAMICS INSTITUTE

Telephone 274-4273 or 942-7142
1412 Westover Terrace, Greensboro, N. C.
Chapel Hill

Quotes from Former Students

IN DURHAM . . .

A reading speed of over 2,000 words per minute is enabling me finally to read the vast quantity of material I feel I should read. I am going to try these techniques on cases in Law School, and of course in all my other reading.
Alan W. Eckert.

Since I am studying to be a teacher my increased speed is not only a blessing, but a joy. I am grateful that I took the course.
Janice Smith.

Reading Dynamics has enabled me to read greater than 2,000 words per minute with better comprehension than before. This is particularly of importance to me because of the precious little spare time I have to read.
Jordan Gutterman, M.D.

IN RALEIGH . . .

Part of A Letter Home

"Everything is going just fine here. My courses are all pretty tough but all very interesting. I'm really going to enjoy this semester. You'll be glad to know that my reading has helped me tremendously! It really is a time saver. I've been getting to bed around 11:00 to 11:30 . . . and it certainly is not because I don't have any homework because I always have plenty of it. That reading, though, has just cut my study time. It really is great! That's one of the most useful presents I have ever received. Thanks a million for it! Lots of love to you all,
from a student at State.

I never really learned how to study in school; this course has given me more insight into the "art" of study than the 14 years of schooling I have taken. The guides to organizing your study are of value to all students. The development of Gist Sheets should be taught in all high schools.
Peter Savage

I now understand how to read, how to evaluate a book, what to look for and how to find what I want to in books. I had not learned any of this even after going through college. I can now preview a book for its importance or skim material for beneficial facts. I now appreciate books and the ability to read them.
Thomas Youngblood

IN CHAPEL HILL . .

● "The course has been extremely useful to me. I wish all of our graduate students could take the course." DR. DAN PRICE, Director, Institute for Research in Social Science, U.N.C.

Again I want to wholeheartedly endorse your course and method. I began at 400 wpm and finished — reading dynamically — at speeds as high as 3,000 wpm with no loss of comprehension.—Dick League, Law School, U.N.C.

As an acting intern on pediatrics, I had gained tremendous experience but had done practically none of the general reading required for orals. The night before the examination, I was on duty and essentially, the extent of my reading was from one to three and from five to seven in the morning. In that period of time I was able to read about five hundred pages with satisfactory comprehension. I did not panic or get overly anxious. I had the feeling of a worthwhile job done satisfactorily. Since I last saw you, I have taken my National Board Examinations in all the clinical fields of medicine.
Jerry Eller, Med. Student

Cong Elude Drives

SAIGON (AP) — Two big American drives stabbed ahead in South Viet Nam yesterday in massive hunts for hard-core Communist troops. The enemy fought back with mines, snipers and ambushes, but not his main forces.

American B52S softened up the areas ahead of the advancing U. S. forces with heavy bombing attacks. U. S. Air Force and Navy planes pounded targets in the Communist North.

One of the drvies, by the 1st Air Cavalry Division in the coastal plains 300 miles northeast of Saigon, reported 38 Viet Cong dead and evidence of more Red casualties in a communist triangle 12 miles south on Bong Son.

The new kills brought to 1,130 the number of Communist dead since the division began operating in the ricefields on the South China Sea coast Jan. 25.

At times the troopers, who met only token resistance, advanced only two or three miles behind exploding 500 and 750-pound bombs from the Guam-based B52S.

In the jungles 35 miles northwest of Saigon, thousands of other U. S. fighting men in operation Mastiff hunted for six or seven veteran Viet Cong regiments, perhaps 8,400 men, reported earlier in the area.

Indonesian Situation Is 'Explosive'

SINGAPORE (AP) —Fighting may erupt at any time in Jakarta because of Indonesian President Sukarno's ouster of Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution as defense minister, reports reaching Singapore said yesterday.

Both diplomats arriving from Jakarta and a clandestine radio somehwere in Java described the situation as "explosive" following the sacking of the anti-Communist Nasution Monday.

The general feeling was that a showdown was near between the army and the forces backing Sukarno, who was seen as trying to gain the upper hand over the military by firing Nasution.

Nasution, who led the purge of Communists after the Reds tried to overthrow Sukarno Oct. 1, was reported strongly backed by the man Sukarno has retained as army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Suharto.

A nondiplomatic source with connections in Jakarta said: "These (army) forces are not going to let Sukarno's move go by. There is a very strong possibility of fighting in Jakarta very soon."

North Carolina News Roundup

Pearsall Suit Begins Today

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Arguments will begin in Federal Court today on a suit challenging portions of North Carolina's Pearsall Plan, agroup of laws enacted in 1956 asan escape to school integration

The three-judge federal panel includes Judges J. Spencer Bell, J. Braxton Craven Jr. and Edwin M. Stanley.

At issue is a tuition grant to Terrence McClain of Mecklenburg County, who is attending Carolina Military Academy at Maxton instead of integrated West Mecklenburg High School.

The grant to McClain was the first approved under the 10-year-old law.

A group of Charlotte Negroes filed the suit challenging the tuition grant system. The U. S. Justice Department was allowed to intervene as a plaintiff.

Defendants in the case are the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education and the state of North Crolina.

William Medford, U. S. District attorney for the western district of North Carolina, has filed notice that he will seek a preliminary injunction against state and local officials prohibiting them from processing, approving or paying any grants under the Pearsall Plan.

Briefs filed by the parties to the suit indicate the government will seek to have the law ruled unconstitutional on grounds that it seeks to perpetuate segregation.

The defendants deny the charges, claiming the plan does not foster "voluntary forced segregation" and is therefore within the dictates of the Constitution.

Murder Trial Continues

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A defense motion to dismiss murder charges against Robert E. Porth was overruled yesterday after the state rested its case.

Shortly after Solicitor Thomas W. Moore rested the case for the state, Judge George M. Fountain called a recess until 2 p.m. to give the defense time to gather its witnesses.

Porth, a 57-year-old missile engineer, is accused of murder in the death of his wife, Mrs. Hilda Borchardt Porth, last summer. Her body was found on a Virginia mountainside Aug. 14.

Defense attorney James J. Booker moved for dismissal, claiming the state had failed to prove any premeditation or deliberation which woudl be required for a first degree verdict. Booker told Judge George M. Fountain:

"There had been no proof . . . that a crime has been committed."

Dr. Geoffrey T. Mann, the Virginia medical examiner, testified yesterday that bloodstains apparently found on the steps of the new Porth home were not the blood of Mrs. Porth. This statement resulted from cross examination by Booker.

Mann had testified Monday that based on an autopsy he performed Mrs. Porth had died of injuries caused by a blunt object. He told the court he did not know the type of blunt instrument that killed the woman.

Man Charged With Murder

MORGANTON (AP) — Burke County authorities said yesterday a scuffle preceded the fatal shooting of a hosiery mill owner at Hildebran.

Donald Leroy Propst, 28-year-old unemployed Hildebran man was charged with murder in the fatal shooting Monday of Ralph Henderson Taylor, 41, of Hildebran, owner of the Taylor Hosiery Mill.

Officers said that Propst, who weighs 400 pounds, had gone to the mill with his brother, Frank Propst, 42, who is employed there. They said the shooting occurred after Taylor tried to evict Donald Leroy Propst from the mill property.

Capt. J. H. Burns and Lt. Wade McGilliard of the sheriff's office said their investigation disclosed that Donald and Frank Propst had gone to the mill because Donald Propst was looking for a man named Charlie Pope.

The officers said Donald Propst wanted to see Pope because the man supposedly "made statements about the brothers, involving Donald Propst's weight, non-employment and other circumstances."

Frank Propst, who said he had no idea his brother was armed, told officers they found Pope and that Donald Propst hit him. At this point, officers quoted Frank Propst as saying, Taylor came into the area and ordered Donald Propst out.

After a shoving match, officers said, Taylor went into a tool room and came out with a hammer. They quoted witnesses as saying that at this point Donald Propst drew a gun and as Taylor was hitting him on the hand with the hammer the weapon discharged twice.

Lt. McGilliard said Taylor fell with his feet in the tool room. He said Donald and Frank Propst left the scene and were picked up 30 minutes later at the trailer home they shared.

A .38 calibre pistol was found wrapped in a paper sack and newspaper buried under pine needles about 200 yards from the trailer, officers added.

Donald Propst was jailed without bond in Morganton.

Authorities said Taylor was shot twice. An autopsy yesterday disclosed that only one of the wounds was of a fatal nature.

Taylor Tries To Mediate

Johnson, Kennedy Feuding

WASHINGTON (AP) —Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, adviser to President Johnson and friend of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., undertook yesterday to narrow the gap between Kennedy and the Johnson administration over Vienamese policy.

Even as he appeared to win some success on one front Taylor lost on another, for Kennedy lashed out at the administration with a charge that it is confused about what it wants to accomplish in Viet Nam. Again Kennedy insisted that dissident elements in South Viet Nam—meaning the Communist Viet Cong — must be brought into any peace talks.

The future role of the Viet Cong is the heart of the issues Kennedy has raised and Taylor has sought to resolve, as between the Senator and the administration, by a compromise forumla.

COALITION GOVERNMENT

Kennedy said last Saturday that the Viet Cong and other "discontented elements" must be given a share of power and responsibility in a future Saigon government as a means of ending the Vietnamese war.

Administration spokesmen immediately denounced Kennedy's demand. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball and Presidential Adviser MacGeorge Bundy deplored it. On his Asian trip Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, presumably on advice from Washington, said that to admit Communists to the government in Saigon would be like letting a fox in a hen house.

ADMINISTRATION SPLIT

Taylor indicated last night that he agreed in some degree with Kennedy. That suggested a split within the administration between Taylor and the Ball-Bundy view. Later Taylor said his stand had been misunderstood and he put it this way:

"Let no one think I favor a coalition government (for South Viet Nam)," he said. "Let no one think I favor recognition of the Viet Cong. But if you read what Sen. Kennedy has said you will find that he doesn't say those things either.

"This is a question of goinng representation to the discontented elements in South Viet Nam, including the Communists. If this follows free elections, I don't think anyone can quarrel with it."

Taylor was reminded that Kennedy had not specified free elections as a pre-condition for bringing the Communists into a Saigon government.

"No," he replied, "but he didn't rule out the action through free elections.

"If he means through free elections, I'd have no trouble with it.

"If he means negotiating them into a coalition government I'd not be for it."

TELEVISION INTERVIEW

In a television interview on NBC's "Today" show, Kennedy himself spoke of elections in a way to suggest that he thought they would precede any such sweeping reorganization of a South Vietnamese government as would be necessary to include Communists. He said the problem is how to handle the Viet Cong in maneuvering for peace.

"We either have to destroy them (the Viet Cong) or we can deal with them,' 'Kennedy said. "It seems to me that we have to abide by elections."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday that the United States favors free elections as an element of a peace settlement and would be prepared to abide by the results of the elections whatever they were.

Rusk, Taylor and Kennedy, therefore, all seemed to be in line on the results of elections. Kennedy, however, seemd to leave open the question of a coalition government prior to elections, as a different approach to a peace settlement.

PEACE TALKS REFUSED

Futhermore he said the administration had offered unconditional peace talks to the Communist side but now was imposing a precondition "that none of these dissident elements which undoubtedly include the Communists will be represented in the government."

"Secondly," Kennedy said, "I understood we were in favor of free elections, and we were going to abide by free elections, and yet the statement was made yesterday that . . . (if) the Communists should win in some areas and therefore have the right and be entitled to be represented in the government, it's like putting the fox in the chicken coop.

"You can't have it both ways.

Johnson and Kennedy: Feud Continues

Europe!

AGAIN THIS SUMMER, THE YM-YWCA IS OFFERING SEMINARS ABROAD, A TWO-MONTH, TEN-COUNTRY TOUR OF EUROPE OPEN ONLY TO U.N.C. STUDENTS. THE PROGRAM IS DESIGNED AND RUN FOR STUDENTS, BUT THAT IS FAR FROM BEING ITS ONLY UNIQUE FEATURE -- STUDENT PRICES ARE ANOTHER. CONTACT ANNE QUEEN AT THE Y FOR INFORMATION -- PHONE 933-2333. IT'S WORTH CHECKING OUT.

WANT ADS

WANTED: RESOURCEFUL college girl to outwit small boy for two hours every day. Call Mrs. Schlesinger 929-2074.

NEW AIR CONDITIONED, two bedroom mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available March 1st. $80 per month. Telephone 942-1749 or 942-3268.

NEED RIDERS THIS WEEKEND! New York City. Leave Friday, return Monday. Give her a break, visit her! Call 942-3575, only 2 spaces — air-conditioned car.

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

THE BIGGEST BOND OF ALL!

ALBERT R. BROCCOLI and HARRY SALTZMAN present SEAN CONNERY as "THUNDERBALL" Produced by KEVIN McCLORY PANAVISION TECHNICOLOR Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

LOOKING FOR A BRIGHTER FUTURE, and more security right now? Let me show you how our new Assured Accumulator life insurance policy can help you.

see

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4358

NEW YORK LIFE

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Singing goes better refreshed
And Coca-Cola — with that special zing but never too sweet —
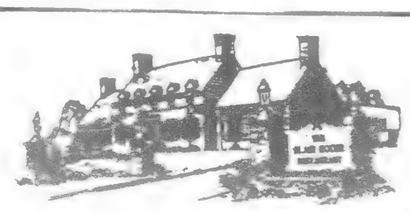
refreshes best.

things go better with Coke

Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.



LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50

Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken

Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving

BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS

Recommended by
Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway

The Blair House

Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

"Let's unplug the computer, boys! Start thinking!"

A lot of people believe that someday computers will do all their thinking for them.

Well, a funny thing is going to happen on the way to the future.

You're going to have to think harder and longer than ever.

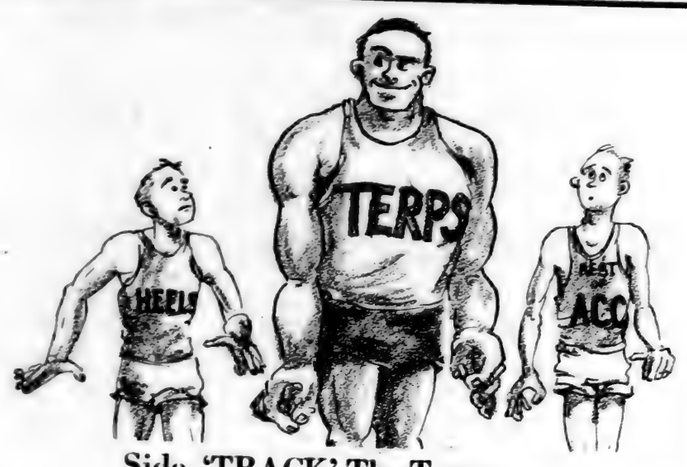
Computers can't do [illegible] Picturephone® [illegible] are [illegible] advances in communications we have made. Or you can't rely on computers to [illegible]

And there's no way to lock a door or turn on an oven by remote telephone control. Or to make possible some of the other things you will have someday.

[illegible] Bell Telephone Laboratories [illegible] to help you [illegible] and the other [illegible] working for you.

It's what we're doing to help you reach.

Bell System



Side-'TRACK' The Terps

ACC Track Championship At Woollen On Saturday

By BOB ORR

A talented field of runners and field event men, led by Maryland's 7-foot high jumper Frank Costello, will go after every record on the books in the ACC Indoor Track Championships at Chapel Hill next Saturday, February 26.

Costello, defending Conference champion and National indoor collegiate king, will be one of the centers of attention in the big meet. At the height of the indoor season last year, the Maryland junior was jumping higher than any athlete in the world. His old Conference record of 6-10 is a sure bet to fall.

Duke's Rod Stewart is back to defend his shot put title. Already this season he has thrown the iron ball one-and-a-half feet farther than the league record. In the broad jump, Ed Marks of Maryland has jumped 24 feet, 2 inches, only four inches off the old record.

The pole vault should feature one of the tightest battles of the meet. Defending champion Bob Williams of Maryland is back and so is last year's second place finisher, Woody Chapman of USC. However, Williams who went 15 feet, 1¼ inches off the record last year should get stiff competition from Stuart Corn of N. C. State and Nick Horner of Duke. Both have vaulted 14 feet, 7 inches this season.

Fireworks should really start when the running events get under way in Woollen Gymnasium. Probably the most promising of the races is the mile run. Four of the first five men in last year's race are back. The favorite is George Henry of Maryland, who was second last year. He ran 4:08 indoors last spring and 4:12 outdoors last spring and 4:12 indoors this season.

land's Jim Bickley, third in the meet last year, is the favorite. However, Jon Levin of UNC is a definite threat. The Tar Heel junior has run 6.2, only one-tenth of a second away from Dave Simes' record. The 70-yard high hurdles should find Martin of Duke, Maryland's Tom Finley (second last year), and Corn of N. C. State in contention for the victory.

The 1,000-yard run is wide open. The record of 2:17.6 will definitely go, but who breaks it, is the big question. Carolina's Mike Williams has a good shot at victory — if he doesn't run the mile. Other favorites include Stu Mathews of Maryland, Duke's Fred Zodda, and Bill Bassett of UNC.

The two-mile run will feature two veterans, Charles Koester of Maryland and Jim Meade of UNC (second and fourth respectively last year), against two aspiring sophomores, Maryland's David Starnes and Duke's Paul Rogers. Starnes has the fastest time, but the other three are tremendous competitors.

Maryland's track machine is everybody's choice to win the team title, but individual standouts from all the ACC schools should make the 1966 ACC indoor track meet the best ever.

UNC Track Coach Joe Hilton said, "I think this will rank as one of the finest indoor track meets in the country."

Preliminaries will be run Saturday morning in Woollen Gymnasium, with finals starting that night.

Sig Ep Wins Behind Dail

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Wayne Dail fired in 24 points for the Sig Ep Bisons as they thundered by the Kappa Psi Blue in intramural basketball Monday, 57-24.

Sigma Nu A blasted KA Black I, 62-18. Higgins had 23 points for the Sigma Nus.

The Joyner Dunkers edged the Joyner Lyons, 33-32. Phipps netted 16 points for the Dunkers.

The Graham B Balls got 25 points from Bob Lewis, not the varsity performer, as they sneaked by the Lewis Greys, 52-50.

Sixteen points by Joe Dunn led the Mangum Mugs to a 47-41 decision over the Ruffin Raiders.

Murphy's 17 points paced the PiKA Plummers over SAE Blue, 39-30.

Zeta Psi II took a dull 34-21 victory over the TEP Flops.

A similar game saw the Chi Phi Red beat the Beta Bounders, 30-25.

The Phi Gam Whiteowls trounced KA Red, 33-13.

DU Blue I had three players hit double figures in a 57-39 win over Chi Psi Red.

The ZBT Zebes defeated the Phi Kap Sig Defenders, 49-45. Herald had 21 points for ZBT.

Cliff Butler scored 25 points as KA Blue I routed Chi Psi Purple, 59-27.

Young scored 21 points as the Lambda Chi Clods beat KA Red I, 46-23. DKE Green beat AK Psi, 38-31.

SOUTHEASTERN PREMIERE TODAY!

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!" —N.Y. Post

M-G-M presents THE PANDRO S. BERMAN GUY GREEN PRODUCTION a PATCH of BLUE starring SIDNEY POITIER SHELLEY WINTERS with special guest ELIZABETH HARTMAN IN PANAVISION

1, 3, 5, 7:01 & 9:02 P.M.

Cartoon "THE DOT AND THE LINE" (Color)

RIALTO, Durham

RACING CAR ENTHUSIAST

Peter Symonds Has Special Interest In Daytona Track

By JIM FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

Automobile racing fans all over the world will turn their eyes to Daytona International Speedway at Daytona Beach, Fla. this week as the annual racing marathon begins.

Pete Symonds, a junior majoring in French from Marble Head, Mass., will be watching the races with special interest. Symonds' hobby, and hopefully maybe a profession someday, is road racing.

"I first became interested in racing when I was real young," said Symonds. "I use to go to races and then read everything about them I could get my hands on. The more I read and saw, the more I liked it."

Symonds has his own car that he races, a Morgan SS, with a TR4 racing motor in it that is capable of speeds up to 120 mph. He began racing about three years ago in road trials, and since then he has entered some 30 trials. He has won 23 of those trials, finished second in four others and is presently the N. C. Regional Champion.

"I got the car I'm driving now from Gaston Andry," he said. "Andry has been the National Road Racing Champion in this country seven times and is quite a driver.

"When I first started racing, it was real expensive. I would have to drive my car to the race, strip it down, race it and then rebuild it to drive it back to school. But, now I have a toe car and pull it from race to race.

"Right now I'm in the process of getting it ready for this spring. We'll be having regular races every weekend pretty soon so I'm rebuilding my car now and taking my time instead of doing it all at once.

"This summer I hope to qualify to race in regular road races. "I'll be 21 then, and so I'm going to Watkins Glen, N. Y. to a race driving school sponsored by Sports Car Club of America (SCCA).

"Someday, if I'm lucky, I would like to go into Grand Prix Racing in Europe. To me, that is the ultimate in racing, and I would consider it a real honor to try my hand at it someday."

Symonds doesn't have to look very far to get plenty of good competition because there are several boys here at school that furnish plenty of that for him. In addition to being a member of SCCA, he is a member of the Piedmont Sports Car Club of Durham and they have their own trials and races each spring.

LA PIZZA SPECIAL

Wednesday, Thursday Nite

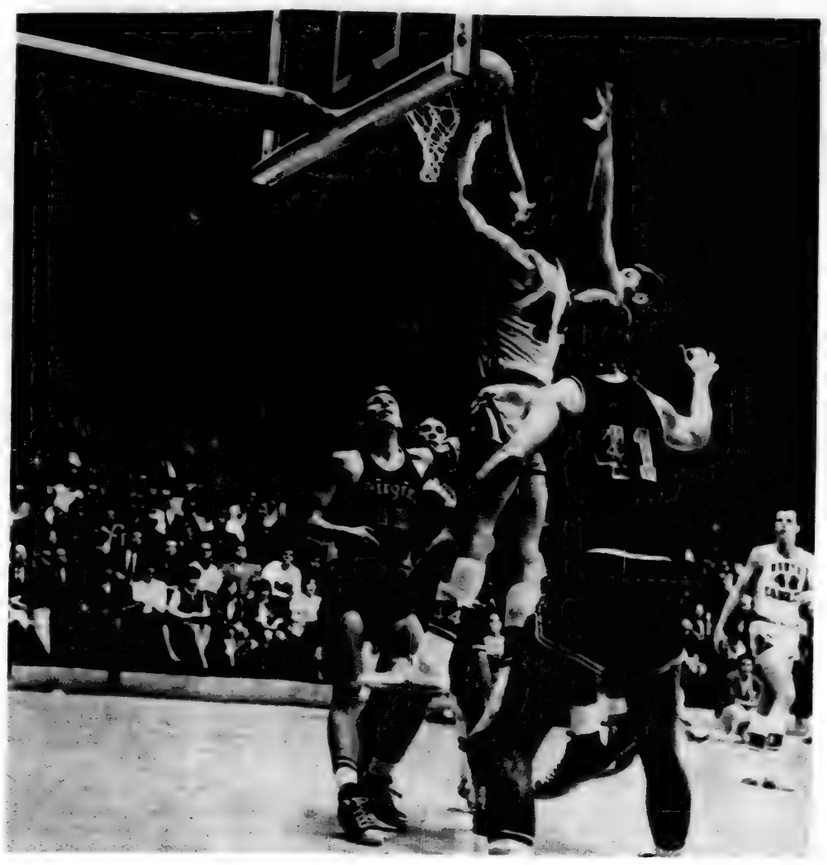
HAMBURGER STEAK

Smothered in Onions, Baked Potato — Salad.

$1.25

Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

Virginia Falls In Overtime



LARRY MILLER puts the ball through on a layup during the first half of the Tar Heel-Virginia game. The Virginia men are Fred Stant (42) and Mike Kantos (41).

—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Lewis Heroics Give UNC 81-79 Victory

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

Fabulous Bobby Lewis hit a twisting, driving lay up as the buzzer sounded to hand North Carolina an 81-79 overtime victory over stubborn Virginia before 8,000 fans in Carmichael Auditorium last night.

That basket by Lewis, who scored 35 points for the evening, climaxed a struggle which saw the Tar Heels blow their chance to win the game in regulation time.

Leading 73-69 with three minutes remaining, the Tar Heels went into their patented four-corners offense. But after an exchange of baskets, Virginia's Jim Connelly pulled the Cavaliers within two points at 75-73 with 1:10 remaining.

The Tar Heels again elected to use the four corners. But with one minute remaining, Lewis broke for the basket and took the shot. The ball hung to the rim for an instant then fell into the hands of Connelly. Virginia was in business with 54 seconds left.

But then the heart breaker came for the Tar Heels. After a scuffle under the boards, Virginia's Jerry Sanders threw the ball out of bounds. North Carolina had the ball and a two-point lead with 29 seconds left.

North Carolina again elected to play it carefully and with six seconds Virginia's John Schroeder fouled Larry Miller. Miller missed the foul shot but UNC's John Yokley made a diving lunge for the ball.

Yokley flipped the ball over his head and Connelly intercepted and drove the length of the court for aa game-tying dunk shot as the regulation buzzer sounded.

Virginia took the lead 77-75 in overtime on a dunk shot by Schroeder. Two Lewis free throws tied the score with three minutes remaining.

Connelly again sent Virginia ahead 79-77 with two minutes remaining. But with 1:43 remaining, Connelly was charged with his fifth foul.

With 1:27 remaining, Gauntlett tied it for the Tar Heels — setting the stage for the final second heroiss.

An edge in shooting accuracy gave the Cavaliers command during most of the first half. Virginia hit 20 of 34 attempts from the floor for 58.8 percent. North Carolina hit 16 of 30 for 53.3 per cent.

A John Yokley lay up gave the Tar Heels a 2-0 lead with 19:46 remaining. Virginia's Jim Connelly, who scored 15 points in that first half, tied the score 2-2 with 19:30 remaining.

Virginia took their first lead with 17:10 left when Connelly struck with a long jumper for a 7-6 lead.

The two teams exchanged one - point leads for the next five minutes. The final Tar Heel advantage came with 12:57 remaining when Larry Miller hit for a 16-15 lead.

With 12:35 remaining, Connelly again hit for the Cavaliers — giving Virginia a 17-16 lead and the Tar Heels could never again gain the edge in the first half.

A three point play by Miller with 11:17 left did tie the score at 19-all, but the Cavaliers scored seven straight points to ring up their largest lead of the first half — 26-19.

That seven point lead did not last long, however. Free throws by Lewis and Mark Mirken sandwiched around a basket by Tom Gauntlett cut the Virginia edge to two points — 25-23 — with 9:25 to go in the half.

The Tar Heels managed to tie the score with 54 seconds remaining. Two free throws by Lewis made the score 44 each. But a John Schroeder shot with seven seconds remaining gave the Cavaliers their 46-44 ralftime lead.

Tar Babies Too Tough For Maravich, Southwood

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Pete Maravich and his Southwood boys didn't show much to the Carmichael crowd last night.

The youngster and the team came into Chapel Hill last night billed as a tough match —individually and collectively —for Carolina's Tar Babies, but it just didn't work out that way. The team got whelped, and the kid could find a scoring forte only at the foul line. He got 14-of-16 there, but only six-of-18 from the floor—due to tight guarding by Dick Grubar.

The Babies patiently tolerated the Eagle's deliberate pace in the first half, and then burst loose to romp to their fourteenth victory in 15 games, by a score of 85-63.

It was a rebound game for North Carolina, which had its long victory string broken last Friday at Virginia Tech. The Tar Babies were lulled by a Southwood offense which in the first half resolved to take only the good percentage shot, and shot only 21 times—even if they were not all the best shots.

Their tactics worked to an extent, enabling them to go into the halftime break trailing by only four points, 38-34.

Southwood hit just 10 of those 21 first-half attempts, while UNC—trying to run but just unable to get it going—connected on 16-of-30. But they hit 14 free throws to UNC's six in the first half, to stay close at the midway points, 38-34.

Just before the half ended, however, Carolina — sparked by Jim Bostick and Bill Dodson— charged from a 32-28 deficit to a 38-34 lead. Bostick got two of his seven baskets in the surge, and he and Dodson made two steals each and set up Don Rindfleisch and Ken Royall for baskets which set the Tar Baby tempo for the second half.

To start that second half, Grubar got two baskets within a minute, and Carolina charged to a 46-36 lead at 15:49.

Southwood got a tremendous turn-around, fall-away, 25-foot bank shot from Maravich—about the only "aaahs" he drew from the crowd all night —to stay reasonably close at 48-39. But Bostick, Dodson, Grubar and Rusty Clark scored within two minutes to break it open at 56-39 with 11:14 left to play.

After a Southwood basket, Bostick and Grubar hit field goals and Clark stormed the lane for a three-point play to completely crack it open at 63-41 with 10:16 remaining. Southwood never got closer than 19 after that. The biggest UNC lead was 79-63 at 3:16.

Coach Larry Brown was up in the air over the defensive job that his ace guard, Grubar, did in defensing against Maravich.

"Dickie did as good a job on Maravich as can be done," Larry said. "Pete is a good player, and Dick didn't give him many good shots."

Grubar said, "Maravich is a good ballplayer. The secret is keeping the ball away from him, just like Coach Brown told me. But he drew a lot of fouls from all of us. That shows that the other guys picked him up a lot, too. He forced some shots, and I think we did a good job of keeping him away from the real good shots.

The key to the Tar Baby offense and 52-28 rebounding—and to a large extent its defense with a bushel-basketball of blocked shots—was Rusty Clark.

Big Russ contributed 19 points to a good team-wide scoring effort, and bought the boards at wholesale price with 20 rebounds. From the floor, Rusty hit 8-for-12 on a variety of shots.

Jim Bostick—with a characteristic performance for the first time in several games—scored 14 points and Dick Grubar added to his excellent defense against Maravich with 15 points. Both Jim and Dick hit seven-of-11 from the floor.

The Tar Babies' team performance shooting-wise was 36-of-63 for 57.1 per cent. But it was the same sad story from the foul line: 13-of-25.

The Tar Babies' final game of the season comes Friday night against Duke in Durham.

"I've heard that they (duke) are having a pep rally just for the freshman game, and the varsity cheerleaders are going to cheer for them. Needless to say, we need the support Friday night over there. The game's free, and I hope we have a good crowd to yell for us."

Frosh Swimmers Take Nine Firsts

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's freshman swimmers put on a splendid performance as they took nine out of 14 first places in the 12th annual Freshman Invitation Swimming Championships held in Bowman Gray pool on Monday.

There were heroes galore—Jim Edwards won three events, Fred Danneman set an NCAA freshman backstroke record, Ham Gadd surprised everyone with a superb performance in the breaststroke.

Edwards won the 200 freestyle in 1:47.4 and UNC's Dave Ball finished second. Martin of Maryland was third, Joe Sanders of UNC fourth, Sultan of East Carolina fifth and Manchester of East Carolina sixth.

Edwards took the 100 free in 48.0 with Sanders finishing second and Dick Jacobs of UNC third. Golub of Maryland was fourth, Hardy of State fifth and Greg Meehan of Carolina was sixth.

Finishing up his great night, Edwards swam a 2:04.8 to win the 200 yard individual medley. Ball and Jacobs made it a one-two-three finish for UNC.

Danneman's record was set in the 100 backstroke. His 54.6 beat the old NCAA freshman record of 54.8. McMahon of South Carolina was second, Willis Ball of Washington and Lee third. John Staelin of UNC was sixth. Danneman also won the 200 backstroke in 2:02.2, a new meet record.

Gadd chopped nearly four seconds off his best time of the year as he set a new meet record of 1:02.8 in the 100 breaststroke. Tom Ferretti of Carolina finished fourth in the event.

Randy Wade of UNC took the 200 butterfly in a meet record time of 2:01.0. Ristaino of State was second, Behrman, of UNC third, Canady of the Citadel fourth, Murphy of East Carolina fifth, Sommers of Maryland sixth.

Doug Behrman came back to win the 100 butterfly in a 53.9 time. Slenker of South Carolina was second, Ristaino of State third.

Vic Laughlin of South Carolina captured the diving competition with 283.3 points. Rob Carney, Bill Stevens and Jack Swartley of UNC finished two-three-four. Fox and Morton of Maryland were five-six.

Mike Slenker of North Carolina State won the 50 freestyle in 22 flat. Hardy of South Carolina was second, Dick Jacobs of UNC third, Golub of Maryland fourth, Spitzer of Maryland fifth and Greg Meehan of UNC sixth.

Hill of State won the 200 breaststroke in 2:20.7 with Gadd finishing second. White of South Carolina was third, John Sheppard of UNC fourth, Smolenski of Wake Forest fifth and Edger of Maryland sixth.

David Heim of Maryland set an NCAA freshman record with a 4:57.0 time in the 500 freestyle. Randy Wade of UNC was second, Manchester of East Carolina third, Schwartzel of Maryland fourth, Schwartz of Maryland fifth and Sikorski of Maryland sixth.

Heim also won the 1950 freestyle as Joe Sanders of UNC finished second. Ball and Behrman of UNC finished one-two in the 400 individual medley, with Randy Wade fourth.

TRANSACTION

by leading universities for teaching courses in finance.

The Authentic Stock Market Game!

only $6.95

BILLY ARTHUR

Eastgate

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

SEE US for MONEY! Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.

Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

The ASSOCIATES

Typing-Mimeographying

Over Sutton's Drugs
159 E. Franklin
942-3225

Xerox

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Wednesday Night Special

CHARCOAL BROILED HAMBURGER STEAK

8 oz. F. F. Potatoes

Tossed Green Salad, Rolls & Butter

$1.00

SERVING 5:00 - 7:15

—Waitresses—

(Continued from Page 1)

Nini Daniell, freshman, Chapel Hill — "I wouldn't be shocked if I knew about it before I went in the restaurant. My date better be shocked, though."

Leroy Merritt, manager of Pines Restaurant — "I don't think we're ready for that around here. We are in the food business."

Clair Brinkley, junior, Kernersville — "Having worked as a waitress last summer, I disagree with the topless style. Why build unnecessary illusions just to satisfy men?"

Phyliss Hobby, waitress, Balan Lounge — "I don't think it will reach Chapel Hill because of the generally high morals of the people. I object to it because it would be distracting and not very appetizing."

David Williams, junior, Rocky Mount — "Who am I to stand in the way of progress?"

Dottie Clarke, waitress, Eastgate Restaurant — "I support eight children by working in this restaurant and I think anyone who would consider even suggesting anything as revolting as bear - breasted waitresses really needs his head examined.

My children surely wouldn't be taken into such a place."

Pamela Davis, freshman, Chapel Hill — "I don't hink the topless trend will shock the public any more than any other fashion.

Connie Williams, junior, San Diego — "I don't feel it is a ladylike fad."

Becky Hunter, senior, Winston - Salem — "Do I approve of it? That depends entirely upon how it is handled."

Bill Wilson, assistant manager of Holiday Inn — "They've been doing it in Louisianna for years, but I don't think it will catch on in this part of the country."

Mary Jervey, junior, Greenville, S. C. — "I think it will continue because of the trend of modern culture. I don't approve of the lack of modesty — it's not a part of femininity, but I think it is unavoidable."

Bad Checks

(Continued from Page 1)

at the end of the month, thinking their parents have made a deposit. The check is returned to the merchant marked NSF — not sufficient funds.

Whatever the reason for a check's bouncing, too many North Carolina students are being faced with the embarrassment of facing a Justice of the Peace on this criminal charge.

The merchants' opinion of the problem and how they meet it is the subject of tomorrow's article.

WRAL PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

BATMAN — 7:30 p.m. — When the Dynamic Duo meets Mad Hatter David Wayne, Batman gets stoned and Robin is (ugh!) mesmerized.

PATTY DUKE — 8:00 p.m. —A letter from Russia decides Patty on a diplomatic career.

THE BIG VALLEY — 9:00 p.m. — Handy Random, a supposed friend of the Barkleys, involves them in a range war for his own profit.

THE LONG HOT SUMMER — 10:00 p.m. — One of the Varner's dearest friends wants to marry an Italian gigolo.

Jubilee Preview

THE BITTER END SINGERS was waiting for their appearance here during Jubilee. They appear April 29 at 7 p.m. Their performance will be followed by a combo arty formance will be followed by a combo party in the Carr Dorm parking lot beside Bynum Hall featuring the Tassels Combo.

Students will be admitted by I.D. cards—one card per couple. A student may secure tickets for another couple by signing a statement of responsibility for the actions of the other couple.

Others appearing at this year's Jubilee are Al Hirt; David, della Rosa and Brooks; Jay and the Americans; and Charlie Byrd.

Television Today

WUNC Channel 4

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 French-Student
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Lip Reading
1:00 French Chef
1:30 Music in Air
2:00 Science-Nature
2:30 Decisions 1966
3:00 Big Picture
3:30 Methods
4:00 Sign Off
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Western Civ
7:00 Mental Health
7:30 What's New
8:00 Decisions 1966
8:30 The Universe
9:00 Red China
10:30 Jazz Casual
11:00 Sign Off

WUNC PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

9:00 p.m. PUBLIC AFFAIRS II: CHINA — THE AWAKENED GIANT — Moderator for the panel discussion is Melvin Brorby, former president and member of the Advisory Council of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. Following the discussion, panelists answer questions from an audience of businessmen, scientists, writers, scholars, engineers and clergymen. This is the first of two special 90-minute reports from inside Red China today.

10:30 p.m. JAZZ CASUAL—NET "The Dave Brubeck Quartet" Dave Brubeck, one of the most widely appreciated jazzmen, discusses his role and that of other musicians in the development of jazz. The Brubeck Quartet has appeared with Leonard Berstein at Carnegie Hall, with other symphony groups, and on State Department tours in Poland and India as a U. S. representative. The members — Brubeck, piano; Joe Morello, drums; Eugene Wright, bass; and Paul Desmond, alto saxophone — perform this evening some of their best known selections. Among them: "Take Five," "Raggy Waltz," "Costillion Blues," "Waltz Limp," and "Blue Rondo a la Turk."

WRAL, Channel 5

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Unce Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: GIANT GILA MONSTER: Don Sullivan
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Death Valley Days
7:30 Batman (c)
8:00 Patty Duke
8:30 Blue Light (c)
9:00 Big Valley (c)
10:00 Long Hot Summer (c)
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: GARMENT JUNGLE: Lee J. Cobb

WTVD, Channel 11

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Capt. Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storn
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 TBA
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News (c)
7:00 Hazel (c)
7:30 Cinderella (c)
8:30 Bev. Hillbillies (c)

Spring At UNC Means Elections

(Continued from Page 1)

low who has shown himself capable of organizing political support.

At the present time, however, the situation in the UP appears to be deadlocked. Both Pepper and O'Toole have delegations promised to them.

There are rumors that a compromise candidate may be introduced. A good bet is Senior Class President John Harmon, if he will run.

It seems very likely that Bill Purdy will be the UP nominee for vice president.

Who the SP will endorse for Vice President is another matter.

The names of Bill Long and Don Wilson keep popping up, but there are problems with both candidates.

Don Wilson, the SP legislative floor leader, has lost the vice presidency before, and popular legislator Long is not very willing to risk losing to Purdy this year.

Both parties are expected to nominate Judy Fletcher for student body secretary. Neither party has considered candidates for treasurer.

An office of key importance is the DTH editorship, and this is wrapped in uncertainty.

It is an easy assumption that the only announced candidate, Alan Banov, will not get the endorsement of any party and isn't likely to inspire the confidence of the Publications Board.

The only other candidate on the political horizon is Fred Thomas, who has ample qualifications but has the disadvantage of being a sophomore.

Thomas could get the endorsement of the Student Party and is a good bet for Pub Board endorsement.

Today's Calendar

The Order of the Old Well Officers and Executive Committee will have an important meeting in the Grail Room at 3 p.m.

The State Affairs Committee will meet in Woodhouse at 5 p.m. Honor Systems Commission will meet in Roland Parker I from 7-8:30 p.m.

The Physics Department will sponsor a lecture on "The Prediction of Symmetries in Single Models" by Professor Max Dresden of the State University of New York at Stony Brook. The lecture will be at 2 p.m. in Room 265, Phillips Hall.

The joint Duke-UNC physics colloquium will also have Professor Dresden as speaker. His talk, "New Problems and Old Solutions in Statistical Mechanics" will be at 4 p.m. in 215 Phillips Hall. Tea and coffee will be served one-half hour before the talk in the Lounge, Room 277, Phillips.

The Student Party Convention for spring elections will be held Wednesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. in 08 Peabody.

Stray Greeks supper meeting at Brady's at 6:30 p.m.

The Murdoch Committee will meet at 2 p.m. in front of the "Y". All students interested in working with the Committee and with retarded children at the Murdoch Center, are invited to meet also.

The Student Committee on Honors will meet at 4 p.m. in GM.

The Finance Committee of Legislature will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

The Ways and Means Committee will meet 4-6 p.m. in the TV Room of Graham Memorial. Bills include Y Pledge Card Removal and Orientation Reform.

Beginner's folk dance class meets at the Presbyterian Student Center from 7-8 p.m. Free admission. Folk dancing from 8-11 p.m. at the Center.

University Party membership chairmen are asked to turn in their extra cards, list of new members, and MONEY to Chase Saunders in 28 Craige by 5 p.m. Friday.

Students who desire experience in working with the patients at Umstead Mental Hospital please leave name, address, and phone number in room 102 Y-Court, or contact Robert Boone of Patty DeLaney sometime this week. Psychology courses are not required for this project.

THURSDAY

The Amphoterothen Society will meet in the Woodhouse Room at 4:44 p.m. New members will be discussed. Important that all members be present.

The Freshman Class Co-ordinating Council will be held in Roland Parker III in GM at 7:30 p.m. All members please attend this short organizational meeting

The Budget Committee will meet 3:30-5:30 Friday in Roland Parker III.

COMING SOON

The "Seductives" will appear in the New Ehringhaus Party Room Saturday night, Feb. 26 from 8-12 p.m. Sponsored by Essex House of Ehringhaus. Couples only one dollar and all tickets will be sold at the door.

Morrison Residence College will feature the "Shadows" Sat. Feb. 26 from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. The public is invited. $1.25 per couple.

Imported shearling shortcoat with notched collar, yoke and bucket pockets.

Teak, Taupe, Truffle.

Julian's

Don't Miss . . .

* THURSDAY NIGHT
The Shadows

* FRIDAY NIGHT
One-Eyed Jacks

Come early – limited capacity

★ ★ ★

CAROLINA GRILL
312 W. Franklin

GOT WEAK BRAKES? ...FRONT END SHAKES?

GOODYEAR

Thursday
Friday
Saturday
ALL FOR ONLY
$6.50 ANY U.S. CAR

1. Complete brake check.
2. Brake Fluid checked, entire brake system road checked.
3. Front End Alignment, with camber, caster, and toe-in corrected and bearings repacked.

Chapel Hill Tire Co.
THE GOODYEAR PLACE
502 W. Franklin 967-7092

This is WCHL's CARL SWANN
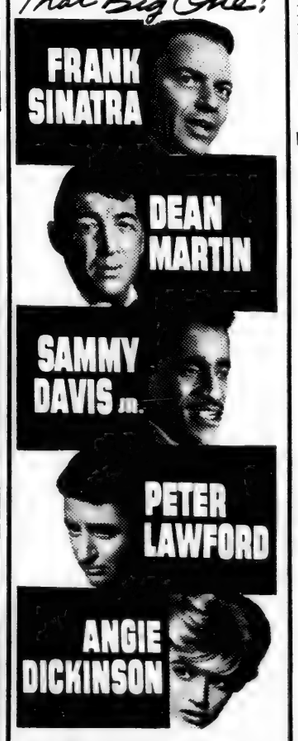
UNTIL '66
He swings—every weekday fr... to 4
And plays music in the easy ...
... Sunday Parkway ...
... music for ... mood with
... And who can ... that?
Hear him on
WCHL – 1360 kc.

CAROLINA
TODAY ONLY



OCEANS 11
Shows at 2:00 — 4:20
6:40—9:00

FINAL WINTER Clearance SALE
Savings Up To 50%
THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

Have you visited our Bargain Section?

We do our best to keep it interesting all year 'round, of course. But we just found a batch of extraordinary bargains, many with color plates, most reduced to half-price and even less! All are in short supply, and there won't be more when these are gone, so shop early

Our buyers have just returned from a successful trip, and tell us that in about two weeks we'll have a new and different supply of bargains. Watch the Feature Table for these new titles!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill

Milton's February Frogstrangler will Be History Saturday

This wild "Mt. Airy Monsoon" blows buys that beckon all ye sartorial cognoscenti. You'll never have a better chance to join this select "in Group".

Last call to suit buys, group to $95.00 at Frogstrangler of $45.00.

Shoes as you like them, regularly to $35.00, 38 pairs left at a monsoon of $16.99.

Shirt, shirt, my kingdom for a Milton M-2. Group regularly to $8.95, at a mere bagatelle of $2.99.

McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland, the top dog in fine Scottish sweaters — all completely mothproofed. Take a gander at V-necks cut from $16.95 to $12.99 and cardigans from $21.95 to only $14.99.

Sport coats regularly to $50.00, last chance at $29.99.

Lazy man's pants — ready cuffed, regularly to $8.95, last call at $4.99.

Many other great deals to round out the year and add to your sartorial splendor.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Downtown Chapel Hill

1. What's the picture?
I see before you a career in Operations Research.

2. What do you see as far as girls are concerned?
I see you using the techniques of simulation and systems analysis to solve on-going problems.

3. See anything about securities analysis? That's the field I planned on going into.
I see you pioneering in real time management information configuration.

4. Nothing about stocks and bonds or high finance?
I see a great future for you in Operations Research at Equitable.

5. How about that! At Equitable they said they saw a great future for me with them in investment management.
The crystal ball reveals a great future either way.

6. What does it reveal about money?
You crossing my palm with silver.

Make an appointment through your Placement Office to see Equitable's employment representative on March 2, 3 or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division, for further information.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 ©Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

U.N.C. Library
Circulation Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Johnny Mathis

"Thousands" of tickets remain on sale for Tuesday's 8 p.m. performance by Johnny Mathis in Carmichael Auditorium. Tickets may be purchased at the GM information desk.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 102 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Track Meet

The ACC Championship Track meet will be held Saturday in Woollen Gym.

Pepper Announces Presidential Race

By STEVE LACKEY
DTH Staff Writer

Sonny Pepper yesterday announced his candidacy for student body president.

Pepper said, "I am . . . actively seeking the University Party nomination." He is the first person to announce for the office.

He said, "I am vitally concerned with the present status and reputation of our student government, the disunity and lack of contact with the student public. Bureaucratic hodgepodge has developed because of the overextension of student government into areas beyond its concern.

"I intend to continue my work with resident colleges and see them all established and working.

"I hope to see the University present a united front against any adversity. I feel our major concern should be preserving the correct image of the University and our students here."

Speaking of past administrations, Pepper commencted, "I feel we have quite often dealt with matters in a completely unorganized and unorthodox manner to the extent that many of the vital programs such as judicial reform and residence hall improvements have suffered and been cast aside."

Concerning the programs he intends to offer, Pepper said, "I think that we are offering an exceptional program in a platform that can be accomplished. I do not intend to have a 'pipe-dream' administration. It will be a platform students can accept — one years of experience and countless hours of work on the part of many people makes me most confident that students will not only appreciate. They can feel it is their's, and this student government is working for them.

"We plan to bring a different philosophy and a concrete program to the student body."

Recently, Pepper has been instrumental in the development of the Residence College Program. He also organized the Carolina Blood Drive.

Pepper is a member of the following honorary societies: Order of the Grail, Amphoter en Society, Society of Janus, Janus Scholarship, and the Order of the Old Well.

He has been active in student government activities and committees since he came to UNC. Some of the offices he has held are president of Aycock Residence Hall, Outstanding Residence Hall President, Treasurer and President of the Men's Residence Council, President of the Junior Class, member of the student legislature and Chairman of the Residence Hall Improvement Committee.

Also, Residence College Commission, Coed Visiting Committee, Judicial Reform Commission, member of the Chancellor's Cabinet, Orientation Counselor and Sophomore Hankbook Committee.

Pepper has also been on the dean's list.

MORRISON AND NURSES DORM residents survey the situation at the home they plan to paint and decorate. They are (l. to r.) Anne Smith, Ray Snipes, Ward Maillard, Gary Boggs, Pat St. John, Sonny Pepper, and Barbara Whyte.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Morrison, Nurses Begin Joint Project

By STEVE LACKEY
DTH Staff Writer

A group of 45 students from Morrison Residence College and Nurses Dorm are preparing this week to paint and decorate a Carrboro home.

The students, led by Pat St. John, president of Nurses Dorm, and Gary Boggs, executive secretary of Morrison, plan to finish the clean and paint job in about two weeks.

Meanwhile, they will divide into groups of eight to 10, to solicit materials and supplies from Chapel Hill merchants.

The house they will work on was built by the Interchurch Council for a Negro woman and her nine children. The family will live in its old one-room house until the painting is finished.

The Interchurch Council has been building homes for about a year, but since its funds are provided by the Community Chest it does not have enough money to decorate or paint.

Morrison's Interdormiotry Council began looking for a service project about two months ago and was referred to Mrs. Arthur Ringwalt on the Interchurch Council.

Mrs. Ringwalt located the house and the students began planning.

They intend to finish solicitations by Monday and work on the house for eight days.

Meeting Of CFI Tonight At 7:30

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

More than 1,800 people are expected to attend tonight's 7:30 meeting of the Committee For Free Inquiry in Memorial Hall according to Student Body President Paul Dickson.

The purpose of the meeting is to gain support for a protest letter concerning the present UNC speaker policy and ask students to join in a "walk" to present the letter to Consolidated University President William C. Friday at his home on East Franklin St.

Speakers at the rally will be UNC alumnus Jefferson B. Fordham, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School; Dr. David Lapkin, economics Professor; Richard French, political science graduate student; and Dickson who is also chairman of the CFI.

The letter of protest was adopted in principle by the CFI last Friday. The main points of the resolution are:

1. In the pursuit of knowledge, the written word is not enough. Prior restraint in the area of free speech can never serve the purpose of education.

2. A policy of prior restraint can only call into question the intelligence and the ability of the students of the University to act with good judgment.

3. Prior restraint of free speech is a denial of the very tools necessary to the academic profession, regardless of the field of speciality.

4. The faculty and graduate student will have no reason to remain at the University if they are subjected to intolerable fetters on their freedom of inquiry.

5. Since the worth of degrees is only as good as the reputation of the institution granting them, the loss of eminent scholars can only result in the diminuation of the degrees granted.

6. The present generation of students and those of the future will in consequence be denied the full worth of their student years, and will be the victims.

French who presented the letter at the last CFI meeting will read it again tonight. He said that he has talked with Friday and that the University spokesman said he would except the letter.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

Cheerleaders Challenged

If you left Carmichael Tuesday night immediately after the game you might like to know that about five minutes later Bob Lewis came back out on the court to shoot a foul shot. He was fouled as he made his game winning basket.

Lewis signed a couple of programs for kids and then stepped to the line, took careful aim and missed. As he turned to go to the dressing room he smiled and said, "I choked."

It is too bad that there will be no more basketball in Carmichael until December. It sure is a nice place to play a game.

But perchance there is one more opportunity. The DTH staff challenges the female cheerleaders to a basketball game. Of course we will shoot left-handed and spot them two or three points.

We suggest the girls pick the referees. Now we're serious. Who knows what might happen — Dean Carmichael?

As an extra added attraction the DTH will even show up with that renowned figure and fortune teller FANTLEROY.

The Iron Princess

Yesterday we ran an article in Carolina Style about what a girl dreams her one and only will be — romantic, brave, loyal, ambitious, sexy and all that jazz.

Today we retaliate with what a guy wants his girl to have and what she actually has under all that mascara, hair spray and foam rubber.

I guess most guys want a girl to be beautiful, devoted, clever, beautiful, be able to say "Hey, how you" and sound sincere, be interesting, beautiful, think he is the most wonderful guy in all the world, beautiful, and of course a little sex smattered here, there and everywhere helps a great deal.

After you have been trapped, skinned and hung out to dry you realize that this wonderful girl is a little different.

— When you touch her bleached hair you receive an electrical shock from all that hair spray that goos her hair together.

— She smiles at you after one of your best jokes and you know she is thinking "That stupid ———."

— She is very good about money, but she is a better milker and squeezes you, or rather your wallet for all it's worth.

— She really looks good in a tight skirt and sweater but then you go to the beach and see here in a swimming suit and wonder when she last had a meal.

— You go to a sentimental movie and she cries like a baby, but when you say something soft and nice she laughs like a horse.

— She kisses you deeply, rubs the back of your neck and turns you on. You respond by kissing her deeply, rubbing the back of her neck and she asks, "What the hell do you think your doing, Buddy?"

— All your friends think she is just the greatest thing in the world and that you are mighty lucky. You wish you could tell them the real story about "The Iron Princess." Better yet you wish they had told you about "The Iron Princess."

— After all this you realize that way back when she said she wasn't good enough for you she was right.

WRC Head Interviews

Interviews will be held for the position of Chairman of the Women's Residence Council on the following dates:

March 1 from 3:30 to 5:30
March 2 from 6 to 7
March 3 from 2 to 6

All women interested should sign up and get an application at the GM Information Desk.

Pianist Tonight

David Bar-Illan, gifted young Israeli pianist, will appear with the new Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra tonight in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m.

The appearance of the New Orleans Symphony and Bar-Illan is being sponsored by the Chapel Hill Concert Series. Non-subscribers may purchase tickets for the performance for $2 and $3 at Danziger's or at the door.

Morrison Dance

Morrison Residence College will sponsor a dance Saturday night featuring The Shadows. The dance will be held from 8 to 12 in the Morrison social room. Cost per couple will be $1.50.

Morehead Interviews

A record number of 110 boys from North Carolina high schools and 26 private prepatory schools will be interviewed at Carolina this weekend for 1966 Morehead Awards to study at UNC.

The Central election Committee will interview the boys Friday, Saturday and Monday. Trustees of the Morehead Foundation will interview the boys Monday and Tuesday.

Winners will be announced Thursday, March 3.

African Speaker

W. H. Hutt, professor emeritus and dean of the faculty of Commerce of the University of Cape Town, Republic of South Africa, will speak to the Carolina Conservative Club tomorrow.

Professor Hutt will speak on "Freedom of Speech in South Africa" in Gerrard Hall at 8 p.m.

Professor Hutt is expected to address himself to the question of free speech as affecting the American University, also, the Aptheker controversy.

S L Will Vote On Resolution

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

A resolution supporting the invitation of the Carolina Forum to Dr. Herbert Aptheker and supporting the freedom of speech and academic freedom will be presented to the Student Legislature tonight.

The resoltuion was passed out of the Ways and Means Committee favorably yesterday afternoon.

Student body president Paul Dickson proposed the resolution and asked that it be given approval.

The resolution states that it approves Aptheker's appearance at UNC in the panel discussion to be sponsored by the Carolina Forum on March 9.

Dickson said, "The resolution supports freedom of speech and academic freedom so that UNC will continue to be rated as a great University. All universities are rated on their academic atmosphere."

The resolution also states that UNC students are opposed to Communism and other forms of government or philosophy that are opposed to Democacy.

One of the most important sections of the resolution supports regulations for a speaker policy identical to those adopted by the Committee for Free Inquiry.

The final section of the resolution states that a speaker be subject to questions when he comes to UNC to speak.

The Ways and Means Committee also favorably passed out of committee a resolution to delete the Y-pledge card from the forms filled out during registration.

This resolution will also be presented to the Student Legislature tonight for passage.

If the resolution passes, the YM-YWCA will no longer be able to solicit funds on the cards that are filled out during registration. The Y will have to solicit funds by letter or by going from door to door.

Representative Bill Webb reminded the committee that many students, especially entering freshmen, felt obligated to sign the Y-pledge card because it was included on the official forms that required completition during registration.

Webb said, "The words 'fill out completely' were at the bottom of the cards including the Y-pledge card. This often confuses students. It makes some students feel that they are required to pledge something to the Y."

The Y is the largest service organization on campus. Its three-member staff is selected and financially supported by the University.

Webb said, "When the Y was connected with the religious movement on campus it was thought to be beneficial to the University, but now I feel that the Y has an unnecessary advantage for soliciting funds."

Campus Chest Deadline Soon

Wednesday is the deadline for submitting booth applications for entrants in the Campus Chest King and Queen contest.

Contact Bill Whitaker or Penny Cromartie, carnival chairmen, for more information on the March 18 event. It will be held on the intramural field again this year.

Referendum Official, No Protests Lodged

By GLENN MAYS

Tuesday's referendum is valid and official, according to John Winborne, temporary elections board chairman.

"This referendum, or any other balloting, is valid unless it is protested and proven otherwise," Winborne said.

"I don't anticipate any protest of the results of Tuesday's election," he said.

"In general, it ran smoothly except for a couple of places where there were allegd violations. Some polling places did not have stamps for ID cards and the poll tenders initialed the ID cards."

There were reports that some polls were not tended properly and some that were not even opened. Winborne said ballot boxes were delivered to Alexander Residence Hall but there were no volunteers to tend the polls. He said he told the president of the residence hall not to open the polls if there was nobody to tend them.

Another report was that there were no poll tenders at Y-Court until the middle of the afternoon.

Winborne said the situation was caused due to a misunderstanding by the poll tenders.

"I didn't know about the situation at Y-Court until I saw it," he said. "There was no way of knowing about any of the alleged violations unless they were reported."

Winborne, who was appointed to replace Alvin Tyndall, said the small amount of interest shown in the referendum on the constitutional amendment was the main reason he feels there won't be any protests of the results.

main reason he feels there won't be any protests of the results.

The amendment passed by a margin of 1,283 to 657.

If the results are protested, the Constitutional Council will have to rule on the validity of the protest.

The election laws stipulate that "protests or appeals must be made in writing by the protesting candidate to the Constitutional Council within 96 hours of the final tabulation of election returns by the Elections Board . . . "

If no protests are submitted by 9 p.m. Saturday the there will be no change in the election outcome and the amendment will be in affect. The amendment provides for the election of the student body president and vice president from the same political party rather than on individual ballots as in the past.

Married Housing Won't Be Moved

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

Although space is available, no Victory Village units will be moved to other locations on the University's property, North Carolina Business Manager J. A. Branch said Tuesday.

"They will be demolished as space is needed," Branch said. "We can't move anymore. We've moved several in recent years and we will never recover the cost of moving them.

"It costs $2,000 to move a single unit. This includes foundations and facility connections."

No records are available on this because his office "doesn't do any detailed accounting."

"Separate accounts on moving and repairs are not kept," Branch added, "because it would hamper the business office's flexibility to deal with problems as they arise."

He expects at least 50 units to be torn down within the next three years, depending on how quick the funding details are worked out on the buildings under consideration.

Architectural plans are completed on a 41,000 square feet research building.

The board of trustees, governor and council of state have already deeded six acres of Victory Village property to Medical Research Properties Inc.

Medical Research Properties Inc., composed of friends of the University, will give the building and the land to the University after it is paid for.

If all details are worked out, construction of the research building will begin this summer.

Architects are also working on plans for a pharmacological and toxicological building.

For this building, the University has received 17 million dollars over a seven year period. By the third or fourth year of construction this building will need 100,000 square feet of space.

This, according to Branch, could lead to tearing out additional units.

The research building will be rented to faculty members with government research contracts.

Medical Research Properties Inc. plans to have the structure paid for in 10-15 years using funds collected from the rents to redeem the bonds.

Bonds will be issued for the initial construction.

Bounced Checks: Second In A Series

Some Merchants Lenient

By STEVE LACKEY
DTH Staff Writer

Some Chapel Hill merchants are lenient toward check bouncers. Others take a hard line.

Kemp's record shop, for instance, hos received "a number" of worthless checks this year but has turned only two of these over to the Justice of the Peace for collection.

Kemp Nye, owner, says that he always sends the student a postcard notifying him of his bad check. Most students come to the store or call within three days to straighten their record.

On the other hand, the Zoom-Zoom and the Rathskeller turn bad checks over to J.P.'s for collection immediately. No attempt is made to notify the writer. There is a sign on the cash registers in these restaurants stating their policy.

J. P.'s Charge $9-$10

The Dairy Bar charges $1 for each check that bounces. If the student balks at this extra levy, the check is given to the Justice of the Peace. Fees charged by the justices are $9 or $10, depending on which one the student is called before.

The manager of the Dairy Bar says that he receives at least four worthless checks each day. Three of these come in to pay his dollar fee: the other is usually given to the Justice of the Peace.

The Dairy Bar limits the amount of the check to $5 and requires a purchase of at least 50 cents.

A sign in Harry's Grill states that all bad checks will be turned over to the J.P. for collection immediately. But owner Harry Macklin says that he tries to conact the student first.

He said that the problem got so bad last year that he had to post the new sign to discourage the practice.

He charges $1.50 for each bad check. Macklin feels this is justified since students who write the checks are ruining their credit standing. The charge is simply a means of discouraging potential bad check writers.

No Criminal Record

Varsity Men's Wear follows a policy which will not give the student a criminal record, but will provide for collection of the debt. Whenever they receive a bad check, which is several times a week, they first call the student. Most respond by coming to the store and "buying" the check or asking that it be redeposited.

Any students who do not offer payment are turned into university officials. According to the Varsity manager, this final step usually works. At any rate, no checks have been given to the J. P. this year.

The Carolina Coffee Shop will mail students two notices. The Coffee Shop manager says that he cashes around ten checks each week day and 30 over the weekend. He said 7 or 8 of these turn out to be worthless. He has not turned any of these checks in to the J.P. recently.

At the end of the last school year the Coffee Shop had several bad checks on hand, so the manager sent them to the students' parents. He said that all but two of these were paid immediately.

Women's Stores

The stores in town which deal mainly with women's goods have little trouble with bad checks.

Sharyn Lynn Sportswear says that at the most it has only two bad checks each month. This store's policy is to call the students or wait several days and redeposit the check.

The Little Shop says it has had no trouble with worthless checks.

Robbins has very few bad checks. The credit manager

(Continued on Page 6)

NORTH CAROLINA NATIONAL BANK

CHECK RETURNED UNPAID TAB

RETURNED FOR REASON INDICATED

- Post dated
- Signature
- For endorsement as
- Payment stopped
- Not on this
- For gu
- Si

CHECK RETURNED UNPAID TAB
NORTH CAROLINA NATIONAL BANK
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
RETURNED FOR INSUFFICIENT FUNDS

- ed fund
- y filled out
- NCNB 3314 d
- closed
- cher missing
- Endorsement must be exactly as drawn
- Signature incomplete

Unable to locate account in the name of

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

SSL Gives Bathrooms

State Student Legislature is just what the name says. It is students from colleges across the state who meet once a year to legislate on first one thing and another. UNC always sends a large delegation.

The biggest problem the group had this year was finding a meeting place in Raleigh (the DTH gave SSL Odyssey of the Week Award Sunday).

The mock legislators finally settled in the board room of the Agriculture Department Frdiay, and began legislating. Later they met in the State Highway Building.

The Raleigh Times carried this account Friday afternoon:

"The first bill, concerning public rest rooms, was introduced by Elon College, and defeated by a vote of 43 to 40 with two abstentions. The main objections to the bill were the cost of proper supervision and the fact that service stations were a main problem and most stations were policed by the gasoline companies."

Monday's Raleigh Times carried this story:

"Employes in the State Highway Building were hopping mad this morning when they found the condition their building had been left by the State Student Legislature which met in the building's auditorium over the weekend.

" 'It looked like a fairground after all the people had left,' cried one upset secretary.

" 'I've never seen anything like it in the four years I've been here,' said one maintenance worker . . .

" 'The rest rooms were a wreck,' said one secretary. 'They were filled with empty drink bottles and paper towels were scattered all over the halls.' "

Contemplation of the coincidence of these events is left to the reader.

A Lack Of Communication

A note of clarification about Tuesday's botched-up election is in order.

Chi Psi fraternity was indeed responsible for manning the ballot boxes in Y-Court. The Elections Board knew it. Chi Psi did not.

A sign-up sheet for poll tenders was sent to the Chi Psi Lodge. Instructions on the sheet said tenders should man the poll in their district. Carolina Inn was not named, but it is the polling place in the Chi Psi district.

"Y-Court" was penned in at the top of the sheet, according to temporary Elections Board Chairman John Winborne, but Chi Psi officers say nobody told them they should send tenders to Y-Court—instead of Carolina Inn, which has been their responsibility in past elections.

The fraternity officers said students were sent to Carolina Inn but there were no ballot boxes there to tend. Winborne confirmed this.

So you tried, fellows.

The DTH's gripe about the execution of the election is not with any particular group, but with the attitude that an election can be run without organization.

Hopefully that organization can be achieved before the next vote, and such misunderstandings can be avoided.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Bill Fesperman, religious editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Glenn Mays, Steve Lackey, Steve Bennett, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Gene Whisnant, Bill Rollins, Bill Hass, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, sports writers.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"But I Thought They Said March 'Til Friday!"

The Student Speaks

Walk To Friday's House Does Serve A Purpose

By RICHARD FRENCH

My first acquainatance with political tyranny dates back to the day when I was expelled from school at the age of 15 for refusing to read as part of a literature course, the Political Manifesto of the Peron Regime in my native country of Argentina. After some trouble with the secret police, my father thought it prudent to ship me off to England.

I came to this country seven years ago, and was honoured with citizenship a little less than a year ago. Though the circumstances are quite different, what is happening to me today in North Carolina is not to different in principle from what happened to me 15 years ago.

Political authority has seen fit to interfere with my schooling, to dictate what ideas I shall or shall not examine. I cannot pretend to speak for C.F.I., but if the reception to my talk last Thursday by that body is any indication, I don't think I will be too far in the expression of my thoughts from theirs.

C.F.I is not trying to issue manifestos, or to impose its views (or anyone else's) on this campus. On the contrary, we have prepared a statement of principle and a policy for campus speakers which we believe can receive the assent of every student, faculty member and administrator on this campus who believes free speech to be indispensable to the future of the Universities of North Carolina and to the future of free men.

We are trying to see to it that everyone possible shall know of our policy, so that each may individually decide upon it. This policy will be presented at the Assembly in Memorial Hall tonight at 7:30. so that those who care enough to come may express their assent or dissent by voice vote.

If we were merely dealing with the question of whether Aptheker should speak or not speak at this time on this campus, we would perhaps be less concerned, though I do not think so. But this is not the case.

The speaker policy proposed by the executive committee of the board of trustees is a form of prior restraint which will remain with us long after Aptheker is forgotten. We will, to the shame of this state and University, be saddled with censorship of ideas, and it does not seem to us to matter much where the censorship originates, and whether the censors be 11 men, 100 men, one man, or any number of men.

If how we feel about Aptheker blinds us to principle, we will have failed as democrats and free men. As to the walk to President Friday's residence, let it be clear what is intended. We will invite those who want to do so, and only those who wish to do so, to join as after the rally in what is intended to be the participatory expression in a symbolic act of petition, a token of our shared values and principles.

At the same time we would wish to convey our views and to urge their consideration and adoption by each of our trustees. Obviously the effort involved and in the time remaining, 100 separate walks is out of the question, as is also a walk to Raleigh.

We have no wish to take large numbers of students away from their studies, to disrupt traffic, and to cause unnecessary inconvenience to the police and to the citizens of this State.

If I may return to the first person singular, the walk to President Friday's residence is justified precisely because we cannot reach directly the parties to which we can submit our grivenaces. It is justified precisely by the fact that the President has always represented as well in the past, and if he is willing to transmit our views once more, I see no rationale for Barry Jacobs' objections.

However, I agree that the Governor would be the ideal party to whom to present a petition. If the graduate students would be willing for me to represent them, and if a faculty and undergraduate representative could also be found, let Jacobs join us, so that the four of us could walk to Raleigh as representatives of this university to present our petition, and time our arrival to be some time shortly before the meeting of the trustees.

Let me conclude, that I am personally disappointed that in spite of the consensus that I believe exists on this question, The Daily Tar Heel has not perhaps lent its wholehearted a support to the efforts of C.F.I. I also regret that the faculty also has met, only to adjourn without a clear public statement of principle under which we could rally. I am also disappointed that more students have not come to the open meetings of C.F.I.

I hope I have not bored you, and I hope that I may have added some clarity to what C.F.I. represents and wishes to do. If I have failed in this, I have failed indeed, for I believe the efforts of C.F.I. deserve your consent and support. It is not to late for each to do his part. You should not, and I hope you will not, let the ball be carried for you in so vital a matter as this.

David Rothman

Calculate Your Alcohol

A traffic expert recently told New Jersey legislators that drivers can gulp down one martini an hour for ten straight hours and not violate the state's intoxication limit.

Robert Donigan, chief counsel of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute, also said you can drink forever without breaking the law.

It's all a matter of timing, Donigan sagaciously noted.

I recently visited a New Jersey cocktail party, and was amazed to learn that Donigan's findings are nothing new.

"Would you like another martini?" the hostess asked one of her guests.

"Just a minute," he said, pulling a pencil and pad out of his pocket. "According to the law, I can't drive home with more than .15 per cent alcohol in my blood."

"Go ahead," she said.

"A little longer, please. I hope my previous calculations weren't off by too much. My mind's a bit hazy, and I'd swear, if I didn't know any better, that I'm drunk. But I can't be: I'm sure I have everything figured out on that piece of paper."

"But," the hostess reminded him, "maybe you goofed the first time and managed to get yourself intoxicated."

"That's the trouble when you goof; you incorrectly think you're sober. You drink again, then make some more calculations. But you're so drunk by this time that the new calculations are also off.

"Then you feel you can safely drink once more. You have a few extra beers, figure out how much alcohol you have in your blood and decide you can continue drinking.

"You don't quit until you're too boozed up to move your pencil; at that point, you finally can't convince yourself you're sober."

"This is a common problem," the hostess declared. "Most of my friends solve it by never going to a party unless accompanied by somebody who does no drinking."

"And he drives everybody home?"

"Not exactly. He is the one who operates the adding machine."

"What if the machine gives him the wrong figures—making him think his companions can have extra martinis when actually they can't?"

"Faulty equipment is a major cause of accidents. This is why the state legislature will soon pass a law requiring that adding machines be inspected once a year."

The hostess is quite correct. In fact, after I left her party I was put in the cooler for operating an adding machine without a license.

Letters To The Editor

UP Protest

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I think that it is indeed unfortunate that some questionable campaign tactics have occurred before the time of conventions. In this matter I am referring to a circular distributed by the Student Party on Sunday which contained stereotyped comments which might have applied to the University Party five years ago. To refute the arguments would be both inane and hypocritical.

I speak for the University Party when I say that the campaign we conduct this year will be both fair and positive. With the situations of Student Government and the University as they now stand any other actions would be detrimental. Hence, in accordance with the tacit agreements reached in the Fair Campaign Practicies Commission we intend to pursue the offices in the spring with the good of Student Government in mind.

I am disturbed that Jim Little, of whom I have a great deal of respect, would affix his name to a sham circular, so I must conclude that he either did not know of it or was pressed by a majority of his Executive Committee into doing it.

I challenge the parties and the candidates this spring to campaign in a fair and positive manner for the good of Student Government and the University.

Neil Thomas
UP Chairman

The Collegiate World

Blood Drive Flops At Tulane

By CORKY ANVER
Tulane Hullabaloo

This week's drive to collect blood for Viet Nam has been cancelled because of a lack of responses by the student body. Out of 4000 applications sent out by the Pan-Hellenic Council, only 70 have been returned, and of those only 50 have been positive.

The Red Cross has announced that a minimum of 300 responses would have been necessary before the project would have been worth the expense and effort of setting up equipment on campus.

FACILITIES

The mobile Red Cross unit would have come from Mobile because the New Orleans chapter of Red Cross does not have adequate facilities to handle any large number of donations at one time.

APATHY INDICATED

Ken Sutherland, president of Pan-Hel, stated that the turnout was "indicative of Tulane's apathy," and that "countless other schools across the country have collected hundreds of pints of blood" on similar drives.

Sutherland explained that the project was sponsored jointly by Pan-Hel and the Red Cross, but that Pan-Hel's main job was to act as a liason between the Red Cross and the student body.

He suggested that the reason more fraternity members did not respond in the drive was that it was not an official Pan-Hel undertaking, and that thus fraternity members were not really urged to participate.

Sutherland stated, "If nobody else is going to do it, why should anyone do it?" in summarizing the fraternity attitude.

PERHAPS

He thought that many of the fraternity members would have joined in if the 300-response-minimum hurdle had been overcome, and that if equipment had been set up perhaps as many as 1000 donations would have been made.

Cary Tye, chairman of the project, announced on Tuesday that it would be abandoned. He thanked all those students who bothered to return the forms, and particularly those who had offered to donate blood

Brecht Play Didn't Quite Make It

By MYLES ERIC LUDWIG
DTH Staff Writer

On Sunday afternoon, the Wesley Foundation's Sunday Afternoon Symposium presented a group of scenes from "The Private Life of the Master Race" by Bertolt Brecht. Despite the obvious failings of the production — and there were many — the people involved are to be congratulated for attempting to move away from the horrible amateurism that has characterized most, if not all of the offerings of this university's drama department. Whether they succeeded or not is another story, but they did try.

The play is designed to give us the human side of the superhuman, i.e. what the Nazis were really like. Unfortunately, just as the task seems somehow banal and even superfluous, so does the play. The piece lacks the theatrical spirit which pervades Brecht's other works.

The last scene, entitled "The Jewish Wife," is exemplar. We are given a portrait of a woman . . . Jewish and married to a non-Jew. She is preparing to leave Germany perhaps to spare herself, perhaps to spare her husband from the associative persecution.

And yet, the scene is never really resolved; the portrait is only a note in a sketchbook. We are given no real clues to the woman's Jewishness, no real clues to the quality of her reaction to the extermination of her people.

In fact, had the scene not been prefaced by a title and were only two lines eliminated, the audience would have only the vaguest idea of the reason for this character's problem. Two lines and a titles are pretty shaky struction to build a scene on.

What is said for the play may also be said for the performance. It was generally unspirited and reminiscent of those "culture programs" on television that are best known for their hollowness. Unfortunately, the program printer did not see fit to provide the names of the characters opposite the names of the actors, so individual criticisms of this "low budget production" are very difficult.

The one girl in the cast, "Wendy Farer," played her roles with a great deal of hand-wringing and even a little good-ol-fashioned hair-pulling. But hands and hair do not a heart make; her performance had very little depth.

"Ben Jones" sounds very nice, but he sounds the same whether he's doing a self-doubting betrayor, a jackbooted SA man, or an "I don't know what's going on" husband whose wife is leaving him. In fact, it is indicative that the whole cast seemed to be more concerned with their diction than with their emotion.

The drama was directed by Terry Gregory with some imagination, but with not quite enough. Though the stage area was limited, better use could have been made of it. It is disconcerting to see the actors performing as stagehands, especially when the lights are on.

Anyway, one is thankful for small things. I saw "Thunderball" the same day and I thought that the play was better.

Television Today

WLNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys. Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 Arts—Music
11:30 The Universe
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Sign Off
4:00 Industrial Ed
5:00 What's New
5:30 Aspect
6:00 News
6:15 Discovery
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 To Be Announced
7:30 What's New
8:00 Arts: Music
8:30 Ericourt
9:15 Performance
9:45 U. S. History Since 1865
10:30 Sign Off

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

THE ARTS: USA — MUSIC — 8:00 p.m. —"Musical Theatre: 20 Years on Broadway." Betty Comden and Adolph Green, author - lyricists of many Broadway hits, whose careers in musical theater coincide with the period this program covers, reminisce informally about the development of musical theater in the United States during the last 20 years—and sing some of the famous musical numbers they have written such as "New York, New York" and "I Get Carried Away" from Leonard Bernstein's "On the Town" (1944).

ERICOURT FORUM OF MUSIC AND ARTS, SERIES II — 8:30 p.m. — "A Homage to Randell Jarrell." This special 45-minute program is in tribute to the late Randell Jarrell, former professor at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and among the outstanding contemporary American poets. Selections from his work are read by his widow Mary Jarrell against a musical background by pianist Daniel Ericourt, Artist-in-Residence at the University at Greensboro and moderator for this series.

WTVD (Ch. 11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Capt. Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 Yogi Bear
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS News (c)
7:00 Daniel Boone (c)
8:00 Perry Mason
9:00 Thursday Movie
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

WRAL (Ch. 5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike High Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Unce Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: INVISIBLE MAN'S REVENGE: John Carradine
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Thurs. Night Movie: FROM HERE TO ETERNITY: Frank Sinatra
9:00 Bewitched
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 The Baron (c)
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: STEEL BAYONET

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

BEWITCHED — 9:00 p.m.— Samantha gets praises on her sewing when she wears a twitchcraft copy of a Paris original.

Film Making Story Told

The story of a unique film making program in North Carolina is told in the latest issue of "The Journal of the Society of Cinematologists."

Author of the article is Elmer Oettinger, assistant director of the Institute of Government here and formerly on the faculty of the UNC Department of Radio, TV and Motion Pictures.

During the three - year life of the N. C. Film Board, 20 documentary and educational films designed to portray the people, problems, themes and life of North Carolina were produced, according to Oettinger's article.

Around The Old Well

Research Aids Knowledge

By JOAN PAGE
UNC News Bureau

Is undergraduate education really suffering from over - emphasis on research? Are classroom instruction, faculty loyalties and academic fields with traditions of excellence being threatened by federal funds?

A UNC economist and president of the Southern Economic Association has an answer to each of these charges. Prof. Ralph W. Pfouts believes many charges hurled at federal research programs arise from a misunderstanding of the nature of higher education and the educational process.

"It is a mistake to think about universities in the same way one thinks about primary and secondary educational institutions," explains the chairman of the Department of Economics. "The function of universities is different and broader. Their responsibility is correspondingly greater."

Universities must not merely transmit the existing body of knowledge, they must strive to enlarge it, Pfouts contends. Advancement of knowledge through research is as important as its being passed on to the young. "A university worthy of the name should pursue both activities."

Pfouts thinks the surest way to obtain an alert and enlightened faculty is to have one that engages in research. "The professor who both teaches and researches finds himself in the midst of the struggle to advance knowledge, and he becomes aware of the changing content of knowledge in a way not otherwise possible."

BALANCED FACULTY

Recently, he continues, American universities have made a conscious attempt to create a balanced faculty which engages effectively in both research and classroom laboratory instruction. In many cases, universities that have been charged with becoming "research factories" because of Federal encouragement have only developed a more balanced approach.

"If institutions with a tradition of excellence in certain academic fields abandon these or lose their excellence to obtain a bigger share of funds in other fields, this is clearly the responsibility of local university administrators," Pfouts believes.

Advancement in one area may serve to stimulate research in another area. In any case, he feels it is certainly possible to enhance fields eligible for research funds without damaging fields in which there are traditions of excellence.

The UNC economist warns that money for research and fellowships is not sufficient to promote a center of excellence. Acquisition of outstanding faculty members is a slow and difficult process, and a center of excellence cannot be founded without a good faculty.

Pfouts has an answer for those who suspect a shift of loyalty among faculty members away from their universities to federal agencies supplying research funds.

LOYAL FACULTY

"If a university experiences a decline in loyalty among its faculty, I think it can usually find the cause internally rather than externally," he says. "If a university administration is able to pay its faculty well, provide good conditions for research and teaching and reasonable fringe benefits, and if it assures its faculty it has proper regard for academic freedom, it is likely to have a very loyal faculty."

Since the motive behind government grants is to promote research and add to the store of knowledge, Pfouts thinks the "ideal program" is one which provides completely for research projects, including small projects in various institutions and in different fields. He sees this as the sort of program private foundations or individuals can help maintan.

"When the educational institution is relieved of the burden of providing matching funds, it may be enabled to undertake more research, or to use its money in other ways to achieve the point of balance it desires," says Pfouts. "I am strongly in favor of providing grants to institutions that may be used at their own discretion."

While money alone cannot make an institution great nor expand the store of knowledge, he continues, it can be generously and sensibly utilized to free human resources and thereby have an important share in both of these endeavors.

Pfouts' views were recently entered as official Congressional testimony on university research support. He was asked to present his views in letter form by the Research and Technical Programs Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations.

Thayer To Represent UNC At Convocation

Dr. Phillip Thayer, who received his master's and doctoral degrees at the University here will be UNC's official representative at the academic convocation on March 12 when Randolph-Macon Woman's College commemorates its 75th anniversary.

Dr. Thayer is a member of the faculty at the Lynchburg College.

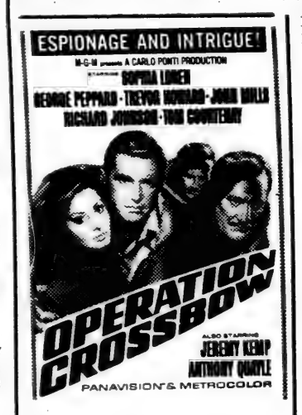
Too busy with the studies to read?

You have to unwind, sometime, chum. Do it with a great murder mystery from the Mystery Corner at the Intimate.

Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, John Dickson Carr, Josephine Tey, Margery Allingham, Ngaio Marsh, Phoebe Atwood Taylor, Ian Fleming — you'll find all of their sleuths and heroes at the Intimate.

And there's a new one — Inspector Gently, created by Alan Hunter. Track him down soon, and forget your worries for a bit.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Evenings until 10



Shows at 1:00, 2:54, 5:00, 7:06, 9:12

TODAY ONLY

CAROLINA

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 W ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY 12-TO-16 LB. SMOKED HAMS WHOLE ★ LB. 69

6 to 8 lb. Avg. Ham SHANK HALF, lb. 69c
6 to 8 lb. Avg. Ham BUTT HALF, lb. 75c
SHANK PORTION, lb. 59c
BUTT PORTION 69c
HAM CENTER SLICES, lb. $1.39

A&P

PRICES EFF. THRU SAT., FEB. 26th

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY HEAVY CORN FED BEEF STEAKS

BONELESS TOP ROUND ● LB. 89c
CUBED ROUND ● LB. 95c

"SUPER-RIGHT" LEAN, FRESHLY Ground Beef lb. 45c

POTATOES 10-LB. BAG 55¢

Sweet & Juicy — Florida ORANGES, 8-lb. Bag 59c
Value Priced! Vine Ripe TOMATOES, 2 lbs. 29c

JANE PARKER—READY-TO-SERVE Cherry Pies 1-Lb. 8-oz. Pkg. 45c

MARVEL BRAND — SPECIALLY PRICED Ice Milk 2 Half Gallon Cartons 75c

EXPLORE THE STORE VALUE! ANN PAGE CONDENSED TOMATO RICE SOUP 3 35 10½-OZ. CANS

Viet Nam Policies Defended

Johnson Answers Burning Questions

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson said last night in a new reply to critics of his Viet Nam policy, that the United States is not caught up in a blind escalation of force leading toward a wider war.

Johnson, in an address prepared for a freedom house dinner, said a number of questions — he listed ten — still are being asked in the wake of public hearings on Viet Nam by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He did not mention the Committee but his reference to it — and "our commitment to free discussion" — was obvious.

First, Johnson said, some ask if this is a war for unlimited objectives.

Declaring that the answer is "no," he said:

"Our purpose in Viet Nam is to prevent the success of aggression. It is not conquest; it is not empire; it is not foreign bases; it is not domination."

Preventive War

In short, he went on, it is "to prevent the forceful conquest of South Viet Nam by North Viet Nam."

Then, with these words, he dealt with the question of escalation:

"Second, some ask if we are caught in a blind escalation of force that is pulling us headlong into a wider war that no one wants. The answer — again — is no. We are using that force — and only that force — necessary to stop the aggression."

Johnson asserted that, with increased numbers of American troops in Viet Nam, "the high hopes of the aggressor have been dimmed, and the tide of battle has turned."

The President gave this pledge:

"Our measured use of force must be continued. But this is prudent firmness under careful control. There is not, and ther will not be, a mindless escalation."

Another question which some ask, he said, is whether the United States is risking a wider war — perhaps with Communist China.

Peiping Directed

"And again the answer is "No,'" he said, "never by any act of ours — and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words from Peiping."

Apparently directing his words to Peiping, Johnson said the United States has threatened no one, has sought the end of no regime — and will not in the future.

Johnson discussed, too, the much - debated question of the kind of government South Viet Nam will have in the future. He said:

"Washington will not impose upon the people of South Viet Nam a government not of their choice. Hanoi shall not impose upon the people of South Viet Nam a government not of their choice.

"We will insist for ourselves on what we required from Hanoi: "Respect for the principle of government by consent of the governed. We stand for self - determination — for free elections — and we will honor their result."

Seeking Peace

Johnson said also the United States is not neglecting "any hopeful chance of peace." He said American peace-seekers will continue their efforts undiscouraged.

The Chief Executive said he could not answer another question — "How long we must bear this burden." He said:

"If the aggressor persists in Viet Nam, the struggle may be long. Our men in battle know and accept this hard fact. We who are at home can do as much." He said peace will "come only to the steadfast— never to the weak in heart."

LBJ Makes Speech

McNamara Before Senate

McNamara Paints Dreary Picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told Congress yesterday the United States stands ready to cope with any Communist escalation of the war in Viet Nam.

He said a wider war in Southeast Asia would force a callup of U. S. reserve forces.

And he reported a continuing buildup of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces in the embattled South.

In the Senate, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois told critics of President Johnson's Vietnamese policy that the war could be lost by delay and dissension in Washington.

Democratic Congressional leaders conferred with Johnson, then said the nation should close ranks behind the administration and American fighting men in Viet Nam.

McNamara, in a book-length report on U. S. military posture around the world, added these words to the war-and-peace debate:

"The issue has been joined and our course has been set. It is my hope that all Americans will throw their full support behind our military forces defending the frontier of freedom in Viet Nam."

McNamara handed his 220-page public report to the Senate Armed Services and Appropriations Committee, then spent two hours discussing the defense picture behind closed doors.

"In view of the continued buildup of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces in South Viet Nam, we now believe we should be prepared to deploy promptly additional forces to that area if required," McNamara reported. President Johnson has stated categorically that we will give our commanders in Viet Nam all the resources they need to carry out their mission."

Reds Building

Outside the hearing room, McNamara said the Communists are building their troop strength because American and South Vietnamese forces are inflicting heavy casulaties upon them.

"That argues against a limit on our forces there," McNamara declared.

The defense Secretary said the United States does not want to widen the conflict in Southeast Asia — but he added:

". . . We cannot preclude the possibility that our opponents will nevertheless choose to do so. Such a contingency would necessitate at least a partial mobilization, including the call-up of some or all of our reserve forces and the extension of active duty tours."

Senate Debates

While the Senate debated a $4.8 billion spending bill to help pay the cost of war, McNamara added his chapter to the administration case for the course Johnson is following.

"If we and our free world allies fail to meet the Chinese Communists' challenge in Southeast Asia," he said, "we will inevitably have to confront it later under even more disadvantageous circumstances."

He said the United States is determined to fight as long and as hard as it must to turn back the Communists.

Help Vietnamese

"As for our own commitment to the people of South Viet Nam," McNamara said, "we have made it clear from the very beginning that we would do everything necessary to help them defend their freedom and independence as long as they were willing to carry on the sturggle. . .

"We are prepared to continue our military collaboration with the South Vietnamese forces as long as the Communists insist on fighting," he said, "and we are ready to cope with any further escalation of the conflict on their part."

British Make Peace Move; Contact North Viet Nam

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's government made direct contact with Communist North Viet Nam yesterday after Soviet leaders refused to join Britain in promoting a parley.

On Wilson's orders, Lord Chalfont called on Lee Chang, acting head of Hanoi's diplomatic mission here, for a talk on possible moves to end the Viet Nam war. Chalfont is Britain's disarmament minister. He accompanied Wilson on his trip to Moscow.

British sources reported Chalfont and Lee spent much of the afternoon together. It was the first time a British minister had engaged in direct exchanges with an accredited representative of President Ho Chi Minh's government since large scale fighting flared in Viet Nam one year ago.

Few details emerged beyond the fact that both Lee and Chalfont described at length the conflicting east-west approaches to peacemaking.

Wilson was protrayed as detecting a glimmer of light in the situation. He was encouraged that Lee had been authorized by Hanoi to meet Chalfont at all.

He has hope the meeting, which had the foreknowledge of Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, may be the start of a dialogue that could lead to better things. Doubtless Wilson feels the British public, and left wingers within his own Labor party, will appreciate his quest for peace.

To some extent Lee's reception of Chalfont was a welcome development for Wilson, for he had got just about nowhere in his attempts to persuade Kosygin and his top colleagues to join with Britain in reconvening parties to the Geneva conference of 1954 to act as a forum for peace.

Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev met Wilson's repeated pleas for cooperation with the argument that the Soviet Union has netither a direct standing in the crisis nor the right to intervene.

When Wilson sought to assure them of President Johnson's sincere wish for peace in Viet Nam, the Soviet leaders suggested the Americans should prove this by halting air raids against the North.

Labor Truce Is Uneasy

MIAMI BEACH, (AP) — A grumpy truce of silence settled over AFL-CIO president George Meany's political fight with President Johnson yesterday. But maritime unions gave the White House new worries by threatening at any moment to boycott ships of U. S. allies dealing with North Viet Nam.

Meany curtly refused comment on statements of Secretary of Labor W .Willard Wirtz that AFL-CIO "antagonism" could hurt labor's own goals in Congress, and that Johnson won't bargain politically with union leaders.

"We're not begging anybody," said a surce close to Meany, but Meany and Wirtz ducked newsmen's questions after Tuesday's clash.

AFL-CIO political strategists said they would step up their political action in this year's Congressional and state elections "independent of any party."

In Washington, White House spokesman Bill D. Moyers said:

"I think the President and Mr. Meany get along very well together," and "I'm sure the President will meet again with Meany at the first opportunity."

Tuesday's squabble was over how much of a minimum wage increase Johnson will propose to Congress.

Interest Increase Aids Bondholders

United States Savings Bonds are now a more attractive investment than ever before, J. T. Gobbel, Volunteer Chairman of the Savings Bonds Program in Orange County, said in commenting on the increase in interest paid on Series E and H Bonds.

Mr. Gobbell pointed out that the new rate of 4.15 per cent applies from December 1, 1965, to all Savings Bonds, old and new, and will automatically increase their earnings.

North Carolina News Roundup

Bugs In Auto Inspection

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore said yesterday he expects "some bugs" in the new auto inspection program but, "Those inspection stations that start chiseling will be removed.

"We're going to follow up on complaints in the program," Moore told the Associated Press in an interview. "I think we'll have some bugs in the program for awhile, but these will work out in time."

The governor was commenting on reports from Charlotte of careless, faulty or incomplete auto inspections.

The alleged irregularities by some inspection stations were brought to light by the Charlotte Observer.

R. B. Parker, administrator of the inspection program for the North Carolina Motor Vehicles Department, went to Charlotte and launched an investigation into the charges.

Motor vehicle inspection was strongly advocated by Moore as a means of "making the public more highway safety conscious."

The inspection program, he said, "fits in with our entire safety program. I can't think of anything more important than saving lives on highways."

Moore was reminded that the late Gov. W. Kerr Scott is remembered for his work in behalf of secondary roads. Former Gov. Luther Hodge was identified with industrial development expansion and former Gov. Terry Sanford worked diligently to improve education.

"I would like to be identified as having done a lot for highway safety," Moore said.

In the coming months, the governor added, "We hope to create a serious climate designed to get down to the driver and make him more aware of the need for highway safety."

The former Superior Court judge pointed out that through the auto inspection program the state hopes to correct unsafe motor vehicles.

Noting that much stress had been put so far on inspection of auto headlights, Moore indicated this could be an important factor in curbing nighttime accidents.

Pearsall Plan Criticized

CHARLOTTE (AP) — William Medford, who 10 years ago helped formulate North Crolina's Pearsall Plan to prevent integration, appeared before a three-judge federal court yesterday and said the school law package is unconstitutional.

The court took the suit under advisement and did not indicate when it would rule.

Medford, now U. S. district attorney for Western North Carolina, was a state senator in 1956 when a legislative committee led by Thomas Pearsall of Rocky Mount wrote a group of laws designed to allow individuals, or whole communities, to escape mandatory school desegregation.

The suit, filed last December by three Charlotte Negro families, initially challenged the state's tuition grants law, under which payments are made to private school pupils who wish to avoid desegregation.

When the Justice Department entered the case it sought to have other provisions of the Pearsall Plan. They are:

— A local option plan which would allow local school boards or voters to close their schools to avoid desegregation.

— A pupil would be exempt from compulsory attendance laws if his parents withdrew him from school to avoid desegregation, provided he could not be reassigned to a segregated school.

— A provision allowing the Pearsall Plan to be added to the State Constitution.

Man Charged With Robbery

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Police have charged an 18-year-old youth with four armed robberies in Charlotte during the past two weeks.

Frank Lee McClure was accused of taking $215 from a grocery store, $5 from a customer who was in the store, between $100 and $150 from a sundries shop and $10 from a salesman in a street holdup.

Police said they also had charged Doris Jean Jackson, 25, with conspiracy. Police said she drove the getaway car for McClure.

Charlotte police have reported more than 20 armed robberies during the past two weeks. They said McClure was picked from a lineup by four of the victims.

Humphrey Returns

Humphrey Reports On Asian Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey arrived last night to report to President Johnson on a 43,000 - mile trip designed to mend fences against Communist expansion in Southeast Asia.

His big jet was due at Andrews Air Force Base shortly after 5 p.m. on his immediate schedule were: a helicopter hop to the White House, an exchange of greetings with Johnson on the south lawn, then a private talk in the President's office.

On his nine - nation tour Humphrey stressed the necessity for Southeast Asian nations to build a better life for their people, with U. S. aid. He also empahsized U. S. efforts toward a negotiated settlement of the Viet Nam war.

But, as in a speech he made at Canberra, Australia, he also sounded a no-retreat theme.

"The first time you retreat," he said, "The first time you fold up your tents, on that day no one will ever believe in free men again."

During Humphrey's tour, officials in South Korea and the Philippines made fresh commitments of troop support for the South Viet Nam war effort.

WANT ADS

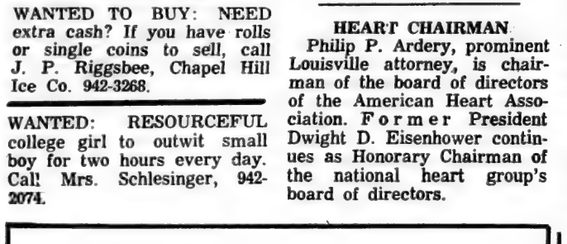
WANTED TO BUY: NEED extra cash? If you have rolls or single coins to sell, call J. P. Riggsbee, Chapel Hill Ice Co. 942-3268.

WANTED: RESOURCEFUL college girl to outwit small boy for two hours every day. Call Mrs. Schlesinger, 942-2074.

HEART CHAIRMAN

Philip P. Ardery, prominent Louisville attorney, is chairman of the board of directors of the American Heart Association. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower continues as Honorary Chairman of the national heart group's board of directors.

IF YOU CAN AFFORD $39.95 PER MONTH, YOU CAN OWN THE HOT, ALL-NEW ECONOMY CAR FROM CHRYSLER!



Feature for feature Simca 1000 gives you more. 50 hp rear engine. Four forward speeds, all synchronized. Plenty of space for a family of five. Extras? All you could want, free. Don't take our word. Take a test drive. See us today.

simca 1000

OLD HICKORY MOTORS
334 Roxboro Rd.
DURHAM, N. C.
Phone 447-2102 Open until 9 P.M.

FREE MONEY!!
BANLON SHIRTS
All Sizes & Colors
$3.00 each
* * * *
New Shipment of
Alpaca Sweaters
Red, Light Blue, Antique Gold, Navy, Carrot
ALL SIZES
Cardigans ..$13.75
Pull-Overs ..$11.75
* * * *
MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Over Sutton's Drug
Open 9:30 - 5:30 Mon.-Sat.

WONDERING?
...If your complexion is getting the proper care?
...If your cosmetics are right for your features and coloring?
We're here to analyze and advise. And to treat you to a new look... first with our 3-Steps-to-Beauty complexion care, followed by a new lips-to-lashes make-up, applied by an expert. Why not call now?
MERLE NORMAN COSMETIC STUDIO
113 East Parrish St.
DURHAM
Phone 688-1808

BIERSTUBE
EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT 5:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

In The CAFE BRIGHT LEAF
Jack Tar Durham
Don't Forget SUNDAY FAMILY BUFFET
11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. — 5:30-9 p.m. — Children ½ Price
Also Remember — You Can Park Free In Our Modern Garage When You Use Any Of The Facilities at Jack Tar Durham

STUDENT SPECIAL
CLIP THIS AD AND RECEIVE AN 10%
EXTRA OFF
on any Tape Recorder in stock — Good for Month of Feb., 1966 Only
NORELCO "101" CONTINENTAL CORDLESS TAPE RECORDER

Don't let the small size fool you! This tape recorder is big quality through and through.
VICKERS ELECTRONICS
506 E. Main St.
DURHAM, N. C.

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA
Thursday Night Special
VEAL PARMESAN
ON BED OF SPAGHETTI
Tossed Green Salad, Garlic Bread
90c
Serving 5:00 - 7:15

Jim Coghill

Assistant DTH Sports Editor

The man of the hour was Bob Lewis. The setting was Carmichael Auditorium. The event was the Carolina-Virginia basketball game. And the moment was Tuesday evening in the last second of an overtime period.

All of this added up to an 81-79 win for the University of North Carolina against the Cavaliers of Virginia and as in Charlottesville, when Carolina played Virginia earlier this year, it was the buzzer that saw one team win and another lose in the last second of play.

Virginia was stubborn and tough throughout the evening, but in all fairness the buzzer had to go our way Tuesday night since it went Virginia's way on Jan. 15 when Carolina lost 70-69.

Coach Dan Smith, said "It certainly feels good to get that buzzer back."

It should be evident that the Tar Heels had the game won and then threw it away, but realizing their mistake, they came back to thrill some 8,000 fans in a fantastic finish.

Coach Smith was pleased with his win saying, "We had to win it here. We just couldn't let it happen again."

Carolina was not the only ACC team to win in an overtime Tuesday evening. The Demon Deacons of Wake Forest downed the Duke Blue Devils 99-98. This just goest to prove anything can happen in the Atlantic Coast Conference. It's a tough league.

Coach Smith was very pleased with his team's offense during the first half, but he boasted on the Virginia team as well and with justification.

The ACC comic, Lou Bello, got a round of applause Tuesday evening and many laughs as well. He along with Harold Grossman were kept busy making the referee sign of basket good just as the buzzer sounded.

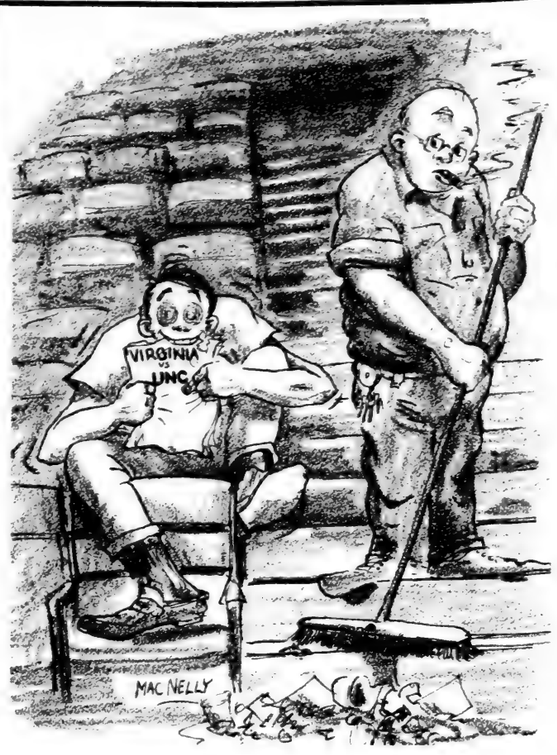
The Carolina coach singled out Lewis, Miller, Yokley and Gauntlett as doing fine jobs for the team effort in winning. He said, "Lewis gave us a fine effort, Miller was tremendous, Yokley played a fine game and Gauntlett did some fine passing."

We were fortunate to win, but we did it and the final score is the only thing remembered in many instances. Last year it took two overtimes, but it was our baby and that's what counts.

Carolina now will turn its attention to the Big Dukes or maybe we can say those fellows over on the Rock Pile who are faltering somewhat. Saturday is the day and the time is 2 p.m.

Coach Smith said he and the team are going to do everything possible in order to help the Dooks get beat in the tournament. Well, let's not wait until tournament time. Go get those Blue Devils on Saturday even if it takes three overtimes. Remember its the final score that goes into the record books and that's what counts.

By the way fans, if you are in the majority and don't have tickets for the game, watch it on T.V. It's going to be televisied you know!!



Getting Track In Shape Big Race Against Clock

A race against time is the expected story for athletes at the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor games here Saturday. Few fans who watch the activity realize that preparations for the championship meet are also a hectic race against the clock.

Larry Smith, maintenance superintendent for the UNC athletic department, keeps 15 men busy the week of the Indoor meet setting up Woollen Gymnasium. One of the biggest items is moving the portable track from its location in the Tin Can to the site of the championships.

"There are 100 sections to be moved," said Smith. "Each section must be placed and fitted properly, else it will be unfit for the beating it takes during long distance events." Sections are 12 feet in length and quite heavy.

Said Smith: "Our track is an old one and has been used for years. It was designed by the same men who constructed the Madison Square Garden boards."

Wooden tracks are expensive items, hence few schools have them in stock. Smith estimates a cost of more than $25,000 to replace the one now in use at UNC.

"Carpenters with special skills are required to build a good track," said Smith. "Especially is this true when it comes to turns. Mistakes can't be made. The same kind of craftsmanship that is found in watchmaking is required."

Smith's crew is also utilized during the running of the events. There are times when they dismantle portions of the track ot make room for sprints. Timing is essential.

It recalls the Indoor games of several years ago. After the two mile run, the workmen tore out the elevated sections of the track at the end of Woollen Gymnasium, little realizing that one tired athlete was dragging around after having been lapped by the field.

The laggard runner was too bushed to notice the hole ahead. He was looking at the ceiling, calling for extra strength, when suddenly he disappeared. It is the first time recalled when a runner failed to finish because he dropped out of sight.

Some 2,500 seats are available to the games Saturday afternoon and night. Prices are $2 for the big show. The cream of Atlantic Coast Conference athletes will compete for championship laurels.

Tar Heels, Devils Battling For Team Scoring Honors

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina and Duke are battling down the wire for the Atlantic Coast Conference's basketball team scoring championship.

Duke, ranked No. 2 nationally saw its scoring average drop from 88.1 points a game to 85.2 last week. North Carolina, meanwhile, is a close second with an 84.5 points per game average.

North Carolina has made 52.3 per cent of its shots from the floor and 73.5 per cent from the free throw line to lead the ACC in both departments.

The Tar Heels and Duke's Blue Devils meet Saturday afternoon at Durham, N. C., in the final regular season game for both teams.

North Carolina's field goal average leaves the Tar Heels in good position to erase the conference's full-season shooting record of 51.1 per cent set by Duke in 1963.

The season free throw record, however, appears safe. It was set by North Carolina in 1960 at 75.8 per cent.

South Carolina's Gamecocks have wrestled the team defense lead from Maryland. South Carolina has yielded 68.2 points a game to 68.7 for the Terps. No other team is in the race for the season title.

In scoring offense, Wake Forest has an outside chance despite its second division standing. The Deacons are hitting 83.3 points per contest.

Duke, which tops the conference in team rebounds with an average of 51.4 recoveries a game, ranks second to North Carolina in both field goal and free throw shooting accuracy. The Blue Devils have made 49.0 per cent from the floor and 72.8 per cent from the foul line. 3

TEAM SCORING

Team	Off. Avg.	Def. Avg.
Duke	85.2	72.0
North Carolina	84.5	76.4
Wake Forest	83.3	90.7
Clemson	77.2	73.9
N. C. State	76.9	72.8
Virginia	74.5	79.9
Maryland	72.5	68.7
South Carolina	66.0	68.2

TEAM SHOOTING

Team	FG Pct.	FT Pct.
North Carolina	.523	.735
Duke	.490	.728
N. C. State	.462	.683
Maryland	.462	.673
Clemson	.459	.685
Wake Forest	.456	.703
South Carolina	.466	.653
Virginia	.422	.679

Coach Rabb Says Season Will Depend Upon Pitching

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

On the eve of the long three month college baseball season, Tar Heel head coach Walter Rabb sat behind the broad desk in his office in Carmichael.

The coach lit a long cigar and began talking about the ACC Conference and his team.

"We know the Conference will be another dog fight," Rabb began. "We think we'll be a contender if the pitching comes along and if some of the boys hit like they're supposed to.

"If two or three of our real good athletes have a good year, we'll have a fine ball club.

"I think it's best, in giving a preseason report, to outline our ball team in broad categories. I'll start with pitching—the most important position on any baseball team.

PITCHERS: "I think we should have improved pitching over last year. It's possible that it might be outstanding. We have three good seniors who'll work the mound, Danny Walker, Beattie Leonard and Buddy Cahoon. In co-caption Mike McLaughlin we have potentially one of the best pitchers in the league. Mike finished up the season last year looking as strong as anyone in the ACC. He's also the best runner on the ball club, and we might also use him as a pinch hitter.

CATCHERS: "We have two good receivers in co-caption John Shaw and junior Tommy Roberts. I'm confident that John will get back to the fine hitting form he showed as a sophomore. Both of these boys are both good college catchers.

INFIELDERS: "We'll use Tom Lampman (junior) and Bill Estes (sophomore) at first.

At second base Butch Watts (junior) and Charlie Thomas (sophomore) are battling for the starting job.

"At short we have Jon Baylin senior), Bruce Bolick (sophomore) and Nolan Leonard, a junior transfer student from Wingate.

"We have three boys to play third base. We've moved Danny Talbott (junior) over from first. We'll see how he'll do at third with the provision that we can move him back to first base. Rod Thompson (junior) and Ed Sawyer (sophomore) are both good glove men, and they can throw the runner out. If Tom Lampman (junior) can get the job done and hits well, he'll also see some action at third.

OUTFIELDERS: "We're in good shape in the outfield. We have six boys for the three positions. Last season Bob Bonczek (senior) played third. Now he'll be moved over to right field. Either Charlie Carr (sophomore) or Bob Hume (senior) will play center field. Gene Link (senior), Larry Mills (sophomore) and Mike Knowles (junior) are the other three outfielders. Link and Mills are small boys but they can hit the ball hard and have speed to cover the outfield. Knowles is a fine boy with an awful lot of desire."

Beattie Leonard

Mike McLaughlin

Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

The Female Slant On Basketball: 'I Don't Know The Score But...'

By CAROL GALLANT

The first thing any good sports story should say is who won. We did; that means Virginia lost but I can't remember the final score. Anyway we tripped, overcame, bulldozed, nosed out, or maybe just shampooed the Cavaliers.

I don't know about this "feminine report" of a college basketball game. If you've been following the tragic story of Girl Reporter Number One (Actually, I'm the only girl in the office) for the DTH trying to get into Press Row for a ballgame you'll know that I failed miserably. After being unceremoniously discharged from said Row I hiked back up to my seat Tuesday night and determinedly set about to write the Great American Sports Story from Section 6, Row Z behind the goal.

Who needs Press Row?

Well, those guys have one distinct advantage. The first blow came when I realized that no lights are furnished in Row Z. Then too, five misplaced persons in front of me blocked the kick-off, knock-off, whatever it is. I did see the second basket however. It dropped in nicely. I think it was Virginia's.

I got a little concerned when Bobby fell and hurt his elbow. No one else seemed to notice, though, and he was a "man" about it.

They pulled ahead in the first few minutes. Right off hand I would say it was because their shots were going in and ours weren't. It was fast moving. Everybody was in a big hurry to get somewhere, I'm not quite sure where.

In my usual inimicable style I will now present the Virginia-Carolina game to you by revealing the choice thoughts and comments that occurred to me during the game.

"That's a cute play. Lewis and Bennett just pass the ball back and forth til Lewis is right under the basket . . . Oh that's wonderful.

The man beside me is going to light his pipe. If there's anything I love it's good pipe smoke in my lungs . . . Sure is foggy up here. Maybe it's the altitude. No, guess it's the darn contact lens again. How can I report the game. I can't even see it.

"That chubby guy on Viriginia's team is getting plenty of shots. I guess I'd stay out of his way too. Boy, that's a slightly flat-footed jump he's got, about 2 inches high, too.

"Five players in the last five seconds have tripped, fallen, or walked. Maybe Lou's whistle is broken. He's kind of cute, though. His physique is a lot like my father's.

"There seems to be some confusion at the other end of the court. Wish I had some binoculars. 'Hey, buddy. What happened?! . . . . Hm, that wasn't much of an answer, or a very nice thing to say about the referee for that matter.

"Score is 40-42, Virginia. That's right, Carolina! Whoops, we missed 44-40 . . . Lewis has a pretty arch on those long shots . . . Larry looks a little mad. He just lost the ball. Nice charge. Good grief, what a tangle! Their ball. Again? Uh oh, there's that three-point lane again. (Bet you didn't think I knew about that).

"One second left in the half. Lousy shot, but then he is pretty far away. Half-time score, 44-46."

I missed the beginning of the second half. The poweder room was pretty crowded.

"I can't figure why those guys aren't worn out . . . 52-54 Virginia. The natives are restless . . . Time to stand up again."

"Oh, too bad. Number 13, Virginia has something in his eye. The ref is all heart about it . . . No one seems to be breaking down there. They're just sort of muddling around . . . Nice side shot by Lewis . . . Bennett keeps sneaking around the base line, but no one seems to see him.

"1:25 remaining. Four point lead isn't much . . . Forty seconds left, 75-73, Carolina. There goes another bad shot. There goes another fingernail. Bet that never happens to Bob Quincy.

"Six seconds . . . No! Look out! Well, looks like it's their ball. Well, looks like an overtime.

"Good, the guy is relighting his pipe. My date is strangely quiet. I'll have to admit I haven't had much time to be charming (Who made that shot? Can you see my pen down there?)

"Six fingernails down and 2:04 to play . . . Happiness is a charge call against Virginia. Happiness is Gauntlett hitting an outside shot. Wonder if that's a For Court Press?

So with one final flourish of the pen and one final inhalation of pipe smoke, the game was over. I'll have to admit, there have been games I've enjoyed more. I missed half the action trying to write down clever little things which were largely illegible when I sat down to compile them. I do remember that Lewis played a good game (How's that for originality?) and Yokley scored more points than usual, I think. I remember that Virginia's uniforms weren't as pretty as ours, and their black tennis shoes were definitely Camp.

Anyway, "Sports Fans," I've had my fling at being a sports writer, Press Row or no Press Row. The sports world is all yours, fellows.

Swimmers Invade Raleigh For ACC Championships

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

UNC will battle it out against the seven other teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference Swimming Championships in Raleigh today through Saturday.

"We have a good chance for third place and may be able to squeeze into second," said Coach Pat Earey. "We don't have enough depth down the line to finish first.

"State has a terrific front line and great backup men and will be the favorite. Maryland could be a surprise, depending upon how they place their men."

Earey explained that it's not so much a matter of placing men in their strongest event, but rather where they can pick up the most points. Under a new system this year, points will be awarded for the first 12 places.

Carolina's best chances for wins rest in butterflier Phil Riker, breaststroker Rick Forum and sprinter Pete Worthen.

Worthen will have to contend with Maryland's Phil Denkevitz and State's Steve Rerych in the 50 and 100 yard freestyles. Denkevitz has a 21.3 in the 50 while Rerych and Worthen have 21.4 this year. Rervch has a 47.3 in the 100, best in the nation among collegians this year.

Rerych, Jeff Herman of State and Bill Nullmeyer of Maryland are the men to contend with in the 200 freestyle. Bob Hounsell of State looks strong in the 1650 freestyle.

Doug Springer of Maryland has the best time in the 100 and 200 breaststroke this year, but Carolina's Rick Forum should present a strong challenge.

Phi Gam Fijis Annihilate ZBT

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The Phi Gam Fijis annihilated the ZBT Zooboys in intramural basketball on Tuesday, 87-19. Bowman scored 24 points, Titchener 21 and Horne 18 to pace the ridiculous rout. Forman somehow scored eight for ZBT.

Most of the other games were unusually close. DU Blue IV got 18 points from Bill Slebos and 13 from Rick Lloyd to ease by the Phi Kap Sig Bounders, 41-40. Joe Vance hit 14 and Bill Degan 11 for Phi Kap Sig.

Pi Kap Phi No. 3 edged Chi Psi Green, 44-42, behind the 17 points of Al Ellis. Floren had 12 and Pugh 11 for Chi Psi. The Phi Delta Chi Pill withstood a second half rally to beat the DKE White team, 41-39. Freeman flipped in 20 points to lead Phi Delta Chi. Dunn had 11 and Whitaker nine for the DKE's.

DU Blue III downed the Phi Kap Sig Studs, 45-39, as Jim Evans scored 14 points. Urquhart had 12 points for the losing Phi Kap Sigs.

Late Varsity Box Scores

VIRGINIA

Team	FG	FT	TP
Kotos	9-17	0-0	18
Naponick	4-8	2-2	10
Reams	0-1	0-0	0
Connelly	11-19	7-9	29
Sanders	3-5	1-6	7
Stant	3-5	1-3	7
Lettice	0-5	0-1	0
Schroeder	4-4	0-0	8
Crackel	0-2	0-0	0
Totals	34-66	11-21	79

NORTH CAOLINA

Team	FG	FT	TP
Lewis	11-17	13-15	35
Miller	5-15	7-12	17
Bennett	1-5	2-2	4
Gauntlett	4-11	1-1	9
Yokley	6-9	3-5	15
Mirken	0-1	1-1	1
Moe	0-0	0-0	0
Smithwick	0-0	0-0	0
Totals	27-58	27-35	81

Virginia	46	29	4—79
North Carolina	44	31	6—81

EXCLUSIVE ENGAGEMENT

"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST!" —N.Y. Post

M-G-M presents THE PANDRO S. BERMAN-GUY GREEN PRODUCTION
a PATCH of BLUE
starring SIDNEY POITIER and SHELLEY WINTERS also starring ELIZABETH HARTMAN
IN PANAVISION

1, 3, 5, 7:01 and 9:02

MGM's Contender in this Year's ACADEMY AWARD SWEEPSTAKES

RIALTO, Durham

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25
BOWLING PARTY
Leave Presbyterian Student Center at 7:15 p.m. Friday.
Please call 967-2311 or come by the Presbyterian Student Center to sign up before 6 P.M. Thursday.

SIX BIG PIECES OF A
BIG CHICKEN!
99¢
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of French Fries
TOASTED ROLLS
W. T. Grant
Thurs. 4:00-:730
All the Tea You Can Drink . . . 15c

LA PIZZA SPECIAL
Wednesday, Thursday Nite
HAMBURGER STEAK
Smothered in Onions, Baked Potato — Salad.
$1.25
Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

A Wide Selection Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP Jewelry
135 East Franklin
942-1331

GOLF
Fit yourself out for Spring Now!
Rose's has just received supply of
IRONS AND WOODS
Irons 4.27
Woods 6.44
Just the thing to complete your set.
9 x 12 Tweed Viscose Rugs ____11.77
ROSES
DOWNTOWN
Chapel Hill

Jubilee Preview

David, della Rosa and Brooks

Comments On Jubilee Slate Vary

EDITORS NOTE: Jubilee Weekend will be held April 29, 30 and May 1 this year. On tap will be the Bitter End Singers; David, della Rosa, and Brooks; Jay and the Americans; Al Hirt; and Charlie Byrd.

By BOBBY ROYSTER
Special to the DTH

What's your opinion of the choice of entertainment for Jubilee Weekend this year? Here are some opinions of Carolina students on the year's biggest social event by Graham Memorial.

Brooks Harrell, sophomore, Pharmacy, Elizabeth City— "It's just great. I would say it is better than last year's."

Don Cobb, freshman, General College, Roxboro — They have got some good groups going for them. I was glad to hear Al Hirt would be here."

Larry Stahm, junior, English, Winston Salem — "I'm not familiar with anyone except Al Hirt, but it sounds like a well rounded program. Any entertainment would be fine as long as your date is okay."

Steve Zachary, senior, English, Yadkinville — "I think the entertainment is farily mundane except for Charlie Byrd."

John Siler, freshman, General College, Waynesville — "Al Hirt and Jay and the Americans are great. The arrangement is lousy. They ain't got enough country cloggin' and stompin' music. Jay and the Americans should be the big drawing card."

DAVID STUHR, sophomore, Pharmacy, Winston Sale — "I'm glad Al Hirt is coming. I also like the Bitter End Singers. I haven't heard anyone griping, so I guess everyone is satisfied."

Norris Morgan, freshman, Pharmacy, Charlotte — "It'll be all right I guess. The different groups will please a wide range of tastes. I wish they could have gotten the Lettermen."

Wayne Killian, junior, B.A., Jacksonville, Fla. — "I like Al Hirt. I don't know about the group that's appearing with Jay and the Americans, but they should be okay. I don't care about Sunday, I won't be here anyway."

Ronnie Black, freshman, B.A., Waco, N. C. — "They have got a good combination of groups this year. I hope they get the Four Tops and the Lettermen some time."

Joe Taylor, freshman, B.A., New Bern — "I think most people are disappointed. It could be better."

Charlie Warrn, sophomore, pre-Dental, Kernersville—"All the groups are fine except for one, but the good should more than compensate for the bad."

Phil Wunzer, freshman, B.A., Charlotte — "Sounds great! They've got something for everybody."

Chuck Schunior, junior, English, Chicago, Ill. — "It's a pretty impressive selection of groups. I would like to see a group like Joan Baez that would offer more social perspective toward our free speech struggle."

Richard Kerr, freshman, General College, High Point— "Jay and the Americans are a good choice. I wish they could have gotten a group like Jan and Dean or the Beach Boys."

Charles Lewis, sophomore, Education, Statesville — "It's not as good as last year's. The program lacks variety. I'm only going to hear Al Hirt."

Sam O'Briant, sophomore, Botany, Elizabeth City — "Everyone should be pleased. GM has done a good job and the students should take full advantage of it."

Jack Tate, senior, English, Greenville, S. C. — "A big name group like Al Hirt is fine, but I'd rather see someone like James Brown or Ray Charles."

Campus Events

The Monogram Club will meet at 7:30 in Woollen Gym.

The Freshman Class Co-ordinating Council will be held in Graham Memorial, Roland Parker III at 7:30 p.m. All members please attend this short organizational meeting.

The Amphoterothen Society will meet in the Woodhouse Room at 4:44 p.m. New members will be discussed. Important that all members be present.

The UNC Surf Club will meet at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker III at GM. All present and prospective members are asked to attend.

Pub Board interviews will be held from 3:30-6 p.m. in the Grail Room. Interviews will be for editor, business manager of Course Evaluation Booklet, Yack, and DTH.

The Symposium Social and Hospitality Committee will meet at 5 p.m. in the Symposium Office. All members please be present.

David Bar-Illan, young Israeli pianist, will appear with the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

FRIDAY

Order of the Grail will meet to address postcards for Invitation Sale Friday from 2-5 p.m. and Sunday, 2-5 p.m. Meet in the Grail Room of GM.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Black purse containing return ticket from Raleigh to Jacksonville, plus money and other valuables. Reward offered. Contact 942-1476, Mrs. C. H. Price.

Lost: One gold charm bracelet of sentimental value. Reward offered. Call 968-9148.

Lost: Turquoise glasses case with black-rimmed women's glasses inside. If found, please call 968-9005 or 968-9038. Lost between Saunders and Chi Omega House.

Lost: A leather purse probably in Dye Hall. Reward offered. Contact Gayle Chipman, 968-9171.

Lost: Glasses, Thursday night or Friday in the Gym and lower quad area. Reward offered. Contact Dick Coleman, 217 Graham, 968-9159.

Lost: Metal - framed bifocal glasses in mahongany case with Goleskie Optometrist, Winston-Salem, written on the case. Lost in vicinity of student apts. 233, Jackson Circle. If found, call 942-3081.

Lost: One black umbrella taken from Craige Dorm Party last Saturday. Initials "M.C.S." engraved on the handle. Please return. Reward offered. No questions asked. Contact Mark Smith, 203 Alexander, 968-9070.

Money Allocated By Heart Fund

The North Carolina Heart Association has announced contributions made to the Heart Fund through the UNC Campus Chest last year have been designated for a heart research project of Dr. Charles E. Rackley, UNC School of Medicine cardio-vascular scientist.

Dr. Rackley's project involve a study of blood volume changes in the left ventrical of the heart in patients with heart disease. The left ventrical is the main pumping chamber of the heart and ejects blood to the entire body.

When the left ventrical is affected with disease patients often develop symptoms of heart disease.

Present techniques for measuring the function of the left ventrical include pressure in the chamber and the amount of blood it ejects. Dr. Rackley uses a technique which includes X-ray films made after injection of contrast material into the heart chamber, permitting the estimation of the amount of blood in the left ventrical at any time during the relaxation and contraction periods.

Information being secured by Dr. Rackley's research will permit better selection of patients for heart surgery. The North Carolina Heart Association research grant to Dr. Rackley totaled 1,985, of which $500 was contributed by UNC students through the campus chest last spring.

Rubber Checks

(Continued from Page 1)

there reports that he hasn't sent any to the J.P. for collection, but that he does call the girl. If the call produces no results the manager calls the school.

No merchants give their NSF checks to the UNC Student Credit Commission.

This Commission was formed by the Student Legislature in October, 1962. Exactly what the Commision has — and hasn't — been doing for the last three years is the subject of tomorrow's article.

Morman Movie

The film "Man's Search for Happiness" will be shown at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons).

The film portrays the theme that to find lasting happiness, as distinguished from passing pleasures, is the aim and end of all purposeful living.

AH YES, we remember it well. Somehow it seems that more than a mere three weeks have passed since the white phantom blanketed the hill. Back then, this scene behind Ehringhaus was typical of the entire campus. We were going to make some kind of comment about today's weather, but in Chapel Hill, one never knows what's going to happen next.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Gov. Moore Favors Enrollment Cutoff

RALEIGH (AP) — Should enrollment growths be arrested at the UNC branches in Chapel Hill and Raleigh, supplying increased nourishment to the Greensboro and Charlotte units?

Gov. Dan Moore is inclined to think so and, at his suggestion, the question will be among those explored by the State Board of Higher Education in a study of where higher education is in North Carolina and where it is going.

Moore, in an interview yesterday, explained comments shared with newspaper editorial writers during series of luncheons last week at the Executive Mansion.

"How large should any campus of the University be," Moore asked.

"Should we try to limit the size to definite numbers.

"Should we allow one to become a mammoth insitution?

"Is it better to increase the numbers at Charlootte and Greensboro and more or less stabilize, but improve quality, at Chapel Hill and Raleigh?

"I see these as areas which the study should include," he said.

"These are simply matters I think the Board of Higher Education should consider," Moore said. "I, of course, am not telling the board what to do but merely suggesting areas of consideration."

Moore apparently feels the Chapel Hill campus is approching its maximum practical size.

"The study group might not see it that way, however," he said, "the results of the study may not bear this out."

"In my comments at the mansion, I did not say that 12,000 or 15,000 or any other number is a maximum," he said, "but I did say I felt that we should not over-expand at Chapel Hill or at North Carolina State until the other smaller ones are brought up as far as needed or practical."

Acceleration may be needed, Moore said, at Greensboro and particularly at the newborn unit at Charlotte. The Charlotte branch, based at what was formerly Charlotte College, became a unit of the Consolidated University of North Carolina only seven months ago.

CLEARANCE SALE!!

Don't Dare Miss Any of These Special Values

Suits

100.00 ..... NOW 66.66
89.95 ..... NOW 59.98
85.00 ..... NOW 56.67
75.00 ..... NOW 49.99
69.50 ..... NOW 46.37
65.00 ..... NOW 43.34
59.95 ..... NOW 39.98

Sport Coats

69.50 ..... NOW 46.37
65.00 ..... NOW 43.34
59.50 ..... NOW 39.98
55.00 ..... NOW 36.67
50.00 ..... NOW 34.34
45.00 ..... NOW 30.00
39.95 ..... NOW 29.95
35.00 ..... NOW 26.00

All Famous Brands Included in this Sale

Varsity Men's Wear

"I KNOW IT'S STILL GOOD, DEAR, But H. Freeman changed to natural shoulders 25 years ago."

K. FREEMAN & SON
the label that means finer clothing

Julian's

Milton's February Frogstrangler Countdown!

All these wonderful buys will be history after Saturday.

Still have a choice assortment of M-2 perfect roll button-down shirts regularly to $8.95 at give-a-way of $2.99.

Last Call to suits regularly to $95.00 at only $45.00.

Group coats to $50.00 at $29.99.

Shoes regularly to $35.00 at $16.99.

* * * * * *

Scads of Lady Milton Goodies at Greatly Reduced Prices!

McGeorge shetland cardigan sweaters cut from $20.00 to $10.99.

Scintillating shetland sweater sets all at enticing reductions.

Good deal of Suzanne handbags.

Lots of good looking shifts at half price.

Group Lady Milton shirts regularly to $10.95 at $1.99, $2.99 & 3.99.

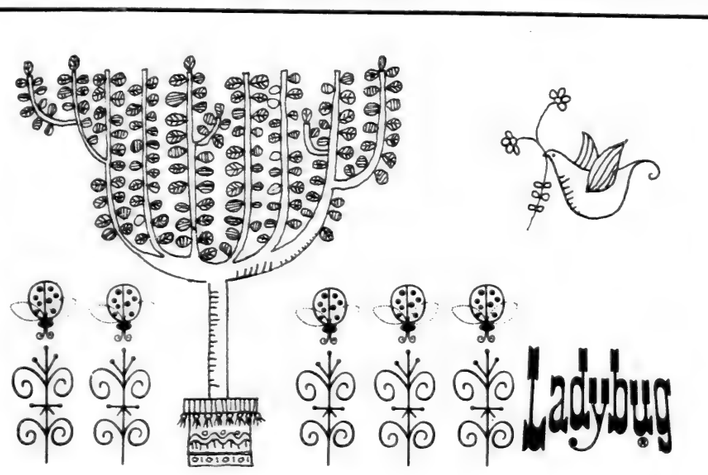
* * * * * *

Many other fabulous buys that will be history after Saturday.

* * * * * *

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill



according to Ladybug Spring is just around the corner

Visit the high-spirited Spring collection of LADYBUG clothes. Revive your belief in Spring. Take some home with you. Look at them often. Do not despair...Spring is just around the corner. And LADYBUGS are here.

Town & Campus

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY, and SUNDAY

AT The RECORD BAR

ALL ANGEL LP's at Huge Savings

Premiere recordings of three post-Schoenberg shockers by France's foremost ultramodernists. Hair-raising recording! S-36295

First recording of Michael Tippett's fantasy for strings, with its Baroque source. With Britten's early masterpiece. S-36303

Heady harmonic surprises, including the ingenious "Fantasia upon One Note," by England's great Early Baroque master. S-36270

ALL REG. 4.00 LP's NOW 2.49

ALL REG. 5.00 LP's NOW 2.99

ALL REG. 6.00 LP's NOW 3.49

ALSO...

THE KLEMPERER BEETHOVEN – 9 Symphonies

8 Record Set

Mono Reg. ..... 40.00 NOW 21.95

Stereo Reg. ..... 48.00 NOW 25.95

Sale Applies to Chapel Hill Store Only

Sale Ends Sunday, Feb. 27, 1966 at 6:00 P.M.

THE RECORD BAR

Across from the Post Office on Henderson Street

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

A Manager's Life

See Sandy Treadwell's story on the basketball team member that never scored a point.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 103 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

Sabicas Tickets

Sabicas, "King of the Flamenco Guitar," will be here Sunday. Pick up tickets, free and reserved, at Graham Memorial.

Powell, Wilson Receive SP Nod

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Bob Powell and Don Wilson won the Student Party nomination for student body president and vice president in the spring elections.

The two were nominated along with candidates for legislature from most districts, at the SP convention Wednesday night.

In his acceptance speech to the convention Powell, a junior from Thomasville, said, "The challenges and problems Student Government faces at this moment are frightening.

BOB POWELL

"Critics of our university who claim to be acting in our best interest, have ridiculed the maturity of our student body, debunked the ability of our outstanding administrators, and assumed an arbitrary position of authority and control over our affairs that is unparalleled among our country's great institutions of learning. As responsible and mature students we must be heard . . ."

He said it is necessary that the students communicate with the state of North Carolina the "true picture of 12,000 students living, studying and developing into respectable citizens.

"We have a lot to be proud of in Chapel Hill. Let's tell North Carolina about it," he said.

Powell also cited the residence college system, honor system, fraternities and sororities as places of concern for student government.

"In short," he said, "there are problems both old and new that our student government shall have to face this year. I am convinced that together, you and I are more than a match for the job."

Powell is a Morehead Scholar and is in the honors program in political science. He is chairman of the student government state affairs committee, and has headed the public relations campaign this year to improve the image of the university.

He is also a member of the Men's Honor Council, Order of the Grail, head of the Ampoterothen Society, president of the UNC Debate Team and member of Chi Psi social fraternity.

Vice presidential candiate Wilson, a junior from Birmingham, Ala., is majoring in history. He is a member of the Order of the Grail, and Amphoterothen Society, former chairman of the SP.

Presently he is serving his second legislative term and is majority floor leader.

He is speaker of the Morrison Residence College Senate and has served in the Di-Phi Senate for three years as treasurer and parliamentarian. Wilson has twice been a member of the State Student Legislature and three times attended the United Nations model assembly for the South.

He served as delegation chairman once and this year was president of the general assembly. Wilson is also a

(Continued on Page 6)

O'Toole Throws Hat In Ring For Student Body President

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

Teddy O'Toole, a student legislator, announced yesterday he is seeking the nomination for president of the student body from the University party.

O'Toole, a junior, said, "It is my belief that the president of the student body should adopt an approach to student government that seeks as its first objective the provision for the wants and problems of the student, if student government is to regain the effectiveness it enjoyed during Bob Spearman's administration.

"This has been a year of crisis for the student government in the sense that the gradual trend has been toward a professionalization of student government that has become a manifest detriment to the institution itself. The result is that student government is gradually moving away from the individual student."

O'Toole is a junior majoring in English and Economics. He plans to enter law school after graduation and intends to go into corpoation law.

Sonny Pepper, president of the IFC, announced Wednesday his candidacy for student body president on the UP ticket. He will be opposing O'Toole for the nomination at the UP convention Monday night in Carroll Hall.

O'Toole said, "An alienation from the individual student has become most apparent in the executive branch and in the philosophy adopted by the student party administration.

"The president of the student body and his advisors have continually asked the question, "What can we do to improve student government," rather than the real question, 'What can we do to improve the welfare of the individual student."

TEDDY O'TOOLE

"The result of this approach is that energy which should have been channeled into the development of the Residence College System has been spent in attempting to make the secretary of the student body an appointive position, a move which the students did not even want to begin with.

O'Toole is a member of the Order of the Grail, Phi Eta Sigma Honorary Society and participated in the Sophomore Honors program.

He has been a member of the Student Legislature for two years. He has also been chairman of the Rules Committee, chairman of the Freshman Class and Sophomore Class Talent shows, Men's Coordinator of Orientation and delegate to the NSA national convention for two years.

UP Convention Monday

The University Party will hold its convention to elect candidates for the spring elections 7 p.m. Monday, in Memorial Hall.

Offices to be filled are president, vice president, treasurer and secretary of the student body; president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and social chairman of the senior class; 50 legislative seats; four N.S.A.delegates and other endorsements.

Campaign Meetings

The Fair Practices Campaign Committee, co-chaired by Neil Thomas and Jim Little, has suggested the following dates for residence halls meetings

All meetings should be at either 7 or 7:30 p.m. If a girls' residence hall is to meet with a boys' residence hall, the meeting should be held in the girls' residence hall.

Wed. March 2; Davy College (B-V-P, Old East, Old West) and Smith.

Thursday, King College (Upper Quad) and Spencer.

March 7; Ehringhaus.

March 8; Craige.

March 9; Scott College (Parker, Teague, Avery).

March 10; Morrison

March 14; Joyner, Alexander, Conner and Winston.

March 15; Morehead College (Lower Quad) and McIver-Alderman-Kenan.

March 16; East and West Cobb.

March 17; Nurses Residence Hall.

Camp Counselors

Counselor training sessions for YMCA freshman summer camp will begin 7 p.m. Monday on the second floor of the YMCA building.

Freshman summer camp serves as a concentrated orientation for about 200 incoming freshmen. The camp is held for 3 days prior to the regular freshman orientation program in September. The program is now in its fifteenth year of operation.

Anyone interested in working with the Freshman Camp Program for 1966 should fill out applications at the YMCA office and plan to attend the first meeting Monday.

Combo At Maverick

Maverick House will hold a combo party tomorrow night from 8 to 12 in the Voodo Room. The Rogues Combo, backed up by the Dixie Cups, will be featured. Mavericks will be admitted free, but the admission charge for outsiders will be $1 per couple.

Ineligible Pledges

Some students who pledged fraternities during the recent Rush have been found to be ineligible, according to Bob Kepner, assistant to the dean of men.

Kepner also said a list of pledges will be issued some time next week.

"Why Marry?"

Dr. Harold G. McCurdy, a Kenan professor of Psychology, spoke to the women of West Cobb Residence Hall Wednesday night on the topic of "Why Marry?"

Student Commission Has Failed In Task

By STEVE LACKEY
(Third in a Series)

The Student Credit Commission was formed by the student legislature in 1960 to curb bad check writing. The present Comission and those before it have done little to fulfill this aim.

Specifically, the students on the commission this year have met only four times. Each meeting was dedicated to "defining the objectives of the commission," according to chairman Ralph Grosswald.

The bill says that the commission should try to maintain good relations between students and merchants.

It also provides that the commission collect bad checks from the merchants and try to contact the student and secure payment.

No checks have been handled by the commission so far this year, according to student body President Paul Dickson, who appointed pointed Grosswald.

Chairman Grosswald said that he did not plan to get checks from merchants, but only from Lenoir Hall until the commission could determine whether it should expand to downtown.

When asked exactly what the ommission did plan to do, Grosswald said that a downtown sale was being planned in which students would participate.

Nowhere in the bill establishing the Commission is a clause authorizing such sales.

Dickson and Grosswald defended their position by stating that this was a necessary step towards strengthening the bonds between merchants and students.

Dickson said that there is some hesitancy on the part of the Merchants Association to turn checks over to a student group.

Association President Doug Powell, says that before he would authorize any checks being given to the Commission he must be given a receipt and be assured that some action would be taken.

Grosswald said his commission would meet next week to "decide whether we can handle this."

The merchants themselves do not seem nearly so hesitant about the commission filling the role for which it was designed. Most merchants polled supported wholeheartedly the idea of a student collection plan.

Commission member Champ Mitchell said he feels that the problem is not just the writing of the checks by students — it's the way they are handled by store owners.

Mitchell, who is also on the Honor Council, said that the Commission should handle merchants' checks by trying to get in touch with the writer.

The actual passing of a worthless check is an Honor Council offense, but only a few cases of this type have been handled by the council so far this year. Mitchell said tha these students were punished in varying degrees, depending upon hether lying or forgery was involved in the case.

The Book Exchange, rather than going through the Comission, handles its own bad checks.

Manager Tom Shetley says that of the "thousands of thousands" of dollars worth of checks he cashes yearly, only a small per cent go bad.

The Book Exchange maintains a list of students for whom it will not cash checks. Persons who have written three bad checks all placed on the list. At present it contains 120 anmes.

Any trouble Shetley has with worthless checks is taken to Hanes Hall where the students' grades or diploma is hold until payment is made.

Shetley says that although around 100 checks bounce each week, almost all these are paid after the second notice is sent to the writer.

Shetley does not turn checks in to the Justices of the Peace because he feels that the University can make the collections.

He also said that most bad checks resulted from "sincere errors," not purposeful writing of the checks.

1,200 Rally For Free Speech

Pres. Friday Accepts Speaker Resolution

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Close to 1,200 people attended last night's meeting of the Committee For Free Inquiry and almost all of them participated in a quiet walk to the home of Consolidated University President William C. Friday. There, Friday and Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson were presented with the Committee's statement of principle and policy on campus speakers.

The statement was adopted unanimously in the three hour Memorial Hall meeting. It urges the board of trustees to remember that the process of education advances as much, if not more, by the rejection of many alternative views, as it does by the acceptance of one view.

It says that a policy of prior restraint can only call into question the intelligence and the ability of the students to act with good judgement.

"A policy of prior restraint places the reputation and future of the Universities in great danger.

In accepting the statement both Friday and Sitterson said they thanked the students for acting in a responsible and mature manner.

"I want to express appreciation for the students' conduct in this matter. I will present their proposals to the trustees Monday morning," Friday said.

Sitterson told the throng of students standing in the cold night air beside Friday's home that they should be proud and that their action "Identifies you with the very spirit that founded this great University."

Jefferson B. Fordham, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, the meeting's principal speaker was an hour and a half late in arriving because of weather that interfered with his flight.

Fordham, a 1926 graduate of UNC and former president of the student body here, pointed out the inconsistencies in the "gag" law and upheld the right of any man to plead the fifth amendment.

"The only satisfactory solution to this problem, in my opinion," Fordham said, "is outright repeal."

Fordham, referring to the Ku Klux Klan, said North Carolina needed to worry more about right-wing groups than those of the left.

He was greatly disappointed by the failure of the organized bar in North Carolina to oppose the speaker ban law.

Fordham urged that the people and the government of the state have confidence in the University community.

"We must work for what we are for instead of what we are against," Fordham said in conclusion. He received a standing avation.

Before Fordham arrived Daniel Pellitt of the UNC law school filled in for him. He cited various other attempts to thwart freedom of speech.

The first speaker of the meeting was student body President Paul Dickson. Dickson said the purpose of the fifth meeting of the Committee for Free Inquiry was to present its views to the state, and especially to the Governor and the Board of Trustees.

"We want to convince them that only through the open and critical examination of all alternatives can the accumulated knowledge of society be advanced. We must convince the people of this state that the future of North Carolina depends upon a broad education of its leaders," Dickson said.

The best received speaker of the meeting was Richard French who composed the statement of principal that was adopted by the body.

French, a graduate student in political science, who was born in Argentina, told the meeting that he felt political authority "has seen fit to interfere with my school. Political authority has seen fit to dictate to me what I shall or shall not examine."

He said what is happening here in the state is ridiculous. "It is intolerable! I cannot, I will not, put up with this silly nonsense!"

"I am angry!" French said. "How can it be that eight men in Raleigh, by fiat and decree, tell us what will 'serve the purposes of education,' over and above the expressed opposite views of the combined faculties, students, and administrators of the two leading universities in North Carolina and the South. What incredible conceit! What gross conceit!"

French ended his speech by asking the officials of the state to "re-adopt the Constitution. We ask that the first amendment be observed and enforced in this state. Not very radical. For it is our impression that this question was resolved and decided back in 1776, and back in 1789," French said.

Other speakers at the meeting were David T. Lapkin, economics professor here, and Bob Powell, president of the UNC debate team and Student Party nominee for president of the student body.

Gov. Moore Favors Loans To Help Needy Students

RALEIGH (AP) — An expanded program to provide low cost loans to college students was announced yesterday by Gov. Dan Moore.

The governor designated the State Education Assistance Authority as the guarantee agency in North Carolina for low interest loans under the Federal Higher Education Act. He said the administration of the program will be through the State Board of Higher Education.

Moore told a large group of educators, bankers and others at a luncheon that the program will allow almost any student to borrow up to $5,000 for undergraduate work or up to $7,500 for graduate work at low interest rates and with ample time provided to repay loans.

"This bold program combines the cooperative efforts of government with the genius of private initiative and permits us to invest wisely in the lives and future of our children," the governor declared.

Moore explained that loans will be largely guaranteed by the State Assistance Authority and the money will actually be loand by the College Foundation Inc., an organization formed by North Carolina Bankers to loan money to college students or some other financial institution.

Moore said the government will pay all interest on the loans up to 6 per cent while students are in college and 3 per cent after they graduate. Repayment is not required to begin until nine months after graduation and there is an additional three years' deferment if the student is in the armed forces, the Peace Corps or graduate school.

Moore said "the federal government also will provide 'seed' money to the state for a reserve to insure the loans. North Carolina's allocation of federal funds appropriated through June, 1967, is about one - half million dollars, and will insure $5 million in student loans."

Moore pointed out that any eligible financial institution may make student loans but the "College Foundation Inc. has been specifically named as an eligible institution because it is an established nonfrofit student lending corporation."

Moore said North Carolina is ahead of other states in getting the program underway because in the college foundation "it has an organization ready to proceed, since it acts as collective lender for 85 per cent of the banking industry in North Carolina."

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

A Plea For Progress

Progress is not, at the moment, our most important product here at UNC. We can stand a lot of improvement and we have some suggestions.

What Carolina really needs is:

About 6,439 more coeds to even things out.

About 1,000 more coeds over the 6,439 so they will have to sweat getting a date once in awhile.

Male and female coed dorms. You know that old song about "girls and boys together."

A reasonable quota of crip courses. There aren't enough DA 30 cards to go around.

A concluding episode to the "Fugitive."

An arboretum that is a little less like Little Chicago and more like the Garden of Eden.

A gym that is big enough to take the whole student body at one time.

A 40 cent meal that you can eat more than once a week and still make classes the next day.

One whole week of the DTH without anything by David Rothman in it.

Three more basketball players like Lewis and Miller.

One less football coach.

And then you can add one more football coach.

A permanent chancellor.

A ban of the speaker ban — and if you give us that we'll ban a certain restaurant (?) in the vicinity of the Post Office.

A few more parking places or a lot fewer parking tickets.

Another candidate to run for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

A few more ideas for Trivia to help fill this column. Like who was Captain Kangaroo's handyman? Mr. Greenjeans.

Replacements for Bat Dean and Bobin.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Do Us A Favor, Governor

How big is too big?

Administrators of the University of North Carolina have been trying to answer that question since the first growing pains hit Chapel Hill years ago.

With a four-branch University, the problem has come to be primarily one of student population distribution. Last fall 12,130 students enrolled here, 9,806 at Raleigh, 4,721 at Greensboro and 1,815 at Charlotte.

The problem is this: How large can Carolina and N. C. State get without turning into overstrained diploma factories, leaving the other branches at less-than-capacity operation?

Dr. A. K. King of President William C. Friday's office has been making an extensive study of the problem since last fall, and Friday will make a report and recommendations to the board of trustees in May.

One of the unanswered questions is what effect the community college system will have on the University. Will community college graduates flood the University within the next year or two? What curricula will they want?

Information on the experience of other states with these same problems is now being gathered as a part of the study.

So why has Gov. Dan K. Moore decided his opinion of the situation is needed?

An Associated Press story said Thursday morning: "Should enrollment growths be arrested at the University of North Carolina branches in Chapel Hill and Raleigh, supplying increased nourishment to the Greensboro and Charlotte units?

"Gov. Dan K. Moore is inclined to think so and, at his suggestion, the question will be among those explored by the State Board of Higher Education in a study of where higher education is in North Carolina and where it is going."

The story said Moore "apparently feels" the Chapel Hill campus is approaching its maximum size.

Moore said that he felt that "we should not over-expand at Chapel Hill or at North Carolina State until the other smaller ones are brought up as far as needed or practical."

Then, in a comment reminiscent of his denials of pressuring UNC trustees on the Aptheker-Wilkinson speaker controversy, Moore said:

"I, of course, am not telling the board (of higher education) what to do, but merely suggesting areas of consideration."

The governor certainly underrates himself.

As in the speaker question, he has again publicly staked himself out on an issue; that is, he favors growth restrictions on the Chapel Hill campus.

Does he expect us to believe that knowledge of his poisition will not affect the members of the board when the time comes for them to make a decision?

How eager will they be to make a choice which will be in opposition to the governor's feelings, which have been clearly implied, if not directly stated?

By speaking out the governor has again complicated a problem facing the University.

Do us a favor, Governor.

Buzz off.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Rick Nichols, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Steve Bennett, Steve Lackey, Glenn Mays, Lytt Stamps, Peytie Fearrington, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Bill Rollins, Gene Whisnant, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, Bill Hass, Jim Fields, sports writers; Jeff MacNelly, sports cartoonist.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514, Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

Barry Jacobs

War Debate Still Justified

The debate in Congress over our involvement in Viet Nam has reached a high level of intensity; and, inevitably, the cry has been raised that enough has been said, that the prolonged debate only hinders the war effort and gives hope to our enemies. Sen. Everette Dirksen of illinois, Republican leader in the Senate, said substantially this earlier this week.

The debates and hearings on Viet Nam do present a ticklish problem. They do give the impression—a true one — that the American people are not united in their support of the war. Advocates of shutting off the criticism claim that this evidence of dissent encourages the Viet Cong and the North Vetnamese to carry on with the war in the hope that the dissident elements in this counry will force the United States out of the war.

The war, these people say, is there. Perhaps we made a mistake in getting involved in it, but there is nothing we can do about it now. Arguing about whether we should be in the war serves no useful purpose and only hurts the country. The national security, they say, requires that free expression on this question sould be muzzled.

While those opposing extended debate on the war all are supporters of our role in it, those favoring the continuation of the discussions and hearings come from both sides. All critics of the war, of course, want to continue the debate. They hope to convince others, and perhaps even the Administration, hat we should get out of the war.

Some of the advocates of continued debate, though, are supporters of the war who feel that a full airing of the issues and policies that have resulted in our involvement in the war is both beneficial to the country and a right of the people. The American citizens have a right to know exactly what we are doing in Viet Nam, how we got there, and what our aims are.

At this time, a free debate on the war still seems justified. The people have been in the dark for a long time about this war, and it may take a long time to enlighten them. Yet, as long as the people, through their elected represenatives, are running the country, they must be enlightened. An informed public is the cornerstone of our system of government. Congressional elections are coming up, and the war is certain to be the No. 1 issue. To cast intelligent ballots, the voters must be aware of the facts and opinions that are being presented.

In this situation, of course, a free flow in information is not an unmixed blessing. The image of dissention that the debates project won't help the country That, however, is one of the penalities of our system of government. If the Administration feels that the military situation is serious enough to justify curtailment of basic rights, then it should order the country on a full-scale wartime footing, including not only censorship, but also such things as price and wage controls.

Phil Clay

Compulsory High School Education Is Necessary

Nothing is so important to our state and nation as its education system. The requirements for national defense and economic growth underline this need.

The poverty program, in attempting to solve several socio - economic problems, is finding that education is the root of the problem. In this article, we shall take North Carolina as typical of the extent to which quantity and quality is lacking in our educational system.

Several statistics help us see the size of the problem: 1) Of the 113,000 students who entered the first grade in 1948-49, more than 67,000 dropped out before graduation. This represents 60%. 2) More than 50% of North Carolina males examined by the Selective Service are rejected because they fail to meet the mental requirements. 3) Median years completed by adults over 25 years is 8.9, compared to 10.6 nationally. This ranks North Carolina 45th in the nation.

These statistics and others give North Carolina the distinction of being one of the ten most ignorant states in the union! This is, to say the least, an ignoble distinction.

The present law requires students to attend school until they reach the age of 16 years. As a result of parental neglect or lack of enforcement, many do not attend school until they reach this age.

My position is that attendance should be mandatory and enforced until the child has reached the age of 18 years at which time we can expect that he will have completed his high school education. This is a strong suggestion, not likely to fall on receptive ears in the General Assembly. Too many of our politicians know full well that their security is directly proportional to the ignorance of their constituents.

To make high school education compulsory will require some basic changes in our educational structure and in our social outlook. Most fundamenally, it will require a new definition of high school education.

We propose it to mean more than education in the liberal arts and college prep courses, but we propose broad commercial, vocational and industrial curricula which are geared to offer something relevant to everyone. Work-study programs, industrial internships may be necessary.

These new comprehensive high schools should meet our rewards to all, not just to the bright college - bound kid. They will require more and better teachers. These teachers must not only be willing to teach the bright and the obviously talented, but they must be willing and able to discover that hidden talent in a less bright child and help him cultivate it so that he will be on the tax role instead of the welfare roll.

More classrooms and educational facilities will be needed. School officials will be forced to come up with imaginative new programs to appeal to all students and to insure that no thirst goes unquenched and no mind goes unchallenged. Cross-class and cross - racial academic and vocational environment must also be prerequisites to quality education.

Finally, increased liaison with parents must be effected. This will require, in most cases, greater initiative on the part of teachers and in larger areas, it will require a school sociologist or counselor. In many areas, parents must be taught the value of education in the context of their own experience, and not in middle-class intellectual terms.

To these proposals, strong voices of opposition are heard. These voices are bound to tragic myths about education. The following are several points they make.

First, som say that education is not for everybody. This reflects the idea of an educated class. They think education is a luxury to be enjoyed by and limited to the "haves" in our society. This idea is totally bankrupt because education is not an item of luxury, but an item of national defense.

Others point out that some people are uneducable. This is true only because we make it so. Progressive educators feel that programs can be developed to bring almost everyone to functional literacy. If there are those in our society who are truly retarded, then a strong system of schools for them should be developed.

Some voices proclaim that forcing the lazy, shiftless and filthy to attend school will lower the quality of education and result in chaos and disorder. This would not happen in a comprehensive school system that offers something for everyone.

To those who would make this charge, I only remind them of the faces in the riot. The conditions of squalor and anger are the result of a past backwash of neglect that can only be corrected by the inclusion of these elements in the mainstream of our society.

Finally, some charge that such compulsion denies the individual freedom of the student. This idea is so baseless that I won't even argue against it, but I will ask its proponents one question. Freedom for what?

Reasonable alternatives to requiring that everywhere the skilled and useful are lacking. We can have an increasingly large pool of unemployables, we can add to our welfare rolls, or we can do as Americans usually do — wait until the problem has reached such catastrophic proportions that we are forced to act.

One final alternative here is that the modern reformer points with joy to the numerous training programs as the best way to catch high school dropouts. These programs to be sure are good and do some good, but they have a basic weakness.

The jobs to be trained for today require sharp and disciplined minds as well as knowledge and skills. A boy who drops out of school in the 10th grade is probably functioning at a 7th or 8th grade level. After two years in the streets, he is probably on a 6th grade level.

Besides, he is not likely to be able to follow directions or discipline his mind. This is the type of person that a training program may get. We can only expect limited success.

To effect an education program for all the people will require the type of executive and legislative leadership on the state level that North Carolina does not have. Powerful voices will rise across the state in opposition to such ideas. Farm and textile interests will fight to get cheap and unskilled labor. The noble words of men of good will, will fall on deaf ears. In the meantime, I echo the voice of Terry Sanford when he asks, "but what about the people?"

The Student Speaks

Myths About Iowa Should Be Corrected

By BRIAN C BRUSH

After reading David Rothman's entertaining satire on the state of Iowa, and after hearing my fellow students express many misconceptions concerning that state ,I feel it is my duty to break through the popular myths and misconceptions and make my contribution to the education and "culture" of the readers (and writers) of The Daily Tar Heel.

Myth No. 1: Iowans are illiterate and uncultured. The fact is that the state of Iowa has the highest literacy rate in the nation. Furthermore, in addition to the three state institutions of higher learning, there are approximately 30 accredited private four - year colleges and universities and numerous junior colleges to serve a population of approximately 2,800,000.

Last year Time magazine ran a feature on the University of Iowa, calling it one of the finest state universities in the nation, and particularly emphasizing the quality of its medical and law schools.

Iowa has long been the base of research for Dr. James Van Allen, discoverer of the famed Van Allen radiation belts, who has contributed much in the way of space research.

Iowa's sister institution, Iowa State University, has long been recognized as outstanding in the fields of engineering, science, and agriculture.

Myth No. 2: Iowa is rural and backward. Iowa is indeed proud of its agricultural productivity. Last year the total value of its agricultural produce ranked second only to California, and it must be remembered that Iowa ranks 25th among the states in area.

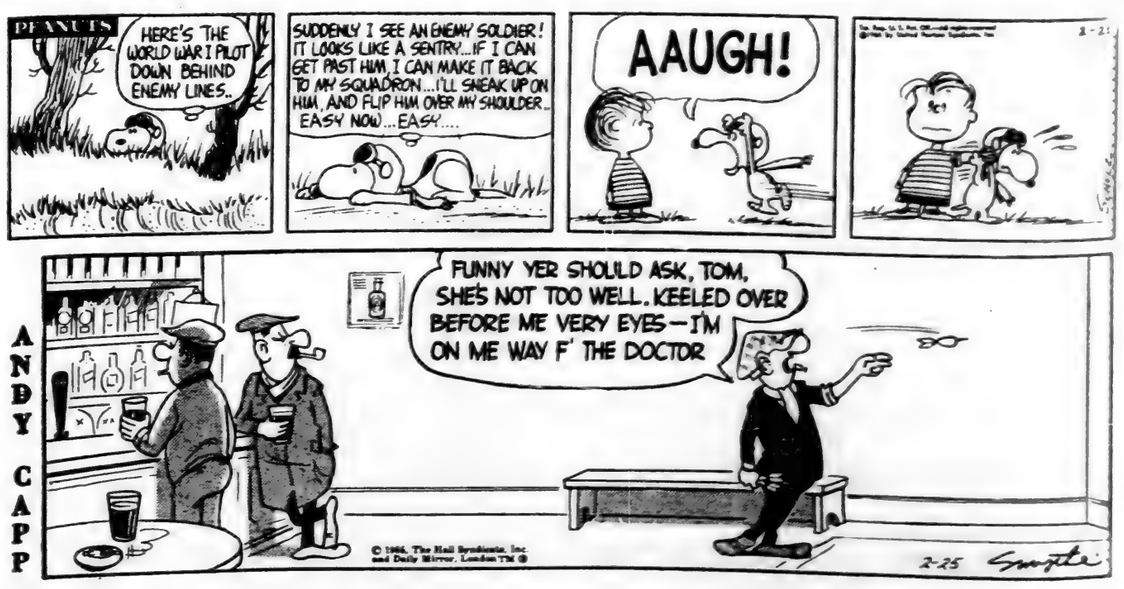
Principle products are corn, oats, soybeans, beef, pork, and poultry. When Soviet leader Khrushchev toured the United States he was particularly interested in our tremendous agricultural productivity and spent considerable time as a guest of the owner and operator of a typical modern Iowa farm.

It should be noted, however, that the value of Iowa's industrial output last year was roughly three and one-half times the value of its agricultural output. In addition to toiling in such agriculture - related industries as farm machinery and meat-packing. Iowans also produce on a large scale such diversified products as refrigerators, air conditioners, washing machines, buttons, and radio equipment, among many others.

One firm in Cedar Rapids produces much of the intricate and complex radio equipment that soars into outer space with our astronauts, and regularly gains million-dollar contracts from the federal government for reserach and development in the space field.

To keep this short, I will simply add that Iowa is not flat, and Iowa does not produce much wheat! Iowa has no speaker controversy (although it is conceivable that such a misfortune could happen in any state), and it is quite easy (and legal) to buy an honest - to - goodness drink in the state, although the liquor laws are strictly enforced and penalties fr violations (such as drunk driving) are severe.

Iowa, of course, has its problems, as do all states, and all states have their claims to fame, but in any objective analysis one can only conclude that Iowa was surely blessed by God. Perhaps not all young Iowa girls take ballet lessons, but believe it or not, there are some who do. It helps their basketball.



'But What About The People?'

Talented Children Deserve Special Attention

This is the second excerpt from the book "But What the People?" by Terry Sanford, published at 1966 by Harper & Row, New York.

By TERRY SANFORD

PART II.

WHAT ABOUT THE TALENTED?

One evening John Ehle and I were talking about some of the special needs and the special challenges and he asked a question. "Why don't we find a campus and set up a resident school for high school students who have unusually high academic ability?" We have not done it yet, but born of that idea were some other new approaches to public education.

John Ehle is a novelist. He was at Chapel Hill when I first knew him, teaching at UNC. Through common friends he had suggested several good ideas to me.

I invited John Ehle to dinner and he stayed two years. If I were to write a guidebook for new governors, one of my main suggestions would be that he find a novelist and put him on his staff.

North Carolina had already started considering a statewide program to challenge the gifted student to more excellent accomplishment. The neglect of these students had been one of our most needless wastes of human resources. Too many simply took school as they found it, drifting along with little effort and consequently little development.

GLAMORIZE STUDIES

We wanted to find a way to do some research of our own, and we wanted to glamorize superior academic efforts by superior students. So we put part of John Ehle's idea into being.

This was to be a summer school for rising juniors and seniors from the high schools of North Carolina. The student body of 400 was to be selected from those students with superior ability and performance or unusual artistic ability. There would be no charge to the student, so selection could be on merit alone.

At Salem, College, in Winston - Salem, President Dale H. Gramley was willing to let us use his campus during the summer months. The Carnegie Corporation thought it such a good idea that it put up half the money required for a three-year period. The businessmen of Winston - Salem agreed with Carnegie and put up the other half, for a total budget of $450,000.

The State Board of Education called it the "Governor's Scool" and opened the first session in the summer of 1963. We wanted to see what gifted students could do and learn in an unlimited academic environment. For eight weeks the challenges to unleash their minds were laid before them and all around them. For most of the students this was a completely new approach to education, and their response was overwhelmingly favorable.

Each student spent 18 classroom hours a week in his major - interest areas: mathematics, English, French, social sciences, natural sciences, art, choral music, instrumental music, or dance and drama. Each spent three hours in a minor area and four hours in a class of "Essential Ideas."

The drama students performed to capacity audiences of Winston-Salem people. There was a symphony, a choir, and an art show of the students' works.

WELL-BALANCED GROUP

There was plenty of recreation, plenty of athletic activity. This was a well-balanced group. No grades or credits were given. There were no tests or assigned homework, as such. But the students worked harder and longer than they ever had before. They read widely and well, and were allowed to take some books home with them, as a start toward a personal library.

FORMER GOVERNOR TERRY SANFORD is entertained by a young musician.

Some 3,000 teachers have visited the school. Each group is given a morning orientation program and spends part of the day observing the students and the teachers in action. The response of these teachers, as well as those who have taught in the school, give some indication of its impact on the state:

A California professor, who wanted to teach high school for a summer, said, "If we could only do this with students like these for nine months, the result would be almost beyond imagination."

This indeed is a laboratory of learning which should demonstrate a useful l lessons for the entire school system, as well as furnish a new challenge for students capable of superior accomplishment.

* * *

In the summer of 1962 I attended for a weekend the Transylvania Music Camp, in the mountains of Western North Carolina at Brevard, which is one of the best in the country and draws students from all over the South. Sitting on the porch of the lodge on Sunday, eating a picnic lunch with the director and founder of the camp, James Christian Pfohl, and Mrs. Pfohl, we talked about his students and their opportunity to develop their talents.

"Why," I asked him, "do we not have a music conservatory like the Julliard in North Caroina, or somewhere in the South?"

"Because," he said, "nobody ever started one."

On the way back to Raleigh I wrote out a directive setting up a study commission. "Look into the possibilities of a music conservatory in North Carolina which would be organized to serve this entire region. Where should it be located? What would be the costs? How should it be organized?" I appointed a group of knowledgeable citizens, with Mrs. Martha Milenburg of Charlotte as chairman.

The committee collected basic facts and figures, sought the advice of arts leaders, and turned in a report which gave me almost more than I had bargained for. Yes, said their unanimous report, we need a music conservatory, but we need more than just that. In addition, we need a residential high school for the arts.

But was this the approach? I sent the report to a number of performing artists and asked their opinions. The response was more than encouraging. All these very busy people not only took time to read the report but were uniformly enthusiastic.

So we had the plan, and we had the encouragement, and now we had to find the best way to get the program started.

It was certain that if we went to the legislature and failed we would eliminate all hope of foundation support. The plan would be dead.

I decided to take the chance. I had a hunch that when he legislators had finished mending the state's pants they would be willing to buy a top hat.

As the House debate progressed one well - educated representative spoke forcefully against the proposal. "I just don't think we ought to spend the money to learn people to pick banjers and toe-dance," he said in mockery. Another said that if his son were to mention ballet to him he'd send him to another institution — a mental institution.

Then there rose for recognition our venerable veteran curmudgeon, John Kerr, a former Speaker of the House, whose support of the administration had been nothing like consistent. He had ridiculed many a bill to death in his generation of service. What would he say?

John Kerr, like most of us, has his failings, but he is an aristocrat in the pure definition of the word. This was a cause natural to the spirit of an aristocrat. He understood fully the meaning of the arts to a civilization. His speech was the most eloquent of the entire session: ". . . the beauty and glory of Ancient Greece have not faded one iota . . . Why shouldn't we take the leadership in this . . . let's build something for the future . . . this is North Carolina's next venture in an age of intellectual development." . . . He ridiculed, but he ridiculed the opponents of the bill.

"There may be toe dancing," he concluded, "but if there is I want to be in the audience."

The bill passed by the surprising margin of 80 to 18. It also passed the Senate by an equally safe margin. The sum of $325,000 was appropriated, contingent on obtaining matching private funds. The bill set up a "school for the professional training of students having exceptional talents in the performing arts."

The Advisory Board visited the four cities which had made bids for the school, and recommended Winston - Salem where a 30-acre school site with adequate classrooms, auditorium and gymnasium had been made available. Winston-Salem citizens, in a 48-hour campaign, had pledged a million dollars for dormitories.

The Advisory Board suggested the name "North Carolina School of the Arts," and recommended that Vittorio Gianni be elected president. Professor Gianni recruited the finest possible faculty and opened his school in September of 1965.

Artists from all over the United Staes began to catch the enthusiasm of the first state - supported school of the arts in America.

And from the North Carolina hills and the Tennessee mountains came the guitarists and the banjo pickers . . . for pickin' and singin' is a grand art in the mountains. And on the first day of auditions, Jesus Silva, young protege of Andrew Segovia the man who revived guitar as a concert instrument, heard this raw talent and noted dryly on one of the applications "uses pick . . . needs instruction."

The auditions represented the crucial moment in the life of the school. The legislature and the foundations had given it breath; the city-county school board had released Gray High School to house it; the people of Winston-Salem had contributed a million dollars for its sustenance; Dr. Gianni had convinced a dazzling faculty to serve the idea.

But all of this had beendone on faith — the faith that there were boys and girls in North Carolina and the South whom God had blessed with the talent to grow as artists if given the encouragement, the stimulation and the outlet. More than 500 boys and girls came from all around the state and the south and a few from across the country to the auditions.

When the tensions and the tears were over and some were chosen and some were not, Giannini said, "The auditions more than confirmed our faith that the school can serve a great purpose. For so many children who cannot afford private instruction the school is a godsend."

One father from South Bend indiana who enrolled two young sons in violin and cello said to us "This is fantastic. The country's quite excited about your new school. It is amazing that North Carolina would be the pioneer when there are other huge states with enormous wealth that could have undertaken this . . . you might say that yours is the first state legislature to recognize that man does not live by bread alone."

Television Today

WUNC (Ch. 4)

8:55 News
9:00 U. S. History
9:30 Phys Science
10:00 World History
10:30 Mathematics
11:00 French-Student
12:00 Aspect
12:30 Mid-Day News
12:45 Sign Off
5:00 What's New
5:30 Apsect
6:00 News
6:15 Spectrum
6:45 Friendly Giant
7:00 Origami
7:30 What's New
8:00 Scapen
9:20 ACC Swim Meet: Championships
10:00 Sign Off

WUNC HIGHLIGHTS

SPECTRUM — 6:15 p.m. This evening's "science magazine" contains two articles: the first dealing with psychosomatic medicine as cameras in New York City's Montefiore Hospital focus on work being done by the hospital's Psychosomatic Service — explained by Doctors Hyman Bakst and Janet Kennedy, co - directors of the hospital's experimental service dealing with the significance of emotional factors in prognosis of a patient's illness. The second article focuses on a roving automaton, "Mod Two," a machine designed to exist and explore environments hostile to man. Explaining how the machines work, Dr. George Carlton notes that these may be used to explore the ocean floor and extra - terrestrial bodies for man.

ORIGAMI — 7:00 p.m. — "Helmet" Japanese artist T. Mikami shows a model of an old samurai helmet — the helmet of a Japanese nobleman or knight — then folds one out of paper. He talks more about the samurai and their armor, illustrating his talk with a model of a warrior in full dress and quick brush paintings of a samurai on a horse.

SCAPEN — 8:00 p.m. — Performed by the APA (Association of Producing Artists) this delightful farce by the French playwright Moliere was presented at the Phoenis Theatre in New York in the 1964 winter and spring season. It deals with the illusory and deceptive escapades of Scapin, a valet to an Italian nobleman, who ingeniously plots a double ransom scheme in a romantic quadrangel. In three acts, the entire play takes place in a public square in Naples.

SPECIAL: THE ACC SWIM MEET — CHAMPIONSHIP FINALS — 9:20 p.m. This special program is presented live from Raleigh via the remote facilities of the North Carolina Educational Television facilites at North Carolina State University.

WRAL (Ch. 5)

5:30 Aspect
6:45 Ray Wilkinson-Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike Hight Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare - Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:00 Superman
4:30 Early Show: WOMAN EATERS: Vera Day
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Batman (C)
7:30 The Flintstones (C)
8:00 Tammy (C)
8:30 The Addams Family
9:00 Honey West
9:30 The Farmer's Daughter (C)
10:00 The Jimmy Dean Show
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: LET NO MAN WRITE MY EPITAPH: Burl Ives

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

BATMAN — 7:00 p.m. — The heinous hatter prepares to reduce Batman to a factory reject by using shearing knives, mechanical stretchers and shrinking acid.

THE FLINTSTONES — 7:30 p.m. — Gazoo grants Fred a wish — to change places with his employer.

TAMMY — 8:00 p.m. — Tammy is chosen to star in a TV commercial.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY — 8:30 p.m. — Ophelia taunts Uncle Fester into announcing that he will join the Peace Corps.

WTVD (Ch.11)

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search Tomorrow
12:45 Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 Match Game (c)
5:00 TBA
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Evening News
6:30 CBS Evening News
7:00 Gilligan's Island
7:30 Wild Wild West
8:30 Hogan's Heroes
9:00 Gomer Pyle (c)
9:30 I Dream of Jeannie
10:00 I Spy (c)
11:00 Late News
11:30 Tonight Show (c)

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Tell's target
6. N. T. book
10. Enticed
11. Units of illumination
13. Mountain formation
14. Bucolic
15. Pose
16. External world, philosophically
17. Annoying
20. Follows train, don, assign, etc.
21. Character in "Macbeth"
22. Fight term, for short
24. Follow
25. Whirring sounds
28. Every: abbr.
29. Roam
30. Word of disgust
32. Promises
34. Billfold
36. Polish
38. Korean, for one
39. Ablaze
41. Disburse
42. Thrust
43. Woos
44. Wrath

DOWN

1. Old time exclamation
2. Early settler in New England
3. Subterfuge
4. Permit
5. Dutch commune
6. Article with strings
7. One-time Chinese capital
8. Ripped
9. "The boards"
12. Astringent fruit
16. Greek island
18. Water board
19. The object of 43 across, perhaps
21. Exist
23. Commanding
25. Not good
26. Rise again
27. Relative of jr.
29. Moist
30. Ten-pounders bloated off Hawaii
31. Hornets
33. Furnishes temporarily
35. Place
37. Beverage
39. Wing
40. Merriment

B	A	S	A	L	■	C	H	E	L	A
A	M	P	L	E	■	A	A	R	O	N
S	U	R	E	■	E	N	S	I	G	N
E	R	E	■	O	D	D	■	N	E	E
■	■	■	A	L	L	A	Y	S	■	■
R	E	D	E	E	M	■	H	A	T	E
O	V	E	N	S	■	S	I	R	E	N
B	A	R	D	■	D	E	F	I	N	E
■	■	■	S	H	O	R	T	S	■	■
A	S	S	■	A	L	B	■	T	O	A
R	E	C	U	L	L	■	L	A	N	D
A	T	O	L	L	■	C	I	T	E	D
R	A	T	E	S	■	P	E	E	R	S

Yesterday's Answer

2-25

SIDNEY POITIER
SHELLEY WINTERS
ELIZABETH HARTMAN
a PATCH OF BLUE
1, 3, 5, 7:01 & 9:02 RIALTO, DURHAM

I'M SO PROUD— I JUST PICKED OUT A UNIQUE GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS

Ledbetter Pickard

THE BOOK THE WORLD COULD NOT LAY DOWN IS NOW A MOTION PICTURE.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES presents
RICHARD BURTON
CLAIRE BLOOM
OSKAR WERNER
" THE SPY WHO CAME IN FROM THE COLD "
A MARTIN RITT PRODUCTION

NOW PLAYING
Shows at 1:00 - 3:02
5:04 - 7:00 - 9:08
CAROLINA

FREE MONEY!!
BANLON SHIRTS
All Sizes & Colors
$3.00 each
* * * *
New Shipment of
Alpaca Sweaters
Red, Light Blue, Antique Gold, Navy, Carrot
ALL SIZES
Cardigans ... $13.75
Pull-Overs .. $11.75
* * * *
MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Over Sutton's Drug
Open 9:30 - 5:30 Mon.-Sat.

Stunning
Diamond Rings

Brilliant Solitaire in Rich 14K Gold
$150.00

14K Gold Continental Design Diamond Solitaire Ensemble
$300.00

Beautiful Diamonds
at
Student Prices
AND EASY TERMS
WELDON'S JEWELERS
327 W. Main St. Durham
The Students' Jeweler for 26 Years

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA
Friday Night Special
COMBINATION SEAFOOD PLATTER
Fried Haddock, Shrimp, Oyster, Scallop, Deviled Crab, Hush Puppies, French Fries, Cole Slaw, Lemon Wedge and Tartar Sauce $1.00
SNACK BAR
Special Anytime
Pizza – Spaghetti – Raviola – Hickory Smoked Barbecue
Fried Chicken – Sandwiches – Ala Cartes and Carry Outs.
OPEN DAILY EXCEPT SATURDAYS
The Popular Place to Meet, Snack or Dine

Humphrey Report To Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, reporting to Congressmen on his mission to Asia, said yesterday American and South Vietnamese fighting men are giong to intensify their assaults on the Viet Cong.

"The tide of battle has turned," Humphrey said, echoing President Johnson.

But the Vice President said no quick or easy solution is in sight in the Vietnamese war.

Humphrey spent about four hours reporting at a series of White House briefings on his nine-nation Asian journey.

The Vice President said he returned with "a spirit of restrained optimism and confidence" that the Communists can be beaten in South Viet Nam and a better life created for the people there.

"We have now reached the stage," Humphrey told newsmen after briefing some 200 senators and representatives, "where our military forces can sustain a planned, methodical forward movement."

He said U. S. and South Vietnamese forces are aiming continuous and effective operations at Viet Cong guerrillas who once could choose when and where they fought.

"And this will be intensified," Humphrey said.

He said military operations will be coupled with a drive to win economic and social reforms for the South Vietnamese people.

On another front, the protest of a Johnson critic blocked an administration bid to speed senate action on a bill to authorize $4.8 billion in new war spending.

Assistant Democratic Leader Russell B. Long of Louisianna sought Senate consent to limit the debate, now a week old. It only took one objectin to block the move, and that came from Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore. Morse said he will seek a vote Monday on his move to rescind a two-year old resolution in which Congress approved the use of armed force in Viet Nam. Johnson has cited the measure as Congressional backing for his policy.

Humphrey talked first to Congressional leaders of both parties, then to members to the House and Senate committees directly concerned with the war in Viet Nam.

President Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other top administration officials were on hand in the White House East Room.

Humphrey said afterward there were no antagonistic questions.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., put it this way:

"There wasn't a dove fluttering anywhere—the doves were there but they weren't fluttering."

Apparently the hawks were. Humphrey said some lawmakers declared the United States should do more to win the struggle.

U. S. Infantrymen Hurl Back Viet Cong Assault

SAIGON, (AP) — U. S. infantrymen hurled back a fierce Viet Cong assault in a 3 1-2 - hour battle yesterday in the jungle 30 miles north of Saigon and estimated they killed nearly 200. They found 89 dead and captured 11 wounded.

Hundreds of Red guerrillas, backed by mortars and recoilless rifles, struck across a mine field at 2:30 a.m. against the comand post of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division's 1st brigade, which is assigned to a road - building mission near Tay Binh.

Hammered by defensive fire that ranged from M-14 rifle bullets to 175 mm artillery shells', the Viet Cong pulled back in defeat at dawn. AP photographer Eddie Adams, who was on the scene, reported some American units posted outside the perimeter wire had been hit hard, but overall casulaties in the 2,500 - man brigade were light.

Briefing officers told of a half dozen lesser engagements of Allied and Communist forces in the coastal provinces and further air raids on military targets and communications lines of North Viet Nam.

U. S. Navy plans flew six missions over the North Wednesday through overcast that ranged up to 2,000 feet, with some heavy rain. Guided by radar, they bmbed a stretch of highway 36 miles southwest of Vinh and a river ford 36 miles west of Dong Hoi.

U. S. Air Force jets hit at Barracks three miles south of Dien Bien Phu. Pilots said they destroyed two buildings and cratered the approach to a highway bridge nearby.

Below the border, ground troops and Naval gunners were involved in sporadic action along the South China Sea coast:

—The U. S. Light guided missile cruiser Tokepa lobbed 114 six - inch shells on entrenchments of a Viet Cong battalion sighted by government troops Wednesday in Quang Tri province, which adjoins North Viet Nam's frontier. Spotters said the Viet Cong were pinned down in encircling patterns of fire.

House Committee Closes Hearings On Ku Klux Klan

WASHINGTON (AP)— The House Committee on Un-American Activities closed public hearings yesterday on the Ku Klux Klan after getting what one member called "a sordid picture of bigotry, hate, burnings, floggings and violence."

Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., acting chairman, said the next step is to draft laws to deal with Klan-type activities.

Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., who described the "sordid picture," and Rep. Charles L. Welter, D-Ga., both said the people of the South were overwhelmingly opposed to activities which the testimony showed were associated with the Klan.

"We must not leave the impression we are closing the Klan book," Weltern said, "We will leave it open."

He added that "the challenge is in the hands of the people of the South" to show they will not let the terrorists exist.

Pool said the 35 days of public hearings spread over five months had "completely explored that Klan's phony claims about 100 per cent Americanism, patriotism, their being law abiding, etc."

He said he believed the testimony will cause "more and more Klansmen to leave the ranks of these organizations and will reveal to all others the true and repulsive nature of the Klan."

North Carolina News Roundup

NAACP Challenges Beaufort

NEW BERN (AP) — The Beaufort County Board of Education's "freedom of choice" desegregation plan was challenged in U. S. District Court yesterday by the NAACP and a group of Beaufort County Negroes.

They filed a suit seeking preliminary and permanent injunctions against the school board enjoining it from continuing to enforce the plan, which the suit charges discriminates against the plaintiffs.

Beaufort County Schools Superintendent W. F. Veasey said in Washington, N. C., that he was surprised to learn of the action, and noted that the county's plan for compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Act had been approved by the U. S. Office of Education.

The suit charges that the Beaufort County public schools are "maintained and administered" on a racially segregated basis.

Since the 'freedom of choice" plan was approved, the complaint says the board publicized the names of 26 Negro students who applied for transfers to schools which were previously all-white.

The complaint contends the publication of these names in a newspaper subjected Negroes to harrassment, threats and intimidation.

The plaintiffs said 12 of the 26 students requesting transfers either withdrew their applications or withdrew from school after assignment because of threats, harrassment and intimidation.

The suit seeks to force the school board to complete desegregation of faculties and school personnel in the school system and that teachers and personnel be employed and assigned without regard to race or color.

Fayetteville Classes Resume

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Classes were scheduled to resume at Fayetteville State College this morning following a two-day boycott by students over administration practices.

George Langford of Petecasi, in Northampton County, president of the student body and head of a 14-member student grievance committee, said the decision to resume classes was reached after a meeting with college officials yesterday morning.

Langford said Rudolph Jones, president of the college, and the administration agreed to comply with most of the grievances offered.

Langford said the two-day protest was aimed "at getting the faculty and administration to give us respect and responsibilities."

Fayetteville State is predominately a Negro College, but Langford emphasized there was no race issue involved in the protest.

Jones said he and the administration "are willing to make every effort to meet with their students legitimate complaints."

Langford said the grievances ask that the faculty and administration be more courteous to students; furnish free newspapers; prohibit dormitory rules; lift restrictions on curfews and allow students to take a more active part in the college's policy-making affairs.

"Too many of the faculty members regard us as children," Langford said. "We want as much as anything to be treated like adults."

Langford said almost all of the 1,180 students participated in the boycott.

Porth Trial Nears End

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Robert E. Porth murder trial neared the jury stage Thursday as the defense rested its case without calling the 57-year-old missile engineer to testify.

Defense attorney James Booker and Solicitor Thomas W. Moore presented their closing arguments to the all-male jury during the afternoon.

Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain was to charge the jury before it began deliberations.

Porth is charged with first degree murder in the death of his wife, Mrs. Hilda Jerry Borchardt Porth, 56. He has pleaded innocent.

Booker again asked that the charge be dismissed after he rested the defense's case at 11:30 a.m. He said the state had presented insufficient evidence to prove premeditation. Judge Fountain again denied the motion.

The last defense witness was John Counts, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., barber who said he wished to marry Mrs. Nancy Johnson, 33, a divorced mother of five who was a star witness for the prosecution.

The pretty divorcee testified Monday about her romance with Porth prior to his wife's death. Mrs. Johnson said the Winston-Salem missile engineer asked her last summer to marry him in October.

Mrs. Porth's bruised body was found on a mountainside near Pulaski, Va., last Aug. 14. Dr. Geoffrey Mann, Virginia state medical examiner, has testified that the cause of death was multiple injuries caused by a blunt instrument.

Coup Ousts Nkrumah

Army Revolt Overthrows Ghana Chief

ACCRA, Ghana—(AP) — An army revolt toppled President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana yesterday while he was in Peking. Announcement of the coup brought thousands of celebrators into the streets of Accra in a carnival of drinking, dancing and merrymaking.

A boradcast over Ghana Radio by Col. E. K. Kotoka, identified as the revolt leader, leader, announced that the 10,000-man army had taken over the government, dissolved parliament and dismissed the president.

"The myth surrounding Kwame Nkrumah has been broken," the colonel said.

U. S. officials in Washington declined any comment on the reported ouster. But the impression in Washington is that nobody really minds the fall of this man who ruled over his country with an iron hand.

The embassy reported that as far as can be ascertained all Americans are safe. They have been warned by the embassy to stay off the streets.

There are 1,529 Americans in Ghana, including 122 Peace Corps volunteers, most of them teachers.

State Department officials said the military coup seems to be well organized and its leaders appear to be more or less in control of the situation.

Nkrumah studied in the United States at Lincoln University in Pennsylvania, and also at London's School of Ecnomics. Lately he described himself as a Marxist socialist—he received Moscow's Lenin Peace Prize in 1961.

Nkrumah clashed with the United States last November when Washington rejected Ghana's request for $100 million in food for peace aid over seven years. The rejection "coincided" with Washington's displeasure over Nkrumah's book in which he accused the United States of being a neo-colonialist power seeking to exploit and divide the nations of Africa.

The coup in Ghana was the fourth this year in Africa and the seventh in nine months on that continent.

The coup in Ghana was widely regarded in London last night as a source of embarrassment for the Chinese Communists in Africa, where their diplomacy already is in trouble.

President Kwame Nkrumah arrived in Peking last night in the world capital that was soon toppled his regime in Ghana.

The Chinese Communists seem to have offered no comment. They were in the position of playing hosts to a man whose whole power base was cut from under him.

Army coups in other African nations — particularly those in the former French colonies—have in recent months brought out civilian regimes that had begun moving toward Peking.

In addition, Kenya and other African nations have been angered by what they call Chinese meddling in their affairs.

The Chinese Reds pitched their drive in Africa on the theme that they were members of a colored race and were better partners for the black Africans than the Russians.

Four hours after the announcement of the coup, fighting between troops and the presidential security guard was reported still eddying around Nkrumah's residence.

Small arms fire could be heard and smoke from burning vehicles and buildings could be seen from outside the walled compound that houses the government executive offices.

The coup broadcast a warning to any unidentified voice or face presidential security forces to "lay down their arms and surrender."

However, jubilant crowds surged through the downtown streets of the steamy seacoast capital and gathered across the Usshen Fort Prison at the waterfront where Nkrumah's regime had jailed rivals.

Shops and stores were closed and traffic snarled.

Crowds near the presidential palace were unaccustomed to the army interspersed with classical music.

There seemed to be little disappointment at the ouster of the man who created his own personality cult and ruled this nation of 7.4 million persons with an iron regime.

Mrs. Wallace Will Run For Alabama Governorship

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) —Gov. George Wallace's wife, Lurleen, became a candidate for Governor of Alabama yesterday with a forecast of victory from her husband and a promise to let him run the show if she is elected.

The 39-year-old Mrs. Wallace told a cheering throng which jammed the historic house of representatives chamber that she will seek the Democratic nomination in the May 3 party primary.

She said she would run as a "stand-in" candidate for her husband who is barred by law from seeking re-election. His term ends in January.

Wallace, standing at his wife's side, predicted to the hundreds of placard-waving followers that "Mrs. Wallace will win." He promised at the same time that "not a single dime of state funds or facilities (including cars and planes) will be used" in the campaign.

The honey-blonde first lady, who abandoned a childhood ambition to become a nurse and instead married a young lawyer who was destined to become governor, made her unprecedented announcement of her candidacy at a news conference which resembled a political convention.

Wallace had invited the public to attend and they came from every corner of the state. Placards pledging support in each of the state's 67 counties fluttered above the crowd.

Mrs. Wallace told her whooping followers, "my election will enable my husband to carry on his programs for the people."

She promised to continue the "progress, prosperity and honest, efficient government which has been so much in evidence during the administration of my husband. The overwhelming support of his administration by the people indicates they want and demand a continuation of the policies and practices he has inaugurated and conducted."

Wallace told the crowd that the campaign will be a "test of his own popularity and that he will continue as Governor for all practical purposes if his wife wins. He said he would be her "No. 1 assistant at $1 a year."

Wearing a tiny American flag in the lapel of his dark blue suit, Wallace also renewed his promise to expel any student at a state-supported college who is caught signing petitions or donating clothing or blood in support of the Viet Cong.

Until this year, no woman had ever run for Governor of Alabama. Mrs. Wallace already has one feminine opponent, Mrs. Ralph Price, but few if any politicians have taken her candidacy seriously. She is only 23 and the state constitution says a governor must be at least 30 years old.

Despite Wallace's strong segregationist stand, neither he nor his wife had much to say about the state's recurring racial problems.

WANT ADS

WANTED: RESOURCEFUL college girl to exercise small boy for two hours every day. Call Mrs. Schlesinger, 942-2074.

CARS FOR SALE. WHOLESALE. Any make or model. All cars are guaranteed. Contact Gordon Barnes in 302 Mangum or call 968-9985.

FOR RENT: TWO BEDROOM air-conditioned mobile home. Available March 1st. $75 per month. Call 942-1749 or 942-3268.

NEW - TEATIME SALE TODAY

Friday 4 P.M. TIL 8 P.M. Friday

ANY RECORD – ALL LABELS – REGARDLESS OF PRICE

NEW STOCKS

MONO and STEREO

$2.25 PER RECORD

NO DEALERS

TODAY ONLY

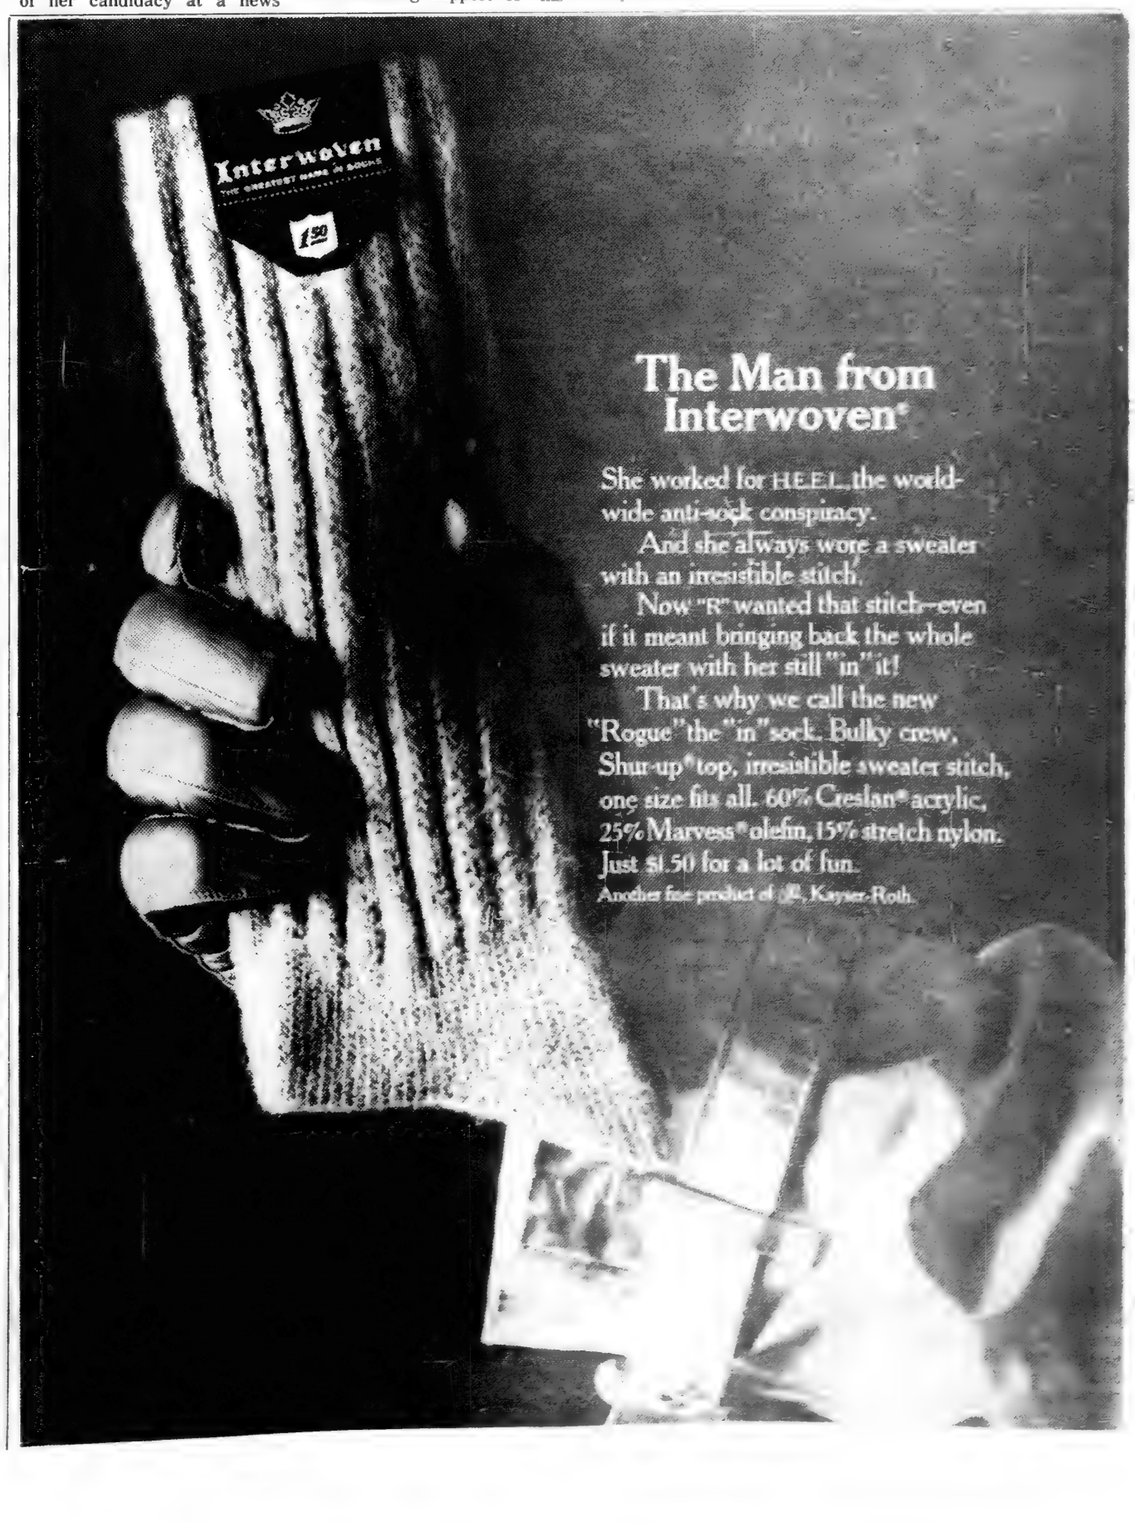
FRIDAY 25th

DOORS OPEN 4 P.M. SHARP

KEMP'S

CLOSE AT 8 P.M. SHARP

205 East Franklin Street — Chapel Hill



Gene Rector

DTH Sports Editor

Duke, UNC Frosh Tangle Tonight

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Sports Information Directors are people who, among many, many other things, release to the press announcements of their school's upcoming athletic events.

The SID at Duke is Dick Brusie, and here is a part of the lead paragraph from his release heralding tonight's Tar Baby-Blue Imp scrap at Duke Indoor Stadium, which closes the season for both clubs:

". . . in a contest that could produce as many thrills as Saturday's matinee meeting between the schools' varsity squads."

Mr. Brusie is regarded as a very competent man, and the foregoing statement may turn out to be as close to precisely correct as any he's ever made.

"It's really hard to beat a team three times in one season," said UNC's Larry Brown—and the turnabout last Tuesday night up in Winston-Salem will certainly attest to that.

"They were pretty tough over here," Brown continued, "and they'll be even tougher at home. They are having quite a build-up for this game, I understand. Their varsity cheerleaders will be going for them and I know the team will be ready.

"Duke hasn't lost but once since we beat them over here (Jan. 7), and that was to Davidson (85-82) down there. And you know how a team improves over the season. I'm sure we'll have to play a top game to beat them.

"But," the classy young man said with a wide grin and a sparkle in his eye, "if my boys are right, we'll be okay."

Indeed they should be, but Duke has a club which is averaging 90.4 points per game, winning 11 of its 15 contests. And as Brown said, it should be a tough game.

Individually, guard Dave Golden has rushed up to tie center Steve Vandenburg for the lead in scoring, each holding averages of 15.8.

Vandenburg is a 6-7 middle man who has been virtually ineffective in two previous bouts with UNC's Rusty Clark, managing only nine and five points while Clark has hit 27 and 17.

Golden is a good-shooting guard who ran hot in the second half in the two teams' last meeting and scored 24 points for the night. He's a high school All-American from Illinois.

The third-high-scorer on the club is Golden's guardmate, Gene Bromstead, another Illinois boy who hits 15.1 per game. They're billing Gene as another Steve Vacendak, and his high scoring mark was 34 against Southwood.

A fourth Duke starter who was highly impressive in the second Carmichael Auditorium match was 6-7 forward Fred Lind (11.2) The husky, bespectacled frontliner snatched 15 rebounds and got several tap - ins off his offensive basket while scoring 17 points. And that's a strong all - round game against the UNC frosh frontcourtmen.

C. B. Claiborne is the fifth Duke starter. He's the only first - stringer averaging out of double figures (8.0), but his defense has been a big asset to the fine season which Duke has put together. He's the first Negro to be given a grant - in - aid to Duke, and he's as quick as a cat.

Missing from the Duke lineup will be Larry Dempsey, who tormented UNC with some fine shooting earlier and scored as high as 26 points (Southwood) before leaving the team for spring football practice. Greensboro's Larry is a football grant - in - aider, so it comes first.

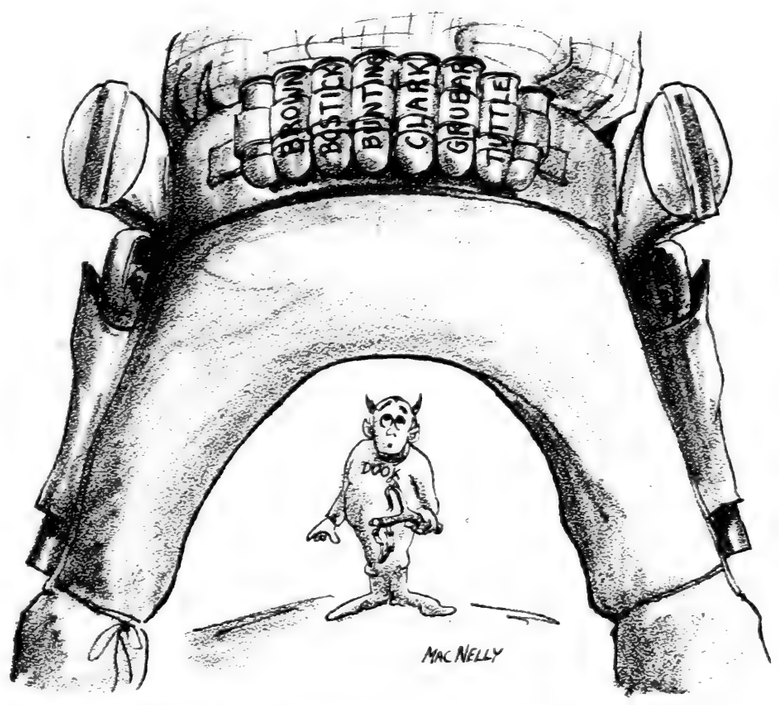
The Tar Babies, still firing at a hot 54.1% have four men averaging in double figures and five men shooting better than 50 per cent.

Big Rusty Clark, who has poured it on heavy in second semester play to convince all rational doubters that here is a guy who "came to play," leads the Babies in scoring with a 20.9 average.

He had his six - game streak of scoring 20 or more points snapped against Southwood in the 85-63 win last Tuesday, when he hit 19. Big Russ' defense has also sparkled lately. Opposing players have driven down the lane or tried short jump attempts, only to have "The Big Redhead" as Larry Brown calls him) flick the ball away.

Bill Bunting is another defensive whiz who has stood out in the last few games. He has been acquiring foul trouble early rather consistently, lately, and thus his scoring average has fallen to 16.0, but Brown says "My boy Bill still doesn't let 'em (opposition) shoot when he's around."

Forward Joe Brown is waging a battle with Clark for high shooting percentage honors. Joe has hit 75-125 for an even 60%, and Rusty owns 121 baskets in 202 attempts for 59.6. Jim Bostick has hit 57 per cent (53-93), Dick Grubar (14.8 ave.) has hit 87-155 for a 56.1 shooting mark.



Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Meet Will Feature Former Prep Stars

By BOB ORR

The ACC Indoor Championship Track Meet this Saturday will feature a number of former North Carolina high school stars.

One of the more notable ones is shot putter Rod Stewart of Duke. He's from Burlington where he attended Walter Williams High. His high school record in the shot stood until 1964. Rod is the defending champion in the ACC meet. He's tossed 57 feet, 10 1-2 inches this season, more than one foot farther than the old record.

Another Duke standout, David Dunaway, blazed his way to track fame when he scored 17 points by himself in the 1963 North Carolina High School Championship Meet. The Jacksonville native won the 100 - yard dash, the 220, the high jump, and took third in the broad jump. He'll also be doing everything for the Blue Devils this Saturday.

The favorite in the conference two - mile is Maryland sohpomore David Starnes of Hendersonwille. He was State cross country champion for two years and won the half mile in the State Track Meet his senior year. The Hendersonville team won the team championships in cross country and track his senior year.

Another former N. C. high school track star is Clemson's Terry Gibbons of Charlotte. Representing Garinger High School, Terry won the high school mile run his senior year. He'll be entered in the conference mile run.

Another Charlotte runner, Duke's Bill Weldon, will be one of the favorites in the 100-yard run. The Myers Park product won the state championship in the half mile his senior year. Wake Forest's Al Viehman is from Shelby. He is one of the best distance runners in the conference. He was entered in the mile and the two mile.

Everett Case Will Miss ACC Tourney This Year

RALEIGH (AP) — A familiar face will be missing when the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament opens in Raleigh March 3.

Everett Case, ailing former North Carolina State coach, will not be able to attend.

"I wish I could see it, but I won't be able to go," said Case, his voice shaky and sad. "I haven't missed a tournament in 20 years."

Plagued by illness for nearly three years, Case was recently hospitalized with pneumonia. Now home in bed, he told the Associated Press in an interview, "I'm not feeling to well." He is suffering from myeloma, a disease of the bone.

Case and two ACC coaches, Dean Smith of North Carolina and Bobby Roberts of Clemson, agreed any of the eight teams stand a chance of winning the tournament.

"It's going to be a great tournament. Anything can happen," said Case, who came to N. C. Stae in 1947 and built the Wolfpack into a national basketball power. He retired in December, 1964, turning the job over to the man he selected to succeed him, Press Maravich.

Smith and Roberts agreed Duke and N. C. State will be the teams to beat. Commenting on Wake Forst's surprising 99-98 overtime upset of Duke, Smith said:

"Duke probably wasn't in a good frame of mind mainly because they had wrapped up the regular season honors and had beaten Wake Forest twice before. I think the defeat points out more Wake Forest's strength than Duke's weakness."

He termed Duke "The strongest rebounding team we've seen. Duke certainly should be the favorite along with State which will be playing at home. All of us, however, are in a darkhorse role and stand a chance."

Case commented on Duke's loss to Wake Forest by saying:

"I think a team can win too many games as well as loose too many. They take things for granted and get a little careless. A combination of things can result."

Roberts said, "Any team could possibly win the tournament. I think all of the teams are better than they were a year ago. No team is a shoe in."

Entrance Fee

Tickets for tonight's freshman basketball contest between the Duke frosh and the University of North Carolina will not be a free attraction.

Admission fee will be one dollar. Normally, freshmen encounters are free of charge but certain officials branded this game unfair competition for area high school attractions.

Joe Youngblood: Team Member Who Will Never Score A Basket

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Joe Youngblood works on the shining basketball floor of Carmichael Auditorium.

During the long hours of practice, Youngblood works with the likes of a man named Smith and two young men named Miller and Lewis.

During a basketball game he sits by the coaches and pulls for his team. You've seen him. He wears a dark grey suit. He's the tall boy with the blond hair.

Joe Youngblood holds down one of the toughest jobs in sports. He's never in the limlight and he's never worn the clean unifrom with

Looks Sewed Up To Me

CAROLINA laid out across the front. And no one has ever stood up and applauded him.

Last Tuesday night Joe sat in the press box and while his eyes watched the freshmen pull away from Southwood he talked about himself and his job.

"I became interested in basketball by playing at Christ School near Asheville, "Youngblood began, "and I've been in love with Carolina basketball ever since they won the championship in '57. I guess everyone in the state became real interested that year.

"One day during the fall of my freshman year I saw a friend who was one of the team's managers and I asked him how he did it.

"Then I spoke to Coach Smith and found out there was an opening. I'm in my fourth year at the job.

"I started off as the assistant freshman manager—lowest man on the totem pole. The next year I became head freshman manager and for the last two 'I have been head varsity manager.

"There are a thousand-and - one parts to this job that individually wouldn't mount up to anything. But together they add up to a lot of headaches. The hardest part is just thinking of all of them.

"I have quite a bit of responsibility. Balls, lights, the PA system, cokes, and the statistics. These are a lot of things that no one would ever know unless they were on the team.

"If you're a manager you do have a part in basketball here. It's indirect, but it has an effect nonetheless. Like if you 'ref' a good game during a practice scrimmage it makes the players play more carefully.

"You're so closely involved that you can't be above and beyond it. You only wish you were capable of getting up off the bench and helping them.

"I got to know the players quite well. I've been with a lot of teams, but this year's is the most fun to work with. Everyone is so easy to get along with.

"They don't use the manager as a personal errand boy. You're just one of the boys. You're not looked down upon. Once you get to knw them as friends you are just one of 13 men.

"The players are people just like anyone else. They are quite sensitive about the crowd. They feel great when they get a good hand, and they hate the booing worse than anything.

"I've gotten quite close to the coaches. I know them pretty well. Dean Smith is a very competant coach. He's a great man — a real fine man.

"There's no disappointment in this job. If you do it well the rewards are great."

How Could He Call That?

Coach Steele Looks For Better Season

By JIM FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

Coach Connie Steele is beginning his third season as lacrosse coach here and the prospects for having a winning season have never looked better.

Last year the team finished with a 5-2 record after having a dismal 1-5 record their first year.

Coach Steele says, "We are going to have a real fine team, and are looking for real good play from co-captains Jeff Parker and Harvey Stanley.

"However, the Gods just haven't been shining on us this year. Right now, we have four players, Jeff Parker, Jay Cubard, Rick Inderfurth, and Mitch Betty all out with the flu. Parker and Cubard are starters and all four players are going to be counted on for heavy play this year.

"In addition to having bad weather hamper practice, we have another player out with an injury and another sick.

Bill Bixerler hurt his ankle a couple of weeks ago and has just started to practice again, and Dick Frank has mono. I do not know if he'll be able to play any this season, but Bill should be ready to go by the first game.

"If things go alright for us, we should have a good season. We had a winning season last year and played some pretty good competition. This year we are playing even better competition.

Coach Steele

Gym Closed

All gym facilities will be closed Saturday, February 26 except for 8 and 10 o'clock physical education classes because the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Track Meet is being held Friday and Saturday in Woollen Gymnasium.

The gym will also be closed Friday for the meet.

Faculty Tourney Will Be In April

The second annual Sigma Phi Epsilon Faculty Golf Tournament will be held at Finley Golf Course April 20-11.

The tournament is open to all faculty members, and all golfers have a chance for a trophy. Since one trophy is given to low scratch score and also one for low handicap based on the Calloway system.

Started last year, there were about 30 participantes.

Harold Langenderfer was the low winner last year and Jim Nickey was the handicapw inner.

Chris Seawell, tournament director, says "We are hoping to have a better tournament than last year with more participants."

The Beatles, The Turtles, The Dave Clark Five, The Searchers, The Rolling Stones, and The Birds are all featured sounds of

THE SHADOWS

Saturday Night

Morrison Social Room

A very unique group in their British sound and dress — a campus favarite.

8-12

$1.50 per couple

A Wide Selection
Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry

135 East Franklin
942-1231

VITTORIO GASSMAN
DIRECT FROM ROME IN PERSON

IMAGINE A TOUR OF ITALIAN DRAMA THROUGH THE AGES, COSTUMED AND EXCITINGLY PERFORMED BY ITALY'S GREAT STAR OF STAGE AND MOTION PICTURES.

The Virtuoso Gassman and his troupe will perform a remarkable collection of scenes from Goldoni through Pirandello.

"The Games of Heroes" — One Night Only — February 28 — 8:15 p.m. — Ticket Prices — $2.50, $2.00, $1.50 — At Duke University Page Auditorium. Box Office Open Daily. Phone Reservation Accepted — Call 684-8111, ext. 4059.

THE NEW ORLEANS Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, featuring David Bar-Illan, a young Israeli pianist, will appear in concert at Memorial Hall today at 8 p.m. The program is sponsored by the Chapel Hill Concert Seires. Tickets for students are 50 cents; ducats for non-subscribers are $2 and $3 and may be bought at Danziger's or at the door.

Opportunities Available

By LYTT STAMPS
DTH Staff Writer

Rising juniors or seniors are eligible to be an exchange student to the University of Paris during '66-'67.

It will be the third year a UNC student will study in Paris. In return, a student from the Ecole Superieure d'Electricite in Paris will be here on a full scholarship from the Student Government.

The UNC student will be free to enroll in courses in any branch o fthe University of Paris. He will teach language 6-8 hours weekly, conducting his classes in English.

The UNC exchangee will receive 600 francs for teaching from Oct. 1 to July 1 In addition he will receive $450 for traveling round-trip.

The student will make all his arrangements for room and board. He can expect help in this from Monsieur Phillippe Olmer, director of the Ecole Superieure, and the present Paris Scholar, Jim Creech. He should contact them in advance.

The exchange student will report to Olmer by Oct. 1. He is expected to spent at least two months before then in reviewing the French language in France.

Selection will be based on academic ability, overall maturity, language proficiency and personal adaptability. To be eligible, the student must have had two semesters of French.

Applications must be turned into 216 Dey by noon, March 5. They may be found 216 Dey or at the Graham Memorial Information Desk.

Each applicant will be interviewed on the evening of March 9. He will be informed of the time and place.

Teenagers Fight For Good Grades

WEBSTER GROVES, MO., (AP) — Educators, parents and students in this upper-middle - class suburb pondered today a sociologist's report that Webster Groves' 16-year-olds are in a desperate fight for good grades for the wrong reasons.

Dr. Arthur Barron reported to the suburban St. Louis community yesterday that the 688 youngsters he studied over a six - month period have lost their youth because of tremendous pressure to make good grades, get into college and be a "success."

He said the main goal in life for 77 per cent of the 16 - year-olds is "a good - paying job, perhaps in other such communities across the nation.

Educators seemed disturbed by the report, which will be the basis of a CBS-tv special to night called "sixteen in Webster Groves".

Fred Zinn, Webster Groves chief of police, told Barron, "these kids are regimented to death."

Barron said; "These kids are being colonialized. They are the natives and their parents are the colonial administrators."

The result of this, Barron said, is a group of serious - minded youngsters, old beyond their years, battling for good grades because they feel them necessary for college. And they feel college necessary to affluency in later life.

Fifty - four per cent told Barron they had cheated on exams because of the pressure for grades.

Barron said some solutions to the problem might be getting the youths in summer projects to excape insulation and starting courses without grades "just for the sheer joy of it."

Barron, who holds a doctor's degree in sociology from Columbia University and produces sociological programs for CBS-TV, made the study with the University of Chicago's national opinion research center.

Each of the 688 pupils filled out 32 - page questionnairres and 100 underwent intensive interviews.

Barron said Webster Groves was selected for the study because it was typical of booming upper - middle - class suburbs in this country. He said other studies indicate that the findings in Webster Groves would hold true in other such suburbs.

The 16 - year - old were chosen for the study because that is the age at which they can drive, drop out of school, and "the age at which many seriously begin to question themselves."

Barron stressed that the Webster Groves teen - agers did not fit the sterotyped image of frivolous youth and, in fact, are "too good for their own good." He said very few get into trouble, homework takes up much of their out - of - school time, most want to go to college, and their attitudes on sex and drinking are very conventional.

—SP Convention—

(Continued from Page 1)

member of the Carolina Forum.

In commenting on his platform, Wilson said he felt that members of fraternities, sororities and graduate students have felt in the past that Student Government has forgotten them. "We hope to relieve these concepts," he said, "with a workable program which will benefit the entire student population.

"It is my desire to see the executive and legislative branches of student government untie with all students, members of the faculty and administration with a program that will insure the future greatness of this university."

Wilson was a vice presidential candidate last year but was defeated by UP candidate Britt Gordon. This year Wilson introduced a constitutional amendment whereby the president and vice president of the student body are elected on the same ballot. The amendment was passed overwhelmingly Tuesday by the student body.

The SP did not endorse a candidate for editor of The Daily Tar Heel. There were no nominations for student body Secretary or Treasurer either. These nominations will be made at 7 p.m. Monday evening in Carroll Hall.

SP Nominates 12 Of 18 Legislators

Legislative nominees from 12 of 18 districts on campus and nominees for the five senior class offices were named Wednesday night at the SP convention.

Senior Class nominees included Jim Brame, president; Jerry Houle, vice president; Alise Deemer, secretary, Tray Vars, treasurer and Carol Hopper for social chairman.

Legislative candidates include:

WD1—Jan Weuhrmann and Nancy Barrett; WD2—Malinda Wall and Ann Brownlee; WD3—Nancy Taylor; WD4—Ann Belcher and Elaine Codispoti; WD5—Marie Harris and Georgia Canton;

Also MD1—Haywood Smith and Pete Hellebush; MD4 — Jay Jacobsen; MD6 — Bob Travis and Steve Jolly; MD7 MD7 — George Krishbaum, Jed Deaks and Buddy Farfour; MD8 — Joe Auten and Sandy Hobgood; and MD12—Dick Levy, Eric Van Loon, Lacy Reaves and Frank Longest.

Entry Deadline For Contest

Deadline for entries in the annual William T. Polk business writing contest is February 28, Dr. Norval Neil Luxon of the School of Journalism announced.

The event, held each year in honor of the late associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News, is open to any staff member of any North Carolina daily or weekly newspaper who had published a story pertaining to business during the calendar year of 1965. Cash awards are given to the top three entries, and plaques are awarded to the winner and to his newspaper.

The contest is sponsored each year by the School of Journalism and Piedmont Associated Industries and awards are presented at a banquet

Seasonal Love In Free Flick

"Hallelujah The Hills" will be GM's free flick tonight at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall.)

By PEYTIE FEARRINGTON
DTH Staff Writer

Adolfas Mekas introduces the movie connoisseur to the New American Cinema. Kiss the French "nouvelle vague" good-bye; here comes our own rendition.

Thsi version of the eternal triangle takes a new turn as the plot lives through several years and climaxes with an unexpected fourth vertex.

Vera, the enduring heroine, alternates two suitors with the seasons. When the seven years die, and proposals finally emerge, both of the men are left in the lurch as Vera reveals her marriage to another.

Alas, but life ticks on. The thwarted duo forgives and forgets and skips off to a better day.

Perhaps this is not one of the deepest flicks, but then it was made on a shoestring and for a lark. It amply shows the French they are not the only ones who can be "nouvelle vague."

Carolina Events

TODAY

Carolina Christian Fellowship supper meeting at 6 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir. At 6:30 there will be a Bible Study on Hebrews 9:22-10:18. The regular meeting time has been temporarily changed from Thursdays to Fridays.

The Budget Committee will meet, 3:30-5:30, in Roland Parker III.

Freshman Class Newspaper Committee and staff and all interested will meet today in Roland Parker I in GM at 5 p.m.

UNC: SG: BI will hold interviews with both men and women for two positions as investigators. If interested make an appointment with Miss Williams in the Student Government Offices.

Freshman Class Communications Committee area coordinators will meet doay in Woodhouse in GM at 5 p.m.

Westminister Fellowship hosts a bowling party. Rides leave the Presbyterian Student Center at 7:15 p.m.

The 1966 Tri Delta Scholarship Competition is underway. Two scholarships will be awarded—each $150. The sorority's scholarship program is an international service, irrespective of fraternity affiliation. All women students of UNC are eligible to apply for the scholarships. Application blanks may be obtained from the Student Aid Office.

David Bar-Illan, young Israeli pianist, will appear with the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Order of the Grail will meet to address postcards for Invitation Sale Friday from 2-5 p.m. and Sunday, 2-5 p.m. Meet in the Grail Room of GM.

SATURDAY

The Seductives will appear in the New Ehringhaus Party Room from 8-12 o'clock at the season's best Combo Party sponsored by E-House of Ehringhaus. Couples only; one dollar admission. All tickets sold at the door.

All gym facilities will be closed Feb. 26 except for 8 and 10 a.m. P.E. classes because of ACC Track meet.

Morrison Residence College features the Shadows from 8 p.m.-1 a.m. Public invited. $1.25 a couple.

Maverick House will feature the Rogues Combo from 8-12 for couples only. Admission for MH residents is free and is $1 per couple for students.

Openers Needed

OCEANSIDE, CALIF., (AP) —Thirsty U. S. Marines serving at Da Nang, South Viet Nam, had a problem: plenty of cool beer but no way to drink it.

There was an acute shortage of beer can openers, and the beer wasn't in pull - top cans.

Sgt. Charles H. Chapman of Oceanside explained his outfit's dilemma to a friend, John Berutti, an Oceanside beer distributor.

Berutti contacted nearby Camp Pendleton Marine Base and a case of can openers was picked up and flown to Da Nang.

The 177 men of the 1st Bridge Co., 7th Engineer Battalion, soon possessed openers, with some to spare.

SUIT SALE

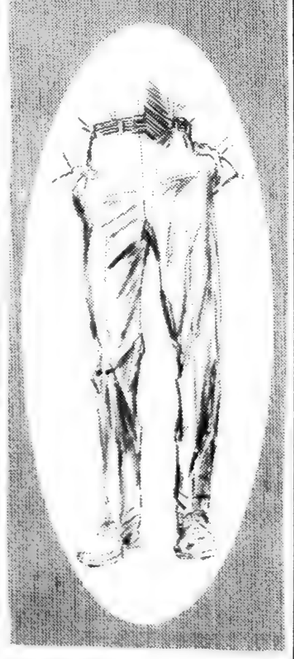
A large selection of fine imimported worsteds, herringbones, Glenn plaids and solids in natural shoulder clothing that guarantees a perfect fit.

Reg. 59.95 — NOW 39.88
Reg. 65.00 — NOW 44.88
Reg. 69.95 — NOW 49.88
Reg. 75.00 — NOW 54.88
Reg. 79.95 — NOW 59.88

Many Other Fantastic Buys Now Await You!

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

look to a Corbin



Montego Linens

Racy, but well mannered. Goes everywhere. Winning colors include Paddock Green and Roan Red. Our Natural Shoulder cut, always correct, fits all men comfortably. A cool blend of 65% Dacron* polyester, 35% imported linen. Own one. They're the best.

* Du Pont's registered trademark

TROUSERED BY CORBIN

Town & Campus

Milton's February Frogstrangler will Be History Saturday

This wild "Mt. Airy Monsoon" blows buys that beckon all ye sartorial cognoscenti. You'll never have a better chance to join this select "in Group".

Last call to suit buys, group to $95.00 at Frogstrangler of $45.00.

Shoes as you like them, regularly to $35.00, 38 pairs left at a monsoon of $16.99.

Shirt, shirt, my kingdom for a Milton M-2. Group regularly to $8.95, at a mere bagatelle of $2.99.

McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland, the top dog in fine Scottish sweaters — all completely mothproofed. Take a gander at V-necks cut from $16.95 to $12.99 and cardigans from $21.95 to only $14.99.

Sport coats regularly to $50.00, last chance at $29.99.

Lazy man's pants — ready cuffed, regularly to $8.95, last call at $4.99.

Many other great deals to round out the year and add to your sartorial splendor.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Belk's Home of Better Values

TREMENDOUS SAVINGS

DON'T WAIT! HURRY!

Clean-up SALE

SAVINGS FOR MEN

MEN'S
Sport Coats
Values To $39.99 $19.88

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Groups Men's SUITS
Values To $45.99 $25.00
Values To $70.00 $38.00

Famous Name
- Men's Bermudas ½ Price
- Men's Felt Hats, val. to 12.00 ⅓ Off
Val. to 39.99
- Men's Lined Jackets ⅓ Off
Val. to 9.99
- Group Men's Sweaters $5.00
Val. to 17.99
- Group Men's Sweaters ⅓ Off
Val. to 3.99
- Group Men's Shirts ½ Price
Val. to 2.99
- Group Men's Spori Shirts $2.00
Val. to 3.99
- Group Men's Sport Shirts $2.44
Val. to 5.99—Men's
- Group Men's Sport Shirts $3.44
- Wool Shirts, val. to 15.00 ½ Price
Val to 2.50
- One Group Men's Belts 2 for $1.00
- Men's Ties, val. to 2.50 24c
- Group Men's Jewelry 24c

SAVE ON DRESSES

LADIES'
DRESSES
Values To $12.99 $7.88
Values To $11.99 $5.88

- Ladies' Party Dresses ½ Price
- One Group Maternity Wear ½ Price
- Ladies' Fall Dresses ½ Price

GROUPS OF LADIES'
DRESSES
$2.00 and $3.00

LINGERIE SAVINGS

Famous Name
LINGERIE ½ price
• SLIPS • GOWNS • ROBES • PAJAMAS • PANTIES • ENSEMBLES

- Challis Gowns & P.J. ½ Price
Val. to 10.99
- Ladies' Tricot Gowns & P.J. ½ Price
- Famous Name Ladies' Uniforms $5.88
Famous Name
- Bras & Girdle ⅓ to ½ Off

SPORTSWEAR SAVINGS

Famous Name
LADIES' SPORTSWEAR
★ SWEATERS ★ DRESSES
★ SUITS ★ SLACKS ★ SKIRTS
½ Price

Ladies'
- Fall Slacks, val. to 10.99 ½ Off
Group Ladies'
- Blouses val. to 3.99 $1.00
- Ladies' Madras Parka $1.00
- Ladies' Skirts, val. to 12.99 ½ Price

LADIES' CARDIGANS
Values to $10.99 $5.00 | Values to $8.99 $3.00

LADIES' COATS

Val. to 59.99
- Ladies' Untrimmed Coats $39.88
Val. to 49.99
- Ladies' Untrimmed Coats $34.88
Regular 29.99
- Ladies' Chesterfield Coats $19.88
Regular 34.99
- Ladies' Chesterfield Coats $24.88
Regular 79.99
- Ladies' Fur Trim Coats $59.88
Regular 59.99
- Ladies' Fur Trim Coats $34.88

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Tijuana Brass

A limited number of tickets for next Friday's "Tijuana Brass" concert to be held at the Duke Indoor Stadium are now available at GM Information desk. Price $2; time 9:15 p.m.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Free Flick

"The Journey," starring Yul Brynner and Deborah Kerr, will be the "Free Flick" shown tonight at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in Carrol Hall.

Volume 74, Number 104 CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1966 Founded February 23, 1893

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

You're Putting Me On

A recent poll at a major university, that isn't hindered by any bans, had some interesting results.

According to the poll, one is practically unmarriageable if he is honest or intelligent, if he thinks about any subject of worth for longer than four minutes a month, if he thinks at all, or if he possesses any depth of character.

Responses to the survey were classified according to sex and majors pursued in college.

Of the science majors, 98 per cent stated they did not date at all, due to a malfunctioning left eye, as a result of three hour labs.

Of the 2 per cent who did date, the ideal characteristic of the sought-for mate was his or ability to get them into medical school, and finance them while there.

A large majority of the female elementary education majors expressed a dislike for any male wearing a skirt, or one who has longer than six months to go before graduation.

But the most important characteristic for elementary education majors was a male's ability to buy a six carat engagement ring, or even a 1-16 of a carat engagement ring.

The qualities most sought for by journalism majors was the ability to edit copy, and the fortitude to tolerate sudden hysteria.

More than 43 per cent of the females said they started going steady at seven-and-a-half. This same percentage advocated marriage at 15 years of age.

Their reasons varied.

They included an uncontrollable desire to sleep until noon, lack of good shows on "Saturday Night at the Movies," boredom with girlfriends, incapability of continuing to play the "Of course I have a boyfriend" role and the desire to show a grade school rival who really was the most popular.

Tomorrow we will continue with more results from this revealing survey.

Rub Your Stubble

An Associated Press story says that scientists have found that if a girl comebd her hair 10,000 strokes a minute she could produce enough electricity to keep the spark plugs of an automobile engine firing.

This raises the question as to whether the stubborn beards of beatniks might not be tapped to supply America's future power needs. On second thought it wouldn't work. They never comb their beards.

He'd Rather Be An Orphan

At the Committee For Free Inquiry meeting Thursday night several speakers had profound observations.

Richard French, UNC graduate student, said that if Governor Moore had been speaking he would have addressed the students as "My dear children."

"I'd rather be an orphan," French said.

Dr. David T. Lapkin, professor of economics, said he never ceased to marvel at "the undergraduate's ability to perceive fraud and misrepresentation."

"I am all too painfully aware of the number of times that defects in my logic or my assumptions have been undiplomatically called to my attention," Lapkin said.

Lapkin went on to say that he did not see why the appearance of a Communist on campus implied the endorsement of his view by the University any more than the appearance of Mao Tse Tung on a news telecast implied an endorsement of Chinese Communism by the program's sponsor.

Bob Powell, president of the debate team and SP nominee for student body president, said "We must convince the people of North Carolina that this University is worth preserving, and that in fact, it is probably the most valuable asset this state has ever possessed."

SG Legislature Backs Invitation For Communist

By JIM SMITH
DTH Staff Writer

The Student Legislature, in two hours of even-tempered debate, Thursday night passed a heavily amended resolution supporting the Carolina Forum's invitation to Dr. Herbert Aptheker to speak here.

Student Party floor leader, Don Wilson, the author of the resolution, said it was time the Student Legislature stated its position on the Aptheker issue.

Rep. Ed Wilson, UP floor leader, said he did not think the Legislature should act upon the resolution. However, he did vote for the amended resolution.

"Let's do nothing else to enflame the situation," Ed Wilson urged. "If the situation continues, I can promise you the Speaker Ban issue will be taken up again in the next session of the General Assembly."

Rep. Steve Salmony (UP) agreed with Rep. Ed Wilson.

"The Carolina Forum made a mistake, although its intentions may have been well meant," Salmony said. "Let's take time to think.

"Marches and demonstrations are not going to do one bit of good. We should prove we are worthy of being heard."

Rep. Joe Chandler (SP) disagreed.

"If anyone has the right to make a statement, the Student Legislature, as the elected representatives of the student body, does. We are doing a dangerous thing if we allow the groups like the Students for a Democratic Society to take all the spotlight on this issue."

The major portion of debate of the resolution centered on a set of recommendations concerning the establishing of a speaker policy.

Rep. Don Wilson said the article was simply a suggestion about establishing the policy and that the trustees want to know what responsible representatives of the student body think.

Rep. Salmony said that the Legislature should make a general statement of its position, but that the speaker policy suggestions were too specific and not relevant to the issue.

The legislature then deleted the speaker policy article.

The remainder of the debate consisted of rewording the original resolution .One amendment asked that a copy be sent to Jesse Helms, the WRAL-TV editorialist.

The end-product, a heavily watered-down form of the original resolution, passed the Legislature unanimously.

Soloist Here Tuesday

Soprano soloist Ruth Lakeway will give a recital Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall. She is sponsored by the Tuesday Evening Series.

She will be accompanied on the piano by Clifton Matthews a faculty member of the school of music.

FACES IN THE CROWD — Part of the 1,200 students who attended Thursday's CFI meeting stand in the street as President Friday accepts their statement of principle.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Not Mandatory

Draft Test This Spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selective Service college qualification tests will be given throughout the nation on May 14, May 21 and June 3, it was announced yesterday.

High school seniors graduating this year and college students desiring to take the test must mail applications postmarked not later than April 23 to the Science Research Associates of Chicago.

A Selective Service spokesman said about one million draft registrants are expected to take the test, which is entirely optional for those who wish to have this type of criteria available for consideration by their local draft boards in determining student deferments.

"Selective Service strongly urges that the students do take it, as it provides one more bit of criteria the local board may consider in determining which students are apparently more promising than others," the spokesman said.

Science Research Associates was awarded the contract yesterday to handle the test program as the successful bidder among three.

The test will consist of 150 different items and a registrant will be permitted a maximum of three hours in which to complete the test.

The test is designed to explore four areas: reading comprehension; verbal relations; arithmetic reasoning; and data interpretation.

The spokesman said it was similar to a general aptitude test, with about 50 per cent relating to verbal and linguistic skills and the other 50 per cent to quantitative reasoning.

He also said the test has been so constructed as not to give any special advantage to any type of major over another courses the students are pursuing.

The formal announcement by Selective Service will be made available before April 1 to be distributed and posted in colleges and universities, post offices and other public buildings and local draft boards throughout the country.

A registrant considering taking the test will be able to get from local draft board an explanation bulletin and a form to mail to Science Research Associates.

Science Research, in turn, will tell the registrant when and where to report to take the test.

There will be approximately 200 locations throughout the United States, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Canal Zone.

A student will take the test only once. It will be available to both undergraduate and graduate students already in institutions of higher education as well as to high school graduates of this year who are registrants and desire to take the test.

Thomas Runs For Editor; Endorsed By Pub Board

By GLENN L. MAYS
DTH Staff Writer

Fred W. Thomas, a sophomore journalism major from Concord, has announced his candidacy for editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

He received an endorsement by the Publications Board Thursday.

Thomas was night editor of The Daily Tar Heel last year and was news editor earlier this year. He is a member of the NROTC program and was an orientation counselor this year.

FRED THOMAS

He is a former employee of the Concord Tribune and is a stringer for WIST Radio in Charlotte. Thomas is a member of Chi Psi social fraternity and has made the Dean's List.

"The Daily Tar Heel's first concern, as is any responsible newspaper's, is to give its readers an accurate, objective and thorough account of all news items which concern them," Thomas said in announcing his candidacy.

"A policy of news managing or news coloring has no place in the pages of our newspaper. An equally binding obligation of the DTH is to implement effective communications with the student body and student government, offering timely criticism, praise and suggestions in the best interest of the students and the University as a whole.

"I am anxious to provide this campus with a newspaper that has firm and well-thought-out opinions, yet which is always open to criticism and opposing viewpoints from any student or student group.

"In short, I want to offer a newspaper worthy of the respect of every student on this campus."

Thomas will run as an independent in the March 22 election.

"I have decided not to seek dual endorsement because if I'm elected I want to be able editorially to examine Student Government and campus affairs without feeling any allegiance to either political party."

Gebeaux Lacks Approval, Starts Move For Petition

Howard L. Gebeaux, a junior from Falls Church, Va., yesterday announced his candidacy for editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

In announcing his candidacy he said the primary task of the editor is "to be relevant to the student body. His responsibility for this is made so drastically important not because his job is at stake, not because the existence of the paper is at stake, but because of the position a student-campus newspaper occupies in the life of a university.

"The student newspaper performs a most important function. Through it the student can come face to face with himself, with other students, and with the extra-university world. It is the student newspaper that brings this outside world and these fellow students together," he said.

Gebeaux did not receive an endorsement of the Publications Board in seeking the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. He is majoring in religion.

"I conceive the role of the Editor of a student newspaper not as a technician, not as someone who needs to know every detail of the technical production, but as a guardian of relevance.

"If an editor leaves the job

HOWARD GEBEAUX

of seeking out news and reporting it solely to the reporter, he is failing. If an editor sits in his office abstractly struggling with his intellect to come up with a topic for tomorrow's editorial, he is failing. If an editor spends his time searching outside the campus for most of his issues, he is failing.

"The editor has the responsibility of going into the campus and not manufacturing but recognizing the crying issues that are there. Then he has the responsibility of turning the entire structure of the newspaper in the direction of the student and working within the issues meaningfully."

— Glenn Mays

Legislature Votes Changes In YM-YWCA Pledge Cards

The Student Legislature, by a vote of 23-10, Thursday asked the administration to remove the YM-YWCA pledge card from the official matriculation forms.

Representative William Webb (UP) said because of the pledge card's position on the matriculation forms, many students feel obligated to contribute to the Y. Also, if a student fails to make good his pledge to contribute he can be kept from graduating.

Rep. Sandy Hobgood (SP) said that the University administration recognizes the YM-YWCA as an official function and two of the Y's secretaries are paid by the University.

Hobgood said the Y was already $2,000 in debt and if the Y were no longer permitted to have its pledge card on the matriculation form, it would cause difficulty.

Rep. Clark Crampton (UP) said if the Y were denied its special privilege, it would benefit because it would have to prove its value to the student body.

In other action, the Student Legislature voted $174.75 to the John J. Parker International Law Society, and $810 to the Executive Branch of Student Government to pay for extra hours worked by the Executive Branch Secretary and a salary increase for her.

A bill to revamp the orientation committee was passed with one dissenting vote.

The appointments of Taylor Branch (District IV) and Kent Hedmon (District V) to the Men's Honor Council were approved.

Pub Board Passes Two

The Publications Board endorsed two of the four candidates running for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

The board gave no reason why the other two were not endorsed.

Receiving the board's endorsement were Fred W. Thomas and Ray P. Linville. Alan Banov and Howard Gebeaux did not get an endorsement.

In a statement to The Daily Tar Heel, Hugh Blackwell, chairman of the board, said, "In order to determine whether a prospective candidate for the editorship of the DTH shall receive the endorsement of the Publications Board, the board evaluates each individual with respect to his:

(1) Technical knowledge of the processes involved in producing a daily newspaper such as The Daily Tar Heel, (2) Personal sense of responsibility, ethics and integrity, (3) Ability to obtain and maintain a competent staff and (4) Overall competence to oversee the production of a daily newspaper such as The Daily Tar Heel.

"In determining whether an individual shall receive the endorsement of the board, the board in no way considers the applicants personal political views or allegiance.

"The granting of its endorsement simply represents the board's belief that any candidate receiving such endorsement is capable of producing The Daily Tar Heel on a regularly scheduled basis and without endangering its continued existence."

Blackwell said the board will decide at its meeting Thursday whether or not to make public the reasons Banov and Gebeaux were not endorsed.

—GLENN MAYS

Justices Get Bad Checks

By STEVE LACKEY
DTH Staff Writer
(Fourth in a Series)

The last resort for Chapel Hill merchants dealing with bad checks is to give them to a Justice of the Peace for collection.

According to one JP, J. Alvin Williams, the merchant brings the checks in, swears out a warrant for the student's arrest and leaves the rest to the JP.

Tom Shetley, Book Exchange manager, reports that checks have been "bouncing like basketballs."

Banks have begun returning all checks which do not have the students' bank account numbers.

Beginning Monday, any check written must have an account number on it.

The JP gives the warrants to a deputy sheriff who visits the student to serve the warrant. The student must then go to the JP for trial.

Some students have met rather unusual circumstances in talking to the deputies. The following is a sworn and witnessed affidavit of one such student:

"I was watching television in the room next door to my room when someone opened the door and said, 'Is (name withheld) here?'

"I said 'yes' whereupon the door was closed. I went outside the room and saw two men, one of whom had on a light jacket and a dark dress hat. This man said, 'I've got a warrant for your arrest for passing a bad check.'

"I said, 'What for?' The man did not answer me, but began to read the paper he called a warrant. The warrant said that I did knowingly and willfully pass a worthless check to a business establishment known as the Chapel Hill Dairy Bar on some date in February.

"I then told him that I had sufficient funds in the bank to cover any check I had written.

"I asked, 'What have I got to do now?' He said I would have to go see the Justice of the Peace in Carrboro over the Center Drug Store before 4:30 tomorrow afternoon or he would be back for me.'

"At this point, the other man added, 'Yeah, we'll be back for you.'

"I then asked if I could settle it with him. He said, 'Yes,' but that I would have to pay $15.00, cost of court plus the check's amount.

"I said, 'Never mind, I will go see the Justice of the Peace tomorrow.'

"He said, 'Be sure that you do.' "

(Continued on Page 6)

Late Hours To Be Extended

Late hours have been extended for sophomore, junior and senior women until midnight on Monday thru Friday The new rules will go into effect next fall.

Penny Scovil, chairman of the Women's Residence Council, announced yesterday that the council had passed the extension of late hours on week nights for upperclassmen but had not voted on the extension of senior Saturday night late hours to 2 a.m.

All of the other late hours remain the same. The vote has not yet been taken on the freshmen rules.

Hedgepeth Tapped

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore today designated Dr. E. McG. Hedgepeth of Chapel Hill chairman of the commission charged with establishing two alcoholic rehabilitation centers in North Carolina.

Dr. Hedgepeth, director of health services for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, succeeds First District Congressman Walter Jones.

Gov. Moore appointed Frank M. Wooten, Greenville lawyer and former legislator, to fill a vacancy on the committee left by Jones' resignation.

UP Moves Meeting

The University Party convention will be held in Carroll Hall instead of Memorial Hall as had been originally planned.

The party will meet at 7 p.m.

Room Reservation

Women students who failed to apply for a room for the summer or fall session still may get a room although it may not be in the residence hall of their choice.

Students who wish to reserve a room should go by the Dean of Women's office, 202 South Building, and pick up room reservation cards.

These should be taken by the Cashier's Office in Bynum Hall and the room rent for the summer session paid or a deposit of $25 for the fall session made.

Room rent for the summer is $40 for a double and $60 for a single.

Eastman To Speak

Dr. Nicholson J. Eastman, obstetrician, educator and author of Baltimore and New York City, will speak at the first Merrimon Lecture at the North Carolina School of Medicine March 16, in Hill Hall at 8 p.m. on March 16.

Craige Awards Daniel

Dr. George B. Daniel associate professor in the Department of Romance Languages at North Carolina, has been presented with a distinguished service award by the senate of Craige Residence Hall.

The award is made on the basis of general excellence in teaching, encouragement of cordial student-teacher relationships and service to the University.

1966-67 Budget

All committee chairmen of groups receiving appropriations from the student government who have not submitted their budget requests for 1966-67 should do so by Monday noon.

Forms have been mailed which should be used. Additional ones may be picked up at student government offices.

Times Picks Book

The Civil War in North Carolina, written by North Carolina alumnus and published by the North Carolina Press, has been listed by the London Times as among "the better and more important books that have been published in the United States."

The book was written by Dr. John G. Barrett, a professor at VMI, who received his masters and Ph.D. at North Carolina.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

LBJ And Student Loans

It sounds great.

"Any youngster smart enough to get in college can borrow money to pay for it under a federal-state-private program launched here (Raleigh) Thursday."

That statement was made in a United Press International story Friday morning.

Information from Dr. Julian D. Mason, UNC's director of student aid, indicates it just isn't so.

Why?

Mainly because President Lyndon B. Johnson, in his budget message to Congress, has requested that funds for National Defense Loans be discontinued after July 1, 1966.

This eliminates the primary source of money for loans to students at colleges throughout the United States. The intention is that states will set up their own guarantee agencies with loans being made by private institutions.

Luckily, just before the last session of the North Carolina General Assembly ended, Sen. Russell Kirby of Wilson sponsored a bill which provided for the establishment of the State Education Assistance Authority which Moore announced Thursday.

It was intended to supplement the existing loan programs.

If Congress approves Johnson's proposal, the new state program will be a lifesaver for North Carolina students.

National Defense Loans are granted on the grounds of financial need and satisfactory academic progress. The state program, which is already making loans, is not subject to these restrictions.

But the state program will not be the cornucopia it appears to be — because of the likelihood of losing the National Defense funds.

Mason said yesterday, "In North Carolina, we'll never get to the place where there will be enough capital to give a loan to every college student who asks for one."

The College Foundation Inc., an organization formed by North Carolina bankers, is the only institution now authorized to make loans to students under the new plan. Undergraduates will be able to borrow up to $5,000 and up to $7,500 could be borrowed for graduate study.

While the student is in school the federal government will pay up to six per cent of the loan's interest. Mason said the interest will probably total six and a quarter per cent. After graduation, the federal government will still pay three per cent of the interest and the student will have 15 years to repay the loan, compared to 10 years for repayment of National Defense loans. National Defense loans carry a three per cent interest rate, Mason said.

Last year more than $750,000 was loaned to UNC students.

Without National Defense funds, the new state program will be hard-pressed to carry this load — especially on such short notice.

"I think we will still be able to fulfill our promise that students who need money and do satisfactory school work can get a loan," Mason said.

But it will not be easy.

For some states, especially in the South, it will be impossible.

Any sort of state loan program will have to be set up by the legislatures of each state. Mason said more than 20 legislatures will not meet before Johnson's July 1 cut-off date, and these states will be left with almost no provisions to grant loans.

Last week in Atlanta delegates to a meeting of The Southern Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators passed a resolution asking southern Congressmen to oppose Johnson's proposal.

Every UNC student, whether or not he has, needs or wants a loan, should join in an effort to at least delay the stoppage of National Defense funds until all states have had a chance to arrange alternative programs.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Rick Nichols, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Steve Bennett, Steve Lackey, Glenn Mays, Lytt Stamps, Peytie Fearrington, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Bill Rollins, Gene Whisnant, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, Bill Hass, Jim Fields, sports writers; Jeff MacNelly, sports cartoonist.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.

"Of Course Parking Facilities Are Adequate!"

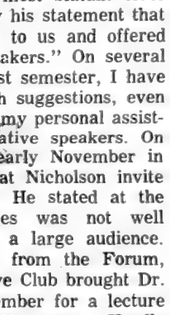
David Rothman

Legislators Should Ban Bare Busts From UNC

Senator Robert Morgan of Harnett County has said Communists should be barred from the campus because of their ability to sway "immature minds."

But wait, Senator! Haven't you forgotten about banning something else?

I refer to The Daily Tar Heel poll which reveals that many students here favor the introduction of bare-busted waitresses.



One state, however, has already solved this problem.

Its legislature decided the waitresses should't be permitted to make appearances at state-supported institutions.

"We are very worried about their effect on immature minds," commented one solon.

Other legislators also resented the possibility of students' being "overexposed to alien ideas."

"Anyway," said one representative, "if they want to be present at the waitresses' appearances they can easily go elsewhere. Like the local Playboy Club.

"Meanwhile, I commend the Daughters of the American Revolution for their march on the state capitol. I am shocked some people think the D.A.R. members resent the bare-busted waitresses because of fearing extra competition."

Students, faculty and administration promptly voiced their objectons to the ban.

"Bare-busted waitresses are no danger," the student body president declared. "Once they are brought into the open, students will become immediately disillusioned.

If the waitresses appear on campus, people here can see for themselves the fallacies of their ideology. After the padding is removed, the waitresses won't be able to deceive anybody.

"And, what's more, we'll make sure a free exchange of views takes place. Both sides will be photographed.

"Needless to say, students here already have access to the views in stag films, if not at Jeff's."

Replied a conservative politician in a radio broadcast:

"I don't think the students can resist those alluring influences. Some of the waitresses' ideas are quite well developed. Not all of them fall flat.

"I have arrived at this conclusion after observing ample examples around town.

"I assure you I know about these things first-hand, having seen the results of this ideology in Europe.

"For instance, while I was in Germany, I visited a prosti . . ."

Silence.

". . . We are sorry to inform our listeners that the remainder of the Senator's remarks cannot be broadcast over the air."

Last November, the state weakened the ban, although it is still the center of intense controversy.

This month, the Governor created quite an uproar when he ruled that a bare-busted waitress cannot visit public campuses "because her appearances there would not serve a legitimate educational purpose."

The students, of course, strongly disagree.

Letters From The DTH Mailbag

Elections Board Lax

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:
Re: Editorial "Another Botched-Up Vote" of Wed., February 23, 1966

Once again the Elections Board has failed in its responsibility to the electorate. And once again the Board rationalizes its failure by blaming another party or organization. This time my fraternity, along with another fraternity and two dorms were singled out for their delinquencies. I cannot defend these other parties, but I can point out some strained relations between Phi Kappa Sigma and the Elections Board.

On Sunday night a member of the Board left the standard poll tenders' form with my roommate. When I returned to the fraternity house that night I read the form and immediately tried to call John Winborne, to explain to him that Phi Kappa Sigma had alone manned the polling station at the Carolina Inn for the past two elections. In that there are five other fraternities in this district, I did not think it fair that we alone should continue to carry this burden. Mr. Winborne was not in at the time I called, so I left a message for him to contact me. He did not do so that night, nor did he contact me the following night, even after I had unsuccessfully attempted to call him three times Monday night, each time leaving a message for him to return my call.

In the second attempt on Monday night, I explained to the person answering the phone that Phi Kappa Sigma would not man the polls the next day for the reasons already mentioned. I also asked that he inform John Winborne of this and ask that he (John Winborne) please contact me. Late that night I again tried unsuccessfully to call Winorne. The party answering the phone said that Winborne had gone to get something to eat but that he would have John call me when he came in. I explained the urgency of this last plea. Not once during the period from Sunday evening to Tuesday morning did John Winborne or any member of the Elections Board speak with me or successfully communicate with me.

If it is Phi Kappa Sigma's obligation to perpetually man the polling station at the Carolina Inn, then it is at least the responsibility of the Elections Board to see that the polls are manned, and that there be some reason why other living units in the same district should not share the obligation. Certainly more communication and confirmation between the Elections Board and living unit supplying poll tenders need be effected.

There are many problems with the voting system that need to be rectified. To develop a more responsible attitude on the part of the Elections Board would be a good place to start.

John T. Lovell, President
Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity

'Nicholson Forum'

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In the Daily Tar Heel of Sunday, February 13, George Nicholson, III, Chairman of the Carolina Forum, purportedly "rebutted" the points made in the Carolina Conservative Club press conference of the previous Friday. Upon examination, however, I find it difficult to connect Nicholson's slurs with the remotest interpretation of a "rebuttal."

Essentially, our conference was designed to cast some light on the unusual speaker policies of three campus organizations, including the Carolina Forum, the organization which Mr. Nicholson chairs. Our main point concerning the Forum was the fact that no meetings whatsoever, of the Forum, have been held this year. We pointed out that at least three conservative members of the Forum have not been called on for so much as a single comment during the entire year since they joined the Forum. We asked 'why'?

Nicholson chose not to answer this charge. Instead, he poured forth a chain of pejorative, scurrilous statements in lieu of giving a proper answer to our charge. Let me examine, for a moent, an example of his invective.

Nicholson stated: "Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, is coming later this month. I suppose Clark would call him a liberal." Rather than terming Welch a liberal, I have repeatedly expressed my dismay at Mr. Welch's irresponsible remarks, even in the press conference which Nicholson claims to be so familiar with.

Perhaps Nicholson's most blatant error in fact is exemplified by his statement that "Clark has never come to us and offered any suggestions for speakers." On several occasions during the past semester, I have contacted Nicholson with suggestions, even to the extent of offering my personal assistance to obtain convervative speakers. On one such occasion, in early November in Y-Court, I requested that Nicholson invite Dr. Ludwig von Mises. He stated at the time that Dr. von Mises was not well enough known to draw a large audience. However, with no help from the Forum, the Carolina Conservative Club brought Dr. von Mises here in December for a lecture which attracted from 4-500 persons. Hardly a small attendance.

Although I could continue to point out Nicholson's numerous misstatements of fact and deprecatory comments, let me end here with a simple request that George Nicholson answer the charges, rather than attempt to bypass them. In addition, let me add that I appreciate his correction of my figure of $6000 for the Forum's budget. Since it is obvious to all who are acquainted with the facts that Nicholson does not condescend to hold a meeting of the organization which he chairs, let me suggest that the name "Carolina Forum" be changed to the "Nicholson Forum."

Wilson A. Clark, Jr.
President,
Carolina Conservative Club

Morgan Immature?

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In one column of Wednesday's DTH Senator Robert Morgan was quoted to have three times called UNC students "immature." For those who are not "immature," are they to sit by and consistently be slapped in the face? As students, are we to be constantly spat upon? Personally, I think it might be Senator Morgan who is still "immature."

Arthur M. French
391 Everett

Mike Jennings

Labor Beneath The Moon Of Big Fish

The fishes are swimming frantically. Watch them swim. Around and around and around.

They shift aimlessly now. But soon they will form packs. That's when you'll jump in and take your place.

There are a few fish you should watch very carefully. See that gorgeous fish that is welcomed wherever he goes but never seems to do anything? That's the Burlington Angel Fish. Just remember where he is —and remember that Angel Fish love butter.

Wach the long, bony fish that seems to be stirring up such a ruckus. That's the Irish Point-Clarifier. Observe his knack for vicious infighting as he attacks the Great Porporise of South Campus.

The Great Porpoise has no knack for fighting. But he seems to have done many favors in the past for some of the smaller fish, for they are nipping at the flanks of the Point-Clarifier.

Your attention may be drawn to a small fish darting around with fantastic speed and blowing a lot of bubbles. He seems conspicuous, but you can safely ignore him. That is only the Annotating Greenbacker (Faultfinderus Summissimus).

On the northwestern side of the pool, you see that a definite pack has already formed. This is a school you will have to deal with no matter what school you finally join, so great is its power. It is the Chi Psices School.

The members of the school swim round and round in stately fashion. At the center of the circle are a strange pair, swimming alone in splendid isolation.

The more conspicuous of the two wears a bow tie and has enormous, vicious-looking teeth. This is the most dangersous fish in the pool—the Cheshire Catfish.

His enormous smile never leaves his face, not even when he bites.

At the side of the catfish swims a sad and gloomy-looking Judgefish. He looks neither to the right nor left nor acknowledges the catfish's smiles. Many have said of the Judgefish that he is very wise and speaks with great eloquence.

But a strange thing happens each time a certain fish in the circle swims in front of pair in the middle: they both tremble The fish that produces this reaction is the Littlefish (Behindthescensis Rex).

Watch all these and others. When the packs form, pick the strongest and jump into it.

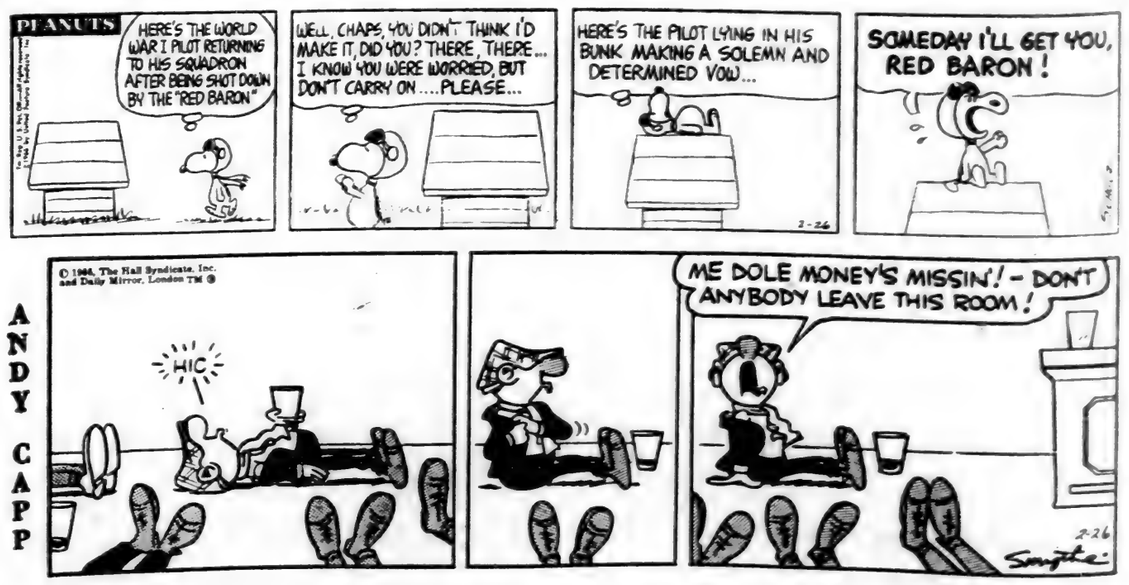
You have no desire to follow this pantomime in a fishpond. You want a chairmanship for which you know you are qualified, and that is all.

But you must watch, and you must jump in when the time is right.

For this is the season of hypocrisy.

This is the month of the politician.

And, in whatever way you may wish to labor, you must labor beneath the Moon of the Big Fish.



STOMP DOOK!

COMPLETE SELL OUT GAME TELEVISED CHANNEL 11 TODAY

Compliments of

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

J. W. PAGE Total Service
AMERICAN Tires
ATLAS Batteries
Accessories
Oil Change & Lubrication
Tuneups — Brakes
Mufflers — Shocks
ALL CARMAKERS Maintenance Requirements
Eastgate Shopping Center
YOU CAN EXPECT MORE AT PAGE'S . . . AND GET IT

Compliments of

SLOAN DRUG CO.

Prescriptions
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
Phone 968-4455

In the Center of Things

LENOIR HALL

Enjoy the Favorite Student Special

Still Only 50c

Compliments of The

PINE ROOM
SNACK BAR
and
CAFETERIA

"The Popular Place to Meet, Dine and Snack"

Jim Crisp

NATIONWIDE
Insurance Agency

405 W. Franklin Street
942-7153
Life — Health — Auto — Fire Insurance

Since 1898 and Reaffirmed Each Year

"Wherever Prices Can Be Lowered, Eckerd's Will Lower Them"

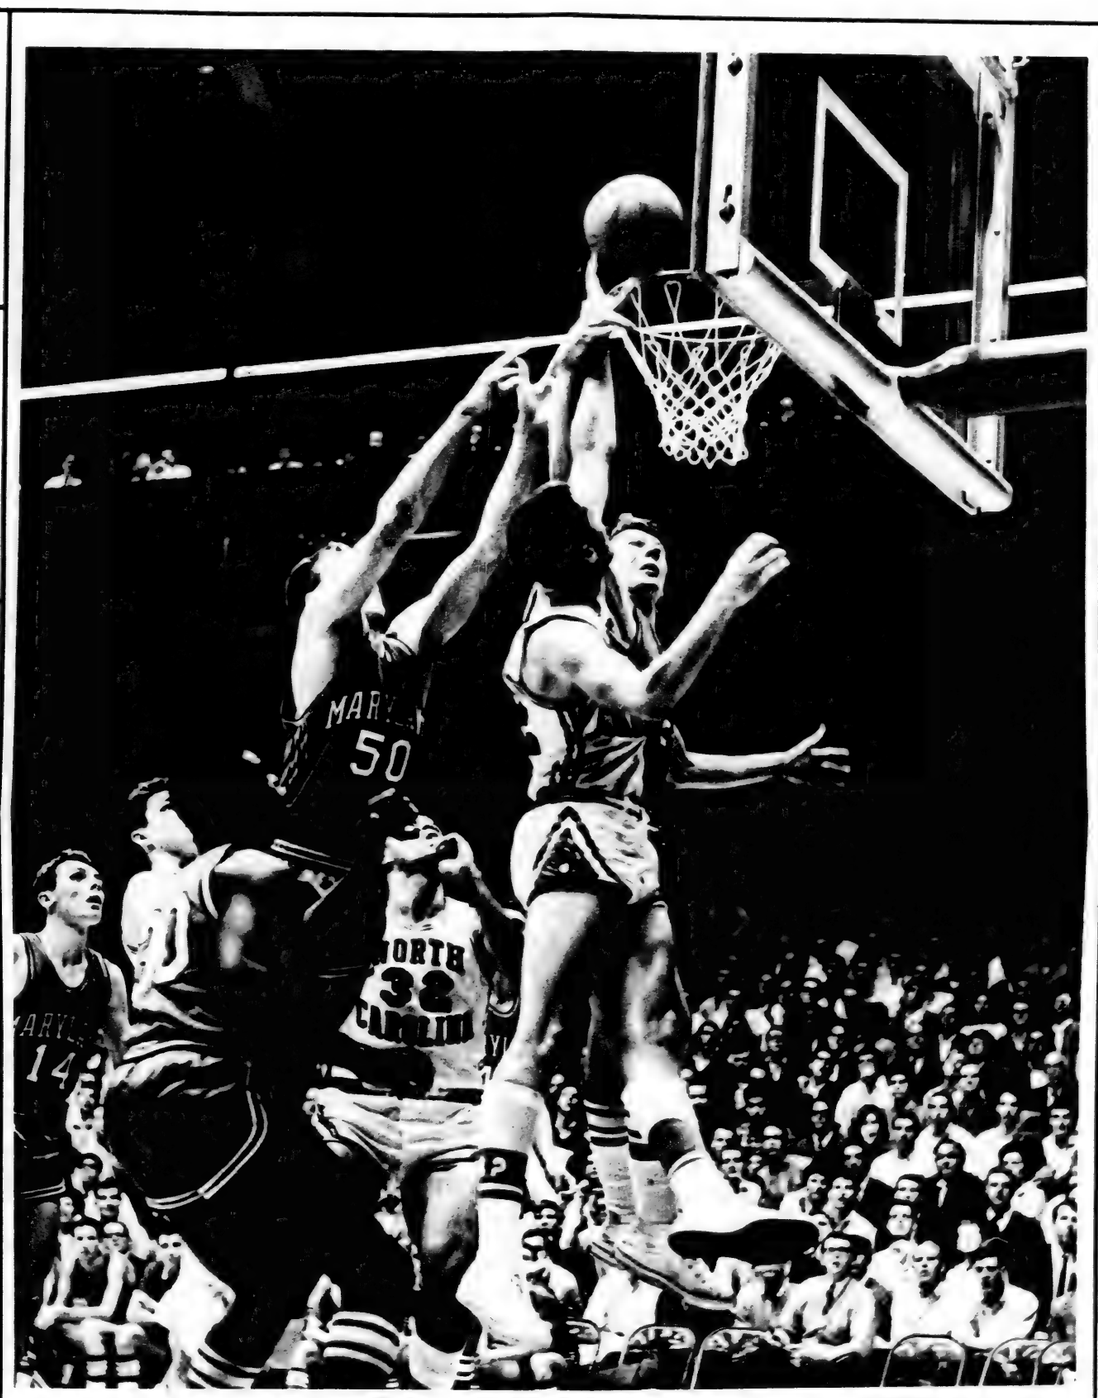
ECKERD'S DRUGS, Inc.

Eastgate Shopping Center

TAR HEEL AD STAFF

wishes to thank the above merchants for their support

"Woody" Sobol
Bob Pippin Jay Derby



–Photo by Barry Armour

PAST HISTORY

Series Started 1920

Carolina holds 54-50 edge

Smith vs. Dook:

1962	0	2
1963	0	2
1964	0	2
1965	2	0
1966	?	1

Total Points:

UNC 5,218 DOOK 5,203

FEATURE:

Tar Heels' AA Pick:

BOBBY LEWIS

All Time Scoring Record
1965–49 pts. vs. Fla. State
43 pts. vs. Richmond

Present Average 28.4
Record held by Lennie Rosenbluth
27.4 pts. 1957

OPEN:
9 - 9 Mon. -Fri
9 - 1 Sat.

Ground Floor
UNC Library

BULL'S HEAD BOOKSHOP

Compliments of

THE SPORT SHOP, Inc.

"It Pays to Play"

Featuring the Finest in Men's Clothing
and
THE CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB of Chapel Hill
Chapel Hill's Leading Clothiers
103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

Mill Outlet Sales Room

HOSE
KNIT SHIRTS
SOCKS
SWEATERS
At Mill Prices and Below
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S DRUG STORE

For the Best in Wilson Sporting Goods and Converse Sneakers, shop at

EASTGATE HARDWARE

CONVERSE ALL-STARS 8.95
Eastgate Shopping Center
Phone 942-2920 TV Rental

Compliments of

Wentworth & Sloan Jewelers

THE RECORD BAR

CHRAMBLE SCRAMBLE

CHASE DINING HALL

Featuring
Student Special
HOT SANDWICH LUNCHEON DAILY
Private Rooms for Meetings
ABSOLUTELY NO WAITING

HAVE A "SICK CAR?"

come and see

CROWELL LITTLE FORD

Durham Road next to Eastgate

Compliments of

FOWLER FOOD STORE
of Chapel Hill, Inc.

306 West Franklin Street
CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA

Sukarno Dissolves Anti-Red Group

SINGAPORE (AP) — President Sukarno of Indonesia ordered a powerful Anti - Communist student organization dissolved yesterday, banned all demonstrations and imposed a curfew on Jakarta, a broadcast from the capital reported.

Sukarno acted after the student organization led a five-mile long funeral parade of 10,000 through Jakarta protesting Sukarno's "New Communist Cabinet." Marines and police with machine guns watched the march but reports in Singapore said the Army sympathized with the students.

The students marched in a funeral parade for three comrades — one a girl — who were shot and killed by guards in a demonstration outside Sukarno's palace Thursday. The students were protesting Sukarno's firing of Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution, an Anti-Communist, as defense minister in a cabinet reshuffle Monday.

Gen. Nasution disappeared

Banned was the pro-Army Indonesian Student Action Front (KAMI). It led the demonstrations outside the palace as well as the funeral parade.

Jakarta Radio said Sukarno also banned all student gatherings of more than five persons anywhere in the country and warned action would be taken against trouble-making students. The Jakarta curfew starts at 10:30 p.m. and lasts until 6:30 a.m.

Nasution, who led the Communist purge after the Red coup of Oct. 1 failed, has vanished from Jakarta. Reached by telephone in Jakarta, his wife said she did not know where he had gone.

Too busy with the studies to read?

You have to unwind, sometime, chum. Do it with a great murder mystery from the Mystery Corner at the Intimate.

Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, John Dickson Carr, Josephine Tey, Margery Allingham, Ngaio Marsh, Phoebe Atwood Taylor, Ian Fleming — you'll find all of their sleuths and heroes at the Intimate.

And there's a new one — Inspector Gently, created by Alan Hunter. Track him down soon, and forget your worries for a bit.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Evenings until 10

SIDNEY POITIER
SHELLEY WINTERS
also starring
ELIZABETH HARTMAN
a PATCH OF BLUE
1, 3, 5, 7:01 & 9:02 RIALTO, DURHAM

North Carolina News Roundup

Porth Convicted Of Murder

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Robert E. Porth, a well-to-do missile engineer for Western Electric Co., was convicted yesterday of first degree murder in the death of his wife late last summer.

Forsyth Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain sentenced the 57-year-old Porth of life imprisonment after the jury recommended mercy.

The all-male jury returned the verdict at 12:32 p.m. after 5 hours and 17 minutes of deliberation.

A verdict without the mercy recommendation would have carried an automatic death penalty.

Porth ,whose attorney, James J. Booker gave notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court, showd no signs of emotion when the verdict was read. He had pleaded innocent and did not testify at the trial, which began Feb. 14.

The body of the socially prominent Mrs. Hilda Jerry Borchardt Porth, 56, a Wisconsin native, was found on a mountainside near Pulaski, Va., on Aug. 14 by a Statesville, N. C., motorist who had stopped to admire the scenery.

Dr. Geoffrey Mann, Virginia medical examiner, testified she died of multiple injuries caused by a blunt instrument, compounded by shock.

Booker, in his summation, said no one may ever really know what happened the night Mrs. Porth died. The lawyer contended there was "no inkling of evidence connecting Porth with a murder."

Local Man Hits The Big Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — James L. Parker, a North Carolinian who was serving a life term for killing the parents of his estranged wife when he escaped from a prison bus Nov. 11, 1964, was added to the FBI's list of 10 most wanted criminals yesterday.

Parker, 30, also was serving a 20-year sentence for kidnapping a Statesville, N. C., family of four, who escaped after transporting Parker from the site of the murder in Irdell County.

The FBI described Parker as "cunning and escape prone" and "noted for having a vicious temper."

He was being transferred to Central Prison in Raleigh when he and two other inmates sawed through bars on the rear door of the bus and escaped in Asheboro, N. C.

The FBI said Parker reportedly always carries a knife and often a pistol and has "claimed he will not be captured alive."

He works as a general laborer, upholsterer and furniture maker, the FBI said.

Fisheries Institute Planned

MOREHEAD CITY (AP) — University of North Carolina officials announced plans yesterday for a new $530,000 Institute of Fisheries research facility at Morehead City.

Construction of the two-story facility is expected to begin this fall, with completion scheduled in the fall of 1967.

Dr. A. F. Chestnut, director of the institute, said the laboratory will be used by UNC students, scientists and visiting scientists, both as a research and training facility.

Funds for the new building will come from a $150,000 grant from the National Science Foundation and a $400,000 appropriation from the state.

Ghana Violence Continues

Analysis Of Ghana Coup

Thursday's upheaval in volatile Africa snatched from the stage one of the continent's most enigmatic leaders, a man with vaulting ambitions who seemed to see himself a redeemer destined to lead all Africans to unity.

Shy and often charming in private, president Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana built around himself a cult of personality rivaling the adulation once paid Stalin in the Sovite Union.

Nkrumah's tight dictatorship earned the label of "the Cocoa Curtain," behind which his nation struggled with near-bankruptcy caused by over-ambitious industrialization, his management, corruption and confusion.

Though he sought—and received—significant help from the United States, Nkrumah's public posture was one of violent antipathy to Washington.

His philosophy, called "Nkrumahism," taught the youth of the nation that the American system was "Fascist imperialist and neocolonialist." It was to be countered, he taught, by an African socialism which would be a beacon for "activists and freedom fighters of the African struggle."

Nkrumah adopted the title of Osagyefo (pronounced oh-say'-jye-foh), meaning "redeemer," and permitted himself to be pictured as a new messiah for the black race. Ghana's controlled press often referred to him in Biblical terms.

But the man who evidently aspired to lead a federation of African states—he spoke of a "United States of Africa" — also seemed to picture himself as an African Lenin. He called himself a Marxist socialist. The newspaper which propounded his doctrines was called "Spark," the name Lenin gave his pre-revolution newspaper.

However, Nkrumah's Pan-African leader image was becoming tarnished. Communist blundering in Africa and Ghana's own enormous internal difficulties curbed Nkrumah's influence.

Westerners in Ghana often said Ghanaians could get rid of Nkrumah only by killing him. He was, indeed, the target of five assassination attempts and was once injured by a grenade, but he appeared to have a charmed life.

Nkrumah had himself made secretary-general and chairman for life of the convention people's Party, which he founded in 1949. Since it was Ghana's only legal party, he also claimed the presidency for life.

Despite Ghana's troubles, Nkrumah made significant contributions. Under him, 25 per cent of the population received schooling. He built hospitals, roads and other public projects.

ACRA, GHANA (AP) — A number of special police loyal to ousted President Kwame Nkrumah were reported killed yesterday in a battle in Accra's broadcasting house.

Whether police were trying to take over Accra Radio was not clear. But it is significant that in uprisings, revolutionaries try to capture radio stations to communicate with the people.

The shooting, informants reported,broke out during a visit to the broadcasting house by Col. E. K. Kotoka, believed to be the leader of the revolt that overthrew Nkrumah while he was in Peking.

A Tass dispatch from Peking said Nkrumah declared "I am returning to Ghana soon" and ordered any of the armed forces engaged in the uprising to return to barracks. But the army and police continued a manhunt for officials of Nkrumah's Convention People's Party, disbanded by order of Kotoka on seizing power.

One being hunted was Geoffrey Bing, a British lawyer who has been Nkrumah's special legal adviser since Ghana became independent in 1957. Another is Kofa Batsa, editor of the weekly newspaper Spark.

The Ghanaian Times, formerly a special organ of the Convention People's Party, quickly fell into line with the coup.

"Where are the Hitlers and Mussolinis of yesterday who used the name of the people to try to build huge empires for themselves and their families," it asked in an editorial. "The people of Ghana forever remember this day as a day when they saw the first ray of true freedom."

The leaders of the coup said they overthrew Nkrumah because he suppressed individual rights and liberties, ran the country "as if it were his own personal property," and had forced Ghana to the brink of bankruptcy.

As the army consolidated its hold on the country, restrictions on communications were relaxed. The airport was reopened for daylight traffic and telephone and cable links to the outside world, broken during the coup, were restored.

State Department Moves To Halt Shipping Boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department moved yesterday to stave off a dockers' boycott of the shipping of any nation whose vessles take cargoes to North Viet Nam. It called U. S. Maritime union leaders to a Washington meeting next Thursday.

This was the essence of a carefully worded statement issued after New York longshoremen picketing in protest against British trade with Viet Nam held up departure preparations for the famed liner Queen Mary for about an hour.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the United States does not want free world vessels going to Communist North Vietnamese ports, and U. S. diplomatic efforts have succeeded in cutting down this traffic.

"We believe that the national interest would best be served by continuing to seek a solution at a government-to-government level," McCloskey said.

He announced that Undersecretary of State Thomas C. Mann has invited to a March 3 session here Thomas Gleason, President of the International Longshoreman's Association, Joseph Curran, President of the National Maritime Union, and Paul Hall, president of the Seafarer's International Union.

Announces Candidacy

MONTGOMERY, ALA (AP) —Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers plunged into the governor's race yesterday with an undisguised plea for Negro votes and a promise to fly the U. S. flag on the dome of the state capitol.

The appearance of the big, red-haired Dothan, Ala., attorney in a field already crowded with nine other candidates gave him a chance once more to challenge Gov. George Wallace's strong segregationist views in the May 3 primary. He formally qualified after making his announcement.

Flowers' announcement came 24 hours after Wallace's wife, Lurleen, made known her intentions to run as a "stand-in" candidate for her husband.

Senate Confirms Vaughn

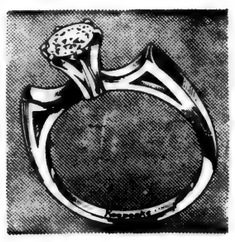
Vaughn: govt inspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate confirmed yesterday the nominations of Jack Hood Vaughn as Director of the Peace Corps and Lincoln Gordon as Vaugh's successor as Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American Affairs.

Approval was by voice vote with only half a dozen Senators in the chamber. Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., was the only one to speak and vote against the two appointments.

Morse protested that both Vaughn and Gordon were "military junta" men and said that on too many occasions the policy of the United States has been "to walk out on freedom when the chips were down."

Gordon was Ambassador to Brazil when President Johnson nominated him to succeed Vaughn in the State Department. Vaughn replaces Sargent Shriver as Director of the Peace Corps.



A Wide Selection
Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry

135 East Franklin
942-1331

Syrian Coup Was Bloody

DAMASCUS, SYRIA (AP) — Syrian army troops consolidated their victory yesterday in the coup that overthrew Gen. Amin Hafez's regime. A new government was reported in formation.

For the first time since the coup exploded Wednesday, commando and paratroop units pulled out of the city to their camps.

There was still plenty of evidence, however, that the army was taking no chances.

Tanks guarded the defense ministry, the military police headquarters, the central bank and other strategic posts in the capital.

Otherwise, Damascus was returning to normal and awaited a new government. There were indications the new government would be formed along the lines of that of former Premier Youssef Zayyen. During a government crisis last December, Zayyen resigned and turned over all power to an international command of the Arab Socialist Baath Party.

Zayyen believed in pushing socialism. He was replaced by more moderate Baathists, and these were thrown out by the Rebels, who said they had betrayed socialist aims. The international Baath command, composed of Syrians and Baathists from other lands, was theoretically still in operation at the time of the coup, but its influence was not known.

Travelers and diplomats arriving at Jdaideh, Lebanon, on the Syrian frontier told a much grimmer story than was permitted to pass through Damascus' censorship. They reported leftist army leaders still were struggling for control after one of the bloodiest coups in Syria's turbulent history.

These sources said there was still fighting in the northern part of Syrian and from 300 to 1,000 persons may have been killed in Damascus and elsewhere.

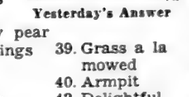
"They are washing the blood off the streets of Damascus now," Beirut businessman told AP correspondent David Lancashire on his arrival in Jdaideh from Damascus.

The coup Wednesday that overthrow Hafez as chief of state, still does not have the support of the army in the north or two brigades on the Syrian - Israeli frontier, east bloc diplomats reported.

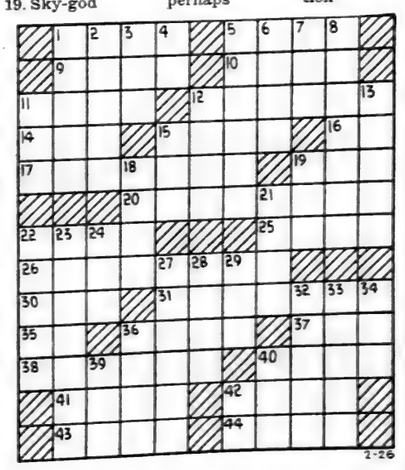
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Blemish
5. Metered cars
9. Petition
10. Verbal
11. Cravats
12. Golf club
14. Upstanding figure
15. Indian mulberries
16. Act
17. Sideways
19. Turkish title
20. Casey and Kildare, at one-time
22. Suture
25. Put out
26. Bunches
30. Antlered animal
31. Acquaints, as the freshman class
35. Nickel: sym.
36. Group of two
37. Exclamation of surprise
38. Spartan magistrates
40. Copied
41. Rational
42. Woe is me
43. Looked at
44. Well-known Nathan

DOWN
1. Revolves
2. See 12 across
3. Roman money
4. Sun god
5. Dam's name, in part
6. Music, literature, etc.
7. Cudgel
8. Heavy hammers
11. Samoan warrior
12. Agreement
13. A cut of meat
15. Girl's name
18. Goals
19. Sky-god
21. Abie's girl
22. Setting
23. Geometric path
24. Diving bird
27. Journeyed
28. Epochs
29. Free
32. Prickly pear
33. The things here
34. Turf
36. Describing 13 down, perhaps
39. Grass a la mowed
40. Armpit
42. Delightful exclamation



Yesterday's Answer



2-26

'66 Dodge Coronet

Shape up, budget-balancers. With Dodge Coronet, you can afford to. Here's an "in" car with a new out-look for swingers. Coronet has everything you need to put fun back in driving. Take Coronet's looks. Lots of people have. Take the extras at no extra cost: Outside rearview mirror. Padded dash. Variable-speed wipers and washers. Backup lights. Turn signals. Seat belts, front and rear. They're all standard. And Coronet's price? That's easy to take, too. So, march on down to your nearest Dodge Dealer's. See what the shouting is all about. Hot new Dodge Coronet for 1966.

DODGE DIVISION CHRYSLER MOTORS CORPORATION

JOIN THE DODGE REBELLION

See your Dodge Dealer now.

WATCH "THE BOB HOPE CHRYSLER THEATRE" WEDNESDAY NIGHTS ON NBC-TV. CHECK YOUR LOCAL LISTINGS.

BRACE YOURSELF FOR GREATNESS

RICHARD BURTON
CLAIRE BLOOM
OSKAR WERNER
"THE SPY WHO CAME IN FROM THE COLD"
A MARTIN RITT PRODUCTION

CAROLINA

NOW PLAYING
5:04—7:00—9:08
Shows at 12:00—3:02

Jim Coghill

Assistant DTH Sports Editor

Baseball fans will again be seeing familiar faces on the baseball diamond, but memories of wins and losses on Emerson Field will now give way this spring to a new field which as yet has not been named.

The new field, located between Ehringhaus and Avery Dorms, is the work of tons of dirt which filled what looked like a bottomless pit before the giant hole was covered.

Concrete and brick dugouts are to be constructed in the very near future and temporary bleachers will be erected in order to have the field ready for Carolina's home games this spring.

Permanent stands are planned for the future but as of the moment athletic officials are still looking for a generous alumnus to pave the way for such stands. If such a benefactor comes through, it will not be hard to find a name for the new field. The athletic department would probably take the last name off the benefactor and have it engraved into the first stone laid.

Practice will begin on the old Emerson field, which will support a new student union in only a few years. The new field is still settling somewhat and grounds committee officials want the new turf to benefit from the spring sunshine and new growing season as much as possible.

All athletic fields including the new base ball field are financed through the athletic department and usually come from football receipts with no help from the state. Then all such areas have to be approved by a building and grounds committee.

Many new fields are planned for the coming years if football surpluses build up. These fields will be used mainly for intramurals, practice sessions and probably additional parking when needed. More tennis courts are planned as well.

With an increasing student body in mind and the need for more facilities, Director of Athletics C. P. (Chuck) Erickson has his job cut out.

Progress is being made and work is steadily progressing on a new field between Morrison and the Nurses Dorm. Another field was finished last year that lies below Ehringhaus and Avery.

Steps are now being taken, but the pace must not slacken. It will have to increase as the enrollment is upped each year.

Fauntleroy

Ol' Roy sat on top of Trigger and Dale rode along with him. They smiled out from the picture tube and began singing:

HAPPY TRAILS TO YOU — UNTIL WE MEET AGAIN. HAPPY TRAILS TO YOU — KEEP SMILING UNTIL THEN.

Who but the bad guys and the Indians could resist shedding a few tears as the king of the cowboys and his American aple-pie-of-a wife rode off into the distant sunsets.

I used to feel the tear glands go wild every time I heard the song.

Well, all week I've been singing that song. You see ballfans, this is where I bow out.

The regular basketball season is all but over. I'm going to leave the NCAA tourney up to the 'refs' and the fates.

It hurts sitting down at the ol' typewriter and punching away for the last time. It hurts real bad.

And it hurts to look back on all the wonderful weeks we've cheered and booed and fallen in love with the game of basketball.

We've seen a lot of good teams. And we've seen a lot of not so good teams hustle the big boys right off the courts. That's as it should be.

That's what makes sports great.

Maybe we'll meet again in March when the baseballs start flying. Who knows? I hope so.

So for a while I'll just drift out of print.

Thanks, ball fans. Thanks for everything. AND HAPPY TRAILS. This is ol' Faunts — Signing Off.

UNC over DUKE (by 6 big points)
N. C. STATE over WAKE FOREST
VIRGINIA over SOUTH CAROLINA
MARYLAND over CLEMSON
UPSET SPECIAL: CHEERLEADERS over DTH (by at least 36-22-36 points)

Fauntleroy Disguised

Carolina Invades Duke's Devils This Afternoon In Season Finale

WORKMEN PREPARE WOOLLEN GYM for today's 13th annual ACC Indoor Track Championship. The Afternoon events will be from 1 to 4 p.m. and are free to all. From 6:30 to 10 p.m. the running events and pole fault will be held. Tickets will be $1 for students and $2 for the public. There will be plenty of seats available. — Photo by Ernest Robl

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

Past records and performance charts go out the window today as North Carolina's Tar Heels, fighting for second place in the ACC, battle the Duke Blue Devils at Duke Indoor Stadium in Durham.

Game time is 2 p.m. and the 8,800-seat Duke Auditorium has been sold out for weeks. The contest will be televised, however, as the regular ACC Game of the Week.

North Carolina, tied with Clemson and N. C. State for second place in the ACC, will bring a 15-9 overall record and an 8-5 ACC mark into the contest. Included in that ACC record is an 88-77 defeat at the hands of Duke at Carmiachel Auditorium.

The Duke statistics are impressive to say the least. The Blue Devils have managed to win 19 of 22 contests while taking nine of nine at home. A victory over Maryland last Saturday clinched the conference regular season championship.

North Carolina leads in the overall series. The Tar Heels have won 55 and lost 49. But Duke, under Coach Vic Bubas, has taken eight of the last ten decisions.

The Blue Devils have filed an even more impressive record against ACC opposition the past few years. Duke has won 60 of their last 67 ACC games.

Overall, in the past five seasons the Blue Devils lead the major colleges in the nation with 115 wins and 24 defeats.

Bubas, in his ninth year as Blue Devil coach, has seen his clubs win 10 of 17 games with the Tar Heels. UNC coach Dean Smith has won two of 10 from Duke during his stint as Tar Heel head coach.

But even though the Duke record is impressive, the Blue Devils have had their troubles — particularly against the weaker teams in the ACC. Both of the Duke ACC losses this season have come against supposedly weak clubs. South Carolina turned the trick 72-71 early in the season. This past Tuesday night the Deacons of Wake Forest repeated that feat 99-98 in Winston-Salem.

The contest will also match a pair of awesome scoring machines. Duke leading the ACC in scoring with an 85.2 average per game. North Carolina is closely behind with an 84.5 average.

The Tar Heels hold a comfortable edge in the accuracy department. UNC has hit 52 per cent of their shots from the floor and 74 per cent of their free throws. Both figures pace the ACC. Duke is in second place in both cases—hitting 49 per cent of their shots from the floor and 72 per cent of the free throws.

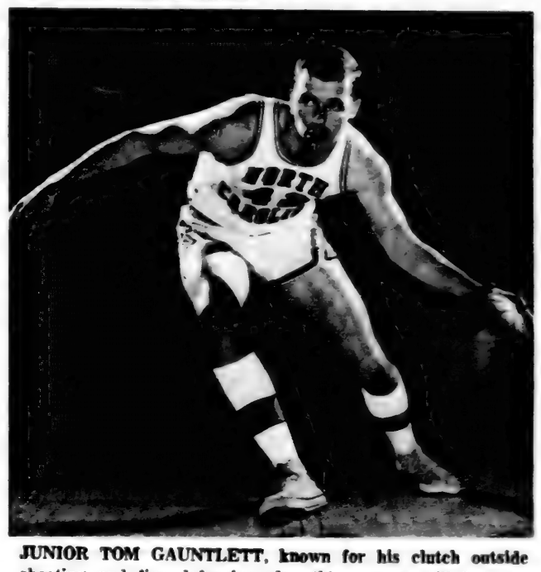
The Tar Heels also boast probably the finest one-two scoring combination in the nation with junior Bobby Lewis and sophomore Larry Miller. Lewis is averaging 28.4 points per game to lead the ACC in the scoring department.

Miller is in fourth place with a 21.9 average.

The Blue Devils have three men among the top 20 scorers in the ACC. Guard Bob Verga is the leader with a 19.9 average—good enough for sixth place in the conference. Forward Jack Marin with an 18.4 average is in eighth place. Center Mike Lewis is in 20th position with a 13.7 average.

The Blue Devils figure to have the rebounding edge. Center Mike Lewis is only 6-7 —but a healthy 225 pounds. Forward Jack Marin and Bob Riedy are both 6-6. Guards Verga and Steve Vacendak are 6-0 and 6-1 respectively.

The Tar Heels are somewhat shorter. Bob Bennett, 6-8, is at center. Tom Gauntlett and Bobby Lewis are 6-3. Miller is 6-4 and guard John Yokley is 6-1.



JUNIOR TOM GAUNTLETT, known for his clutch outside shooting and fine defensive play this season, will be very much in the picture when the Tar Heels hit Duke University this afternoon at 2 in Duke Indoor Stadium.

13th Annual ACC Indoor Track Tourney Here Today

By DRUMMOND BELL
DTH Sports Writer

Woollen Gymnasium is the scene of the 13th annual ACC Indoor Track Championship which begins this morning at 10 o'clock.

Last year the meet was dominated by the Maryland Terrapins, who have developed into one of the strongest track powers in the nation under the direction of Coach Jim Kehoe.

Again this year Maryland is the favorite and is led by 7-foot high jumper Frank Costello, who last year won the NCAA Indoor crown and jumped 7'2" last week in N. Y. Maryland has top-notch performers in all the events plus an all important depth factor.

Carolina, which has shown constant improvement will most likely give the Terrapins the most trouble, but Duke is also a contender. However, the depth which Maryland possesses will in all probability give the Terps the team championship.

Carolina's main hopes lie in Jon Levin in the 60-yd. dash, Mike Williams in the mile and possibly the 1000-yd. run, Ed Daw in the 600-yd. run, and Co-Captain Jim Meade in the two mile.

Levin will be up against his stiffest competition to date. Jim Bickey of Maryland and Dave Dunaway of Duke give the sixty a fine field. Levin has beaten Dunaway, but hasn't run against Bickley, who finished third last year behind UNC's White and Maryland's Cole.

Sophomore Mike Williams hasn't lost a mile run this year. Today he will have his work cut out for him. With the likes of Maryland's George Henry, who has run 4:12 this season and USC's Bob Crombie, last year's Outdoor Mile Champion, the race shapes up to be the best of the evening. Williams is a great competitor, should fare well under the rough competition.

In the 600-yd. run Ed Daw of UNC is one of the favorites. His best time to date is 1:13.5 which is good, however, USC's McGuiness is back for a third try at the title. As a sophomore the South Carolina speedster won this event. Last year he won, but was disqualified. Presently, this race looks like a battle between the Carolina teams, but there's no telling what Maryland may have.

Another exciting race should be the two mile run. Co-Captain Jim Meade ran his best time last week in the Tin Can and is ready for the meet. His main opposition comes from two youngsters to the ACC, Sophomores Paul Rogers of Duke and David Starnes of Maryland. Roger's has beaten Starnes has the best time of Meade twice this year indoors. The three over the two miles on the boards.

The meet gets underway at 10 o'clock this morning with the field events. The finals in the high jump begin at 1 o'clock along with the trials in the 600-yd. run. Then, the finals in the running events and the pole vault start the evening program at 6:30.

The meet should be one of the finest in the east this weekend and spectators will also have the privilege of seeing a 7-foot high jumper. It is not everyday that a fan can witness a competitor who ranks with the best in the world.

Dolphins Hold Third Place In ACC Swim Championship

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's swimming team found itself in third place in the Atlantic Coast Conference swimming championships after the first day of competition in Raleigh.

The Dolphins tallied 86 points to place behind Maryland with 127 and State with 166. Fourth was South Carolina with 48, fifth Wake Forest with 39, sixth Virginia with 34, seventh Duke with 24 and eighth Clemson with 14.

State got off to a fabulous start Thursday, winning four of the five events. Jeff Herman set a new ACC record with a 4:44.8 time in the 500 freestyle. Bob Hounsell of State was second and Pat Gavaghan of State third. Bill Nullmeyer of Maryland finished fourth, Mike Harris of State fifth and UNC's John Sheldon sixth. Herman broke former UNC star Harrison Merrill's old record.

Phil Riker of UNC finished seventh and won the consolation finals in 5:13.8. Jim Bernuth of UNC was eighth and Al McDonald tenth.

John Calvert of State won the 200 individual medley in 2:00.8, another ACC record. State also had Ron Wirth finishing second, John Lawrence fourth and John White fifth. Maryland placed Doug Springer third and South Carolina Bill Muller sixth.

Steve Hildenbrand of UNC won the consolation final to take seventh place with Jack Hayden eighth, Lee Domina 11th and Rick Forum 12th.

In the 400 medley relay, State won in 3:39.4 with Maryland second, Carolina third, South Carolina fourth, Virginia fifth, Wake sixth, Clemson seventh and Duke last.

Grapplers Take On Terps Today

University of North Carolina's wrestling team meets Maryland today and the Tar Heels will be anticipating one of their toughest matches of the season.

"We have never defeated Maryland," Coach Sam Barnes says, "so we approach this match with grimness."

Carolina's record at present is 6-5-0 overall and 1-2-0 in ACC competition. UNC needs a win over Maryland to equal last year's ACC record.

Maryland's lineup is the reason that Barnes and company are skeptical over halting a Terrapin winning skein. Tom Norris (123 pounds), who won the 115-pound championship last year, Jim Arnoult, who wrestles 123 pounds, Kent Webster (137), and Bob Darch (177) are four returning ACC champs that give strength to Maryland's hope for a win this Saturday and possibly another ACC crown.

Coach Barnes will counter with 145-pounder Roy Hagerty, last year's 147-pound ACC champ, Lane Verlenden (152) and Fred Priester (177), who have both only bowed once this season.

A collegiate wrestling match consists of nine matches instead of a few select matches, and it is Coach Barnes' hope that Carolina can rank up enough matches to bring home a victory.

The Beatles, The Turtles, The Dave Clark Five, The Searchers, The Rolling Stones, and The Birds are all featured sounds of

THE SHADOWS

Tonight

Morrison Social Room

A very unique group in their British sound and dress — a campus favorite.

8-12

$1.50 per couple

DON'T DO IT CLEO! CLIFF'S NOTES WILL SAVE THE DAY!

SHAKESPEARE IS EASIER.....

...when you let Cliff's Notes be your guide. Cliff's Notes explain most of Shakespeare's plays including Antony and Cleopatra. For each play Cliff's Notes gives you an expert scene-by-scene summary and character analysis. In minutes, your understanding will increase. Cliff's Notes cover more than 125 major plays and novels. Use them to earn better grades in all your literature courses.

125 Titles in all—among them these favorites:

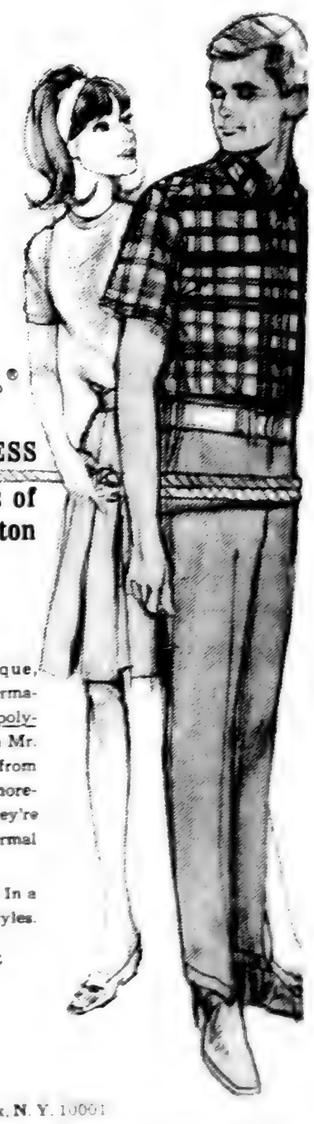
Hamlet • Macbeth • Scarlet Letter • Tale of Two Cities • Moby Dick • Return of the Native • The Odyssey • Julius Caesar • Crime and Punishment • The Iliad • Great Expectations • Huckleberry Finn • King Henry IV Part I • Wuthering Heights • King Lear • Pride and Prejudice • Lord Jim • Othello • Gulliver's Travels • Lord of the Flies

$1 at your bookseller or write:

Cliff's Notes

CLIFF'S NOTES, INC.
Bethany Station, Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

Cramming
Clowning
Crashing
Pubbing
Frugging



Mr. Wrangler®

PERMANENT PRESS

Shirts and Slacks of FORTREL® and cotton

From dawn to discotheque, they're really with it...Permanently pressed 50% Fortrel polyester and 50% cotton make Mr. Wrangler your best buddy from early classes to just-one-more-frug at midnight...and they're guaranteed for one year's normal wear.

They stay like new forever. In a full range of colors and styles.

SEE YOUR LOCAL STORE FOR FAMOUS MR. WRANGLER SHIRTS & SLACKS

or write Mr. Wrangler
350 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10001

QUIK FOOD MART

THIS WEEK'S SPECIALS Thur., Fri., Sat. Only

All Major Brands
CIGARETTES ..... $1.88 ctn.
200's Doubles
FACIAL TISSUE ..... 3 boxes $1.00

GROCERIES, PARTY SNACKS, BEER WINE & MIXES

Located on West Franklin Between Gardner Motors and Western Union

SAVE 20c
Reg. 99c Large Mario's Refrigerated Pepperoni PIZZA
79c with this Coupon

Women are Schizos

One minute they like milk chocolate the next dark chocolate. Good thing for Hollingsworth's assortment.

Hollingsworth's UNUSUAL CANDIES

—Bad Checks—

(Continued from Page 1)

This student, who had left his bank name off a counter check, was convicted of knowingly passing a worthless check and fined $10.

Any student convicted of passing a bad check in Williams' court usually is required to pay $10 plus the amount of the check.

But anyone who is called before Paul Robertson, Chapel Hill's other JP, is usually fined only $9.

Both Justices claimed that their fees were "the minimum allowed by law."

Robertson would make no comment when asked if he knew why Williams' fees should be legally higher than his.

When confronted with this discrepancy in fees, The Daily Tar Heel asked to see the records and dockets of each Justice, but each flatly refused the request.

Since, by law, the records of JP's are public, the DTH went to the Clerk of Superior Court and had them opened.

The records indicated that Robertson had handled 125 cases from Aug. 1, 1965 until Dec. 1. All but four of these cases involved worthless checks.

As Robertson indicated when interviewed, his charges were indeed $9. He collected this amount in 114 out of the 121 bad check cases. Only three were found to be not guilty. Four others were given a sentence of 30 days in jail.

Williams heard 280 cases in the same time period. All but five of these dealt with bad checks. Williams found 257 of these people guilty.

His charges ranged from $7 to over $15. Most people paid the $10 fine.

Any student who is called before Williams can have his case transferred to Robertson and pay only a $9 cost rather than $10, assuming he is found guilty.

The procedure for doing this is as follows:

1. Go to Williams as instructed by the warrant.
2. Before any evidence is presented, give Williams a written notice that you want the case transferred to Paul H. Robertson.
3. Pay a 50 cents transfer fee.
4. Report to Robertson at the indicated time.
5. Always receive a signed receipt specifying the exact amount you paid and the exact reason you paid that amount.

By doing this the student can, if found guilty, save 50 cents.

If the student feels that he is not guilty under the laws defined in article one of this series (Mainly writing the bad check willfully, knowingly or with the intent to cheat and defraud), he should plead not guilty.

By doing so he is automatically requesting a trial by jury. He will be given the time he is to go to court.

Any student who feels he has been treated unjustly can appeal his case to Orange County Solicitor Court. To do this he simply tells the JP he wants to appeal. The JP will instruct the student of the procedure.

At present the justices are allowed to keep a portion of the costs charged in cases. But under a new North Carolina law the JP's will be paid a salary starting in 1968. Under this same law there will be no more JP's after 1970.

Unpaid Telephone Bills Could Withhold Diplomas And Grades

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

UNC students who have been letting their telephone bills pile up will not be allowed to receive their grades or diplomas until their bill is paid.

John R. Cox, commercial manager of the University Service Plant, said that some students have been getting three or four months behind in their telephone bills on an average of $50-$65.

"Any student who has not paid his entire telephone bill by May 20 will have his name turned over to the dean and the University Cashier," Cox said.

"The University Cashier will not release the grades or diplomas, in the case of a graduating senior, until the student's entire telephone bills are paid."

Cox said that this action was being taken because the University Service Plant has no way to collect an old bill from a student after he leaves school.

Mrs. Pam Warren, a service representative, said, "Last month we had several bills over $100, but the average bill is only $10 a month.

"Our main concern over students' telephone bills are for the ones that pile up more and more each month until they become too large for a student to pay.

"Students with telephones in Morrison, Craige, Ehringhaus and Granville Residence Halls are much better about keeping up with their bills than are the students who live off campus in apartments.

"One student ran up a $700 bill while living in an apartment and an $80 bill this year in Morrison before he moved out. (We did not check the credit ratings of the students before they moved into Morrison.)

"When he asked to have his lights turned on when he recently rented an apartment here, we had to refuse until he pays his back bills."

Anytime during the school year that a student with a phone changes rooms, he must notify the University Plant of his change of address so that the billing will not become confused.

My Sister At Carolina?

'Too Much Pressure Here'

By DEBBY LAZARUS
Special to the DTH

Would you want your sister to attend UNC?

UNC male students say this:

Gary Wright, senior, political science and history, Salisbury—"Yes, as much as any. UNC offers the best education for a girl going to a state school and also gives a well-rounded social life."

Hershel Wix, freshman, zoology, Hendersonville — "Yes and no, there is too much pressure on girls here because there are so few. Girls shouldn't go to girls' schools because it keeps them from growing up. They don't know what's going on outside."

Joe Ford, sophomore, economics, Atlanta, Ga. —"It would be the best place for her—primarily because of the social life. She's shy and it might bring her out. If she were real good looking—no, they tend to be snobs."

Gus Burns, graduate student, history, Roxboro — "Definitely. UNC has a liberal atmosphere and the ratio would be in her favor. I'd like her to 'cause Chapel Hill swings!"

Brent Milgrom, sophomore, history, Rocky Mount — "Yes, she might get a date if she's as ugly as mine is!"

Bob Powell, junior, political science, Thomasville — "Yes, there are good boys here, the kind she ought to be associated with."

Winston Brown, sophomore, business administration, Murfreesboro— "No, judging by some others she might turn out to be like them."

Not Vaudeville Team

What's Mutton And Shoats?

By CAROL GALLANT
DTH Staff Writer

Run into anything unique, imaginative, exciting on campus lately?

I did yesterday, by virtue of the fact that I am a reporter (No laughter here, please) and was granted the privilege of being the first and only lady to infiltrate the ranks of "The Society For The Preservation of Buck Taylor's Mutton and Shoats."

The name itself should give you some idea of the seriousness of the organization. It's purpose is to exonerate the memory of one Buck Taylor, the first steward at UNC, who was of "Strong Character and Resolute Will, of pronounced eccentricity and grim disposition."

He was also, incidentally, fired from the University after three years of his five year stewardship.

The fourteen members of the Society, purely in the interest of said exoneration of Buck Taylor, of course, hire a chef, secure a room at the Villa Tempesta, and sit down to a five-to eight-course meal which includes three kinds of wine and brandy afterwards.

Now, unfortunately, my infiltration of "Mutton and Shoats" did not involve the actual banquet but merely the preliminaries held at 3 p.m. in the Goody Shop the afternoon before the feast. This in itself was interesting.

It seems there was also a very practical reason for "Mutton and Shoats." Let's face it.

Where in Chapel Hill can you get an eight - course meal cooked by a real Frenchman? Nowhere.

That's hard to believe in a town of this size! In order to get a really good meal the Groaning Bored guys formed an Eating and Humor Club and what could be more fitting than to dedicate it to the University's first known eccentric who also happened to be the first chef.

Last night the second of the Society's "meetings" was held and included Bouillabaisse, Canard al'organe, Petits Pois, Salade, Fromages, Fruits Rafraichis Maxim's Carafe blac, 1960, and of course a Toast To Buck Taylor (to be drunk in silence). In order to alleviate the tedium of such a hum-drum evening, Dr. Leffler President of the Southern Historical Association spoke on "The University of Buck Taylor's Day." Dr. Baxter, sponsor of the Society, affectionately known as "Chawbacon" was also present.

Taylor was a hero of The American Revolution. (No one knows quite why.) When he became chef for the University there was a violent reaction to the Mutton and Shoats he served so Taylor took the stew pot and left.

He was replaced by a charming fellow by the name of Major Pleasant Henderson whose motto was "Insist upon the golden mean of fat along with the lean."

Apparently the students didn't care much for the golden mean and demonstrated their disapproval by putting the Major's front door in the pulpit of the Church.

What really drove the poor man away was the unceremonious over-turning of his out-house. So, our hero, Mutton and Shoats notwithstanding, returned.

The members of the Society are George Butler, David Frey, Brit Gordon, Jay Hanan, John Higgins, Nelson Schwab, Beauchamp Carr, Armis-Thomas White III, Chris Wright, Bernard Baldwin, William Harrison, Wade Logan.

Also, M. Roget Bougard, "Mut'n Chef," and Gerald Tempest, Patron.

There is an epilogue to the story. This morning a friend of mine in the dorm asked, "Did you know that the Committee for Free Inquiry returned to President Friday's house about 1 a.m. this morning and sang patriotic songs?"

"No, I didn't" I replied, suppressing a smile.

"In the dull occurrences of everyday life, one thing stands out as a truly unique experience." No, not that Malt Lager, "Mutton and Shoats.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE PRESERVATION of
Buck Taylor's Mutton and Shoats

"(Insist upon) the Golden Mean of fat along with the lean."
Major Pleasant Henderson

Fares and Middlings

Bouillabaisse
Canard à l'orange
Petits Pois
Salade
Fromages Fruits Rafraichis

Vin
Marcini's Carafe blanc 1960
Grand cru de vieux moulin de bark 1962
Gordon de Bourgogne 1962

THE GROANING BORED

George Tyzzer Butler
David Gardiner Frey
Britton Lawrence Gordon
John Henry Hannan
John Clarke Higgins
Nelson Schwab, III
Beauchamp Carr

Hugh Talmage Lefler, Historian
Stephan Baxter, Chawbacon
M. Roget Bougard, Mutton Chef
Gerald Tempest, Patron

Armistead Jones Maupin
Pascal Francisot Jones
Thomas Skinner White III
& Christopher Wright
Bernard Coleman Baldwin
William Burwell Harrison
Wade Hampton Logan

A Toast To Buck Taylor
(To be drunk in silence)

Twaddle Villa Tempesta, February 24, 1966

The Groaning Bored

TONIGHT

OVER ONE-HALF THE WOMEN IN AMERICA WEAR THE WRONG BRA!

DO YOU?

There is only one way to find out. In the fitting room, with an expert fitter and several Bras. Will you spend 5 minutes with us on a better figure for life?

Brassieres by Perma-lift®

EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Milton's February Frogstrangler will Be History Today

This wild "Mt. Airy Monsoon" blows buys that beckon all ye sartorial cognoscenti. You'll never have a better chance to join this select "in Group".

Last call to suit buys, group to $95.00 at Frogstrangler of $45.00.

Shoes as you like them, regularly to $35.00, 38 pairs left at a monsoon of $16.99.

Shirt, shirt, my kingdom for a Milton M-2. Group regularly to $8.95, at a mere bagatelle of $2.99.

McGeorge of Dumphries, Scotland, the top dog in fine Scottish sweaters — all completely mothproofed. Take a gander at V-necks cut from $16.95 to $12.99 and cardigans from $21.95 to only $14.99.

Sport coats regularly to $50.00, last chance at $29.99.

Lazy man's pants — ready cuffed, regularly to $8.95, last call at $4.99.

Many other great deals to round out the year and add to your sartorial splendor.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Downtown Chapel Hill

Inspection Investigated

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official said Friday a two-day undercover investigation in Charlotte disclosed only one "flagrant violation" of North Carolina's newly launched auto inspection program.

R. B. Parker, administrator of the program, said a Charlotte service station, the A. & E. Oil Co., was being ordered to show cause at a hearing March 14 why its inspection license should not be revoked or suspended.

Parker charged the station's operator, Richard D. McDonald, had failed to comply with inspection regulations. He accused McDonald of "failing to pull the vehicle up into the inspection area, failing to perform an adequate brake test and with merely inquiring of the owner if wipers, hand brake and horn were operating properly."

WANT ADS

WANTED: RESOURCEFUL college girl to outwit small boy for two hours every day. Call Mrs. Schlesinger, 942-2074.

CARS FOR SALE, WHOLESALE. Any make or model. All cars are guaranteed. Contact Gordon Barnes in 302 Mangum or call 968-9183.

FOR RENT: TWO BEDROOM air-conditioned mobile home. Available March 1st. $75 per month. Call 942-1749 or 942-3268.

FOR SALE: 1965 GILERA motorcycle. 124 cc., 970 miles. $450 or car of same value. George Vaughan, 306 Grimes, 968-9192.

FOR SALE: GARRARD LAB 80 turntable with walnut base, dust cover and shure elliptical stylus cartridge. Like new. Best offer over $75.00. Tel. N. Reid, 942-2508.

FOR SALE: SMITH-CORONA typewriter. Portable Galaxie—Excellent condition — script type, $50.00. Call 942-5974 after 12 noon. Reason for selling, need standard type set for dissertation.

FOR RENT: BEDROOMS for boys. A quiet location. Call 968-3761.

WANTED: PART-TIME SECretary at Hillel Foundation. 20-25 hours per week, can arrange hours. Typing, mimeographing, no shorthand necessary. Call 942-4057 mornings.

Saddle and Fox

STEAK HOUSE & OYSTER BAR

Chesapeake Oysters
Steamed or on the half shell

Banquets & Receptions

Inquire about our famous OYSTER ROASTS

Take 15-501 Durham By-Pass — Turn Right at Holiday Inn — Continue East 2 Blocks on Hillsboro Road.

Tel. 286-1138 Durham, N. C.

Round And About Carolina

TODAY

The Seductives will appear in the New Ehringhaus Party Room from 8-12 o'clock at the season's best Combo Party sponsored by E-House of Ehringhaus. Couples only; one dollar admission. All tickets sold at the door.

All gym facilities will be closed Feb. 26 except for 8 and 10 a.m. P.E. classes because of ACC Track meet.

Maverick House will feature the Rogues Combo from 8-12 for couples only. Admission for MH residents is free and is $1 per couple for students.

Morrison Residence College features the Shadows from 8 p.m.-1 a.m. Public invited. $1.25 a couple.

Combo Party in the Scott College Social Room featuring the "Entertainers" from 8-12 p.m. Admission free.

"Man And Myth," the present issue of New Wine, is on sale at Lenoir, Chase, and Y-Court. Issues may also be purchased at Kemp's, Carolina Coffee Shop, Bull's Head, and the Presbyterian Student Center next to the Record Bar.

Interviews for endorsement to run for chairman of Carolina Women's Council will be held Feb. 28 - March 4 from 5-6 p.m. in the Attorney General's Office. Sign up for interview at GM Information Desk.

Interviews for WRC Chairman will be held Tues. from 3:30-5:30; Wednesday from 6-7 p.m.; Thursday from 2-6 p.m. Pick up application and sign-up for interview at GM Information.

SUNDAY

LSA supper and meeting at 5:30 p.m. in the church. The topic will be "Why I Am An Agnostic" led by Dr. Walter Hollander.

meet to address postcards for Invitation Sale from 2-5

Invitation Sale from 2-5 p.m. in the Grail Room.

Hillel presents "Smile" as one of the successful Sunday Supper Socials. Reservations should be made Sunday afternoon from 3 - 5 by calling 942-4057. Dinner will start promptly at 5:30 p.m.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Key-ring with two keys in the vicinity of Library and Bingham. Call 929-3329.

Found: St. Christopher medal, "To R.A. from Rev. G.J. Carcich. Call Cleveland, 933-2076.

Found: Lady's wristwatch (Bulova) S.J.H. in the vicinity of the Library. Claim at 324 Dey.

ALL RECORDS

NO DEALERS

$2.25 EACH

Open — 12 Noon Til 10 P.M.

ALL DAY SATURDAY, FEB. 26

REGARDLESS OF LABEL — REGARDLESS OF PRICE
ALL AT ONE PRICE — NEW STOCKS
ARE HERE — NOW IS THE RIGHT TIME TO BUY

KEMP'S East Franklin CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

The undersigned members of the U.N.C. faculty express their approval and appreciation for the encouraging manner in which the students of the University have assumed initiative and continuing responsibility for the protection of an essential part of American freedom, the freedom to speak. We hope that this may serve as an example to those who take their responsibility for the nourishment of democracy less seriously.

E. M. Adams
John Heintz
Edward M. Galligan
Harlan B. Miller
Winslow Shea
William G. Fleming
Donald R. Matthews
William R. Keech
Lewis Lipsitz
S. Kenneth Howard
Richard E. Lonsdale
Clyde E. Browning
D. G. Basile
Joseph W. Straley
Mark E. Watkins
Robert E. O'Malley, Jr.
Dale M. Mesner
Martin Engert
Dan Pollitt
Richard Smith
Kenneth Penegar
Martin B. Louis
Philip C. Thorpe
Michael Katz
John D. Martz
Raymond H. Dawson
James W. Prothro
Robert T. Daland
Alden E. Lind
John A. Parker
Maynard M. Hufschmidt
Ralph Gakenheimer
Henry Hightower
F. Stuart Chapin, Jr.
Edward J. Kaiser
George C. Hemmens
Shirly F. Weiss
Frederic N. Cleaveland
Gordon Cleveland
W. J. Hall
Walter L. Smith
F. T. Cloak
Joan Rubin
Robert L. Rands
Wm. S. Pollitxer
John Gulick
John J. Honigmann
Craig Henrikson
Gerhard E. Lenski
James A. Wiggins
Edgar W. Butler
M. Richard Cramer
Richard L. Simpson
David Galinsky
E. E. Baughman
Richard A. King
Richard M. Sanders
John Schopler
Robert LaCrosse
Jean E. LaCrosse
W .J. Daniel
Hubert M. Blalock
Bruce K. Eckland
Guy B. Johnson
Hallowell Pope
John Thibaut
Stuart Valins
M. Grant Dahlstrom
Samuel Fillenbaum
Douglas W. Schoeniger
Ken Lessler
Owen L. McConnell
John D. Burchard
Jacques Hardre
Sterling Stoudemire
Daniel R. Reedy
George B. Daniel, Jr.
W. L. Wiley
M. S. Adams
M. J. Galinsky
Arthur E. Fink
A. A. McKinnon
Jane C. Parker
Barbara H. Cleaveland
W. C. McCrary
J. R. Jones
Lawrence A. Sharpe
Richard L. Frautschi
Halbert B. Robinson
Jay S. Birnbrauer
W. E. Haisley
W. A. Bowers
B. S. DeWitt
M. Silver
Lawrence Slifkin

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Freshman Game

The Freshmen fared better in Durham. See the game story on page 5.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Volume 74, Number 105 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

DTH Election

Check page 3 for Andy Myers' opinion on the election of DTH editors.

Unendorsed Candidates

Banov And Gebeaux Circulate Petitions

By STEVE BENNETT
DTH Staff Writer

Alan Banov and Howard Gebeaux have started circulating petitions to get their names on the ballot for editor of The Daily Tar Heel, since neither received the endorsement of the Publications Board.

The petitions must contain at least 145 names and be submitted to the Elections Board by March 10.

Hugh Blackwell, chiarman of the Publications Board, said that the board would decide at their meeting this Thursday whether to make public or not the reasons why Banov and Gebeaux did not receive endorsement.

"I plan to go to as many tively for editor of the DTH," Banov said. "I should have no trouble in securing the required number of signatures on the petition.

Banov said, "I feel the Pub residence halls, fraternities and sororities as possible in securing names for the petition and support for my campaign. I hope to secure several thousand signatures on the petition."

Gebeaux said that he will be running his campaign by presenting his views of what an editor should be and what would make a good DTH.

Banov is a junior from Charleston, S. C. He has been news editor of the DTH and is now acting press secretary for the student government.

Banov said, "I feel the Pub Board used information in considering me for endorsement that is not relevant to the position for which I have applied.

"I think that my record in journalism and student government would enable me to handle the job as editor."

Howard Gebeaux, a junior from Falls Church, Va., said that he has already begun circulating his petition but he does not plan to try to secure a larger number than required.

He said, "I feel the Pub Board made the only decision they could in not endorsing me according to the criteria they think is most important for the editor of the DTH. My concepts of the duties of an editor are different from those expressed by the Pub Board.

"The Pub Board expresses the view that the editor of the DTH must know every detail concerning the technical procedures involved in putting out a student newspaper.

"I think I could learn the technical processes by next year. I will be at UNC during this summer."

The Pub Board has endorsed Fred Thomas and Ray Linville for editor of the DTH. If the petitions of Banov and Gebeaux are approved, they will appear on the ballot with Thomas and Linville. The election will be held March 22.

Ray Linville To Run For Tar Heel Editor

Ray P. Linville, a junior from Winston - Salem, has announced his candidacy for editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

A journalism major, he received an endorsement by the Publications Board Thursday.

Campaigning on experience in both journalism and student affairs, Linville has been an orientation counselor and has served in the Men's Residence Council.

He was a member of the

RAY LINVILLE

class finance committee his sophomore year and is presently a member of the Student Government Communications Committee, the UNC Cardboard Club, UNC Press Club, and Sigma Delta Chi professional journalistic society.

Until he resigned this week, he was managing editor of the UNC Journalist, a publication of the School of Journalism. He has been a member of the DTH staff.

A former employe of the Twin City (Winston - Salem) Sentinel, Linville has made the Dean's List and is pursuing the honors program in journalism.

He is a member of the AFROTC program and the Arnold Air Society.

"The Daily Tar Heel is a student newspaper and is the students' sole means of communication. It hould exist for all students, fraternities, residence halls and their activities. The DTH editor should be aware of the role an effective student newspaper can play. He should be interested in student activities and the University as a whole," Linville said in announcing his candidacy.

"The DTH is obligated to the student body for accuracy, objectivity and maintenance of ethical standards, and I feel the paper can and should meet these obligations."

Work In Europe

Histadrut Foundation for Educational Travel has announced an 8-week summer program for work and lectures in Israel and Europe.

Cost will be $897.

Information and reservations may be obtained from Histadrut Student Tours, 33 East 67th St., New York 21, N. Y.

GI's Wives Get Anonymous Calls

By CHARLES BARBOUR
Durham Morning Herald

FT. BRAGG (AP) — The night a Ft. Bragg housewife's husband was reported executed by the North Vietnamese, someone telephoned the home and shouted: "I'm going to kill you just as your husband got killed."

About the same time, four other dependents of men fighting the Viet Cong received anonymous calls saying they should be ashamed that their husbands were fighting in a war that is not our business.

Two others were called and told they would be taken to some remote spot and "horse beaten" at an undetermined time.

These terrifying experiences are being relived once, twice, sometimes several times daily here by the women struggling to take care of their families while their husbands are away.

Since last October, the Army has officially recorded 24 wives at this post as receiving one or more such calls — 16 of them obscene in nature, four subversive and three of terror.

Every call followed the same line. The caller knew the first names of the dependents, knew the husbands were overseas, and, most of the time, knew enough to trace the dependents' daily activities.

And, although 24 have been officially noted, many others — possibly hundreds — have not.

The calls take on many shapes and forms at first, apparently, but have the same objective.

One wife related that she received her first call shortly after her husband was reported missing in action.

"It was a long distance call," she said, "and they knew my husband's name. I heard them tell the operator that they had vital information for me about my husband."

The wife refused to talk with the party and immediately notified Ft. Bragg officials.

Shortly thereafter, a deluge of mail began arriving at her address from extremist organizations. They urged her to join at a $100 fee to assist in a march on Washington, join in picketing at the White House or meet with the group in Chicago.

(Continued on Page 6)

THE TAR HEELS lost but Bob Lewis faught his way into the ACC record books.—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

'New Wine' On Sale Now; Topic: 'Man And Myth'

New Wine, the Christian journal of opinion published by the Westminister Fellowship, goes on sale this week.

This issue, "Man and Myth," examines the various ways myth functions in modern life. Writers include John Honigmann, Suzane MacRae, Bernard Boyd, Virgil Aldrich, Robert Sherer and Lawrence Gruman. Book reviews are by Sue Ross, Waldo Haisley, Jim McCorkle, David McFadden an Clay Stalnaker.

It will be on sale at Kemp's, Carolina Coffee Shop, Y-Court, Graham Memorial and Bull's Head Bookstore. It can also be obtained by mail at Box 509, Chapel Hill. Price is 50 cents.

Zoologist To Speak

Dr. Phillip Hildroth, a research zoologist at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, will be the speaker at Wednesday's UNC Zoology Seminar.

Colloquium Monday

Prof. G. A. Barnard will speak on "Data Analysis in High Energy Physics" at Monday's statistics colloquium in 265 Phillips.

He has held the Chair of Statistics at Imperial College of Science, London, since 1948. He will soon take the same position at the University of Essex.

Yang At Duke

A Nobel Award winner in physics will speak at the Tenth Fritz London Memorial Lecture at Duke Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Chen Ning Yang will speak on the subject of his prize-winning effort — "The Symmetry Laws of Physics."

He is known for his work in statistical mechanics and on the process of sublimation of a solid into gas.

He will speak in the auditorium of the Biological Sciences Building on the West Campus. The lecture is open to the public.

Visits Citadel

Prof. Lawrence M. Slifkin of the Physics Department will be visiting lecturer at The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., on March 10 and 11.

His visit is part of a nationwide program to stimulate interest in physics, sponsored by the American Institute of Physics and the American Association of Physics Teachers.

Slifkin will give lectures, hold informal meetings with students and assist faculty members with curriculum and research problems.

He has been a member of the faculty here since 1955.

SP Meets

There will be a Student Party meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in Gerrard Hall to nominate candidates for secretary and treasurer of the student body.

Nominations for several legislative offices will also be made, according to SP Chairman Jim Little. The party will also adopt a platform.

Interfaith Council Still Looking For Participants

Places are still open for participants in four of the discussion -study groups sponsored by the UNC Interfaith Council.

Composed of representatives from all the campus fellowships, the Inter-faith Council, for the purpose of "prompting thinking and action in the areas of university concern, social problems and international relations, and aiding the student in attaining an understanding of religious thought and in developing his own personal faith, has organized the following three groups to meet for five weeks on Wednesday evenings beginning Wednesday and running through March 30:

"The Philosophy of Teilhard de Chardin," led by Father William Shurr, S. J., (1942-2114) will examine the controversial work of the Jesuit biologist in incorporating the scientific view of evolution with the Christian faith. Meeting 9 p.m. at the Episcopal Student Center, 304 East Franklin Street. Study books will be The Divine Mileau and The Phenomenon of Man.

"Conversations on Myth," with Rev. DeWitt Myers of the United Church (942-1740). This group will be a seminar study in preparation for the Carolina Symposium (April 17-21) on "Man, Mind and Myth" and will investigate the use of myth and symbol in religious literature and thought. The text will be Rollo May's collected essays Symbolism in Religion and Literature.

PHARMACIST BEN COURTS advises students not to doctor themselves. But — if you can't resist the urge, this year's big sellers in cold remedies are Coryban D, Coricidin, Contact, Anahist and Dristan. Meanwhile, over in the infirmary — Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth reports things are normal for this time of year.
— DTH photo by Ernest Robl

A News Analysis

Effects Will Last

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

A decision that will have deep and lasting effects on this University will be made by the 100-member board of trustees in Raleigh tomorrow.

There are many complexities surrounding Monday's decision and many issues involved. But from th standpoint of the University community there is only one issue —freedom of speech. Will it be returned, or will it remain qualified?

On Feb. 8 the executive board of the full trustee committee met and in an 8-3 vote, instructed the president and chancellors to "deny the use of university facilities for speaking purposes of Herbert Aptheker and Frank Wilkinson."

A second resolution was unanimously adopted by the committee which said, "The executive committe suspends all invitations to speakers who are under terms of GS 116-199 (the speaker ban law) until action is taken by the board of trustees establishing rates and regulations governing speakers as required by law."

Committee Reports

Trustees Victor Bryant, Wade Barber and Reid Maynard were appointed as a three-man committe to discuss further rules "in order to clarify the registration of groups" on the university campus. The committee will make its report tomorrow whn all proposed regulations will be considered.

Its decision will take into consideration the speaker policy set forth by the Committee for Free Inquiry.

This proposal is completely non-restrictive and is the only one students here seem willing to accept. But there are policies to be considered and they are all restrictive in one aspect or another.

There is also the question of Communist Herbert Aptheker's invitation to speak here and the invitation to Frank Wilkinson.

Possibilities

The possibilities that lie ahead are many and their ramifications are ven more important.

1. The full board may pass a restrictive speaker policy and at the same time prohibit Aptheker and Wilkinson's alternative it is more than

2. It may pass a restrictive policy and permit Apthker and Wilkinson to appear providing all the measurs under the policy are followed.

3. The board may accept a non-restrictive policy and allow the two controversial speakers to appear.

If the board takes the first altrnative it is more than likely that the Committee for Free Inquiry, which has been restrained for the past month by positive and thoughtful leadership, may take to the streets.

Professors

It is also possible that pro- new season ahead of us" fessors will carry through on their thrats and leave Chapel Hill for freer pastures. And there is no doubt that the reputation and the high standing of this University will come crashing down.

The same action is likely even if the board does permit Aptheker and Wilkinson to speak. These two men have been removed from the issue, at last for the most part. The students here are interested in free speech in its entirity. They don't want it qualified.

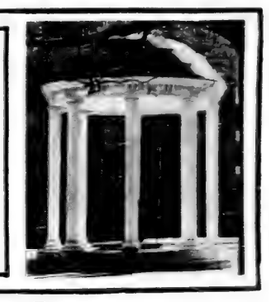
If the committee rules that Aptheker cannot appear he will probably be re-invited. And then there will be the much talked about test case.

If the speaker ban is thrown out, and surely it would be, the legislature and the Governor would have mud in their eyes.

It is highly unlikely that the board will pass the non-restrictive policy for they would be going against the expressed wishes of Gov. Moore. And it is a well known fact that the majority of North Carolina stands behind Gov. Moore on this issue.

In the final analysis no one can win, except, of course, free speech.

CAROLINA STYLE
with
Ed Freakley



The New Love

We printed the first half of a revelling sex survey that was taken on another campus yesterday. Today we return to this vital subject to find even more startling results.

Of the males interviewed regarding marriage almost all of them expressed a desire to get married somewhere between the ages of 55 and 96.

Over 98 per cent of the males said they believed in the "double standard." However, 97 per cent of them said they told their dates they believed in the "single standard."

All females said they believed in the double standard. But it was not valid, they said, if a girl was going steady, engaged, had gone out with someone more than three times or if the male had admitted to being in love with her, regardless of the length of the relationship. Marriage was not mentioned as a reason.

Factors which affected the success or failure of dating were the inability to dance, inability to consume a fifth of liquor at one sitting, lack of a new model car to drive and the presence of morals

Females said the ideal mate, or date, was one who carried a brief case, knew his way around Philadelphia (which includes every night club and expensive restaurant), is more irritating than she's ever known, who is going to be a doctor or an attorney, maybe an accountant, and who can smile like Steve McQueen.

Males described an ideal date or mate as a femle who thinks he, and not Sean Connery, is the "greatest thing going," who will welcome him with open arms after he has not called for three months, who will support and defend him when he is totally wrong, and who won't laugh when he tells her his accumulative average.

Males said they enjoyed dating because they like "playing the role," and "loved to see the fools (females) believe all they are told."

"Women are so gullible," was the general consensus.

Female said they enjoyed dating because they liked letting their dates think they believed all they were told. They also said they enjoyed "seeing the fools (males) spend their money."

"They're so dumb," was the general consensus.

A surprising result of the survey was that love was not listed as a factor for dating or marriage.

They said one must be cold, independent, cynical, due to losing the one love of his life, calculating, and always bitter as a result of losing that one and only true love.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of The Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. All unsigned editorials are written by the editor. Letters and columns reflect only the personal views of their contributors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Getting Tired Of It All?

How strange it is.

Everybody knows America is the freest country in the world — the guardian of liberty.

And North Carolina, at least until recently, has been calling itself the most progressive state in the South — a place where the rights of any man are respected.

Then why is this University today in the position of defending itself against restrictions of its freedom?

The paradox of the situation makes it even more frustrating, and harder to understand.

* * *

The UNC board of trustees will meet tomorrow. It will pass regulations governing invitations to and appearances of speakers on the campuses of state-supported schools.

Why?

Ask a trustee. The answer is easy: The law says the board must adopt such regulations.

The UNC administration will suggest that those rules give the final say-so about speakers to administrators but it is more than possible that the trustees will require further, more stringent restrictions.

* * *

Hopefully, they will.

The more restrictive the better because the trustees, the governor and the state legislators may be assured the students of the University will take this mockery of common sense to the courts. The tighter the restrictions, the more apparent their illegality becomes, and the stronger our case is.

For more than two and a half years the University has been trying to reason with unreasonable men.

The court is the most important safeguard of freedom in this country. It has been used before when reasoning with unreasonable men failed and it should be used now that all else has not succeeded.

There can never be an understanding between those who support the speaker ban, in any form, and those who despise it.

We cannot convert the friends of the ban and we must not let them convert us.

Are you tired of the whole mess? Sick of the controversy? Not quite as dedicated to opposing the ban as you were six months or six weeks or even six days ago?

The "friends" of the University — those who want to take care of us because they think we are not fit to take care of ourselves — will be glad to hear it.

* * *

We cannot falter now if we expect to survive as a first-rate institution of higher learning. If we have any integrity, we cannot accept these regulations.

We must stop for a moment in the midst of all this confusion and hopeless frustration to make sure we know where we are and where we are going.

We are in hell — a hell created by political interference with the University.

Barring miracles, we are going to court.

A Real Winner

The DTH Award of the Week, all categories, goes to the following letter which appeared in the Raleigh News and Observer Friday morning:

To the Editor: Regarding Sen. Robert Morgan's address to the Association of University Professors, I say, "More power to him."

So glad there is one who isn't a "Red." Such a pity there aren't more legislators of his caliber. He knows, as does any sensible person, that any Communist is more dangerous than a pack of wolves or rabid dogs, and should be treated as such.

G. E. LLEWELLYN

New Bern.

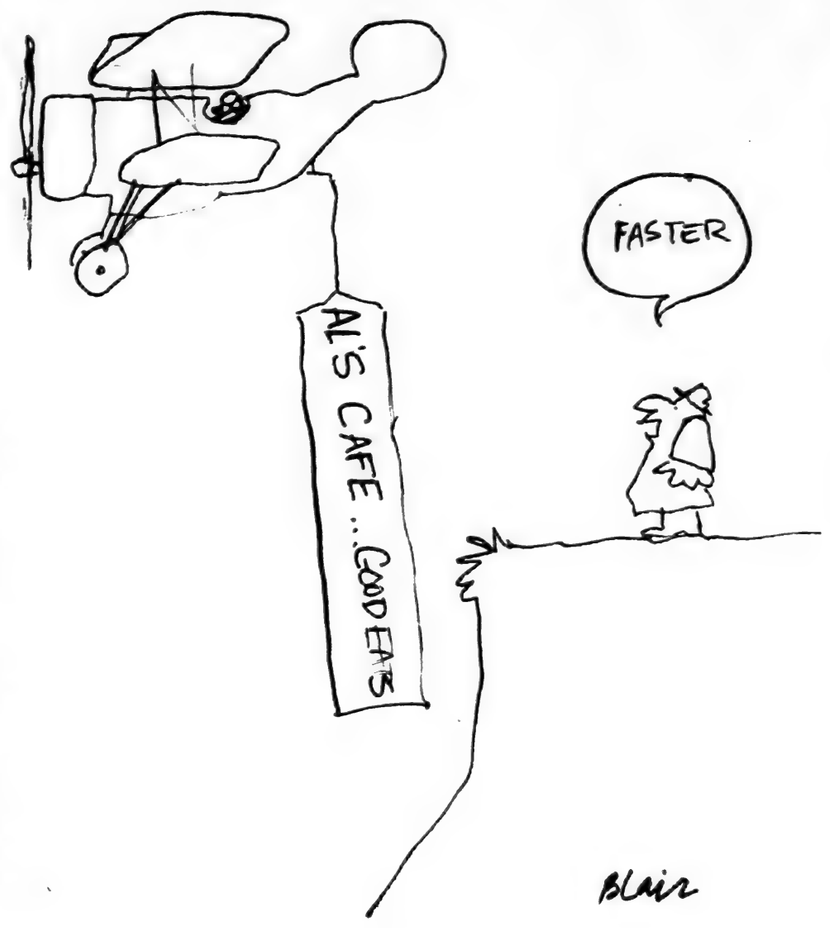
The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; Pat Stith, managing editor; Barry Jacobs, associate editor; Andy Myers, news editor; Gene Rector, sports editor; Jim Coghill, asst. sports editor; Rick Nichols, night editor; Grady Hubbard, wire editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; David Rothman, columnist; Carol Gallant, secretary; Ed Freakley, Bob Harris, Steve Bennett, Steve Lackey, Glenn Mays, Lytt Stamps, Peytie Fearrington, staff writers; Wayne Hurder, Ron Shinn, Mike O'Leary, copy editors; Bill Rollins, Gene Whisnant, Sandy Treadwell, Drummond Bell, Bill Hass, Jim Fields, sports writers; Jeff MacNelly, sports cartoonist.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all AP news dispatches.



David Rothman

Would Smoking Help Grades?

Officials at a Louisville, Ky., preparatory school recently began letting seniors smoke on campus—supposedly because this will put the smokers at ease, so they can perhaps get better grades.

I recently visited one school whose principal has similar feelings about smoking and marks. Well, maybe not. But, anyway, here's how things have turned out:

After the new smoking rules went into effect, many students complained of thier severity. "It's unfair," they told the principal. "Cigarette smoking may improve our grades, but it's absolutely cruel to make us smoke 20 packs a day."

"I'm sorry," the principal replied. "The school's academic rating has declined, regardless of what everybody says about 'smoking more but enjoying it less.'"

Determined to get his point across, the principal threw the nonsmokers into detention hall.

And if the trouble-makers remained stubborn they were expelled from school until they caught up on their back assignments by studying enough to earn Raleigh coupons.

The students, tired of this treatment, held a free speech rally at which they read copies of the Surgeon General's report.

Many of the brighter ones developed lung cancer.

The stupid ones failed their exams because they didn't know how to hold a cigarette properly.

The dishonest ones hung around the smokers' lounge, unscrupulously collecting others' odors.

The careless ones forgot to bring their lighters with them to school every day.

The poorer ones received matches from the Federal government under the anti-poverty program.

The nonconformists smoked pipes.

The incorrigibles chewed tobacco.

Romantically inclined students collaborated with each other on their homework by borrowing lights from their lovers cigarettes.

Students began their day by pledging allegiance to the American Tobacco Company.

In civics classes, they learned how to be good citizens by listening to Lucky Strike commercials.

And the English teachers taught them good grammar by using such sentences as "Winston tastes good like a cigaertte should."

Of course, not everybody approved of the school's methods of instruction. The P.T.A., for instance, was almost subverted by the Health Department.

But school officials clung to their beliefs, saying, "We'd rather fight than switch."

Despite his enthusiasm for smoking, however, the principal couldn't improve his students' showing on national exams.

There was just too much competition from states like Virginia and North Carolina.

Trustees Don't Deserve Harassment By Students

By WILLIAM OTIS

Opposition to the trustee decision to bar Herbert Aptheker has grown so wide that important distinctions among its various strains have blurred. The specific student complaints have begun by virtue of their sheer mass to shroud one another in benevolent obscurity. I suspect that a little analysis of the hodge-podge of vituperation currently being hurled against the trustees will show that its range of actual merit is rather limited—from the inconsistent to the absurd.

Student complaint number one is the plaintive whine that the trustees (or the Governor or the Legislature, etc.) "don't trust us." This complaint is usually followed by some indignant assertion that they should, because we're not really a Red nest, festering sore, etc., at all.

Granted. But we need demonstrate far more than that there is no blood on the Old Well, and that Communists indood do not lurk behind every Chapel Hill shrub, in order to earn their trust. This demonstration we have not made. To the contrary, we have invited their distrust.

How so? Paul Dickson admits that he, in consultation with the other Consolidated University student body presidents, last year planned invitations to two Communist speakers. He took this action independent of the knowledge or consent of the administration and in direct defiance of state law. Do we expect this under-the-table conspiracy to warant trust, particularly the trust of those against whom it was in part directed?

Five months ago one of the catchphrases on this campus was "trustee-control." Our student representatives before the General Assembly were emphatic in arguing that regulation of University speaking policy should reside with the Board of Trustees. So the Speaker Ban amendment passed, and trustee-control became a reality. Now we demand that speaker policy be wrenched from the trustees and parcelled out lik so many fried fish among 'certified campus organizations."

Indeed, not even the chancellor is to be notified of speaker invitations! One can only conclude that either the student body knowingly and deliberately misrepresented its position to the state legislature in order to bring about alternation of what it considered an undesirable law, or that the students urged trustee-control all the while with the idea in mind, but never revealed to the legislature, that this control would not be used and would thus dwindle to functional non-existence. Each of these positions is intellectually dishonest and deceitful. Is this how we expect to merit trust?

In spite of such dubious behavior, I am convinced that the student body should have the confidence of the trustees, and that it indeed does. I agree that Aptheker's appearance on campus would convert not a single student to communism; as a matter of fact, I think any contrary contention is laughable — but not for the usual reason given: that the students' critical reflection and incisive analysis would fetter out the yawning, gaping flaws in Marxist philosophy. Nonsense. The reasons Aptheker would find no converts are:

1) The massive, block-busting indifference with which students greet almost all political topics, amply demonstrated by the pitiable attendance political speakers usually draw here;

2) The "complete and total opposition to the Communist Party and all that it embodies" that is so strongly a part of almost all students' latent political attitudes; and

3) The fact that Aptheker is one of the most boring and pedantic speakers to be found anywhere, a real remedy for insomniacs.

Another strain of thought holds that we ought not concern ourselves with the confidence of the trustees. After all, ours is the monopoly on Righteous Indignation; they are the transgressors on our Freedoms. They should be summoned before us to account for their wrongdoing as best they can.

Such is the essence of the "invitation" issued to Governor Moore and the trustee executive committee. It is obviously tailored to embarrass (if not insult) the administration, disclaimers to the contrary notwithstanding. I dismiss it with only the comment that it is an incredible display of pompous arrogance.

The second sort of complaint against the trustee decision is that it debases "the nature of a university." A most appealing argument, but on which rests on one small but very slippery word: "a". Are we talking about the nature of this university, or of private universities? Or of the Great Ideal University unencumbered by the sometimes heavy burdens of the real world?

Clearly we must restrict our consideration to the nature of a state-owned university, despite alluring temptations to do otherwise. The nature of the state-owned university is such that it is subject to the regulation of the state. Moreover, a responsible state has the right, nay, the obligation, to supervise those instutions for which it appropriates its revenue.

Aptheker's appearance, we are told, would do much for the intellectual climate here. For one thing, it would assert his freedom of speech and our own freedom of inquiry. I attempted to show in last Thursday's paper that these arguments fail to stand up to criticims. I shall now consider two other reasons give in, favor of his proposed address: One, that it will be of educational value, and, two, that it would create the opportunity for students to rip him to "verbal shreds" with their penetrating questions.

First, not even the most exceptional mind could absorb more educational value from Aptheker's one or two hour lecture than from reading his 23 books available in Louis Round Wilson Library. Furthermore, I doubt that the dogmatic adherance to Communist theory and the pedantic approach which so permeate Aptheker's argumentation leave much of educational value in either his lectures or books in any quantity.

The second contention hardly constitutes a legitimate reason for inviting Aptheker. If we have invited him to provide us "with something to unite against . . . something that we can advance upon and strike down," in the words of one trustee critic, then we belie the argument we just finished making; that is, we cannot possibly absorb what educational value Aptheker might offer if our primary interest lies in spring upon him like an intellectual Attila the Hun.

More than this, to invite any speaker to the campus simply to use his viewpoint, no matter how unpopular, as a whipping boy for our preconceived ideas, is intellectually shabby and just a little short of malicious.

One extreme form of opposition to the trustee decision maintains that the trustees actually do not have the authority to forbid Aptheker from speaking. I need only point out that the speaker ban amendment established this authority quite explicitly. In addition, it is noteworthy that even if the speaker ban vanished today at high noon, the trustees would still have that authority. They are the immediate governing body of the University, and can make what disposition they deem advisable of University property — including denying its use to Aptheker — Ban or no Ban.

A more moderate position is that taken by DTH Associate Editor Barry Jacobs and others, which acknowledges the authority of the trustees to bar Aptheker, but argues that the decision to do so is unwise. Their reasons for this contention are, in my opinion, insufficient, but at least they make some sense unlike so much that is currently heard deriding the trustees.

They argue that the university is, in ideal, a place for the airing of ideas of all kinds. Second, they point out that the trustees have made a martyr out of Aptheker, and that "the students now can hardly help but see the issue as a fight between themselves and Aptheker on one side and the Governor and the trustees on the other."

With only the observation that as a state-owned university, we necessarily cannot claim an "ideal" intellectual environment, I concur with these assertions. I dissent, however, from the conclusions derived from them.

It is clear that Aptheker was not invited for the educational benefit to be had from his lecture (and precious little that would be anyway, for the reasons mentioned above). The invitation was issued as a calculated effort to intimidate the trustees and challenge their authority. Its design was to create turmoil and dissention within the University and without. The only response the trustees could reasonably make was the one they made.

Quote

The Fifth Amendment has been very nearly a lone sure rock in a time of storm. It has been one thing which has held quite firm, although something like a juggernaut has pushed upon it. It has, thus, through all its vicissitudes, been a symbol of the ultimate moral sense of the community, upholding the best in us, when otherwise there was a good deal of wavering under the pressures of the times.

—Erwin N. Griswold
Dean, Harvard Law School

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double-spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be limited to about 250-300 words. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel. Longer letters will be considered for "The Student Speaks" if they are of sufficient interest. However, the DTH reserves the right to use contributed materials as it sees fit.

Barry Jacobs

Demo.-Labor Alliance Show

The alliance between organized labor and the Democratic party, a political constant since New Deal days, has become seriously strained in the past few months. A formal break may come over wage increases and minimums.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration passed the Wagner Act in 1937 and put labor on an equal footing with management in disputes over working conditions, the power of labor became firmly attached to the Democratic cause. The traditional alliance of big business and the Republican party was offset by the labor-Democartic tieup.

The economic and political power of the workingmen were secured with support of the Democrats. Through the years that power has grown, and now organized labor apparently feels strong enough to take on even the mighty Johnson Administration.

Several incidents have contributed to the deterioration in the good feelings that existed between Johnson and the labor bosses. In the first place, labor has never agreed to the President's anti-inflation guideline which declared 3.2 per cent as the maximum non-inflationary annual wage boost. AFL-CIO President George Meany reiterated labor's position Monday: labor will agree to limits on pay raises only if Johnson invokes ceilings on price and profit increases, too.

The transit strike in New York didn't improve relations between the Administration and the labor leaders. Both Johnson and Gardner Ackley, one of his top economic advisers, branded the settlement as inflationary.

Labor's call for a minimum hourly wage of $2—a 60 per cent hike—has received a cold reception from the White House. A battle over raising the minimum standard may well be in the offing. It will be interesting to see what position the President takes. An increase is probable, but the size of the boost is the question.

But the most important cause of the rift between Johnson and labor is the failure of the President to redeem his campaign pledge to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Law. This section—now the most famous in the law—allows states to ban the union shop. Nineteen states have exercised this option. Big labor considers this provision to be a serious hindrance in its drive for power to use in the constant fight with management for higher wages and shorter hours.

In battling for repeal, however, labor lost a large portion of its most valuable ally—the people. Americans love the underdog; and as long as labor seemed to be the underdog in the battle with management, public sympathy was largely with the unions. In clamoring for the repeal of 14(b), however, big labor was never able to completely refute the charge that it was merely seeking power, at the expense of the ordinary working man.

The public was not behind the unions, and the fight to break Senate filibuster never had a chance. Meany and the other labor leaders, however, blamed Johnson and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield for not doing more to secure passage of the repeal. The President reaped the political advantages of making the promise to abolish 14(b); now he must take the consequences of failing to keep it.

Who is holding the better cards in this struggle between Meany and Johnson? The union leader is talking loudly, but the President appears to have the ace in the hole. Labor has no place to go if it leaves the Democratic fold. The hypocrisy of suddenly jumping into the Republican camp would surely alienate much of labor's rank and file as well as a large part of public opinion. Moreover, the GOP is still the party of big business and the party that nominated Barry Goldwater.

One other alternative remains, of course. Labor could form a separate party. The chances of success, though, are virtually nil; and it's doubtful if the labor leaders are seriously considering such a course. Their blustering is probably little more than an attempt to get more concessions from Johnson. For the time being, at least, the tall Texan is still hard to beat.

Education Beyond High School

'I Need Financial Help'

From the book "But What About the People?" by Terry Sanford.

Part Three

"Dear Governor . . . My father does not earn a very large salary, and there are four other children in my family. I would like to go to oman's College and my principal thinks I should. I have a B-plus average . . . I have saved some money but not enough . . . I will need financial help . . ."

During the last two years of my term probably not a single day passed when the Governor's Office did not receive a letter from a student who wanted help in going to college. This was true even in the middle of the school semester, and the number greatly increased in the spring and summer when college decisions were being made.

The reason the letters were directed to the Governor was a twenty-second radio and television announcement, replayed a number of times, in which I told high school graduates, "If you want to go to college, and you have the will and the skill, but not the money, write to me. Maybe I can help you find a loan."

But it was difficult for a young person just out of high school to get a loan. We needed some freshman loans.

Bankers' Help

We called on the bankers to set up a loan program available to students in any state or private college, with first priority going to entering freshmen. As a nest egg, and guarantee against loss, we had $80,000 that Luther Hodges "accidentally" picked up while soliciting funds for his Research Triangle, and the bankers made several millions more available. We call the loan program, College Foundation, Inc.

The student response indicated the demand, and the loan program indicated a part of our concern, but what about the colleges themselves? Could they take care of the demand in adequate fashion? Were they good enough?

Interest in colleges and investment in higher education are nothing new in North Carolina, but neither is failure. Governor Hodges recommended, in the 1961 Budget that he prepared and I presented, $62 million in bonds for construction of college facilities. It was approved by the legislature and submitted to the voters in the fall of 1961. It failed to pass. Some observers blamed this on the reaction to the food tax. I blamed it on not campaigning hard enough.

In any event, we just about recovered the loss by the building program of the 1963 legislative session.

Our appreciation of a strong university has continued, even with an occasional setback, but this appreciation is about the only part of the state's position in higher education that hasn't changed. Education beyond the high school no longer means a single university, or a university supplemented by "normal" schools for teachers.

Need New Concept

In the fist year of my administration, we were certain that a new concept of higher education was needed. We were not certain what the new concept should be, but we were convinced that the old pattern of the academic college would not suffice; it was not doing the total job. Even better colleges, better supported, would not do the job.

Former Governor Terry Sanford

In late summer of our first year we established "The Governor's Commission on Education Beyond the High School." Popularly known as the Carlyle Commission, it was charged with the development of a plan of growth and expansion looking at least twenty years into the future.

It was a working commission, and it hammered out a report that was monumental. It became North Carolina's master plan.

As we began to search for a stronger structure of higher education, we faced a kind of collegiate triple threat. The most awesome threat of the three was the gathering, rising, rolling waves of students who could be seen and counted coming up through the school system. Not only were there more students than ever before, but more of them were determined to seek higher education. The first order of business was to contain the flood tide.

Three Threats

The worst threat to the fulfillment of our expanding college needs, borne on the tide of the rising enrollments, was the costs. We had to think in terms of additional buildings as well as continuing and spiraling aperating costs.

Beyond the public expenditures was the public policy of costs to the students. Many students, otherwise qualified to profit by education beyond the high school, never got up the courage to think about it because getting the money seemed so impossible. If we were going to try to reach everybody, we had to find a way to hold down the costs.

The second threat was that we might allow the standards and faculty competence to drop, or fail to raise them, and we would be taking care of the crowds, but in a most mediocre manner. We would have them all aboard the train, with the whistle blowing, but the train wouldn't be leaving the station.

The third threat was that we might be held back by tradition and the slow-changing forms of college which would miss the needs of too many of our boys and girls. We needed a new concept which would make education fit the challenges of our times, changing and configuring it so that all our human resources might be exposed to the possibilities of improvement.

To override this triple threat, we charged our commission with developing a total program. They did, and they divided their recommendations into three parts.

First of all, we made the University, capstone and heart of any system of higher education, "the primary state-supported agency for research in the liberal arts and sciences, pure and applied."

New Campuses

In 1963 legislature, in accordance with recommendations by the Commission on Education Beyond the High School, empowered the Board of Trustees of the university to establish new campuses where and when needed, subject to the approval of the Board of Higher Education and the General Assembly. The Boards and the 1965 General Assembly established a fourth campus at Charlotte, our largest city.

In 1963 three junior colleges, one east, one west, one central, established by local initiative but later subsidized by the state, were converted into state - supported liberal arts colleges and expanded to four - year degree - granting institutions.

Universal education has been the viable hallmark of democracy, but our education has never been universal. We had to make education appropriate and effective everywhere, appropriate to the needs and possibilities of every child and effective for the purpose of society. Each child must have his best chance.

That was the driving force behind the third part of the Commission Report — a fresh approach to education between our high school and the college, the community college would be redesigned so that it would also reach everybody who didn't want to go to college, who had already been to college, who had "aged out" without finishing high school, who needed restraining, those in need of technical and specialized training, illiterates, those who wanted college studies but couldn't afford a residence school, and any other groups which time might develop. And this was to be done in such a way that we might adhere to the highest appropriate standards.

"Community-Comprehenisve"

Two words kept coming into focus as we looked for a broader mission for the junior college. One was the word "community." We would think in terms of population centers having within a radius of about thirty miles an adequate number of potential students. The other word was "comprehensive." We would attempt to estabish the kind of institution that would embrace all the educational needs heretofore neglected, and we would not limit our efforts to the college parallel studies of the traditional junior college.

A Community College System was created and placed under the direction of the State Board of Education, and we designated the institutions by one of three different names, depending on the scope of its mission. There was the industrial education center. We now have only three of these; most have been stepped up to a technical institute. We now have fifteen technical institutes, with extension units from the Tennessee line to the coast.

Then we have the community college, comprehensive in nature, providing all the opportunities of the industrial education center and the technical institute, plus the freshman and sophomore courses of the liberal arts college. We have five of these in operation and seven more being built. Others will follow.

Thus, we have three levels of the same thing, with the possibility of all evolving into fully comprehensive community colleges.

The unique and significant concept is the comprehensive nature of our system. These institutions can provide anything educational not provided elsewhere.

Open-Door Policy

Our mission is the meeting of all the varied needs of all the people, with good and bad academic preparation, with high and low abilities. We will equip the race track for the slow and for the fast.

We have an open - door policy on admissions. Any high school graduate, or person who is past high school age, through testing and counseling, may be placed in an appropriate program. No one is turned away.

Higher education has left the Groves of Academe and come forth into the communities of the state. We are turning out more doctors of philosophy each year, but we are also training more technicians and industrial workers.

A News Commentary

Non-Political Stuff Makes A Daily Tar Heel Editor

By ANDY MYERS
DTH News Editor

The aura of spring elections will begin to scratch the minds of even our most apathetic brethren this week. Soon even the speaker ban will be forgotten in the fement of student campaign literature, clinging limply to creosete utility poles, wrapped unreadably around lamp posts and hanging in great scads from the trees.

But wait. Something will be missing from the balloting this year. Something nobody would naturally give much thought to. What we need is a referendum to change the silly way we choose the editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

Carolina is one of the few campuses left which puts this non-political office up to a popular vote. And potential editors are not usually made of the same stuff required to win elections.

Think of the unwritten requirements of any politician: political endorsement, door-to-door campaigning, open debates on a mundane and forgetable-promise level, personality battles and general payola politicking.

All of this is as far removed from the nature of an editor as culture is from the LBJ Ranch.

By the nature of the office, editors should be removed as far as safely possible from political forums in order to prevent restraints on political commentary.

Editorial qualifications, too, are basically non - political. I have met more than one cantankerous, grisly man who might be able to drum up about two votes in an election — his and his wife's — but who was also one of the best editors in the business. An editor's qualifications are both clear and quite technical, and involve little which can be decided in a popular vote.

A DTH editor must have the blissful ability to knock out at least 500 words every day in readable style, dealing with the news, and more often than not, within two or three hours. If he had nothing else to do, this alone would be more grueling than most sane students would wish to tackle. But a DTH editor has to say something every day. Something new, which no one else has ever thought of, or at least written down before. An editor needs more than a passing, casual knowledge of newspapering.

It might be an anti-intellectual pursuit, but editors are expected to possess a working knowledge of the news and composing rooms. He must have plenty of "deadline" experience.

They don't lower the grade if the newspaper comes out one day late. You either pass or fail.

The alternative for choosing the DTH editor would be by appointment, probably by the publications board. But this process seems to have more dangers at Carolina than by election. The UNC pub board includes only one professional journalist and eight student-appointed members. Editors of the four Carolina publications also sit in but have no vote, as of this year.

Since the setup of the pub board is best suited for dealing out the monies to publications, rather than choosing editors, this should be the limit of its capacity.

What, then, is the suitable method for choosing a DTH editor? The same way, almost, we have been doing it in the past.

But candidates should be screened meticulously; not only on a basis of technical ability, writing skill, managerial competence; but also looking for a healthy dose of skepticism (not cynicism) and with an eye for journalistic failure. It takes more than the average, dedicated, digging reporter to come up with something cogent and colorful every day. And mistakes. It's just too easy to get caught making mistakes as an editor. He can't lay low until the heat blows over.

Who is to choose this superwriter, never-error flame of journalistic triumph. Leave it up to the students. But they should not be burdened with the task of separating the wheat from the chaff. They should, however, retain the right of choice, but the choice should be from among competent candidates.

If our present pub board is not suited to the screening job, then another body hould be created. This body might include elected student leaders, administration officials, and at least two newspaper editors.

As for candidates who are turned down by the screening body, they should be required to obtain a large number of signatures for a petition, not the present 145. Anyone could easily obtain this number in a matter of hours, thus making the petition process a mere formality and nullifying the screening process.

In short, if the Carolina student body wants a good editor for the DTH, then it should insist on the right to make a choice between competent candidates.

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF FEBRUARY 28th

Zoom Zoom

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Luncheon Specials

99¢

Monday
Braised Beef Tips
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Tuesday
Spaghetti
with Meat Sauce
Salad — Bread

Wednesday
Beef Parmagiana
Salad — Bread

Thursday
Barbecue Chicken
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Friday
CHOICE
Fillet of Flounder
Two Vegetables
Bread — Peach Cobbler
OR
Pepper Steak
Two Vegetables
Salad — Bread

Monday Night
7:00-8:30
½ Barbecue Chicken
Salad
Tea or Coffee
$1.29

Tuesday Night
7:00-8:30
Spaghetti
with Meat Sauce
ALL YOU CAN EAT
One Salad
Tea or Coffee
$1.10

Thursday Night
7:0:30-8:30
PIZZA — ½ Price
Plain or Pepperoni

Clip Me Out

PINE ROOM CAFETERIA

Sunday and Monday

BEEF NIGHTS

Rare Roast Beef, Thick Slice

Baked Potato with Sour Cream Dressing

Tossed Green Salad

Rolls and Butter

$1.25

Serving 5:00-7:15

Pass this difficult and challenging 7-part test and win a free GENIUS button!

"DIFFICULT AND CHALLENGING 7-PART TEST"

Part 1. Write your name and school. — 1

Part 2. Write your street address. — 2

Part 3. Write the city where you live. — 3

Part 4. Write the state where you live. — 4

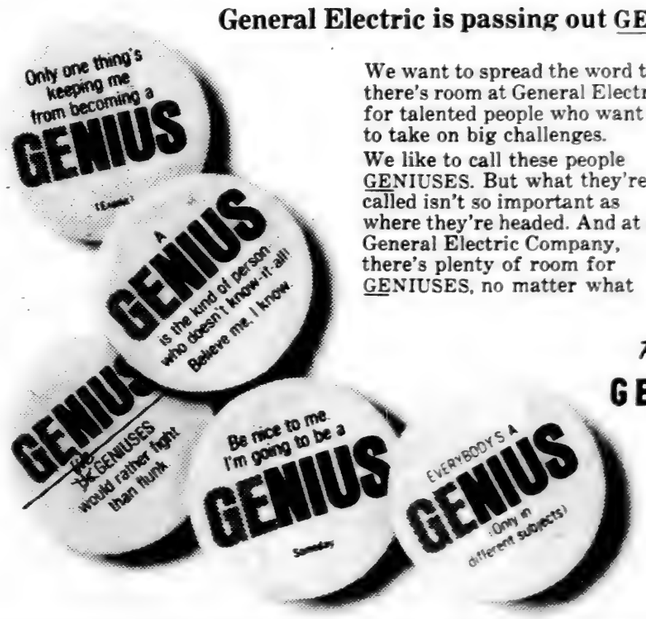
Part 5. What year are you in at college? — 5

Part 6. What field do you plan to be a GEnius in after graduating? — 6

Part 7. Now, cut out and mail the coupon to General Electric, at this address.

"Room for GENIUSES," General Electric Company, P.O. Box 215, Church St. Station, New York, N. Y. 10046 — 7

General Electric is passing out GENIUS buttons. What's the point?



We want to spread the word that there's room at General Electric for talented people who want to take on big challenges.

We like to call these people GENIUSES. But what they're called isn't so important as where they're headed. And at the General Electric Company, there's plenty of room for GENIUSES, no matter what their particular field of interest.

If you want to be recognized for your talents come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

And be among the first on your campus to own a genuine GENIUS button. It will serve as a reminder that G.E. . . . and GENIUS . . . and important challenges . . . all go together.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

U. S. Troop Situation In 'No Strain'

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson said yesterday his desk is clear of all requests for more troops in Viet Nam. And he said he thinks he can meet additional requests expected next summer "without any great strain in our forces."

This was Johnson's way of stating, at a well-attended news conference in his oval office, that he sees no need now to consider mobilizing reserve or National Guard units.

Johnson expressed his satisfaction with the battle plans and evaluations of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the American commander in Viet Nam, but declined to predict any easy victory.

"It is not going to be easy and it is not going to be short," said Johnson. "It is going to be difficult and it is going to require sacrifices."

The Chief Executive, who said he has no quarrel with Congress over recent public debate on Viet Nam policy, indicated also he does not expect to ask for a wartime tax increase or wage-price controls in the foreseeable future.

Johnson said the administration has not made any studies or recommendations on a possible tax hike.

"I would not want to preclude them," he added, but said with respect to fear of potential inflation, "we don't want to put the brakes on too fast."

In response to questions about grumbling by organized labor about the administration's wage-price guidelines designed to fight inflation, the President said:

"We think we can work it out. If we can't we will recommend whatever legislation we may think is desirable . . ." "employers and business people will forego any prices increases, just as I have asked labor to forego any (wage) increases above their productivity gains."

Nuclear Weapon Still Missing In Mediterranean

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain (AP) — For 40 days and 40 nights, they've been looking for a missing U. S. nuclear bomb in this southern corner of Spain and doubt is growing that it ever will be found.

U. S. officials directing the search, which began after a crashing B52 strategic bomber scattered its wreckage and armament along the Spanish coast on Jan. 17, remain as mum as they have been for 40 days and 40 nights.

Search goes on by land and sea. Some sorces say the hunt will go on until mid - March, perhaps much longer. But it begins to look more and more now as if the U. S. Air Force and Navy are just going through the motions.

Three of the four nuclear weapons the big jet bomber was carrying when it collided with a refuelling tanker were recovered promptly. None of the bombs was armed, that is ready for use as a weapon, at the time of the crash.

The three were found on land near the crash area but the fourth — some say it was a 20-megaton H-bomb — could not be located where human and computer calculations said it should have been.

On the beach, hundreds of Air Force personnel assisted by Spanish officials and civilians have combed and recombed the crash zone, which was about two-thirds on land, one-third in the Mediterranean.

At sea, a sophisticated Naval task force searched the area and picked up nearly 100 pieces of wreckage. Then the task force, under Rear Adm. William S. Quest, moved further to sea, in the area into which three of the four surviving crewmen of the bomber parachuted about four miles from the beach. There was no acknowledged result from this search.

North Carolina News Roundup

N. C. Construction Booming

RALEIGH (AP) — Greater investments will be pumped into heavy construction in North Carolina in 1966 than ever before, a spokesman for the construction industry said at North Carolina State University Saturday.

Henry J. Pierce, managing director of the Carolina Branch of the Associated General Contractors, said expansion of heavy construction will be limited only by the availability of manpower.

The over-all construction dollar volume will materially increase in 1966," Pierce predicted.

He said the industry expects a 40 per cent increase in highway building, a 7 per cent increase in utilities and a 6 per cent rise in industrial construction over 1965.

Pierce's projections came during the university's construction management development program. Top officials from 43 contracting companies attended the conference at N. C. State's Faculty Club.

The conference was conducted by the university's Department of Civil Engineering in cooperation with the Division of Continuing Education.

S. C. Congressman Criticizes

RALEIGH (AP) — A South Carolina congressman predicted last night, "Hanoi will never negotiate as long as they have hope of victory in the United States."

Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn told Tar Heel Democrats, "The Communist aggressor is encouraged by statements of men in public life who advocate our withdrawal from Viet Nam.

"The Communist aggressor is encouraged to continue his acts of aggression by peace demonstrations in the United States," said Dorn in a talk prepared for delivery to the Jefferson-Jackson fund raising dinner. Upwards of 1,300 Democrats paid nearly $70,000 to attend the $50-a-plate affair.

The diners were led by Gov. Dan Moore, members of the state's delegation in Congress and top state officials.

"The Communist aggressor is encouraged to fight harder, longer and more desparately by those who advocate coalition government with the ruthless aggressor," Dorn declared. "Those who fail to back our men in South Viet Nam when the battle has been joined are encouraging escalation of the conflict.

"Hanoi will never negotiate as long as they have hope of victory by disunity in the United States," he continued. "They will never sit down at the peace table as long as demonstrations erupt around the White House and on our campuses.

"Those who advocate appeasement of the Communist aggressor are advocating escalation of the war," he asserted. "They are contributing to World War III. They are contributing to a spread of the conflict.

"Neville Chamberlain of England was as guilty of starting World War II as the Nazis and facists," Dorn said. "He abandoned Czechoslovakia and World War II became inevitable with a loss of 25 million lives. There are modern day Chamberlians in the United States today."

"South Viet Nam will determine the future of free men for the next 500 years," Dorn declared. "Communist aggression in South Viet Nam is a direct threat to the independence and security of every free nation on this earth."

Dorn, turning to another subject, told the party faithful that when the Democratic Party came to power in 1961 "the textile industry was in a depression." Now, he said, "Plants are running full time with time and a half for overtime. The textile industry looks to the future with assurance and confidence."

"The Democratic Party must move forward with its traditional confidence in the individual and his ability to govern," Dorn added. "We must rededicate ourselves to human rights, property rights and individual responsibility."

Security Council Favors Negotiation

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The President of the U. N. Security Council reported yesterday that its members generally favor Viet Nam peace negotiations in an appropriate form aimed at carrying out the Geneva agreements.

Japanese Ambassador Akira Matsui, presiding over the Council this month, made the report in a letter handed in here and addressed to all the other Council ambassadors. He asked Secretary - General U Thant to reproduce it as a council document.

Diplomatic sources said 11 of the 15 council memebers had approved the letter as a reflection of their general views. The informant said the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, France and Mali had refused to approve it.

The United States, which asked the Council Jan. 31 to take up the Viet Nam question, welcomed the letter as a satisfactory outcome of the meetings the Coundil held Feb. 1 and 2 and the private consultations Matsui carried out after that.

The council put Viet Nam on its agenda Feb. 2 by a 9 to 2 vote, with the Soviet Union and Bulgaria opposed and France, Mali, Nigeria and Uganda abstaining. It also authorized Matsui to consult its members on what to do next.

In his letter, Matsui said he had tried to consult them individually and collectively and also conferred with Thant to get "his own views on the situation." The Japanese diplomat declared:

"I believe I could detect a certain degree of common feeling among many members of the Council which might be summarized as follows:

"1—There is general grave concern and growing anxiety over the continuation of hostilities in Viet Nam and a strong desire for the early cessation of hostilities and a peaceful solution of the Viet Nam problem.

"2—There appears also to be a feeling that the termination of the conflict in Viet Nam should be sought through negotiations in an appropriate form in order to work out the implementation of the Geneva accords."

The accords were reached in the Geneva Conference on French Indochina in 1954 and 1962. The 1954 agreements on Viet Nam provided for a ceasefire in the French-Indochina war, the demilitarization of both North and South Viet Nam and free elctions to unify the country.

LBJ Fills Fed Vacancy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced yesterday he will nominate Andrew F. Brimmer, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, to be a member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve Board.

Brimmer, 39 - year - old Negro, will fill the vacancy created Jan. 31 by the expiration of the term of C. Canby Balderson.

Balderson, who is eligible for reappointment, was among the four - three majority which increased the discount rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent last December.

Johnson said Brimmer, who has studied and taught in the field of economics in which the Federal Reserve is concerned, "would bring a unique combination of qualifications to the Federal Reserve Board."

U. S. Moon Program Begins

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The mightiest rocket ever launched by the United States, a towering Saturn 1B, successfully hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship over a punishing re-entry course yesterday and triggered an all-out drive to land American astronauts on the moon within two or three years.

The 40-minute maiden flight for both the rocket and Apollo ship was a resounding success and provided the first flight experience for much of the equipment which will be used for manned lunar landings.

The spacecraft rocketed 310 miles into space and survived a trial by fire—a blazing dash back through the earth's atmosphere during which its heat shield protected it from scorching temperatures up to 5,000 dgrees.

The 11,000-pound cabin section, the part in which future astronauts will ride starting late this year, separated and parachuted into the south Atlantic Ocean 5,300 mils southeast of Cape Kennedy, landing within 20 miles of the intended bullseye.

Within minutes helicopters were overhead and frogmen were in the watr. The aircraft carrier boxer came alongside about two hours after splashdown and picked up the craft.

"It was a completely successful flight and a major step toward our manned lunar landing goal," commented Dr. George Mueller, NASA's associat administrator for manned space flight."

The launching was the first of a long series of Apollo shots whose target is to land Americans on the moon in this decade. If there are no problems, the historic adventure could be achieved on flight No. 12, as early as January, 1968.

Space agency officials admit this date is optimistic — but certainly within reach if all launchings go as smoothly as yesterday's inaugural journey.

Ironically, the huge rocket almost didn't get off the ground because of prssurization problems with the first stage fuel tanks. At one point the countdown advanced to within four seconds of liftoff, only to be halted by an electronic device which sensed the trouble.

Technicians corrected the problem by adjusting a regulator in ground support equipment. The count was resumed at 15 minutes but was stopped when the trouble again developed. And th mission control center announced that the shot had been postponed for at least 48 hours.

Ten minutes later, as newsmen were preparing to leave the Cape Kennedy press site and tourists and others were leaving observation points in the area, the control center reversed itself and announced that there was no postponement, that the equipment was checking out okay. The decision was made by Dr. Kurt Debus, director of the Kennedy Space Center.

"I've never seen that happen before and I never want to see it happen again," said Mueller.

Given the go-ahead, the Saturn 1B performed flawlessly. The 22-story rocket generated 1.6 million pounds of booster thrust and 200,000 pounds of hydrogn - powered second stage thrust as it thundered across a clear sky, spewing a tail of fire more than 300 feet long.

Mueller said the only deviation in the flight was a slightly lower than planned performanc by the spacecraft motor, but that it was acceptable. The motor will be used to steer astronauts to the moon and back.

The Saturn 1B is forerunner of the massive Saturn 5, whose 7.5 million pounds of thrust will provide the initial boost for the moon trips.

Two more unmanned Saturn 1B launchings are scheduled in 1966, with three astronauts slated to ride an Apollo craft into earth orbit in November or December.

The first Saturn 5 is to have a test launching early next year, with additional 1B and 5 launchings planned during the year.

Volunteer Enlistments Shrink March Draft Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young men are volunteering for the armed services at the highest levels since last fall's big Viet Nam buildup.

Pentagon officials say January's total enlistment approaches the 50,245 who signed with the military last September preceding big draft call increases forecast by President Johnson.

What the Pentagon calls a "continued favorable enlistment trend" has already permitted a 10,500-man slash in the March draft call, originally set at 32,900 inductees. This will make the March call lowest since last August's 16,500.

But the department took pains to say the cutback does not reflect any change in plans to raise manpower by 113,000 to 3,093,000 before July 1.

Preliminary figures put over-all January enlistments at 45,300 with army enlistments totaling 18,500 — highest monthly total in more than 10 years and 118 per cent above January 1965.

The Marines recruited 6,900, 165 per cent above the same period a year ago. The Air Force got 11,500 up 65 per cent, and the Navy took in 12,400, up 55 per cent.

"Recruiting is excellent," one official said. "We are having no trouble meeting quotas and in some cases going over."

Armed service recruiters in St. Louis say many have been turned away because service quotas were filled.

These two factors probably are foremost in the enlistment surge:

—The Selective Service recently eased its requirements to reach some men who previously failed to meet certain minimum physical or mental standards.

—The draft serves as a prod for young men to join the service of their choice before they are taken by Selective Service — and draft calls have been high.

In 1965, draft calls ranged around 7,000 to 8,000 through March, jumped to 13,000 in April and moved into the upper 20,000s last fall. The peak was 40,200 in December, which ushered in the high volunteer enlistments in January when the draft call was 38,200, including 8,900 Marines. The February call eased to 29,400, including 3,000 Marines.

There's a seasonal factor also in the enlistment situation. Many youths wait until after the Christmas holiday period to join the service. Other signers include high school students who drop out at the semester break.

Thus, January is traditionally the top enlistment month. June and July, following high school graduation, rank next.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Army virtually has an "open door" policy and is taking all comers. "The Navy, Air Force and Marines are pretty well taking in the numbers they please," the spokesman said.

EVERYTHING IN BOOKS
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
The South's largest and most complete Book Store
AT FIVE POINTS DURHAM, N. C.

WANT ADS

FOR SALE: SMITH-CORONA typewriter. Portable Galaxie — excellent condition — Script type. $50. Call 942-5974 after 12:00 noon. Reason for selling: need standard type set for dissertation.

FOR SALE: 1965 GILERA motorcycle. 124 cc., 970 miles. $450 or car of same value. George Vaughan, 306 Grimes, 968-9192.

FOR SALE: GARRARD LAB 80 turntable with walnut base, dust cover and shure elliptical stylus cartridge. Like new. Best offer $75. Tel. N. Reid, 942-2508.

WANTED: PART-TIME SECretary at Hillel Foundation. 20-25 hours per week. Can arrange hours. Typing, mimeographing. No shorthand necessary. Call 942-4057 mornings.

A Fabulous Friday at Duke – March 4, 1966

Herb Alpert and The
TIJUANA BRASS
9:15 p.m.
Duke Indoor Stadium
• Tickets $2.00 per person
• No Reserve Seats

— Also —
ACC Tournament
Semi-Final Game
on Closed Circuit TV
7:00 p.m.
Indoor Stadium

Limited number of Concert-Game Combination Tickets at $3.00 per person.
On Sale at Door, Duke Main Quad, or send self-addressed Stamped Envelope to Box KM, Duke Station, Durham, N. C.

Our AVERAGE Student Reads 4.7 Times Faster

THAN HIS BEGINNING SPEED
WITH EQUAL OR BETTER COMPREHENSION

The internationally famous EVELYN WOOD
Reading Dynamics Institute INVITES YOU TO ATTEND

A FREE DEMONSTRATION

in Raleigh
YMCA
1601 Hillsborough St.
at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
MON., FEB. 28
TUES., MAR. 1
WED., MAR. 2

in Chapel Hill at the Carolina Inn
at 4, 6 or 8 P.M.
WED., Mar. 9
THURS., Mar. 10

READING DYNAMICS CLASSES BEGIN

in DURHAM H. S.
Monday, Feb. 28
at 7 P.M.

in RALEIGH YMCA
Tuesday, March 8
at 7 P.M.

in CHAPEL H.S.
Thursday, March 17
at 7 P.M.

— REGISTRATION BEGINS 30 MINUTES EARLIER —

Quotes from Former Students

IN DURHAM . . .

A reading speed of over 2,000 words per minute is enabling me finally to read the vast quantity of material I feel I should read. I am going to try these techniques on cases in Law School, and of course in all my other reading.
Alan W. Eckert.

Since I am studying to be a teacher my increased speed is not only a blessing, but a joy. I am grateful that I took the course.
Janice Smith.

Reading Dynamics has enabled me to read greater than 2,000 words per minute with better comprehension than before. This is particularly of importance to me because of the precious little spare time I have to read.
Jordan Gutterman, M.D.

IN RALEIGH . . .

Part of A Letter Home

"Everything is going just fine here. My courses are all pretty tough but all very interesting. I'm really going to enjoy this semester. You'll be glad to know that my reading has helped me tremendously! It really is a time saver. I've been getting to bed around 11:00 to 11:30 . . . and it certainly is not because I don't have any homework because I always have plenty of it. That reading, though, has just cut my study time. It really is great! That's one of the most useful presents I have ever received. Thanks a million for it! Lots of love to you all.
from a student at State.

I never really learned how to study in school; this course has given me more insight into the "art" of study than the 14 years of schooling I have taken. The guides to organizing your study are of value to all students. The development of Gist Sheets should be taught in all high schools.
Peter Savage

I now understand how to read, how to evaluate a book, what to look for and how to find what I want to in books. I had not learned any of this even after going through college. I can now preview a book for its importance or skim material for beneficial facts. I now appreciate books and the ability to read them.
Thomas Youngblood

IN CHAPEL HILL . .

• "The course has been extremely useful to me. I wish all of our graduate students could take the course."
DR. DAN PRICE, Director, Institute for Research in Social Science, U.N.C.

Again I want to wholeheartedly endorse your course and method. I began at 400 wpm and finished — reading dynamically — at speeds as high as 3,000 wpm with no loss of comprehension.—Dick League, Law School, U.N.C.

As an acting intern on pediatrics, I had gained tremendous experience but had done practically none of the general reading required for orals. The night before the examination, I was on duty and essentially, the extent of my reading was from one to three and from five to seven in the morning. In that period of time I was able to read about five hundred pages with satisfactory comprehension. I did not panic or get overly anxious. I had the feeling of a worthwhile job done satisfactorily. Since I last saw you, I have taken my National Board Examinations in all the clinical fields of medicine.
Jerry Eller, Med. Student

At the Demonstration

- You will see a Reading Dynamics graduate read at amazing speeds from a book he has never seen before and then tell in detail what he has read.
- You will see a documented film that includes actual interviews with Washington Congressmen who have taken the course.
- You will learn how we can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater recall.

HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE?

Eighteen years ago Evelyn Wood, a Utah schoolteacher, made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward a master's degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 89 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension. Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read faster than 1,500 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of experience in public schools and universities, she has made it possible for you to benefit from this great discovery.

IS IT SIMPLY A PROMOTION STUNT?

Over the past eleven years more than 160,000 graduates have been convinced that Reading Dynamics is a proven method. About Reading Dynamics' impact on our nation's legislators, Time Magazine said "Washington has seen nothing like it since the days when Teddy Roosevelt read three books a day and ran the country at the same time."

SENATOR PROXMIRE, Wisconsin: "I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It certainly compares favorably with the experience I've had at Yale and Harvard."

SENATOR TALMADGE, Georgia: "It is my opinion that if these techniques were instituted in the public and private schools of our country, it would be the greatest single step which we could take in educational progress."

MICHAEL LEVY, Pres. Standard Security Life: "My normal relaxed reading is now at a rate approximately 4,000 words per minute. Even with the most difficult and technical reading material, I find that my speed exceeds 2,500 words per minute."

SENATOR STUART SYMINGTON, MISSOURI—"I can now read materials at speeds above 3,000 words per minute and technical material in the 2,000 word per minute range."

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,000 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student AT LEAST 3 times with good comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition to any student who, after completing minimum class and study requirements, does not at least triple his reading efficiency as measured by our beginning and ending tests.

READING DYNAMICS INSTITUTE
Telephone 274-4273 or 942-7142
1412 Westover Terrace, Greensboro, N. C.
Chapel Hill

Intramural Clipboard

By BILL HASS

Intramural action ground to a halt on Wednesday as Woollen Gymnasium was taken over by workmen to set up the Atlantic Coast Conference track meet held yesterday. Basketball will resume on a full schedule Monday as will table tennis.

* * *

It's not too long before the leagues will be starting playoffs in basketball. The same system will be used as in football. In the residence hall division, there will be a champion from each residence college and a final champion decided by playoffs. In fraternity and graduate divisions, tournaments will decide the champions. There will then be an all-campus champion with the winner of the bye playing the winner of the game between the other two teams for the all-campus title.

All-campus finals are due to be played this week in volleyball.

Quite possibly the best intramural team on campus is the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. They won the Grail-Mural tournament in December by pasting Phi Delt Blue, 70-49. The boys from the FCA have not been defeated in regular season play so far, winning most of their games by comfortable margins. It's a well-balanced team with John Baldwin, Bill Edwards, Frankie Gibbs, Bill Bouton, Mike Knowles, Bill Taylor and Mike McLaughlin—all capable of hitting double figures.

* * *

This old reporter nearly had the chance to don his armor, mount his charger and take off on a crusade for the intramural department. Seems they were having trouble with a fence being built near two of their fields. Some people had criticized the fence, insisting that a hedge would look better.

Well, the intramural department called and cried on my shoulder, saying that a hedge would be too wide and would cut down the size of the fields and make them of no use. Anything I could do would be greatly appreciated, they said.

I didn't even know what fields or fence they were talking about, but already campaign slogans were forming in my mind. Save the intramural fields! We'd rather switch than fight! Or fight than switch! Or something!

But the career of Bill Hass, newspaper crusader, came to an abrupt tled everything by themselves. What a disappointment! I didn't even get in a good lick. Oh, well, maybe next time.

Blue Devils Down Carolina 77-63 On Strong Board Play

AIR BATTLE — Duke's Jim Liccardo (32) and North Carolina's Larry Miller (44) find themselves high in the air after a loose basketball. Duke's Jack Marin (left) and John Yokley (20) and Bob Bennett (31) watch the battle. —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Sports Editor

Duke's Blue Devils combine good shooting and vastly superior rebounding to defeat the Tar Heels of North Carolina 77-63 before 8,800 at Duke's Indoor Stadium in Durham.

The victory, tenth straight for the Blue Devils at home, gave Duke a 20-3 overall record. The defeat dropped the Tar Heels to 15-10 overall and 8-6 in the ACC.

The Tar Heels led only one time in the contest. Bobby Lewis hit one from the corner with 13:30 remaining in the first half for a 9-8 UNC lead.

But with 13:15 to go, Duke center Mike Lewis hit a foul shot to tie the score 9-9. Seconds later, Steve Vacendak hit a long jump shot from the top of the circle for an 11-9 lead. The Blue Devils did not surrender the advantage after that.

With 7:56 to go, Vacendak's shot gave the Dukes a four-point lead — 16-12. But a three point play by Lewis cut the advantage to one point with 7:15 remaining.

But the Tar Heels could not buy a basket during the next four minutes. Bob Bennett did break the spell with 3:15 remaining but the Tar Heels were behind seven points—24-17. With 3:11 to go, forward Bob Riedy's three-point play gave the Blue Devils their biggest lead of the half—37-17.

A Tar Heel surge in the final two minutes of first-half action did cut that Duke lead. A basket by Lewis as the buzzer sounded brought the Tar Heels within five — 32-27.

North Carolina could not margin in the second half. Lewis did bring UNC within three points — 34-31 — with 18:08 remaining, but Duke quickly took charge.

Bob Verga's jumper with 16:00 remaining put Duke out front by six — 38-32. Riedy and Jack Marin followed with baskets and the Blue Devils again had their ten-point advantage — 42-32 — with 14:22 to go.

The Tar Heels could come no closer than seven points after that. A basket by Tom Gauntlett did the trick, 45-38, with 12:30 to go.

But Vacendak's field goal made the Duke advantage 12 points, 50-38. With 10:25 to go, Vacendak again hit for a 54-41 Duke advantage.

Riedy made the advantage 17 points, 62-45, with 7:20 remaining. Reserve Jim Liccardo gave Duke its biggest advantage of the afternoon, 70-50, with 4:45 to go.

The Tar Heels did manage to rally in the final minutes. Bob Lewis led the charge with two three - point plays during the span, but they could not seriously dent the Duke advantage.

The story of the game rests in the shooting and rebounding totals. Duke outrebounded the Tar Heels 41-24 and the Blue Deivil accuracy total of 54.8 per cent easily beat the Tar Heel's 41.7 per cent.

Vacendak was the leading scorer for the Blue Devils with 20 points. Bob Riedy and Jack Marin followed closely with 19 and 17 points. Bob Verga, Duke's leading scorer with a 19 point average, was held to six points.

North Carolina's Bob Lewis was high for both teams with 24 points. Larry Miller followed with 16. No other Tar Heel scored in double figures.

CAROLINA
Player	FG	FT	TP
Lewis	8-18	8-12	24
Miller	7-15	2-3	16
Gauntlett	4-13	0-0	8
Bennett	3-5	1-3	7
Yokley	3-8	0-1	6
Mirken	0-1	2-2	2
Campbell	0-0	0-0	0
Totals	25-60	13-21	63

DUKE
Player	FG	FT	TP
Marin	8-14	1-1	17
Reidy	9-14	1-1	19
Lewis	3-7	3-5	9
Vacendak	8-16	4-4	20
Verga	3-6	0-0	6
Wendelin	0-2	0-0	0
Liccardo	2-4	0-0	4
Kennedy	1-1	0-0	2
Barone	0-0	0-0	0

SPORTS

Golf Team Begins Practice

By JIM FIELDS
DTH Sports Writer

The UNC golf team, led by defending conference champion John Baldwin began practice this week in preparation for their first match March 15 with Davidson.

Last years linkmen were conference champions and with four lettermen returning, the prospct of winning again is better than average.

Steve Robbins, who made honorable mention All-American last year, heads the list of returning lettermen. In addition to this honor, Robbins won the New Hampshire amateur title and joined with Baldwin to finish third in he Anderson Four-Ball Tournament in New York. Baldwin also won the Long Island amateur title this past summer.

Two other returning lettermen are Dick Van Leuvan and David Owen. Both boys are juniors this year and played important parts in winning the conference championship last year.

In addition to these four, there are several others returning from last year's team. They are: Stan Thompson, Peter Chanin, Harris Prevost and David Robinson.

These players, plus a host of sophomores, will make up this year's team. The play of these sophomores could largely determine just how successful this year's team is. It was the overall improved play of the sophomores last year that brought Carolina the championship and so this year the story will be about the same.

The toughest competition this year should come from Maryland and Duke. Both teams promise to have plenty of experience and will be the teams to beat. Wake Forest, who is usually right in the thick of the battle in golf, is going to be weaker this year, but they could be back in their old form by tournament time.

This year's conference tournament will be played May 16 and 17 at the Country Club of North Carolina at Southern Pines, N. C .This coures is in its second year of operation and is considered to be one of the finest new courses in the country. The N. C. amateur tournament was played there last summer and the winning score was 295—seven strokes over par.

For those freshman interested in going out for the freshman golf team, qualifying begins Monday at Finley Golf Course.

SCHEDULE

Mar. 15 Davidson—Home
Mar. 17 USC—Columbia, S. C.
Mar. 18 Clemson—Clemson
Mar. 23 Dartmouth—Home
Mar. 28 M.I.T.—Home
Mar. 29 Ohio U.—Home
Apr. 11 Virginia—Home
Apr. 16 Maryland—Home
Apr. 19 Wake Forest—Home
Apr. 26 N. C. State—Home
Apr. 29 V.P.I.—Home
May 3 Duke—Home
May 16, 17 ACC Tournament—Country Club of N. C. Southern Pines, N. C.

CBS Features Willard Tonight

Ken Willard, a two-year All-Atlantic Coast Conference choice in baseball and football while at the University of North Carolina, will be the star of the CBS Sports Spectacular today.

"The Making of a Rookie" will be screened from 2:30-4:00 p.m. over CBS stations in this area. One station, WTVD in Durham, has announced that it will definitely carry the program.

Willard, now spending his vacation period at his home in Virginia, joined the San Francisco 49'ers last fall and was runner-up to Gayle Sayres of the Year" honors in the National Football League.

The CBS Sports Spectacular had a cameraman follow Willard through his first-year career, starting with the All-Star game and winding up with the Pro Bowl contest.

This Week in the Old Book
Feature Case
Books on Music and Drama
A nice, civilized collection, and we think you'll enjoy it. Prices are low.
● While you're in, don't miss the colorful flower prints in the print room.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Devils Kill UNC With Second Shots

By JIM COGHILL
Asst. DTH Sports Editor

The Blue Dooks were just too strong yesterday in the Duke Indoor Stadium as they defeatd the Tar Heels 77-63 bfore a packed house of 8,800 people.

that Duke has reached the as his fourth undefeated home court season and it also marked the sixth straight season that Duke has rached th charmed "20" victory.

In looking back over the game Coach Dean Smith said, "Those second shots killed us in the second half and Duke's tremendous rebounding hurt us as well."

Duke outreboundd the Tar Heels 43-28 and if they didn't hit their first shot, it really didn't make that much difference, because the Devils were able to shoot again without too much trouble.

Coach Smith said the key to Duke's win came at the point when Mike Lewis got his fourth foul, Steve Vacendak took over and the Blue Devils pulled away, taking leads up to 20 points.

Carolina's Bob Lewis became the ninth man in ACC history to score over 700 points in a season during this game and the fifth highest scorer since the ACC came into existence. He ended the regular season play with 712 points and a 28.4 average. Teammate Larry Miller ended his regular season with 537 points for an average of 21.4 points per contest.

The Tar Heels are now tied for third place with Maryland and Clemson, therefore straws will have to be drawn next week in order to determine third place for tournament pairings.

Duke should definitely be the favorite in the ACC Tournament, but Smith said there is a possibility for any of six teams to walk away from Raleigh with the championship.

The Blue Devils will not be on the rebound since they have won their last game, thus they will be more vunerable to defeat if such is possible.

Coach Smith had praise for the entire Vic Bubas squad, but he didn't leave out his own team singling out Lewis, Miller, Gauntlett, Bennett and Yokley for their efforts.

The Tar Heels really wanted this one and it hurt to lose, but as Coach Smith said, "This season is over and we have a new season ahad of us."

The new season is of course the ACC Tournament in Raleigh next week and anything can happen.

Phil Riker Wins Butterfly As Dolphins Stay In Third

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's Phil Riker won the 200 - yard butterfly on Friday in the Atlantic Coast Conference swimming championships in Raleigh, but the Dolphins stayed in third place at the end of the day.

With one day left, State was way out in front with 346 points, followed by Maryland with 278, Carolina with 241, South Carolina with 107, Wake Forest with 68, Virginia with 62, Duke with 43 and Clemson with 24.

Riker won the butterfly in a 1:59.0 time, beating Pat Gavaghan of State. John White of State was third, Fred Lipp of UNC fourth, Jim Hill of Maryland fifth and Tom Adams of UNC sixth.

Carolina's best finish of the day otherwise was Rick Mercuri's second in the 100 backstroke. Ron Wirth of State won the event in 55.7 with Larry Hannibal of State third, Gaye Stratten of UNC fourth, Bruce Phillips of Maryland fifth and Jack Hayden of UNC sixth. Lee Domina of Carolina was seventh, winning the consolation finals.

Steve Rerych of State won the 200 freestyle in 1:46.7. Teammate Jeff Herman was second, Maryland's Bill Nullmeyer third, Peter McGrain of State fourth, John Sheldon of UNC fifth and Bud Beatty of Maryland sixth.

Other Carolina swimmers who placed were Jim Bernuth eighth, Russ Sleeper tenth, and Al McDonald 11th.

Wayne Powlowski of Maryland won the 100 breaststroke in 1:02.4. Rick Forum and Joe Lea of Carolina were fifth and sixth.

John Calvert of State set an ACC record of 4:19.3 in winning the 400 individual medley. Bob Hounsell and John Lawrence of State were second and third and Alex Alexander of South Carolina was fourth.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS
SEE US for MONEY!
Serving the Area as Pawnbrokers for over thirty-seven years.
Five Points Loan Co.
339 W. Main at Five Points
DURHAM

The ASSOCIATES
Typing-Mimeographying
Over Sutton's Drugs
159 E. Franklin
942-3225
Xerox

Tar Babies Win Seesaw Battle With Blue Imps 74-73

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's Tar Babies and Duke's Blue Imps perched themselves on opposite ends of a basketball seesaw in Duke Indoor Stadium Friday night, with UNC finally taking the top seat 74-73.

Duke outshot and outrebounded Carolina in the tense struggle, but when the ball game came down to clutch play, the smallest of all the Tar Babies looped in two free throws to saw the Imps right off that old seesaw.

The pair of timely 1-pointers by Gerald Tuttle came with 0:12 left to play, and gave UNC a 74-71 lead which could not be overcome by a 15-foot jumper by Duke's Gene Bromstead just before the final horn.

It was a tremendous basketball game, and undoubtedly would have been even more so if personal fouls had not taken over. Duke's Steve Vandenberg was saddled with two personals in the first three minutes. Vanderberg played only 25 minutes and UNC frontliners Rusty Clark and Joe Brown went for just 24 minutes each. The absence of each team's prime offensive threat and top rebounder definitely took a lot away from the game.

But, really, it is hard to imagine how it could have been better. The officials continually slapped both clubs in the face with calls that even had the players laughing at times.

Carolina began as if it were going to run the Imps clear back to high school, running up a 23-12 lead in the first 10 minutes.

But Duke, with three fouls on Vandenberg, went into a collapsing zone which clogged up the middle — Maryland style — and cut off the drives that had been the crux of the Carolina surge.

Duke caught up and went ahead 41-39 when Vanderberg returned to the game and got six Duke points in a 9-2 rally.

But three points from Jim Bostick and two Bunting free throws sent Carolina to a 44-43 halftime lead.

Duke opened the final period by throwing extra-weight bags on its end of the seesaw and had Carolina up in the air. Duke roared to a 56-48 lead with 15:54 left.

Bunting hit two free throws and more than a minute later Clark sank one of the same. Then Grubar canned a basket at the end of a fast break and Duke — its lead cut to 59-56—called time out with 11:51 left.

Dave Golden tossed in a foul shot less than a minute after play resumed for a 60-56 Duke lead. But Grubar and Bostick hit from outside and then Grubar drove inside for the score which put his team back on top, 62-60, at 8:04.

Clark swept along the base line for a reverse layup, but fouled out on the next play with Lind hitting 1-of-2 tosses.

Grubar took the ball and drove from the left sideline toward the basket. He spotted Bostick underneath and hit him with a perfect pass and a three-point play resulted which shot the Babies to a 72-67 lead that Duke could not top.

Lind—who led Duke with 20 points—scored as Bunting committed his fifth foul at 0:51. He Clutchbabes!

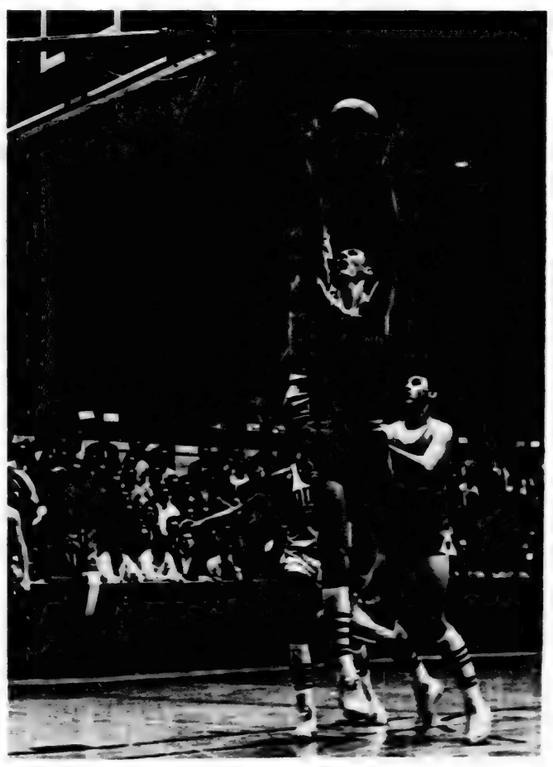
CAROLINA
Player	FG	FT	TP
Tuttle	4-14	6-6	14
Grubar	8-14	1-2	17
Brown	1-3	0-0	2
Bunting	3-8	8-9	14
Clark	4-11	6-9	14
Bostick	5-15	2-3	12
Dodson	0-0	1-2	1
Rindfleisch	0-0	0-0	0
Totals	25-65	24-31	74

DUKE
Player	FG	FT	TP
Bromstead	8-16	2-5	18
Golden	6-15	1-3	13
Lind	9-13	2-4	20
Claiborne	1-2	2-2	4
Vancenberg	3-6	6-7	12
Francis	1-4	2-2	4
Stubbs	1-2	0-1	2
Albright	0-0	0-0	0
Totals	29-58	15-24	73

CAROLINA	44	30—74
Duke	43	30—73



GRABBING REBOUNDS — UNC's Tar Baby Bill Bunting is pictured above grabbing a rebound in the Duke-Carolina frosh game which Carolina won 74-73. Bunting's teammate, Joe Brown can be seen in the background.
(Photo by Jim Rambo)

LaPIZZA'S STUDENT SPECIAL
FOR ALL THIS WEEK
HAMBURGER STEAK
Smothered in Onions,
Baked Potato — Salad.
$1.25
Call 967-1451 for delivery from 5 to 11

HERE TO INTERVIEW 'SPIES' — "The most rapidly expanding area in the field of intelligence," says William Edwards (right, of the Central Intelligence Agency, "is photo interpretation." Edwards was on campus Friday interviewing prospective analysts and agents for the government's "spy department." Dr. Louis De Vorsey of the Geography department told Edwards about the recently expanded photo interpretation program here. De Vorsey shows Edwards some of the new equipment for the program, an aerial camera and map. —Photo by Wilbur

University To Be Examined

By WILLIAM FESPERMAN
DTH Religion Editor

The Wesley Foundation will initiate a series of conversations on "The Style of Life in Our University." Sunday at 4 p.m. This is the second part of the Spring Symposium of the Wesley Foundation.

The first topic of discussion will be "Making the University Over: New Proposal for Reform at Chapel Hill."

On the panel will be Prof. O. B. Hardison, professor of English here; Prof. Thomas Donnelly, who does computer work here; Jim McCorkle, former president of SDS and graduate student in Sociology here; and Michael Lawler, of Youth Education Services of North Carolina and is an alumnus of the University.

The diversity of interests of the participants should provide a lively evening as they engage in a dialogue concerning a common interest: the University.

The uniqueness of this venture is that the University will look at itself from within. That is, those within the University, those who are at the heart of what the University is trying to do in the lives of men, will be engaged in constructive talk about the meaning of the University for itself and others.

At a time when the powers of the contrary have established the priority of the negative, such conversation is meaningful and refreshing. For growing out of this effort of internal appraisal is a vitality aimed at sapping the vigor of poisonous roots that seek to ensnarl the University community.

It is encouraged, therefore, that any within the community who wish to participate should do so.

Subsequent conversations will deal with "The Political Character of the University" and "The Quality of Intellectual and Cultural Life in Chapel Hill."

The Wesley Foundation is located at 214 Pittsboro Street, directly behind the Carolina Inn parking lots.

Inter-Agency Council Here

RALEIGH (AP) — Membership of an Inter-Agency Council on Natural Resources was announced Saturday by Gov. Dan Moore.

"The formation of the council is a result of study into how the state can better conserve and develop its natural resources for utilization and enjoyment of future genrations of North Carolinians," the governor said.

Named to the council were: State Agriculture Commissioner James Grahan; Gen. James Townsend of Greensboro, chairman of the Board of Water Resources; George Pickett of Raleigh, director of the State Department of Water Resources; J. Vivian Whitfield of Burgaw, chairman of the State Stream Sanitation Committee.

Anonoymous Calls

(Continued from Page 1)

She turned the letters over to military authorities.

One Sunday afternoon some time later, while the housewife was entertaining friends, she received another call. This time the party was more demanding, and ended his conversation by shouting obscenities into the phone.

The housewife whose life was threatened after stories of her husband's execution appeared in the newspapers also received other calls, but there was nothing but silence at the other end.

None of the housewives have buckled under these tormenting tactics in recent months, but the callers persist.

One wife, whose husband will be returning home from Viet Nam soon, still receives calls.

A female voice on the phone recently suggested that "this is a marvelous opportunity to have an affair."

Someone else called to complain of her "problem children," and still another said her dog was a menace.

"Nothing seems too big or too little for them," she related this week. "They keep right on no matter how you react."

And, the wives react in different ways. Some admit they are terrified. Others are just worried. Then there are the aggravated, and those who are downright angry.

The wives of men with long years of service seem to be standing up best under the strain, but even they admit they are becoming telephone shy.

"The telephone rings and you wonder: Is it a friend . . . or one of those things?

"Is it one of those calls where no one speaks . . . just breathes heavily into the phone? Or is it one of those who whispers obscentities?

Blue Devils Show Their Stuff

BOB BENNETT and Mike Lewis battle under the boards during Carolina's big game with Durhams' Devils.
DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Gov. Moore Here

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore will be in Chapel Hill tonight to attend a dinner for Morehead Scholarship nominees.

The governor will meet tomorrow at 10 a.m. with the Executive Committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees

Omphales Happenings

TODAY

The Service of Holy Communion at The Wesley Foundation 214 Pittsboro St. at 11 a.m.; sermon by The Rev. Banks O. Godfrey, Jr.

Westminster Fellowship presents "Medical Care: A Human Right?", a talk by Dr. T. Frank Williams, at the Presbyterian Student Center at 6:30 p.m.

All persons working in the Westminster Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation Murdoch Sunday School Program should meet at the Episcopal Church parking lot at 1:30 p.m.

The Sunday Afternoon Symposium at the Wesley Foundation at 4 p.m. will be the beginning of a new series on The Style of Life in Our University — "Making the University Over: New Proposals for Reform at Chapel Hill," a panel with Professors O. B. Hardison, Jr.; Thomas Donnelley; Mr. Mike Lawler and Mr. James McCorkle.

Graduate Christian Fellowship at 8 p.m. in Graham Memorial, Roland Parker III. There will be a Bible study on John 6 led by Dr. Thomas Noonan.

The Carolina Political Union will hear Sid Walmann speak on "Politicis In Poland" at 8:30 p.m. in the Grail Room. Guests are invited to attend. Members are requested to be present at 8 p.m. for a business meeting.

MONDAY

All committee chairmen of groups receiving appropriations from Student Government who have not done so must submit their budget request for 1966-67 by Monday at noon. Forms have been mailed which should be used and additional ones may be picked up at Student Government offices.

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room, at 4 p.m.

Professor G. A. Barnard of the Imperial College of Science, London, will speak on "Data Analysis in High Energy Physics" at the Statistics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in Room 265, Phillips Hall.

Interviews for Freshman Coordinator will be held on Monday, 5-6 p.m.; Wed., 3:30 - 5 p.m., and Fri., 2-5 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Applications may be picked up at the GM Information Desk.

Interviews for Womens Residence Council Chairman will be held Tues., 3:30 - 5:30 p.m.; Wed., 6-7 p.m., and Thurs. from 2-6 p.m. Pick up applications and sign up at the GM Information Desk for an interview.

The NSA Committee will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker I. Mandatory meeting.

Interviews for endorsement to run for Chairman of Carolina Women's Council will be held from 5-6 p.m. in the Attorney General's Office Feb. 28 - March 4. Sign up for interviews at the GM Information Desk.

Senior Invitation Sale will be conducted by the Order of the Grail March 2, 3, and 4 in Y-Court from 9-a.m.-4 p.m. However, invitation sales for the special schools will be conducted by the schools themselves.

The judicial committee of SL will meet at 4:15 p.m. in GM.

Television Today, Tomorrow

SUNDAY

WRAL (Channel 5)

7:00 The Big Picture
7:30 The Christophers
7:45 Gospel Caravan
8:15 Musical Meditations
8:30 This is the Life
9:00 TV Gospel Time
9:30 Bullwinkle Show
10:00 Beany and Cecil (c)
10:30 Peter Potamus (c)
11:00 Light Unto My Path
11:30 Youth Faces Life
12:00 Discovery
12:30 Oral Roberts JESUS SPOKE WITH AUTHORITY
1:00 Church of Our Fathers
1:30 The Circuit Rider
2:00 NBA Basketball
4:00 American Sportsman
5:00 Family Theater: STOP, LOOK & LAUGH: The Three Stooges
6:30 Gidget (c)
7:00 Voyage to the Bottom (c)
8:00 The F.B.I. (c)
9:00 Sunday Night Movie: HOLIDAY FOR LOVERS: Carol Lynley
11:00 ABC News
11:15 ABC Scope

MONDAY

WRAL (Channel 5)

5:30 Aspect
6:00 Daybreak
6:45 Ray Wilkinson—Farm News
7:00 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
7:05 Mike Wallace News
7:55 Mike High Weather
8:00 Mickey Mouse Club
8:30 Life of Riley
9:00 Femme Fare—Bette Elliott & Jack LaLanne
10:00 Time for Uncle Paul
10:30 Donna Reed
11:00 Supermarket Sweep
11:30 Dating Game
12:00 High Noon News
12:30 Father Knows Best
1:00 Ben Casey
2:00 The Nurses
2:30 A Time for Us
3:00 General Hospital
3:30 The Young Marrieds
4:30 Early Show HONG KONG CONFIDENTIAL: Gene Barry
6:00 Dateline
6:20 ABC News
6:35 Viewpoint with Jesse Helms
6:40 Atlantic Weather
6:45 Ray Reeve with Sports
7:00 Double Life (c)
7:30 12:00 High
8:30 Jesse James
9:00 Shenandoah
9:30 Peyton Place
10:00 Ben Casey
10:55 President Johnson's Address
11:00 Dateline, Sports & Weather
11:30 Starlight Theater: THE BRAVADOS: Gregory Peck

WTVD (Channel 11

6:00 Aspect
6:30 Homer Briarhopper
7:00 Today Show (c)
9:00 Captain Kangaroo
10:00 Eye Guess (c)
10:30 The Real McCoys
11:00 Andy of Mayberry
11:30 Paradise Bay (c)
12:00 Love of Life
12:25 CBS News
12:30 Search For Tomorrow
12:45 The Guiding Light
1:00 Peggy Mann
1:30 As The World Turns
2:00 Password
2:30 House Party (c)
3:00 Another World
3:30 Edge of Night
4:00 Secret Storm
4:30 The Match Game (c)
5:00 Huckleberry Hound
5:30 The Rifleman
6:00 Eleven Evening News (c)
7:00 The Virginian (c)
8:30 The Lucy Show (c)
9:00 Andy Griffith (c)
9:30 Get Smart (c)
10:00 How Quick Is Your Eye? (c)
11:00 Eleven Late News
11:30 The Tonight Show (c)

WRAL HIGHLIGHTS

SUNDAY

THE AMERICAN SPORTSMAN — 4 p.m. — Bow hunter Fred Bear stalks a Canadian grizzly; Robert Fuller hunts whitetail deer in Texas .

VOYAGE TO THE BTOOM OF THE SEA — 7 p.m.—Admiral Nelson races to recover cylinders of a high explosive from a sunken submarine.

TODAY at KEMP'S
REGARDLESS OF LIST PRICE
All Records At ONE PRICE
$2.25 PER RECORD
Sunday Afternoon 1 P.M. 'Til 6 P.M.
February 27th
New Stocks—New Releases—Mono and Stereo
AT KEMP'S 205 East Franklin CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

there's room at the top!

. . . and challenge at every step. Reason enough for starting your teaching career in New York City schools. But the opportunity for professional advancement on supervisory and administrative levels is just one of the many benefits. Your beginning salary is substantial, for instance, and is increased annually. Differentials are also available for teachers who qualify. Then you can further your career by taking advantage of the workshops, seminars, and free courses offered by the Board of Education. One of your greatest rewards will come from the intangibles — working with our students in the classroom each day. Living in New York City is a bonus all by itself. Cultural activities, sporting events, social life — all this is part of being a New Yorker. To find out more about the teaching position with the room at the top, just fill in the coupon at the bottom.

SALARY RANGE
(EFFECTIVE OCT. 1st, 1966)

B.A.	$5,400-$ 9,950
B.A. +30	5,900- 10,450
B.A. +60	6,400- 10,950
M.A.	6,900- 11,450
M.A. +30	7,400- 11,950

NEW YORK CITY BOARD OF EDUCATION
Teacher Recruitment, Dept. C.
New York City Board of Education
110 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11201
Please send me information about teaching in N.Y.C. My particular area of interest is:
Name
Address
City
State

The Only Thing That Would Take This Load off my Back is a STUDIO CARD

Ledbetter Pickard

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Candidates Meet

All candidates running in the spring election who were endorsed by the Student Party must meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Bring a picture suitable for posters and candidate's fee.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

CFI Meets Tonight

Committee for Free Inquiry will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Howell Hall Auditorium. Chairman Paul Dickson said discussion of future action will be held.

Volume 74, Number 106 | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 1, 1966 | Founded February 23, 1893

100 Plus IQ Fish Keep Him On Toes

By BOB HARRIS
DTH Staff Writer

While most UNC students are still applying for their summer jobs, Drick Heitman is reading "fish books." He already has a summer job — training porpoises.

The UNC sophomore has to read to keep abreast of the latest developments in porpoise training because at least two of the "fish" have an IQ higher than some Carolina students — over 100.

Heitman first began working with porpoises last summer in Philadelphia's Aquarama, a large indoor aquarium which presents five shows daily. He plans to return there this summer.

Heitman, a speech major, originally worked as an announcer for Aquarama. Gradually, he started working with the porpoises. It was only then he realized how intelligent they really are.

"Like stage performers," Heitman says, "the porpoises pay close attention to their audience. They perform according to the applause. A loud applause will bring a superior performance.

"They are also inclined toward practical jokes. When they see someone with a camera, they delight in splashing him.

"Somebody always goes away drenched, because some of the porpoises can jump at least twenty feet out of the water.

"During the show, the porpoises do the twist, the ballet and various other dances. They are even ridden by female performers.

"All this sounds dangerous, but there has never been a case where a porpoise has harmed a human being. In fact, they will go out of their way to help humans.

"In one of the acts at Aquarama, I have to drop from the ceiling into about 20 feet of water. Two porpoises go swimming out and rescue me.

'Untrained propoises will also rescue other porpoises When aquarium custodians in Florida dropped some Porposises into a tank, one porpoise struck his head against the side and was knocked unconscious.

"The other porpoises surrounded him and held out of the water until he regained consciousness to keep him from drowning."

Heitman, a Plymouth Meeting, Pa. native, first came to UNC the summer before his senior year in high school.

He won an award as the outstanding male actor in a Carolina Junior Playmakers performance at that time.

Since coming to UNC he has served as head announcer for WUNC radio, a job he no longer holds because getting ready the summer takes up all his spare time.

Astronauts Killed In Jet Plane Crash

From the Associated Press

Two U. S. Astronauts, who trained recently at Morehead Planetarium, were killed yesterday when their jet plane crashed into the building housing their space capsule in St. Louis, Mo.

Astronauts Elliot See, Jr., and Charles A. Bassett, II, were the primary crew of the planned Gemini 9 space flight set for late this spring.

Bassett had trained here all day last Friday at the Planetarium studying star recognition of what he would see in his Gemini 9 flight. See had been here during the past month doing a similar study, according to A. F. Jenzano, planetarium director.

"I am personally grieved," Jenzano said," at the death of the two astronauts."

The backup crew for the Gemini 9 flight, Air Force Lt. Col Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, landed their T38 single engine supersonic trainer safely at St. Louis Municipal Airport minutes after the other plane crashed.

The astronauts were flying to the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. plant here for space training in a space simulator machine when the plane carrying See and Bassett crashed in a light fog. McDonnell builds the Gemini spacecraft and Phantom jet fighter planes.

The bodies were thrown from the wreckage after the plane glanced from the roof of McDonnell's space center and then exploded into flames on a nearby construction crew parking lot.

The Gemini 9 space capsule was still in the building about 500 feet from the impact point. It was being readied for shipment to Cape Kennedy in several weeks. Also in the building in the production line for jet fighters used in Viet Nam.

Twelve persons working in a McDonnell engineering office were injured. None were thought to be hurt seriously. Some were knocked from their chairs when the plane hit the roof directly above them. One man suffered a broken ankle.

It was not learned whether See, 38, or Bassett, 34, was piloting the two - seat plane. Stafford, who rode Gemini 6 into space when it rendevoused with Gemini 7 last December, was piloting the second plane.

CAROLINA STYLE

with Ed Freakley

Falsie Advertising

Talk about senational advertising. We found a good one in the want ads of the Charlotte Observer.

The ad read: "BRA will place you fast." Now that is certainly eye catching, but let us read on. "Engineers — Accountants, Female positions; etc. "Barbara Russell Agency."

Would you say that Miss Russell's ad is false, well not false, but at least a bit blown up, or padded anyway.

One Final Point

A group of new protestors has emerged on campus. This group was marching in front of the library Saturday afternoon with signs.

